LIBRARY OF THE
UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
AT URBANA-CHAMPAIGN
070.5
ED
v. 59
no. 32-52
incompl.

NEWSPAPER

OAK ST LIBRARY

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2023 with funding from University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign

https://archive.org/details/editorpublisher5919unse_1

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
LIBRARY

Editor and Publisher
International Year Book for 1927
(v.59 no.36)
may be found on microfilm in the Newspaper
Library

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
LIBRARY

THIS ISSUE: LEADING ADVERTISERS FORESEE 1927 GOOD TIMES

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

MEMBER A.B.C.

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

MEMBER A.B.P.

riginal second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 32 NEW YORK, JANUARY 1, 1927 By Mail in Advance $4. U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign 10c Per Copy

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

World's Greatest Newspaper

NEWS

" . . . . gathered with a scoop-shovel, served up with a teaspoon"

Foreign . . . . .

A CROWDED year this; a glorious year for the foreign correspondents. The kettle boiled over in a dozen parts of the globe—and always a Tribune man standing by . . . John Steele in London . . . John Clayton keeping a vigilant eye on Italy and Mussolini, and another John—John Cornyn, a lank Tennessean down in Mexico . . . Civil War in China, an old, old story . . . a revolution in Poland . . . a paralyzing industrial tie-up in England . . . a grave financial crisis in France . . . trouble between the Mexican government and the Roman Catholic church . . . The North Polar flights . . . these were the outstanding items of foreign news which came singing over the cables during 1926 to meet at the desk of The Tribune cable editor.

WALTER ECKERSALL, Tribune Sports Writer, tossing the coin at the start of the 1926 Illinois-Michigan football game. He umpired the great Army-Navy battle.

National . . . . .

BACK to our own shores . . . The usual routine news pouring in from every corner of the country . . . a famous writer of popular songs marries the daughter of one of New York's oldest families in the face of her's bitter opposition . . . e mysterious disappearance, reappearance and subsequent trial of Aimie McPherson out on the west coast . . . November saw a number of political upsets . . . The Wets versus the drys . . . Party leaders were unceremoniously rejected by the voters . . . Senators whose names had long been synonymous with American legislative activities failed to return, and a candidate from Illinois won to the senatorial toga despite the opposition of the president of the United States . . . The Sesqui-Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia . . . President Coolidge's special commission to investigate conditions in the Philippines (Parke Brown, Tribune political writer, accompanied the official party to the Islands).

"TRUDIE" putting her signature to a Tribune Syndicate contract, agreeing to deliver a series of exclusive stories dealing with her immortal swim of the English Channel. Seated beside Miss Ederle is Arthur Crawford, manager of The Tribune Syndicate. (P. & A. Photo.)

JOHN T. MCCUTCHEON
"Dean of American Cartoonists"

John T. McCutcheon has been for years America's most popular cartoonist. McCutcheon's cartoon, the news summary, and the weather man are the only certain page-one items! The famous cartoonist owns an island in the Bahamas called Treasure Island—a bit of fairyland with cocoanut groves, old pirate cannon, a harbor, beach and breakers, woods and gardens.

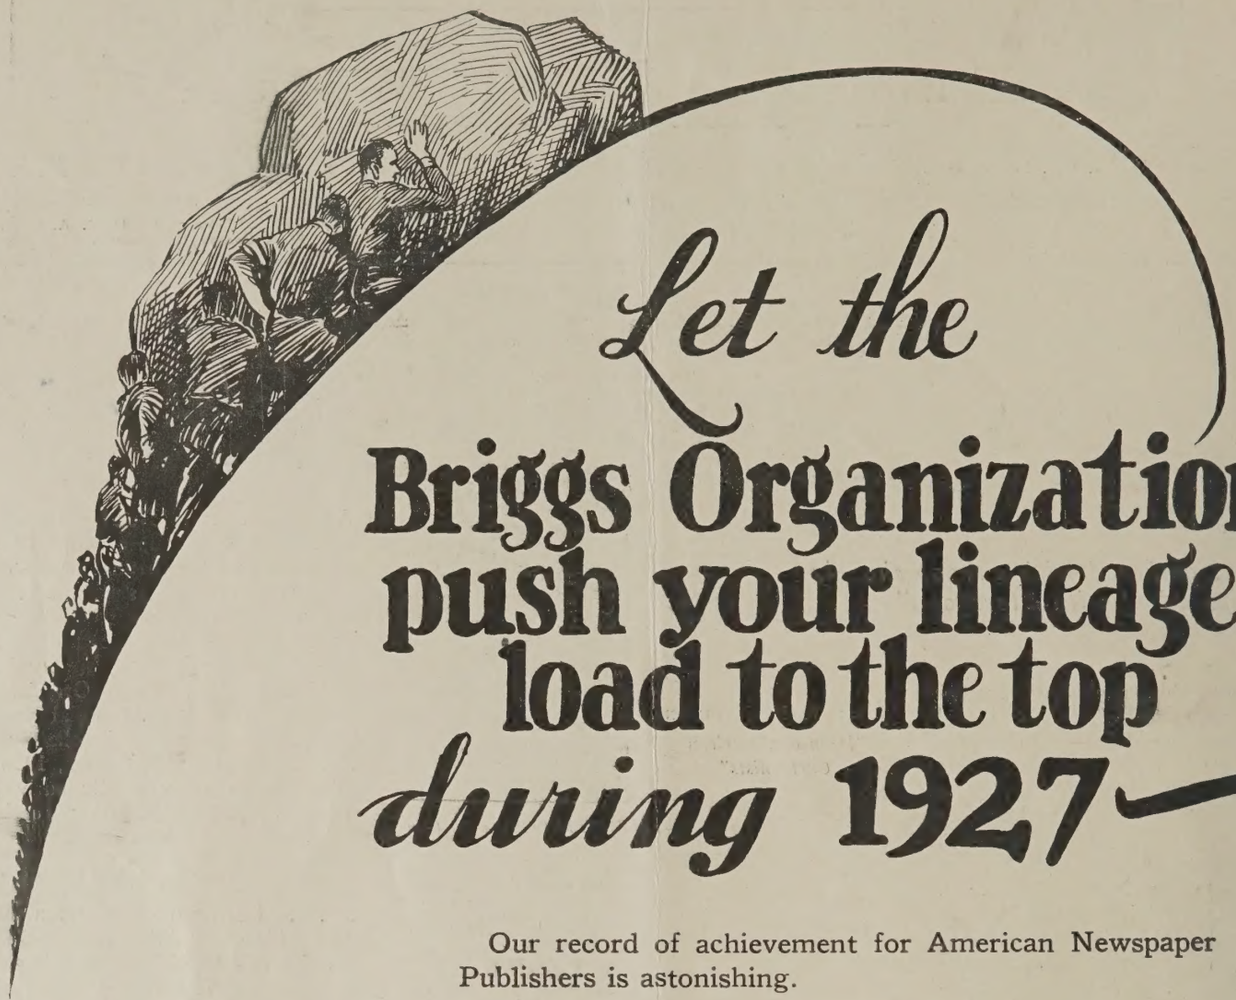
* * *

FEATURES

1926 was a notable year for The Chicago Tribune Newspaper Syndicate . . . Tribune fiction this year included some of the best short stories and serials ever; Booth Tarkington, Henry C. Rowland, Achmed Abdullah, Octavius Roy Cohen are a few of the contributing authors . . . Edward J. O'Brien, recognized authority on the short story, editor of the Yearbook of the American Short Story, writing in the Boston Transcript for Saturday, November 20th, says: "I have recorded the names of a small group of stories which . . . may fairly well claim a position in American literature . . ." Mr. O'Brien mentions five Tribune short stories as among the distinctive stories of the year . . . Tribune fiction is rated with that published by the most representative group of magazines in America . . . Notable feature scoops were secured in the summer and fall . . . First Gertrude Ederle's channel swim story, exclusively for the Tribune syndicate . . . Donald Ogden Stewart, famous American humorist, joined The Tribune feature fold with "The Other Day," appearing weekly in the Sunday Tribune . . . Carey Orr, famous as a cartoonist, wrote a great serial yarn, "Borrowed Glory," now running in the Sunday Tribune . . . R. H. L's Linebook, 1926 Edition, was given to an eager public early in December. 130,000 copies sold, at 10 cents each, the first day.

* * *

ADVERTISING



. . . During the first eleven months of 1926 The Chicago Tribune led consistently in each division of advertising. In this period The Tribune carried 72,532.15 columns of display advertising—a gain of 9% over the same eleven months last year—38% more lineage than that carried by the next newspaper and more than twice as much as carried by the third and fourth newspapers. Of this 72,523.15 columns, 19,189.13 columns was national display, and 53,343.02 columns was local display. The 19,189.13 was 98% more columns of national display than that carried by the next newspaper for the same eleven months, and more than twice that carried by each of the two next papers. The 53,343.02 columns of local display was 25% more than the next Chicago newspaper carried for the same eleven months—86% more than the third newspaper and 125% more than the fourth newspaper.

NEW PUBLIC SERVICE QUARTERS

The close of 1926 finds magnificent new and enlarged service facilities at One South Dearborn Street. One and a half million items of service were rendered by The Tribune's Public Service Office during 1926.

Chicago Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Let the Briggs Organization push your lineage load to the top during 1927

Our record of achievement for American Newspaper Publishers is astonishing.

For us to add 100,000, 200,000, or 300,000 extra lines per year to a newspaper's record is not uncommon.

We gain these handsome increases WITHOUT cost to YOU, the publisher.

The Briggs Plan will add lineage figures to YOUR record that will loom big in the eyes of advertisers everywhere. Put our organization to work for you—it is trained and proficient in the business of selling feature advertising for great dailies all over America.

Write us for complete details. You place yourself under no obligation, and we can show you the way to most profitable business.

Feature Editions in Black and White and Rotogravure

Our Special Feature Edition Department is comprised of highly trained specialists in the business of selling and editing large Special Feature Editions in either Black and White or Rotogravure. (ANNIVERSARY, HOUSEWARMING, AND OTHER WORTHY OCCASIONAL EDITIONS.)

Thomas W. Briggs Co.

Columbian Mutual Tower
MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE

070.5
EP
v.59
no.82-52

HARVEY. ZOELLER & COMPANY
INCORPORATED
ADVERTISING
104 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

November 11, 1926

Mr. Fred Fletcher
Rod & Gun
New York Herald-Tribune
225 West 40th St.
New York City

My dear Mr. Fletcher:

Our client, Von Lengerke & Detmold, will this Christmas use your paper in the Rod & Gun Column and the New York Evening Post exclusively, 12 insertions of 300 lines each. First Christmas copy will run November 16.

This is the biggest space we have yet scheduled for this client, and we want you to know that it is largely due to the good results produced in our use of your page in the series of Gun copy now running.

While there was no particular way in which we could check results on the gun series, yet we know that business in the Gun Room has picked up considerably. One incident was very much to the point. A customer came in with an ad clipped from your paper showing the Greener Gun; he remarked to the manager of the Gun Room, "I am certainly glad to know the Greener is coming back again."

As you know, guns in this store sell for $500 up and it is a real job to get people to buy sporting weapons that will sell for as high as $1500 and more. Therefore, we suppose you can take credit for the high type of Rod & Gun readers.

Please take good care of this copy, as we hope the Christmas campaign will produce enough evidence of results to permit us to realize a schedule of advertising the year round.

With all good wishes.

Yours very truly,
HARVEY, ZOELLER & CO., Inc.

Vice President

KWZ/JX

RESULTS

A large following of substantial readers interested in sports make possible the exceptional results from Rod and Gun advertising in the

NEW YORK
Herald Tribune

Make Your Wishes for the New Year Come True

More distribution and sales is the one big wish of every national advertiser, and on this depends whether he and his organization have

A Happy and Prosperous New Year

Now there's that Philadelphia market, the third largest in the United States!

Resolve that you will go after it in earnest so that the end of 1927 will see your wishes realized.

Dominate Philadelphia

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating in the newspaper "nearly everybody" reads—

The Evening Bulletin.

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

Average daily net paid circulation for the six months ending September 30, 1926

535,096 Copies a Day

The circulation of The Bulletin is the largest in Philadelphia and one of the largest in the United States.

NEW YORK
247 Park Avenue
(Park-Lexington Bldg.)

CHICAGO
Verree & Conklin, Inc.
28 E. Jackson Boulevard

DETROIT
C. L. Weaver, Verree & Conklin, Inc.
321 Lafayette Boulevard

SAN FRANCISCO
Thomas L. Emory, Verree & Conklin, Inc.
681 Market Street

(Copyright 1926—Bulletin Company)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St., at Broadway, New York. Telephones, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations. Member Associated Business Papers, Inc.

Vol. 59 NEW YORK, JANUARY 1, 1927 No. 32

New Year's Greetings From Advertising Leaders Predict General Prosperity in 1927

Awed by 1926 Floodtide of Business Many Believe Old Year Cannot Be Excelled But Consensus Is That the Future Promises Conditions Equally Good

THE 1926 floodtide of prosperity which touched virtually every business enterprise in the nation was of such record-breaking volume that newspaper publishers, as well as all other business men, are asking the question: "Will it continue through 1927?"

The keenest eyes in the business world, after scanning the tremendous production and sales figures for the past year, are boring into the future in an attempt to visualize conditions as they will be during the coming 12 months.

In behalf of its readers EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week asked national and local advertisers, agency men and special representatives to give their views upon the general business outlook for the coming year. Among those questioned were presidents with huge advertising appropriations.

While hardly daring to predict a greater year than 1926, because of its tremendous volume, all of the executives agreed that all present signs point to a year of high prosperity.

"Everything points to an excellent year in 1927 with a gratifying increase in business," William Zeigler, president of the Royal Baking Powder Company, said in part.

"Advance orders already placed for spring delivery are larger than last year," declared Harry Hart, president of Hart, Schaffner & Marx.

"Business will continue during the next six months substantially on the level of 1926," stated James Simpson, president of Marshall Field & Co.

These are but a few of the favorable predictions telegraphed to EDITOR & PUBLISHER as a New Year's greeting to the publishing and advertising fields.

Only two elements which might be viewed as unfavorable exist in business the symposium reveals—the low price of cotton and the lull in the automobile industry.

Increasing activity is expected in the cotton goods business, EDITOR & PUBLISHER was informed, while the automobile situation is viewed as a natural result of a year which saw every previous production record broken with an output of 4,500,000 motor vehicles of every make and type.

The national advertising outlook for 1927 is excellent according to the replies. With general business keeping pace with 1926 newspaper publishers may expect to see linage figures keep to their present high levels, with perhaps an advance as competition between products gets keener.

Following are the statements received by EDITOR & PUBLISHER forecasting business conditions in 1927.

JAMES SIMPSON

President, Marshall Field & Co.

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: In my opinion business will continue during the next six months substantially on the level of 1926. Fundamental conditions are left in good balance, auguring well for the period immediately ahead.

Merchandising activity generally has been successful. The retail sales of Marshall Field & Co. have been the largest in our history. Numerous other large stores throughout the country, and also the large chain stores and mail order houses, report gratifying gains.

I believe that the decline in cotton has run its course and that prices will continue at about the present level during the next few months. Cotton goods business from now on should be one of increasing activity, on a basis more satisfactory and profitable to both manufacturer and distributor.

Retail stocks are low and generally in good condition. In all probability there will continue to be an adequate supply of money at low rates for all who are entitled to credit.

Europe is making gradual progress in stabilization, and the European influence will be more and more favorable.

The great industrial progress of the year is, of course, generally understood and appreciated. I see nothing to worry about in the general industrial situation.

WILLIAM ZEIGLER

President, Royal Baking Powder Co.

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: Everything points to an excellent year in 1927, with a gratifying increase in business. More than 50 years experience has taught us that a continuous investment in newspaper space is a guarantee of constantly increasing prosperity and our program for publicity is being arranged accordingly.

ALFRED P. SLOAN

President, General Motors Corporation

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: There is reason to expect that 1927 will be another good year for the automobile industry,—perhaps not so good as 1926, but a satisfactory year. It must be borne in mind that 1926 has exceeded any previous year in volume of automobile production and sales; that domestic consumer demand has broken all records and that export business has been the largest in history. During this year something over 4,500,000 passenger cars, trucks and busses were produced in the United States and Canada, or some 6 or 7 per cent more than in the previous record year of 1925. Indeed, the past four years have been a period of very satisfactory automobile volume, the total output of the industry in the United States and Canada in these four years having been about 16,500,000 vehicles, or an average of approximately 4⅛ million a year. It now seems reasonable to expect that the 1927 production will equal, if it does not exceed, this four-year average.

It must be recognized that the volume of replacement automobile business is increasing rapidly and that the overseas demand is steadily expanding, and that additional volume from these sources in 1927 will go far towards offsetting any reduction of new user buying in this country which may be experienced.

Of course the domestic automobile demand will be affected by general business activity. And although there is some uncertainty as to what the level of general business activity will be next year, there appears to be little likelihood that any drastic change will take place, and that at worst nothing more than a moderate slowing down need be anticipated. This view is predicated upon the fundamental soundness of the present situation. Banking and credit conditions are very favorable, with the available supply of credit large and interest rates relatively easy; there has been no price inflation; inventories have not been piling up; the efficient operation of the railroads makes prompt delivery of materials and finished products possible; agricultural purchasing power, while perhaps somewhat less than a year ago (primarily because of the decline in the price of cotton) is on the whole good; and the present volume of industrial employment and the current level of wages promise the continuance, at least over the near future, of a satisfactory purchasing power from this source. The building situation, because of the high level of activity in this industry, holds an element of uncertainty, and the possibility of a decrease in building operations must be recognized. It is unlikely, however, that any sharper drastic reduction of building will occur next year.

In view of the foregoing, I think we may look forward to a year of good general business, even though it possibly will not be quite so good as 1926. And the same applies, in my judgment, to the automobile business.

C. GEORGE KROGNESS

Newspaper Representative, San Francisco

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: The general business outlook on the Pacific Coast is good for 1927, the greatly increased wealth resulting from constructive development of California's natural resources of land, water and power will continue to work for the growth and the increase of all its industries.

Unemployment is among those only who will not work. Definite progress was made in 1926 in developing plans for greater effectiveness of co-operative growers organizations. It is hoped and expected that at least 90 per cent of the growers will become members of the co-operative organizations of their respective industries, thus assuring the maintenance of stabilized prices for their production, the lack of which has been the bane of the fruit industry, with two notable exceptions. When that is accomplished the need remains for them to advertise in newspapers to attract and create buyers of their product among consumers of competitive products in metropolitan markets in the United States, which primarily are their best markets.

The prospects are for a greater volume of newspaper advertising from Pacific Coast advertisers in 1927 than was had in any previous year.

A. ATWATER KENT

President, Atwater Kent Manufacturing Company

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: The radio industry enters the year 1927 on a firmer and more substantial basis than it has ever known before. Both from the viewpoint of the manufacturer who produces radio equipment and of the public that uses it, the new year seems certain to bring new high records in achievement and satisfaction.

I believe the public recognizes that the day of superficial innovations in radio equipment has passed. Public interest is today centered in the practical and permanent features of radio installation and successful manufacturers have concentrated on the production of equipment to meet that need.

Radio is now accepted with as much definiteness as the telephone, the automobile or the motion picture. This explains the U. S. Census Bureau figures on manufactures, which shows an increase of 1,000 per cent in the production of multiple tube receiving sets between 1923 and 1925. We found it necessary, in the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Company, to speed production up to over 5,300 sets a day to meet the 1926 demand.

The utility value of radio, its practical and cultural value, is today recognized as even greater than its worth as an instrumentality for entertainment. The result is that 1927 finds the field for radio expansion and development immeasurably widened, the position of the industry strengthened, and the demand for efficient, simple, high-grade sets greater and more generally distributed than at any time in radio history.

E. R. ERSKINE
President, Studebaker Corporation

To Editor & Publisher: At the present time it seems that the volume of business this coming year in building operations, agricultural, machinery, steel, automobiles, textiles, railway transportation, and some others might be possibly somewhat smaller than the record-breaking volume of 1926; nevertheless business this next year will doubtless be of large and profitable proportions. It cannot always be on an ascending scale, and the nation's prosperity does not require that it must be. We have our ups and downs in business, but the post war position of American industries and our export trade is so strong that we cannot have a panicky setback in this country. We will do some billboard advertising this year, but newspapers and magazines will constitute our major program.

DAN A. CARROLL
Newspaper Representative, New York

To Editor & Publisher: Despite the present lull in the automobile industry due, undoubtedly, to overproduction, it would appear from reports current in business circles other than automotives that 1927 has the earmarks of another good business year, all of which should help advertising earnings in worth-while publications. Activity in the steel industry is always a good barometer of future business. Bookings for space in magazines and newspapers for 1927 are greater than in the early months of 1926, indicating that general advertisers are looking forward with confidence to increased business.

HARRY HART
President, Hart, Schaffner & Marx

To Editor & Publisher: Light stocks of merchandise in distributors hands and lack of inflation of commodity assure enlarged and continuous demand for stock replacements in 1927. Advance orders already placed for Spring delivery are larger that last year. The growing tendency toward care in management, reduction of overhead and lack of speculation in merchandise indicates continuous activity in production and satisfactory employment of labor. Advertising, long one of the sentimental implements of business, seems destined to play an increased part in the development of demand. Properly done it will be more than ever a factor in industrial progress.

WARREN WRIGHT
President, Calumet Baking Powder Company

To Editor & Publisher: I believe the general business outlook is very favorable. I look for nothing startling in 1927, but business will continue on the upgrade and there will be some improvement generally over 1926.

In view of this our advertising plans carry an advance increased appropriation.

M. P. LINN
General Manager, S. C. Beckwith Special Agency

To Editor & Publisher: When the final figures are available, we are confident that the year 1926 will have set a new high mark in newspaper advertising linage.

More than ever the newspapers continue to advance in public esteem and confidence. The newspapers as a whole are more stabilized, while the business activity and trend forecasts a bright and stable future.

The markets in communities where we represent newspapers are all in splendid condition. There are few threatening clouds in general and the business pulse, at this time unmistakably indicates that the outlook for increased business for the year 1927 is distinctly promising.

The newspapers have had greater prosperity in the year just closing than the preceding year, yet are not excited by any prosperity flurry, for the reason that the growth has been safe and sane. This firm foundation is a splendid index for its continuation all down the year 1927. We are enthusiastically optimistic.

SIGMOND P. BAER
Secretary-Treasurer, Stix, Baer & Fuller Company, Department Store, St. Louis.

To Editor & Publisher: Answering your telegram my opinion outlook for Spring, 1927 will be about the same as last year. Cannot forecast Fall yet.

J. FRANK DUFFY
President, The John Budd Company

To Editor & Publisher: After careful study of business conditions, together with reports from our several offices, we believe the national advertising outlook for newspapers in 1927 is excellent. The favorable business conditions existing throughout the country, together with the fact that daily newspaper advertising is being sold to national advertisers more effectively, and that newspaper advertising is now being regarded as the most effective means of covering individual markets served by the newspapers, indicate a fine year ahead.

C. M. CHESTER, JR.
President, Postum Cereal Company, Inc.

To Editor & Publisher: We are unable to see any basis for alarm in the present business outlook. There is evident everywhere a desire to solve existing national problems in a constructive way and business executives are, we believe, alert to meet adverse conditions should they arise. Altogether we feel business is in a state of preparedness.

STANLEY RESOR
President, J. Walter Thompson Company

To Editor & Publisher: The exceptional and very widespread prosperity which the country has enjoyed this year has been realized in spite of some lowering in general commodity prices, and on a total volume which is probably only slightly above that for 1925. Clearly, results for 1927 are not dependent upon any huge increase in total sales. Available facts point to the soundness and stability of the business situation. They augur well for the continuation of prosperity in the new year.

CHARLES H. EDDY
Newspaper Representative, New York

To Editor & Publisher: I believe general business will be good in 1927, and expect a big advertising year.

A. C. LORING
President, Pillsbury Flour Mills Company

To Editor & Publisher: The Northwest suffered from unsatisfactory agricultural conditions during 1926. We now have ample moisture, with improved prospects for farming conditions in 1927, in which case the Northwest will return to its normal prosperity.

Our business being national in scope, it has been very satisfactory and we look forward to the coming year with prospects of increased prosperity. We shall continue our regular program of advertising as in the past.

E. G. DEZELL
General Manager, California Fruit Growers Association

To Editor & Publisher: The California citrus industry has just closed the largest season in history, both in volume of shipments and returns to the state, 63,640 carloads of oranges, lemons, grapefruit, returning $98,023,031. This was accomplished through co-operative marketing, systematic distribution, and advertising in face of a serious overproduction of competitive fruits, indicating a higher level of demand upon which California citrus fruits are now established due to years of cumulative advertising and market development.

Growers face a prospective bumper crop for 1927, with confidence in the buying power of the American public and the established preference of California citrus. Sunkist advertising for 1927 season will be the most complete in history and the trademarking of this famous trademark indellibly upon the skin of two billion individual oranges will furnish consumer identification and tie up with national advertising in newspapers and magazines.

TO CONFER WITH ROADS ON BAGGAGE RATES

Publishers Will Tell Rail Executives Present Charges Are Too High at N. Y. Meeting Jan. 5

A conference between publishers and executives of eastern railroads on newspaper baggage rates will be held in New York on Jan. 5. The publishers maintain the present rates charged for newspaper transportation over eastern trunk lines are too high.

Representing the publishers at the conference will be W. E. Mathey, manager of the traffic department of the American Newspaper Publishers Association; Jerome Barnum, Syracuse Post-Standard; Frank E. Gannett, Gannett Newspapers; E. H. Butler, Buffalo Evening News; L. L. Jones, Publishers Association of New York; A. R. Michener, Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph; William McLean, Jr., Philadelphia Bulletin; J. H. Miller, Pittsburgh Gazette-Times; and A. D. Hecox, Albany Knickerbocker Press.

HOLYOKE DAILIES IN $200,000 MERGER

Price Paid for Telegram by Transcript Publishing Co.—W. G. Dwight Heads New Combined Newspaper—Deal Includes Plant

The Transcript Publishing Co., of Holyoke, Mass., publisher of Holyoke Evening Transcript, has purchased Holyoke Evening Telegram. The two papers will be merged at once, the last issue of the Telegram being that published this week Friday. The price paid is reported to be $200,000, including the Telegram building on Division Street.

Thomas A. and William J. Dillon have conducted the Telegram for nearly four years, succeeding to the ownership on the retirement of James J. O'Donnell, who had published it for a number of years. The Telegram was the successor to Holyoke Evening Democrat, published for many years by P. J. Kennedy. Following the Kennedy regime there were several owners, including Former Mayor James J. Curran, George Jenks and John J. Madsen.

For many years the Telegram had been the only Democratic newspaper in the city, which is commonly termed strongly Democratic.

The Transcript was founded as a weekly in 1849 and has been a daily since 1882, while the Telegram has been in the daily field since 1898.

Beginning Jan. 1, the Holyoke Transcript-Telegram will be published in the Transcript plant. Joseph C. Doyle, for many years Holyoke correspondent for the Springfield (Mass.) Union, which maintains a branch office in the city, will be in charge of local news for the combined paper. W. G. Dwight is head of the Transcript Company.

N. Y. WORLD RETURNS TO TWO CENT PRICE

Circulation Was "Pegged" at Three Cent Level, Bresnahan States, After Year's Tryout—Reduction Starts Jan. 3

With its issue of Monday, Jan. 3, the New York World will return to a two cent price, J. F. Bresnahan, business manager, announced this week. The price was boosted from two to three cents in January, 1925, on a claim of increased costs of production.

Explaining the present reduction, Mr Bresnahan said:

"The advance of the World's price from two to three cents two years ago followed an 18-months' consideration of the problem by the morning papers. It is by no means unlikely that had the mergers not occurred at that time, the morning papers might now be selling at the same price as the evening papers. At least, this would seem to have been the logical trend of things at that time.

"However, the World, having decided upon the move, determined to go it alone and as a consequence, the three cent price has had a thorough try-out.

"We knew that we would lose circulation, but the amazing part of the move is that we should have lost so little in the keenest competition with two of the best newspapers in the country selling at two cents.

"While the three cent price proved that the World had a loyal body of readers of somewhat under 300,000 who were not disturbed by the increase of fifty per cent in its selling price, we found that our circulation was 'pegged,' and we do not believe in standing still.

"We have returned to the two cent price which reduces our competition to a common plane. Our experience at three cents has established our strength; the World at two cents is destined to re-establish the supremacy as to figures, which we so long enjoyed."

CLINTON (ILL.) PUBLIC SOLD

Ralph C. Peltz Publisher of Morning Journal Is New Owner

Ralph C. Peltz, editor of the Clinton (Ill.) Morning Journal, has purchased the entire plant of the Clinton Evening Public from Bruce R. Wood, who has been sole owner since Sept. 1, when he acquired the half interest of his partner, J. Melvin Ledden, who has since been editor of the paper. The deal brings all the newspaper interests of Clinton under B. F. Peltz.

A year ago Mr. Peltz bought the Register, a weekly and will issue the three papers under a consolidation plan. The Public was the first daily in DeWitt county. The Journal has been Independent and the Register Democratic.

MISSOURI MERGER

Fulton Sun and Gazette and Weekly Editions Combined Jan. 1

The Fulton (Mo.) Daily Sun and the Fulton Evening Gazette were consolidated with the issue of Jan. 1, the combined paper being titled the Fulton Sun-Gazette. The weekly editions of these papers, the Missouri Telegraph, published by the Sun, and the Fulton Gazette were also combined and are now appearing as the Missouri Telegraph.

The Daily Sun is 38 years old and the Evening Gazette 11 years old. The Missouri Telegraph was founded in 1839 and the Weekly Gazette in 1877.

The S. C. Theis Company will represent the Sun-Gazette nationally.

HALF-PENNY NEWSPAPER TAX

Newspapers in New South Wales with a circulation exceeding 15,000 are to be taxed a half penny per copy under a bill adopted Dec. 23 by the Legislative Assembly in Sydney, N. S. W.

MELLETT'S SUCCESSOR AVENGED SLAIN EDITOR

Charles E. Morris Forced Prosecution When Interest Was Dying, Resulting in Conviction of Pat McDermott as Slayer—Two More Face Trial—Vice Ring Broken—Crime Figures Fall

By HERVE W. MINER
Managing Editor, Canton Daily News
(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

CANTON, O., Dec. 27.—A jury in Stark county common pleas court in fifty minutes on Christmas Eve returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree against Pat McDermott, one of three men indicted for the murder of Don Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News.

Ned Doyle

The jury recommended mercy, probably motivated by the Christmas spirit, and the convicted man is saved from the electric chair. A motion for a new trial will be overruled and soon McDermott will be behind the gray walls of the Ohio penitentiary, there to spend the remainder of his life.

The first chapter in the prosecution of Mellett's slayers has been concluded.

It has dealt with the paid hireling of a powerful vice ring, a young Pennsylvania miner who never had been in Canton prior to his being brought here to beat up or kill Don Mellett. He had no personal reason to bear animus toward the editor, but killed for pay, urged on by others who found it necessary to remove the fearless editor or see the sources of their ill-gotten gain disappear with the expulsion from office of corrupt police department heads, aided and abetted by a powerful political clique that dominated through its associations with underworld leaders.

Ben Rudner, once convicted of liquor conspiracy, and who received 18 months in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta will be the next to face the jury. The State charges Rudner was not only a conspirator in the gang that plotted to murder Mellett, but that he was the head of the ring.

Damning evidence against Rudner was brought out in the trial of McDermott, and his counsel which seemed to have gone the limit of craftiness in building up his defense, has rushed to Cleveland to bring in Luther Day, one of the most brilliant young lawyers in Northern Ohio. Day is the son of former Supreme Court Justice William R. Day, a lifetime resident of Canton.

McDermott was defended by E. L. Mills of Canton, and C. Homer Durand, twice candidate on a wet platform for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Durant was the legal representative of the State Liquor Association in pre-prohibition days. He will not be at the trial table in the Rudner case. Mills, however, will continue to represent the alleged head of the plotting gang.

Following Rudner's trial will come that of Louis Mazer known as "the Jungle Prince," who the State charges was the go-between for Rudner and McDermott. He was the man who took the killer over the ground, pointed out the lay of the land at Mellett's home, and made McDermott thoroughly acquainted with Mellett's habits.

The world, through the newspapers, knows what happened to Mellett, and the world now knows that justice has been meted out to at least one of the men who took the publisher's life. But the world does not know how the conviction of Pat McDermott was brought about, and this is what I want to tell to the newspaper fraternity.

A newspaper man, coaxing, driving, cajoling, using a club when necessary, keeping a clear brain and using it 20 out of every 24 hours, of each day for five months brought about the uncovering of the gang and the successful prosecution of one of them. That man is Charles E. Morris, who succeeded Mellett as editor and publisher of the Canton Daily News.

Within twelve hours after the murder of Mellett, Morris arrived in Canton from the home office of the Ohio News League, of which former Governor James M. Cox is owner. Morris had come on to Dayton from Washington to take up the duties of editor-in-chief and director of policies. Prior to that he had served the four papers of the League in the Washington bureau. He had gone through three gubernatorial and one presidential campaign with Mr. Cox, served him as secretary four of the six years Cox was governor, and was peculiarly fitted to meet the political bloc that confronted, right at the start, any effort to run down the slayers of Mellett.

Charles E. Morris

The new publisher found the good people of Canton disconcerted and dismayed, a police force governed by heads that sneered and laughed over the fact that their nemesis, Editor Mellett, had fallen the victim of an assassin's gun.

Political leaders in both parties, sensing the ramifications a probe of the murder might bring and business men who had been at least indiscreet in their dealings with the liquor leaders, drove at the prosecutor who was a candidate for Congress, seeking to head him off.

Morris went into action.

At times he was the general sitting back where he could keep his eyes on every movement, directing his energies here and throwing reinforcements there. At other times he was on the firing line.

Failing to get anywhere under those conditions Morris had Joseph Roach brought in from Chicago.

Roach had been successful in turning up vice rings in Terre Haute, Ind., and other cities, he was an ace in the scheme of things. His job was to uncover the vice ring, break through its political ramifications and its hold on the higher-ups of the police department.

The Chicago investigator rapidly gained enough information to lead the District Attorney in Cleveland to bring in the Federal forces to probe the liquor and narcotic conspiracies.

County Prosecutor C. B. McClintock, torn between his duty and the threats of powerful political leaders was hesitating to take action until his own investigators might have a conclusive case or a confession.

A grand jury met and adjourned without finding any indictments, then Roach played his trump card. He filed suit in the Federal court on behalf of Mrs. Mellett against several suspects who were active in the vice ring here. He named Carl Studer, since sent to prison for his vice activities, Louis Mazer and Ben Rudner.

District Attorney Bernsteen was forced to take cognizance of the case and through his investigations Rudner and Mazer were arrested for liquor conspiracy.

Then Roach issued a scathing denunciation of conditions in Canton and paid a number of uncomplimentary remarks to the prosecutor. In this statement Roach made known the fact that unless city and county officials became active in the prosecution, they too would be made co-defendants in the damage suit filed by the editor's widow. Fired by resentment McClintock replied to Roach and the latter withdrew his charges. McClintock then became a real prosecutor. Roach, having accomplished the task which he came here to do, filed briefs of all his investigations with the prosecutor, and also with the District Attorney in Cleveland, and then faded out of the picture for the time, awaiting recall when needed.

The Scripps-Howard newspapers, realizing that the murder of Mellett was an attack upon the freedom of the press, sent a corps of their best men into Canton, headed by L. E. Judd of the Akron Times-Press. Other metropolitan newspapers sent in their best reporter-sleuths. At the time, in their ambition, to tell their readers fully what was going on, they overstepped and undid some of the work that had been done to bring about further arrests.

The insidious vice ring, aided and abetted by unscrupulous lawyers who found it profitable to defend and advise criminals, frequently passed out information in which half-truths were twisted sadly, and printed in good faith by the "covering" correspondents. It was here again that Mr. Morris, as the newspaper man, showed his judgment and diplomacy.

The hunt for Pat McDermott started. Premature use of his name by one of the Cleveland newspapers had given McDermott a chance to make his getaway on the eve of his prospective arrest.

William Tugman

Ned Doyle, city editor of the Cleveland Press, took over the task of turning up Pat by working through the latter's relatives; William Tugman of the Cleveland Plain Dealer worked along the same lines. Both spent day and weeks without writing a line of copy for their papers, giving all the information to the Canton officials. And finally they prevailed upon McDermott's brothers to turn him over to Prosecutor McClintock and Detective Ora Slater pledging him a "square deal" if he had anything to tell and would tell it.

A legal coterie engaged to defend the three indicted men used every known loophole in the law in endeavoring, first to prevent them from going to trial, and second to save McDermott from the chair, but justice still prevails in Stark county, despite the fact that she seemingly had been blind or anesthetized for a number of years.

Since the murder of Mellett the police department has undergone a house cleaning. The chief, whose demotion the editor demanded, has been removed, the head of the Civil Service Commission, who stood behind the chief, last week lost his effort in the Supreme Court to be restored to his post after having been ousted by the Mayor. And other members of the department known to have been under the baneful influence of the vice ring are no longer connected with the department.

Police records show that Mellett's murder was the tenth in a period of six months. Since the word to punish his murderers started there has not been a murder, nor a major crime of violence in Canton. The things for which Don Mellett fought and laid down his life are being achieved.

The book will be closed with the conviction of the two remaining defendants and all their accomplices.

And the sequel—

The Canton Daily News in its extra telling of the foul murder of Mellett, made the promise to "carry on," it had made good the promise by driving vice leaders out of Canton, breaking their hold on officialdom and forcing the prosecution of his slayers. In this conduct it has shown not only that everything Mellett charged was true, but it has aroused a dormant citizenship to action. The attention of the press of America drawn to the fact that Canton is but a typical American city, one spot in a country that organized crime seeks to dominate, is now directed to the effort to break up organized crime wherever found; to destroy the unholy alliance which can exist between officials and crime leaders; and to arouse the leading members of the American bar to the truth of Bernard Shaw's statement that "the practice of law is no longer a profession, because it has become a conspiracy."

The next major move beyond further immediate prosecution of Mellett's murderers is expected to come in the Federal Court at Cleveland; but it will come only if the newspapers of the United States insist that Washington get busy and support the District Attorney.

The murder of Don R. Mellett was intended to serve notice on newspaper editors to keep silent against obvious misconduct. Instead, the murder has aroused newspapers to further vigilance.

MANY NEWSPAPERS GIVE BONUSES TO STAFFS AS CHRISTMAS GIFT

Cash Sums Scaling Down from 10 Per Cent of Year's Pay to $5 Gold Pieces Presented by Publishers—Turkeys and Insurance Policies Also Given

INDICATIVE of general newspaper prosperity throughout the United States were the bonuses given this year as Christmas presents to staff members by the publishers of many dailies.

While it would be impossible to total the amounts distributed, a good picture of the Yuletide generosity of American newspaper owners was revealed this week in a canvass made by EDITOR & PUBLISHER correspondents in a number of important cities from New York to the Pacific Coast. Although it is obviously impossible to present data from every paper in the country, the results obtained are believed to be representative.

In New York the Times paid its thousands of employes bonuses, but declined to disclose the total amount. The same was true of the New York Daily News, which gave cash gifts to 900 staff members on a basis of the length of time they have been with the tabloid. Approximately $3,500 was distributed among makers of the New York Evening Graphic, the Macfadden tabloid. Staff members who had been a year with the paper were presented with 15 per cent of a week's salary, and those working two years or longer with 20 per cent.

On the Pacific Coast the Los Angeles Times paid $130,000 in Christmas bonuses to approximately 1,000 employes. Christmas bonuses were distributed in Portland, Ore., by three newspapers, the Oregonian, the Oregon Journal and the Telegram. Approximately $14,000 was given Oregonian employes, while the amount of the Journal's Christmas gifts to its organization was not announced beyond the fact that it was a substantial recognition, based in part on meritorious work accomplished during the year. The Telegram insures its employes for $700 each and the insurance premiums were paid in lieu of other Christmas bonuses.

The Washington (D. C.) Star gave as a Christmas bonus three weeks' salary to members of all departments except the composing room and also paid premiums on a group insurance policy. The Washington Post gave one week's salary to all departments except the composing room.

Establishment of a Houston Chronicle Pension and Sick Benefit Fund, into which the paper has placed $10,000 was the Christmas announcement of Jesse H. Jones, publisher. The announcement stated that all employes may add certain amounts weekly or monthly, while the Chronicle will also add specified amounts.

A turkey was given to each member of the staff of the Chicago Daily News, while the Chicago Tribune presented each worker with a bonus check of from three to 10 per cent of the year's salary dependent upon the length of service with the paper.

Turkeys were also given to each married employe of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer. To each single employe a box of haberdashery was presented to the men, and a pocketbook to the women.

In accord with a custom established several years ago, the Detroit News gave one week's pay to every employe with the publication one year or more. The gift of this one newspaper totaled $45,000.

The Elmira (N. Y.) Star-Gazette and Advertiser and Sunday Telegram gave its usual one-half week's pay. These papers also maintain an insurance and pension system at the company's expense.

The Buffalo Evening News gave a five dollar bonus to each employe who had been with the paper a year or longer, and $10 to every department head.

Everyone on the payroll of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch received $10, while the Richmond News-Leader presented in excess of $25,000 divided among all the workers graduated according to their terms of service.

At Christmas time the Minneapolis Tribune annually renews the life insurance policies it gives to all employes who have been with the paper one year or more. The limit of the policy is $3,000 each and is based on the individual compensations. There are now 425 policies in force and the premiums, paid entirely by the Tribune management, approximates $10,000 annually.

The Oklahoma Publishing Company, publishers of the Daily Oklahoman and Times, remembered all its employes with the bonuses totalling approximately $10,000.

In Cincinnati, the Enquirer's present to each staff worker was a week's pay.

Many newspaper men in widely separated offices received five dollar gold pieces from publishers. This was true of the San Antonio (Tex.) Express and Evening News, which gave employes with the paper six months or longer in every department $5, while carriers and newsboys all received lesser amounts. Five-dollar cash gifts were also presented by the Lincoln (Neb.) State Journal and the Lincoln Daily Star, and the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot-Ledger.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER workers, to a total of 30, received a week's salary each, and personal gifts from the publisher.

DALLAS NEWS SELLING STOCK TO READERS

Preferred Stock Paying $7 Cumulative Dividend Being Offered, a Few Shares to Each Buyer

The A. H. Belo Corporation, publishers of the Dallas News, Journal and Semi-Weekly Farm News, has been selling preferred stock in the corporation to readers. The shares paying preferential cumulative dividends of $7 each sold for $100 plus accrued dividends. They are redeemable at $110 per share plus accrued dividends on any dividend payment date, on 60 days' notice.

With all voting common stock in the hands of the corporation's management under its recent reorganization, it was contemplated that some of the preferred stock, much of which was issued to stockholders not residing in Texas, eventually should be placed in hands of Texans. Accordingly, G. B. and W. A. Dealey, president and vice-president, respectively, provided for acquisition of a considerable portion of this stock for resale.

"The only solicitation for the purchase of such stock will be by announcement in columns of the News and Journal," said the publishers. "The stock will be sold only to such persons as may ask for it in response to such announcements. Preferably, but not solely, the stock will be sold in lots of a single share, or a few shares each."

J. F. FINLAY INJURED

S. N. P. A. Attorney Severely Hurt in Georgia Railroad Wreck

James F. Finlay, of Chattanooga, attorney for the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association sustained serious injuries on the railroad wreck that occurred at Rockmart, Ga., when two southern trains, the Royal Palm and Ponce de Leon collided. Mr. Finlay is now in the Davis Fisher Hospital in Atlanta, Ga., recovering from a broken collar bone, several broken ribs, and internal injuries.

Because of the accident officials of the S. N. P. A. have asked for postponement of the second hearing of the Federal Trade Commission scheduled to be held in Chattanooga Jan. 4. Mr. Finlay was on his way home for the Christmas holidays and was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. E. J. Finlay and Elizabeth Finlay, his daughter. They sustained slight injuries and all three were taken to Atlanta on relief trains and placed in separate hospitals.

MOSES EXPECTS SPEEDY ACTION ON POSTAL

Entire Question Will Be Threshed Out on Senate Floor Soon, Both He and McKellar Tell Editor & Publisher

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 30.—Upon the U. S. Senate floor the moot question of postal management and postal costs will probably be threshed out soon.

Senator Moses, chairman, and Senator McKellar, minority leader, of the Senate Postal committee, so assured EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week.

Moses, a Republican, and McKellar, a Democrat, are agreed that a general postal legislation bill, embodying second class rates, will be reported from their committee.

The Senate floor should provide all interests ample opportunity to debate and pass upon every phase of the postal situation.

This is the substance of the prediction made to EDITOR & PUBLISHER by both Senators.

With the Griest bills furnishing the necessary vehicle for amendments, the Senate committee will meet next week to furnish the Congress with the legislative machinery for a real show-down on postal rates.

Whether there will be any final action in either Senate or House, or in conference, on postal legislation at this, the final session of the 69th Congress, is, of course, another question.

But representatives of the newspaper publishing interests are working toward constructive and conclusive action.

The A. N. P. A. is particularly interested in "bundle rates" being provided the great metropolitan dailes with their increasing task of obtaining satisfactory transportation for the Sunday and daily edition.

The American Publishers Conference is insisting, through spokesmen for thousands of newspapers, upon a restoration of the 1920 rates involving second class matter.

Second class rates constitute a problem that must be solved, sooner or later, Senator McKellar told EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

"And the sooner the issue is met the better," McKellar added. "Let us all meet it now. I believe the situation must be plain to all of those interested. EDITOR & PUBLISHER has presented the case of the newspaper publisher so well I do not believe I can add to the picture. The Senate floor provides a forum. Let us all thresh it out there."

Senator Moses informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER that there would be a general postal bill reported to the Senate soon after Congress reconvenes.

"The postal bill I shall report will of course be subject to any amendment," said Moses.

The chairman of the Senate postal committee indicated that the place to force the fight against the Post Office Department's opposition to a reduction in second class rates is on the floor of the Senate before March 3.

ABITIBI BUYS PAPER FIRM

The Abitibi Power & Paper Company has acquired through a subsidiary the Mattagami Pulp & Paper Company of Smoothrock Falls, Ont., L. R. Wilson, vice-president and managing director announced this week. The Mattagami Company was recently discharged from bankruptcy, but G. T. Clarkson, the former receiver, will continue in charge, pending completion of the transfer.

FOUR MOVIES BOYCOTT FLORIDA DAILY

St. Petersburg Independent's Advocacy of a "Closed Sunday" Followed by Withdrawal of Ads by Publix Group

As an aftermath to a more or less bitter controversy over whether motion picture theaters should be allowed to operate in St. Petersburg, Fla., on Sunday, the Publix Theaters Corporation, which controls the Florida, Plaza, Pheil and Rex theaters, has a second time boycotted the St. Petersburg Evening Independent, by withdrawing advertising. The Independent is owned by Major Lew B. Brown, who only recently stepped down from the presidency of the Associated Dailies of Florida. During the campaign preceding a referendum election on Sunday movies in this city, the Independent opposed the move to open the theaters.

When an ordinance making it illegal to operate motion pictures, dance halls and cabarets on Sunday, was presented last spring in a referendum election, the Publix Theaters Corporation at the very outset of the campaign withdrew theater advertising because of the Independent's decided stand for a "closed" Sunday.

During September when the new Florida theater was opened, the Publix Theaters corporation again placed their advertising in the Independent, which has since devoted much space daily to a theater page and theater reviews

The ordinance prohibiting Sunday movies carried by a more than three-to-one vote and the movie interests immediately carried it to the supreme court for decision. The supreme court of the state upheld it, thus establishing an important ruling for all of Florida.

On Nov. 25, the Independent commented editorially upon the supreme court decision. It was the result of this editorial that the New York office of the Publix theaters withdrew their advertising a second time. The ads were taken from the Independent on Dec. 21.

The Independent has not boycotted the Publix theaters however. The paper will continue to announce daily, pictures being shown at the four houses. Occasional reviews will be written also, by men who are under no obligation to the Publix theaters. Orders are that the reviews shall be unbiased. The Independent management believes that the public is much interested in what is being shown at the theaters and for this reason refuses to place a ban on Publix theaters.

Smaller movie houses are continuing their advertisements in the Independent

TO OPEN BROOKLYN PLANT

N. Y. Daily News Expects 400,000 Daily Production in New Branch

The New York Daily News will start printing papers from its new branch plant in Brooklyn on Jan. 9. Only one press will then be ready for operation but eventually, according to J. W. Barnhart, business manager, the News expects to print 400,000 copies daily in Brooklyn

Thirty eight-page units will be installed in the branch plant, which is a six story structure, built by the News.

MECHANICAL BULLETIN PROMISED

The first confidential bulletin to be issued to members of the American Newspaper Publishers Association by the new mechanical department will appear within three weeks, it was announced this week. W. E. Wines, department manager, expects to return to New York about Jan. 1, from a business trip visiting newspapers in Cleveland, Reading, Pa., Philadelphia, Pa., Janesville, Wis., and Madison, Wis.

INLAND MEET FEB. 15-16

The next meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association will be held Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 15 and 16 at the Palmer House.

FIGHTING DAILY DEFEATED AD BOYCOTT

Tucson Independent Won Loyal Following by Fight on Local Utility Which Won 20% Decrease in Rates and Campaign Against University President—Boycott Regarded as Paper's Chief Asset

By WILFRED WRIGHT

HOW a four page six-day afternoon paper entered the field in an Arizona y of 35,000 population, in competition th two other dailies, both of which d been established for more than 40 ars, and survived an airtight advertis- boycott of a merchants' association ich controlled seventy per cent of the al advertising for 13 months, forms absorbing story of American news- per accomplishment. Let it also be re- rded that this paper not only flew in e face of advertising providence to ttle for what it regarded as an editorial inciple, but that it emerged from the ay with a great preponderance of public inion on its side and, incidentally, a city rculation comparable to that of its mpetitors.

The paper I refer to is the Tucson Ariz.) Daily Independent, first published March 27, 1925, by Woodson D. Up- aw as a weekly. The editor imme- ately began an editorial campaign for reduction of gas and electric light tes in Tucson. It so happened that the s and power company in Tucson was subsidiary corporation of the Federal ght & Traction Company of New ork City, and for a small unestablished eekly to undertake a battle with it, owever excessive its rates, was re- rded as positively suicidal. But the dependent valiantly persisted and car- ed the fight boldly into an eventual ngle-handed victory, even though it ok a year or more.

The gas corporation, however, under- ok no retaliatory measures against the per, but merely contented itself with noring Upshaw's demands for a fair hedule of rates to the public. The mpany held an absolute monoply in its ld and was also generous with its news- per advertising—that is, generous with l the papers except the Independent, hich got none. In any case the Inde- ndent's advertising did not suffer for is editorial campaign as it was destined later, when it entered the field as a ily and waged a torrid and determined ght to rid the University of Arizona what it termed the "incompetence and nconscionable maladministration of that stitution's president, Dr. Cloyd Heck arvin." And ironically enough, the de- anded reduction in gas and light rates as attained in March, 1926, when the dependent was in the midst of the arvin fight and battling for existence ainst the advertising boycott of the werful (at that time) Tucson Mer- ants' Association.

Confronted with an impending city ection to determine whether its twenty- e year franchise, which expires Jan. 1927, should be renewed, and faced ith editorial opposition to this renewal the Independent, unless a reduction rates was granted to the consumers, e gas company took counsel with itself. ommittees from the city council and e chamber of commerce were appointed arbitrate the rate question, the com- ny being receptive to their mediation, d with representatives from the Inde- ndent present by request, a reduction 20 per cent in the gas and power tes was agreed to by the company. The s corporation frankly admitted that the duction was fair and in order and omised that if its franchise were re- wed many improvements would be in- lled and better service provided. The dependent did not raise any objections this renewal and it was granted at the ection. Thus the paper had obtained r the public a saving of more than 00,000 per year, the small consumers nefiting principally therefrom.

As a weekly the Independent had been nducted on a free circulation basis, t when the decision was reached to ing to a daily, it was decided to begin th an eight-page tabloid at 3 cents per py or 35 cents per month, delivered. Therefore the Daily Independent began publication with a nucleus of some 400 paid subscribers who had responded to the first notice of the impending change.

The paper was incorporated as the Independent Publishing Company, Inc., all of its stock being owned by Mr. Upshaw, R. D. Richards, J. W. Sims, and Henry F. Dobyns. Richards, an experienced advertising man, had resigned as advertising manager of another Tucson daily to become associated with Upshaw in the Independent weekly. The Independent Publishing Company took over the job plant of Sims and Dobyns and the daily was launched on Nov. 2, 1925, as a tabloid morning publication.

A Whitlock cylinder job press, of uncertain vintage and previous servitude, a comparatively new model 14 and an old model 8 slugcaster composed the mechanical equipment of the paper, while two super-annuated typewriters, one desk man and a cub reporter made up the news department at the start. Upshaw wrote the editorials and plugged ads with Richards, who was also business manager, between times.

For the past four years Dr. Marvin has been president of the University of Arizona, located at Tucson. Dr. Marvin came from the University of California, Southern Branch, where he had held a position on the faculty, to succeed Dr. Rufus von Klein Smid, who had resigned to accept the presidency of the University of Southern California. Marvin is said to be the youngest man to ever head a state university, being still in his early thirties.

Shortly after he assumed the presidency of the University, rumors beg to circulate in Tucson of a general situation of unrest and dissatisfaction that prevailed on the campus. Charges of administrative czarism and revolutionary disregard for the traditions of his profession finally developed.

But Marvin enjoyed great success at lobbying large appropriations from the state legislature for the University, and embarked on an extensive building program, setting out to enlarge the institution considerably, from a material standpoint. Much money was spent in Tucson under Marvin's regime, and always there was something else to be built when whatever was being done then had been completed. There was no doubt of Dr. Marvin's popularity among the merchants and business men of Tucson; he was a good mixer among them and a staunch civic club member. They were for him without reservations of any sort, and he knew it only too well, as events afterward proved.

However, in May, 1924, the American Association of University Professors, in response to an appeal from three faculty members of the University of Arizona who had been dismissed by Dr. Marvin after long and honorable service, instituted an investigation into Marvin's administration. A committee of disinterested professors from universities in other states was appointed and instructed to inquire not only into the individual cases of the three persons complaining, but into the general situation at the University during the first two years of Dr. Marvin's administration. And that committee's report to the association, as published in the organization's bulletin of November, 1924, was decidedly unfavorable to the president.

Nothing was done about the matter then, and no unfavorable comment was published by the dailies in Arizona. Marvin continued with his building program and whatever his shortcomings academically and his disregard for the rights of those under him, many of them distinguished scholars who ranked far ahead of him in the educational world, there was no editorial voice raised against him. This state of affairs continued until Upshaw started his weekly Independent and began to protest in a mild way at first at some of Marvin's methods.

Later a personal letter written to Upshaw by a biologist on the campus, in which Marvin was jokingly referred to as "his nibs," was in some manner obtained from the editor's files and later discovered in the university president's possession. Incensed at being called "his nibs," Marvin proceeded to make things so hot on the campus for the hapless writer of that letter, who chanced to be in the government service, that he was forced to move his office from the university grounds. Upshaw thereupon demanded the return of his letter from Marvin and the name of the person who had given it to him. Marvin at first refused both demands, but returned the letter when the editor instituted suit for its recovery.

This incident was duly exposed in the Independent by Upshaw, who characterized Marvin as unfit to head the state university. And right there things began to happen.

The editor was called upon the carpet by the directorate of the Tucson Merchants' Association and ordered to "lay down" on the university situation; he was also told to "lay off" Dr. Marvin, who brought so much money to Tucson. Argument was useless; Upshaw was told flatly that if he continued his editorial protest against Marvin's methods the Independent would be denied a permit to solicit advertising from the Merchants' Association members, meaning that it would be boycotted by 70 per cent of the advertising merchants and all of the larger business establishments. The editor was advised to think it over before the next meeting of the association.

At a conference of the Independent's owners it was voted to continue the policy of editorial freedom upon which the paper had been founded, and Upshaw forthwith demanded an investigation by the university board of regents into Marvin's administration. And the threatened boycott was on. At the next meeting of the Merchants' Association the Independent was denied its formal request for a permit to solicit daily advertising from the association's membership; at the same time the request of a projected negro weekly for a similar permit was granted.

The Independent promptly came out editorially with the whole sorry story proclaiming that its advertising columns were for sale to any legitimate advertiser, but that neither its editorial nor news columns could be bought by anyone for any price. An appeal to the public's sense of fair play was productive of an instantaneous jump in the paper's circulation. Within four months' time the In-

(Continued on page 40)

22,000 CHILDREN MADE HAPPY BY TOY FUND OF NEW ORLEANS TIMES-PICAYUNE

ALTHOUGH St. Nicholas would be out of luck if he tried to traverse the Southland in a sleigh behind prancing reindeer, he has able support in the community leaders of New Orleans, where 22,000 poor children were made happy through the generous distribution of toys and dolls by the Times-Picayune. Photograph shows, left to right, John Bowie, Governor O. H. Simpson of Louisiana; Lucien E. Lyons, chairman of the Thirtieth Doll and Toy Fund of the Times-Picayune, and Leonard K. Nicholson, president of the Times-Picayune Publishing Company, actually working with the carters and other committeemen placing the toys in the huge circus tent on "the day before Christmas" in preparation for the coming of Santa Claus to Lafayette Square.

Inaugurated 30 years ago, the Doll and Toy Fund is the medium by which the children of New Orleans' poor receive their share of the traditional Christmas of joy and happiness. The Times-Picayune is the fostering agency for the fund which is supported by hundreds of individuals by contributions ranging from a few cents to hundreds of dollars. This year 12,000 white children were provided for by the Doll and Toy Fund, and 10,000 negro children were given toys and dolls from the Christmas Gift Fund, a corollary distribution agency for the benefit of the colored poor of the city and community.

NEW HAVEN DEPARTMENT STORES IN REGISTER AFTER 6 YEARS' ABSENCE

Long Standing Differences Settled with Neither Side Claiming Victory—Still Out of Times-Leader—Shopping News Continued

JOHN DAY JACKSON, publisher of the New Haven Register, has reached an agreement with the local department stores and the latter are now buying space regularly after six years' absence from Register columns.

No settlement has yet been reached between the stores and the New Haven Times-Leader, which is continuing business without department store support. An agreement between Mr. Jackson and William A. Hendrick, publisher of the Times-Leader, whereby the two papers were to act as a unit in negotiations with the New Haven Dry Goods Association, terminated last October, and overtures were then started by each newspaper individually.

Neither Mr. Jackson nor Walter E. Malley, of the Edward Malley Company, and president of the Dry Goods Association, would reveal the settlement terms when questioned this week by EDITOR & PUBLISHER. It was learned without confirmation that the Register at first held out for $1.35 an inch, later lowering this figure to $1.15 which proved acceptable.

Stores that have resumed business with the Register are the Edward Malley Company, the Gamble-Desmond Company, the Spartenberg & Robinson Company, and the Charles Monson Company.

Six years ago the break between the newspapers and stores occurred when the Register, then getting 35 cents an inch, asked for 55 cents, and the Times-Leader sought to raise its rate from 15 cents to 35 cents. The two papers combined to fight the stores and refused to carry their advertising. The latter retaliated by organizing the New Haven Shopping News.

Mr. Hendrick early this week was away from New Haven, spending the holiday season in Vermont, and no one on the Times-Leader would speak for him during his absence.

"Relations have been satisfactorily and agreeably renewed," was all that Mr. Jackson would say for publication. He explained his reticence toward publicity by stating that the agreement with the store owners was still in "a stage of development, requiring considerable diplomacy and tact."

Mr. Malley was as reticent as the newspaper publisher, refusing to discuss the situation beyond saying that the association and Mr. Jackson had "mutually arrived at a satisfactory agreement."

Inquiries made by EDITOR & PUBLISHER among officers of the Dry Goods Association and backers of the co-operative non-profit-making Shopping News tended to show that the store owners have no immediate intention of scrapping that weekly advertising publication, which few refuse to admit has been a costly experiment, but which they agree has been built to such a point of usefulness that it would be folly to discontinue it, despite the fact advertisements are again being placed in New Haven's biggest evening paper.

Paul Walker, of the Charles Monson Company, and secretary of the Shopping News, announced that a meeting of the Dry Goods Association would be held early in the new year to determine what effect if any the return to the Register would have on the advertising circular.

He said that personally he felt the Shopping News was too valuable an advertising medium to be abandoned.

All the store owners insist that the increase in their business volume has been above normal during the six years they have remained out of the Times-Leader and the Register. They account for this as due not so much to the inauguration of the Shopping News as to the fact that they continued advertising in the New Haven Union, a third evening paper, and the Journal-Courier, which holds the morning field exclusively.

Newspaper men in New Haven, on the other hand, confidently predict that the Shopping News will come to a sudden end within a short time. They claim that distribution of the Shopping News is very ineffective, and more than one store owner had admitted that distribution was a weekly problem.

The Shopping News is now being printed in the plant of the New Haven Union, and, according to William Stapleton of the Union, 37,000 copies are published weekly. The claim is made by George H. Gould, general manager of the department store paper, that it "goes into 40,000 New Haven homes."

Space is bought in the Shopping News at rates ranging from 88 cents to $1.00 an inch. The highest price is for transient business. The big stores, buying full pages weekly, rotate in position, equalizing the number of times they have preferred space. Best results are obtained, according to the store owners, from front page boxed announcements of special values. The Shopping News employs no solicitors. All copy is censored and unqualified statements are not allowed. The circular is distributed early every Saturday morning by its own independent carrier service, which Mr. Gould said numbered about 100 high school boys, paid $1 and up. Evidence that there is difficulty in getting boys to work honestly is easily observed on the bulletin board in the office of the News, where warnings to the boys not to leave the circulars at vacant houses, burn them, or otherwise destroy them are posted. Inspectors and supervisors, however, have been employed to go over all routes, and Mr. Gould said that since there is a waiting list of 500 carriers rule violators are discharged immediately when they are caught.

Only recently the Merchants Publishing Company, issuing the Shopping News, began accepting the business of local theatres. A special amusement rate is charged and "readers" are given free with each advertisement. This step was taken to lighten the cost to the stores.

The Union claims its margin of profit for printing the Shopping News is very small. The cost of mechanical production alone amounts to approximately $600 a week. This figure is reached on the basis that it requires a ton and a quarter of newsprint to issue the 37,000 copies at four and a half cents a pound; and that typesetting costs 20 cents an inch, with 168 inches to a page, and an average of eight pages weekly. Add to this the cost of distribution, overhead and the manager's salary and it is easily seen that 88 cents an inch about makes ends meet.

"At best the Shopping News doesn't get 25 per cent of its claimed circulation," Mr. Stapleton of the Union asserted. "It lacks reader interest and if the stores were charging themselves only 44 cents an inch it would be a poor advertising buy."

The store owners, however, like this cheap advertising, but only as an adjunct to newspaper space.

"The New Haven Shopping News has proved very successful," Mr. Gould said. "But no one will contend that it takes the place of newspaper advertising. You will notice in other cities where the Shopping News is prospering the merchants continue to buy space in the dailies."

"The fact that we have continued publishing the Shopping News as long as we have and that we intend to keep on publishing it should prove that we have found it a valuable advertising medium," David Gamble of the Gamble-Desmond Company said.

"I will admit that the cheapest form of day by day advertising is in the newspapers. The Shopping News is just an adjunct to newspaper advertising.

"The person who picks up and reads a shopping news must have some intention of buying, while in the newspaper a reader is often intrigued and trapped into reading the advertisements, and a buyer is created.

"Monday business, usually slack, has jumped as a direct result of the Shopping News. It has proved a very good emergency measure, which has been devoloped so far that it would be foolish to stop it now."

The Mendel-Harris Company alone continued to advertise in the Register, never joining with the other stores, although it has made some use of the Shopping News.

"The Shopping News has a certain amount of value, but it certainly cannot compare with the Register for results." William Gray, advertising manager of the Mendel-Harris Company said.

COMPLAINTS FILED OVER CORE CHARGES

A. N. P. A. Traffic Chief Expects to Recover Considerable Money for Publishers from Audit of 10,000 Freight Bills

During the past month, 24 freight claims were filed with various railroads for member papers of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, W. J. Mathey, manager of the traffic department announced this week. Filing of these claims resulted from an audit made by the department of about 4,000 freight bills out of 10,000 sent in by 35 newspapers.

In addition to the freight claims, several informal complaints have been filed by the traffic department with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The amounts involved, according to Mr. Mathey, will approximate $1,000. The complaints are concerned chiefly with rates charged for returned cores.

Mr. Mathey has been nominated for election to the office of vice-chairman of the paper committee of the Atlantic States Shippers Advisory Board, an organization designed to obtain co-operation between the shippers and the railroads. The election will be held at the boards next convention in Baltimore, Md., Jan. 13. Nomination is tantamount to election.

SPORTS WRITER IN TRAIN WRECK

Patton of Indianapolis Star Left Diner Just Before Crash

W. Blaine Patton, sports editor of the Indianapolis Star, was the only newspaper man aboard the Ponce de Leon, ill-fated crack Southern train that crashed with the Royal Palm near Rockmart, Ga., last week. Patton's life was literally saved by a piece of pie—that he didn't eat.

Patton, homeward bound after a trip to Havana, Cuba, had just finished his dinner in the dining car, where all the fatalities occurred a few minutes later. He decided not to eat his dessert and went forward to his compartment. Just as he picked up a newspaper to read the crash came and twenty persons lost their lives. Patton gave valuable aid to the injured and dying after the crash. He escaped with a slightly wrenched back.

As soon after the wreck as he could, Patton hurried to the telegraph office in Rockmart, and filed a first-hand story of the tragedy to the Star. He arrived in Indianapolis Sunday with several other Hoosiers, all of whom escaped unhurt.

ST. LOUIS CHANGES

Douglas B. Houser, vice-president and general advertising manager of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, has announced the appointment of the following as department managers: Clifford Day, local display; Wilson W. Condict, automobile display; William T. Aderton, financial display; George R. Baker, national display; George Grinham, plan, and Joseph Traxler, copy. J. Carr Gamble and Charles W. Nax will head the gravure and classified departments respectively, as heretofore.

CALIFORNIA EDITORS TO MEET JAN. 21-22

Southern Group's Sessions in Los Angeles to Be "Strictly Business" —to Discuss Free Publicity

The annual convention of the Southern California Editorial Association, to be held in Los Angeles, Jan. 21-22, will be one of strictly business, according to present plans. Inspirational and informative talks, round-table discussion, routine business and election of officers will be crowded into the two-day meeting of weekly and daily publishers and editors.

BEN H. READ

The standing policy of the organization—the abandonment of "junketing" tours—which in the last year has accounted for an increase of fifty per cent in membership, will not be deviated from at the convention, officials state.

On Friday morning following the morning call to order there will be the appointment of committees. In the afternoon prominent speakers will address the delegates on subjects pertinent to the publishing business, L. A. Yankwick, well known Los Angeles attorney will speak on "The Newspaper and the Judiciary." W. H. Hanaford, of the Danby Mino Advertising Agency, Los Angeles, and former president of the California Advertising Service Association, will speak on "The Difficulties That Keep Weekly Papers Off National Advertising Campaign Lists."

Saturday morning will be given over to round-table discussions in separate group meetings of the Dailies Division and the Weeklies Division. Harry W. Webster of the San Bernardino Sun will have charge of the former group and Tobias Larson, Claremont Courier of the latter.

A business meeting, with committee reports and election of officers will consume the afternoon session, followed by the awarding of the Los Angeles Times cup for the best front page.

Officials of the association are hoping that out of the coming convention some plan may be evolved for more definitely combating the publicity evil.

The convention committee is composed of O. M. Cannon, Santa Maria Times; C. H. Turner, Redondo Reflex, George R. Barker, Beverly Hills Citizen, F. S. Hosfelt, Colton Courier and Nei R. Murrary, El Monte Herald.

Ben H. Read is managing director of the association.

AD MANAGERS ORGANIZE

Garrett Temporary Chairman of Southern California Group

The Southern California Editorial Association has sponsored the formation of a group of the advertising managers of the member newspapers.

It is planned to have the advertising men's group meet once a month to discuss matters of mutual interest and, whenever possible, to have outside speakers.

A constitution and by-laws has already been adopted and on Jan. 10 the organization will meet for the purpose of electing officers. Cyril Garrett of the San Bernardino Sun is temporary chairman, and Ben H. Read, managing director of the Southern California Editorial Association, is temporary secretary.

"This is the forerunner of new activities to be engaged in during the coming year by the association," declared Mr. Read. "Insofar as possible we plan to launch other group organizations for department heads."

EDITOR REVIEWS 40 YEARS IN FLEET STREET

alph D. Blumenfeld of Daily Express Tells of Days When "Flash" News Was Left at Printer's Mercy —No Illustrations or Display Type in Ads—No Drives for Circulation

By RALPH D. BLUMENFELD

Written for Advertising World of London, and reprinted by Editor & Publisher by Special Arrangement

HEN I first came into Fleet Street it was a somewhat circumscribed a. It was the day of the blanket sheet. e Times, Morning Post, Daily Tele-aph, Standard, Daily News, Daily ronicle and the Morning Advertiser re great sheets covered with block e. There were no headlines in the sent sense. We will take, for instance, e Times and the Standard, which were principal newspapers; their readers rely got an indication of the origin of ws from the top of the column, which d "Germany," "France," "Austria," nited States," and so on, according to geographical position.

The news of the day was mainly high itics and commercial information. The ris, Berlin and Vienna correspondents the great newspapers had the right of y. They wrapped their news in great erminable sentences, running into col-ins, but the patient reader, traveling to ndon by the slow methods of the time, d plenty of opportunity to pick out the rnel for himself.

A big piece of what is now known as lash" news took its chance at the hands the real autocrat of the paper—name-the head printer. If he found it con-nient to fit in a piece of news at the ot of a column anywhere he did so, t, as a rule, and this is no exaggera-n, the head printer was the arbiter. hen he had sufficient material for his rpose he shut down on the editorial partment and went to press. I myself more recent years—say twenty-five ars ago—have known the head printer me down to the editorial department d say: "No more stuff, please, the per's full." This was accepted as a finite rule, unless, of course, some piece important news came along, when it as generously fitted in somewhere. at, however, depended on the printer's od.

Of course, there were favorite publica-ns. The Daily Telegraph, for instance, as the popular newspaper of the time, boasted a circulation of 250,000, and e hoardings were plastered with an-uncements to this effect. People talked out the Daily Telegraph headlines, but ey were quite innocuous until, later, e Daily Mail came along, and then the ily Telegraph burst into great scaffold-gs of type.

The evening papers were really the gaphones of outstanding personalities o had something to preach, like Stead the Pall Mall Gazette and Greenwood the St. James' Gazette.

There were four or five special corre-ondents, such as Archibald Forbes and nnett Burleigh, who had an enormous llowing.

There were no illustrations and no dis-ay type in advertisements. Even block ters had difficulty of passage through e eye of a needle!

There were eight or ten advertising encies which did a fair business, but ere were no specialists in advertising, consultants, no lay-out men—the ord "publicity" was unknown. If "pub-lity" had been known then it would ve been the signal for a general amper on the part of business men to cape from the importunities of some-e who was trying to force himself on e public. It was not done!

This went on for many years. I recol-t that less than twenty-five years ago, inking along the lines of big publicity, occurred to me how useful it would for one of the big drapery businesses advertise itself, especially in a large ay. So I myself laid out a page and d it set up. I rang up the head of one the great distributing houses and told m I would like to see him on an im-rtant matter. As I was the editor, d not the advertising manager, I felt I uld approach him without rebuff, but smelt a rat and asked if I wanted to see him about advertising. "Oh, then I can't see you." "I must see you," I answered, "for this is a matter for you and not for me. I am not an advertising canvasser, and I don't care one way or the other what you do, but I would like you to see what I have devised for you." After some demur he agreed I should see him on the following Thursday, about a week later. I took my specimen page, which was really quite a good one for those days, and laid it on the table. To my surprise he was immensely attracted. "My dear sir," he said, "this is perfectly splendid. I like it very much. But I am afraid we could not do it. If we went in for this kind of advertising we should require an enormously increased staff and would probably have to put another couple of stories on to our build-ing. What would be the use? We are doing quite well enough."

Ralph D. Blumenfeld

So advertising at the end of the last century was very much in the same back-ward condition as the news department. There was no great push for circulation. For the daily newspaper it was consid-ered rather undignified to push circula-tion and to look round for new readers.

The real advance in the direction of widening the scope of newspapers, par-ticularly in London, came with the South African War. The Daily Mail, being a halfpenny paper, suddenly came within the purchasing scope of the people in the villages. Before then they had been satis-fied with Lloyd's News and the People on Sundays. But when all the boys of the villages went to South Africa, the Daily Mail published the casualty lists, and the villages wanted to know what had become of their boys. So, for the first time, the popular dailies penetrated to the highways and byways, the nooks and crannies of the country.

For four years the Daily Mail prac-tically had the halfpenny field to itself. Its competitor was the Morning Leader, which was absorbed by the Daily News; Sir George Newnes attempted another, but it lasted only a few months, and no serious opposition arose until 1900, when Sir Arthur Pearson inaugurated the Daily Express. He was able to start the Express owing to the demand created by the South African War.

The difficulty at that time was that these were halfpenny papers, and the halfpenny was the stumbling block in the sense that, although the halfpenny papers were more enterprising and had greater initiative, employing men of greater experience and talent, it was always considered a mark of inferiority to belong to a halfpenny newspaper. The Daily Chronicle was still a penny paper, the Daily News was a penny and The Times was threepence. It was not until about 1904 that the Daily News and the Chronicle took the grave step of desert-ing the high-toned penny market and put on the corduroys of the halfpenny. The reason for this step, of course, was sheer necessity, which perhaps they never re-gretted in the end, for it brought them prosperity and completely altered their make-up.

It is a peculiar coincidence that one war produced the halfpenny papers and another war forced them to the present state of pennydom!

In my early days, in London the great-est newspaper next to the traditional Times was the Standard. It had an enormous reputation for its continental news. Its foreign telegrams were consid-ered to be the most authoritative in the world. It held a position unequaled, with perhaps the exception of the Manchester Guardian, by any paper in the country. And then it went out like a rush-light. It did fairly well through the Boer War, was a Tory of Tories, but when Mr. Chamberlain produced his Tariff Reform scheme it took the liberty of declining to follow him, and then the circulation dwindled day by day, until at the end of 1905 it was handed over to Sir Arthur Pearson for what was then considered to be a mere song.

Regarding the methods employed in producing a newspaper, there was just as much difference between those days and now in the gathering of news as there was in the advertising and editorial de-partments. A reporter, for instance, was not obliged to come to his office if by the first post he had not received his assignments for the day. If there was no indication from the chief reporter—who was the news editor of the time—that the man was wanted, he had the day to himself.

It was not possible, for instance, for a reporter to call on a public man or a business man in the ordinary course for the purpose of obtaining an interview un-less he was what was called "properly dressed," which meant he had to wear a frock coat and a top hat. I remember one time, some thirty-five or six years ago, when I was the London correspond-ent of the New York Herald, there was a great financial disaster in the city. One of the most important houses had failed to meet its obligations, and it looked very much as if many banks and financial houses would come down in the crash. The obvious thing was for the Bank of England to come to the rescue, or at least issue a reassuring statement to the pub-lic. I suggested to Mr. Walter of The Times that he should send the financial editor to see the Governor of the Bank of England to obtain an interview to be sent round at once to the agencies as a Times interview. Mr. Walter did not think this could be done, as it was not usual. "If the bank has anything to say," he said, "the Governor will let us know."

I was young and unsophisticated, and not being subject to the sartorial rule I went to the bank myself. I had on a tweed suit and wore a bowler hat. This, in those days, was a rather unusual spec-tacle at the doors of the bank, for even the clerks were obliged to wear top hats, and I had difficulty in getting through to the proper room from whence I could send in my card. After a great deal of trouble I was at last scrutinized by two gentlemen in frock coats, whom I in-formed I wanted to see the Governor on behalf of the New York Herald, which at that time was one of the three greatest papers in the world. It happened to be the psychological moment for the door to open and someone to come out and say: "You are the very man I want." I went in and obtained from Mr. Lidderdale, the Governor of the Bank of England, the statement that reassured the world.

But before I went out, the Governor said to me, "How old are you?" I was twenty-six. "Goodness gracious me," he said, "and you are the European repre-sentative of that great newspaper? I can hardly believe it possible that so young a man should be in such a responsible position." He shook his head and showed me to the door, but I have always felt quite sure that until he saw the interview in the paper he was doubtful as to my bona fides; for in those days no man held any position of importance until he showed gray hair.

Up to twenty years ago the newspaper business in this country had not become scientific. There was no intensified study and co-relationship between advertisers and the news-makers. The advertiser was looked upon as a person who supplied a certain sum of money regularly for the purpose of enabling the paper to come out. The material he himself supplied was not studied carefully. There was no real effort to get the best out of every line and to give the public a full and complete mental picture of what the advertiser was trying to convey. In other words, advertising was not news as it is today. People did not read the advertisements in the newspapers unless they wanted particularly to buy some particular object. Now they read advertisement announcements because they are interested in the news thus announced.

The advertising of the distributing London stores was done in a fashion for many years before Mr. Selfridge came to London, but it was done in a water-tight compartment manner. In other words, it was confined to the Lady, Queen, Gentlewoman and one or two other weekly journals devoted to feminine interests.

I make this prediction that as Mr. Selfridge increased in 1908 the growth of this business of advertising, so before 1948 will it be doubled, tripled and quadrupled not only in the daily papers but in all papers that appeal to the general public.

BRITISH FIRM FLOATS HUGE BOND ISSUE

Amalgamated Press, Ltd., London, Issues 4,500,000 Shares at £1 Each to Complete Expansion Plans

By Allan Delafons

(Special to Editor & Publisher)

London, Dec. 11.—The Amalgamated Press, Ltd., London, which has been formed to purchase the Amalgamated Press (1922) Ltd., from Graphic Publications, Ltd., to acquire certain goodwill and copyrights in publications from Cassell & Co., Ltd., London periodical publishing house, and to acquire a number of ordinary shares in the Imperial Paper Mills, Ltd., has made a public issue of 4,500,000 seven percent cumulative preference shares of £1 each.

The operations of the company prior to the public issue have proved to be the most remarkable in British newspaper history. Besides purchasing the Amalgamated Press (1922) Ltd., for over eight million pounds, the company has also negotiated agreements for the purchase of Cassell & Co., the Waverly Book Co., Ltd., the Radio Press, Ltd., and 67,350 ordinary shares in the Imperial Paper Mills, Ltd., Gravesend, which owns vast timber tracts in Quebec Province. The directors of the new company are Sir William E. Berry and J. Gomer Berry (directors of Graphic Publications, Ltd.), Sir George A. Sutton (a director of the old Amalgamated Press), Sir Edward M. Iliffe (chairman of Iliffe & Sons, Ltd.), Brigadier-General W. F. Mildren, Tod Anderson, H. J. Garrish, L. K. Clark, W. Blackwood, A. E. and A. R. Linforth, S. J. Brown, S. Cousins, T. Young, A. Bain Irvine, all of whom are either directors or principal shareholders in the companies to be purchased by the new Amalgamated Press. The late Lord Northcliffe founded the old company in 1888 with the publication of the weekly, Answers, and the concern now employs more than 5,000 people, and owns and publishes over 100 journals, including 76 weeklies, fortnightlies and monthlies, five serials, 18 annuals and ten libraries.

The publications to be taken over from Cassell & Co. by the new company comprise eight monthly magazines and four weekly publications. Last year the profits of the combined companies amounted to £857,388, and for the past four years have averaged annually £870,788. The total capital of the new Amalgamated Press, Ltd., is £6,200,000, of which £4,500,000 seven percent cumulative preference shares and £1,200,000 in ordinary shares (at ten shillings each) have been issued.

DECATUR DAILY STARTS EVENING EDITION

Herald Now Publishing 13 Issues a Week with Launching of Evening Herald Dec. 27—Planned in Secret

The Decatur (Ill.) Herald, completing its 47th year as a morning newspaper, appeared Monday with an afternoon edition as well. Henceforth, it was announced, the paper will publish both morning and afternoon editions six days a week, with a combined Sunday edition.

Appearance of the first issue of the Evening Herald upon the streets was a surprise for the city. No previous announcement of the publication had been made, and so complete was the secrecy maintained that employes in the business office of the paper had their first intimation of the new step when they heard the press running.

Herald executives explained that the growth of Decatur as an industrial city with an industrialized population which demanded an evening paper made the improvement necessary.

The evening edition is served by United Press. The full leased Associated Press report is retained for the morning editions. The morning paper also has United News printer service.

Advertising space for the Herald will be sold on a three edition basis.

PLANNING FOR BROWNING CASE

Many Correspondents Expected to Cover "Cinderella Man's" Trial

Sheriff Stephens is preparing the Colonial Court House of Carmel, N. Y., for the expected advent of newspaper correspondents to cover the Edward W. Browning—"Peaches" Heenan divorce trial to be held there on Jan. 24.

He has provided room in the basement for the Western Union operators, who will have six special wires, while several additional trunk lines from Carmel to New York are being provided by the New York Telephone Company.

INSTALLS DISPLAY WINDOWS

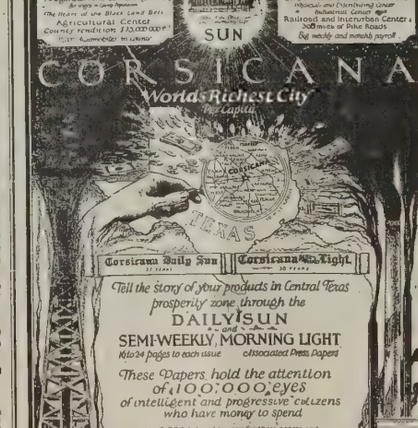
The Muncie (Ind.) Star, of the John C. Shaffer Star League of Indiana, has installed a display window in its business office for the benefit of advertisers.

CORSICANA SUN USING 21 TEXAS DAILIES TO ADVERTISE ITSELF AND STATE

Texas Prosperity Shows Gain of $101,982,000 Over 1925

Read Comparative Figures Below of 1925 and 1926 Agricultural Crops as Estimated by the Government. This Big Gain in Agricultural Products over last year added to the millions of dollars received from Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Poultry, Dairy, Truck, Citrus Fruits, Nuts, Wool, Oil, Mineral and industrial Resources makes Texas the Most Prosperous of all Southern States.

The money value of the Texas Cotton Crop this year will be about the same as it was last year.



Crop Figures 1925

(From Government Estimates)

Cotton	$379,250,000
Corn	29,490,000
Kafirs	23,465,000
Oats	8,454,000
Wheat	10,156,000
Barley	752,000
Rye	67,000
Rice	9,012,000
Hay	12,276,000
Peanuts	1,219,000
Sweet Potatoes	8,707,000
Potatoes	3,307,000
Sorghum Syrup	1,326,000
Broom Corn	238,000
Peaches	2,625,000
Apples	222,000
Other Crops	308,564,000
Total Crop 1925	$799,330,000
1926 Crop	$901,312,000
1925 Crop	$799,330,000
Gain over last year	$101,982,000

SPECIAL NOTE:

The Figures above do not include the Great Revenue derived from the Cattle, Sheep, Swine, and Poultry industries for which Texas is famous. Nor does it include such Important Items as Texas Citrus Fruits, Nuts, Wool and other Minerals, each industry bring Millions of Dollars more annually. The 1926 total of the above important items far exceeds that of last year.

Crop Figures 1926

(From "Crops and Markets", published by U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Cotton	$351,000,000
Corn	92,310,000
Kafirs	32,370,000
Oats	28,259,000
Wheat	40,014,000
Barley	3,750,000
Rye	1,440,000
Rice	8,540,000
Hay	25,200,000
Peanuts	1,785,000
Sweet Potatoes	8,450,000
Potatoes	3,620,000
Sorghum Syrup	2,700,000
Broom Corn	246,000
Peaches	3,400,000
Apples	332,000
Other crops	296,896,000
Total Crops 1926	$901,312,000
1926 Crop	$901,312,000
1925 Crop	$799,330,000
Gain over last year	$101,982,000

SPECIAL NOTE:

The figures above do not include the Great Revenue derived from the Cattle, Sheep, Swine and Poultry industries for which Texas is famous. Nor does it include such Important Items as Texas Citrus Fruits, Nuts, Wool and other Minerals, each industry bring Millions of Dollars more annually. The 1926 total of the above important items far exceeds that of last year.

Navarro and Surrounding Territory will receive its full share of such prosperity.

Corsicana, the Oil City of Texas and County Seat of Navarro County is the Hub of the Commercial and Business Activity of Central Texas.

Corsicana Daily Sun and Semi-Weekly Morning Light

(This Page Advertisement is being run in twenty-one live and progressive Daily Newspapers in Texas, all of which are members of the Texas Daily Press League. You cannot cover the fertile and prosperous sections of Texas judiciously without using these papers.)

Specimen of Texas booster copy

ADVERTISING the prosperity of Texas and incidentally the prosperity of Corsicana and Navarro county will be the mission of the Corsicana (Tex.) Daily Sun in a campaign of some magnitude, the details of which were completed at the recent meeting of the Daily Press League of Texas in Dallas.

The Sun will carry a page advertisement in 21 leading newspapers of the state in which facts and figures concerning crop values and other resources will be set forth to show that Texas is in far better condition, regardless of the big cotton crop, than it has been in a number of years. The 1926 values of crops as estimated by the government will be compared with government figures for 1925.

The Texas newspapers which will carry this page advertisement include Abilene Reporter, Amarillo News-Post, Brownsville Herald, Bryan Eagle, Corpus Christi Caller, Corsicana Sun, Denison Herald, Denton Record Chronicle, Eastland Telegram, Greenville Banner, Hillsboro Mirror, Lubbock Journal, Marshall News-Messenger, Mineral Wells Index, Palestine Herald, Paris News, Ranger Times, San Angelo Standard, Sherman Democrat, Temple Telegram, Texarkana Gazette.

NO INDICTMENTS FOUND BY INDIANA JURY

Group Investigating Political Corruption Charges Made by Indiana Editor Passes Work On to New Jury

Returning no indictments against any person included in wholesale charges hurled about three months ago by Thomas H. Adams, editor and publisher of the Vincennes (Ind.) Commercial, the Marion county grand jury in Indianapolis Monday submitted a final report to Judge James A. Collins in Criminal court, in which it stated that none of the charges against state officials had been sustained. When informed of the report Adams declared it "outrageous," and reiterated his intention of carrying an appeal for further probe to the state Legislature.

The grand jury recommended in its report that the incoming grand jury which will be impanelled next Monday continue the investigation which has been under way for 11 weeks. William H. Remy, prosecuting attorney, expressed dissatisfaction with the report stating he had hoped "the result would be different."

Adams, as head of the press probe committee of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association, stirred the nation and received columns of space in mid-Western newspapers in October when he asserted that he had unearthed documentary evidence of wholesale corruption and graft in Indiana political and official life, centering largely during the regime of D. C. Stephenson, former head of the Indiana Ku Klux Klan, now serving a life sentence in the state prison for murder. Adam's charges brought about the grand jury investigation as well as a probe by the Reed senatorial committee, and incidentally instigated a $1,000,000 libel suit against the Indianapolis Times, himself and several others by Mayor John L. Duvall of Indianapolis after the Times printed an alleged photographed facsimile of a "patronage contract" letter between Duvall and Stephenson.

Concurrent with the grand jury's report, a circular letter from Adams to members of the state Legislature was made public which seeks the aid of the Legislature in conducting a state-wide investigation into local and state government. Adams declared the situation is "distressing," and asks the senators to assist in bringing about a legislative investigation along the lines of the probe he instigated by the grand jury.

WASHINGTON PAPER SUED

J. P. Rawson and Mrs. Rawson, owners and publishers of the Puyallup (Wash.) Herald, were made defendants in a damage suit for $15,000 filed by James and Anna Wilson in superior court Dec. 17. The suit is the outcome of an article printed in the Herald about "The Community House," a roadhouse near Puyallup conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson.

WINS $500 LIBEL DAMAGES

Former Minister Gets Verdict in Suit Against Former Pomeroy Publisher

W. F. Wilson's former Methodist minister was awarded $500 "general damages" by a jury at Pomeroy, O., in his $25,000 libel suit against Ralston Russell former publisher of the Pomeroy Daily News. The costs must be paid by the former editor who has announced that he will appeal the verdict.

It is understood that only nine of the jury of 12 signed the verdict, although under the Ohio law nine is a legal requirement on a libel verdict.

Wilson in his suit alleged his character and reputation had been damaged to the extent of $25,000 by an article published in the Daily News nearly two years ago which related to a raid on the home of Mrs. Lena Hill of Leetonia, by the minister's wife and daughter.

RIDDERS IN $2,500,000 NEW YORK DEAL

rothers Expect to Purchase Journal of Commerce—Commercial to Be Discontinued—Transaction Involves Possible Sale of A. P. Membership to Daily News for $500,000

EGOTIATIONS were nearing completion late this week for purchase the New York Journal of Commerce, daily business paper, from the heirs R. R. Govin, by the Ridder brothers, the Staats-Herold Corporation, publishers of the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung Herold.

The New York Commercial is also ncerned in the deal, proposed arngements calling for the suspension of s daily and transfer of subscription s and advertising contracts to the w York Journal of Commerce. The n of in excess of $2,500,000 was oted as the purchase price of the two operties.

The expected transaction takes on led significance in view of the fact t it involves the possible sale of an sociated Press membership, held by Journal of Commerce, to the New rk Daily News, for a rumored price more than $500,000.

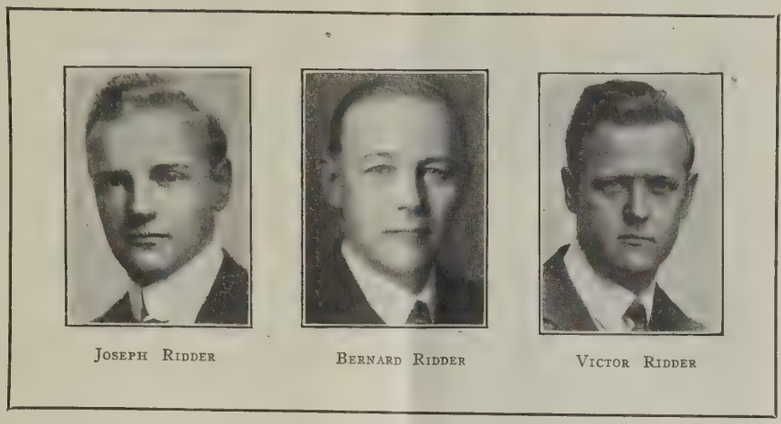
Morris & McVey, a law firm, is resenting the Govin heirs.

While Bernard H. Ridder, president the Staats-Herold Corporation, would commit himself definitely regarding deal, when questioned by EDITOR & BLISHER, he admitted it might possi- be completed either late this week or ly next. The Ridder Brothers are rnard, the eldest, and Joseph E. and tor, twins.

They will direct the publication of the rnal of Commerce, if the deal goes ough, continuing direction of the ats-Zeitung Herold, and the Jamaica . I.) Press, which they purchased eral months ago.

. E. Owens, who has resigned as proction manager of the New York orld, effective Jan. 1, will be general nager of the Journal of Commerce. Parker Willis will continue as editor.

Equipment of both dailies are included the deal, and the Ridder brothers plan use the best machinery of both and ntually to move into a new plant, since Commercial and the Journal of Comrce are at present housed in downn office buildings.



hields & Co., bankers, will float a 0,000 ten-year 6½ per cent bond issue the Journal of Commerce, when the lder brothers become owners. The rnal of Commerce Corporation will organized for this purpose.

The Ridder family has been in the wspaper publishing business in New rk for more than half a century. rman Ridder, the father of the present hers of the New Yorker Staatsung and Evening Herold, began lishing a German Catholic weekly in w York called the Katholisches Volksblatt in 1875. He became owner of the ats-Zeitung in 1889. All three of sons were born in New York and nded Columbia University.

Bernard Ridder was first to enter wspaper work, receiving his early ning on the Brooklyn Eagle. In uary 1905 he became connected with Staats-Zeitung. Victor followed his r brother on that paper, joining the f in May 1905.

oseph Ridder, graduated from Columwith the class of 1906, as a mechanical engineer, and immediately became ociated with his father and brothers the German language daily. His work was to superintend the removal the paper from its old plant on the of the Municipal Building to its ent home.

When Herman Ridder organized the rnational Typesetting Machine Comy in 1912, now the Intertype Corpon, Joseph Ridder was appointed eral manager of the firm, continuing that capacity until 1916. Then he rned as a director of the Staatsung, in charge of production.

JOSEPH RIDDER BERNARD RIDDER VICTOR RIDDER

On the death of his father in November, 1915, Bernard Ridder was elected president of the Staats-Zeitung and has held that office continually since, becoming president of the Staats-Herold Corporation on the amalgamation of the Staats-Zeitung and the German Herold.

Victor Ridder has always been prominent in affairs of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the Publishers Association of New York City. He is at present chairman of the technical schools committee of the A. N. P. A., and a member of the legislative committee of the local publishers group.

Mr. Willis, editor of the Journal of Commerce, and who will continue in that position, is a professor of economics at Columbia University, and is recognized as one of the leading authorities in the business field.

He became associate editor of the Journal of Commerce in 1910 and was made editor in 1919. He has an A.B. and Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago and has studied in the universities of Leipzig and Vienna, specializing on economics, history, political science, and law. He is best known for the important work he accomplished in the organization of the Federal Reserve Board. From 1914 to 1918 he was secretary of the board in Washington, and continued until 1922 as its director of research, becoming a consulting economist of the board after that date. He has also been an editorial writer for the New York Evening Post and the Springfield Republican.

Mr. Owens will become general manager of the Journal of Commerce after an association with the New York World dating back to 1922, when he was made assistant mechanical superintendent of that paper. He was promoted to production manager of the World after the newspaper strike in 1923.

A native of Eau Claire, Wis., he started his newspaper career in 1906 working for his uncle, W. J. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune. In 1907 he enterd the college of engineering of the University of Minnesota, and while a student spent much of his free time learning newspaper production at the Tribune. Receiving his degree as mechanical engineer in 1911, he became assistant mechanical superintendent of the Tribune, and was made its mechanical superintendent in 1915.

During the World War he entered the engineer corps and was later transferred to the air service as officer in charge of construction of a flying field at Waco, Tex. From Waco he was headed for overseas with an aero squadron to leave from Mineola, when the armistice was signed.

In January, 1919, he became mechanical superintendent and assistant to the business manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times, remaining with those papers until he became associated with the World.

The Journal of Commerce has been published in New York for 99 years. The Commercial was established in 1795.

BOGOTA ENTERTAINS AMERICAN EDITOR

They say about Bogota, Colombia:
"You come for a week and stay for a month
"The month drags on to a year;
"You never do know, when you will go,
"You only know you are here."

J. H. FURAY, vice-president of the United Press Associations, did manage to get away after ten days of continuous parties, and after he had renewed contracts with five Bogota dailies to take U. P., El Tiempo, El Espectador, El Newvo Tiempo, El Diario Nacional, and El Mundo al Dia. He also made arrangements to open a U. P. bureau in Bogota in February.

Although the newspaper editors of the city could not persuade him to stay, Furay said this week he hoped to return again some day, and while in America he has become one of Colombia's most ardent boosters.

"Colombia has a great future ahead of it," he declared. "It is the richest country in South America. As this country grows, and it is bound to grow, it is going to have many problems to solve, and I firmly believe the newspapers of the country are going to play an important part in the solution. The newspapers are good now, but there is room for improvement. The owners realize that and are doing all they can to put out better papers."

Mr. Furay left New York Nov. 10 and returned to this country late in December. He visited Colon, Cartagena and Barranquilla, traveling from the latter city by airplane 600 miles up the Magdalina River to Girardot, from which place he reached Bogota by train.

His stay in Bogata was one round of pleasure. In the picture reproduced above, he is shown on a trip to Tequendama Falls near Bogota with (left to right) G. Perez Sarmiento, U. P. correspondent in Bogota; Dr. Edwardo Santos, director of El Tiempo. Benjamin Silva Herrera, director of Diario Nacional and Mr. Furay.

DINNER FOR H. F. KING

H. Fred King, who retired this week as advertising manager of the Springfield (Mass.) Union after 33 years of service in the department, was guest of honor at a dinner tendered him by the Publicity Club of Springfield, Dec. 28. More than 100 merchants with whom Mr. King was in contact as an advertising man attended the dinner. He was presented a radio set and a gold watch. M. S. Sherman, formerly editor of the Union and now editor of the Hartford (Conn.) Courant, attended. Mr. King enters the service of the Albert V. Reopell Company, automobile dealers.

STREATOR DAILIES MERGE

The Streator (Ill.) Free Press and the Streator Independent-Times will consolidate Jan. 1, as the Times-Press, making the latter the only daily paper in that city. John R. Fornof, present editor of the Free press, is business manager of the merged papers and Fred LeRoy, present publisher of the Independent Times, is editor. The Times-Press is represented nationally by the Allen-Klapp Company.

BUNDLE RATE SOUGHT BY A. N. P. A. ALONG WITH POSTAL REDUCTION

Complete Program of Publishers' Organiation Outlined by J. D. Barnum—Gratified That Senate Will Take Up Question at This Session

A RETURN to the 1920 postal rates and the establishment of a newspaper bundle rate are the two objectives which the American Newspaper Publishers are fighting to reach at this session of Congress, J. D. Barnum, chairman of the Postal Committee of that organization told EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week.

"Reports from Washington indicate that the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads intends to give thorough consideration to a revision of second class rates at this session of Congress," he said. "It is gratifying to the publishers of daily newspapers to know that the Senate intends to take up this matter, even though the Joint Sub-Committee of Congress charged with the responsibility of recommending a revision in Postal rates failed to agree upon a general plan including second class rates insofar as they affect daily newspapers.

"The publishers of daily newspapers will ask the Senate Post Office Committee to recommend a return to the 1920 rates and the establishment of a bundle rate, where the only service performed by the Post Office Department is the transportation of newsdealers bundles on the railroads.

"The bundle rate is not only essential but it is economically sound. The evidence before the Joint Committee showed that the average haul on these bundles was invariably short; that the average charge paid by the publisher to the Post Office Department ranges from $1.75 to $1.85 per hundred pounds, and that the charge paid by the Post Office Department to the railroads is only about 12c per hundred pounds for each 60 miles the bundle travels.

"The American Newspaper Publishers Association feels that this request for a return from the present prohibitive rates to the 1920 rates is justified on the grounds of sound economy and business administration in the Post Office Department. The records of the Department show that the volume of daily newspaper mail has decreased since 1920. The records further show that had the Post Office Department maintained the same volume in numbers of pieces of daily newspapers that it carried in 1920, its receipts in 1926 would have been 33⅓ per cent higher than they were in 1920 because of the increase in size of the newspapers alone.

"Daily newspaper publishers believe that there is sufficient evidence before Congress now to refute the statements which have emanated from Washington in the past that daily newspapers are carried at a loss in the mails. In this connection, it should be pointed out that the Post Office Department in 1923 performed services which were of a purely policy character without regard either to expense or to income, the cost of which totaled $150,822,000. The cost of these public policy services has mounted proportionately since 1923. No proper method of accounting for them has been set up, however, and as a result they are still charged up against the paying users of the mails. If they are eliminated, either by statute or by bookkeeping methods, as a charge against the general mail service, then it will become clearly apparent that those users of the mails who pay the full rates far more than pay their way. Any statement emanating from the Post Office Department or from any other authority regarding the operation of that Department at a loss or at a profit should be read in connection with the Department's policy of performing this enormous amount of service at the direction of Congress, without regard to the cost thereof.

"No publisher believes that the Post Office Department should carry his papers at a loss, but every publisher does believe, and firmly believes, that the Post Office Department should not saddle on the publishers of the daily newspapers and other paying users of the mails, charges for services which Congress has specifically ordered without regard to their cost and which can not fairly be apportioned to the users of the mails, in view of the fact that they were ordered more for the benefit of the receivers than for the senders of mail.

"The Chairman of the postal committee of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and other members of the Committee will be in Washington from now on watching this legislation. They will submit to the Senate and to the House figures which prove conclusively that the cost of distribution through the mails is far out of proportion to every other item of distribution cost entering into their business and they will contend Postal rates should be fixed which will allow the Post Office Department to serve the public by handling newspapers in the mails, instead of driving them to use other means, as has been the case since 1920."

J. D. Barnum

BIG AUTOMOBILE YEAR

Great Campaigns to Be Planned at New York Show Next Week

The new year, forecast in many quarters as the "biggest advertising year in automotive history," will be formally launched at the National Automobile Show, to open under the auspices of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at the Grand Central Palace, New York, Saturday, January 8. Forty-five makes of cars, in more than 200 models, will be shown. On six or more of them advertising campaigns of $1,000,000 to as high as $10,000,000 are said to be planned.

A feature of the show this year will be the introduction of several new small cars. A new Studebaker car, the Erskine, now on exhibit at the Studebaker salon in the Plaza, will be shown there. The Little Marmon is also entered. Other new small cars are expected to be announced at the opening of the show.

A series of luncheons and dinners is now being held in New York by dealers and manufacturers, to dramatize their products. Advertising men from various parts of the country are expected to attend the show.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

Jan. 5-7—North Carolina Press Assn., 3rd annual newspaper institute University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.
Jan. 8—Alabama Press Assn., meeting, Birmingham, Ala.
Jan. 14-15—American Society of Newspaper Editors, Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C.
Jan. 14-15—Colorado Editorial Assn., mid-winter meeting, Denver Col.
Jan. 14-15—Northeast Missouri Press Assn., mid-winter meeting, Petersburg, Va.
Jan. 14-15—Virginia Press Assn., mid-winter meeting, Petersburg, Va.
Jan. 14-15—North Dakota Press Assn., winter meeting, Bismark, N. D.
Jan. 15-22—Thrift Week.
Jan. 17—"Newspaper Day," Benjamin Franklin's Birthday.
Jan. 20-22—Northern Minnesota Editorial Assn., annual meeting.

HARRIMAN PURCHASES MIDDLETOWN DAILY

Will Consolidate Newly Acquired Times Press With Herald—Sale Included Ten Weekly Newspapers

E. Roland Harriman of Arden, Orange County, N. Y., added to his newspaper interests this week the 75-year-old Middletown Times Press, which, after Jan. 1, will be consolidated with the Daily Herald, owned by Mr. Harriman and his brother, W. Averill Harriman, for two years.

The Times Press was owned by the Stivers Printing Company, and Dr. M. A. Stivers, of that company, becomes a director of the Orange County Independent Corporation, Mr. Harriman's newspaper company. The consolidated paper will be published from the Herald plant, and be under the management of Talcott Powell, general manager of the Herald, a former New York Herald Tribune man. For a time it will carry both mastheads.

Charles B. Welch, of the Times Press advertising department; Raphael Sturman, Times Press circulation manager, and Henry P. Powers, 69-year-old veteran reporter and Miss Frances Amstalden, society editor of the Times Press are retained by the consolidated paper from a group of more than 50 Times Press employes.

At least $225,000 in cash, together with a stock interest and possibly other deferred payments, figured in the transaction, it was reported.

Fred B. Stuart, formerly of Syracuse, was general manager of the Times Press and Henry L. Rennick, formerly of the Associated Press foreign staff, was managing editor.

"The Daily Herold has a contract with one year to run with the United Press," T. W. Powell, managing editor of the Herald informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER. The Times-Press membership has six months to run with the Associated Press owing to the absence of our president for ten days we are unable to settle which service shall be permanently continued with the combined newspapers. We have requested the Associated Press to strike out the exclusive feature in furnishing local news for a temporary period and if consent is obtained, we will continue both services until the return of Mr. Harriman, when a definite decision will be reached.

The sale included ten weekly newspapers, known as the Orange County group, which were printed in the Times Press plant and now will be published by the Herald.

Palmer, Dewitt & Palmer, newspaper brokers, New York, handled the sale.

PAUL PALMER NAME WORLD SUNDAY EDITO

Former St. Louis Post-Dispatch Ma Succeeds J. O'Hara Cosgrave— Once Joseph Pulitzer's Secretary

Paul Palmer, 26 years old, is the ne Sunday editor of the New York Worl succeeding John O'Hara Cosgrave, wh resigned effecti Jan. 1. He is direct charge the World's Su day tabloid ma azine and r magic sections.

PAUL PALMER

Mr. Palme became assista to Mr. Cosgra several mont ago, coming the World fro the St. Lou Post-Dispatc where he w Sunday editor.

A graduate Harvard College with the class of 192 Mr. Palmer began his newspaper care in the fall of that year as police report of the Baltimore Sun. After a fe months in this job, he was made a speci feature writer.

In 1923 he left newspaper work a spent six months in Paris, writing a painting. Returning to this country, became secretary to Joseph Pulitzer, ed tor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. H continued as secretary to Mr. Pulitz from October, 1923, to March, 1925, wh he was made Sunday editor. In Septe ber 1925 he started the color gravu magazine section of the Post-Dispatc and in July of 1926 was made Mr. Co grave's assistant in New York.

Mr. Palmer was married in June 19 in St. Louis to Margaret Brooker. Mr Palmer is a member of the staff of t New Yorker.

There will be no changes for the pre ent on the World's Sunday magazi staff, Mr. Palmer said. Richard Clar will continue in charge of the color gra ure section.

CLARK, BUFFALO TIME VETERAN, DIES

Rose from Circulation Department General Manager—Death Followed Nervous Breakdown Caused by Recent Operations

Thomas M. Clark, general manager the Buffalo Times, died Dec. 25, in h home, in Buffalo.

Mr. Clark had been ill several wee suffering from a nervous breakdown, sulting, it is believed from the effe of two operations at Johns Hopkins h pital at Baltimore where he went l summer when his vision became impair

Mr. Clark was born in England years ago. He received his early edu tion there. He came to the United Sta while still a youth and made his home St. Charles, Ill., where he began his ne paper career first as advance man fo circus. In that capacity he gained wide acquaintance among the newspa men of the country. He then came Buffalo, entering the employ of Times where he served first in the cir lation department and later as busin and advertising manager.

After 35 years with the Times Clark went to the Courier-Enquirer, turning three years later to the Tim as general manager, and remaining that capacity until his death.

Mr. Clark's first wife, whom he m ried at St. Charles, Ill., died in 1896, married a second time a few years la and is survived by his wife; three dau ters, Mrs. J. R. Suor of Snyder, M Gordon T. Wilson and Miss Irma Clark of Buffalo; one son, Albert Clark, and two sisters, Mrs. Martha H cock of Buffalo and Mrs. M. A. Bu nell of Tunbridge Wells, England.

EPARTMENTAL PROMOTION SERVICE LAUNCHED BY CHICAGO SYNDICATE

sociated Editors, Inc., Believes New Plan of High Benefit to Publishers and a Departure from Present Methods—Auto, Farm, Church, Real Estate Features Added

NEW departure in syndication, the newspaper departmental promotion rice, is being announced this year by sociated Edi-, Inc. of Chi-o.

JOHN H. MILLAR

ohn H. Millar, sident of the dicate, in ex-ining this new ve, says, eretofore the tom has been syndicates to fer features, ier one at a e, or in the n of complete aket services. w syndicates e attempted strike the happy medium in between se two extremes.

As a matter of fact neither of these methods of selling features fits in h the ordinary procedure of running ewspaper. A publisher does not say his editor, 'There is something wrong h this paper. Let's get a new feature.' ther does he say, 'Let's throw out all features and put in a new blanket vice.' He is, however, quite likely to remark 'Our automobile department is punk. Why don't you liven it up?' or, 'I wish you'd try to make this newspaper more interesting to farmers. Our country circulation fell off last quarter.'

EDWARD N. DOLBEY, JR.

"A modern newspaper, like any other big business, is made up of many de-tments. The soundest and most sen-e method of building and strengthen-the institution, whether it be a news-er or a factory, is to tackle one de-tment at a time, make it absolutely it, and settle it once for all. Adolph is has stated, I believe, that this is method he followed in building the w York Times.

Why then should not a syndicate fol-the same departmental method in de-ping and offering its features? This hat Associated Editors, Inc., proposes lo. We intend to admit very frankly t we have no feature so good that a er can't get along without it. We will claim that when a newspaper pur-ses everything we offer its circulation blems will vanish. Instead of a col-ion of 'world's greatest circulation ders' we intend to offer, for each of umber of departments of a newspaper, balanced group of carefully selected tures, together with definite plans and gestions for building up that depart-it, so that, with the proper co-opera-on the part of the newspaper's own f, the department will be handled e effectively and developed more ndly than could be done by features ne or by the work of the local staff ne."

While Associated Editors, Inc. is en-ng the departmental promotion service i this year in a decided way, by start-four complete new services for four arate newspaper departments, backed by a large schedule of advertising and most aggressive sales campaign that syndicate has ever undertaken, the ture itself is not the result of any den inspiration, but rather the logical growth of a policy that the syndicate followed with more or less consistency eight years.

Mr. Millar's entry into the syndicate field early in 1919 was as the proprietor of the "Boys' and Girls' Newspaper Service." This service contained the fundamentals of the departmental promotion service, in that it consisted of a balanced group of features, offered on their editorial merit, without any big names to bolster them up, and with the syndicate urging newspapers to supplement the features with local news and children's contributions. Many dailies co-operated with the "Boys' and Girls' Newspaper Service" by developing daily miniature newspapers for children, consisting of local news and features mixed with syndicated matter. Many of these, started in 1919-20, are still running successfully.

Another move in the same direction made by Associated Editors, Inc., was the development about two years ago of the "City Editors' Service," designed to help the local news room. In this service the syndicate's reliance on ideas and editorial merit, rather than on names, to get the proposition over has been followed most thoroughly. There are no signatures, no by-lines. Newspapers using the service do not know where the ideas come from or who has done the work on them. The hunches for local stories, which are the main feature of the service, are issued with the stories partially worked out, and mats of illustrations are provided. Suggestions for handling the stories are included.

The Associated Editors Classified Service is another departmental promotion venture, though it differs from the others in that it interests the business office exclusively.

The feature of the services is that they consist of features that stand solely on their editorial merit, so published that they are of immediate use to the newspaper in building advertising or increasing circulation.

E. L. Tinzmann, western representative for Associated Editors, Inc., has for eight months devoted full time to developing four new departmental promotion services.

In developing the "Auto Editors' Service," Mr. Tinzmann first subscribed through a clipping service to all the automobile pages, departments, and sections in newspapers that he could find. These were analyzed and compared. Then he listed all the various kinds of automobile features now in use, together with all the new ones that he and the staff of Associated Editors, Inc., could think of, and sent out a questionnaire to leading automobile editors and the editors of papers with the best automobile departments, asking these men to check on a ballot-like list the automobile features that they would prefer of all on the long list of suggestions. As a result of this work, the features, out of which the "Auto Editor's Service" has been made, were selected and developed. It consists largely of illustrated features for the motorist. It pays no attention to the dealer, concentrating its efforts on getting more motor-owning readers for the automobile department.

So far, most papers that have ordered the service have ordered extra copies of the monthly books of copy, imprinted with their names on the cover, thus indicating that they plan to follow the syndicate's suggestions in using the service as a means of turning down publicity and selling more advertising.

The "Farm Editor's Service" is prepared along similar lines, excepting that more attention is being paid to the working out of ways and means of utilizing the service to increase circulation.

Associated Editors, Inc. is in a fortunate position to do constructive work along this line, because of its connection with the Home News Publishing Company, a chain of seven of the leading country weeklies of northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin, organized two years ago by Mr. Millar and actively headed by him. These weekly papers, with a circulation almost entirely rural, have been used by the syndicate as a testing ground for farm features and for the working out of ideas for the handling of farm news. Several of the editors of these papers, notably E. B. Butler of the Mendota Sun-Bulletin and C. A. Stafford of the Rochelle Register-Independent, have done unusually good work in the applying of city newspaper methods to the handling of rural newspapers. The result of this experimentation is available to the syndicate in the selecting and developing of material for the "Farm Editors' Service" and in making recommendations to dailies as to how to handle their problems of securing and holding farm circulation.

The service follows more or less along the lines of the "Auto Editors' Service." There are, in the first month's service, three features giving serious information or instruction, two that combine instruction and humor, two for the farmer's wife, a two-column cartoon, and a single-column comic.

Of special interest are the two features that combine information and humor. One is a weekly six-column comic strip, "Professor Silo," which is the work of C. V. Gregory, editor of the Prairie Farmer, an ex-farmer who has become one of the leaders in agricultural journalism, and R. L. Inman, staff cartoonist of the same magazine. The other is "Farm Facts and Fun," a column in which serious pointers about farming, news items, jokes, and wise cracks are mixed together. This is the work of Mr. Stafford, referred to above, who developed the feature when he was farm editor of the Marion (Ind.) Chronicle.

Third on the list of departmental promotion services, is the one that ties up with the church and religious department of a daily. The church page cannot have any of the sensational appeal that livens up the general news pages. It is of necessity serious; there can be but few illustrations; all too frequently it is a typographically dull, gray mass.

As an antidote to these tendencies, particular attention has been given to the choice of art, and to its effective use, in the "Church Page Service." The leading feature is "The Life of Christ" in picture-story-strip form, in fifty-two weekly installments, arranged by John H. Gihon, with art work by W. O. Roberts. "Famous Churches of the World" by the same two men, with two-column pen and ink sketches of the churches is included in the service. A very small feature for children "Tell Me a Story," by Florence Clark, author of "Tree-Top Stories" is likewise noteworthy.

Fourth on the list of departmental promotion services, is the one having to do with real estate and building, which will be published and first offered in January for release April 1. Like the other services, it will avoid duplicating material of which there is already an abundance, as, for example, house plans. It is being prepared to interest the home owner rather than the professional builder.

This program has necessitated a considerable expansion in the personnel of Associated Editors, Inc.

Edward N. Dolbey, Jr., for the past two years sales representative of the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate, has just joined the sales staff of the syndicate and will be the key-man in the sales organization, having charge of the Eastern territory. E. L. Tinzmann, having spent almost a year in developing the services, will travel extensively in the West, doing the field-work that is necessary in order that the services may co-operate most effectively with the newspapers using them. W. Boyce Morgan, managing editor, and J. Abegg, business manager, will continue in charge of the editorial and business administration of the business.

REPORTER INVENTS LANTERN-CANE FOR CRIPPLED FRIEND

John W. Macauley

FRANK P. SIBLEY, war correspondent and special writer for the Boston Globe, has presented an unique, but practical gift to a handicapped railroad man. It is a combination lantern and cane and of great service to John W. Macauley, switchman for the B. & M. railroad, who lost his leg many years ago.

Sibley and Macauley are friends. Sibley noted that Macauley had great difficulty in his work of uncoupling switches. He was forced to carry two canes and a lantern. To perform his duties, he would place his lantern on the ground and then bearing on one of his two canes, would complete his work. Sibley, seeing this arduous work, made every effort to ease his labors. After consulting with George M. Gray, lantern manufacturer, near Boston, Sibley invented the unique lantern-cane, shown above. A special pattern was drafted by the company and Mr. Sibley presented his gift sometime before Christmas.

Special wood was used in making the cane. The lantern is also of unusual brilliance and greatly helps Macauley at night. There is a steel spike at the bottom of the lantern-cane, and with this imbedded into the ground or ties Mr. Macauley leans hard and in the brilliant light performs his work more easily. It is also used for signalling. The weight of the device is about four pounds and is about four feet high.

Sibley has been in newspaper service for 35 years. He started his career with the Boston Transcript in 1891, went West for a while, returning to the Globe where he has remained since. He served as the Globe's war correspondent for two years, being with the 25th (Yankee) division, which comprised mostly all New England boys. Macauley has also had an adventurous career, which undoubtedly tends to strengthen their friendship.

TRY TO MOB REPORTERS

Reporters covering a meeting during the by-election at Smethwick where Oswald Mosley, son of Sir Oswald Mosley and wife of Lady Cynthia Mosley, was the Socialist candidate, had an exciting few minutes when the box of the local theatre in which the meeting was held was attacked by a crowd of angry women. Attempts to force the door of the box failed, but during the meeting insulting and threatening remarks were flung at the reporters. Ultimately stewards persuaded the women to leave the press box alone, but not before the door had been partly broken in.

CHARGE FRAUD ADS COST PUBLIC $50,000 IN ACME FARMS OPERATIONS

Three Men Indicted in Atlanta by U. S. Grand Jury Used Forty Trade Names—Profits Estimated at $150,000 a Year

By ELINOR HILLYER

(Atlanta Correspondent of Editor & Publisher)

ATLANTA, GA.—Dec. 30.—The public has been defrauded of about $50,000, according to Post Office inspector's estimates, in the nation-wide advertising and mail order swindle, which culminated in Atlanta with the arrest of D. W. Nichols and H. D. Gaines, on the evening of Dec. 9, who with their associate, J. G. Grimes, are now under 18 fraud indictments found by the Fulton County grand jury.

The scope of thes men's activities had reached almost at least 38 states, and had even penetrated as far as Toronto, Canada. They operated under the names of about forty firms, giving addresses in more than a hundred different towns. The list compiled by R. H. Tomlinson, post office inspector in charge of the case is as follows:—

D. W. Nichols operated under the names:

D. W. Nichols, David Nichols, David W. Nichols, Nichols Farms, Nichols & Son, Nichols Wholesale Grocery, Z. T. Nichols & Sons, American Brokerage Company, Southern Warehouses, Alabama Grain Exchange, The Fulghum Hatchery, The Dixie Hatchery, The Red Hatchery, The Farrow Hatchery, Freeport Certified Seed Company, Busy Bee Apiary, Fulghum Seed Company, Dixie Products Co., Acme Orange Farms, Acme Farms.

H. D. Gaines operated under the names:

H. D. Gaines, H. D. Gaines Seed Company, Gaines Seed Company, Gaines Honey Company, Gaines Seed & Honey Company, Gaines Brokerage Company, Harvey Brokerage Company, Consolidated Grain Exchange, American Grain Exchange, Acme Farms, Acme Orange Farms, Standard Hatchery, Harvey & Co., H. Dean & Co., Dean & Co.

J. G. Grimes operated under names: J. G. Grimes, Grimes Brokerage Company, The James Hatchery, American Malt Company, J. G. Grimes & Co.

Mr. Tomlinson estimates that the trio realized about $150,000 profit during the whole period of their operations which have extended over more than a year in a modest way. Of this sum $50,000 has been taken by absolute fraud, it is alleged. In addition to this is $4,000 to $5,000 worth of advertising placed in different publications throughout the country, which was never paid for.

At the rate money was pouring into their hands inspector Tomlinson declares that they would have netted several hundred thousand dollars by Jan. 1.

The scheme seems to have grown from small beginnings. Nichols is said to have been in the game for four or five years, operating from Rockmart, Ga. Affidavits show that Nichols rented space in the general store to carry on what was known as an "advertising business," receiving about 30 letters a day. He had this office until Dec., 1925, when he came to Atlanta.

All through the first part of 1926 he operated in a small way, placing advertisements of different products in newspapers, farm journals and religious papers, offering produce for sale at unusually low prices.

The advertisements were worded so as to give the impression that the chickens, seed, oranges, melt, plants, honey, etc., were being produced by the firm edvertising them, at the address given in the advertisement. All mail, however, was forwarded to Atlanta. Until about Nov. 1, Inspector Tomlinson says that an attempt was made to fill all orders after a fashion. Connections were maintained with several large hatcheries in Missouri, which supplied day-old chicks for shipment. Large chickens were obtained from farms near Cannon, Ga. Seeds and plants were obtained near Valdosta, Ga. The condition in which these products reached the customer was guaranteed perfect, but in many cases Inspector Tomlinson declared, all the chicks would be dead.

In the Spring of 1926, Nichols affiliated with J. G. Grimes and the two operated together until the middle of October when Grimes turned over his busines to Gaines, who had meanwhile come into the scheme, and went to the Government Hospital No. 62 in Augusta, Ga., where physicians declare he is a "mental case" and have him under observation.

The Post Office Department reports that it has been investigating the firms for a number of months, and on Oct. 9th arrested the operators on the charge of using the mails to defraud. The federal grand jury failed to find a true bill for lack of evidence.

It was only during the latter part of July and first of August that they began to go into the business on a large scale with the advertisement of baby chickens. Letters such as the following ordering advertising were sent to publications all over the country:—

"Gentlemen: Please publish our small display in your next available issue and run twenty consecutive insertions if daily. If your paper is weekly, run only six consecutive insertions. Enclose checking copy with bill as soon as first issue is off the press and we will mail you check. Use three inch, single column space.

"This is our copy: Caps Poultry and Chicks for Sale. Large Type Barron Strain White Leghorn Baby Chicks, $8.75 per hundred. These are imported direct from Tom Barron. Anconas, Rocks, Buff Orpingtons and White Wyandottes of leading strains, $10 per hundred. Young pullets of any of these breeds, now laying, $1.25 each. We pay postage on chicks anywhere and guarantee 100 percent live delivery. We pay express on pullets on lots of ten or more. Include money order for prompt shipment.

"Acme Farms."

None of this advertising was ever paid for, it is reported. Early in November they began to advertise oranges, $3 for a crate of 300, express prepaid. While orders up to this time had been filled in most cases, the three men now decided to realize all they could on the Christmas trade and then leave for England, it was learned from employees in their offices.

As far as can be ascertained, not an orange was ever shipped. Growers declared that the express charges on a crate of oranges from Florida to different points in the United States equals almost $3.

Nichols, when questioned as to how he expected to fill these orders, told Inspector Tomlinson that he was going to gather wild oranges around Haines City, Fla.

Investigation in Atlanta by John A. Boykin, Solicitor General of Fulton County, was instigated by Haynes McFadden of this city who received one of the above letters ordering advertising in the Southern Banker, of which he is editor.

Mr. McFadden wrote the firm asking for references. The letter was ignored, and he wired to banks in Gainesville, Fla., which was the address given with the order.

The banks replied that such a concern was unknown in that city. Orders for advertising of a similar nature came from a firm giving its address as a city in Oklahoma at about this time. Mr. McFadden wired to banks in that city and they answered that there had been many complaints of this firm and a number of persons had placed orders, receiving cancelled checks but never any goods.

On the basis of this information, Mr. McFadden put the case before Solicitor Boykin, who, with the aid of Post Office inspectors, began an investigation. Enough evidence was collected, and on the evening of Dec. 9, Post Office Inspector R. H. Tomlinson staged a raid on the gang's headquarters which were known to be situated in two Atlanta hotels. The office in which the men were arrested, Solicitor Boykin declared, contained an exhaustive card index of every publication in the country, newspapers, farm weeklies, religious papers, etc.

At least eight clerical workers were employed by the men to carry on the scheme. Solicitor Boykin said that these clerks had told him that they had been ordered not to bother to read the letters which came in but to get the checks, money orders or cash which might be enclosed, and to place the letters in what was called a "file" but which everybody knew was a waste basket. When the trio were apprehended, approximately $8,000 in checks was discovered in their possession with deposit slips made out to Atlanta banks. This was said to be one day's receipts for the firm.

Employes also said that about as much cash was enclosed in letters as came in the form of checks. This Nichols and Gaines pocketed without depositing in banks.

The men are reported to have approximately $17,000 to their credit in Atlanta banks.

A receivership has been appointed for the firms and any victim who can establish by the bank stamp on his cancelled check that his money went to form any part of these funds, may put in claims, from which he will receive a pro rata share of the money after the costs of receivership have been met.

Between the Thursday night on which the arrests were made, and Monday morning, some 15,000 letters were forwarded to the firms, which the postal authorities returned unopened to the senders, it was declared. It is estimated that about two-thirds of these letters contained remittances of $3 or more, aggregating perhaps $30,000 for four days. Inspector Tomlinson says that postmasters in the different towns in which the firms had forwarding addresses have turned back an estimate of 40,000 letters since a fraud order was obtained from Postmaster General New.

Nichols and Gaines are being held in the Fulton County jail in default of $10,000 bail. The three men are under 18 indictments charging all three different degrees of fraud: Larceny after trust, simple larceny, and common cheating and swindling.

The indictments charge that Nichols, Gaines and Grimes represented to the person named in the True bill that they had chickens for sale at the place in which the farms were said to be located and that they were ready for shipment at that place; that the representations were knowingly false, in that they had no farm in that place and no chickens ready to be shipped, and under false pretences obtained the money.

They also charge receiving money in payment for goods which were never delivered. The three men are also under $1,000 bond for using the mails to defraud.

The defendants have filed pleas of insanity through their lawyers, Frank A. Hooper, Thomas A. Goodwin, and William Schley Howard, claiming that both Nichols and Gaines have been "mental patients" in hospitals in Georgia and Florida.

Post office inspectors and the solicitor general are still investigating the case, which will probably come up for assignment to the calendar during the January term of court, authorities report.

THE SPACE MARIE WON

An editorial mention in the current issue of The World Tomorrow is headed "Another Study in Values." Briefly, this item is a comparison of the amount of newspaper space devoted to the arrival of Queen Marie and the amount given to Eugene Debs who was reported as dying. The item is interesting in that it shows that the reading public is becoming more and more critical of what appears in the American press.

WHY MUNSEY MILLIONS WENT TO MUSEUM

Ridgway Says $40,000,000 Bequest Was Based on Belief That America Needed Most an Appreciation of Art

Reasons why Frank A. Munsey left the bulk of his $40,000,000 estate to the Metropolitan Museum of Art are furnished by Erman J. Ridgway, for many years an associate of the late publisher of the New York Sun and Evening Telegram, in a 9,000-word eulogy of Mr. Munsey which is being distributed among publishers.

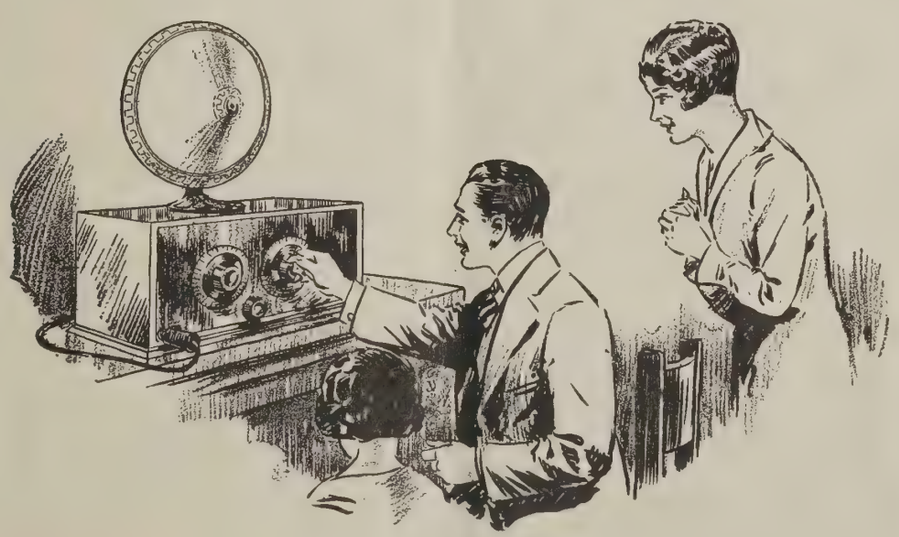
"He talked to me quite a little about his will and was impatient because I could not help him," the eulogist said. "He seemed to think because I had graduated from college I should be able to tell him just where to make twenty or thirty million do the best work for education. There has been a good deal of criticism about the chief's will, most of it, I am bound to say, from people who will never have any difficulty in disposing of their own estates. The critics may rest assured of one thing—it was not a hasty will. It was a very farsighted will. And the man who made it expected to face his Creator and was willing to stand or fall on His verdict.

"It has been urged that the chief did not know art, and that therefore his will leaving his millions to an art museum was unnatural. Carnegie did not know literature when he gave his libraries. Rockefeller did not know medical science when he endowed the foundation. It is natural for men to set high value on what they do not know about. Through his will the chief wanted to serve in a big way, and, if possible, in a unique way. For years he investigated and weighed. What was the biggest unsatisfied need in America? What was the thing most people lacked? What do other nations say Americans lack? Appreciation of art—an understanding of its place in a rounded civilization. The chief did not frequent art galleries nor stand enrapt before a masterpiece, but he did appreciate loveliness—a rose, a stunning woman, a birch tree, a sunset. He did build beautiful buildings even if they were practical and profitable.

"There was another significant experience. At the close of the war, along with two other Americans, he dreamed of owning a grand duke's estate in Austria—an Aladdin dream. Thousands of acres. Miles of tenant farms. Mountains covered with forests and bored with mines. Steel mills and factories. A royal estate; a palace in Vienna and prize jewel in the chief's thought, a superb art gallery. When in romantic and florid terms he was wont to tell of the dream and describe the estate he always saved the art gallery for the climax and when he came to that his voice would take on a note almost of reverence as he told of the wonderful gallery and the priceless masterpieces. Just what relation this experience has, if any, to his will nobody living knows. If he had not already decided, it may well have been determining. But it does show that the chief was far from being insensible to the deep appeal of art. That he wanted his will to make a huge splash I cheerfully affirm. How he would have enjoyed the universal amazement! But the real inspiration for his magnificent and most intelligent gift to the Metropolitan Museum of Art came from his intense desire to do a lasting service to humanity. It was the tremendous hope of his life when he hit upon the idea of making his millions work through the centuries for culture, for the finer side of life. It must have strained him mightily to keep that gorgeous secret."

TRANSCRIPT ON AIR

A license to operate a radio station was this week granted to the Boston (Mass.) Transcript. The call letters are WBET and wave length 384.4 meters. There are now more than 650 broadcasting stations in the United States, it is declared by the Department of Commerce.



In Detroit—The News
Is the Acknowledged Radio Medium!

Prints Two-Thirds Of All the Radio Advertising Published In Detroit!

During the first 11 months of 1926, The Detroit News published the tremendous total of 586,250 lines of radio advertising, 72,912 lines more than during the corresponding period of a year ago, and virtually three times as much as any other medium.

Result-getting ability, of course, is the reason for the remarkable showing—a result-getting ability due to The Detroit News' thorough coverage of the homes in the local trading area and its matchless reader interest among radio enthusiasts.

The Detroit News radio station, WWJ, was the first in the world to broadcast regular daily programs. With transmission of entertainment still further enhanced by the recent installation of two steel masts towering 265 feet above the pavement, The Detroit News now furnishes even better radio entertainment to its readers. Advertisers cannot help but feel the favorable reaction from this improvement through their advertising in The News. The cash register will prove it.

The Detroit News

The HOME newspaper

350,000 Sunday Circulation 320,000 Week Day Circulation

"PRINT ALL THE NEWS—ADS WILL FOLLOW"

Small Town Publisher Finds "Club Method" Fails in Long Run —New Policy Makes More Friends

By David H. Dickson

News Editor, Ellensburg (Wash.) Evening Record

The publisher of every small town newspaper is confronted with the question of what attitude to take toward the school, church, club and society promoter of this event and that, when the promoter thoughtlessly or deliberately passes on to the weekly competitor job printing in connection with the event after begging and obtaining valuable news stories in the daily. It is a mean question to handle and unless treated diplomatically often results in a new recruit in the ranks of the "enemies" which every newspaper possesses.

How many publishers of small city dailies with job printing shop in connection, have not very often graciously opened their news columns to advertise some enterprise for his local organizations, only to discover on the day of the show, or whatever it is, that the town is flooded with dodgers printed by his weekly competitor up the street who has not given a line of publicity to the event; the neighbor also gets the programs and maybe the tickets, too. It's a hard pill to swallow, not so much because of the profit involved but because of the ingratitude or thoughtlessness of the promoter.

What is the proper attitude for the daily publisher to take under such circumstances? Should he refuse free publicity unless he first is assured he is going to get the bulk of the printing, and some advertising, or should he smilingly donate his white space and trust to luck that some day the promotor will see the light?

After a number of experiences such as described above this newspaper adopted a somewhat "hard boiled" attitude; we became stingy with space when we were not "treated right," and felt a sort of glee in a thinly veiled ultimatum that if there was job printing in connection with an enterprise, we expected to get our share, or we would not with any great degree of willingness kick through with news stories.

Being the only daily newspaper in the city, and with almost complete circulation coverage, there was a real threat behind our request, and promoters were almost forced to support us in order to obtain enough publicity to put over their musicale, show, bazaar, or what not. Our attitude resulted in our getting more of these small jobs than we had in the past.

A chance remark I heard a considerable time back, however, caused me to look at the question from a different angle. I found that those who were induced by the club method to hand over the job work were anything but friendly; they didn't like it, even though they knew it was only a fair swap, and while they gave us what they had to, other jobs, and usually more profitable ones, went to the other fellow.

Since then we have adopted another tack; if an enterprise is a worthy one we back it to the limit, are generous with news space, and go after the printing only by a casual solicitation. Some times now we don't get the work, but smile anyway, wish them luck, and boost the affair along. We have found it makes fine friendships for the paper, not only on the part of the promoter but of those participating in the affair being given. We get jobs not only in connection with the enterprise but the good feeling created has resulted in lots of other work being brought to the shop unsolicited.

It is the old story of the Fable of the Sun and the Wind.

TYPO CHIEF ENJOINED BY MAILERS

C. P. Howard Temporarily Restrained From Conducting Referendum on Amendments Protested by Mailers

A temporary injunction restraining Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union, from conducting a referendum in the organization on the adoption of amendments which it is charged would exclude the District Trade Mailers' Union from enjoying the benefits and privileges of the typographical union was issued Friday, Dec. 17, by Judge Robert C. Baltzell of Federal court in Indianapolis.

Judge Baltzell ordered the injunction when attorneys for James P. McNichols and other members of the mailers' union and Howard reported they could not agree on a method of settling the controversy according to provisions of the constitution of the typographical union, as advised by Judge Baltzell earlier in the week.

The injunction will prevent Howard from circulating letters among local unions of the international body asking for a vote on amendments which exclude the mailers from participation in the general election of officers and provide that they elect only a vice-president who would represent them on the executive council.

At the close of the arguments in the hearing Judge Baltzell advised attorneys for the plaintiffs and defendant to try to agree on a method of settling the controversy through the regular procedure provided for in the constitution by making an appeal to the convention of the typographical union. A final hearing will be held at a later date to determine whether a permanent injunction shall be issued.

NEW QUARTERLY INDEX

Jewish Daily Bulletin Opens Novel Enterprise in Field

Following the example set by the New York Times in publishing a Quarterly Index, the Jewish Daily Bulletin has started a somewhat similar index. Volume One for the year 1925 contains over ten thousand items compiled by its staff, of which Miss Freda R. Bienstock is the chief.

While this index is based on the Jewish Daily Bulletin, it contains more than a mere listing of the items and includes many excerpts in order to make the contents more valuable as a book of reference.

NEW SOUTHERN CABLES

Lines to South America Will Be Triple by Construction

Operations that will add 2,628 mile of cable at a cost of $2,000,000 to th system of All America Cables, Inc have been begun. The operations co sist in triplication of the existing line from Fisherman's Point, Cuba, to Colo Panama; from Callao, Peru, to Iquiqu Chile and from Iquique to Valparais Chile. This will give All Americ Cables three duplex cables from Ne York to Buenos Aires.

The first step in triplicating the Ne York-Buenos Aires system was take last January, when a third cable 1,50 miles long was laid from New York t Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

A cable ship is now laying the thir 800-mile cable from Cuba to Panama a the rate of 200 miles a day. It shoul therefore reach Panama by Friday. Th ship will then lay the 844-mile sectio between Callao and Iquique and th 984-mile section between Iquique an Valparaiso. It is expected that the wor will be completed by Feb. 1.

The cost of the third New York Cuba cable was $1,000,000. The ne Caribbean cable will cost $500,000, th Callao-Iquique cable $700,000 and th Iquique-Valparaiso cable $800,000.

HOYT EXECUTIVES MEET

Executives of the Charles W. Hoy Company, advertising agency, from Bos ton, Springfield, Mass., and Winston Salem, N. C., held their annual confer ence this week in New York.

88.6% Families

of Huntington, W. Va.

—read the

Huntington Advertiser

Evening & Sunday Member A.B.C.

Huntington with 70,000 Population, 15,000 Homes, is dominated by the Advertiser's city circulation of 13,793.

Guaranteed Net Paid Total Circulation of 16,500 at 6c per Line Flat.

November, 1926 Net Paid Average

City	13,793
Suburban	3,299
Country	427
Total	17,519

The Evening Advertiser is for ALL the Family.

Advertising Representatives

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

AKRON—18½ Million

Over eighteen million dollars will be spent in 1927 for public buildings and improvements to take care of the steady growth of the Akron Market. This is the largest sum so spent since the abnormal post-war period.

For new buildings $10,165,000 will be spent as follows:

M. O'Neil Co. Department Store	$3,000,000
Union Depot	4,000,000
Summit County Schools	1,000,000
St. Thomas Hospital	800,000
New Children's Hospital	500,000
City Hospital Annex	300,000
New Post Office	565,000
	$10,165,000

For public improvements $8,365,000 will be spent as follows:

New Viaduct	$2,365,000
Sewage Disposal	6,000,000
	$8,365,000

The total, $18,530,000, does not include any of the numerous additions to Akron's tire factories or other industrial plants which have been announced recently.

No matter what your product, the growth in the Akron Market which made these millions of dollars worth of improvements necessary, is a growth that will increase the demand for your product.

The Akron Beacon Journal has more than kept up with this growth. Its circulation increased 9.007 net paid in the past year.

The Akron Beacon Journal is far ahead of any other newspaper in completely covering the Akron Market, both in circulation and advertising. Include it in your schedules to carry your message to the market that is spending $18,000,000 in 1927 on public buildings and improvements alone.

Akron Beacon Journal

Member of the 100,000 Group of American Cities

STORY, BROOKS, and FINLEY, Representatives

CHICAGO NEW YORK ST. LOUIS PHILADELPHIA SAN FRANCISCO LOS ANGELES

1st in Ohio—8th in U. S. in advertising linage among six-day evening newspapers

Largest HOME delivered circulation in Los Angeles!

Los Angeles Examiner

190,000 DAILY 400,000 SUNDAY

Informal Notes

MR. C. D. McLUCAS,
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER,
THE BUFFALO TIMES:

Your renewal of your contract for "Associated Editors Classified Service" was doubly welcome in this office because of the good wishes for our success which you included. We thank you for these good wishes, and congratulate you on your intelligent and systematic use of the "Result Stories" which we are writing each week for your exclusive use. We would be glad if all users of our "Classified Service" would keep us as busy writing "Result Stories" as you do. Many of them pay for this service and then neglect to make us work.

* * *

MISS MARY HUMPHREY,
SUNDAY EDITOR,
DETROIT FREE PRESS:

Following your advice, we eliminated all slang and smart-alecky spelling from "Goofey Movies," the weekly comic strip in our "Boys' and Girls' Service"; because, as you argued, such spelling is confusing to children and doesn't make a thing funny if it isn't funny anyway. We are very grateful that you gave us this advice. The strip is going better than ever. During the three weeks that ended December 17th, Fred Neher, author of the strip, received letters from 2362 children, who sent stamps for autographed photos of "Goofey Movies" stars.

* * *

C. C. MAES,
GENERAL MANAGER,
HOUSTON POST-DISPATCH:

The fact that you have ordered 25 extra copies each month of the book of proofs of our "Farm Editor's Service" interests us very much indeed, especially since you are going to give one of these books to each of your country circulation solicitors so that the farmers can see in advance all the good features you are buying for them. We intend to pass on this idea wherever the "Farm Editor's Service" is ordered. Thank you for it.

* * *

MR. A. W. GRANT,
MANAGING EDITOR,
SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS:

Tying up with our "Church Page Service" which you recently ordered, we can furnish you, for only $6.00 a thousand, 12 x 18 circulars printed on both sides, with the name of the San Antonio Express imprinted on the front. Each circular will contain the first four of the 52 installments of the 6-column picture-strip, "The Life of Christ," which you are starting early in February. The price of these circulars is so low that we can recommend your sending them to practically all church-going families in southern Texas.

* * *

MR. A. R. MICHENER,
GENERAL MANAGER,
HARRISBURG TELEGRAPH:

That is excellent copy about the auto advertising situation in Harrisburg which you sent us to be imprinted on the back of the 150 books which you are buying each month containing advance proofs of our "Auto Editor's Service" for the month. It would be a great thing for syndicates if all newspapers would utilize their services as intelligently and as effectively as you are pushing this automobile material.

* * *

MR. RALPH BOOTH,
PUBLISHER,
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS:

When are the annual motor shows being held in your various cities in Michigan? We have just published a special "Motor Show Supplement" to our "Auto Editor's Service," containing fifty features to be used in a special edition, or otherwise during the week of a local auto show. Your newspapers, in the heart of automobile America, will be interested, we are sure.

John H. Millar

(Announcement: Mr. Edward N. Dolbey, Jr., formerly of the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate, has joined the staff of Associated Editors, Inc., and is now in charge of sales in the Eastern territory.)

Ideas= Not Merely Big Names

Most of the features and services offered by Associated Editors have been created by the working out of original ideas. This consistent policy of developing original features to meet certain definite needs—to fill certain holes in newspapers—has resulted in eight years of steady growth.

ASSOCIATED EDITORS, INC.
JOHN H. MILLAR, President
440 S. Dearborn St. CHICAGO

"Ideas—not merely big names."

WORK YOUR BRAIN WHILE YOU COOL YOUR HEELS, SALESMEN ADVISED

Periods of "Wasteful Waiting" Can Be Used for Golden Thinking, Says Writer, Who Declares Newspaper Space Cannot Be Sold "On the Run"

By A. J. SLOMANSON

AFTER a month's effort to sell newspaper space, a salesman approached his superior and verbally tendered his resignation. This salesman had been successful in selling a tangible product to retailers, and on the basis of his past record thought that he could sell newspaper space since advertising seemed to offer a better opportunity than mere order-taking in another line.

The business manager knew that the man was an experienced salesman; came excellently recommended by past employers and felt that he had the making of a good newspaper representative inasmuch as the salesman possessed personality and was a convincing talker. Moreover the company had a month's investment in this man and did not care to let him go since it would require as much time coaching another young man, so his superior asked why he was so hasty in changing his mind.

"I cannot stand the wasteful waiting and sitting still losing valuable minutes until the man you are after has time to see you," was the impetuous reply of the salesman. "Even after I am kept waiting a long time I usually find that I have been after the wrong man as the agency space-buyer is sometimes apathetic to my solicitation, or I have been informed that the agency account manager is the one who really buys the space, or if no satisfaction can be had from these parties, I must call on the advertiser. In fact, most of my time is wasted in trying to find the real space-buyer. I feel that I could apply my selling energy more constructively in some other line where so much effort is not wasted, and therefore ask to be relieved of my present responsibility now," he added.

The business manager did not lose any more time with the young man and was reluctant to tell him that "seeing your man" was the important part of space-selling, even though it did require considerable waiting, and that it was true waiting was the unpleasant part of the business, and that no position could be all to one's liking. Yet, for how many space salesmen is this wasteful waiting? Could not this leisure time be used to good advantage?

Most newspaper salesmen remind one of the old man who said "sometimes I sits and thinks but most times I just sits." In lieu of allowing the mind to participate in empty reveries while waiting for prospective business, could not a salesman cogitate, and concentrate his efforts in attacking his prospect with the proper ammunition? There are many pertinent facts that could be correlated in the salesman's mind while waiting. For example, he could crystallize his thoughts about whether or not the prospect has a good knowledge of the market to be sold; if the prospect did not have distribution in the newspaper's territory, how could he help obtain distribution; does the prospect know the number of retail outlets in said territory; does prospect know what competitors are doing in the same territory; why territory is exceptional for test campaigns, and dozens of other pertinent questions that should interest the prospect.

Newspaper space cannot be sold on the run as it requires plenty of premeditated thought to educate advertisers to certain markets. One high salaried metropolitan newspaper space salesman makes it a practice to select a prospect who is a logical advertiser for his newspaper, and then sits in the office often a week at a time planning just how he can get the account. If he does not get it in a short time he keeps piling his ammunition in spare time and after many months' effort has the advertising of the prospect in his newspaper. There cannot be too much haphazard selling of space as too many advertisers are sophisticated and demand all the facts about the newspaper and its market before deciding to advertise in it. Planning and patience are essential.

In selling newspaper space approximately half of the salesman's time is spent in waiting. Perhaps it results from the inconsiderateness of the agency executives in wilfully delaying the interview, or the chances the salesman takes in finding his prospect at his desk, or perhaps by waiting in line with other space salesmen. Yet the salesman should not just sit, but rather sit and think. He should welcome the intervals that allow him time for thinking because in the end he will obtain more results through intelligent presentations, and not by merely waiting to ask the space-buyer if there was anything new.

A successful newspaper salesman requires the qualities of tranquility, affability, persistency; the capacity to talk intelligently, and most important of all, patience, for no time need be wasted when one brings along his thinking powers.

PUBLISHING OPPORTUNITY!

A trade paper in the greatest advertising industry in the world—a monthly, with strong reader following and practically 15,000 paid subscriptions—is for sale at a price below the total of advertising in sight for 1927. Personal reasons are responsible. A man or organization with ability and a few thousand cash can build a strong, profitable journal. Quick replies asked. Transportation.

Box B-696, Editor & Publisher.

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

NOT long ago the New Haven Journal Courier canvassed the local business men's clubs and were surprised to learn that besides being a favorite among this class of readers, it had a relatively long list of graybeards for subscribers.

HERBERT PETERSON

One gentleman had read the Journal - Courier for 60 years; another for 45; and quite a gratifying number for 30 and 35 years.

Herbert Peterson, the publisher, had always taken his newspaper seriously, bowing to its dignity of 160 years, but, if anything, the canvass made him more certain than ever that he was smaller than his paper, that the paper itself was in reality the shadow of its readers rather than its immediate maker. Despite the generally opposite trend of the times, he dedicated himself anew to a code of news generosity that is becoming rarer and rarer these days. The Journal-Courier is a three cent paper in a two penny town. It stands in second place. But Mr. Peterson reasons that mass is not all masterful; that there is room always for a class paper with its appeal directly aimed at the intelligent.

"I want 73 columns of advertising for a 20-page paper," he declared. "That pays and that is enough. My ideal is to run 50-50 on advertising and text, but more often than not our paper shows 49 per cent advertising and 50 per cent news. We like to give our readers their money's worth.

"We believe we are appealing to a class that is somewhat above the average. We aim at the reader who appreciates quality, understands logic, and can estimate the value of clean, clear reasoning.

"In our editorial department we are double fortified in having Col. Osborn as editor-in-chief and Dr. Amos Wilder as his assistant. Our managing editor Arthur Sloan is admirably fitted for selecting news and training men to get the news that interests and appeals to our field."

Mr. Peterson presents the appearance of having always heeded what some poet called "the stern voice of God," adding "O Duty, if that name thou lovest." It hasn't entirely given him a deaconish demeanor. There is usually a twinkle in his eye and he keeps that twinkle focused on all the thousand and one details that go to make up an honest, and without being coldly spinsterish, a chaste newspaper.

Independent in politics, the editor-in-chief is strongly against the 18th amendment, while Mr. Peterson is a teetotaler and an ardent Volsteadian. So strictly is the line between business and editorial office drawn, that there is no argument over this clash of viewpoint.

"Editing the paper is Col. Osborn's job," Mr. Peterson said. "It's mine to get the business."

Mr. Peterson is a Bridgeport, Conn., boy. From there he first went into the book publishing business, working in Philadelphia and New York. Later he returned to the Bridgeport Post, where he was assistant publisher for 10 years. He has been publisher of the Journal-Courier since the sudden death of his predecessor, Edward J. Carrington in August, 1925. He is a widower with two children, one being secretary of the company.

$100,000 LIBEL SUIT

Boston News Bureau Named in Action by Fred J. Burrill

The Boston (Mass.) News Bureau is defendant in a $100,000 libel suit brought against it by Fred J. Burrill of Medford, former treasurer and receiver general for the commonwealth of Massachusetts. Judge James Madison Morton, Jr. of the United States Federal Court on application of Charles F. Choate, Jr., for the News Bureau has granted a non-suit, allowing Joseph Joyce Donahue, attorney for Mr. Burrill, ten days only in which to file answers to a long list of interrogatories propounded by Mr. Choate concerning issues involved in the suit.

The names of President Coolidge (then governor of Massachusetts), Joseph C. Allen (then state bank commissioner) and Max Mitchell, former president of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company, are mentioned, Mr. Choate seeking information regarding an alleged conversation between the three about the affairs of the trust company.

Morning Paper Territory

Salt Lake City (its suburbs and its surrounding territory) is and always has been strongly morning paper territory. Look at the circulation and advertising figures for proofs:—

1925	Tribune	2d Paper	3d Paper
Adv. Linage.	10,718,316	6,212,948	4,709,348
Circulation (June 30-26)
Daily	41,788	28,055	20,750
Sunday ..	70,014		25,271

The Salt Lake Tribune

THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY

—Sole Eastern Agents—
New York—Chicago—Detroit
St. Louis—Kansas City—Atlanta

M. C. MOGENSEN & CO., Inc.

—Pacific Coast Representatives—
San Francisco—Los Angeles
Seattle

The Dream Girl

1927

New Year's Greetings

to all of our friends, and our sincerest wishes for their happiness and success in the New Year.

If for any reason our 1927 Dream Girl Calender has not reached any of our friends, a word to that effect will immediately start another on the way.

The unanimous opinion of our friends is that "it's a beauty."

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION

340 Madison Ave. New York, N. Y.

for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility—use Certifieds.

MADE IN THE U. S. A.

Seven Result-Producing Opportunities for Rotogravure Advertisers

The New York Times Sunday edition offers the high grade rotogravure advertiser seven avenues of approach to the large group of discriminating, intelligent and responsive men and women who can be reached only through The New York Times.

In no other newspaper can the rotogravure advertiser obtain such volume and quality of circulation combined and such beauty of reproduction.

	CIRCULATION
1. Rotogravure Picture Section, full newspaper size, issued in 2 or 3 parts, printed in sepia	650,000
2. Magazine, printed in black and white, tabloid size	650,000
3. Book Review, printed in black and white, tabloid size	650,000
*4. Westchester and Connecticut Section	61,000
*5. New Jersey Section—throughout New Jersey	78,000
*6. Brooklyn and Long Island Section—in Brooklyn and throughout Long Island	97,000
*7. Bronx, Harlem and Washington Heights Section	78,000

* These four sections contain pictures of interest, particularly to the residents of the territories in which they are exclusively distributed and enable the advertiser to concentrate on a given district.

The New York Times

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

The New York Times is leader in the United States in volume of rotogravure advertising published. In 1926 The Times printed approximately 1,140,000 agate lines. The next New York newspaper printed less than half of this amount. The Times exceeded its own record of 1925 by 230,000 lines.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

N. Y. World Boosts Classified Rates 10 Per Cent—And Adds New Rules—"White Elephant" Stunt in Des Moines—Brooklyn Eagle Also Raises Rates—"Model Home" Campaign

AN increase in classified advertising rates amounting to 10 per cent in virtually all classifications, effective Jan. 1, was announced this week by New York World. Heavy increases in union wage scales was held primarily accountable for the higher rates by Frank McCabe, classified manager. The World, as announced elsewhere in this issue, is cutting its subscription price from three to two cents a copy and is counting on a circulation jump. The highest rate on the World now is $1 a line, which is charged employment agencies, and the lowest is 40 cents.

While there are no fundamental changes in the classified rules, it is interesting to note that the World has added a new word, "free," to its list of terms and references not acceptable in the "business opportunities" classification.

"New abuses creep in from time to time, and we are always on the look out to check them," Mr. McCabe said. "In advertisements for schools, references have, in the past, been made to jobs obtained 'free' on graduation, and investigation has shown that there is invariably some subterfuge and misrepresentation in this connection."

Other words and phrases blue-penciled from World classified advertisements include: beer; bonds for sale; Catholics to invest; Christians to invest; Gentiles to invest; lady partner; mines, gold or silver; malt and hops for sale; men to travel; oil fields or stocks; whiskey; widow or woman partner; and wine.

The Brooklyn Eagle this week also announced an increase in classified rates. The boost represents a five-cent increase on one-time ads; three cents on three-time; and two cents on seven-time.

Chester Nolan, classified manager, said the Eagle was starting a promotion campaign designed to increase its already high real estate linage. The contest is built on the "model home" idea, and the first announcement has promised $1,000 in prizes for the best house plans.

A small outline drawing of an elephant is being used by Des Moines Register to attract attention to its classification "Miscellaneous for Sale or Exchange," with its various sub-headings.

"Maybe the White Elephant you want is in this column," the newspaper advises its readers.

The sub-heads are "Clothing and Furs," "Household Goods," "Musical and Radio," "Business and Office Equipment"; and "Wanted to Buy."

As caption to the white elephant illustrating "Household Goods," the assertion is made "Somebody else's White Elephant will furnish your home."

A small "want ad" placed in a Columbia, Mo., newspaper in October, 1925, has matured into a project through which 1,800 renovated toys were distributed to needy children in Columbia and rural Boone County this Christmas.

The advertisement, inserted by O. R. Rogers, an employe of the U. S. Weather Bureau at Columbia, Mo., asked that townspeople contribute old or broken toys which he might repair and distribute to poor children on Christmas eve. The ad brought a liberal response. News articles and editorials about Rogers' work helped, and Rogers, aided by his wife, gave many toys to poor children last year.

This year the Boy Scouts volunteered to collect toys and aid in other ways, as by doing rough painting. Civic and charity organizations pooled their Christmas lists, and distributed the toys repaired by the Rogerses and under their supervision. Mrs. Rogers, among other things, ironed dresses for the 222 dolls given away. All manner of toys—from kiddie cars, coasters, sleds and tricycles to baby blocks and rubber dolls—were given away. Rogers attributes much of his success to newspaper publicity, of which he received nearly 200 column inches this year.

Nobody connected with the enterprise draws financial rewards. Neighboring towns are considering similar stunts.

WORLD ALMANAC COMING

Will Be On Sale January 5—Reviewed by Prof. James Melvin Lee

The World Almanac will be available after Jan. 5. An advance copy is reviewed below by Prof. James Melvin Lee.

The one annual publication which no newspaper can afford to do without is "The World Almanac and Book of Facts," which was established by the late Joseph Pulitzer in 1886. The forty-second edition for the year 1927, will be ready for distribution on Jan. 5, and then copies may be obtained from the New York World. Again, thanks to its editor, Robert Hunt Lyman, the volume is remarkable for its accuracy and its terseness in covering material. In compiling this contemporary encyclopaedia, Mr. Lyman had the valuable assistance of a number of experts—especially in the preparation of tables.

"The World Almanac" is too well known to need any extended comment in this department. Like the dictionary, it may be opened almost at any page and read without any interest to know what went before or what comes after.

Some of the features have unusual value. I refer specifically to "Scientific Progress in 1926" which Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society of Washington, D. C., contributed. This covers such fields as archaeology, astronomy, biology, engineering, geography, geology, paleontology, etc. This one feature by itself is more than worth the fifty cents asked for the volume.

One of the best New Year's resolutions any newspaperman can make is a resolve to use the spare time between assignments to dip into this volume.

Forty thousand germs are said to be transferred with each good-night kiss. The scientifically educated flapper, when her sweetie asks for a good-night kiss, will reply, "Don't bacilli!"—Chicago Daily News.

BEFORE HE WAS INTERESTED IN SPORTS;

After he was interested in Sports;

While he was interested in Sports;

The Average Reader
Was Also

Interested in Religion.

Religion Is The Oldest,
Widest,
Deepest
Concern of Human Beings.

This Deathless Interest
Is Intelligently Catered To
By The Ellis Sunday School Lesson,
A "Different" Feature
For Folk Of All Faiths,
That Has Stood The Test of Time.

THE ELLIS SERVICE
* * * Swarthmore, Pa.

REPRESENTING THE NEWSPAPERS

Flynn of S. C. Beckwith Company Sees Increases in Food and Radio Advertising—Lindenstein-Kimball, Inc., Opens Chicago Office—Middleton-Kimball Company Formed

INCREASES in food product and radio advertising in the newspapers during 1927 was forecast this week by T. F. Flynn, secretary of the S. C. Beckwith Company, in an interview at New York headquarters.

Mr. Flynn based his predictions on the advertising placed by these two industries during 1926 and the schedules promised for 1927.

"The year 1926 has been one of the most successful in newspaper advertising history," he declared. "There has been a downward tendency in certain sections, but this has by no means been general. On the whole, there has been a decided increase in national advertising in the newspapers, and I am optimistic about the new year."

J. E. Middleton, who established and managed the Chicago office for the Kimball-Mogensen Company, later the M. C. Mogensen & Co., Inc., has resigned, to become vice-president of Lindenstein-Kimball, Inc., newspaper representatives, and also manager of their newly opened Chicago office in the Tribune tower.

With Frederic A. Kimball, Mr. Middleton has organized the Middleton-Kimball Company, with offices in New York, Chicago and Pittsburgh. Mr. Middleton has been engaged in newspaper representation in the Chicago territory for approximately 25 years, having served as vice-president and western manager of the J. P. McKinney Special Agency, western manager for the New York World, and Chicago manager for the Kimball-Mogensen and M. C. Mogensen & Co. Mr. Kimball was for many years prominent in the John Budd Company, and was the original president and New York manager of the Kimball-Mogensen Company.

Alcorn & Seymour Company, Inc., has been appointed national advertising representatives of the Champaign (Ill.) News-Gazette, in eastern territory.

Scranton (Pa.) Sun this week announced the appointment of the Benjamin & Kentner Company as its national advertising representatives.

D. J. Randall & Co., New York, will become national advertising representatives of the Walla Walla (Wash.) Daily Bulletin, effective Jan. 1, 1927. The Ford-Parsons Company will become western representatives of this paper with headquarters at 58 Sutter street, San Francisco.

SUN CLUB CHRISTMAS PARTY

The annual Christmas party of The Sun Club, social and welfare organization of the New York Sun, was held on Friday afternoon, Dec. 24 at the Sun. Several hundred members of the various departments of the Sun enjoyed the buffet turkey luncheon which was served. An orchestra provided music for dancing and the Advertising Glee Club sang several Christmas carols. H. I. Phillips, conductor of the Sun Dial column wrote jingles about William T. Dewart, publisher, Edwin S. Friendly, Frank M. O'Brien and Keats Speed, executive officers of the Sun. The jingles were read by Harold M. Anderson, of the editorial department.

One of those American magazines advertises its serial as "A Novel of Intense Emotion."—Judging by the illustrations we've come to the conclusion that this is a typographical error; should be "She motion."—H. R. Farmer in Edmonton Bulletin.

WILMINGTON'S ANNUAL PAYROLL IS OVER $ 87,000,000

The buying power of this great community is tremendous as evidenced by the Wilmington annual payroll.

Wilmington industries represent some of the most important in the United States where 60% of the labor is skilled, with an annual average income of $1,715 per worker for 51,000 employees.

While the population of Wilmington, Delaware, is around 120,000, or more than half of the population of the entire State, yet its trading area covers parts of Pennsylvania and New Jersey just across the Delaware River, and within a radius of 25 miles are located rich communities, both farming and industrial, that do all their trading in Wilmington.

Reach this great buying power through the Evening Journal and Morning News that are read by 60% of the families in this area.

These papers will carry your message into nearly every home in Wilmington and its suburbs. No other papers cover the field so thoroughly.

Get the facts and you will be convinced.

EVENING JOURNAL
MORNING NEWS

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS—Alone—Covers the Concentrated Greater Pittsburgh Territory

DOMINATING COVERAGE

where advertising returns the greatest profits

Circulation that represents the highest value—circulation in an area from which Pittsburgh merchants secure 85 to 90 per cent of their gross business

Greater Pittsburgh, the city, as defined by the Audit Bureau of Circulations, includes the corporate city of Pittsburgh, and fifty-four nearby boroughs and townships.* The population of this area is estimated at 988,273—almost a million.

In this area, THE PITTSBURGH PRESS, Daily, has 37,005 more net paid circulation than both other evening newspapers combined, and THE SUNDAY PRESS has 23,177 more net paid circulation than both other Sunday newspapers combined—¶86.4 per cent of the homes in this area read THE PITTSBURGH PRESS.

*BOROUGHS AND TOWNS.

Aspinwall	Louperex
Avalon	McKees Rocks
Banksville	Millvale
Bellevue	Mt. Oliver
Ben Avon	Munhall
Braddock	Neville Island
Carnegie	North Braddock
Carrick	Pittock
Crafton	Rosslyn Farms
Davis Island	Rankin
Dormont	Redman Mills
Edgewood	Sharpsburg
Emsworth	Swissvale
Etna	Terrace
Evergreen	Thornburg
Fairhaven	Westwood
Greentree	West Homestead
Hays	West View
Homestead	Whitaker
Ingram	Wilkinsburg
Knoxville

TOWNSHIPS

Baldwin	O'Hara	Scott
Kennedy	Penn	Shaler
Kilbuck	Robinson	Stowe
Mifflin	Ross	Union
		Wilkins

Circulation in this territory is worth more than circulation in the outlying areas from which you can secure, at the most, but 10 to 15 per cent of your aggregate business. Don't scatter and waste your efforts—concentrate in the one newspaper that concentrates on this great central market.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS reaches not any one class, but all classes of people in this area. Its preponderance of circulation coverage is too great to permit its limitation to any particular group.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS provides interesting reading for each member of the family and for every type of family. The keenest minds in the world brighten every issue with news, philosophy, ideas, stories, special articles and features that open new avenues of thought, enlightenment and entertainment for all. And, in addition, is included the most comprehensive display of "advertising news" printed in Pittsburgh.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS reaches the millionaire, as well as the workman, and—more important—it reaches the great average buying public—the people who are modern in their viewpoint and contact with life. They know the good things of this world—they want them, and they have the money to buy them.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS has proved its leadership. The remarkable demonstrations of results obtained by Pittsburgh's leading merchants through the superior selling power of THE PITTSBURGH PRESS is the best possible proof that you can not only reach—but sell—the buyers in this great territory through one newspaper, at one advertising cost. THE PITTSBURGH PRESS—alone—will do the job.

The following is a portion of an address delivered before the Association of National Advertisers convention, Atlantic City, N. J., by John H. Fahey of John H. Fahey & Company, Boston, Mass., ex-president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The development of supposed suburban and country circulation in thinly populated areas adjacent to or actually outside of the central market is of varying significance in different sections of the country.

As we know, there are centers in the West where the distribution of newspapers for a couple of hundred miles from a given center is effective because of the long distances between towns and because people travel many miles into the center to make their purchases. In the more thickly populated East, the same conditions do not obtain. It is often harder to bring people into the central market from a distance of twenty miles; and sometimes less, than it is to attract them in sections of the West from distances exceeding 200 miles.

In many instances, the building up of numbers in circulation in small towns and in the country-side at considerable distances from the center among people who represent a very small response, and who very infrequently come to the market where advertised merchandise is for sale, is one of the most elusive and unsound schemes for inflating circulation for which the advertisers of the country are now being taxed vast sums of money. The securing and maintenance of circulation of this sort, from every angle of operation, represents a maximum of expense and a minimum, indeed practically nothing, of return.

The Pittsburgh Press

A SCRIPPS-HOWARD NEWSPAPER

First in Everything in Pittsburgh

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Statue of Sophie Irene Loeb Presented to McKeesport, Pa.—Mrs. Eleanore Muller Resigns from A. N. A.—Daughter Carries on for Mother on Chicago Tribune

IN honor of her public home-coming after 16 years of absence, a statue of Sophie Irene Loeb, president of the Child Welfare Committee of America, was presented to McKeesport, Pa., on Dec. 21, according to action taken by Mayor George Lysle and city council.

Sophie Irene Loeb

Miss Loeb writes a daily column for Editors Feature Service, Cleveland and New York. She has long been connected with the New York Evening World. The statue, symbolizing the legislation and humanitarian movement for child welfare effected by Miss Loeb, is the work of Bryant Baker, noted sculptor, who did busts of Woodrow Wilson for the palace at Versailles, President Coolidge and other celebrities. His studio overlooks one of the playgrounds which Miss Loeb was instrumental in founding in the midst of New York's crowded streets, and it was while gazing upon happy children at play there that he conceived the idea of doing this statue of Miss Loeb.

A group of her welfare work associates, headed by Margaret Woodrow Wilson, vice president of the Child Welfare Committee of America, decided to present the work to McKeesport, since it was in that city she first demonstrated her active help for children.

Mrs. Eleanore Muller, since last April with the headquarters office of the Association of National Advertisers, has resigned, to become associated with Dillon Read & Co., effective Dec. 31. Prior to joining the A. N. A., Mrs. Muller was in the American consulate service in Stuttgart, Germany, and also spent a year as assistant to the manager of the American Chamber of Commerce, in Buenos Aires, Argentine. She was also at one time connected with Century Magazine.

Regina Cannon has left the New York Evening Graphic to write moving picture reviews for the New York American. She has been succeeded on the Graphic by Julia Shawell, who writes under the name of Betty Colfax.

Anita de Campi, expert on home decoration, has been on the Chicago Tribune for 30 years, old-timers on the paper learned recently. In private life she is known as Mrs. J. E. Roemheld. Because of illness Mrs. Roemheld's work is being carried on at present by her daughter, Billi de Campi Stephenson.

Mrs. Frances Gayle Cornelius, feature writer for the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer, and Richard Pierson Torrence were married Christmas Day at the home of the bride in Charlotte.

Miss Mabel Lux was general chairman and Miss Blanche Clair the hostess for a recent party given 100 children by the Philadelphia Club of Advertising Women.

Miss Amy Leslie, dramatic critic of the Chicago Daily News, is vacationing in Hollywood, Cal., where she is renewing acquaintanceship with many of her friends of the days when she was herself an actress on the legitimate stage.

Miss Florence Greiser has joined the advertising staff of the Miami (Fla.) News.

GOLF FOR ADVERTISERS

Winter Tournament at St. Augustine, Fla., Jan. 10-15

A record prize list of 82 trophies is announced for the annual tournament of the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests to be played over the St. Augustine Links from Jan. 10 to 15. Rodney E. Boone, advertising representative for Hearst newspapers, is president of the association.

The Advertising Interests are making their 25th Winter trip to a Southern resort, but it is the first time they have come to Florida. It is expected there will be about three hundred in the party.

The membership of the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests is composed of the leading advertisers and publishers of the country. The largest contingent will leave next Friday from New York on a special train. They will travel de luxe, and golf will be the main topic of discussion for these enthusiasts for the next two weeks.

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

John B. Foster Writes Baseball Reminiscences for C. P. A.—"Monitor" Explains Pitching Strategy—Eleanor Gunn in Cairo Writing Fashion Copy

JOHN B. FOSTER, baseball writer for the Consolidated Press Association, has completed a new series of reminiscences entitled "When Baseball Was Young," which will be distributed early in the year to C. P. A. papers.

A history of the National Association, compiled and edited by Mr. Foster, was issued as a souvenir volume by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues for their silver jubilee, recently celebrated in Asheville. The book, which is not being sold but has been distributed to members and friends of the association, comprises 160 pages, and is handsomely bound and lettered in silver.

"The Strategy of Pitchers" a new series by "Monitor," baseball expert of the New York World, was announced this week by the New York World Syndicate.

Bessie R. Bly is drawing a new cartoon feature for NEA Service, Inc., called "They're All Alike."

Eleanor Gunn, fashion authority of the Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York is now in Cairo, Egypt. She will return shortly to this country for the season in American winter resorts.

Mary Culbertson Miller is author of "A Wife's Transformation," which is being distributed to newspapers by the Bell Syndicate, Inc., New York.

Louis Brownlow, staff writer for Current News features on municipal and community affairs, spoke before the Chamber of Commerce in Petersburg, Va., on Dec. 28. He is scheduled to speak in Knoxville, Tenn. on Jan. 4 and Jan. 6. Mr. Brownlow recently returned from a speaking tour through the west, during which he addressed various civic bodies in Lawrence, Ottawa, and Fort Scott, Kan., and in Oklahoma City and Fort Worth.

Wallace Irwin has contributed to Metropolitan Newspaper Service's Pre-Eminent series an article called "Must the Truth Always Be Bitter?" Other articles scheduled are: Albert Edward Wiggam, "You Don't Have to Marry Badly Today"; Virginia Terhune Van De Water, "Fashionable Familiarities"; and Harvey O'Higgins, "Why Happiness Is Childish."

Leslie Fulenwider, president of Famous Features Syndicate, Inc., New York is writing a special column "Birmingham and Broadway" for the Birmingham (Ala.) News. Mr. Fulenwider was formerly a resident of Birmingham.

John T. McCutcheon, dean of cartoonists on the staff of the Chicago Tribune, will visit Miami, Fla., on the way to his island in the Bahamas for which he expects to leave shortly. The journey, including the inspection of the storm swept area, will take about three months.

C. T. Brainerd, president of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, and Mrs. Brainerd sailed Tuesday on the Doric for a trip to Cuba, Panama, parts of South America and Bermuda.

The monthly historical features issued by the Yale University Press are now being handled by King Editors' Features, Glen Ridge, N. J., and New York. The next release is on Benjamin Franklin and is scheduled for Jan. 16.

Ralph H. Graves, editor and manager of the Doubleday-Page Syndicate, Garden City, N. Y., will speak before the newspaper institute under the auspices of the North Carolina Press Association, at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill on Jan. 6. His subject will be "Syndicates and Circulation."

Metropolitan Newspaper Service is releasing for daily or Sunday serialization—"The Murder of Roger Ackroyd," a new novel by Agatha Christie. The book was praised by reviewers and had run into six editions before Mrs. Christie's recent disappearance in England gave her a news interest throughout the English-speaking world.

SCALLAN JOINS HERALD TRIBUNE

Robert O. Scallan has emerged from a voluntary retirement from newspaper work of over four years to join the staff of the New York Herald Tribune. Scallan was for several years on the staff of the old morning Sun and from 1909 to 1915 worked on the city staff of the World. In 1920 he returned to the World and left to assist Samuel Untermyer in the Lockwood Committee investigation. Since then he has been doing magazine and publicity work and moved with his family to Westport, Conn.

NEW PRESS CLUB PAPER

The City Press Club of Chicago has started publication of a monthly paper for newspaper men called the Scribe. The first issue was dated January. Clyde A. Morrison is editor-in-chief and Ray Miller, editor.

MISSOURI DAILY SOLD

P. T. Grimes has purchased the Booneville (Mo.) Central Missourian, a daily, from C. M. Harrison.

About the only thing a man needs to become political timber is the ability to plank down.—El Paso Times.

FOR

SAFETY

RELIABILITY

ECONOMY

THE

CLINE SYSTEM

OF PRESS CONTROL

is considered

"THE STANDARD OF THE WORLD"

Ask any user

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.

MAIN OFFICE. CONWAY BLDG., 111 W. WASHINGTON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

WESTERN OFFICE
FIRST NAT'L BANK BLDG.
SAN FRANCISCO,
CALIFORNIA

CLINE SYSTEM

EASTERN OFFICE
MARBRIDGE BLDG.
47 W. 34TH ST.
NEW YORK CITY

A Modern Newspaper

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT is awkward for the Post-Dispatch to have to publish letters in this column in its own praise, but it behooves the St. Louis public to acknowledge with generous praise the services which this great daily has rendered the city, the State, the country and, at times, the world. It is hard to call any journal "the best," as it is to designate a certain physician "the best," or a particular violinist "the best," but in the writer's opinion our own Post-Dispatch need not bow to any other newspaper in the country.

Good reader, have you fully appreciated it? Look it over carefully tonight. You will find it excels in almost every department. Its news is readably presented. Scare headlines are rarely used. The paper on which it is printed is good quality. The ink makes for clarity of impression. The proof-reading is well done.

News of genuine importance finds space according to its importance—that is as nearly as practicable for the paper to hold its circulation against journals catering to the murder-and-scandal-loving public. Foreign news of diversified topics is amply given. Inventions and scientific discoveries are ably reported. The editorial page is fearless and unhesitatingly liberal. Equally fearless and intelligent are the criticisms of stage, music and cinema. The woman's page is less insulting to the modern woman's intelligence than that of the usual metropolitan daily. Sports and markets are fully and capably treated.

Excellent special writers and superb reporters (like Paul Y. Anderson) turn out praise-worthy copy evidently little attacked by the editorial blue-pencil. Fitzpatrick's nightly offering affords amusement and food for thought. Yes, it may have weaknesses; for instance, it occurs to me that the book-reviewing could be improved upon and the editorial attitude on women is rather archaic; and about prohibition and the League of Nations, the responsible editors approach something near monomania. And, like the sage who enjoys a burlesque show after his profound cogitation, our good P.-D. revels in the banalities of Mutt and Jeff.

Prospering mightily in the face of an independent and honest editorial policy, or, perhaps because of it, the P.-D. is a standing refutation of the statement that modern journals must cringe and conform and prostitute their great calling in order to survive.

No, fellow citizens, I have no money invested in Pulitzer bonds; I hold no P.-D. job; I have no relatives or friends there. Just an unsolicited, hearty appreciation of this St. Louis possession, and my mite of encouragement for its longevity and prosperity—if continued on present plans and improved, here and there, from time to time, as no doubt it will be.

BO-PEEP.

Reprinted from "Letters from the People" in the St Louis Post-Dispatch 12-7-26

DAILY CLAMPS LID ON HURLEY, WIS., VICE CENTER OF MINING DISTRICT

Government Starts Padlock Proceedings Against 29 of the 54 "Soft Drink Parlors" in Town of 2,500 After Milwaukee Sentinel Collected the Evidence

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 29.—Hurley, Wis., the "Tia Juana" of the North, the city that for a half-century has run wide open in Northern Wisconsin, has been clamped down by the Federal government as a result of revelations made by the Milwaukee Sentinel of wholesale bootlegging, wide open gambling, indiscriminate rum-running, beer hauling and operation of brothels.

Twenty-nine of the 54 licensed "soft drink parlors," operating in the city of 2,500 people (nights 100,000) were served with temporary injunctions Tuesday ordering the proprietors to appear in Federal court at Madison, the state capital, within 20 days to show cause why their places should not be closed for one year by government padlocking proceedings.

For 50 years this city up in the mining and lumbering region of Wisconsin has flouted the law, often, it is alleged, by bribery of and plotting with city and county officials. The Eighteenth Amendment to Hurley was just one more law. By its extensive tip-off system and its powerful vice ring, it has been able to violate the Volstead act and all laws with practical impunity.

Several months ago the Sentinel determined to employ the power of the press to clean up Hurley.

"The law has for years been unable to cope with the situation in Hurley," said Julius Liebman, managing editor of the Sentinel.

"We decided to use the power of the press as a wedge to force the cleanup of Hurley. We planned the campaign of investigation in the Sentinel office several months ago and six weeks ago sent two of our best reporters to conduct a thorough investigation of conditions in Hurley and to gather sufficient evidence to induce federal officials to act. We made nothing public until the raid had occurred."

Disguised as lumberjacks the two reporters made the rounds of Hurley's saloons, gambling dens, brothels. They collected evidence in each place they visited. Every night, after the day's investigation had been completed, they prepared written descriptions of all that they saw. They put down names, places, conditions.

After the evidence gathered had been deemed sufficient, the Sentinel investigators placed it all before Federal officials, Ray J. Nye, Federal prohibition director for the Western District of Wisconsin; Stanley M. Ryan, the present United States district attorney for the district and William H. Dougherty, the predecessor of Ryan.

"The government can not interest itself in gambling that exists in Hurley," Mr. Dougherty said, when the evidence was presented to him, "and it can not take any part in cleaning up the houses of ill-fame. Those are matters for local officials and the state. But we can and will stop the flow of liquor if conditions are such as described."

Nine agents were thereupon sent secretly from Madison and St. Paul, Minn., to Ashland in the mining region and from there went down upon Hurley. They worked in Hurley for weeks, mingling with the gamblers, the miners and lumberjacks and purchasing liquor promiscuously.

Their reports and affidavits verifying the results of the Sentinel's investigation, brought about the wholesale issuance of injunction orders.

Sentinel reporters kept in touch with the Federal agents during the entire probe.

Information obtained by the Sentinel and the agents was carefully guarded. The raid, the greatest in Wisconsin history, came as a complete surprise and found Hurley running wide open. Not until the deputies marched into the saloons with writs of injunction did anyone know what had happened.

When news of the raid did leak out, the press association bureaus in Milwaukee were overwhelmed with wires from all over the middle west for information on the raid. By calls to Hurley some details were obtained by afternoon newspapers of Tuesday for final editions. The Sentinel in an extra edition early in the evening published a complete account of the raid and investigation.

An indication into the effect of the vice exposé is given in the Sentinel's story of the raid.

"The cleanup that was started in Hurley today," said the Sentinel "is but the beginning of the end of the riotous reign of bootleggers, gamblers, dive keepers, hijackers, white slavers and painted women of the underworld; of half a century of lawlessness.

"With the Federal government laying a heavy hand upon Silver street (the street of saloons) dealing Hurley the most severe blow it has ever received, the good people of the city have banded together to demand a special grand jury investigation of violation of state gambling laws and laws prohibiting houses of ill-fame.

"The government is expected to continue its work in Hurley because it has in its possession evidence that indicates an organized vice ring is making huge contributions to protect illegal business.

"Lawlessness is too open in Hurley to make it possible for anyone to pass down Silver Street and not to see the conditions that exist. It is claimed by those in the vice business that there are 200 women of the underworld operating in Hurley; that several hundred bartenders, gamblers and dive keepers who do nothing else but live off the miners and lumberjacks who drop their hard earned money in the many dives.

"There is evidence here that moonshiners were given their stills back after they have been arrested and convicted. There is evidence that the underworld is playing an active part in politics; that it is powerful in naming city and county officials; that it holds a whip over some of those officials and goes on its way violating the laws of the state and the nation."

Fred R. Zimmerman, newly elected governor of Wisconsin, praised the Sentinel for its vice exposé, in an official statement.

"The Sentinel's investigation of vice conditions in Hurley, and its subsequent co-operation with the government was a genuine public service that should be appreciated and lauded by every decent, law-abiding citizen of our state. As the next governor of Wisconsin I am grateful to the Sentinel for bringing to light these conditions so that they may be remedied and so that the blot may be removed from the state of Wisconsin.

"I was never aware of the conditions in Hurley until after I read the Sentinel's exposé which, I am informed, was not made public until after the proper authorities had been given an opportunity to act. In this respect the Sentinel showed the proper spirit.

"It appears to me that the Sentinel's investigation was a remarkable piece of work; that the evidence uncovered goes to the very root of the evils that exist in Hurley and when the time comes for action I will be glad to receive all this information and evidence and use it to the fullest extent.

"There are evils in Hurley which go far beyond the violations of the liquor laws. It is the duty of the city, county and state to act against vices unspeakable."

AIDS MEXICAN CHILDREN

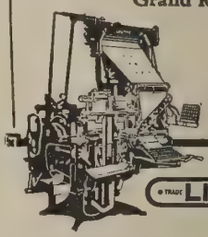
Nearly 2,000 destitute Mexican children were provided with Christmas goodies and toys and taken to a movie by Ignacio E. Lozano, publisher of La Prensa, San Antonio Spanish daily, in co-operation with merchants.

PATERSON TO ALBANY

Staff Man Named Capital Correspondent of New York Herald Tribune

Robert Paterson, who recently joined the staff of the New York Herald Tribune has been assigned as Albany correspondent beginning Jan. 1. Before coming to the Herald Tribune, Paterson was for four years associate editor of McClure Newspaper Syndicate, and previous to that assistant to the editor in chief of Current Opinion.

Mr. Paterson was educated at Ohio State University, and has covered the legislatures of various states for the Fargo (N. D.) Forum and Western Newspaper Union at Georgia during the time when Governor Slayton was being hissed out of office over the Leo Frank affair.



From the Linotype Mailbag

Avoided Delay

We certainly want to compliment you on the service given our telegraphic orders for liners. These were received about 8:30 this morning so we were not delayed in any way.

Such service and co-operation is always highly appreciated.

The Jaqua Company
Grand Rapids, Michigan

LINOTYPE

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS

International News Service

"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"

63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

252,818

was the average net paid daily circulation of The Baltimore Sun (morning and evening issues) for the month of

November, 1926

The average net paid circulation of THE SUNDAY SUN per Sunday for the month of November, 1926, was 194,351.

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

Morning Evening Sunday

1927 PROSPERITY

A prosperous 1927 for the Nation is the forecast by the Country's prominent business chiefs. Judge Gary says there is no sign of any interruption in the present business activity. The presidents, directors and leaders of BIG BUSINESS all agree that the fundamental business conditions generally can be regarded as sound.

If these great captains of industry who are in position to know and feel the pulse of the Nation's business are so optimistic, then the newspapers should enjoy the greatest year in the history of the publishing business. They too should broadcast this feeling of prosperity to the national advertisers and should call us in to assist them.

We are specialists in preparing copy and layout campaigns for the publishers. We are ready to undertake any promotional work to help the publisher sell his market and his newspaper to the advertiser. Call on us.

"Tie Up Your Newspaper With Your Market"

PUBLISHERS SPACE SELLING SERVICE

49 West 45th St. New York City

Copy - Layout - Art - Typography

¶ A smaller size Ionic is as legible as a larger size of some other type face and the comparatively short ascenders and descenders give the lines an open appearance even when set on the same body size as the face; however, various degrees of leading may be used, based upon the paper's space requirements. The outstanding advantage of this new face is its conservation of vision, which it achieves mainly through its even, restful tone and the notably clear, full proportions of both the lower case and the capital letters. There are no pin-holes to fill up with ink and no fine lines to break down in stereotyping, both important factors from a mechanical standpoint, because they speed up production. ¶

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

The body type of utmost legibility

IONIC No. 5

Is now available in three sizes

5½, 6½ and 7 point

HERE, at last, is a practical way to increase the size of your paper without adding more pages. You can now use a smaller size of body type, increase the word capacity of every page, and improve, rather than impair, its readability.

After several years of experimental work the Mergenthaler Linotype Company has evolved a newspaper body face that permits reduction in size and actually increases legibility as well as word count. This face is Ionic No. 5, of which the 6½ point size has been in practical use by over fifty newspapers for several months. It is now available also in 5½ point and 7 point.

Ionic invites reading—its even tone is restful, without being monotonous. The letters are full, round, clear and well proportioned. There are no "pin-holes" to fill up in printing—no fine lines to break down in stereotyping. Eye specialists endorse it, readers commend it; publishers praise it.

The three sizes are shown on the following pages. A study of these specimens, we are sure, will convince you that we have not exaggerated the qualities of this ideal newspaper face.

Mergenthaler Linotype Company

Brooklyn, New York

SAN FRANCISCO · CHICAGO · NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

319.26

LINOTYPED IN THE CLOISTER FAMILY EXCEPT LARGE TITLE LINE

POSITIONS WANTED—MEN

ACCOUNTANT—Books opened, audits, tax reports; part time bookkeeping at reasonable rates. Piper, 41 John st. Beekman 4581.

ACCOUNTANT—Expert, will keep few small sets books. D 103, Herald Tribune, Downtown.

ACCOUNTANT—Audit, systems, bookkeeping arrangements; taxes; financial statements; moderate fees. Cathedral 5372.

ARCHITECTURAL—General Draughtsman, 25 years' experience in New York; take care of large work. D 96, Herald Tribune, Downtown.

ARTIST PLASTIC—Young man; also book cover designer in ink. Plaster caster wants connections. Phone Orchard 305, after 6 p. m.

BOOKKEEPER—Beginner; references. John Muratori, 37 E. 58th st. Regent 7340.

BOOKKEEPER—Cashier, neat, experienced; excellent references. D 11, Herald Tribune, Downtown.

BUTLER wishes position private family; personal references; city, country. Lotz, 120 W. 102d.

BUTLER, useful thoroughly experienced; excellent references; Friday. Mason's Agency, 47 East 44th.

BUTLER and valet, first class, long reference; willing to go anywhere. Telephone Jamaica 9362.

BUTLER, valet, attendant; permanent or temporary; well recommended; English, Londoner. 953 3d av.

BUTLER, French, experienced; excellent references, M 5, Herald Tribune.

BUTLERS, cooks, housemen, chauffeurs. Wettler's Agency, 13 West 46th st.

CARPENTER wishes steady employment; repairs, alterations; reasonable. Telephone Havemeyer 6819-W.

CARPENTER-FOREMAN, 20 years' experience, wants position immediately. Trenholm, 475 West 22d.

CHAUFFEUR-MECHANIC, German, 49, married, no family, 24 years road, shop; any car, anywhere; like country and touring; moderate wages and uniform; well recommended. Frederic, 533 West 150th. Bradhurst 2105.

CHAUFFEUR-MECHANIC, married, 17 years' experience, American, useful; country or city; age 38; good references. M 40, Herald Tribune.

CHAUFFEUR, mechanic, single, 14 years' experience; long personal reference; willing, obliging; city, country, anywhere. Chauffeur, 95 Amsterdam av.

CHAUFFEUR—Mechanic, 9 years' experience; references; willing to go anywhere. Call Lackawanna 4828 after 1 p. m., John Ragnet.

CHAUFFEUR, butler, Japanese; wants position; private family; clean, neat; personal references. Jima, 330 East 57th. Plaza 6752.

CHAUFFEUR, mechanic, colored; steady; reasonable wages. Marks, 216 West 141st. Edgecombe 9246.

CHAUFFEUR or other work; free at New Year's; references. Z 140, Herald Tribune.

CHAUFFEUR, useful, long experience, neat; city, country; reliable; references. M 24, Herald Tribune.

CHAUFFEUR, butler; French; 8 years' experience; private family. PHILBERT, 691 Columbus av.

CHAUFFEUR, gardener, useful man; care furnace; private. 891 Columbus av., city.

HAVANA RESULTS

FIRST RACE—Purse $700; claiming; three-year-olds and upward; five and one-half furlongs.

Play Hour, 115	(Henslein)	4–1	8–5	4–5
Gussie P., 107	(Dale)	—	even	1–2
Kalakaua, 110	(Catrone)	—	—	6–5

Time—1:07 3-5. Liborio, Bellefonte, Voorfloor, Pilades, Seapen, Baalbeck II, Zoona, Clean and Bachelor's Error also ran.

SECOND RACE—Purse $700; claiming; three-year-olds and upward; five and one-half furlongs.

Lew Pope, 115	(Groos)	8–1	3–1	8–5
Lieut. Farrell, 110	(Fishman)	—	even	1–2
Cappie, 107	(Pickens)	—	—	2–1

Time—1:07 3-5. Ceres, Adventuress, P. T. Barnum, Acquitted, Little Jennie, Eileen M. Ranock also ran.

THIRD RACE—Purse $700; claiming; three-year-olds and upward; five and one-half furlongs.

Appellate, 108	(July)	4–1	8–5	4–5
Winding Th'gh, 107	(Pickens)	—	even	1–2
Vasquez, 107	(Morar)	—	—	4–5

Time—1:08. Brier Hill, Serline, J. Marrone II, Oblique, Ponce, Yellow Pine and Countess Claridge also ran.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $700; claiming; two-year-olds; five furlongs.

Sun Dance, 102	(Guerra)	even	2–5	2–5
Cuban Flag, 108	(Ralls)	—	3–1	8–5
Cut Brush, 110	(Butler)	—	—	4–1

Time—1:00 3-5. Sporting Life, Kathe, Caplinger, Manipulator, Arden, Touchdown, Garzona, Newt and Queen Basil also ran.

NEW ORLEANS ENTRIES

FIRST RACE—Purse $1,000; claiming; two-year-old maidens; six furlongs.

1774 Croatan .....112 | 1781 *Boots Last .100
1781 *Chuetta .....100 | 1774 *Billy K. 103
1746[3] Onup .....113 | 1739 *Pr. Eternal .107
1753[3] *War Grail ..108 | 1746 *Edna Cook .100
1697 Foundation ..112 | — *Old Foxy ...107
1781[2] Jul. Esquin ..108 | 1781[3] Bride's Cup .105
1768 *Rim 123

SECOND RACE—Purse $1,000; claiming; three-year-olds a...

1712 Juniata ...
1732 *Stein ...
1776 Forelan...
1684 Mungo ...
1780[2] Despard ...
— *Flight ...
1706 *Rock S...
1765 Cream P...

THIRD RACE ... year-olds a...
1737 Critical ...
1782[2] *Delphi ...
421 *West P...
1751 Couns. O...
1782 *Street ...
1710 *Royal ...
1703 *Real Ar...
1779 Ask Him ...
1733 *Doug'g...

FOURTH RA... claiming; a...
— Bilbo ...
1709 *Lord M...
— Fenman ...
1755 *Balboa ...

FIFTH RACE ... year-olds a...
yards.

1787 Laddie Buck .107 | 1731 Duckweed ...107
(1771) War Man ...107 | 1766[2] Endor 103
(1792) Massilon 103

SIXTH RACE—Purse $1,000; claiming; three-year-olds and upwards; mile and a furlong.

411 *Rajah .....111 | 1775[2] *Sea Court ..107
1779[3] *Four Sixty ..107 | 1775 Sleepy Head .116

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Text of this page set in

5½ Point Ionic No. 5

Classified column and racing news set 14 lines to the inch. Legal notices and market quotations set on 5½ point body.

A splendid type face for classified columns, market reports, legal notices and all other similar purposes.

LEGAL NOTICES

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY—PETER F. MURPHY, Plaintiff, against E. DEAN FULLER, Defendant.

YOU ARE HEREBY SUMMONED to answer the complaint in this action, and to serve a copy of your answer, or, if the complaint is not served with this summons, to serve a notice of appearance, on the plaintiff's attorney, within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service. In case of your failure to appear, or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the complaint.

The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication, pursuant to an order of Hon. Phoenix Ingraham, dated the 3rd day of December, 1926, and filed with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of the Supreme Court, at the County Court House, in the City, County and State of New York.

Dated, the 3rd day of December, 1926.

BERNARD ARONSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, by virtue of an artisan's lien amounting to $190 existing in favor of Michael Kramer, the undersigned will sell at public auction, on the 20th day of December, 1926, 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the store premises of Michael Kramer, No. 777 6th ave., New York City, the following property 1 pair of diamond and pearl drop earrings, containing 21 diamonds. Dated, New York, December 3rd, 1926. Sam Jacobs, Auctioneer.

PROPOSALS

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by the Sewerage and Water Board, at the office of the Secretary, Room 401, No. 520 Carondelet St., New Orleans, La., up to 12 o'clock, noon, of Monday, December 20th, 1926, for furnishing: LABOR AND MATERIAL ON A ...ATERWORKS, ...CONSTRUC-...7.

...oposal forms ...o. 520 Caron-...

...ct any or all ...Gen'l Supt.

...ION. Sealed ...e received in ...y, New York, ...1926, for con-...Dan Washing ...bkskill, N. Y. ...ation. J. W. ...f. G., U. S. P.

...y the Bureau ...Department, ...fire and gas ...clock A. M., ...X-ray table, ...pes, periscope ...and until 10 ..., for deliver-ing spices, canned cheese, ground mustard, arctics, vanilla flavor, shoes and, until noon, December 15, 1926, for delivering vegetable shortening to the Navy Supply Depot, Brooklyn, N. Y., etc. Apply for proposals to the Navy Purchasing Office, New York, N. Y.

CHARLES MORRIS, Paymaster General.

DOMESTIC BONDS

Sales (000 omitted).	High.	Low.	Last.	ch
1 Alum 7s '33	106	106	106	—
37 Am G & El 6s	100½	100	100½	+
21 Am P & L 6s	100	99½	99½	—
2 Am Roll M 6s	103	103	103	—
20 Am Seating 6s	99½	99½	99½	—
6 Am W Wks 6s	97⅞	97¾	97¾	—
3 Anacon Cop 6s	103	102⅞	102⅞	—
10 Appala'n Pr 5s	94⅞	94⅞	94⅞	—
16 Assoc G & El 6s	102	101⅝	101⅝	—
18 Assoc S H 6½s	97½	97½	97½	—
5 Atl Fruit Inc 8s	19	19	19	—
9 Beaver Bd 8s	99	98¼	98¼	—
5 Bell T Can 5s	100¾	100¼	100¼	—
1 Buff Gen El 5s	102	102	102	—
1 C N R Equip 7s	111⅝	111¾	111¾	+
25 Car Pr & Lt 5s	99	99	99	—
29 Cities Svc 6s	93⅝	93⅛	93⅜	+
1 do 7s D	112	112	112	+
2 Cs G B 5½s E	106⅝	106⅝	106⅝	+
1 Cons Tex 8s	84	84	84	+
6 Cont Cor 6s	98¾	98½	98¾	+
1 Cub Tel 7½	110½	110½	110½	—
6 Cudahy 5s	96¼	96¼	96¼	+
6 Det C Gas 6s	107½	107½	107½	—
10 Duke P P 6s	102¾	102½	102½	—
1 E Ter 6s	100½	100½	100½	—
1 El Refrig 6s	103⅞	103⅞	103⅞	—
6 Fisk Rub 5½s	97⅝	97½	97⅝	—
2 Galena S O 7s	91	90	90	— 1
110 Gat Pow 5s	94	93¾	94	—
145 do 6s	99½	98½	98¾	—
1 Gen Pet 6s	101¼	101¼	101¼	—
1 Gyr T & R 5½s	96½	96½	96½	+
3 Gr Tr 6½s	109¼	108¼	109½	+
1 Gulf Oil 5s	100⅝	100⅝	100⅝	—
26 Ind Oil 6½s	97¾	97	97¼	+
1 Ind Limeste 6s	99	99	99	—
5 Ind Pow 6s	97½	97⅝	97¾	—
5 Int Gr Nor 5s	95	95	95	+
10 Int N G 6s w i	118	117	117	— 1
16 Keyst T Ph 5½s	89	88⅝	89	—
3 Leh Pr Sec 6s	94	93⅝	93¼	+
57 Loews Inc 6s	99½	99	99	—
9 Mass Gas 5½s	102½	102½	102½	+
10 Missouri Pac 5s	100⅝	100⅝	100¼	—
8 Natl P & L 6s	98¼	98⅛	98¼	—
1 Nev Cal El 5s	94¼	94¼	94¼	—
18 Nev C Cop 5s	94½	94½	94¼	—
23 N O T M 5s	100⅞	100⅞	100⅞	—
6 N S P cv 6½s	111	111	111	—
5 O N G 6½s w i	99	99	99	—
4 Ohio R Ed 5s	95¾	95¾	95⅝	—
10 Otis Steel 6s	94⅞	94	94⅞	—
4 Pan Am Pet 6s	102	102	102	—
73 Penn O Ed 6s	116½	114½	116	+ 2
3 P P & L 5s	98¼	98¼	98¼	+
2 do 5s D	98⅛	98½	98⅞	— 3
17 Phil E P 5½s	102¾	102¾	102½	—
1 Phil E 5½s '74	107	107	107	+
26 P S N J 5½s	99	98⅞	99	+
13 Pure Oil 6½	104	104	104	—
2 Schulte R E 6s	95⅝	95¾	95¾	—
3 Servel Corp 6s	102⅛	102⅞	102⅛	+
1 Shawsheen 7s	100	100	100	—
86 S P & L 6s w w	94¾	94¾	94¾	—
8 Hun Ld In 7½s	98⅛	98	98¼	—
5 Ilseder Steel 7s	98	98⅞	98⅝	—
125 Td P U C I 7s	91	90⅝	90⅞	—
7 King Den 5½s	100½	100	100½	—
1 King Neth 6s '72	107	107	107	—
2 Mans M & S 7s	99½	99¾	99¾	—
5 Med Col 8s	102⅛	102¼	102½	— 1
5 Prov B A 7½s	97½	97½	97⅜	—
7 do 7s '36	96½	96½	96½	—
21 do 7s '52	94	93½	93⅞	—
6 Rep Peru 7½s	100½	100½	100½	—
13 Rom C Ch 6½s	92½	92	92	—

Some of the Papers Already Using Linotype Ionic No. 5

Evening World, New York City
The World, New York City
Evening Post, New York City
Courant, Hartford, Conn.
Journal, Providence, R. I.
Evening News, Newark, N. J.
Sunday Call, Newark, N. J.
Times, Los Angeles, Cal.
Post, Washington, D. C.
Sun, Scranton, Penna.
Union-Star, Schenectady, N. Y.
Union, New Haven, Conn.
Virginian-Pilot, Norfolk, Va.
Union, San Diego, Cal.
Evening Tribune, San Diego, Cal.
Toledo Times, Toledo, O.
News, Chattanooga, Tenn.
News, Oklahoma City, Okla.
Journal-Tribune, Knoxville, Tenn.
Staten Islander, Staten Island, N.Y.
Intelligencer, Lancaster, Penna.
Register, Torrington, Conn.
Leader, Springfield, Missouri
Advertiser-Gazette, Lafayette, La.
De Queen Bee, De Queen, Ark.
News, Prince Rupert, B. C.
Guardian-Journal, Homer, La.
Times-Recorder, Zanesville, O.
Register, Sandusky, O.
Youngstown Vindicator, Youngstown, Ohio
Leader, Lexington, Ky.
Press, Pontiac, Michigan
Star, Peoria, Illinois
Sentinel, Holland, Mich.
Times, Whitehall, Wis.
Altus (Okla.) Plain Dealer
New London (Connecticut) Day
Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock, Ark.
Register, Danville, Va.
News, Salem, Massachusetts
World-News, Roanoke, Va.
Republic, Yakima, Wash.
Commoner, Colfax, Wash.
Arizona Gazette, Phoenix, Arizona
Record, Park City, Utah
Province, Vancouver, B. C.
News, Parkersburg, W. Va.
Record, Haverhill, Mass.
Progress, Clairton, Penna.
Review, Bergenfield, N. J.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

LINOTYPE SET IN CLOISTER.

CHARLOTTE OBSERVER'S $500,000 PLANT READY FOR OCCUPANCY NEXT WEEK

Designed Solely for Newspaper's Operation, Building Provides Expansion for Many Years—Has Own Railroad Spur—Auditorium Seats 600 People

THE new home of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer will be occupied on an. 2, as soon as the Sunday issue comes rom the presses in the old building. It will be one of the most complete news- aper plants in the South. The building as been designed and constructed with n eye single to the economic and suc- essful conduct of the business it will ouse.

The location of the plant is on South 'ryon street, the principal thoroughfare f Charlotte. It runs back to a 17½ foot rivately owned alley, opening on a com- odious garage that will house a fleet f trucks that will be used in the circu- ation delivery. There is also an "L" in ie rear, which extends along the right- f-way of the Southern Railway, where a our track has been constructed for the eighting of supplies direct into the stor- ge rooms.

The building is of concrete and steel onstruction, three stories in height, and finished in Bedford stone. The sides re of light brick, trimmed with stone. ocated on a corner, and running along tonewall street on the north side, and ith a ten-foot easement on the south de, the plant will be assured light and ir on four sides.

The front office is constructed of natu- al mahogany. This work is being espe- ally done by a cabinet manufacturer. he counters will be finished in green ermont marble. The ceiling in this part the building is 22 feet from the floor. he main entrance will be into this of- e from South Tryon street. There will large lobby space for the accommoda- on of the public and ample room for the veral business departments.

The press room, located in the base- ent directly under the composing room, 19½ feet in height, and sufficiently mmodious to accommodate four octuple esses and a color press. A single tuple and a color press will be in- alled in the beginning. The plant is signed to take care of the growth of e business and the expansion of the per for many years to come.

The building is so arranged that car- er boys can enter from the side, obtain eir bills and settle with their own de- rtment without coming into contact or terfering with other departments. An sembly room is provided especially for e carrier boys. This compartment is by 60 feet in size.

The mailing room is 45 by 120 feet in ze, and is exposed to light and air on ree sides. There is storage room nple to take care of twenty cars of wsprint at a time. An ink storage om has been built so that it can be pecially heated in order to keep the k at even temperature in the winter ne.

News and editorial rooms will be lo- ted on the second floor, adjoining and ening into the composing room, which designed to accommodate 22 linotype achines in addition to monotype equip- ent. Extending the length of the build- g east and west, these departments can enlarged to take care of any expansion at may be necessitated by the growth the business.

A unique feature in a building of this nd in this section is a large and com- odious auditorium on the third floor, signed to seat comfortably 600 people. he auditorium will be provided with a age, and will be available for the free e of local organizations. It will be own as the Observer's Town Hall. It anticipated that the women particularly ill take advantage of this centrally lo- ted meeting place for the conduct of vic business.

The investment in the plant, together ith the real estate on which it is located, ill aggregate $500,000. Spacious vaults, ference and filing rooms have been in- cluded in the lay-out of the building. Nothing has been overlooked to make the arrangement of the building as convenient as possible for the quick and economic handling of a newspaper business.

Lockwood, Greene & Co. are the architects who designed the building. Construction work is under the supervision of J. A. Jones & Co., builders. Curtis B. Johnson is publisher of the Observer.

RIVAL PROPHET RILED WEATHER MAN

But Superior Telegram's Own Forecaster Did Not Violate Law Against Counterfeiting Uncle Sam's Announcements

By Gordon MacQuarrie,
City Editor, Superior (Wis.) Telegram

Editors, be careful about the way you handle Uncle Sam's remarks concerning the weather. If the spirit ever moves you to start some sort of an Old Weatherman daily weather prediction, first look up section 61 of the United States penal code of 1909, Act approved by the President March 3, 1905, regarding counterfeit weather forecasts.

The Superior (Wis.) Evening Telegram began an Old Weatherman feature early in November of this year, with the town patriarch, Harry Ashton, prognosticating. Everyone knows Harry. He's lived at the Head of the Lakes for more than 70 years. Well, Harry began predicting the weather, and we put him in a little box and after a while we ran a thumb-nail cut of him every day peering at the sky making weather medicine.

It got pretty good. Folks around the hotel where Harry works and joshes twitted him when he made the proper prediction and laughed him off when he failed. They began to compare his prediction with the one made by H. W. Richardson, United States meteorologist, who holds forth daily on top of the Duluth hill. I guess that made H. W. rather sore at first. Harry was kind of mad, too, giving out the impression that his professional dignity as a weather forecaster was being impaired by association, in mind, with Uncle Sam's man in Duluth.

We aren't sure, but we gather H. W. was not so pleased. We can imagine the grain brokers and mining men in Duluth calling him up on the phone and asking him about the weather, with a laughing reference or comparison with the current forecast as set forth by Harry Ashton. Plainly, the United States government and Harry were going to come to grips soon. They did—through the city editor of the Telegram.

H. W. started it by courteously pointing out that "it is the privilege of any newspaper to print anything it wishes, within reasonable and properly prescribed limits; but, under the circumstances, it appears to us that your publication of the 'Old Weatherman' forecasts is quite out of bounds, though certainly unintentional."

It was apparent that H. W. was a mite sore. His friends probably had rubbed it in rather hard. Anyway, we discontinued the Old Weatherman. Mr. Richardson had reported the matter to C. F. Marvin, Chief of the U. S. Weather Bureau at Washington, and he considered it quite fully. He pointed out that we were within the law, as we had not labeled the forecast as one of the United States Weather Bureau.

The Lawrence (Mass.) Eagle Tribune is offering talking dolls to all those obtaining three new six month subscriptions.

THE INDIANAPOLIS RADIUS

One of 1927's greatest selling opportunities

LOOK to the Indianapolis Radius in 1927. It is one of the bright spots on the salesmanager's map of the nation.

2,000,000 consumers, prosperous, progressive, intelligent, with uniformly high buying power and standards of living.

An agricultural area, where farmers are above the national average of prosperity because of the astounding fertility of their soil, the diversification of their crops, the nearness of the great consuming markets.

A highly organized industrial area, with hundreds of thousands of prosperous workers, profitably engaged in supplying the civilized world with the products of their industry.

An area where mines produce millions of new wealth annually.

A market knit together and unified by a transportation system that is unsurpassed in the United States, where consumers are highly accessible to retail outlets where goods are sold, and where the work of getting and holding distribution is simplified.

And finally—

A market that requires but one advertising cost, because one newspaper for 57 years has made the Indianapolis Radius think alike and buy alike—

THE INDIANAPOLIS NEWS

FRANK T. CARROLL, Advertising Director

NEW YORK
Dan A. Carroll
110 E. 42d St.

CHICAGO
J. E. Lutz
The Tower Bldg.

EDITORIAL

Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth!—James, III; 5.

DON MELLETT'S VICTORY

THE jury's verdict at Canton means that it was true, as charged by the late Don R. Mellett in the Canton Daily News, that an infamous league existed between skulking crime and pious officialdom, a conspiracy so foul, cruel and cowardly that it did not hesitate to hire a wretched pawn to drive steel through the heart and brain of the one citizen who dared openly to challenge its power.

The conviction of Patrick McDermott, the paid assassin of much worse people than he, takes its place as one of the notable incidents in the history of American journalism. It followed an expose, officially confirmed in a criminal court, of one of the worst failures of government ever recorded. Not only were the processes of the law impotent at Canton, but public servants were found to be the venal partners of a coterie of murderous crooks and prostitutes that snapped their fingers in the face of law, order and civic decency. But worse—worse—the big revelation concerned the cowardice of a supine public. Don Mellett knew only what hundreds and perhaps thousands of his fellow citizens knew. He alone had the red blood to stand out and call the bluff. And when fiends slaughtered him there were people in Canton who deplored, not this monstrous act, but the "bad name" Canton might get. Sometimes the heart sinks as a stone in contemplation of a type of American, insensible to emotion when the cause is impersonal and altruistic—the greedy and small-souled hushers and slushers we all come to know in our travels.

Through the sacrifice of the brave young editor's blood the fair name of Canton has been redeemed. That is what has happened. The conviction of McDermott is a social and political vindication. It is notice to the world that justice still sits her throne at Canton. A man and his family may now live there in safety and decency. "Decency and the law will rule here, hereafter," said an editorial in the Canton News of last Sunday. "It was to establish such conduct, to make clean the city he loved, to break the unholy alliance between the sworn officers of the law and criminals, that Don Mellett fought, and fighting for which he lost his life. * * * The work is going through to completion; and at its completion justice will be done."

In the same issue of the News we find a news story of remarkable significance. It gives the annual police reports and these show that whereas ten homicides occurred in Canton in the first seven months of 1926, no one has been murdered since July 16, when Don Mellett was assassinated. So he died that others might live.

Don R. Mellett's name must not pass from view in American journalism. In what way do the readers of this newspaper believe his heroism may best be preserved for posterity? Editor & Publisher will be glad to publish suggestions. Will it be a monument, tablet at some national shrine, chair at some university, a journalism course in his name at some school? What shall it be? Don Mellett was a true martyr and his name should not vanish, but live to inspire youth in journalism.

Newspaper advertising permits of a gradual, well-regulated, section-by-section coverage of the general field, concurrent with distribution, on terms within the easy reach of any concern qualified to do a general distribution business.

PURE CHARITY

THE power and influence of the newspaper has never been better illustrated than in the annual appeal conducted by the New York Times for the poor and needy. This appeal, strictly confined to the printed word appearing in the newspaper's columns, this year brought a response of over $270,000 from more than 12,000 contributors. It was the fifteenth annual appeal to readers and nearly two million dollars is the aggregate sum secured from these appeals, growing from $3,000 in 1912 to over $270,000 in 1926.

The Times declined hundreds of offers to augment the fund by canvassing, in person or by mail, by benefit performances, contributions of handiwork, or by other means usually employed to raise public funds, because the fundamental idea was that the contribution should represent the spirit of charity, pure and unalloyed. Such charity, of course, makes the giver the chief beneficiary. The 12,000 voluntary contributors who, within two weeks' time, donated more than a quarter of a million dollars, included men and women of wealth, and those who possessed only the meager necessities of life.

The appeal, confined strictly to the columns of the paper, was dignified and convincing and free from hysteria or "sob-sister" harrowing of the feelings of readers. The stories of the neediest cases were simple, unvarnished tales of misfortune and want. To one of the ablest men on the staff was assigned the task of telling the daily progress of the appeal, while the editorial and special feature sections of the Sunday paper elaborated and interpreted the work. This was done for three weeks, being given liberal space as required.

Here is an object lesson for schools of journalism—the why and wherefor of this success, and how a newspaper can further the public interest, and have the satisfaction of a good deed well done.

Sales engineer of the Central Radio Laboratories of Milwaukee says to newspaper editors: "Our advertising schedule for the new year will be based somewhat on the consideration given our publicity articles." Not if all editors treat free publicity as advertising in 1927.

GLIMPSING 1927

DURING the week Editor & Publisher has interviewed a number of men whose names carry genuine significance to the newspaper and advertising circle in reference to the business prospect of the new year. The consensus of opinion seems to be that, while it is hardly to be hoped that the phenomenal commercial records of 1926 can be equalled or excelled, there is no doubt that 1927 will be one of the banner years in the history of American trade.

So great has been trade abundance in the past twelvemonth that even the leaders of industry seem awed by it, but it is ever thus. We recall the predictions that were made a year ago. Few then were willing to prophesy that 1926 would equal 1925.

Aside from the automobile industry, whose problems are very special to itself, there is no sign on the commercial horizon of a business recession. On the contrary, if advertising is a true barometer, we are sailing out of December into January on an even keel. There is no visible fundamental difficulty and there are many magnificent promises, best of all being a rapidly settling situation in world economics.

We in America have the materials, the genius, the will to work, and we have developed a great love of comfort. These are motives for continued prosperity. Pessimism at this time to us seems a mockery. At least we shall not be talked out of good times. When a Gloomy Gus comes your way make him answer the simple question: Why?

Consistency, thou art so often a paste jewel.

REPLY TO MR. STELZLE

WE are pleased to publish in another column Rev. Charles Stelzle's protest against our views expressed in last week's Editor & Publisher concerning the religious "census" recently conducted through newspapers at the request of the Church Advertising Department of the International Advertising Association. Mr. Stelzle confirms our belief that this enterprise was not a "census," but an evangelical revival. Naturally, the clergymen who favored this idea could see nothing amiss and much to gain by getting newspapers to print, day after day, on first pages, that list of soul-searching questions. It is their business in life to spread the Gospel. We honor them for their enterprise. Editor & Publisher's remarks were not addressed to clergymen, but to newspaper men. Our references were not to the duties of professional religious propagandists, but to ethical newspaper editors.

Mr. Stelzle thinks that because 150 or more editors published the questionnaire our objections are automatically answered, but 150 or more editors of daily newspapers do not do our thinking for us, but rather read Editor & Publisher for independent views.

We believe that some of these editors actually regarded the questionnaire as clever propaganda, rather than the "census" it pretended to be. Mr. Stelzle quotes one as saying: "Never has this community been so stirred religiously in many years." Editor & Publisher asks by what right this editor, or the editor of any newspaper circulating among all classes of people, has to use a paper's new columns to stir the religious emotions of his community by covert means. Since when have newspapers become revivalists, particularly in the guise of census takers? It is understandable why clergymen should think this good editorship. To our journalistic view it was bad editorship, the fault being aggravated by the mixture of "news," "advertising" and "religious propaganda."

Editor & Publisher does sincerely question the value of the "statistics." We were not far afield in the surmise that this insignificant poll of newspaper readers would be used by "statisticians of the church" to show particular results. It is simply amazing that 125,000 votes, polled by 153 newspapers, are to be taken to mean such things as "a terrific indictment of the Church," the opposite, or anything else. Mr. Stelzle says President Coolidge was elected by about 25 per cent of the eligible voters of the United States, but he surely does not want us to believe this is on all fours with an "indictment of the church" by a vote of 125,000 unknown persons among the millions of readers of 153 dailies. There are minorities that mean something, and minorities that mean nothing. This one means nothing. Regretting that we cannot go along with our good friends in this matter we can only reassert that this propaganda, however high the motive, is not in our picture of what a newspaper of general circulation has any right to do.

That a gnat strained and broke a camel's neck, is what we get out of Mr. Calkins' turgid essay in the current issue of Atlantic Monthly.

ADVERTISER BOYCOTT

WHAT is it when an association of local merchants, representing the majority of the advertisers of a community, withdraws the right of a local newspaper to solicit advertising among its members as a penalty for the editor's refusal to withdraw a political policy?

Is that blackmail?

Is it a conspiracy to restrain an individual in the performance of a constitutional right?

We believe the answer to these questions is yes and hope the day will come when the issue will have a thorough test in the courts.

Interest in these matters springs from an account written for Editor & Publisher this week, of the almost unbelievable fight of the editor of the Tucson (Ariz.) Independent for the right to take a stand in reference to the conduct of the state university. Mr. Wright, who gives the account, is vouched for by Mr. Upshaw, editor of the Independent, as a reporter who has worked for all three of the daily papers in Tucson and who in his Editor & Publisher story has sought to give a dispassionate summary of the bitter controversy. If the facts as related are accurate we agree that this is a rare instance of insolent advertiser boycott. When an editor is making this fight he is battling for the first principles of American journalism. More power to his elbow!

In 1927 drive home to general advertisers the great fact that the newspaper actually—not theoretically—links buyer and seller.

PERSONAL

OBERT BELL, president of the Press
Congress of the world, who is mak-a world tour, is at present in Southern ain. He intends proceeding on a ise of the Mediterranean from Gibralto Constantinople, and thence back to braltar, stopping at many ports en ute.

A. J. Crim, editor of the Plainville ll.) News has been seriously ill the sult of lead poisoning. His condition the last few days shows some improve-nt.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

UDLEY B. MARTIN, formerly in the business office of the New York
mes is now on the news staff of the ooklyn Daily Eagle.

Miss Florence Greiser, R. R. Williams,
ifford Horkheimer and W. E. Church ve been added to the staff of the iami Daily News Rotogravure depart-
nt.

Edward L. Hill, formerly assistant to president of the St. Louis Globe- mocrat, has become connected with national sales department of the Gen-al Outdoor Advertising Company, Chigo.

George C. Blohm has been placed in arge of the advertising office which Chicago Tribune recently opened in lanta, Ga. Mr. Blohm joined the ibune four years ago and was for two ars manager of its Miami office.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

OHN BALL, veteran political writer of the Pittsburgh Post, is confined to home by illness.

Kenneth S. Conn, for nearly five years orting editor of the South Bend Tri- ne, recently joined the sports staff of Cleveland (O.) Press. Before leav-South Bend he was guest of honor at informal luncheon given by 15 of his sociates on the Tribune.

William Noel, formerly of the Cairo ll.) Bulletin, is now writing his column
"Sidewalk Chatter" on the Metropolis ll.) Daily News.

Jeffrey Heiman has been appointed as-ciate editor of the Seattle (Wash.)
wish Transcript.

Norman E. Isaacs, formerly of the orts department and assistant news reau manager of the Indianapolis Star, s succeeded Vedder Gard as assistant orts editor of the Indianapolis Times.
r. Gard becomes editor of the In-na Bell Telephone publication.

J. C. Watson, former editor of the mesa (Tex.) Dawson County Journal, s joined the Abilene Chamber of Comrce as assistant secretary.

Ivan L. ReVeal, formerly of the Dan- le (Ill.) Commercial News, but who s been in the automobile business for past three years, has joined the staff
the Cairo (Ills.) Morning Bulletin.

John B. Jones, telegraph editor of the okane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review, s been appointed instructor in the hool of Journalism, University of ashington.

Leonard Pierson of Indianapolis has ned the Indianapolis Times as market tor.

Johnny McGovern, named on the All-nerican football teams in 1909, has n named sports editor of the Minne- olis (Minn.) Journal succeeding Harry Kanna.

Russell F. Boyd, of the Montreal
r editorial staff, has returned to Lonn, Ont., to continue newspaper work.

Melvin Roach has joined the sports partment of the Indianapolis Star.

H. H. Walker, city editor, Salt Lake
y Deseret News, has been selected as member of the citizens' advisory com-tee Argonne Chapter No. 2, Disabled erican War Veterans.

John W. George, formerly news edi-of the Newark (N. J.) Ledger, has joined the business staff of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mark A. Shields, former member of the Spokane Daily Chronicle staff and for several years connected with other coast papers, has been named secretary to Governor Roland Hartley of Washington.

Anders Schon, editor of Swedish news for the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram, is off duty seriously ill.

Harry Moore, until recently on the San Antonio Evening News staff, has become editor of Alcalde, University of Texas alumni, monthly publication, at Austin.

George Harris, news editor of the Lima, (O.) Morning Star, has just returned to his desk after two weeks vacation.

Tiffany Blake, editorial writer for the Chicago Tribune, recently left for a three weeks' vacation.

Thomas Wren, labor editor of the Chicago Tribune, was recently sworn in as a lieutenant in the United States Naval Reserve, Chicago.

Earl Wheeler of the Minneapolis (Minn.) Tribune night copy desk and Mrs. Wheeler spent the Christmas holidays with his parents in Sioux City, Ia.

A. E. McGinley is now assistant city editor of the Winnipeg (Man.) Tribune.

Dan Goodman, former automobile editor of the Indianapolis Star, has returned to that post and Corbin Patrick, automobile editor, has been transferred to the sports department.

Frank Hicks is now city editor of the Lima (O.) Morning Star. He was formerly managing editor of the Logansport (Ind.) Morning Press but went to the Lima News last July on the copy desk.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

NEWTON (Ia.) DAILY NEWS, 144-page special edition celebrating the opening of new Hotel Maytag, Dec. 18.

San Diego (Cal.) Union, 124-page Christmas edition, Dec. 12.

Washington (N. C.) Daily News, a special Christmas edition, Dec. 22.

Missoula (Mont.) Daily Missoulian, 92-page special agricultural edition, with rotogravure section, Dec. 19.

Anacortes (Wash.) American, 32-page industrial holiday edition, Dec. 16.

Salt Lake City Deseret News, Christmas News Annual, Dec. 18.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

WILL CHAMBERS, from editorial writer, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, to staff, Indianapolis Times.

James Mullen, from court reporter, Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union, to city staff, Worcester (Mass.) Gazette.

Eugene Powell, from Louisville Courier-Journal, to editorial staff, Indianapolis Times.

Lee Reynolds, from reportorial staff, Washington (N. C.) Daily News to city editor, same paper.

P. T. Little, from editorial staff, Belleville (Ont.) Intelligencer to staff, Oshawa (Ont.) Daily Reformer.

Morris Young, from Milwaukee Journal, to Federal building reporter, Indianapolis Times.

Reginald Doubt, from staff, Oshawa (Ont.) Daily Reformer, to suburban news department of the Toronto Daily Star.

A. R. Carman, from reporter, Oshawa (Ont.) Daily Reformer to staff, Toronto (Ont.) Monetary Times.

W. L. Toms, from staff, Indianapolis Times, to staff, Indianapolis News.

(Continued on page 32)

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

RUSSEL CROUSE is conducting a new column for the New York Evening Post, called "Left at the Post." Jay E. House who writes "On Second Thought" for the Curtis newspapers is now on vacation and that column has temporarily been discontinued.

RUSSEL CROUSE

Mr. Crouse for more than years has been writing "This Enchanted Isle" for the Post, using the nom de plume of Mann Hatton. He joined the Post staff shortly after it was purchased by Cyrus H. K. Curtis in Jan. 1924. Prior to that he had been connected with the New York Globe and the New York Mail.

Greetings to the latest member of the New York club of "colyumists" were penned by Franklin P. Adams in the "Conning Tower" of the New York World of Dec. 24 under the caption: "Aged Wit, in Fine Poem, Lauds New Post Star." The "fine poem" read:

"'Tis the day before Christmas when all through the house

"Not a creature that wasn't delighted about the Evening Post's new column written by Russel Crouse."

Mr. Crouse began newspaper work on the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune. He has also been connected with the Cincinnati Post and the Kansas City Star. Mrs. Crouse (Allison Smith) conducts two dramatic columns for the New York World, under the headings of "Cast and Forecast" and "In the Order of Their Appearance."

Another New Feature for Central Press Clients

We are about to begin releasing to all of our regular full service clients a daily six-column comic strip by V. E. Pazmino: "The Figgers Family." The household includes Father, Mother, pretty daughter, and lively 13-year-old son. The comic is well-drawn and the humor has the sure touch so much desired in comics of this character.

Central Press service has never offered so many bright features before. Start the New Year right by using it.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — FARRIS A. FLINT, Manager

To the 832* different publications on our books,

To all newspapers, generally,

Happy New Year

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau Street, New York City

*Note—It was to 730 different publications that we extended greetings for 1926. For 1925 it was 622.

(Continued from page 31)

Leland Decker, from sports department to copydesk, Indianapolis Star. William P. Lindley, from assistant city editor, Indianapolis Times, to rewrite man, Denver News.

Jepson Cadou, from city hall beat to city copy desk, Indianapolis Times,

Gerald L. Hogan, from news editor on the Oshawa (Ont.) Telegram, to editorial staff, Regina (Sask.) Leader.

James Derby, from telegraph editor, Logansport (Ind.) Morning Press to copy desk, Lima (O.) Morning Star.

George Rutherfort, from city editor, Lima (O.) Morning Star, to copy desk, New York Journal.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

O. H. BARBER, former editor of the Tonasket (Wash.) Times, has purchased the Wilbur (Wash.) Register from Howard Spining. Mr. Spining will go to California.

After more than sixteen years as president, treasurer and editor of the Colville (Wash.) Statesman-Index, Alonzo Melville Doty recently sold his interest to H. E. Vilwock and E. A. Sperry.

W. L. Turner has sold the Madisonville (Tex.) Meteor to J. A. Knight, editor of the Henderson Times. M. J. Webb takes charge of the Meteor.

W. J. Casey, for 45 years of the Knoxville (Ia.) Express, has purchased the two-thirds interest of his partner, J. M. Weaver, associated with him in the paper the last 11 years. The transfer, which involved about $30,000 becomes effective Jan. 1.

Sullivan (Ill.) Herald, a weekly owned and edited by I. J. Martin and established 39 years ago, was sold Dec. 21 to the Sullivan Progress and Moultrie County News. The Herald published its last issue on Dec. 24, 1926. It was founded by W. T. McClure.

MARRIED

FRANCIS P. DOUGLAS, city editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, to Miss Betty Johnson in the home of the bride in Springfield, Mo., Dec. 27.

Ed Le Coq, cartoonist, Des Moines (Ia.) Register-Tribune, to Miss Edith Sedrel, in Denver, Col., Dec. 20.

ON THE MECHANICAL SIDE

HERBERT J. BLATZ, for 16 years a printer with the Indianapolis Times, has been named foreman of the composing room, succeeding P. A. Graffort, who recently resigned because of illness.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

LLOYD JEFFERSON GREGORY has been appointed acting Associated Press correspondent at Austin, Tex., succeeding C. B. Dickson, transferred to Dallas.

Leslie E. Claypool, of San Francisco, will replace E. L. Powell, Associated Press correspondent at Manila, P. I., effective Jan. 3. Mr. Powell is retiring from newspaper work.

Lewis B. Sebring has been named acting correspondent for the Associated Press at Buffalo, N. Y., succeeding John Hill, transferred to Buffalo.

H. P. Howard has been transferred from Pierre S. D., to the Chicago office of the Associated Press. He has been succeeded in Pierre by Glenn M. Brill.

Harold Turnblad, formerly of the San Francisco office of the Associated Press, has been transferred to Seattle, replacing Abram W. Smith, resigned.

H. R. Elkins left New York this week to open a new United Press bureau in Honolulu. He has been two years with the New York office of the U. P., and has also been connected with the Hartford Courant and the old New York Herald.

Ed Keene, general European manager of the United Press, has returned to London headquarters from an inspection trip to Rome, Milan, Florence, Genoa, Zurich, Berlin and Paris.

Pedro La Grava has been transferred from the London staff to the Madrid office of the United Press.

ASSOCIATIONS

NORTH DAKOTA PRESS ASSOCIATION will hold its convention Jan. 14 and 15 at Bismarck.

A special bus has been chartered to carry editors from Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., to Grand Rapids, Minn., for the convention of the NORTHERN MINNESOTA EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION which is to be held Jan. 20, 21 and 22.

WASHINGTON STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION members will meet at Kirkland, Wash, Jan. 10th.

ADVERTISING CLUB OF BOSTON (Mass.) acted as host to 1,000 children at a Christmas tree party at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston, Christmas Day.

H. K. Hambly was in charge of the Christmas frolic of the PITTSBURGH PRESS CLUB where children of the members were entertained. The affair was held in the club rooms and toys and candy were distributed. A buffet luncheon was served. Grafton Duvall is president.

Governor and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania will entertain at dinner at the Executive Mansion, in Harrisburg, on Jan. 5, the members of the PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATIVE CORRESPONDENTS ASSOCIATION.

B. Arp Lowrance, field secretary of the NORTH CAROLINA PRESS ASSOCIATION, met with the publishers of the western district at Asheville recently, for the purpose of promoting the Newspaper Institute to be held by the Association at the University of North Carolina, at Chapel Hill, in January, and to announce plans for the organization of the state into districts. There will probably be eight of these districts.

BUFFALO BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU has elected these officers for 1927: President, Frank B. Baird; vice-president, Lewis G. Harriman; treasurer, J. F. Schoellkopf, Jr.; directors, Emanuel Boasberg, Edward H. Butler, Edward L. Hengerer, Albert L. Kinsey, Elliott C. McDougal, Robert W. Pomeroy, J. F. Schoellkopf, Jr., and James E. Wilson.

OREGON NEWSPAPER CONFERENCE has selected a book entitled, "Education and the State" by the late Dr. P. L. Campbell, president of the University of Oregon, to be the first volume published by the John Henry Nash fine arts press. The press was established last March by the Oregon Newspaper conference for the purpose of promoting artistic printing and is made possible by contributions from Oregon newspapers.

Members of the PEORIA (Ill.) AD CLUB were "newsies" the afternoon of Dec. 22, selling papers in a snowstorm for benefit of the Empty Stocking fund of the Peoria Star, the Journal's Red Stocking fund and the Transcript's Goodfellow club. Rivalry between the two afternoon newsies forces raised nearly $200 for the charities funds.

PRINTER APPRENTICES OF INDIANAPOLIS, an organization under the jurisdiction of Typographical Union No. 1, have elected their new officers as follows: Walter Streit, president; Pierce E. Cummings, vice-president; Harry S. Snyder, secretary, and William McClellan, treasurer.

SCHOOLS

A NEW course in the business management of newspapers will be added to the curriculum of the journalism department at Rutgers University, it has been announced by Professor Allen S. Will, head of the department. The course will be elective, and will include six hours a week in the junior and senior years. Business management and newspaper circulation methods will be studied in the junior year, while the senior year will be given over to the writing and development of advertising.

The Parthenon, student publication at Marshall College, Huntington, was selected by the West Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association meeting at Montgomery this week as the best college paper in the state. J. R. Haworth, of the Huntington Advertiser reportorial staff, was instructor of the class in Journalism at Marshall College and supervised publication of the Parthenon in addition to his newspaper work.

The Daily Maroon, student newspaper at the University of Chicago, recently published a sixty-page special edition, with rotogravure and magazine sections. Among the contributors were Christopher Morley, novelist; Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House; Senator Arthur R. Robinson, of Indiana; President Max Mason of the University of Chicago, and Eddie Cantor, stage and screen comedian. Mrs. Coolidge and Premier Mussolini and the Prince of Wales had been invited to contribute, but sent their regrets. The editorial end of the paper was managed by Walter Williams of Chicago, editor, and the business end by Milton Kreines of Ogden, Utah, student business manager.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

WITH W. K. Barrett, former owner and editor of the Van Nuys (Cal.) Daily Leader, as owner and editor of the Verduga City (Cal.) Tribune, a tabloid weekly, made its first appearance on Dec. 14. Beth A. Barrett is business manager.

Panhandle (Tex.) News, with W. J. Miller in charge, is a new weekly.

AD STAFF TO MEET

The semi-annual meeting of the advertising departments of the Chicago Tribune will be held Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 3-4. Representatives will be gathered from all over the United States. Monday the usual departmental meetings will be held in the Tribune Tower while Tuesday's gathering will be at the Drake Hotel. A banquet at the Drake Tuesday evening will conclude the program.

FLASHES

Much that passes for "personality" was formerly known as "gall."—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

The divorce mills have to manufacture their product from some very raw material.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

Yes, one of the poorest ways to get out of an automobile is through the windshield.—Boston Globe.

It seems the Texas co-ed bandit stuck because she had a husband to support. That ought to be good for a pardon from "Ma" Ferguson.—Chicago News.

Election news in the future may state that the candidate carried the State by so many dollars instead of votes.—Wall Street Journal.

Siam is rejoicing over the birth of a brand-new white elephant, which is considered a divine indorsement of the present king's administration. Siam is luckier than our G. O. P., which has to keep whitewashing the same old elephant.—Chicago Tribune.

A cynic says that double jeopardy, which we hear so much of nowadays, is when your doctor calls in a consulting physician.—Detroit News.

If we now had a law making it treason to be a Democrat we should have a one-party country on the Mussolini model.—Springfield Republican.

Modern educational process has greatly simplified the three R's—from readin' 'riting and 'rithmetic to rah, rah, rah.—Tampa Tribune.

Man: An animal with sufficient intelligence to defend his meanness.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

KANGO!

Wishes

A Happy New Year To All

KANGO is entering the New Year by leaps and bounds, carrying circulation on to record figures in 1927.

LET KANGO LEAP FOR YOU!

Write us for details.

The Marel Toy Producing Company

(Makers of Joytown Toys)

122 Fifth Avenue New York

Composed on the Intertype in Intertype Garamond and Cloister Bold

. . . . . Ask Your Machinist!

YOUR own mechanical expert probably knows a good deal about the Intertype composing machine. He has doubtless either worked on Intertypes himself, or seen them in operation, or talked with other machinists who know all about them.

But whether or not he is already familiar with Intertypes, your own expert will endorse them if given an opportunity to find out all the facts. It has happened time and time again.

CALL IN your man who knows machinery and tell him to write for Intertype literature. Tell him to take time off and visit a few plants where they are using Intertypes. Let him hear the Intertype salesman's story. Then ask for HIS opinion of the Intertype.

Intertype has many features which appeal to the initiated — features which save time, prevent interruptions, reduce costs.....Let your own expert explain these features to you.

INVESTIGATE THE INTERTYPE

Standardized

INTERTYPE

INTERTYPE CORPORATION: New York 1440 Broadway; Chicago 130 N. Franklin St.; Memphis McCall Bldg.; San Francisco 560 Howard St.; Los Angeles 1240 S. Main St.; Boston 80 Federal St. London Intertype Ltd.; Berlin Intertype Setzmaschinen, g.m.b.h.

NOVEL METHOD USED TO INTRODUCE AMERICAN COMIC IN CHILEAN CITY

"Jiggs" Promoted as "Don Fausto" Relative of Mythical Don Lucas Gomez to Overcome National Antipathy to American Humor—Huge Gift Lottery Held

By DAVID WORRALL

THE first successful introduction of an American comic strip into a South American country makes an entertaining newspaper story and explains somewhat why so many American "funnies" have succeeded in other countries.

Most humor is not regarded as international and there does not seem one reason in the world why the people of South America should accept as a local character such a distinctly North American character as ex-bricklayer Jiggs. Yet, because of the clever way he was introduced, Mr. Jiggs became a riot in Chile and the paper which "put him over" made a killing with him. The newspaper trebled its circulation solely because of the introduction of the American comic strip; it made more net profit in one year than its entire capital, sent its rival newspaper into bankruptcy and created a wave of enthusiasm and amusement throughout Chile.

"Bringing up Father" was the first American comic to be introduced into South America and its prevailing theme is so utterly alien to the ideas of Spanish people that it did not seem to have the least chance of success.

Every nation of Spanish origin insists on the dominance of the male and a man who would stay with a wife who ruled him would be held up to ridicule and shame to a far greater extent than in any English speaking country. How then could any South American feel amusement at a feature that held a man up to ridicule because of the tyranny of his wife, and how was it possible to feel any sympathy for him?

The feature was first introduced in Buenos Aires and a little later, about two years ago, in Santiago, the capital of Chile. In both instances nearly a year passed before the comic established any pulling power. When it was introduced in Santiago the staff of tiny El Mercurio down in Antofogasta, thought the Santiago newspaper was crazy. When the managing editor of their own paper announced that he had been offered it at a very cheap rate he was inundated with hostile criticisms. He made the announcement at 1 A. M. at the usual meagre newspaper office supper of coffee and sandwiches when the work of the evening had been done.

The scene in that office is best described by Garcia Pelaez, then foreign editor of El Mercurio.

"Poor Mr. Jiggs at once received a lot of sarcastic remarks and jokes on the ground that he was an unfortunate fellow without adequate energy to deal with his wife. They said he did not deserve the least attention. Somebody said that Jiggs and his wife were a shame to the male portion of the human race and that the Spanish speaking readers never could give their support to a newspaper pointing daily jokes hurting the male dignity and respectability so traditional and so strong in Chile. Another said that the success of the Jiggs family in the United States was due to the reason that North Americans were more accustomed to being dominated and controlled by their wives. Furthermore somebody else commented that Mr. Jiggs had all the disadvantages of the unfair sex but not its virile virtues while Mrs. Jiggs belonged only theoretically to the fair sex being really unfair in all the possible meanings of this word.

"But I said, 'be patient. Perhaps Mr. Jiggs may pay us good dividends. Let me show you that perhaps if we use North American methods of advertising we can cause this North American personage to provide us with more adequate suppers when we meet after our work is done.

"'Let me do this. It will mean a heavy additional task for me but I am not going to ask for an increase in salary but an increase in the volume of the meagre suppers that we receive every day from the newspaper, and for more frequent sandwich and wine that to-day we have only in the big days of the year.'

"So, naturally, they listened to me.

"'Give me a full page every day,' I said, 'and I will give you something worth while.'

"The managing editor took interest in the question and asked for a full report on the matter.

"As was in the old days with the egg of Cristobal Colon, the discoverer of America, the idea was as simple as it was adequate to the psychology of the South American people.

"In Chile there is a legendary figure known as Don Lucas Gomez who receives attention in stories, dramas and popular fables, besides many many jokes. He was a poor country man who came to town bearing a basket of gifts for his rich relatives but they were ashamed of him and 'high-hatted' him.

"Also in Chile everyone is crazy about lotteries; for instance at Christmas every person who can afford it takes a ticket in the Argentine government lottery of one million pesos.

"So I wished to link Mr. Jiggs with these two ideas. First of all I wrote two introductory articles saying that very soon would arrive in Antofogasta a new and wealthy personage who, however, was an old and intimate friend of Don Lucas. This newcomer, whose name was Don Fausto, was a hick from the country and, just like Don Lucas, would bring gifts in a basket. These gifts would be for his friends, the readers of 'El Mercurio.' However, Don Fausto could not bring with him from the country butter and eggs, chickens and pot pies, etc., as countrymen used to do, because his wife, Donna Crisanta, as a 'new rich' thought those things inadequate to their new social aspirations, and for that reason Don Fausto would buy in the famous and honest house of exchange of my brother twenty gold pieces of five dollars to be hung on the chains of the watches of his friends, the readers of El Mercurio, for which purpose they were very adequate; ten tickets for the Christmas draw of one million pesos of the National lottery to be bought in the fortunate house of a local agent; one typewriter machine of a renowned North American trademark, the best in the world; one camera of the famous concern of ————; one set of radio receivers; one dozen of women's hats; two dozen shoes, two dozen of popular trousers; a fat calf to be sacrificed for Christmas; ten cases of wine, and many other things.

"All these things were got free from the local merchants in exchange for mentioning their names every day in the daily articles about Mr. Jiggs and the big draw of gifts that he would give at Christmas to every reader that wished to cut a coupon printed on the same page and exchanged five coupons for one ticket for that big Christmas draw.

"During ninety days in addition to the articles written daily about the draw the newspaper's humorous writer wrote stories about Mr. Jiggs, his past relations with his wife, his friendship with Don Lucas, and so on. Since it was necessary to explain why he still lived with such a wife I invented a story about this matter. I explained that they had been very poor and that Mr. Jiggs had had to work very hard until Mrs. Jiggs inherited a fortune of four million dollars from her Uncle in Australia. Naturally he did not wish to go back to hard work and thus bore patiently with the tantrums of his wife.

"Immediately the people of Antofogasta became strong for Mr. Jiggs, who was so generous with his gifts. They also thought it was an admirable and Chilean characteristic of Mr. Jiggs that he looked so much at the pretty girls and for that they thought he was a manly fellow even if he did stay with his terrible wife."

The thing succeeded beyond all belief. The circulation of the newspaper jumped from 5,500 to 10,500 in three months and in nine months more to 17,500, a remarkable figure for a South American town of 60,000 people. Not only that, but to this day the circulation stays somewhere around 15,000.

And, as Garcia naively says, "what was more pleasant to the staff of El Mercurio was that a few months later, because of the popularity of Mr. Jiggs, the other morning paper went into bankruptcy, leaving them without competition."

Coupons poured in from everywhere and a staff of clerks had to be kept to count them and answer the letters. About one million coupons were exchanged for 200,000 tickets in the lottery and the people became so excited about "Don Fausto" that the thing attained national prominence. When the lottery was drawn there was an attendance of 3,000 people.

Every comic strip meant work for Garcia. Often the words were no use and had to be thrown over for something new. "For, as you know," Garcia says, "sometimes the jokes of Mr. Jiggs are very sad jokes and we had to invent others."

The staff of El Mercurio got its due reward. As Garcia had promised, the suppers provided by the newspaper immediately became "more adequate." They had wine and ham every night for supper. Their friends who dropped in to chat after the rush of work was over, stayed and participated. Theatrical stars, especially the more attractive ladies, were invited to eat and to sing and the suppers in the reporters' room of the newspaper became famous. Anyone awake at one a. m. began to make a point of dropping in for supper and these Bohemian pastimes in the little newspaper often lasted until six a. m.

One of the reasons for the popularity of these suppers was that the good things were ordered by the managing editor, who had been elected by the staff to this honorable position. "He was a gourmet," says Garcia, "and naturally he was very well informed about the best things to eat. Also the Chilean wines are very good indeed and naturally he was very well informed about these."

"Don Fausto" was always toasted at these suppers, and especially at the big suppers held twice a year in his honor. It was profits from "Don Fausto" that painted the building and installed new improvements, raised every good man's salary, and finally, provided enough to give Garcia, the planner of the stunt, a trip to study the country from which "Don Fausto" originated.

A. N. A. COMMITTEE TO MEET

Executive Body Plan to Widen Scope of Business Papers Group

Plans to widen the scope of the business papers committee of the Association of National Advertisers will be formulated at the next meeting of the executive committee to be held in New York Jan. 13. A. N. A. intends to pay more attention to all phases of industrial advertising than it has in the past, it was announced this week at headquarters.

Headquarters office also announced the reappointment of Verne Burnett, General Motors Corporation, as chairman of the newspaper committee, and W. Russel Green, Charles Hires Company, Philadelphia, as chairman of the substitution committee.

JOINS NATION'S BUSINESS

Stanley W. Bogert, for the past few years in charge of the business section of the Philadelphia Public Ledger has joined the Nation's Business.

GIRL WINS LIBEL ACTION

A jury in supreme court at Buffalo N. Y., awarded Miss Victoria Strzep $4,000 in her libel action against the Polish Daily News of that city. Suit was filed for $15,000.

HEADS SPRINGFIELD TYPOS

Charles P. Hughes, of Springfield (Mass.) Daily News, has been elected president of Springfield Typographical Union, No. 216. A practically complete change of officers was made, those retiring having been virtually all employes of Springfield Union, while the incoming administration is made up of employes of Springfield Daily News and Republican, all members of the combined Springfield newspapers.

Ludlow Slugs Stand Up Under Dry Mat Pressure

AN enthusiastic Ludlow user recently wrote: "We use the dry mat process for stereotyping and have had excellent results from that department because Ludlow slugs stand up under dry mat pressure.

"One box head, 8-columns wide set in 48-point, slugs for which were used on our Market and Financial Page in every issue of our paper for eleven months and seventeen days, withstood dry mat pressure without a make-over."

Ludlow-equipped users of dry mats know from experience that Ludlow slugs do stand up under dry mat rolling-in machine pressure.

Ludlow Typograph Company

2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

Boston: Harbor Bldg., 470 Atlantic Ave. Atlanta: Palmer Bldg., 41 Marietta St.
New York: World Bldg., 63 Park Row San Francisco Hearst Bldg., 5 Third St.

LUDLOW QUALITY SLUG COMPOSITION

Unusual in newspaper field to find competitors cooperating this way—to sell your goods

This Association is composed of 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers.

Combined circulation 571,151
Families in Iowa 550,000

Read below of merchandising help given by each of these individual publications.

HERE is the way to blanket Iowa most effectively—with the favorite reading material of Iowa people—their own daily newspapers.

Of course other publications are read in Iowa. Some people read one and some read another.

But no matter what else they read, the common denominator of all people in this great market is the daily newspaper.

The same paper is read by the progressive Iowa farmer and by his city neighbor. For they really are neighbors these days.

The automobile has placed the average Iowa farmer within a few minutes' ride of his shopping district. Closer in point of time than are many dwellers in large cities and their suburbs.

UNIFORM MERCHANDISING HELP

The following definite help is pledged by each of these newspapers in connection with any campaign using 5,000 lines or more.

1. Make a study of local market and trade territory, as pertains to your specific product.
2. Supply complete and accurate list of retailers, in the newspaper's city and surrounding territory.
3. Introduce your salesmen to a number of big retailers. Advise you as to relative sales standing of competing products.
4. Urge retailers to feature displays of nationally advertised products. Furnish you with names of stores that will make use of window displays.
5. Make market investigation for prospective advertisers. (Identity to be made known first.)
6. Urge local retailers to mention your products in their own advertisements.
7. Send, on receipt of contract, a multigraphed letter to list of retailers in the territory, telling of the campaign.

Deal with this group as with one publication, if you wish. One order, one plate, one billing. For further information, write to address below.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Sunday Newspaper Space Being Used to Sell Skates—Graybar Electric Company Celebrates First Birthday—Ice Cream Drive Started on Pacific Coast

FULL page and half-page advertisements in Sunday newspapers and comic sections in northern sections are being used by the Nestor Johnson Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of Nestor Johnson North Star Skates. This advertising started in December and will continue through January and February where skating is good. The account is placed by the Chicago office of the William H. Rankin Company.

The Graybar Electric Company celebrated its first birthday under its new name with a luncheon at the Hotel Commodore, New York, Dec. 29. It was formerly the supply department of the Western Electric Company. Albert L. Salt, president, was the chief speaker. Advertising over more than half a century was responsible for the success of the old name, he said, and an even more intensive advertising campaign is helping to transfer the good will to the new. The 1926 advertising budget is more than $1,000,000. About 35 per cent of the advertising expenditure is in newspapers in the 57 cities where the company maintains distributing houses.

An aggregate of $100,000 will be placed in an advertising fund as part of a three-year program for promoting the sale of ice cream by the leading ice cream manufacturers of California, according to K. L. Carver, general manager of the Crescent Creamery Company, and a director of the national research council of the ice cream industry.

To date manufacturers with a combined annual output of 1,000,000 gallons have joined the group that will engage in the advertising program and other big concerns are joining.

The California campaign will be a part of a national drive sponsored by the research council.

Stephen W. Petacci has joined the South Bend Lathe Works of South Bend, Ind. as advertising and sales promotion manager. Petacci was formerly connected with Sweet & Phelps, Inc., Chicago advertising agency, as vice-president in charge of production.

C. C. Agate, formerly advertising manager of the Manhattan Electrical Supply Company, has been appointed managing director of the Window Display Advertising Association. He will be the association's first paid executive head. The appointment was made by Lee H. Bristol, advertising manager of the Bristol-Meyers Company, and president of the W.D.A.A.

Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., held its annual sales convention in Hoboken, N. J., on Thursday this week. Speakers included William H. Rankin, T. A. Ballantyne, and H. R. Schaeffer of the William H. Rankin Company, New York advertising agency handling the account. Plans for 1927 advertising were discussed. Newspapers will continue to form the backbone of the tea company's sales drive.

Two national advertisers appropriately marked Christmas with Christmas checks. About 200 employes of the Boston Varnish Company, manufacturers of the Kyanize varnishes and enamels, received bonus checks totaling $25,000 at a Christmas tree party the day before Christmas at which time they were addressed by J. B. Lord, president of the concern who said 1926 marked the best year in the history of the concern. Employes of Bird & Son of East Walpole, Mass., makers of roofings and floorings, received a five per cent bonus totaling $175,000.

The Grennan Cake Corp., which formerly had its headquarters in Detroit, has consolidated with the Purity Bakeries, with offices at 844 Rush street, Chicago, where Henry Marsh of the Grennan Cake Corporation will make his headquarters.

Shredded Wheat Company is placing its new newspaper schedule through the Frank Presbrey Company, Inc., New York. The copy is for 91 lines to run 71 times.

Copy is being placed in southern and Pacific Coast newspapers for Ironized Yeast, by the Steuerman Agency, New York.

Deane M. Linton has returned as advertising manager and merchandising counsel of the O-Cedar Corporation, Chicago. Until recently he has been with the Geyer Company, Dayton (O.) agency. He resigned from O-Cedar in 1922 after 10 years association.

INVESTIGATING ALLEGED HOAX

Charge Made by Coast Guard Chief of Faking "Rum Row" Picture

Investigations are being made by the New York Daily News in connection with an alleged "faked" picture published in that tabloid and distributed by P. & A. Photos, Inc., which purported to show a scene of rum-runners aboard a ship unloading Christmas liquors for New York City.

Roy C. Holliss, of the Daily News, informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER that the affair was being thoroughly investigated and promised a statement for next week.

The charge that the picture was a fake, staged at Raritan Bay, was first made in Washington, D. C., by Rear Admiral Frank C. Billard, Commandant of the Coast Guard. He insisted that "Rum Row" no longer existed.

FIGHTING FRAUD ADS

Investment Bankers Launching Drive Through 800 Member Houses

The Investment Bankers Association had launched a campaign against deception in the advertising of securities. Through the 800 investment houses in its membership, the association has worked out a nationwide system whereby members who offend against banking ethics are first warned and then, if their practices are not corrected, are expelled from the association.

The association for years has had a Business Conduct Committee before which complaints concerning advertising, the purchase or sale of securities and similar matters were laid.

NORTHWEST PAPERS ELECT

Members of the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association have re-elected J. F. Young, Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review, as president. F. J. Burd, Vancouver (B. C.) Province is vice-president, and S. R. Winch, Portland Oregon Journal, treasurer.

If Quality

of circulation is your first consideration

The Evening Star

With Sunday Morning Editions

Washington, D. C.

will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.

The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.

N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll

Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

Baltimore American

The Baltimore Sunday American

The family paper—children cry for the funnies—men look for the news and editorials—and women demand it for the shopping news.

173,132 average net paid circulation

MICHIGAN

is growing faster than any State in the Union.

Its increase in manufacturing products surpasses anything in the world.

BOOTH NEWSPAPERS

cover Michigan outside of Detroit—Eight principal cities with the only or leading Newspaper in its respective community.

The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News

National Advertising Representatives

I. A. KLEIN
50 East 42nd St.
New York City

J. E. LUTZ
Tower Building
Chicago, Ill.

The World

These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD—EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.

The Evening World

Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

Advertising our service from A to Z

370

PROGRESSIVE NEWSPAPERS

now use our Complete Checking Proof Service as a simple and practical solution to their checking proof problems. .....

The following is our "L" list of satisfied subscribers:

La Crosse, Wis.—Tribune
Lafayette, Ind.—Cour-Jrl.
Lansing, Mich.—St. Jrl.
Lancaster, Pa.—Intelligencer
Lancaster, Pa.—News-Jrl.
Lancaster, O.—Daily Gazette
Lawrence, Mass.—Eagle
Lawrence, Mass.—Tribune
Lexington, Ky.—Leader
Lexington, Ky.—Herald
Lewiston, Me.—Journal
Lewiston, Me.—Sun
Lincoln, Neb.—Journal
Lincoln, Neb.—Star
Little Rock, Ark.—Daily News
Little Rock, Ark.—Gazette
Logansport, Ind.—Pharos-Tr.
Long Beach, Cal.—Press
Louisville, Ky.—Herald-Post
Louisville, Ky.—Courier-Jrl.
Louisville, Ky.—Times.
Lowell, Mass.—Courier-Cit.
Lowell, Mass.—Leader
Lowell, Mass.—Sun
Lubbock, Tex.—Avalanche
Lubbock, Tex.—Journal

PROGRESS REPORT:

During the past week we have had the pleasure of starting our two months' trial test demonstration on the following publications:

Hannibal, Mo.—Cour.-Post
Joplin, Mo.—Globe
Joplin, Mo.—News-Herald
Springfield, Ill.—St. Jrl.
Topeka, Kan.—Capital

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc

538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO

79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

NOW, more than ever before, newspaper-making requires machinery that is swift, certain, automatic and economical.

Better than ever before, the AUTOPLATE is serving publishers because---

The new AUTOPLATE series offers a variety of machines, each embodying the successful principles underlying the Autoplate inventions. Having varying capacities for production, they meet with greater exactitude each publisher's individual requirements.

There is an AUTOPLATE MACHINE that will exactly fit your requirements.

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORPORATION
501 Fifth Avenue, New York

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

Introducing Carrier Boys to Prospective Subscribers—Country Correspondents as Subscription-Getters—Christmas Parties for Newsboys

BELIEVING that the carrier boys are the logical subscription solicitors for the newspaper the Long Beach (Cal.) Press-Telegram is encouraging them in doing this work in their respective territories.

Recognizing the boys' inability readily to present a lucid sales talk like a veteran subscription representative, the circulation department has furnished them with form letters and subscription blanks to hand householders. The boy explains that he will call back in a couple of days for the card, and he is then on his way, leaving the letter to effect a sale.

The letter is largely an appeal to the householders' interest in the boy movement, and, because it is readily adaptable to the use of other newspapers is reprinted in full herewith.

"Greetings—This letter and card introduces the Press-Telegram carrier on your route, who desires opportunity for an interview that he may tell you about this Long Beach newspaper, hoping that you may give him the privilege of entering your name on the subscription list. Please do not destroy the card as the carrier boy will call for it.

"You will find this young lad a gentleman. The probability is that he is a member of the Boy Scouts, or the Y. M. C. A., or some similar organization in which his parents are interested; for the Boy Conservation movement is strong in Long Beach, and has many active supporters in business circles as well as social, civic and religious walks of life. In this great work the Press-Telegram is glad to be a co-operating agency. The publishers recognize the boy of today as the citizen of tomorrow. The better the boy, the better the citizen.

"To instill ambition and loyalty, and to encourage habits of industry are purposes actuating Press-Telegram policies toward its juvenile employes. The experience gained in this canvass of his district is invaluable to the young man who hands you the accompanying card. Whether or not you care to subscribe, will you not grant him a few minutes' time that he may tell you about the newspaper he represents?

"The Press-Telegram is published every week-day afternoon and Sunday morning. For the daily edition, full Associated Press and United Press services are received, including complete market reports. Other syndicated and special dispatches and features include the Consolidated Press, International News, United News, and daily and weekly articles from leading writers of America and Europe. A careful, comparative inspection of the Press-Telegram is invited. You also will be given a cordial welcome at the Press-Telegram building during any business day, if you are interested in the processes and machinery which comprise and operate a modern publishing plant.

"The constant aim of the Press-Telegram is fully to serve its field and every legitimate interest therein, with primary consideration for the public good.

"The carrier, who will call again within a few days, will be glad to answer any inquiries.

"Respectfully yours,

"PRESS-TELEGRAM PUB. CO."

A three-color card was enclosed with the letter. On one side was a drawing depicting a boy crying the Press-Telegram, while on the reverse was an order blank, and in one corner the number of the carrier route. Space was also provided for carrier's name beneath the drawing.

"Country correspondence has proved its worth; it is the greatest subscription builder of them all," states a recent bulletin of the North Dakota Press Association. "It has a contest or premium campaign beat 40 ways, costs less and the benefits are more lasting."

The Bulletin points out that most newspapers pay rural representatives three cents to five cents an inch, according to the quality of the matter sent in. Liberal commissions are also paid for want ads, printing orders and subscriptions.

"The papers in North Dakota that are considered best from the standpoint of service to their readers are the papers running a large volume of rural news," the Bulletin adds. "A little attention paid to correspondents is a good investment."

Newspapers in many sections gave Christmas parties to newsboys this year continuing long standing customs. Nearly 1,000 newsboys employed by the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram were presented with $2 bills by the paper on Christmas eve. Eighty-five carriers of the Decatur (Ill.) Review were guests of the paper at a Christmas tree and theatre party. Theodore B. Baylies, manager, presented gifts to more than 1,000 newsies who distribute the New Bedford (Mass). Standard and Mercury. Harold H. Sloan, circulation manager, and James T. Kelly, assistant of the Worcester (Mass.) Post had charge of that paper's Christmas party held Dec. 22.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner and Lubliner & Trinz theaters are conducting a contest to select Chicagoans with screen ambitions for parts in a feature-length picture, "A Chicago Boy", to be filmed on the streets of Chicago and in the city's theaters. The cast includes parts for babies, boys and girls, juvenile leads and the older folks.

A thousand dollars in cash prizes will be awarded the winners, in addition to the chance of getting started in motion pictures. The winners will be given screen tests and a course in acting and dramatic expression. The male and female leads will receive $200 each. The rest of the prizes will be awarded according to the amount of acting done by the characters and their relative importance in the cast.

The Booster, published for its carriers by the circulation department of the Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph, prints a number of good circulation wisecracks in its current issue. Among them:

"The only thing that should be behind time on your route is the back of your watch."

"A carrier who thinks he is a big gun finds out how little he is when he is fired."

"It is all right to have 'misses' on your route, but for goodness sakes talk to them after you're through delivering your papers."

Robert C. Gohl is circulation manager of the Telegraph.

DAILY COMPLETES SURVEYS

The Kansas City-Journal Post merchandising and promotion department has completed an exhaustive survey of the local tobacco market, including data on cigars, cigarettes and smoking tobacco. The survey includes retail as well as consumer information. The consumer report gives the brand preference of Kansas City business men. A survey covering the candy bar market was issued a short time ago covering approximately 300 retail calls distributed among the various types of outlets.

PREACHING NEWSPAPER SPACE

The Albia (Ia.) Union-Republican, semi-weekly, is running a series of articles titled "Newspaper Advertising" written by J. W. Craig, advertising manager.

DAILY IS FORECASTING "RADIO WEATHER"

Milwaukee Journal Telling Fans from What Points Reception Will Be Good or Bad—Weather Man Co-operating

For the benefit of radio fans the Milwaukee Journal is daily publishing radio weather forecasts in connection with its regular weather forecast column to indicate from what areas radio reception will be best.

An attempt was made by the Journal to have the weather bureau of Milwaukee predict radio reception as it does weather, but the chief of the bureau frowned on radio forecasting as too uncertain.

However, the Milwaukee meteorologist, W. P. Stewart, is interested in radio forecasting and is co-operating with the Journal in its new undertaking.

Typical reports read as follows:

"Good volume and distance to the east Monday night; poor distance and probably fading to the south; probably poor distance west and southwest, Reception uncertain Thursday night; probably poor distance with static and fading."

The forecast is made each day by R. G. Lynch, a member of the Journal editorial staff, and is based on a system worked out by Eugene Van Cleef of Ohio State University. The weather bureau supplies a map of high and low barometric pressure areas based on observations made at seven o'clock each morning.

The radio forecast is prepared from this, with the bureau's weather forecast as a guide to probable movement of the pressure areas. One difficulty is that, between seven A. M. and seven P. M., the areas which are believed to govern radio reception move on average about three hundred to three hundred fifty miles. This difficulty is surmounted, in part, by getting barometer readings at noon and correcting the forecast for the later editions, if any change in the estimated speed and direction of pressure areas is indicated by the mid-day readings.

The radio forecaster keeps a file of the weather charts, with forecast and results noted on the reverse, for future guidance.

NEWS MAN'S NARROW ESCAPE IN CHINA

Dailey of Chicago Tribune's Far East Service Is Wounded by Sentry, and Nearly Drowned in Day's Work

Charles Dailey, chief of the Chicago Tribune's Far Eastern news service had two narrow escapes from death recently in one day, his friends in Chicago have learned. Entering Wuchang near the end of the forty-day siege which that Chinese city suffered he was close at hand when the thousands of noncombatants were allowed to evacuate. This process was undertaken by several Red Cross boats which docked at the main gates of the city. When the gates were thrown open some 50,000 persons crushed towards them and numbers were crowded into the river when there was no longer room for them on board.

Escaping being drowned when he was picked up in the swell of humanity and carried outside the gates to the water's edge Mr. Dailey later was making the rounds of the American mission buildings when he was fired upon by a sentry who wounded him in the foot and then put him under arrest. Undaunted, when released, he limped to the nearest mission only to find himself under machine gun fire because the building had been taken by troops. And to cap the climax of an eventful day while he was returning to Hankow across the river, to file his story, the junk on which he was riding collided with two others and he barely missed being thrown into the turbulent Yangtze river.

Wanted:
SYNDICATE SALESMAN

We are prepared to make an attractive proposition to a successful experienced salesman. We offer:

1. A substantial salary (We have found men who can earn good-sized salaries are really cheapest for us).
2. All reasonable expenses.
3. A permanent cumulative commission on all sales made, to be paid as long as the features stay sold and the man remains with us.
4. A chance for advancement, and investment, if desired.

ASSOCIATED EDITORS, Inc.
440 S. Dearborn St. • • • Chicago

DAILY PAPERS FROM OTHER CITIES
HOTALING'S NEWS STAND
BROADWAY AND 43RD ST.
NORTH END THE TIMES BUILDING

"Perhaps the most cosmopolitan spot in New York City is Forty-third Street and Broadway . . . Here is a mammoth news stand which sells newspapers from every city in the world. . . Every town has similar stands, but none as huge as this, and none as varied and as picturesque in its patronage."
—Boston Transcript, Oct. 29, 1921.

HOTALING'S NEWS AGENCY, 308 WEST 40th STREET, NEW YORK

Food for Thought

An independent engineering organization recently made a survey of fuel costs in the plant of a nationally-known company that had changed over to gas, for a large part of of its production eighteen months previously. The following quotations, taken directly from the engineer's report, show some of the advantages effected in this plant through the use of gas:

"Cost reduced 28%"
"Annual saving $3,676.32"
"Net yearly return of 102% on investment"
"Gas more dependable"
"Faster heating"
"More accurate temperature control"

Here indeed is food for thought. Perhaps right now you are wondering what gas would do in your plant. Our interesting book, "Gas—The Ideal Factory Fuel" will prove helpful to you. Why don't you send for your copy now?

American Gas Association
342 Madison Avenue, New York City

YOU CAN DO IT BETTER WITH GAS

HOW FIGHTING DAILY WON OVER AD BOYCOTT

(Continued from page 7)

dependent's paid subscribers quadrupled in number and merchants who were not members of the association rallied to it with their advertising. Many of these advertisers seemed anxious to aid the new daily and others were taking advantage of the furore that it was creating in the community, but all of them agreed that they got their money's worth from the results.

Meanwhile the paper covered its local news field fully and employed good wire and feature services.

Besides its campaign for betterment of conditions at the University the Independent waged editorial warfare against graft in the municipal and county administrations and was directly responsible for an entire new board of county supervisors being elected recently. In due time active support of the Railroad Brotherhood organizations in Tucson, which is a railroad center, was obtained and inasmuch as the railroad men and their families here number more than 5,000 and their purchasing power is a potent weapon, things were getting warm for the Merchants' Association. Then, too, organized labor which had found the Independent as willing to fight for it as for the employers, were beginning to eye the association askance. Add to these the majority of the University element, including students, faculty members and their families, and it began to look better for the Independent all the time. Many of these subscribers actually purchased ing at least one share of stock in the paper to demonstrate their interest and support.

On Jan. 11, 1926, the Independent went from an eight-page tabloid to a regulation four-page daily. Several months later, April 1, 1926, it became an afternoon paper.

The Marvin campaign had continued apace. A committee was appointed by the Tucson Ministerial Association to investigate Dr. Marvin's administration and as a result of its report the ministerial association, in March, 1926, formally demanded of the University board of regents an investigation into Marvin's administration. The ministers later demanded the University president's dismissal on the following charges: "That he has broken down the morale of the University of Arizona through gross disloyalty to his associates on the faculty, through the discrediting to the extent of seriously damaging their professional reputation members of the faculty who have displeased him, through the losing of the confidence of the students and of many people in the Community and State and so weakening the influence of the University."

No action was taken by the regents, however, until the ministerial association's formal charges forced such a hearing. The Independent had asserted that Marvin's unquestioned power lay deeper than in the protection accorded him by the Tucson Merchants' Association, alleging that he had ingratiated himself with the powerful copper companies which pay more than half the taxes of the State of Arizona. The truth of this contention was clearly demonstrated when E. E. Ellinwood, wealthy corporation lawyer, and chief counsel for the leading copper interests, reluctantly issued a call, in his capacity as president of the University board of regents, for a meeting of that body in Tucson to investigate the charges against President Marvin.

This trial of the accused University president was held by the regents at the university during May and June, 1926. Three days were required to hear all the witnesses who presented themselves to testify against Dr. Marvin, including many prominent members of his faculty and student body and leading members of the medical profession. Five days were then allowed Marvin in which to present his defense, after which the board adjourned to consider the evidence, announcing that its verdict would be rendered at its next meeting, on July 17.

During the interim the pro-Marvinites, led by prominent members of the Tucson Merchants' Association engaged in a most singular and flagrant attempt to influence the regents to acquit Marvin of the charges regardless of the evidence adduced at the investigation. Resolutions of "exoneration" and faith in him were engineered through every civic organization in the city with the notable exceptions of two, the Kiwanis and the Tucson Civic Club. The Kiwanians refused to have the matter discussed before them at all, while the Civic Club was moved to request of the regents that, both in justice to Dr. Marvin and the University, the case be decided strictly according to the evidence.

For this eminently fair resolution the Civic Club was denounced as a tool of the Independent, which, had it been true, would have been quite a compliment to that paper. And as this campaign of "public exoneration" proceeded the Independent followed each move, inexorably exposing one particular group of men who had instigated and engineered each "resolution of exoneration and faith"—always that same group, members of the Tucson Merchants' Association. And when the public was informed by its contemporaries of similar resolutions passed by luncheon clubs in other cities of the state, the Independent duly pulled the covers off the same little group.

This sort of thing was carried on to the very minute of the regents' meeting on July 17, and when the board announced shortly after noon that it had decided by a vote of five to three that "not all the charges against the President had been sustained" the Independent's contemporaries issued extras ten minutes later declaring that Marvin had been exonerated. The world was told better a bit later by the Independent, whose reporter had remained to get the full story. In its regular afternoon edition the Independent laconically proclaimed in a direct eight-column head which did not take up more than a third of the front page, "Marvin Not Retained." It developed that, although the regents had voted by a majority of two that all the charges against Marvin had not been sustained, he was later denied re-appointment when such a motion failed to pass by a deadlocked vote, four of the regents demanding his dismissal on the grounds that more than enough of the charges had been sustained to warrant it.

The regents who were for retaining Marvin were led by Chancellor Ellinwood, and it was regarded as an ominous sign that the four who wanted him ousted were all staunch friends and supporters of Gov. Hunt, who held the deciding vote on this question as an ex-officio member of the board. Hunt was absent at this meeting and the board consequently adjourned still deadlocked on the question of re-appointing President Marvin, the University physician and six members of the faculty, including the football coach. The regents opposed to Marvin had protested the physician's re-appointment also, because of certain testimony given at the investigation by other disinterested members of the medical profession; while those supporting the president had blocked re-appointment of the faculty members in retaliation for their evidence against Marvin.

Ellinwood, after giving out sundry interviews eulogizing Marvin and reiterating that none of the testimony presented at the secret hearing warranted any action against the University president, hied himself off to tour the state in the interests of his candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination. The Independent then proceeded to publish the stenographic transcript of the evidence given against Marvin at the investigation, running it on the front page in daily installments.

Ellinwood had announced that there would not be another meeting of the regents held until Sept. 13, at the beginning of the present school year. No budget for the succeeding year had been adopted, no re-appointment to the faculty had been made and no announcement of courses published. Clearly this was a move to force the re-appointment of Marvin as a matter of necessity on the first day of school.

This maneuver was promptly exposed by the Independent and again the Tucson Ministerial Association requested immediate action by the governor. Gov. Hunt forthwith signified his willingness to attend any meeting of the regents and settle the situation by his vote; he requested Ellinwood to call another meeting of the board immediately. The Chancellor's reply was a vehemently political attack on the governor; in a lengthy statement to the press he accused Hunt of injecting the University into politics and dared him to fire President Marvin. Ellinwood further declared that if Hunt ousted Marvin that he himself, if elected governor, would re-appoint him. And yet, although he had heard all the evidence against and for Marvin, Gov. Hunt had made absolutely no comment on the case, leaving it strictly to the regents for settlement.

Hunt's reply was another demand that Ellinwood call a meeting, which the latter then set for Aug. 7. The Independent was by this time vigorously opposing Ellinwood's political aspirations.

When the regents met with Gov. Hunt to act on the University situation, the governor was confronted with an alleged plan of Ellinwood's to have the University president accompany him about the state on a speaking tour in furtherance of the chancellor's candidacy. But that plan never materialized. Marvin was stripped completely of his power and authority at the university, the regents taking over complete academic control of the institution, and re-appointed under a resolution which specifically provides that he may be instantly dismissed at any time in the future by the board of regents. The Independent recently published a statement made to a committee of Tucson citizens on Aug. 8, the day after the final regents' meeting, in which Gov. Hunt is alleged to have expressed his disapproval of Marvin and his methods in no uncertain terms and to have promised his dismissal shortly after the first of January, 1927.

Having achieved this victory, the Independent closed the case on the following day with an editorial entitled "Curtain." Supported by it and one other Arizona daily Gov. Hunt overwhelmingly defeated Chancellor Ellinwood in the primary election. However, Judge E. S. Clark, Hunt's Republican opponent, was not so easily disposed of. Judge Clark in a statement to the Independent flayed Marvin and the political system that had shielded him for so long, leaving no doubt in the public mind of what he expected to do if elected. As a result Gov. Hunt won over Clark by less than 400 votes.

And so it happens that the Tucson Daily Independent, at the tender age of thirteen months, is operating against an advertising boycott and still paying its way. No matter if the most powerful member of the Merchants' Association has ignored the boycott rule of late, that rule is still on though ignored by most everyone connected with the Independent except the circulation manager, who lists it as the paper's chief asset.

AD TAX ILLEGAL

Oregon City Prevented from Raising Fund for Display Space

Money cannot legally be raised by taxation for community advertising in Oregon. Such is a decision handed down recently at Astoria by Circuit Judge J. A. Eakin in the case of the city of Seaside, a resort community, which had voted a $5,000 tax levy to exploit its attractions.

The decision holds that tax levies may be made for municipal purposes only, and that advertising does not come under this head.

NILES TIMES EXPANDS

The Niles (O.) Daily Times recently installed three new Intertypes. Full leased wire service of International News Service was started Dec. 20. James L. Wick, Milton Wick and Ray E. Koken are the owners.

Everybody Wants to Know How to Succeed

There is more reader interest in

"IF YOUTH BUT KNEW"

than in any other feature you can buy today because in this series the nation's leaders reveal the secrets of their success.

"IF YOUTH BUT KNEW"

is written by John D. Rockefeller, Otto H. Kahn, Chauncey M. Depew, Theodore Roosevelt, Charles M. Schwab, Billy Sunday and others equally prominent. A story a day for thirty days, 500 words each. A fresh story every day by a different man. Names to conjure with.

For immediate release. Wire for samples and price

FAMOUS FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.

1819 Broadway,
New York, N. Y.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

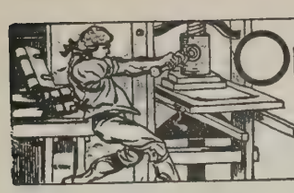
BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

Why the South's Prosperity?

9-Diversified Industry

The South is fast assuming leadership in the industrial world. In the textile industry it is slowly and surely depriving the New England States of its important position—in fact it has compelled some of the largest northern mills to move South in order that they may exist.

In the steel industry the Birmingham district easily competes with Pittsburgh in price and quality—and has a distinct advantage over Pittsburgh on the Latin American and foreign trade, because of lower freight rates to seaboard.



Rich in every mineral deposit, clays, ores, and other related minerals, hundreds of industries have come into existence. With good climate, with labor plentiful, and with a demand for these products, all these industries have waxed prosperous so that today you see a South busily engaged in practically every known occupation, giving employment to armies of workers—whose earning power has doubled, yes, even quadrupled—who are eager to enjoy the best of life.

The South is the advertiser's outstanding market. His future lies with the South's growth. You can't miss it—so don't overlook it.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
ALABAMA
*Birmingham Age-Herald (M)	34,994	.09	.09
*Birmingham Age-Herald (S)	50,699	.11	.11
*Mobile News-Item (E)	11,993	.05	.05
*Mobile Register (M)	20,427	.08	.08
*Mobile Register (S)	32,096	.10	.10
FLORIDA
††Daytona Beach News (ES)	5,560	.04	.04
*Florida Times-Union (M) 49,903 (S)	59,239	.12(S.15)	.12(S.15)
*Lakeland Ledger (E)	5,173	.03	.03
*Miami Herald (M)	48,108	.11	.11
*Miami Herald (S)	60,006	.12	.12
*Orlando Reporter-Star (E)	8,502	.06	.06
*Orlando Sentinel (M&S)	10,655	.06	.06
*Pensacola News and Journal (E&M)	9,490	.07	.07
†St. Augustine Record (E&S)	3,382	.04	.04
††St. Petersburg Independent (E)	9,708	.065	.065
*Tampa Times (E)	24,389	.08	.08
*Tampa Tribune (M) 38,316 (S)	58,468	.10(.14S)	.10(.14S)
*West Palm Beach Post (M)	11,339	.06	.06
GEORGIA
*Augusta Herald (E)	14,515	.05	.05
*Augusta Herald (S)	15,254	.05	.05
*Macon Telegraph (M)	25,903	.08	.08
*Macon Telegraph (S)	26,198	.08	.08
*Savannah Morning News (M), 21,220 (S)	22,161	.06(.07S)	.06(.07S)
KENTUCKY
The Lexington Leader (E)	19,262	.06	.06
The Lexington Leader (S)	19,266	.06	.06
††Paducah Sun (E)	9,287	.04	.04

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
NORTH CAROLINA
*Greensboro Daily News (M)	27,656	.08	.07
*Greensboro Daily News (S)	30,691	.09	.08
*Salisbury Post (E)	7,324	.04	.04
*Winston-Salem Sentinel (E)	17,774	.07	.07
SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia State (M)	22,627	.07	.07
Columbia State (S)	24,281	.07	.07
*Greenville News (M)	21,648	.075	.07
Spartanburg Journal (E)	6,112	.05	.05
Spartanburg Herald (M) 6,112 (S)	9,110
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga Times (M)	31,107	.10	.10
Chattanooga Times (S)	30,573	.10	.10
††Memphis Commercial Appeal (M)	101,603	.18	.18
††Memphis Commercial Appeal (S)	130,794	.21	.21
*Nashville Banner (E)	54,519	.11	.11
*Nashville Banner (S)	56,007	.12	.12
VIRGINIA
Danville Register and Bee (M&E)	14,336	.06	.06
Danville Bee and Register (E&S)	19,217	.07	.07
*Newport News Times-Herald (E)	7,968	.05	.05
*Newport News Daily Press (S&M)	5,413
Roanoke Times & World News (M&E)	25,246	.08	.08
Roanoke Times (S)	15,458	.07	.07
*Staunton News-Leader (M), Leader (E)	6,855	.035	.035

 A. B. C. Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
* A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.
†† Government Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

FIRST page position in the Atlantic for January is given to "The Newspaper's Dilemma" by Earnest Elmo Calkins, the well-known advertising expert. I have chosen the second deck of the head because it is more descriptive. The first is "Gnats and Camels."

News-stand distribution was evidently more prompt this month than mail delivery for the Atlantic. And so when I saw an article by Calkins announced on the cover I paid my hard earned cash for a copy. That fact shows what I think of what comes from the pen of Mr. Calkins.

His article has for its main theme the straining at gnats and the swallowing of camels by American newspapers in the matter of publicity. Obviously the matter is presented from the viewpoint of the advertising man. The newspaperman, even though he may agree with certain paragraphs, will want to query others.

Mr. Calkins in his opening paragraph calls attention to the fact that when Lord Leverhulme died the obituary notices said much about his erection of the model village of Port Sunlight, his gift of the Stafford House to England, etc., but did not print a line that he was the manufacturer of "Lux, Lifebuoy, and Rinso, used in millions of American and British homes." Yet when Leverhulme's estate sent his books and pictures, etc., to America to be sold they received write-ups without charge. This, according to Mr. Calkins, brings up the legitimate query, "Why must some articles of sale be confined to paid advertisements, and others be given free publicity?" Evidently an answer is desired. Before it can be given, however, the problem must be seen from various angles.

If I were the owner of the saponaceous products already mentioned, I should be more than willing to spend half of my advertising appropriation for what Mr. Calkins gives absolutely free—"Lux, Lifebuoy, Rinso . . . used in millions of American and British homes—Atlantic Monthly for January, 1927, page 1." If I were owner of one of Lord Leverhulme's rare books which I wanted to sell, I am inclined to think that I would not pay very much for a corresponding phrase—not used by Mr. Calkins—"not found in any American or British library."

If I were a soap manufacturer of products that competed with those mentioned by Mr. Calkins, I should take exception to the phrase in the Atlantic Monthly about Leverhulme's soap products. But if I were a dealer in rare books, I should be glad to have the Atlantic say something about rare books, even if they were to be sold by my competitors dealing in literary treasures. A well-known magazine designed to appeal to women allowed a short story writer to say that the engagement ring was purchased at Tiffany's. A competing house offered the editor a thousand dollars to let the loving couple in the next story get the engagement ring from his store. So much from the viewpoint of competition.

The most important viewpoint is that of the reader. Frankly I did not pay my forty cents to have Mr. Calkins tell me that Lux, Lifebuoy and Rinso were used in millions of American and British homes. If he had had a page or two about Leverhulme's art treasures, I should have been glad to have added an extra dime—as doubtless would many other Atlantic readers—for the January issue. If the editor of the Atlantic will have Mr. Calkins contribute an article on these art treasures, he can count at least upon one purchaser.

The story about the death of Lord Leverhulme was doubtless the one carried by one of the news gathering organizations. The feature articles about his art treasures were doubtless compiled by local writers for the papers they represented. A great news gathering organization simply must play it safe in its use of trade marked products in its stories or there will be kicks from clients. The individual newspaper, however, is permitted its own discretion in the matter of free publicity.

The next incident mentioned by Mr. Calkins is the immense amount of publicity given to the sale of interests in the Dodge Motor Company. Unquestionably the newspapers were too liberal here in their publicity and greatly aided the later sale of securities.

Mr. Calkins next takes up the story, which was boxed in many papers, that related how a sky writer, after writing advertisements over a southern city, made "an unlucky strike" in landing and crashed into a tree. "He was engaged," said the story, "in advertising a cigarette." Every detail, according to Mr. Calkins, was given except the name of the cigarette. Personally I am inclined to take a little exception to this assertion because I am more anxious to know the kind of tree into which the aviator crashed than I am to know the brand of the cigarette. The peculiar thing about this incident is that the question has been raised whether the newspapers did not suppress the name because the manufacturer was a heavy advertiser. It is amusing, therefore, to receive an implication that the name of the cigarette should have been given when, in my opinion, it would have been undesirable publicity for the manufacturer. The Atlantic Monthly is above suspicion in the matter of dictation by advertisers. The honesty and sincerity of Mr. Calkins has never been questioned even by his competitors. But in view of the colored insert in this issue of the Atlantic that advertises a competing cigarette, I do wish that the name that was omitted in the newspaper story had appeared in the Atlantic article. The dilemma which Mr. Calkins sets forth for the newspapers presents itself in his own article over and over again.

The fourth example Mr. Calkins heads, "The Plaza Jewel Robbery." Every newspaper man recalls that in the story the woman who owned the jewels and her husband were dining in a fashionable restaurant—unnamed by reporters. The city editor knows that the word "fashionable" before a restaurant mentioned by name means a possible free dinner for the reporter and maybe even more. As a teacher of journalism I cannot see what the name of this restaurant would have been contributed to the story.

Mr. Calkins then takes up the economics of the newspaper. He shows that it has two things for sale, news to readers and space to advertisers—both of which must be wrapped in the same container. He asserts without exception that whether a paper is sold for two, three, or five cents, it costs more to produce than the sum the reader pays for it. Strictly speaking Mr. Calkins overlooks the fact that the reader is not buying those columns which are devoted exclusively to advertising.

I have been checking up some of the Christmas issues. For some of them I think the pennies put on the newsstands would pay for the cost of the white paper on which news is exclusively printed and would also meet the expense of the gathering and printing the news and still leave a slight margin for profit. Personally I am not sure that, as Mr. Calkins asserts, "the time passed long ago when a newspaper could support itself on subscriptions." Crowded as is the New York field, it would, in my opinion, support a paper that adopted as its motto. "All the news that's important." The experiment of producing a paper living up to that motto has never been made in the United States. Some of the foreign newspapers that feature not "what's interesting" but "what's important" more than break even from their sales.

After criticizing the free publicity of a Philadelphia fight which if it had paid regular advertising rates would have had to foot a bill of over one million dollars, Mr. Calkins takes up the exclusive interview which President Coolidge gave through Bruce Barton to the Associated Press. Much that Mr. Calkins says about this interview is right to the point, but he overlooks this fact; that this interview places the Associated Press in a rather embarrassing position if the Secretary of State or his fifty-seventh assistant wants a special favor for a political measure. Not all newspaper dilemmas are mentioned in the article. The character of the Associated Press, like that of Caesar's wife, should be above suspicion.

In justice to Mr. Calkins and the high ideals for which he stands the following quotation should not be overlooked, even though it is set in smaller type:

> There is no implication in all this that newspapers should be more complaisant to bona fide commercial advertisers. On the contrary. A newspaper's value as an advertising medium is directly in proportion to the conscientiousness with which it discriminates between news and advertising. Its righteousness at a mere casual mention of an advertised article is contrasted with its liberality toward other classes of business enterprises which are just as commercial as soaps and cigarettes, though going under the name of sports or amusements.

After asserting that the publicity man is the old press agent with a high hat, Mr. Calkins passes along to the work of the public relations counsel who "operates on a much higher plane." To quote from the article:

> As Ivy Lee put it, it is his business to advise his clients to such courses of action as will produce live news, and then of course see to it that no newspaper misses the news.

Speaking as the former editor of Administration, a journal of business analysis and control, I would like to go a little farther then does Mr. Calkins about the work of the public relations counsel. My view may or may not agree with EDITOR & PUBLISHER which too has its dilemmas.

A trans-continental railroad has a bad wreck. The railroad officials are for suppression, or at best for the soft pedal of details. The counsel in public relations steps in with this advice, "Give the reporters all the facts. If necessary, run a special train for the press photographers. Collect at once all possible information that may be wanted by the newspapers so that there will be nothing left for a follow-up story. Of course we will get a first page position tomorrow, but the day after if the reporters have all the facts there will be nothing of special interest for the follow-up story and it will be put on an inside page. If you don't, the reporters will get what facts they can, garbled though they may be, and print them. The next day it will print rumors as facts and this wreck will have first page position for several days."

The counsel in public relations will not write a line, but will ease the way for the reporter at every difficult point. The ideal counsel in public relations is not bothering his head over a little free space to get the name of his corporation in the papers. He is concerned with broad business policies and their proper presentation to the public. But this is departing too far from the article.

Mr. Calkins follows his remarks about the public relations counsel with the following about drives:

> Every drive that has run its course in the few years since the war, to raise money for various philanthropies, to build cathedrals, to endow colleges, to furnish funds to Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.'s, or the Salvation Army, or the Red Cross, has been planned and engineered by a publicity expert. Every line that has appeared in print, except a comparatively small amount of paid advertising, has appeared because of the newspaper's dilemma between its duty not to run advertising as news at the urgent appeal of a publicity expert and its uncertainty as to how much of this matter is real news or for the good of the public. At any rate it is safe to say that to all of these great funds that have been raised for various good purposes in the last few years the newspaper has been the largest actual contributor. Its name does not appear in the list of donors, but anyone who is used to buying newspaper space and paying for it can easily figure out the millions that have been donated to each one of these funds by the press of the United States.

These words are certainly a fine tribute to the high ideals of publishers of American newspapers. But publishers should remember, however, that readers are paying money to get news and not for suggestions on how to give money. Some one has said that the future historian will give the credit for the erection of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine not to Bishop Manning but to the publicity and promotion concern that engineered the drive, nameless thought it has been in the public prints.

Mr. Calkins is constructive though critical when he thus discusses the treatment in the newspapers of news relating to advertising:

> If at an advertising convention something kind is said about newspaper advertising they give it space, but an advertising agent is called an "advertiser," and a telephone booth which transmits "want ads" to newspapers is styled an "advertising agency," and all advertising is lumped together, without discrimination between the fake advertising of a baldhead cure and the constructive institutional advertising of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Speaking as an advertising expert, Mr. Calkins continues:

> The best newspaper is the best advertising medium. If circulation is extended beyond legitimate demand, by abnormal, illegitimate expanding of certain phases of the news, or by creating features out of some of those phases, the advertiser is asked to pay for this new circulation at the same rate as for the old. Is it worth it?

In conclusion Mr. Calkins frankly admits that newspapers are entitled to a certain amount of sympathy because of the complex problem which they face, because of many new factors which are the result of the newer civilization. He speaks not only of the space which Dr. Eliot of Harvard received at his death in comparison with the columns given to the demise of Rudolph Valentino, but compares the salary of $15,000 which Dr. Eliot was said to receive when president of Harvard with the $150,000 a year paid to Bud Fisher, creator of "Mutt and Jeff." The obvious deduction is that Fisher is worth ten times as much as

"HOW I KEEP MY FIGURE"

A series of thirty-six 300-word articles in which the following celebrities answer a question vital to all women readers:

Pola Negri	Julia Hoyt	Eleanor Boardman	Violet Heming
Suzanne Lenglen	Hazel Dawn	Rae Samuels	Pauline Frederick
Anita Loos	Gertrude Hoffman	Margaret Wilson	Lois Moran
Bebe Daniels	Ann Pennington	Anna Case	Clara Bow
Mary Garden	Alice Brady	Chrystal Herne	Mary Boland
Galli-Curci	Marion Davies	Pauline Starke	Jean Acker
Lenore Ulric	Claire Windsor	Alice Terry	Mae Busch
Rita Weiman	Norma Shearer	Neysa McMein	Lya de Putti
Mae Murray	Alice Joyce	Anne Parrish	Greta Nissen

A one-column portrait mat supplied with each installment.

LEDGER SYNDICATE

INDEPENDENCE SQUARE PHILADELPHIA, PA

liot to our present civilization. At e same time Mr. Calkins reminds the ader that these two men were not being mpared on equal terms, even on a salary sis, because Fisher had the advantage a mechanical device denied to Eliot, device which multiplied him without ort or desert on his part, enabling him be in more than one place at the same ne and to earn his salary in each place." other words, Fisher's salary did not me from any one newspaper, but from syndicate of newspapers.

Mr. Calkins then gives the editorial iter the best tip on an educational topic at I have ever seen. He suggests that Dr. Eliot could have been president of universities at the same time he might ve received $15,000 a year from each d thus have drawn a salary that tched that paid to Fisher. Why ouldn't a great educator map out a riculum, establish general rules for the ection of faculty members, etc., for ten titutions as well as for one? The an- er is left to the chief editorial writers American newspapers.

* * *

HE late John Wanamaker printed as a part of his daily advertisement in newspapers a bit of editorial com- nt to supplement the offerings of his re. Frequently these editorial chats him dealt with the subject of adver- ing. In one of them he pointed out t sooner or later the merchandise it- f would tell the truth about the duct, either in its use or in the satis- tion which it gave to the owner— nething the copy-writer too often over- ked.

Joseph H. Appel is the present adver- ng manager at Wanamaker's store in w York. His master's voice must have n heard while he was writing "A orld Cruise Log" (Harper & thers). In this volume he markets ny of the countries of the world to velers, real and fireside. The text ges are remarkable in that they do not rsell one country at the expense of ther. In other words, they tell the th about the countries visited on this ise.

The volume is remarkable in another pect. It not only tells what Mr. Appel s—and he has the eyes of the trained wspaperman—but it records what the rt feels when the eye sees strange cus- ms and peculiar religious rites. Mr. pel interprets the meaning of these for benefit of the reader—something new travel books.

Even while aboard ship Mr. Appel asks reader to draw up a deck chair and e a little chat about the gossip of the or listen to an opinion about a book read.

Here, for example, are Mr. Appel's re- tions after finishing "The Life of eph Pulitzer" by Don C. Seitz (page :

ve more days. Loafing days. Finished Pulitzer biography by Don Seitz. Ex- nt! But what a hell his editors must lived in with his absentee control, the tant wanderings of a querulous blind man the earth, his cable instructions and coun- ands, his criticisms, his whims, his temper! sound in his principles. His constant in- tion was to find the facts, facts, facts. t the truth, keep the editorial comment , with an ironical, satirical touch. And ys write with brevity.

Brevity is beauty," he says. Yes, brevity t in writing.

vidently Mr. Appel took Mr. Pulit- s remarks seriously. Throughout his me he is constantly seeking the facts in his comment he adds that ironical, ical touch of which Pulitzer was so l. For example, the paragraph that ediately precedes the one just quoted a nice bit of satire:

ghthouses appear on the coast—I wonder these careless Mexicans ever keep their s burning continuously!

ere and there Mr. Appel recalls his spaper days. As he approached Manila tells the reader that he was night or of Colonel McClure's Philadelphia es when the world was startled with ey's epoch-marking victory on that day May day in 1898. Then he goes d and reconstructs this victory for reader as the ship sails into the har-

In other places he has the assistance of practical newspapermen. For example, B. W. Fleisher, the American owner of the Japan Advertiser and Trans-Pacific, helps Appel to explore the Japanese mind. The chapters on Japan and China are especially worth careful study at the present time because of the space devoted to these countries just now by American newspapers.

Possibly the seventh chapter shows the style of Mr. Appel at its best. This chapter deals with the Holy Land. The explanation of the charm in this chapter may lie in the fact that Mr. Appel's father was a clergyman. But some credit must be given to the point of view which the author takes for this chapter, "I want to keep my faith. I want to believe as a child. So I shall travel as a child—in Palestine." Here possibly more than in any other country the eyes see what the heart feels.

What does Mr. Appel see on this world cruise? That is left for the book and does not belong to the review. The publisher might safely adopt the policy of Wanamaker's store—"Money back if the purchase is not satisfactory." But too much credit must not be given to Mr. Appel. The photographer has contributed much to the cruise. It calls for 323 pages of interesting reading.

ORDINARILY The American Child, a monthly bulletin of general child welfare, has little to interest the circulation manager of a newspaper. The December issue, however, contains an article, "Child Labor at the Sesquicentennial," by Bruce M. Watson, Director of Public Education and Child Labor Association of Pennsylvania.

In this article Mr. Watson takes up the newsboys who sold papers at the exposition. He found that the newspaper trade was perhaps the most baffling because of the great difficulty in fixing responsibility. Newsboys were several transactions remote from the original distributor. In the early days of the Sesquicentennial under-aged children by scores were selling papers on the grounds. The Labor Department officials arranged a conference of circulation managers who pledged that their distributors would not permit unqualified newsboys to obtain papers for selling.

The article then goes on to say that the pledge was well executed. Each circulation manager in Philadelphia called his distributors together for a conference so that there might be a complete understanding about the agreement. The distributor who failed to obey the regulation was told that he would be dismissed. "This was effective" Mr. Watson reports.

SOME time ago Andrue H. Berding contributed to America, A Catholic Review of the Week, an article on "The Catholic and the Newspaper." In the issue of America for Dec. 18, he prints an article, "Making News of Catholic Events." In it he gives the Mother Church some practical advice on how to break into print for its numerous activities.

One of the best things which Mr. Berding puts into his article is found in the concluding paragraph:

> Getting publicity is an art. Use it well, but don't abuse it. There is no more despised beast to a newspaperman than one who is known as a "publicity hound." Such a person is one who rushes into a newspaper office on the slightest pretext, to make sure that an item goes into the paper merely because his name chances to be mentioned on a committee. A "publicity hound" soon finds out that there is a certain law in political economy known as the Law of Diminishing Returns—which may be restated, with apologies to John Stuart Mill—the more effort one puts into securing personal publicity the less result one obtains.

Everyone, including those from religious denominations, who seek the city editor to beg for space should remember that the newspaper's first duty is to its readers. They are putting their pennies on the news-stands with a certain confidence that the managing editor will make the best selection from the stream of news that flows across his desk.

Do you want MORE Circulation?

10,000? 15,000? 25,000?

50,000 or even MORE?

. . . My organization will get it for you! Just closing our third Cleveland Plain Dealer campaign, establishing a new

World's Record for RESULTS

ASK THEM! then write or wire, if interested

C. B. HOLLISTER, Cleveland Plain Dealer until January 15th

A FEW HOLLISTER CLIENTS

Philadelphia Inquirer (2)
Cleveland Plain Dealer (3)
Memphis Commercial Appeal
Washington Post (2)
Los Angeles Times (3)
San Francisco Chronicle (2)
Louisville Herald-Post (2)
Cincinnati Enquirer
Indianapolis News
San Francisco Bulletin (2)
Philadelphia Record
Atlanta Journal
Dallas News
Nashville Banner

HOLLISTER Circulation Organization

717-18 Commercial Exchange Bldg. LOS ANGELES, CAL.

CARTOONISTS REGALE BROOKLYN CLUB

With Goldberg as Toastmaster, Yarns of Drawing Board and Reminiscences Flow Free At Holiday Banquet

More than 20 well known cartoonists and columnists mounted the lecture platform in Brooklyn to entertain members of the Municipal Club on Dec. 28. Rube Goldberg was toastmaster.

Former Sheriff John N. Harman, editor and manager of the Brooklyn Times, and president of the Municipal Club, presented Democratic Leader John H. McCooey as the chairman, explaining that the selection had been made because the cartoonists would not pester him for jobs on account of the huge emoluments artists received.

Along with other friendly services for his fellow craftsmen, Mr. Goldberg denied the rumor of high salaries, declaring:

"You will notice they were all on time. If they were really making all that money, would they rush over here so eagerly to get a free dinner?"

In his capacity as chairman, Mr. Goldberg was taking the place of Harry Hershfield, from whom a telegram was received, expressing regrets that illness prevented his attendance. Mr. Goldberg hastened to assure the gathering of the validity of the excuse.

"Like the rest of us," he said, "Hershfield likes to talk—about himself. If he doesn't come where he has a chance to do so, he must be sick. In fact, as he is not here yet, I think Hershfield must be dead."

Milt Gross told several original Yiddish dialect stories, some of them printable. Then Bugs Baer explained why he deserted cartooning for writing. He was a wonderful cartoonist, he said, but alas, a certain editor in Washington, D. C., discovered one day that he could spell.

Switching to a serious vein, Bugs defended Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, declaring it "inconceivable" that they should have been guilty of "fixing" the famous Detroit-Cleveland game.

C. R. Macauley, reserving the Bugs Baer process, told how he came to be a cartoonist. His first inspiration, he said, was the whiskers of William McKinley, his godfather, who, incidentally, did all in his power to save Macauley from his fate.

Ken Kling, creator of a well-known racing cartoon, contributed a tip on the races. Here it is—Bea, a two-year-old, at Havana on January 4. But he added: "Don't blame me if you don't win."

And Sid Greene told some stories, apropos of nothing at all.

Winsor McCay paid a tribute to Mr. McCooey who, he predicted, is to be even a greater leader in the future than he is now. Supreme Court Justice Edward Riegelmann, in moving for a vote of thanks for the speakers, heartily seconded McCay's prediction, and added the hope that the cartoonist would get a job from Mr. McCooey and get $1,000,000 a week, "the same salary he is getting now."

Others who spoke or were presented included: Edward Flinn of Floral Park, Bud Counihan, Louie Hanlon, Art Nugent, Eddie McBride, Clare Briggs, Bush Miller, Gene Carr, and James W. Brown, president of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Members of the committee on arrangements included Harris M. Crist, managing editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, and Benjamin T. Butterworth, advertising manager of the New York Times.

POLES FIGHT SUPPRESSION

Editors Hear New Press Law Is Being Prepared

Representatives of all the Polish journals have united to forestall a new press decree even more severe than the recent one which was effectually killed in the Sejm without any move on the part of Marshal Pilsudski to meet the widespread opposition.

According to the terms of the new decree now in preparation newspapers offending the government not only can be suspended but suppressed for ever more and their plants ordered dismantled. Further they cannot resume under a new name and any editor of a suppressed publication cannot again be the editor of any publication in the country.

Editors representing all shades of opinion accused Marshal Pilsudski flatly being the author of the bill but an emphatic denial has been made by the government, saying that the law was the collaborated product of various officers of the government which had been attacked by various sections of the press. Moreover it said that the decree is still in process of formation and has yet to go to the Supreme Legal Council and the Cabinet, which must pass on all measures before they become effective.

FRANK A. HOPKINS

Frank A. Hopkins, 74, in the Customs Service in New York for twenty-five years, a descendant of Stephen Hopkins of the Mayflower, died this week in Mahopac Falls, N. Y. He leaves a wife and a son, Frank L. Hopkins, a political writer for the New York World.

DAILIES APPOINT SPECIAL

Conger & Moody, publishers' representatives, San Francisco, have been appointed to represent the Oxnard (Calif.) Tribune and the Salem (Ore.) Oregon Statesman.

SLEDS FOR NEWSIES

Sleds, 250 of them, were distributed to the Haverhill "newsies" to help them in their work. With the collaboration of the Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette, the Moxie Company of Boston gave out to authorized carriers these runners in front of the City Hall. It required three trucks to transport the shipment from Boston.

ON 8-COLUMN BASIS

The Welch (W. Va.) Daily News celebrated the third anniversary of its establishment, Dec. 3rd, by increasing its page size to 8 columns, 12½ ems, and by receiving bids for the erection of a new three-story building.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

PAWTUCKET, R. I., TIMES Says—

"We attribute much of our success in securing from the dry mat the best printing results we have known on our newspaper to our DUPLEX HEAVY DUTY MAT ROLLER."

DUPLEX PRESSES
FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

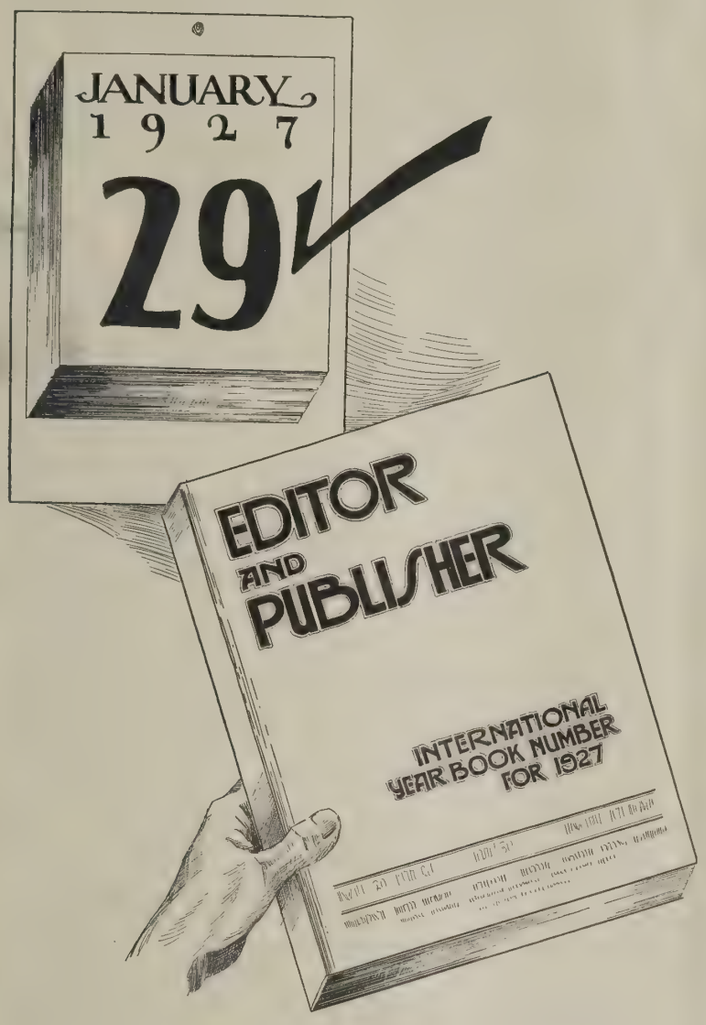
BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON
Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation
120 West 42nd Street ..... New York

ILLINOIS leads the Country in radio. Within the State are listed over 60 broadcasting stations that furnish entertainment for Illinois families.

Nearly 50,000 receiving sets are found in the homes of the farmers alone—more than in any other city.



This is a good indication that these people follow the footsteps of progress and are quick to take advantage of every new worthy invention or innovation to improve their standards of living.

The newspapers like the radio enter the homes of these wide awake people. These newspapers contain all the advanced information on what is transpiring in the radio world.

These people follow the papers very closely. You can reach them through the group listed below.

		Circulation	Rates for 2,500 Lines	Rates for 10,000 Lines
*Aurora Beacon-News	(E)	18,918	.07	.07
†Chicago Herald & Examiner	(M)	385,276	.55	.55
†Chicago Herald & Examiner	(S)	1,153,360	1.10	1.10
Chicago Daily Journal	(E)	123,469	.26	.24
*Evanston News Index	(E)	7,631	.05	.05
*Freeport Journal-Standard	(E)	9,545	.045	.045
*Joliet Herald News	(E)	19,644	.07	.07
*Mattoon Journal Gazette	(E)	5,836	.04	.04
*Moline Dispatch	(E)	12,048	.05	.05
*Monmouth Daily Review Atlas	(E)	5,338	.035	.035
*Peroria Star	(S) 23050 (E)	30,429	.085	.07
*Rock Island Argus	(E)	11,364	.05	.05
*Waukegan Daily Sun	(E)	5,348	.03	.03

*A. B. C. Statement, Oct. 1, 1926
†Government Statement, March 31, 1926

A Red Letter Day for

Newspaper Publishers
Advertising Agencies
National Advertisers
Merchandisers of Newspaper Needs

For on that day will appear this great

Newspaper Book of Knowledge

Crammed with up-to-the-minute Facts and Figures of immense usefulness and supreme necessity to the responsible men of both the newspaper and advertising crafts.

An extremely essential part of the service rendered by The International Year Book is to point out, in its advertising pages, where national advertisers can place space to the best advantage, and where newspaper publishers can get the equipment, supplies and services of which they stand in constant need.

Tell Them What You Have—What Your Products or Your Service Will Do for Them—Spread Your Entire Story Out

Nowhere else will your story reach so many prospective customers—nowhere else will it so thoroughly, so consistently and so lastingly carry your message to the very individuals you want to see it.

BUT YOU MUST BE QUICK

Forms close in two weeks—choice positions are going fast

A. B. C.
Charter Member

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Suite 1700, Times Building, New York, N.Y.

A. B. P.
Member

SHOP TALK AT THIRTY

By MARLEN PEW

NEXT July 8 John D. Rockefeller will have reached his 88th milestone. He is reported to be a daily golf player and in good health, but recent news-pictures of him show an amazingly withered, almost mummified, physiognomy. Twenty years ago, when the interview occurred, concerning which I wrote in these columns last week, his face was flushed with color, his small light-blue eyes sparkled, but I have scarcely ever beheld such wrinkled skin. His lips puckered when he spoke and at times his mouth became almost invisible. He had lost every hair of his head and wore a sandy toupee. His dress was that of an old-fashioned squire. These impressions of the physical man were soon lost sight of when he started to talk. His conversation was animated and his manner agreeable. While he gave evidence of deep cunning it was not the sort of calculating astuteness that repels. On the contrary, the old man possessed marvelous magnetic qualities. In bearing he was an unostentatious patron. I had been somewhat of a student of his monopolistic policies and once wrote the story of another old man who held John D. responsible for wrecking his rival oil business through secret freight rebates and other forms of politico-commercial skullduggery. I had read all that Ida M. Tarbell had written on the subject. I was not prepared personally to like this man who, I believed, was responsible for the conduct of a ruthless, conscienceless corporation that had been reared to power and respectability on heaps of dead men's bones. But his talk was disarming. He could see no wrong in what he had done. He was just then in the act of giving more than half a billion dollars to promote public education, health and religion. Concerning his magnificent benefactions he would say no word. He was not vain. Business was business, but it had moral laws which must be conserved. If one had told him that many believed that his commercial policies smacked of Nietzsche he would have been stunned. I doubt if John D. ever heard of Machiavelli. But his success story, as told to this writer, is the best exposition of his mind and here it is, as related on December 30, 1906, in the dining room of the lodge at his Tarrytown estate:

* * *

AFTER he had discussed business conditions as existing in this country at that time Mr. Rockefeller said: "Things used to be very different in this country. Under the old system A joined interest with B in a partnership for mutual benefit. Sometimes these partnerships were agreeable and profitable, but frequently they did not endure very long. In the old days competition was severe, and there was much unnecessary waste of material and effort. After a while it became apparent to thoughtful business men that the best way to accomplish an economic system of business was to consolidate interests. For years now interests have been consolidated and we have our great corporations as the result.

* * *

"SOMETIMES I look back upon the times in Cleveland when I was starting by business life. I remember that my first employer in Cleveland used to get $4 a ton for freighting ore from the Marquette country over the Great Lakes to Cleveland. No one complained about rates at that time. But later, when I was associated with a party of gentlemen who had consolidated these interests and we were shipping ore over the same route from Marquette to Cleveland for 68 cents a ton, I was called a wicked monopolist. But, you see what the consolidation of interests has accomplished. They used to think that a barge with a thousand tons capacity was large enough for the purpose. After the consolidation of interests and when economics were strictly regarded, we realized that a 1,000-ton barge was not wanted, and we enlarged our ships to 2,000 tons, 3,000 tons, 5,000 tons, 8,000 tons, and the ore ships today, I am told, carry as high as 10,000 tons of ore.

* * *

"WHEN we started to establish our oil business in Cleveland we were mere boys; I was between 28 and 30, I think. We went about among our competitors and we said to them. 'There is a great loss in our business. It is not good, and there is no prospect of getting any better under the present system. Your business is at a standstill as well as ours. Now, we have an idea which we believe will operate for our mutual advantage. We want to join our interests with yours, and yours with ours. You come in with us. We will take your junk pile and give you stock in our company, or we will pay you upon an equitable appraisal of your property.'

* * *

"WELL, do you know that some of them came in and some of them preferred to take the money. Those who sold out to us did not believe in our ideas. Now, they are the ones who attack us. They attack us because of their mistake. They say we are thieves and scoundrels, because they were not wise enough to see that joining interests would be proper economy. Those men who made that mistake have gone around abusing me, but I take pleasure in knowing that I did what was right and fair and for the best interests of that business. I gave them the same opportunity for success that I had. They did not accept it, and that was a bad mistake. American corporations have done much good for the people. It is a serious mistake to attempt to tear them down and return to the old idea, which made business for all of us a hard struggle. Failures of newly established business used to be, if my recollection serves me correctly, between 70 and 75 per cent. That has been greatly reduced. Failures are very few these days.

* * *

"THE prosperity we have been enjoying is due to the strict economy and wise judgment of our business men. I think that the lower section of New York City (Wall street) holds some of the finest men in the world. As a class they are very intelligent, well educated men and in their dealings they are honest and conserve the highest forms of integrity. There are exceptions, of course, but I have found most of these men as true as steel. It is a great fact that in these days of vast wealth when men can acquire large fortunes, they are not spoiled by them. These men go on working, many of them dying in harness. They do not foolishly squander their money or live high, or ruin themselves in excess. They continue to live simply and work hard and perform the honest duties of honest men. My, sometimes I lie in bed and think back of the good men I have been associated with in my life, and sometimes I am ashamed that I have not said more in praise of them. There were 60 of us in the beginning, and now all but four have gone on to the other life. Just think of it, only four left. There is Colonel Payne, who is now sixty-seven years old; Mr. H. M. Flagler, now seventy-seven years old, just ten years older than I am, and my brother, William who is sixty-six years old. Only four of us left, and isn't it strange that our business is now being administered by some of the men who were at one time our antagonists in trade. Yes, they fought us well, and now they are running our business for us," and he chuckled merrily. "Why the office boys of the old days are now conducting departments of our business. They have grown up to it, and they are part of it.

* * *

"IT is one of the greatest satisfactions of my life that I have succeeded in surrounding myself with good men. When twelve years ago. I left my business forever, I still had other interests to occupy my time, these other interests have something to do with the general good of my countrymen. And my days are all too short to attend to these matters. Golf is a diversion and keeps my health substantial. I feel that many men in business today are making a mistake in that they do not avail themselves of regular and systematic exercise. My advice to a young man at the opening of the new year is: Go straight ahead and do the best you can to make a success for yourself and keep happy and comfortable those who depend upon you. If you make mistakes remember that it is human to err, but try again and try harder. Above all things be honest, honest with yourself and with those with whom you deal. If you fail at the end you will at least have a clear conscience, and a clear conscience is a greater comfort and worth more than a fortune gained by dishonorable methods.

LAWYER WINS SUIT

In the suit against M. P. Snyder, former receiver for the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News for $10,000 unpaid salary for legal services, Attorney Lyndol Young was granted $7,500 by the court recently. The plaintiff charged that he had repeatedly been called into conference with the Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., newspaper interests for advice but had not received his full fee.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America

Buffalo—a profitable Market for Advertisers

Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes

Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y. — Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia — Waterman Bldg. Boston

225,227
Daily

The Cleveland Plain Dealer now has the largest circulation in its history

263,431
Sunday

J. B. Woodward, 110 E. 42d St., New York
Woodward & Kelly, 350 N. Mich. Ave., Chicago

Regional Advertising at Regional Rates
in
The Christian Science Monitor

An International Daily Newspaper
Publishing SELECTED ADVERTISING
ATLANTIC, CENTRAL and PACIFIC Editions
Rates and Circulation Data Supplied on Request

ADVERTISING OFFICES

Boston	New York	Kansas City
Philadelphia	London	San Francisco
Chicago	Paris	Los Angeles
Cleveland	Florence	Seattle
Detroit		Portland

"Buy What You Can Use"

in Detroit—

Free Press circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

The "Free Press"
"Starts the day in Detroit"

With a stable, uninflated, liberal pursed circulation productive of greater advertising returns at lower cost.

65,663
NET PAID
CIRCULATION
Cover Half a State
EVENING COURIER
MORNING POST
CAMDEN, N. J.
National Representatives
Story, Brooks & Finley.

Peoria
The Try-Out City
THE PEORIA
JOURNAL
Transcript
Puts Tryouts Over!
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Boston

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Stuart Campbell New Art Director of Ray D. Lillibridge, Inc.—Rickard & Co. to Move to Uptown New York Next April—Carrie Now with Seattle Agency

UART CAMPBELL, for the past ear art director for R. H. Macy & will become art director of Ray D. bridge, Inc., New York advertising cy, on Jan. 1. He has at different s been connected with the Corman pany and N. W. Ayer & Son. An- Melvin, who has been connected the Lillibridge agency for several s, will be assistant art director.

ckard & Co., Inc., will celebrate its anniversary next April by moving 25 Spruce street to the Graybar ling in uptown New York, opposite Grand Central station.

he firm name of the Frank G. ris Company, New York advertis- gency, will become Frank G. Morris pany, Inc., on Jan. 1. There is no ge in personnel or ownership.

ss Crauford has joined the copy of Evans, Kip & Hackett, Inc., York. He was recently with the Company, Inc.

C. Currie, for several years with dvertising department of the Seattle -Intelligencer and also with other ern and eastern papers has joined the ry-Batchelor Advertising Agency, Eilers Building, Spokane, Wash. He rving as plan and layout specialist.

t C. Wildman has resigned as vice- dent and business manager of James Rothschild, Inc., to become a vice- dent of the United Advertising cy, Inc., New York City. He was tly the head of his own agency.

stin F. Bement Inc., Detroit adver- agency, announces the opening of icago office at 456 Wrigley Building. Claire C. Loveless, formerly advertising manager of the Wahl Company, manufacturers of Eversharp pencils and Wahl pens, and more recently with the Charles H. Touzalin Agency, is in charge.

Associated with Mr. Loveless is R. K. Jorgensen, formerly of the Mitchell-Faust Advertising Company, and more recently with Collins-Kirk, Inc.

Samuel M. Kootz, formerly with the George L. Dyer Company, has joined the staff of Reimers & Osborn, Inc., of New York advertising agency, as contact representative.

J. R. Busk, formerly sales and advertising manager of the Pantasote Company, Inc., recently joined the staff of Frank Seaman Incorporated as an account executive.

J. W. Sanger, manager of the foreign department of Frank Seaman, Inc., who has been on an extended business trip abroad since August, returned recently.

John Magee and Norwood Weaver have acquired interests in Calkins & Holden, Inc., New York advertising agency, and will become members of the board Jan. 1.

Blandord A. Doane has been elected secretary of the Walter A. Allen Agency, Inc., Hartford, Conn.

Charles C. Baldwin has joined the plan and copy staff of J. M. Daiger & Co., Inc., Baltimore advertising agency. He was formerly with Albert Frank & Co.

Stanley C. Swanberg has been elected vice-president of the Botsford-Constantine Company, Portland, Ore. He is in charge of the California accounts.

AD TIPS

W. Ayer & Son, 308 Chestnut street, elphia. Reported to have secured ac- of the S. B. & B. W. Fleisher, Inc., Philadelphia. Placing 12-inch 30-time for E. R. Squibb & Sons, medicine, lyn, N. Y. Also placing account of the nt Mfg. Co., "Trimo" pipe wrenches, ry, Mass.

rge Batten Company, 383 Madison avenue, York. Now handling account of the tts Corporation, breakfast foods, Buffalo.

amy-Neff Company, 1277 North Dearborn Chicago. Placing orders with news- in selected sections for the Utah Radio cts Company, Chicago.

chy Company, 9 Murray street, New Making contracts with newspapers in s sections for the Hiscox Chemical , Parker's Hair Balsam, Patchogue, ards, Ewing & Jones, 36 West 44th New York. Reported to have secured t of the Deltox Grass Rug Company, sh, Wis.

rt Frank & Co., 14 Stone street, New Have been appointed to place account Lorraine Mfg. Company, New York.

P. Gould Company, 450 4th avenue, New Reported will place account for Henry Tetlows Company, "Pussy Willow" and "Swansdown" face powder, Philadelphia, after February 1.

Walter F. Haehnle Company, 505 Gwynn Building, Cincinnati, Ohio. Renewing some newspaper contracts for Berger Bros., "Buckeye" malt extract, Cincinnati.

William Irving Hamilton, 267 5th avenue, New York. Now handling account of the De Long Hook & Eye Company, Philadelphia.

Harvey Zoeller & Co., 104 5th avenue, New York. Placing account for the American Tobacco Company's "Blue Boar" brand tobacco.

Charles W. Hoyt Company, 116 West 32nd street, New York. Making contracts with newspapers in various sections for Chas. Gulden, Inc., Gulden's mustard, New York. Also placing account for the Pilot Life Insurance Company, Greensboro, N. C.

Hurja-Johnson-Hewen, Inc., 1010 Hearst Building, Chicago. Placing account for the Anchor Electric Company, shock absorbers, Chicago.

Increased Sales, Inc., Equitable Building, Baltimore, Md. Placing orders with newspapers in various sections for the C. A. Reed Company, "Reed's Crepe Papers," Williamsport, Pa.

Lyddon & Hanford Co., 110 East 42nd street, New York. Reported to have secured account of the United States Fisheries, Inc., New York.

H. K. McCann Company, 285 Madison avenue, New York. Making propositions with newspapers for 1927 campaigns for the Standard Oil Company of N. J., Flit insecticides, New York.

Olson & Enzinger, Inc., 800 Century Building, Milwaukee, Wis. Reported to have secured account of the Jersild Knitting Company, Needham, Wis. Pickus-Weiss, Inc., 307 No. Michigan avenue, Chicago. Now handling account for Peruna, No-Ake and Eatonic.

Fred M. Randall Company, Book Tower, Detroit. Have been retained to handle account of the Gabriel Steel Company, Detroit.

Joseph Richards Company, 247 Park avenue, New York. Reported to have secured account of Block Brothers, "Mail Pouch" and "Wizard" tobacco, Wheeling, West Va. Placing account for the Lamson Company, Syracuse, N. Y., Ice Maid refrigerator.

Arthur Rosenberg Company, 110 West 34th street. New York. Now handling account for the End Mfg. Company, brassiers, New York.

O. S. Tyson & Co., Inc., 16 East 41st street, New York. Handling pyrometers account for the United Hardware & Tool Corporation, New York.

CONDUCTING FAN VOTE

Cincinnati Post Asking Readers' Opinions On Speaker-Cobb Case

That the baseball fans should have a say as to whether Tris Speaker and Tyrus Cobb are to have a public hearing before Judge K. M. Landis and the National Baseball Commission is the belief of Editor Elmer P. Fried of the Cincinnati Post.

A referendum has been started by the Cincinnati Post and all Scripps-Howard papers in front page articles in which fans are urged to send in their opinions on a coupon attached. These coupons are to be forwarded to Judge Landis to aid him in reaching his decision on whether to reopen the case. Fans are asked to say on the coupons whether they believe the accused are guilty or whether they should have an open hearing.

THOMAS A.
EDISON

FOUR EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEWS

First Newspaper Publication

RELEASED JANUARY 16

"Machine-Made Freedom"

"Youth of Today and Tomorrow"

"The Scientific City of the Future"

"Has Man an Immortal Soul?"

The following territory is already closed:

NEW YORK
BOSTON
WASHINGTON
CHICAGO
DETROIT
ALBANY
SYRACUSE
ATLANTA
SEATTLE
ROCHESTER
LOS ANGELES
MILWAUKEE
SAN FRANCISCO
SAN ANTONIO
BALTIMORE

UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE

World Building New York

have you been following the remarkable growth of the Detroit Times

The Los Angeles EVENING HERALD consistently carries more paid advertising than any daily newspaper in the west

Representatives

New York — W. Moloney, Times Bldg.
Chicago — John H. Lederer, 910 Hearst Bldg.
San Francisco — A. J. Norris Hill, 610 Hearst Bldg.

THROUGH the HEART of COLUMBUS OHIO

106,814

Dispatch average daily net paid circulation six months' period ending September 30th, 1926. This exceeded second paper by 19,163.

City 55,920
Suburban 27,897
Country 22,997

City circulation of the Dispatch equals 90% of the homes in Columbus.

The Columbus Dispatch

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

PLANNING WASHINGTON NEWSPAPER PROGRAM

Set Speeches to Be Kept at Minimum at University Institute—Round-Table Discussions Featured

Plans for the Washington Newspaper Institute to be held in Seattle, Feb. 17, 18 and 19, under the auspices of the School of Journalism at the University, are being formulated by Leo A. Borah, director of the School.

Set speeches are being done away with for the most part this year and in their place are a number of round-table discussions on topics of vital interest to publishers, which will be led by someone particularly skilled in the subject under discussion.

Topics already chosen for discussion at the round-table meetings are: Make-up; "Combating Fake Advertising Schemes;" "Employing Local Merchants as the Best Aid in Procuring Foreign Advertising;" "How to Make the Paper Interesting;" a discussion of the use of serial stories, mat features, feature stories, puzzles, contests, etc.; "Free Publicity;" "The Twelve Against the Thirteen-em Column;" "Editorial Paragraph Writing;" "Systems of Tracing Repeat Jobs in the Job Department, and a System of Uniform Account Books;" "What to Do When the Press Is Not Turning Out Attractive Pages;" "How the Country Paper Can Serve Its Community;" "What Bus and Stage Competition with the Railroads Means to the Country Paper;" "How Many Days an Editor Should Spend on his Paper;" "Ad Composition."

The formal speech topics are: "Farmers and Newspapers;" "Reaction on Circulation Contests;" "More and Better Advertising;" "What Does the Farmer Want?" "Laws the Publisher Should Know;" "How the Newspaper Can Help the Pulpit."

All these topics were suggested for discussion by the editors themselves by means of questionnaires sent out by the School of Journalism.

LETTERS FROM READERS

THE RELIGIOUS "CENSUS"

To Editor & Publisher: Every Sunday morning in many parts of the world millions of church members repeat in unison "I believe in God." They also reiterate their faith in the divinity of Jesus, in immortality, and in other fundamental religious doctrines.

The "religious questionnaire" which the Church Advertising Department of the International Advertising Association requested the editors of this country to print was intended to give these same people a chance "to tell it to the world!" This, by the way, is in exact conformity with the command of the Founder of Christianity, who exhorted His followers to give public testimony to their religious beliefs and personal experiences.

Your criticism of the printing of the questionnaire is just a bit far-fetched, particularly in the illustration which you gave of the layman who "walked up to a stranger and asked him if he believed in a personal God," etc. This was not done by the newspapers and any intelligent reader who was not interested in the questionnaire quietly ignored it, as he had a right to do, just as he might ignore the printing of pages of matter dealing with the Mills-Hall case which immediately preceded the week during which the religious questionnaire was printed. There was no imposition, no objectionable sign of curiosity, no personal importuning, no "bally-hooing," nothing at which anybody could possibly take offense.

Furthermore, it should be remembered that this questionnaire was framed by one hundred of the leading clergymen of America representing various denominations, men presumably of the finest sensibilities, and with a high sense of the rightness of religious practices, for example—such men as Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Dr. William P. Merrill, Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, Dr. Finis S. Idleman of New York; Dr. Merton S. Rice, Dr. Joseph A. Vance, Dr. Gaius Glenn Atkins, Dr. Lynn Harold Hough of Detroit; Dr. John Timothy Stone, Dr. Ernest Bourner Allen, Dr. Carl Safford Patton, Dr. Harold Stanley Stewart of Chicago; Dr. Burris A. Jenkins, Dr. William L. Stidger, Dr. Harold Clayton Rogers of Kansas City; Dr. Charles Wood, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, of Washington, D. C.; Dr. A. Z. Conrad of Boston; Dr. Raymond Calkins of Cambridge; Dr. Allen A. Stockdale of Toledo; Dr. Henry Chapman Swearingen of St. Paul; Dr. Frederick E. Taylor of Indianapolis. Many of these men were the presidents of their national denominational bodies.

I wonder if the questionnaire is all that you say it is, it could have got by such men as the managing editors of the New York World, the Philadelphia Bulletin, the Washington Star, the Chicago Daily News, the Kansas City Star, the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, the Minneapolis Tribune, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, the Denver Post, and 150 others.

You question the value of the results. Probably the same thing might be said of any kind of a vote. Even Mr. Coolidge was elected by about 25 per cent of the eligible voters of the country. However, it was very clearly demonstrated to those who know the facts about the religious life of the country that those who voted—whether they were "very zealous religionists or very zealous anti-religionists"—clearly reflected the opinion of a great horizontal slice of the population of this country, for as it was shown in the number of those who were recorded as church members, the figure given exactly coincided with what was already known to be the percentage of church members in the cities as a whole. It is fairly reasonable to suppose, therefore, that their attitude toward the religious questions involved was that of the great masses of people, even though the latter did not actually vote.

It is interesting, also, that the figures produced, even though the number of voters was comparatively small, has been very generally accepted by the statisticians in the church, even though these statistics contain a terrific indictment of the Church itself because of the obvious fact that the Church actually reaches a small minority of those who expressed their belief in religion, or even those who admitted that they were members of the church. It is not fair, therefore, for you to say that "if advertising copy is made from them [these statistics], it will merely increase the fund of public misinformation."

Whether or not the use of a questionnaire of this character is a "violation of established newspaper principles" must, of course, be determined by each editor for himself. That the editors of this country believed that the use of the questionnaire was not such a violation is very obvious, for not only was the questionnaire printed by those to whom it was offered—only one paper in each principal city—but by large numbers of other papers throughout the country who, upon their own initiative, printed this questionnaire, and when they had finished using it, many of them said both editorially and in personal letters to the office of the Church Advertising Department—and these letters were entirely unsolicited—that they regarded the questionnaire as one of the most effective things of its kind that had ever been done in this country. "Never has this community been so stirred religiously in many years as it has been during the time that the twelve questions appeared daily in the newspaper," wrote one editor.

The local ministers who were interviewed by enterprising newspaper editors almost unanimously declared before and during the use of the questionnaire that it was a highly commendable enterprise.

In view of all this, and knowing your sympathetic attitude toward all good things, particularly toward the highest form of religion, it is with keen regret that I read your editorial in the issue of Dec. 25.

Charles Stelzle,
President, Church Advertising Dept.
International Advertising Association.

PEAT TO SUBSTITUTE

To Editor & Publisher: I have read with interest the item on Page 13 of Editor & Publisher of December 18, "Seeking Paper from Peat."

Every little while somebody bobs up with a plan of this sort. There is slight possibility of anything of practical importance in this line of paper manufacture based upon peat and still less that newsprint will be made this way.

The best use of peat is for fuel and fertilizer. Anyone who is disposed to waste his money can find other ways more attractive than these paper-making experiments for such material.

R. S. Kellogg,
Secretary.
News Print Service Bureau.

RENO DAILY SOLD

Gov. James G. Scrugham, of Nevada, has purchased the Reno (Nev.) State Journal from Vida M. Boyle, widow of former Gov. E. D. Boyle.

"Matrimony is a serious word," says a domestic science lecturer. Wrong. Matrimony is a sentence.—New York American.

A paper with the people

The public decides the progress of a newspaper.

The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.

Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.

With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.

Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN

NEW YORK
EVENING GRAPHIC

H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

Thorough Coverage in One of the World's Richest Buying Centers—Coupled with the Ability to Produce Results

Pittsburgh Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening except Sunday)

These newspapers in News and Advertising have the confidence of their readers.
Their readers have the power to purchase.

Sold Singly or Combined

URBAN E. DICE, Nat'l Advg. Mgr.
Gazette Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.
E. M. BURKE, Inc.,
1457 Broadway, New York.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL COMPANY,
742 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
White-Henry-Stuart Bldg., Seattle, Wash.

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

SERVICE
THE CHARLES PARTLOW COMPANY
America's Largest Circulation Building Organization
-RESULTS COUNT-
6th Floor Occidental Blg.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

In 1926

THE SUN
PUBLISHED MORE
ADVERTISING
THAN ANY OTHER
NEW YORK
EVENING
NEWSPAPER

The Sun
280 Broadway New York

LA PRENSA
OF Buenos Aires

"South America's Greatest Newspaper"

"A modern newspaper, truly American, which has at its disposition the most perfect mechanical equipment, abundant world-wide news . . . . . LA PRENSA, throughout its life of more than half a century, has always been the unquestioned champion of all the great endeavors that most honor and dignify modern South American journalism."

O PAIZ - -
Rio de Janeiro

JOSHUA B. POWERS
Exclusive Advertising Representative
250 Park Ave. New York

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED

SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK

Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

GENERAL NATHAN CHURCH

il War Veteran and Editor Burned to Death at Ithaca, Mich.

dj. Gen. Nathan Church, 82, was ied to death Dec. 27, when he was ped in the offices of his newspaper, Ithaca (Mich.) Gratiot County Her- which was destroyed by fire.

eneral Church was in command of Twenty-sixth at the Battle of Bloody le, which resulted in the surrender lajor General Edward Johnson, fa- s Confederate officer. He established of the largest banks in his district in addition engaged in the lumber real estate business. The fire de- ed an entire block, doing damage nated at $150,000.

ALBERT MILLICAN

neer Texas Printer Once Arrested nder Blue Laws for Sunday Work

cent death of Albert Millican, old- printer, at the age of 78 in Fort th, recalled to Fort Worth pioneers urrest of Millican and other members he old Daily Advance mechanical in 1881 by a zealous town marshal avoring to enforce blue laws. The anical crew was jailed for working unday.

enry Furman, who later became a ber of the Oklahoma Supreme t, defended the printers and to his uence, in declaring that the "pen is tier than the sword" and a news- r worth more to a town than any- else, is attributed the court's action smissing the charges.

EDMOND T. SAYERS

mond T. Sayers, 63, a well known e in Montreal newspaper advertis- and publicity circles and secretary- urer of the St. James Literary ty since 1920, died Dec. 29 at his . He was at one time an actor, and d Australia in Shakespearean roles. ater worked on the advertising staffs e Montreal Standard and Le Prix nt.

POLITICAL REPORTER DIES

rvey D. Smith, political writer for Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph and president of the Pennsylvania Legis- Correspondents' Association died home in Pittsburgh Dec. 28, after rt illness. For several years Mr. had been a civil service examiner he Civil Service Commission of urgh. His wife and three children re.

FRANK E. CRANE

nk E. Crane, managing editor of rie (Pa.) Times died at his home on Dec. 20, after a week's illness pneumonia. He had been identified the Times for about 18 years, serv- reporter, city editor and managing . He was 42 years of age and rvived by his wife and three chil- He was president of the Erie Newswriters Association for several years. He was also prominent in the work of the City Rescue Mission and the Salvation Army.

SIVERT E. PETERSON

Sivert E. Peterson, secretary of the Montana State Press Association and until recently secretary of the Great Falls (Mont.) Chamber of Commerce, took his own life on the morning of Dec. 22 by shooting himself while in a garage in the rear of his home. It is believed that he killed himself because of despondency over financial affairs. At one time he owned the Moore (Mont.) Inland Empire.

Obituary

MISS EDNA B. KINARD, club editor of the Oakland (Cal.) Tribune, died Dec. 12.

MRS. DEVON E. FRANCIS, 24, wife of the Associated Press representative in Arizona, died in Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 17.

FRANK P. ALEXANDER, 55, retired two years ago after 10 years as "make-up" man for the Lincoln (Ill.) Star, died Dec. 17. He was a charter member of the typographical union and for 40 years was a printer in Lincoln.

STEPHEN J. SCHENCK, 69, veteran printer of the Wellsville (N. Y.) Record, died in his home in that village after an illness of three weeks.

MRS. MARGARET V. FOWLER, 72, mother of A. Linde Fowler, golf editor of the Boston Transcript and Carl G. Fowler, special writer on the same paper died at Homeopathic hospital, Boston, Dec. 26.

CAPT. FRANK A. WYNNE, 56, who, with his brother, W. R. Wynne, established the Wynne Advertising Agency in Dallas, died recently in a Dallas sanitarium following long illness.

THOMAS F. MCAULIFFE, news editor of the Boston Globe, died at the Palmer Memorial Hospital in Roxbury Dec. 24, just three hours after observing his 64th birthday.

PHILIP M. CULLINAN, 67, owner and editor of the New Lexington (O.) Herald for 44 years, died at his home there recently after an illness of a year. He was a life term trustee of the Ohio University at Athens, O., and was a director of the New Lexington Savings and Loan Company. His wife survives.

WHIT FAUCETTE, veteran Raleigh, N. C., printer, dropped dead in the corridor of the state capitol Wednesday. Mr. Faucette was to have been an honor guest at a dinner for old-time printers Thursday night.

WILL CURTIS, 60, for nearly 20 years publisher of the Kewanee (Ill.) Star and later business manager of the Kewanee Printing & Publishing company, which published the Star-Courier, died Dec. 22, in his home in St. James, Minn., where for the last 18 years he had published the St. James Plain Dealer.

GALEN L. STONE, 64, retired banker and former Boston newspaperman died at home in Brookline, Mass., December 26. When a youth he joined staff of Boston Commercial Bulletin as reporter and later was with old Boston Advertiser covering the financial district, turning the knowledge thus gained to use. He afterward entered the banking business and was a former member of Hayden, Stone & Co., Boston bankers. Retiring a few years ago he was considered one of the wealthiest men in New England, his fortune being estimated at between fifteen and twenty million dollars.

FRANKLIN G. WHITNEY, Chicago manager of the Dry Goods Economist and an expert on textiles, was found dead in his room in the Evanston hotel, Evanston, recently. Heart disease is believed to have been the cause of his death.

JULES BLOTTIAUX, for 20 years connected with the circulation of the Chicago Journal died in the County hospital during the week from injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile.

BAD EDITORSHIP DEFINED

Australian Journalist Describes Type Menacing Newspaper Profession

Incompetent editors are at present doing more harm to the profession of journalism in Australia than any other cause, according to the Australasian Journalist, which describes editorial inefficiency as follows:

"The incompetent editor grades his staff by favoritism instead of merit. He breaks the hearts of good men by putting them on trivial footling jobs. For guidance he looks to the methods of 10 years ago, instead of contemporary journalism in other countries.

"It is a system that favors the clerk reporter type, and drives journalists into commerce, and writers into pubs."

COMPOSITOR ELECTED MAYOR

Thomas J. McGrath, a compositor with the Boston (Mass.) Transcript since 1906, was elected mayor of Quincy, Mass., Dec. 21 for two years by a majority of 466 votes. McGrath, a native of Boston and a resident of Quincy since 1879, learned the printer's trade on the Quincy Patriot Ledger. He is a member of the Boston Typographical Union, has been on the city council for 12 years.

NEW I. N. S. CLIENTS

Among the new clients of International News Service are the Tampa (Fla.) La Prensa, Woodbury (N. J.) Times, and Sanford (Fla.) Herald.

Too many of our new Senators seem to be turning up in Washington with a past instead of a future.—Detroit (Mich.) News.

Largest Newspaper West of Chicago

500,000

Copies DAILY

The KANSAS CITY STAR

A Different Health Service

That will produce and anchor circulation.

A Daily and Sunday Health Article, and readers' questions answered by Dr. Frank McCoy.

Write or Wire Today

McCoy Health Service
Brack Shops Building
Los Angeles, California

GROWING

Circulation
Advertising Volume
Reader Interest

are making South Florida's already greatest newspaper the dominating paper, not only in its own field but in the entire State.

The Tampa Morning Tribune
TAMPA, FLORIDA
S. C. Beckwith Special Agency
National Representatives

We wish you a prosperous New Year — and we're ready to help make our wish come true!

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building, Philadelphia

A BETTER PICTURE PAGE

Perfectly balanced in news interest and pictorial quality is the daily 8-column picture page supplied without extra charge to EFS clients. It's made up to get and keep the eye of the entire family.

Write for proofs

EDITORS' FEATURE SERVICE, INC.
Times Building, Cleveland, O.

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.

Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

LITTLE HUMP-BACKED MAKE-UP RULE HAS A THOUSAND USES

JUST a little hump-backed piece of steel is that instrument known as the printer's make-up rule. But in versatility it probably is the greatest of tools in use by craftsmen of today. Its uses are virtually unlimited.

You have read, no doubt, of the printer who pulled a loose tooth by twisting it with his rule, thus saving himself the torments of a toothache. And of the man who improvised a tourniquet with the make-up rule and a handkerchief, preventing a youth from bleeding to death. These stories may read like fiction but more than likely are founded on fact.

The late President Harding carried his make-up rule until he died. It was the plain old garden variety of steel rule, until his employes on the Marion Star gave him a gold-plated one engraved with his name. But yet, if we may hazard a guess, the old rule still did duty around the White House, pulling out a tack here, tightening up a loose screw there, or prying off the lid of a recalcitrant tin can.

A man with an original turn of mind can put his make-up rule to hundreds of uses every day of the world. With it he can uncork a bottle, clean paint off a window, mark a place in a novel, adjust a carburetor, fill up an oil cup, fix a spark plug or mend a tire, butter a piece of toast, clip a newspaper, weigh a letter, make a knife, a screw driver, a chisel or a nail file, mix paint or ink, clean ink off a printing press, pare potatoes, slice a watermelon, peel an apple, quarter a pie or cut a cake, sharpen a pencil cream butter for a cake, flop a flapjack, adjust a typewriter, clean a pipe, cut a piece of chewing tobacco, scrape insulated wire, hang a picture, pick a lock or repair a fuse plug.

And so on, ad infinitum. A resourceful printer needs no list. All he desires is the opportunity, and he uses the make-up rule to fit the occasion. As a pocket piece he finds it indispensable. It is a thousand tools in one.

The pen, we are told, is mightier than the sword. Perhaps it is so. But if, with the increasing complexities of modern times, we may some time grant a place to an instrument mightier than the pen, it will certainly be occupied by the printer's make-up rule—Editorial Santa Rosa (Cal.) Republican.

NEW HOE SALES OFFICE

H. R. Swartz Announces Opening of New Orleans Branch

H. R. Swartz, president of R. Hoe & Company, Inc., announced the opening this week of a sales office in the Pere Marquette Building, New Orleans, with Howard Reynolds, for many years Southern representative of the company, as manager and H. D. Williams as his assistant.

The opening of a sales office in the South, according to Mr. Swartz, is in line with the new organization's plan for a more comprehensive sales and service policy. This is one of the first steps in the carrying out of that plan.

Shortly after the first of the New Year an office will be opened in San Francisco as Pacific Coast headquarters, in charge of Ernest G. Beveridge, who has been connected with the company in its service and sales departments for many years.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

BOSTON (Mass.) POST has purchased two new Hoe 16-page heavy-pattern press units.

Wayne (Neb.) Herald's new home is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy soon. E. W. Huse, owner, will install new presses and other mechanical equipment in the new home and change from a six to eight-column paper.

The following newspapers have recently installed Elrod casters: Washington (D. C.) Bulletin; Buffalo (N. Y.) Catholic Union; Meadville (Pa.) Tribune; Sanford (Fla.) Times; and the Saranac Lake (N. Y.) Adirondack Enterprise.

Fairchilds Press, of New York City, publisher of Women's Wear and other publications, has installed 14 multiple-magazine Intertypes. The 6½ point 2-A, type face recently designed by Intertype was adopted as the new dress for Women's Wear.

Memphis (Tenn.) Press-Scimitar has purchased of R. Hoe & Co., Inc., a 64-page press and two 16-page press units.

Jackson (Tenn.) Sun, Albert A. Stone, publisher, is having a new 16-page Duplex tubular press installed.

Statesville (N. C.) Daily expects to move into its new home early in the new year.

Fremont (O.) Messenger has purchased of R. Hoe & Co., Inc., a 16-page press with complete stereotyping machinery.

Kirkland (Wash.) Journal, on Jan. 1 moved into new offices in the Burke & Farrar building of Kirkland.

PLANNING TEXAS DAILY

A new morning daily for Borger, Te new oil town, is being planned by Ern G. Albright, who has leased the Borg Publishing Company. The paper will called the Morning Telegraph.

NEW A. P. MEMBER

The Fergus Falls (Minn.) Da Journal has been elected to members in the Associated Press. Elmer Adams is publisher.

Supplies and Equipment

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSES

Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Presses

GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for black or color work, also Goss Sextuple.

HOE Pony Quadruple, Quadruple, Sextuple, Sextuple color Press, Octuple and Double Sextuple Presses.

DUPLEX Metropolitan Quadruple stereotype presses—print up to 32 pages.

Available For Early Delivery

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Main Office & Factory.....Plainfield, N. J.
New York Office..Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office.....Monadnock Block

Modern
Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

PRESS CONTROL
C-H
"Safest System in the World"

For large and small plants

Cutler-Hammer Controllers for presses of every size and for every type of motor-driven machine.

Address all communications:
The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.
Pioneer Manufacturers of Electric Control Apparatus
1203 St. Paul Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.

CUTLER-HAMMER

Rebuilt GOSS & HOE PRESS BARGAINS
ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO - NEW YORK - LONDON

GOSS STEREOTYPING MACHINERY
Carried in Stock

Fastest, most easily operated, most accurate and durable flat casting box you can buy. Perfectly balanced. New design lock-up bar allows for quick change when regulating thickness of casts. Positive quick lock-up at four points on box with one lever movement. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Hoe Quick-Lock-Up Flat Casting Mould

The throwing of a single Lever locks this Hoe Flat Casting Mould which is carefully designed and constructed for perfect Balance as well as Quality and Durability.

Made in three sizes—five, seven and eight columns.

If It's a Hoe, It's the Best.

R. HOE & CO., Inc.
7 South Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

504-520 Grand St., N. Y. City
Also at DUNELLEN, N. J.
7 Water Street, BOSTON, MASS.

EVERY publisher in the United States wants something—an editor, a reporter, a mechanic, an advertising man, a piece of machinery. Most every publisher wants to sell something. Most every publisher wants to exchange or trade something he doesn't need. How is he going to find what he is looking for? By putting his wants and needs into words, and by putting those words in the classified columns of Editor & Publisher.

Employment—Equipment—Services

ITOR & PUBLISHER

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)
1 Time — .40 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS
(Cash with Order)
1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

space charge at same rate per line per ion as earned by frequency of insertion. l rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. Editor & Publisher reserves the right to y, edit or reject any advertisement.

UNT SIX WORDS TO THE LINE

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

tising Promotion—If you want more ss, communicate with the International ations Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, Broadway, New York City.

l Sections—Model Homes, Real Estate, Who numbers net $10,000. Accounts nteed. William E. Jordan Organization, cific street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

SINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

n of Publishing Properties for Sale— class, general, etc., sent upon request. -Dibble Co., 345 Madison avenue, New City.

Answer This Ad. Unless you have to invest in a high class, long estab- evening paper, occupying exclusive field rning 20% net on price asked. J. B. Times Bldg., New York.

Newspapers For Sale

g Daily, Weekly and Job Plant for sale thern city of 25,000. Established 1842. $32,500; $12,000 cash, terms to suit on . Liberal discount for all cash. Im- delivery. Owner has other interests ng entire time. References required of tive buyer. Address Owner, Box B-684, & Publisher.

Newspapers Wanted

Wanted on small daily, with option to hin twelve months. Central states. Can best references. Address B-685, Edi- Publisher.

Publication for Sale

Legal Publication for sale; now making Located in the best city in the country l advertising. B-682, Editor & Publisher.

CIRCULATION

Promotion

tion—When quick, additional circulation e becomes necessary, remember that our years in this one line of endeavor is roof against experimenting. Write or acific Coast Circulation Service, Bell Cincinnati, Ohio.

ion Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Cen- , Reading, Penn. Originators of Sales- Club Campaigns.

ur Pottery Direct for supplies to start y dish offer. Results—Low cost. The China Co., Carrollton, Ohio.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

g for a Gold Star Mother—Jerry Tarbot stery Soldier of the World War, has his own story. Thirty-two cities already Wire for details. The Graphic Syn- nc., 25 City Hall Place, N. Y. C.

Buyers of all torial Features read the ITOR & PUBLISHER.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Business Manager—Young man for small afternoon daily; must know job work, circulation and advertising. State references and salary required. White B-660, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Executive with metropolitan daily newspaper, between 35 and 45, with good presence and education. Must have forceful personality, initiative and successful record. Exceptional opportunity for high-grade man having newspaper experience. Thorough knowledge of newspaper circulation essential. State qualifications also salary expected. Replies confidential. B-690, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager—We have a position for a circulation man who has the ability to watch the detail of an entire department. He must be able to get in his circulation money close to 100%. He must be able to get service of the best from his carrier organization. These matters of collections and service are very important, and their proper handling absolutely necessary. One thing that will make him solid with our organization is his promotion ability; the ability to get, and above all things to hold, new business. He must know carrier boy promotion and how to handle solicitors. We prefer a man 25 to 30 years of age. He will be backed with an honest-to-goodness newspaper. This is a tough job for a real fighter whose heart can't be broken by a real battle. Write us a letter outlining in detail your past positions, your salary on each, the figures of the results accomplished on each; your present salary; the salary you will expect with us, and any other information you think of importance. Include names of your former employers, so that we may write to them. If you are a salesman, sell us in your letter of application. B-679, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Salesman wanted at once. Must be able to sell and increase linage. Splendid opportunity for real worker to advance to charge of department if he produces. Write, telling why you can fulfill and salary desired to start. Mr. Norton, Niagara Falls Gazette.

Local Display Manager, with record, wanted by leading paper in midwest city of one hundred and ten thousand; central location; rapidly growing town; splendid working conditions. Give us complete details in first letter, with photo if possible. B-697, Editor & Publisher.

Pressman—Stereotyper-pressman, 12 page Tubular, evening. Thoroughly experienced only. News-Journal, Wilmington, Ohio.

Situations Wanted

Account Executive or advertising manager with 10 years agency and newspaper experience. Ideal man for special representative. Age 30, married. Prefer New York or vicinity. Please grant interview. B-665, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Executive—Salesman and department manager with successful record; married; own home; five years present connection. Would consider new position in Middle West if opportunity for future was offered. Present income $7,500. Can build advertising linage and prestige. Address B-631, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager seeks opportunity with growing daily in city up to 150,000 population, where future prospects, living conditions, invite permanent connection. Thoroughly schooled in advertising work under most adverse conditions; unusually good copy writer; plentifully supplied with the ability to create new linage records. Keen, ambitious, efficient and conscientious. Second papers, hard propositions welcome. Married, age 28, now near New York. Will go anywhere. B-658, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Salesman, thoroughly experienced, will be available January 15th, 1927, for position. Eight years' experience. Has handled general copy and Real Estate sections. College graduate. B-671, care Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Statistician, young man, competent organizer, department manager. Research, surveys, promotion. Record speaks for itself. B-692, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Solicitor—Can write own copy or take full charge of advertising department. Prefer a position near New York. Weekly or small daily. Hard worker. B-691, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Executive with successful sales and business record open for connection where he can purchase middle west daily (all or part) after demonstrating ability. Address B-686, Editor & Publisher.

Cartoonist wants to know why cruel editors won't give him a chance to show his ability. Editorial or political cartoons especially. Anywhere in United States. Give reasons to B-693, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Circulation Manager, fifteen years' experience, large and small dailies. Familiar with all details, systems, A. B. C. records, etc. B-664, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, with fourteen years' active experience, morning, evening, Sunday field. Complete record showing results secured in each position together with references from past employers. Good reason for wanting change. B-673, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, 35, married, industrious, wants situation in city 75,000 to 100,000; 8 years' experience. At present employed, but desires change. Address B-657, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation—Florida publisher: Can you use eastern circulation manager, now employed, who has had years of experience on large and small dailies? Knows all angles of circulation work and will furnish references. Write or wire, B-667, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Manager, fully experienced, at liberty January 15th. In the last three years have established an unusual (proven) record. Best of reference and facts furnished by present publisher. For correspondence or interview address Albert B. Harris, 41 Chestnut St., Albany, N. Y.

Classified Manager desires to meet publisher planning to increase permanent classified business. Now employed. 12 years' experience in classified and display, evening and morning field; thoroughly familiar with selling and promotion. Prefer Middle West City over 100,000. B-688, Editor & Publisher.

Chief Accountant or Business Manager; 10 years' experience leading Evening paper in City 125,000. Location New York or New England. B-687, Editor & Publisher.

Humorous Column, or laugh-coaxing treatment applied to news articles, or both, by a man with years of all 'round experience in and out of newspaper work. This may be taken as a threat or a promise, or merely as an indication of the decadence of modern journalism. Publishers are ever looking for fresh slants along lines humorous. Ours is fresh, even impertinent, Am foot-loose, ad lib and a la carte Jan. 1st, and, while preferring New York, our bag is packed. Address care of Editor & Publisher, Jack Lloyd.

Manager—For the past six years I have managed almost entirely by myself an evening newspaper of three thousand circulation. Profits in that time have more than tripled, due partly to increase in rates and additional local advertisers. Understand every department. Am open for proposition to take complete charge. This is not a rush proposition and I would investigate your offer thoroughly as you will be privileged to investigate me. Salary expected $8,000.00. B-694, Editor & Publisher.

Manager Weekly or Small Daily, preferably near N. Y., salary or commission. Invest later. Eight years' experience, business, editorial, including metropolitan papers. B-668, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Some newspaper will welcome this opportunity to secure services of experienced man now on staff of leading New York daily; 35; tireless worker, sober; sound judgment; skilled writer; gets best out of staff; sound ideas and executes them. Opportunity rather than salary important. Hammond Allen, Apt. 3B, 164 Waverly Pl., N. Y. City.

Managing Editor, wide experience, wants to leave New York; could put some money into paper in city of 50,000 or more if conditions are right. Best references from present employers. B-689, Editor & Publisher.

Newspaper Executive and advertising salesman, experienced, now employed. Will consider negotiations for management of newspaper. Pacific Coast preferred. B-659, Editor & Publisher.

Newspaper and Periodical Man, long experience editorial work, printing, advertising and as publisher, will take charge class paper or newspaper; prefer part or whole ownership; national acquaintance; exceptional references; give sufficient facts in confidence. B-695, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter, experienced, wishes work on a daily paper, preferably in the Middle West. College graduate with good references. Usual salary expected. B-678, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter, six years, all beats, strong on interviews, human interest, color stories. Wants job with future, on evening daily. Police, general assignment, features, preferred. Anywhere in East. Will submit clippings. B-672, Editor & Publisher.

Locate the man who can "put it over."—Advertise in EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Complete Commercial Stereotype Plant for sale, including the following machinery: 1 Hoe, two speed wet or dry mat moulding machine; Double Hoe Steam tables with steam generator and apron attached; one tissue holding devise and table; one 1000 lb. metal furnace and pot with burners; one 8 col. full casting box Goss; one 5 col. x 20 inch U. S. casting box, bars typehigh and thin for both; one type high flat adjustable head shaver Hoe; one large size saw and trimmer Goss; one complete nickeling outfit, double and single shank ladles; one paste cooker; one beating brush; moulding and drying blankets; one shoot board and plane. All machines and motors, D. C. 3 H. P. are guaranteed. Will sacrifice greatly if sold collectively. E. L. Geiger, U. B. Annex Bldg., Dayton, Ohio.

Hoe Mat Roller for sale in New York City. Excellent condition, and a bargain. C. B. Drake, 513 Cherry St., Philadelphia.

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffman Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Ludlow Equipment for sale; composed of two Ludlow Typographs with motors and electric pots 110AC current with six cabinets and eighty-four fonts of latest face. Used less than six months. Originally cost $11,700. Can be purchased at a great bargain. Apply to The Duluth News Tribune, Duluth, Minnesota.

Printers and Bookbinders equipment, machinery, type, supplies, Kelly presses, cut cost material, send for revised pre-used machine sheet. Conner Fendler Branch A.T.F. Co., 96 Beekman St., New York City.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

PERSONAL

F. D. Holmes, Publisher of The Woodlawn News, Chicago, Ill., wants to get in touch with William C. Wise, formerly reporter for the Chicago Daily Tribune, who is supposed to be on the west coast at present. Communicate with F. D. Holmes at 6436 Cottage Grove ave., Chicago, Ill.

Newspaper Properties

Bought, Sold and Appraised.
All negotiations confidential.

PALMER, DEWITT & PALMER

350 Madison Ave., New York
Business Established in 1899.

CONSOLIDATION

The merging of newspaper interests is a subject that has received special study and investigation by this firm for nearly 17 years. It is a big subject and requires considerable technical knowledge, both as to valuation and operating methods. When properly organized, the results are never disappointing.

We have been factors in many important consolidations, sales and appraisals.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING MANAGER, who engineered fifty per cent increase in 1925 and further lineage plus rate increase this year, wants position commensurate with ability. Just under 30, but has had eight years' successful space selling for well known dailies. "Young man of exceptional ability. Any newspaper would be fortunate to secure his services." Our No. 11570.

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC
SECURITY BLDG. SPRINGFIELD, MASS

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

"WHAT Did You Want for Christmas That You Didn't Get?" Use this banner headline across a page and then fill the columns with ads of merchants selling smoking sets, sweaters, radios, phonographs, electric toasters, lamps, washing machines, etc. And in a box place copy urging folks to buy for themselves the article they wanted so badly but did not get. If January bargain sale prices are in effect also, it will help merchants cash in on this feature. And you've sold a page or more of display.—Ralph Gibler, Huntington, Ind.

In showing its faith in its home communities of Lewiston and Auburn, Me., and its faith in what the year of 1927 holds out in business prosperity, the Lewiston Sun-Journal has just published a full page advertisement under the heading "Business is Good," giving the names of all the Lewiston and Auburn firms who have made Sun-Journal two-paper advertising contracts, also the list of nationally advertised firms and products that have made two-paper contracts. Reading matter in the center of the page layout gives the gain for the 11 months ending Nov. 30 in volume of advertising in the two papers.—Cole, Fall River, Mass.

When you're hard up for an advertisement "puller," take a look through the old files. Oftimes, you can induce some merchant to reproduce an advertisement that he ran ten, fifteen or twenty years ago. It has worked successfully for an Ohio newspaper.—B. A. T., Springfield, Ohio.

Many daily newspapers have issued "radio atlases" containing maps, logs and lists to increase the enjoyment of radio. Pages devoted to station call letters, location and wave length are a feature of this atlas which may be offered free or at a nominal price. This atlas can be hooked up with radio advertising and the daily list of radio programs as published in your newspaper. You will find a ready response to an offer of this atlas or a similar booklet.—G. Smedal, Minneapolis Tribune.

Get the jewelry stores in your city to put on a "Lodge Emblem Week" during which they offer lodge emblems at special prices. Get the lodge executives to urge all members to buy lodge emblems during the week. Get the jewelers to use extra space in your paper for the event.—Frank H. Williams.

The Poteau (Okla.) LeFlore County Sun, promoted a four months series of rural school programs given, one each Saturday, in Poteau. It was called a Friendship campaign, business men giving a certain amount per month toward the fund. Each school that put on a program received $25 and the best program out of every four received an additional $25. These programs brought people to town from the various communities in which schools were entered. Besides bringing them to the city, it gave the school children a means of expression, training for public appearance, self-reliance. Then, too, the programs rendered in some instances like Armistice Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas, a public service, in bringing to the people the spirit of those holidays. Many declare it was the finest thing they ever saw put over. —Chas. H. Cowles, Poteau, Okla.

WINS COVETED HONOR

U. S. Writer Awarded Medal by Forty Immortals of French Academy

Warrington Dawson, special assistant of the American Embassy in Paris, and a former newspaper man, was awarded on Dec. 23 one of the medals which the Forty Immortals of the French Academy grant each year for works written in French by foreigners adjudged "remarkable in form, style and idea." He is the first American to receive this honor, which was given for his story published in 1921 called "The Gift of Paul Clermont."

Mr. Dawson began his career in 1888 writing reviews of children's books for the Charlestown (S. C.) News and Courier. He was a special newspaper correspondent in Spain in 1898 and in Russia in 1904. From 1914 to 1916 he was a correspondent with the French armies, later transferring to the American front.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

A "LAMBAST PAGE" proved popular for a newspaper. The editor invited everyone who could confine his pet peeve to 100 words to write a "piece" for the page. There was good and bad criticism.—A. R. B., Austin, Minn.

An Indiana paper, looking for long distance records among teachers, found that one woman had been absent from the school room but a single half-day in 17 years. On this occasion she had attended the funeral of a relative and had obtained permission to be away from school. Some teacher in your community has a long distance record. — Yandell C. Cline, Columbus (Ind.) Republican.

Radio has developed far enough to demand advice by the public on fixing various parts of receiving sets. An interesting column, therefore, and a very serviceable one inasmuch as it is filled with helpful advice, is that recently started in the Seattle Post Intelligencer, entitled "The Radio Trouble Shooter."—C. M. L., Seattle.

"Banking questions answered," is a new column recently started by a western newspaper. Questions on the subject are submitted by readers and answered through the newspaper by officials of the clearing house association.—B. A. T., Springfield, Ohio.

An interesting department in the Chicago Tribune's Sunday real estate section is that entitled "Looking Backward." Doings in the Chicago real estate world of ten, twenty and thirty years ago are recounted in skeleton form and are illustrated with half-column cuts of persons involved in the deals.—Ruben Levin, Milwaukee, Wis.

A certain large firm employing many women has issued the statement that it will in the future employ no woman under thirty years of age, on the idea that not until that age is reached does the woman employe have a definite dollar value. This is a fine subject for a series of short snappy interviews, running two at a time, one from an employer, and one from the prominent women employed in your city.—R. E. Dietz, Battle Creek.

The Sunday edition of the Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Republican carries a feature under an eight-column head, "The Cedar Rapids Republican Pays Tribute To Week to ....." Below are four or five cuts of local men and women who have done something more or less noteworthy during the week, with a short story about each. The paper urges its readers to suggest persons for the following week.—F. Koop, Iowa City, Iowa.

Publication of the daily radio broadcast programs now uses so much valuable newspaper space that editors are faced with the necessity of curtailment. The problem is what to omit and what to continue. One small city daily in Massachusetts solved it by a referendum to local radio fans, the latter being asked to indicate the ten broadcasting stations whose programs they most desired to have published. The result proved the wisdom of the plan, for a fair majority voted in favor of a rather distant station which, in the ordinary elimination, would have been omitted as too remote to be of much interest.—E. R. L., Waltham, Mass.

Trousers and Skirts

six-a-week daily talks on things entertaining and clever

By ALMA WHITAKER

well known newspaper correspondent, public speaker and editorial writer of the Pacific Coast.

Once a week there is a question and answer column that gives the service a personal contact angle.

WRITE FOR SAMPLES

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate
373 Fourth Avenue New York City

"My Friend Bernard Shaw" will appear in NEWSPAPERS
from COAST TO COAST
also in London, England
Ceylon, India
Vienna, Austria
EIGHT SUNDAY ARTICLES
FIRST PUBLICATION
Wire for Terms

The O'Dell Newspaper Service
55 Fifth Avenue, New York City

How To Play GOLF
By JOHNNY FARRELL
Famous Teacher of That Game

24 LESSONS
Illustrated
For release daily

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.
New York City

Better Cross-word Puzzles
Our mats include all type matter and answers in diagram.

The International Syndicate
Baltimore, Md.

No subsidiary syndicates

NEA

Subsidiary to no syndicate.

NEA Service, Inc.,
1200 West Third Street
CLEVELAND, OHIO

BY UNITED PRESS

AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK

UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?

The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.

If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.

NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

230 New York State Banks —

Carry 28% of the Nation's Deposits

In New York State 4% of the 29,689 banking institutions in the United States carry 28% or $15,197,879,000 of the Nation's deposits. The capital invested in these financial institutions is over a half billion dollars, or nearly equal to the combined capital of Illinois and Pennsylvania.

New bank buildings costing $186,250,000 were constructed in 1926 alone.

If 28% of the Nation's wealth is deposited in New York State it is only logical to conclude that the proportionate percentage in buying power must also be in the Empire State.

Where can any national advertiser—who has limited appropriation funds for advertising but who wants to reach the greatest number of buyers at the lowest possible cost—who at the same time wants to cover his territory with a sales campaign at minimum expense—find a market in so small an area where he can reach so many people at small expense?

The newspapers listed below will convince you that you can sell this market profitably.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Evening News (E)	34,444	.10	.10
Albany Knickerbocker Press (M)	34,018	.11	.11
Albany Knickerbocker Press (S)	56,924	.16	.16
*Amsterdam Recorder-Domocrat (E)	7,824	.04	.04
†Auburn Citizen-Advertiser-Journal (E)	10,000	.065	.055
Brooklyn Daily Eagle (E)	73,764	.22	.22
Brooklyn Daily Eagle (S)	84,997	.22	.22
 Buffalo Courier-Express (M)	118,588	.22	.22
 Buffalo Courier-Express (S)	154,046	.30	.30
Buffalo Evening News (E)	138,294	.25	.25
†Buffalo Evening Times (E)	107,027	.21	.21
†Buffalo Sunday Times (S)	127,231	.21	.21
†Corning Evening Leader (E)	9,098	.05	.05
*Elmira Star-Gazette Advertiser (E&M)	34,370	.11	.11
*Freeport Daily Review (E)	9,011	.05	.05
*Geneva Daily Times (E)	5,292	.04	.04
*Gloversville Leader Republican (E)	7,108	.035	.035
*Ithaca Journal-News (E)	7,567	.05	.05
Jamestown Morning Post (M)	11,722	.04	.035
*Middletown Times-Press (E)	7,145	.04	.04
Mount Vernon Daily Argus (E)	10,437	.05	.05
*Newburgh Daily News (E)	12,130	.06	.06
*New Rochelle Standard-Star (E)	7,976	.04	.04
*The Sun, New York (E)	265,000	.60	.58
†New York Times (M)	358,350	.80	.784
†New York Times (S)	591,425	1.00	.98
†New York Herald-Tribune (M)	290,534	.6435	.624
†New York Herald-Tribune (S)	343,716	.693	.672
††New York World (M)	287,682	.595	.58
††New York World (S)	582,929	.595	.58
††New York Evening World (E)	294,442	.505	.58
*Niagara Falls Gazette (E)	21,508	.07	.07
*Port Chester Item (E)	4,695	.03	.03
*Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise (E)	12,974	.06	.06
*Rochester Times-Union (E)	70,660	.21	.20
*Syracuse Journal (E)	64,910	.16	.16
*Troy Record (M&E)	21,709	.06	.06
†Watertown Standard (E)	18,220	.07	.07
*Watertown Times (E)	17,386	.08	.08

 A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
†† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.
 Merged as Buffalo Courier-Express, June 14, 1926.
† Government Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
* A. B. C. Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.

When Quality-in-Quantity Wins

HERE, Mr. Publisher, is a slice of life:—

The scene is an Advertising Agency.

Lists are being made up for an advertisement that is to appear in one paper in each of a group of cities.

In many cases the choice has been easy. In a few, the race is a close one. Papers of almost equal circulation, prosperous and confident, each with a battery of statistics, a barrage of sales arguments. But only one can win.

"Which paper," asks the Agency head, "has the Consolidated Press?"

And the answer settles the argument.

This is not fiction. It is fact. The scene has been enacted more than once. It will be enacted many times more.

Why?

Because the paper which provides the best that can be had in sports, politics, fashions, foreign news and, in addition, the most comprehensive and accurate financial service in America, offers prima facie evidence of a reader-group with superior purchasing power.

The C. P. A. quality-in-quantity readers establish the value of a medium by the kind of news they demand.

We shall be glad to explain to publishers in the few remaining cities how this quality-in-quantity group of readers can be reached and held through the news columns of their papers.

The Consolidated Press Association

Executive Offices, Evening Star Building, Washington, D. C.

New York	Chicago	San Francisco	Paris
Eighth Floor	Third Floor	Third Floor	Fourth Floor
World Building	Daily News Building	Bulletin Building	19 Rue d'Antin

EDITOR AND PUBLISHER

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

INTERNATIONAL YEAR BOOK NUMBER FOR 1927

Vol. 59. No. 36 TWO SECTIONS SECTION TWO NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1927 By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A.; $4.50 Can.; $5 Foreign

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

[Copyright, 1927, by The Editor & Publisher Company, James W. Brown, president.]

$235,000,000—National Newspaper Advertising 1926

1926 closed with the largest volume of national newspaper advertising in history, $15,000,000 over the final figures of 1925 which was the banner year.

The conservative estimate is by the Bureau of Advertising, with a probability of the actual figures exceeding the estimate as they did a year ago.

The national advertisers' annual trend toward Newspapers has been steadily up—up—up——for the simple and obvious reason that Newspapers, reaching everybody everywhere and anywhere at anytime, actually sell more merchandise than any other advertising medium.

Q. E. D.

Invest in Newspaper Advertising

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

Publishers' Representatives

New York	Detroit	Kansas City
Chicago	Atlanta	San Francisco

Newspaper Publishers
should be contributing to a national fund to advertise the superior value of Newspapers as the dominant national medium.
1927 is the year to do it!

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency
58 West 40th Street, New York City

PROVIDENCE

New England's Second Largest Market

Providence is the second largest market in New England. It is the capital city of Rhode Island and the trading center of the state and nearby cities of bordering states. More than three-quarters of a million people live within an hour's ride of Providence.

Rhode Island is a strictly manufacturing state and is noted for the diversity of its industrial production. The leading industries are worsted and woolen goods, cotton goods, jewelry and silverware, foundry and machine products, automobile tires and rubber goods.

Ninety-seven per cent of the state's population is urban and three per cent rural. The state depends on outside sources for 90% of its total food supply.

The total resources of Rhode Island Banks for the year ending June 30, 1926, were $531,992,356.10. This represents a gain of $23,667,115.06 over the previous year. Savings accounts in Rhode Island Banks for the year ending June 30, 1926 amounted to $299,116.707.83, an increase of $20,274,317.88 over the previous year.

This compact market is efficiently reached by Rhode Island's great newspapers

THE PROVIDENCE JOURNAL

and

THE EVENING BULLETIN

These newspapers have built their circulation on merit alone. They have never given a premium to a single subscriber. Their policy is based upon the conviction that newspapers are intended primarily for the dissemination of news, honestly, fairly, completely, and as impartially as it can be given to its readers. These newspapers reach the great majority of English speaking homes in Rhode Island.

During 1926 these newspapers carried 24,717,446 lines of paid advertising. This is 72.28% of all advertising lineage carried in Providence daily and Sunday papers during that period.

LIBRARY
UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
AT URBANA-CHAMPAIGN

Circulation 108,809 Net Paid

Providence Journal Company

Providence, R. I.

CHAS. H. EDDY COMPANY
Chicago New York Boston

R. J. BIDWELL COMPANY
San Francisco Los Angeles Seattle

THE CONSOLIDATED PRESS ASSOCIATION

The Why and How

The News Behind the News

The Consolidated Press combines the economies of leased wire delivery of special dispatches and the exclusive services of a staff of highly trained writers.

Distinctive Newspapers Dominate by Their Individuality

List of Cities Where Memberships are Available Steadily Growing Smaller

WASHINGTON	NEW YORK	CHICAGO	SAN FRANCISCO
Evening Star Bldg.	World Bldg.	Daily News Bldg.	Bulletin Bldg.

THE TECHNICAL PRESS, NEW

THIS ISSUE: NATIONAL ADVERTISING CHANGING DISTRIBUTION CHANNELS.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1927

MEMBER A.B.C.

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

MEMBER A.B.P.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 38 | NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 12, 1927 | By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign | 10c Per Copy

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

In the heart of America the big parade of progress is only beginning Here prosperity is at home

WHEN business is only fair throughout the nation, it is good in Zone 7. When business is good throughout the nation, here it is exceptionally good. That's because Zone 7's wealth is not boomed wealth. Adverse conditions elsewhere can't rock Zone 7's boat. With such well-balanced prosperity further enrichment is certain.

During the last ten years The Tribune, serving this great trading zone, has more than doubled its circulation and advertising volume.

Tribune advertisers who shattered sales records last year are going into 1927 with the conviction that even greater things are ahead. Right here at home is the wealthiest of all America's great trading zones. During 1926 its net income was more than eight BILLION dollars.

Chicago dominates this area. The nearest large city is 283 miles away.

These billions are being spent now! More billions will be earned during 1927. They, too, will be turned into sales. Whether or not you get your share depends on how you go after it!

The Tribune offers an opportunity to sway purchasers in the 1,200,000 families who earn the major part of Zone 7's eight billion dollar net income. It provides far greater coverage of the city of Chicago than any other newspaper, plus a reading by 60% of the families in 1,151 prosperous cities and towns in Zone 7.

Chicago Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

EASTERN ADVERTISING OFFICE, 512 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK zone 7

Zone 7's net income is Eight BILLION. 1926 found prosperity concentrated here!

WAGES . . . William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, says "The coming year will be as good as, if not better than, 1926 . . . Because wages are high we can do our part in buying the articles industries are turning out in ever increasing quantities. Prospects ahead are good."
The total gross wages paid, including salaries, bonuses, and commissions, in 1926 in Zone 7 have been conservatively estimated as

. . . . . $3,000,000,000
THREE BILLION

DIVIDENDS . . . . Dividends paid to stockholders during 1926 in Zone 7 (the five states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin), computed from latest available figures, were

. . . . . $750,000,000
SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLION

CROPS . . . During 1926 Zone 7 produced a 586 million dollar corn crop, an 84 million dollar wheat crop, 197 million dollars' worth of oats, and 600 million dollars' worth of other leading farm crops. The total crop production for Zone 7 during 1926 was

. . . . . $1,500,000,000
ONE BILLION FIVE HUNDRED MILLION

MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS . . . . . Zone 7 produces approximately one-fifth of all the manufactured products in the United States. The manufacturers of Zone 7 sold their products in 1926 for

. . . . $25,000,000,000
TWENTY-FIVE BILLION

AUTOMOBILES . . . . . 21.7% of the 19,520,000 passenger cars in the United States are registered in Zone 7, or 4,235,840 cars. Production during 1926 for the entire country was $3,950,000 cars, of which Zone 7 purchased 850,000 cars. Zone 7 spent on automobiles alone during 1926

. . . . . $750,000,000
SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLION

BUILDING CONSTRUCTION . . . . .
One billion five hundred million dollars! That's what Zone 7 spent during 1926 for Building. More than a half billion was spent for residential construction alone! 1926 was a record year in building throughout the nation, and the city of Chicago alone had 430 million dollars' worth.
Total expenditures in building construction for 1926 in Zone 7

. . . . . $1,500,000,000
ONE BILLION FIVE HUNDRED MILLION

BANKS . . . . 1926 showed a gain of .4% over 1925 in savings deposits. Federal Reserve officials state withdrawals from individual accounts on an unprecedented scale. With its savings deposits well in hand, prosperous, well-balanced Zone 7 can afford to spend freely!
Bank clearings for Chicago alone for 1926 were

. . . . $35,068,000,000
THIRTY-FIVE BILLION SIXTY-EIGHT MILLION

PROFITS . . . . For 1926 the sale of materials gave the corporations of the five states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin a profit of more than

. . . . . $2,000,000,000
TWO BILLION

SCOTT "MULTI-UNIT" DOUBLE SEXTUPLE PRESS

"THE POWER OF THE PRESS"—

and of the Presses!

No chain is stronger than its weakest link and no Newspaper is stronger than its presses. "The Power of the Press," that shapes and molds opinion, must be backed up by the "power of the presses." Impressive writing demands impressive printing.

Scott "Straight-Unit" and "Multi-Unit" Presses are of rugged construction and clean design. They are capable of operating at a speed of 36,000 per hour with 33-1/3% additional speed in reserve. Uniform and strong cylinder impressions, superior web control, ease of operation, and many other Scott features insure steadfast reliability and power in production.

Scott

"Multi-Unit" or "Straight-Unit" Presses

Cylinder Speed—400 r. p. m.

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Main Office and Factory - - - - - Plainfield, New Jersey, U. S. A.
New York Office - - - - - - - - - - - 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office - - - - - - - - - - - 1330 Monadnock Block

Cable Address: WALTSCOTT NEW YORK

In January . . . In the World's Greatest Market . . . in FOOD Advertising first morning newspaper

Herald Tribune carried - 22,676 lines

2nd morning newspaper - - 19,381 "

3rd morning newspaper - - 14,238 "

4th morning newspaper - - 9,119 "

5th morning newspaper - - 3,781 "

6th morning newspaper - - 3,299 "

NEW YORK

Herald Tribune

CHICAGO
Woodward & Kelly
360 N. Michigan Ave.

DETROIT
Woodward & Kelly
Fine Arts Building

SAN FRANCISCO
Thomas Emory
618 Market Street

BOSTON
Carroll Judson Swan
933 Park Square Bldg.

DOMINATE

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

The Evening Bulletin

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

537,974 COPIES A DAY

The circulation of The Bulletin is the largest in Philadelphia

Member of The Associated Press.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St., at Broadway, New York. Telephones, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations. Member Associated Business Papers, Inc.

ol. 59 NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 12, 1927 No. 38

Retail Store Losing Place as Distributor To National Advertiser, Hahn Warns

Warm Discussion of Vital Selling and Advertising Problems Heard at National Convention of Retailers—1,500 Delegates Represent Four Billions Annual Turnover

By ARTHUR ROBB

LMOST a decade has passed since the last shell shrieked over the battlelds of Europe. Military uniforms of 18 are falling into dust. The newspers which thrilled millions with tales disaster, sacrifice, achievement and roism are today brown and brittle. ar memories have passed the days when ey brought shudders into an era of nance and epic of book and movie reen. Stricken nations of Europe are ding a slow and hard road back to sperity. But—

Business men of the United States are ll seeking the remedy for the tremenus economic dislocation that the war and attendant great enhancement of producn facilities brought to the United States. is was the central topic of the address Lew Hahn, managing director of the ational Retail Dry Goods Association, ien 1,500 members of that association presenting a total annual turnover in cess of $4,000,000,000 met for their 16th nual convention in New York this week. Here were 1,500 men, including proietors and chief executives of stores ose business last year totalled an inmprehensible sum and whose expendires for advertising alone would go a ig way toward cutting down the tional debt if they could be so applied. t, even in their magnitude, they repreited only about 6 per cent of the ntry's total retail business last year, cording to the statisticians, who in their e and easy way with big figures, estiite the total retail turnover in 1926 to ve been in excess of $60,000,000,000. is is not unbelievable when equally und estimates of the amount of retail vertising in newspapers last year place at more than $400,000,000, less than one r cent of the total retail volume but a uch more considerable part of the retail lume which represents the sales of adrtising merchants and advertised goods. These people hold in their hands the ys of prosperity, but they are not at sure that they are opening all the ors or all the right doors to that deable state. Some of them fear that in new economic alignment they have lost me of their old powers and that they e in danger of reduction in importance elimination as factors in the trade of nation.

National advertising was the deus ex achina which clinched the evil that the ar had wrought. Every industry, with rdly an exception, found itself at the d of the war with the machinery and ganization to produce twice or three nes its pre-war output. Every manucturer in the nature of things desired at organization and equipment to proce its capacity, pushed production to limit, and then looked for a road to rket. National advertising opened the ay.

The result, according to Mr. Hahn, is at industry is constantly on the verge overproduction and has been forced by own necessities to overstep the bounds its own field—production—into that the retailer—distribution.

Weakness of the retail structure even for the ordinary demands of commerce has been charged by manufacturers and was given weight during the war and immediate post-war period by Federal activities which pointed to the retail storekeeper as the principal root of the economic evils which beset the nation's trade. Undoubtedly some of the charges had a basis in fact, but those which were false weighed equally with the true in determining many manufacturers not to trust creation of a demand for their goods entirely to the distributor.

The manufacturer put his first experimental appropriation into national advertising, a branch of endeavor which in 1918 was almost as well known to most manufacturers as Darkest Africa. To the surprise of many, the advertising helped to sell the product; it gave the product a certain additional standing with retailers who, in common with the rest of the post-armistice world, have been looking for the easiest way, be it the best or not. Be it said to the credit of the manufacturing brains, most of them were quick to sense the new force in their business. They found that advertised goods had a place in the mind of the buying public far more permanent and prominent than the run of shelf goods in retailers' hands and it was not long before these thoughts began to run through the mind of the man who made the goods:

"I make the merchandise, I conceived the idea of it, I turn it out of my factory in finished condition, I advertise it, I create the demand. What does the retailer do?"

This trend of thought has mortal attributes for the retailer, in the opinion of Mr. Hahn, who warned his hearers that "you must take this for granted—if any factor stops doing a certain thing and allows some other factor to do that thing for him, the time can't be far off when the factor who does the work is the one who is to be paid for doing that work."

For the retailer to fall in with "the national advertising idea," to accept "brand specification as a substitute for quality specification" is to sacrifice his birthright for considerably less than a mess of pottage, and in addition to be untrue to his community responsibility, in Mr. Hahn's opinion.

Mr. Hahn cited some research conducted by a professor of home economics into the value and quality of all obtainable grades of an article widely sold in retail stores. To her amazement, Mr. Hahn related, she found that the article most widely advertised and commanding the highest prices across the counter ranked no higher than fifth in value and quality. At least three articles, not advertised and purchaseable at lower cost by the retailer, gave the consumer more for his money. Why can't retailers do more of this work, Mr. Hahn asked, and then address their people thus:

"Mrs. Public, the reputation of this store stands as your guarantee for the service-giving qualities of the merchandise that we offer you, and we intend always to place at your disposal, regardless of whether it carries a brand, regardless of whether it is nationally advertised or not, the thing that is of the most worth to you."

Mr. Hahn's jeremiad found a partial dissenter when O. H. Cheney, vice-president of the American Exchange Irving Trust Company, took the floor.

"Retailers, and particularly department stores, have it in their power to make or break industries," he said. "By pushing some lines of goods and some styles and keeping others in the background, they can destroy the prosperity of whole industries. They did this to the women's wear, woolen and worsted industry by pushing such lines as silk coats and silk sport clothes beyond the limit. They have done it for years at a time to industries not only in the fashion fields, but also in other industries.

"Fashion and taste determine what people buy, you answer. Where do fashion and taste come from? Who decides that for five years ostrich feathers shall be considered fit only to go with leg-of-mutton sleeves and that now they should be in the best of taste not only for hats and fans, but also for hand-bags, gloves, and parasols? Who decides that mission furniture should go from the living room up to the attic and that colonial furniture should come down from the attic to the living room? I think you gentlemen have more to do with such momentous decisions than you will credit yourselves."

The war and its effects again came before the retailers in a new and bright light in the address of L. E. McGivena, manager of publicity of the New York Daily News. Mr. McGivena sees a great new market for the manufacturer in the people dismissed fifteen years ago by the storekeeper as "not quality folks." The great wealth that the war brought has spread through every social stratum, Mr. McGivena declared, citing statistics to prove that the union workman has a third more spending power in 1927 than he had in 1913 and that this extra ability is being used to buy what were luxuries before 1914 turned the world upside down. Only the automobile manufacturer, by adjusting his prices and sales methods to this new audience, has succeeded in selling in any great quantities a large unit purchase.

"Do not underestimate this buyer's intelligence," Mr. McGivena warned. "The sports pages of any metropolitan newspaper print longer and rarer words than does most retail advertising. This nation can read today, and read all price tags.

"As to the other details of your appeal, nobody can say. You must give your copy more body, more guts, more sense, more attraction. Price is not the factor it was ten years ago. And while new records can be made by sales advertising, regular business can be helped by regular sensible educational advertising. One department store in New York City actually found it as easy to sell $600 pianos as $400 stock!

"Sell your merchandise in your advertising. Sell it the way an intelligent, interested, informed salesman sells it. It seems to me that you folks in our great stores have more potential interest, more romance and color and glamour in the things you handle and sell than any other sort of business—excepting only mine, a newspaper. You bring things from all over the world, you gather stocks from all peoples in all countries. Everything the eye falls on has a story. Tell that story in your copy, and make the things you are trying to sell mean more to the people you are trying to sell them to. Here is an imaginary instance that brings out this point:

"In an obscure little village in China, Soo Ling last year wove a rug. The Ling family has been weaving rugs for hundreds of years. They know wool by

(Continued on page 50)

OUTLINE OF RETAILERS' VIEWS

Post-war economic dislocation of retail trade still continues to demand a remedy.

"The retailer who accepts broad specification as a substitute for quality specification is sacrificing his birthright."

"Price is not the factor it was ten years ago."

"While new records can be made by sales advertising, regular business can be helped by regular, sensible, educational advertising."

"Sell your merchandise in your advertising; make your copy interesting. * * * Sell your own store to the citizens of your community."

"The modern department store presents more potential interest, romance, color and glamour than any other business—except the newspaper business."

"The union workman in 1927 has a third more spending power than he had in 1913."

"Do not underestimate the workman's intelligence as a buyer. This nation can read today, and read all price tags."

FOSTER RETURNS TO NEWSPAPER WORK AS EDITOR OF HOUSTON PRESS

Founder of Houston Chronicle Who Sold That Paper and Retired in June, 1926, Found Idleness Boresome—Lilley Goes to Washington

MARCELLUS E. FOSTER, who 25 years ago founded the Houston (Tex.) Chronicle and who sold his paper to Jesse Jones and announced his retirement from newspaper work in June, 1926, this week became editor of the Houston Press, Scripps-Howard newspaper, and owner of a substantial block of stock in that paper. He assumed his duties Feb. 7.

Marcellus E. Foster

Mr. Foster's famous column signed "Mefo" which disappeared from the Chronicle when he left, has been revived in the Press.

Mr. Foster succeeds E. J. Lilley as editor, who has held that position since 1922. Mr. Lilley will go to Washington, D. C., to represent the Scripps-Howard newspapers of the Southwest as correspondent.

Announcement of the change was made by G. B. Parker, general editorial executive of the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

The news of Mr. Foster's return to newspaper work brought a steady flow of congratulations in the form of telephone calls, telegrams, and letters.

After the sale of the Chronicle Mr. Foster went to California and spent several months, but enforced idleness quickly palled. In addition he missed keenly his daily column, which won him prominence.

"It is to you people of Houston and of Texas that I desire to talk daily," Mr. Foster wrote on taking his new post. "For twenty-five years I had that privilege, and when I found myself no longer able to think in print—to commend, to criticize, or to argue with you—I soon felt that I had lost much of my life."

In his retirement he was importuned to start another paper and was offered a million dollars from a group of Houston citizens if he would do so. That didn't appeal to him. He knew that Houston had enough newspapers. But when the opporunity to become editor of the Houston Press was presented, he accepted.

In announcing to Houston that he would become editor, the Press said:

"In giving back to the newspaper readers of Texas the writings of M. E. Foster's pen name we feel that we are returning that which has been very keenly missed. We felt the same way some months previously when we returned to the same readers the writings of M. E. Tracy, long associated with Foster in the building of the Houston Chronicle. To be able to present Foster again is one of the most distinct pleasures that has ever befallen the management of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers."

In his first column for the Press, Foster coined a new title unusual in the annals of column-christening. He calls the column "Why" and gave this reason, quoted from the column itself:

"Day after day we (you readers and I) have been around the table or on the porch together, and you and I tried to solve many problems, I would ask Why?, and then we discussed from every angle. I will call this column by that little word of three letters. Sometimes it will be just Why without the question mark. Occasionally it will be an interjection or expletive and then it will be Why with an exclamation mark. Often it will be in the language of one, William Shakespeare, an effort to prove that every why has a wherefore."

In the messages that followed the announcement of Foster's return were contained hundreds of fine acknowledgments of Lilley's work during the five years of his service as editor, and congratulations on his assuming the important Washington position.

Lilley started his 14-year newspaper career in California. Much of his early training was under his father, E. B. Lilley, one of the best known newspapermen of the Middle West. Before C. J. Lilley went to Houston he had been managing editor of the St. Louis Republic, Los Angeles Record, Norfolk Post and Cleveland Press.

The Press plans a large expansion program following the affiliation of Mr. Foster.

MADDEN SUCCEEDS TITUS

Named Advertising Manager of Brooklyn Eagle This Week

Harry T. Madden who for the past year has handled Manhattan retail advertising accounts for the Brooklyn Eagle, has been named advertising manager succeeding Robert V. Titus who resigned recently to become president of the Certified Garages of America Association, Inc., New York.

Mr. Madden has been in advertising and promotion work in New York for the past four years, coming here from St. Paul where he had his own advertising agency, to join the Hearst organization as promotion manager of the New York American. Upon resigning from the American he entered business for himself, handling the advertising for several large New York firms. He joined the Eagle about a year ago.

The new advertising manager of the Eagle saw service in France during the war with the First Division. He enlisted as a private in St. Paul at the beginning of the war and left the army with the rank of first lieutenant.

McKEESPORT DAILY QUITS

Evening Journal Suspends Leaving Daily News Alone in Field

The McKeesport (Pa.) Evening Journal, which has been published daily except Sunday by the McKeesport Journal, Inc., suspended publication Feb. 8. The circulation and machinery was taken over by the McKeesport Daily News.

The Journal was first published July 13, 1925. The officers of the company are Dr. F. Tho Nason, president; J. T. McLane, vice-president; G. P. Gamble, secretary, and J. Audley Pierce, treasurer. With the discontinuance of the Journal there will be only one daily newspaper in McKeesport, the News, published by the Daily News Publishing Company, of which Senator W. D. Mansfield is president.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

Feb. 15-16—Inland Daily Press Assn., meeting, Palmer House, Chicago.

Feb. 16-17—South Dakota Press Assn., winter meeting, Sioux Falls.

Feb. 17-19—Washington Press Assn., midwinter institute, University of Washington, Seattle.

Feb. 17-19—Nebraska Press Assn., meeting, Lincoln, Neb.

Feb. 17-19—Iowa Press Assn., annual meeting, Des Moines, Ia.

Feb. 18-19—Indiana Weekly Press Assn., Indianapolis, Ind.

Feb. 18-19—Minnesota Editorial Assn., annual meeting, St. Paul.

Feb. 19—United Newspapers of Iowa, business meeting, Des Moines.

Feb. 25-26—International Advertising Assn., 11th District, Greeley, Colorado.

A. P. ASKS N. Y. WORLD TO EXPLAIN EDITORIALS

Executive Committee Summons Swope—Accuracy of Paper's Information on "Bolshevik Hegemony" Dispatch Questioned

Herbert Bayard Swope, member of the Associated Press for the New York World, has been asked to appear before the next meeting of the A. P. executive committee at New York headquarters, March 14, to explain the editorials published by the World regarding the A. P. "Bolshevist hegemony" dispatch, which followed the interview granted three Washington correspondents by Assistant Secretary of State Olds.

Herbert B. Swope

It is understood that the A. P. is not questioning the right of the World to its own opinions, but rather to the accuracy of those opinions. The World is expected to make an issue of the case.

No citation has been issued against the World, Editor & Publisher was informed at A. P. headquarters. Citations are returnable only to the board of directors, which will not meet until April 19.

The objection to the World's editorials, which criticized directly and by inference, the Associated Press, is based on what is known to be a policy of the co-operative body that members with complaints or inquiries to make should make them before the A. P. rather than air them in public. It is the general belief that the World could be cited on the grounds that the editorials violated Section 1, Article XI of the by-laws, in that they might be deemed of such a character as to be prejudicial to the interests and welfare of the corporation and its members. A. P. members, at their annual meeting, or at a meeting called for the purpose, are empowered to expel a member for such a violation, if it is proved.

The World is uncertain as to which editorial the Associated Press is questioning, since a total of eight have been published between Nov. 25 and Jan. 5 on the Olds interview and the part played by the A. P. in its dissemination.

TEXAS PAPER BUYS PLANT

The Amarillo (Tex.) News-Globe has purchased the lot and building in which the newspaper plant is located. Addition of two more floors is contemplated.

VANDERBILT JR., JOI NEW YORK MIRROR

Former Tabloid Publisher Named As ciate Editor of Hearst Daily—Declares Intention of Paying Off His Debts

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., has been pointed associate editor of the New Y Daily Mirror, morning tabloid, effect Feb. 14, Philip A. Payne, managing editor, announced this week. Mr. Vanderbilt will conduct a daily signed editorial column, which will probably be entitled, "Now."

Cornelius Vanderb Jr.

Prior to the announcement of his appointment, the tabloid benefited by considerable publicity in many New York and out-of-town papers given former young publisher of three tabl newspapers. On Feb. 4, Vanderb granted a reporter of the New Y Times an interview, in which he revea himself as a poor over-worked pot-boil living in a two-room apartment, doing own cooking, and turning out magaz articles, motion picture scenarios and novel at top speed, in an effort to pay his debts. Since his debts, including obligations of his newspapers are in neighborhood of $3,000,000, he admitt it is a formidable task.

"I'm going to pay off every penny owe, if it takes me 50 years," Mr. Va derbilt told the Times reporter.

Mr. Vanderbilt's tiny apartment is the seventh floor rear at 741 Fifth a nue, New York, over a toy shop and rectly across the way from the famo chateau of his grandmother, Mrs. W liam K. Vanderbilt, now bei demolished.

He formerly was president of Vand bilt Newspapers, Inc., which publish the Los Angeles Daily News, Mia Daily Tab, and San Francisco Hera tabloids. The company is now in ceivership, the Tab and the Herald ha ing suspended. The Los Angeles Ne is being published by a stockholde group which purchased the paper fr the Vanderbilt organization.

ENDORSE MELLETT LECTURESH

Prominent Editors Praise Proj Launched by Professor Lee

James Melvin Lee, director of t School of Journalism of the New Yo University, advises Editor & Publish that his project to organize a lecturesh as a memorial to the late Don R. Mell is meeting with hearty response fr newspaper men.

This week Erie C. Hopwood, editor the Cleveland Plain Dealer and preside of the American Society of Newspap Editors, sent to Mr. Lee the followi letter:

"The Mellett Memorial Lecturesh is a fine idea. It ought to do mu to perpetuate the memory of Don M lett and to establish his supreme sacrif as one of the notable events in Ame can journalism."

Other editors who have endorsed t Mellett Memorial Lectureship are Fr mont Older, editor, San Francisco Ca Willis J. Abbot, editor, Christian Scien Monitor. A donation has also been r ceived from the Pueblo (Col.) St Journal.

DANIEL E. SULLIVAN DEAD

Daniel E. Sullivan, founder of t Pawtuxet Valley (R. I.) Daily Tim died in Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 7. Un recently he has been connected with t Providence Journal. At one time he w circulation manager of the old New Yo Herald.

VICE SOCIETY HALES N. Y. GRAPHIC TO COURT

Macfadden, Publisher, and Gauvreau, M. E., Among Four Summoned Over Tabloid's Play of Browning Story—Case Postponed Until Feb. 24 — Paper Attacks Society in News and Editorials

NEW YORK'S SOCIETY for the Suppression of Vice and the New York Evening Graphic have locked horns over the Macfadden tabloid's play of the Browning-Browning separation story.

John S. Sumner, the society's secretary, swore to complaints last week, haling Emil Gauvreau, the Graphic's managing editor, O. Scattergood, circulation manager, and Catherine Slowey, a business office employe, into Tombs court before Magistrate Corrigan, charged with violation of a section of the state penal code dealing with the sale and distribution of printed matter containing stories of lustful deeds, crime news and other objectionable matter. A hearing on the charge was postponed to Feb. 24.

The Graphic countered on Feb. 9 with a front page attack on Mr. Sumner originating when Assemblyman Frederick L. Hackenburg, of Yorkville, introduced a bill in the state legislature demanding suppression of the Society for the Suppression of Vice.

The tabloid quoted Assemblyman Hackenburg as saying in part:

"Comstockism and Sumnerism have made us ridiculous in the eyes of the world.

"For fifty-four years, under enormous powers which the legislature of New York should have never granted to a private society, including the right to summon to its aid the entire police force of the city of New York, and the amazing privilege of retaining one-half of the fines collected by them, the agents of the New York Society for Suppression of Vice have injected themselves into everybody's business.

"They have tried to stick their blue noses into the affairs of the entire nation.

"If a criminal law is broken, the constituted authorities should proceed toward enforcement. An important matter of this sort should not be left to the initiative of a privately controlled and personally prejudiced group of individuals."

Later in the week Mr. Sumner made this statement: "We never have received any portion of any fines," he said. "The original charter provided the society should get half the fines, but at our own request a subsequent act repealed this provision." He said Hackenburg had long been criticising the society. With Frankin Ellenbogen, representing Bernarr Macfadden, who was also summoned on Mr. Sumner's complaint, the three employes of the Graphic were in court last Saturday morning. A postponement of the hearing until Feb. 24 was asked and granted. Magistrate Corrigan will continue to preside over the hearing which is scheduled for Yorkville court.

Mr. Ellenbogen announced the Graphic would admit the sale of 600,000 copies daily containing the Browning story and stated the defense plea would be based mainly on the premise that the law invoked by Mr. Sumner is an infringement of the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

"The case against the Graphic represents the first time this law has been made the basis of a complaint against a newspaper," Mr. Ellenbogen said. "In the interest of the entire press of the state, we hope to obtain an adjudication of it."

The law, section number 1,141 of the state penal code, the passage of which was obtained when the late Anthony Comstock was fighting the old Police Gazette, says:

"Any person who prints, utters, publishes, sells, lends, gives away or shows, or has in his possession with intent to sell, lend, give away or show, or otherwise offers for sale, loan, gift or distribution, any book, pamphlet, magazine, newspaper or other printed paper devoted to the publication, and principally made up, of criminal news, police reports, or accounts of criminal deeds, or pictures, or stories of deeds of bloodshed, lust or crime * * * is guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be sentenced to not less than ten days nor more than one year imprisonment or be fined not less than $50 nor more than $1,000, or both fine and imprisonment, for each offense."

Summons to answer the vice society's complaint in court named the publisher, the managing editor, circulation manager, and business office employe, but under the law Mr. Sumner could have served every employe working on the Graphic. Miss Slowey was brought to court and included in the complaint, because it was from her that an agent of the society purchased a copy of the tabloid.

In the corridor, after the hearing Saturday, Mr. Sumner said he had received many complaints regarding the way the Graphic had handled the Browning case. One of them, was from the Brooklyn Children's Society.

The objections, according to Mr. Sumner, were chiefly against the so-called "composite pictures," which the Graphic has been playing on its first page, but the complaints also included the text.

"The Graphic has acted like a small child trying to be nasty," Mr. Sumner said to EDITOR & PUBLISHER. "Its stories on the Browning case have been simple, inane and foolish, with a strain of dangerous filth running through them harmful to all society. It is a terrible example of the length people will go to obtain circulation for a newspaper. All ethics of the publishing profession have been ignored.

"Censorship of the press is impossible and unnecessary. All we need is the backing of public opinion to make available laws effective. If we are able to satisfy the court that the Graphic broke a law by the way it covered the Browning case, there is another section of the Penal Code which we believe is applicable.

"This is section 1530 and provides that any act unlawfully done which offends public decency is a misdemeanor."

Bernarr Macfadden has been in trouble several times with the New York and New Jersey authorities over the dissemination of physical culture literature. In 1907 he was arrested at his so-called Physical Culture City in New Jersey for sending objectionable literature through the mails. He was convicted in the United States Court and sentenced to two years' imprisonment and fined $2,000. President Taft remitted his prison sentence. Macfadden was released upon the payment of the fine and costs.

In October, 1905, Anthony Comstock caused his arrest for exhibiting objectionable posters. He received a suspended sentence in Special Sessions at that time.

While existing laws are being invoked by the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice in efforts to curb alleged smut publishing in New York, the printing of salacious testimony in divorce, separation and breach of promise actions was condemned in a resolution presented in the State Assembly in Albany, Feb. 7.

"This testimony is a cesspool of human depravity and its publication and dissemination in conversation and the public press demoralizes the youth of the country," the resolution said, adding that the people of the state believe in the freedom of the press "but not license of filth."

The resolution declared that existing civil and criminal laws were ample "to suppress and punish the violations of the law by the press and the theatrical profession" and called on all authorities to punish the violators.

The New York Sun joined other standard sized dailies in attacking the New York Evening Graphic in an editorial entitled "The Way To Clean Is To Clean," which was published Feb. 5.

"There is a lot of talk about the need of new laws and censorships," the editorial stated in part. "The law against printing of obscenity is clear and plain as it stands. The only trouble is that it is not enforced. For weeks one of the tabloid publications has violated the law in letter and spirit. So far as we know the Grand Juries have done nothing about it. * * *

"The way to clean is to clean. The means of doing it are at hand now. There is no need of waiting on debates over new laws, new methods of private censorship."

Bernarr Macfadden in a signed editorial presented his opinion of existing laws by a tirade against Comstock and by asserting:

"Poor, misguided people of this sort (Mr. Comstock) think that by merely creating a law which is to suppress the printed presentation of lascivious literature, the evil will be remedied.

"The place to remedy this evil is at its source."

Standard-sized papers gave prominence this week to a speech by George W. Alger before the Women's City Clubs, in which he branded the tabloids as "a public nuisance" and said that nothing in the sensational journalism of 30 years ago could compare with them for their effect upon the community.

"If there is any one new cause of delinquency among our youth nowadays," Mr. Alger said, "it is the tabloid newspaper. It isn't even journalism in the true sense. The sole business of its editors is handling news to create sensations and exploit crime and indecency."

Mr. Ellenbogen anclared, however, that he did not favor censorship.

"We have got to establish a new sense of balance and public conscience."

"—WHICH SAVES ME A VERY UNPLEASANT JOB"

Drawn for Editor & Publisher by Harry Bressler.

THE MAKERS, PROMOTERS AND SELLERS OF HEARST SPACE

HEARST DISPLAY ADVERTISIN MANAGERS at Baltimore Conference l week—Back Row Standing—E. N. Ch fant, New York American; Con Heck Albany Times-Union; Erwin J. W. Hub Rochester Journal-American; Willi Nugent, Boston American; A. Weiss bach, Milwaukee Wisconsin News; Jes W. Fleck, Syracuse Journal-American; G. Hobson, New York Evening Journ L. Boone; Wilbur Arthur, New Yo American; Franklin Payne, R C. Brow New York Evening Journal; R. M. R nolds, Atlanta Georgian-American. Seat (left to right)—J. Boyle, New York Da Mirror; T. Ed. Cavanagh, Albany Tim Union; S. P. Bartlett, Los Angeles E aminer; W. E. Anderman, Detroit Time H. A. Stretch; Robert E. Joyce, Was ington Times & Herald; C. B. Fox, Ne York American; W. E. Peters, Seatt Post-Intelligencer. Mr. Bartlett presid at the group meetings.

HEARST PROMOTION MANAGERS at Baltimore Conference last week—Left to right, standing—J. B. Hazen, Boston Daily Advertiser; J. P. Fallon, New York Evening Journal; E. H. Godfrey, Atlanta Georgian-American; William F. Hart, New York Daily Mirror; Bryan Morse, Washington Times & Herald; Bruce Mann, Rochester Journal-American; Truman Bailey, San Francisco Examiner; Eugene Beaupre, New York Evening Journal; James G. Fernald, New York Daily Mirror; G. Sumner Collins, Wisconsin News; Tom J. Sinnott, Boston American and Advertiser. Seated (left to right)—S. C. Herman, Albany Times-Union; C. O. Davis, Los Angeles Examiner; C. E. Austin, Chicago Herald & Examiner; E. M. Carney, supervisor of promotion, Hearst Newspapers; A. L. Carmical, Chicago Evening American; E. A. Convery, Baltimore News & American; Meredith R. Pratt, Los Angeles Evening Herald; L. J. F. Moore, general promotion department.

ROSE LEAVING BUFFALO TO JOIN HEARST

Managing Editor of News Will Work in Editorial Capacity—Succeeded by Kirchhofer, Washington Correspondent

Appointment of Marc A. Rose, managing editor of the Buffalo Evening News, to the Hearst organization in an editorial capacity was announced this week in New York. What position Mr. Rose would assume was not made public. The appointment is effective immediately.

A. H. Kirchhofer

Marc A. Rose

Mr. Rose has been managing editor of the Buffalo paper since 1920. He is now 39, and has been in newspaper work since he was 12, when he started as part-time reporter on the Waukegan (Ill.) Sun. He worked successively on the Joliet (Ill.) Herald, the New Orleans Times-Democrat and the Atlanta Georgian.

He has had New York experience with the old New York Press and later on the New York Sun. He was assistant city editor of the latter paper in 1920, when he left to become managing editor of the Buffalo Evening News.

Alfred H. Kirchhofer, Washington correspondent of the News, will succeed Mr. Rose as managing editor. Mr. Kirchhofer came to Washington for the News in 1921, and since that time has forged to the front rank in the corps of correspondents. He has been very active in the affairs of the National Press Club, which unanimously elected him president in December last. In various club capacities he has taken the lead in instituting reforms which have turned deficits into a surplus. Outstanding in his support of the National Press building project, Mr. Kirchhofer is a director of the building corporation, whose common stock in its entirety is owned by the National Press Club and is a member of its executive and finance committees.

Mr. Kirchhofer has been with the Buffalo News a dozen years, first doing general reporting, then desk work, next serving four years as Albany correspondent and coming to Washington six years ago.

Louis Ludlow, veteran Washington correspondent will, as vice-president of the National Press Club, automatically succeed Mr. Kirchhofer as president when the latter retires. Mr. Ludlow, long a familiar figure in newspaper circles at the national capital, a few months ago staged a comeback after a serious illness that almost cost him his life. He surprised his many Washington friends by returning from Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, after having been reported at the point of death. He signalized his return by being elected vice-president of the National Press Club at its last election. Mr. Ludlow is the Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, Columbus Dispatch, Columbus Ohio State Journal, and other Ohio newspapers. He is also correspondent for the Denver Post, Spokane Chronicle, and Louisville Herald-Post.

PLEASED WITH CONFERENCE

W. R. Hearst Wires Executives Regrets He Was Unable to Attend

Regret that he was unable to attend the annual conference of his executives was expressed by William Randolph Hearst in a telegram received by the conference delegates just prior to adjournment Feb. 2, in Baltimore.

In the telegram, the context of which were made public this week at the Hearst executive offices in New York, Mr. Hearst also thanked the officials gathered at the conference for their felicitations extended to him in telegrams he had received from them in California.

"I am sure the session was agreeable and beneficial for all," Mr. Hearst telegraphed. "I am very sorry I was not there, as I would have greatly enjoyed meeting you all, hearing all that was said, and learning all I could from your experience and your ideas."

NEW AD CLUB EXECUTIVE

J. R. Bolton Succeeds Jackson as Secretary of New York Group

Joseph R. Bolton, formerly sales manager of the Dictograph Products Corporation, on Feb. 7, became executive secretary of the Advertising Club of New York, succeeding Clinton Jackson, resigned.

Joseph R. Bolton

Mr. Bolton started his business career with the old Edison General Electric Company. Following this he spent 10 years in the mail order field, five years with the National Cloak and Suit Company and five years with Perry Dame & Co. He then spent another five years in sales promotion work for several national advertisers, including the Royal Typewriter Company, Borden Milk Company and the Carbona Products Company. In 1921 he joined the staff of the Retail Millinery Association as treasurer and business manager, where he remained four years. Since 1925 he has been with the Dictograph Company.

The new executive secretary was introduced to all Advertising Club employes by President Charles C. Green at a meeting at the club Feb. 5.

O. C. HARN NEW A. B. C. MANAGING DIRECTOR

reau President Named to Succeed Stanley Clague—Philip L. Thomson Elected President—Both Former Newspaper Men—Bureau Expansion Contemplated

C. HARN, for the past six years president of the Audit Bureau of ulations, was appointed managing di- r of the bureau to succeed the late ley Clague at a meeting of the board irectors held in New York Feb. 3. he same time Philip L. Thomson, icity manager of the Western Elec- Company, was elected president in ssion to Mr. Harn.

r. Harn will assume his new duties h 1, when his resignation as adver- manager of the National Lead pany, will become effective. Edward dler, chief auditor, is in temporary ge of the bureau.

ie new managing director and presi- of the bureau will be guests of r at a luncheon to be given them on 17 by the Advertising Club of New . Gil Hodges of the New York is in charge of the luncheon ar- ements.

erviewed by EDITOR & PUBLISHER in ago this week, Mr. Harn, who was en route to Milwaukee on National Company business, revealed that he w giving careful consideration to score of expansion suggestions, h have been made during the last and which he believes may be worked n the near future.

. Harn said:

here is little I can say in the way tlining the future. Policies are the ess of the board of directors. The ger is the executive who directs the tions in accordance with the ideas e board.

s yet, I have not had an opportunity lk over things with Mr. Thompson, ew president. I do not believe the tors would ask me even to recom- anything new for their considera- until I have had time to get fairly d in my new job.

will say this, however, not so much y capacity as manager but as one had, until a few days ago, been a tor, that I believe there are a num- f ways in which the service of the u can be made of increasing help- ss to members.

ne of these is in making the work ie bureau better understood. With er understanding will come greater athy and enthusiastic co-operation. have not had the facilities for this e, but the members of the new l have intimated their willingness to y the means and I believe plans can rked out.

uring the past year some very con- ive suggestions have been made by ers of the bureau, some of which d impractical at the time, but n may become perfectly feasible in ear future. I have memoranda of ese suggestions and intend getting uch with their authors in order to ore fully into them.

me of the things apparently de- by agents and advertisers are ed for the present by the lack of liction of the bureau over machinery tribution, such as the further anal- f newsstand sales. Nevertheless, I e in keeping all such demands in in again surveying the situation time to time, because I have fre- ly found that what was impossible day is often possible today.

short, I shall keep my ears very open to suggestions and while I from past expereince in other lines siness that never are all suggestions , the only way to cash in on the ble ones is to examine all.

he other thing occurs to me as il- ting my personal attitude toward ob. I am not too proud to admit a ke when I make one, and I often I hope my many friends who have ssed themselves so cordially on my sion to the position will bear with me in times when they don't agree with me.

"I approach the many big problems of the work with enthusiasm."

Mr. Thomson, the new president, was sought out by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, at his New York office.

"I feel sure," he said, "that the publishing and advertising world will look upon Mr. Harn's succession to the position of managing director as the best possible insurance that the great work of the A. B. C. will be continued and will be further developed.

"When a man who has been identified for more than 20 years with a great manufacturing organization and has been a leader in the advertising world is willing to give up such an association it augurs well for the future of audited circulation.

"Mr. Harn's early experience was in the newspaper field. His more recent business connection was with an advertiser. In the meantime as one of the organizers and a director of the A. B. C. and as president for the past six years, he has had an unequalled opportunity to see all sides of the problems relating to circulation. He can, therefore, be expected to approach these problems not from any partisan or one-sided viewpoint, but with a knowledge of all the interests involved and an understanding of the necessity for safeguarding these interests.

"The whole cause of sound publishing and sound advertising stands to be benefitted by the experience and leadership Mr. Harn will bring as the operating head of the A. B. C."

O. C. Harn

P. L. Thomson

Mr. Harn was born in Dayton, O., and educated at Ohio Wesleyan and Cornell Universities. His first business experience was as a clerk in a bookstore. This was while he was working his way through college. When he was graduated, he became a reporter for the Cleveland Leader. Later he became telegraph editor of the Cleveland Press, and agent for the Scripps-McRae Press Association.

From this latter work, Mr. Harn went into trade journalism in Cleveland as editor and manager of a grocery paper. There he began writing advertisements for his clients. One of the clients was the H. J. Heinz Company of Pittsburgh, and he subsequently was appointed advertising manager of this firm.

After a year with the Heinz company, he took a similar position with the National Lead Company, in 1905, and has been there since. When Mr. Harn first became associated with the National Lead Company, it had no national trade mark. Its white lead brands had only local prestige. To make general advertising possible, Mr. Harn originated the "Dutch Boy Painter," as the company's trade mark.

Mr. Harn was one of the organizers of the Association of National Advertising Managers and was its second president. He was also president of the Technical Publicity Association for two terms. For four years he was chairman of the National Advertising Commission of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, now called the Advertising Commission of the International Advertising Association. He was also a member of the executive committee of the I. A. A. He is at present president of the New York Sales Managers' Club.

During the last several years, Mr. Harn has devoted considerable attention to the co-operative advertising campaign of the paint and varnish industry, known as the Save-the-Surface Campaign. He is a member of the executive committee conducting the campaign and chairman of its sub-committee.

Philip L. Thomson, newly elected president of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, was born in Schenectady, New York. He graduated from Union College in 1900 and from Harvard in 1902. During the period he was in college and in the year following he was engaged in newspaper work.

He began his business career in 1903 in the Chicago office of the Western Electric Company. From 1906 to 1911 he was manager of its Pittsburgh office, and was then called to New York to take charge of the company's advertising. For fifteen years he has been its manager.

Mr. Thomson was for seven years a director of the Association of National Advertisers and its president in 1923 and 1924. He has been a director of the Audit Bureau of Circulations since 1925. He has rendered conspicuous service in the National Electric Light Association and other organizations of the electrical industry, and has been a frequent contributor to magazines. In 1925 he received the honorary degree of M. A. from Union College.

His home is in Glen Ridge, New Jersey.

NOTABLES TO HELP CARTOONISTS HONOR DEANS OF CRAFT

Cartoonists who are arranging dinner for Rogers, Gibson and Opper—Top row (left to right)—Maurice Ketten, New York World; Eddie McBride, New York Herald Tribune; Rube Goldberg, McNaught Syndicate, chairman entertainment committee; Herbert Johnson, Saturday Evening Post; C. R. Macauley, chairman general committee; Bottom row—Harry Hershfield, King Features; Clare Briggs, New York Herald Tribune; Tony Sarg, illustrator; Richard F. Outcault, retired; Winsor McCay, New York Herald Tribune; Eugene Bisbee, executive secretary.

MEN of large affairs in the industry and arts of the country have been invited to be guests of the Cartoonists of America, which body will honor three deans of their profession at a dinner in the Hotel Astor on the evening of March 18, 1927.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation; Chauncey Depew, chairman of the board of the New York Central Lines; Gen. Pershing; Gov. Alfred E. Smith; Mayor James J. Walker, and publishers and editors of leading newspapers are expected to attend.

The entertainment committee, headed by Rube Goldberg, is busy with its plans for a show of its own on that Friday evening when the hosts gather to honor W. A. Rogers, Charles Dana Gibson and Fred B. Opper, while the professional entertainers are flocking to the standard and will offer a rare treat to the diners. Both programs are to be a surprise.

Ladies will be welcomed to the balcony of the grand ballrom after 10:30 o'clock, where refreshments will be served them.

DECEMBER LINAGE DROPPED SLIGHTLY BEHIND 1925

FOLLOWING are comparative linage statistics for December, 1926-1925, as compiled by the New York Evening Post Statistical Department, Inc.

SUMMARY OF ADVERTISING BY CITIES

30 cities listed — 10 show gain — 20 show loss
131 papers listed — 53 show gain — 75 show loss
5 no comparison.

	1926	1925
New York	14,731,697	15,369,510	637,813 Loss
Chicago	7,503,963	7,643,157	139,194 Loss
Philadelphia	6,417,300	6,988,200	570,900 Loss
Detroit	4,993,982	5,527,536	533,554 Loss
Cleveland	3,752,175	4,071,675	319,500 Loss
St. Louis	4,556,340	4,485,180	71,160 Gain
Boston	6,893,269	7,051,937	158,668 Loss
Baltimore	4,466,247	4,524,654	58,407 Loss
Los Angeles	6,981,057	7,043,124	62,067 Loss
Buffalo	3,498,743	4,125,085	626,342 Loss
San Francisco	4,671,008	4,880,225	209,217 Loss
Milwaukee	3,209,876	3,197,765	12,111 Gain
Washington	5,192,799	5,162,693	30,106 Gain
Cincinnati	3,879,600	3,962,100	82,500 Loss
New Orleans	4,645,478	4,888,088	242,610 Loss
Minneapolis	2,888,039	3,069,615	181,576 Loss
Seattle	3,001,404	2,940,152	61,252 Gain
Indianapolis	3,381,780	3,475,818	94,038 Loss
Denver	2,619,344	2,602,908	16,436 Gain
Providence	2,998,877	3,036,642	37,765 Loss
Columbus	3,708,259	3,893,233	184,974 Loss
Louisville	3,687,875	3,360,438	327,437 Gain
St. Paul	2,351,776	2,436,490	84,714 Loss
Oakland	2,696,106	2,717,078	20,972 Loss
Omaha	1,820,119	1,976,226	156,107 Loss
Birmingham	2,804,732	2,731,274	73,458 Gain
Richmond	2,221,548	2,193,150	28,398 Gain
Dayton	3,454,626	3,314,696	139,930 Gain
Houston	3,135,426	2,944,922	190,504 Gain
Des Moines	1,896,299	1,934,807	38,508 Loss
Totals	128,059,744	131,548,378	3,488,634 Loss

NEW YORK

	1926	1925
American	953,722	1,174,814	221,092 Loss
Herald Trib.	1,536,518	1,624,818	88,300 Loss
Times	2,358,539	2,509,050	150,511 Loss
World	1,158,502	1,398,756	240,254 Loss
*Mirror (Tab.)	371,703	366,460	5,243 Gain
News (Tab.)	782,492	708,884	73,608 Gain
*Eve Graphic	350,343	247,658	102,685 Gain
*Eve Journal	1,358,649	1,439,250	80,601 Loss
*Eve Post	551,607	543,690	7,917 Gain
*Eve World	910,676	920,202	9,526 Loss
*Sun	1,530,015	1,571,906	41,891 Loss
*Telegram	499,285	521,188	21,903 Loss
Bklyn Eagle	1,351,598	1,310,882	40,716 Gain
Bklyn Times	570,692	552,428	18,264 Gain
Standard Un.	447,356	479,524	32,168 Loss
Totals	14,731,697	15,369,510	637,813 Loss

CHICAGO

	1926	1925
*Daily News	1,786,506	1,747,698	38,808 Gain
Tribune	2,421,303	2,559,360	138,057 Loss
Herald-Examiner	1,062,435	1,099,332	36,897 Loss
*Post	528,492	564,945	36,453 Loss
*American	1,257,468	1,205,724	51,744 Gain
*Journal	447,759	466,098	18,339 Loss
Totals	7,503,963	7,643,157	139,194 Loss

PHILADELPHIA

	1926	1925
Inquirer	1,684,800	1,837,800	153,000 Loss
Record	728,100	809,100	81,000 Loss
Ledger	1,222,200	1,311,600	89,400 Loss
*Eve Ledger	1,263,600	1,286,400	22,800 Loss
*Bulletin	1,518,600	1,743,300	224,700 Loss
Totals	6,417,300	6,988,200	570,900 Loss

DETROIT

	1926	1925
News	2,587,746	2,940,882	353,136 Loss
Times	1,178,968	1,206,100	27,132 Loss
Free Press	1,227,268	1,380,554	153,286 Loss
Totals	4,993,982	5,527,536	533,554 Loss

CLEVELAND

	1926	1925
Plain Dealer	1,433,100	1,639,575	206,475 Loss
News-Leader	1,051,500	1,151,175	99,675 Loss
*Press	1,267,575	1,280,925	13,350 Loss
Totals	3,752,175	4,071,675	319,500 Loss

ST. LOUIS

	1926	1925
Post-Dispatch	2,172,240	2,114,280	57,960 Gain
Globe-Democrat	1,272,900	1,290,000	17,100 Loss
*Star	687,000	684,900	2,100 Gain
Times	424,200	396,000	28,200 Gain
Totals	4,556,340	4,485,180	71,160 Gain

* No Sunday edition.

BOSTON

	1926	1925
Herald	1,449,184	1,501,961	52,777 Loss
Globe	1,280,626	1,298,710	18,084 Loss
Post	1,148,355	1,156,884	8,529 Loss
Advertiser	548,150	479,637	68,513 Gain
*American	554,192	480,243	73,949 Gain
*Traveler	1,189,868	1,202,346	12,478 Loss
*Transcript	722,894	702,133	20,761 Gain
*Telegram	.....	230,023	.....
Totals	6,893,269	7,051,937	158,668 Loss

Telegram discontinued November, 1926.

BALTIMORE

	1926	1925
Sun	1,335,866	1,408,575	72,709 Loss
*Eve Sun	1,572,267	1,581,165	8,898 Loss
American	506,059	472,645	33,414 Gain
*News	672,592	672,676	84 Loss
*Post	379,463	389,593	10,130 Loss
Totals	4,466,247	4,524,654	58,407 Loss

LOS ANGELES

	1926	1925
Times	2,164,890	2,111,144	53,746 Gain
Examiner	1,808,407	1,899,496	91,089 Loss
*Express	789,880	834,134	44,254 Loss
*Herald	1,468,404	1,438,038	30,366 Gain
*Record	497,238	493,500	3,738 Gain
*News	252,238	266,812	14,574 Loss
Totals	6,981,057	7,043,124	62,067 Loss

News Sunday edition suspended publication May 2, 1926.

BUFFALO

	1926	1925
Express	.....	580,804	.....
Courier	960,397	762,486	197,911 Gain
Post	.....	100,433	.....
Times	1,306,343	1,253,545	52,798 Gain
*Star	.....	136,665	.....
*News	1,232,003	1,291,152	59,149 Loss
Totals	3,498,743	4,125,085	626,342 Loss

Post discontinued February, 1926. Express and Star combined with Courier, June 19, 1926.

SAN FRANCISCO

	1926	1925
Chronicle	938,686	954,534	15,848 Loss
Examiner	1,619,372	1,636,677	17,305 Loss
Bulletin	500,164	536,158	35,994 Loss
*Call	932,540	873,810	58,730 Gain
*News	680,246	723,156	42,910 Loss
*Herald	.....	155,890	.....
Totals	4,671,008	4,880,225	209,217 Loss

Herald discontinued May 5, 1926.

MILWAUKEE

	1926	1925
Journal	1,544,209	1,552,455	8,246 Loss
Sentinel-Telegram and Morning Sentinel	591,420	592,806	1,386 Loss
*Leader	297,301	311,279	13,978 Loss
*Wis. News	776,946	741,225	35,721 Gain
Totals	3,209,876	3,197,765	12,111 Gain

WASHINGTON

	1926	1925
Star	2,587,822	2,605,283	17,461 Loss
Post	986,695	956,353	30,342 Gain
*Eve Times	698,389	852,745	154,356 Loss
Herald	652,361	504,883	147,478 Gain
*Eve News	267,532	243,429	24,103 Gain
Totals	5,192,799	5,162,693	30,106 Gain

CINCINNATI

	1926	1925
*Post	901,800	864,600	37,200 Gain
*Times-Star	1,369,500	1,384,500	15,000 Loss
Enquirer	1,243,200	1,365,300	122,100 Loss
Tribune	365,100	347,700	17,400 Gain
Totals	3,879,600	3,962,100	82,500 Loss

NEW ORLEANS

	1926	1925
Times-Picayune	1,811,433	1,858,988	47,555 Loss
Item	1,152,172	1,256,551	104,379 Loss
States	1,085,452	1,056,864	28,588 Gain
*Tribune	596,421	715,685	119,264 Loss
Totals	4,645,478	4,888,088	242,610 Loss

MINNEAPOLIS

	1926	1925
Tribune	1,194,540	1,291,379	96,839 Loss
Journal	1,214,231	1,325,549	111,318 Loss
*Star	479,268	452,687	26,581 Gain
Totals	2,888,039	3,069,615	181,576 Loss

SEATTLE

	1926	1925
Times	1,412,922	1,398,586	14,336 Gain
Post-Intelligencer	904,008	803,292	100,716 Gain
*Star	553,420	589,300	35,880 Loss
*Union-Record	131,054	148,974	17,920 Loss
Totals	3,001,404	2,940,152	61,252 Gain

INDIANAPOLIS

	1926	1925
*News	1,635,240	1,639,482	4,242
Star	1,200,351	1,222,341	21,990
*Times	546,189	613,995	67,806
Totals	3,381,780	3,475,818	94,038

DENVER

	1926	1925
News	694,372	678,944	15,428
Post	1,292,564	1,407,896	115,332
*Evening News	632,408	516,068	116,340
Totals	2,619,344	2,602,908	16,436

PROVIDENCE

	1926	1925
Journal	895,970	993,906	97,936
*Bulletin	1,265,891	1,192,385	73,506
Tribune	415,262	408,311	6,951
*News	421,754	442,040	20,286
Totals	2,998,877	3,036,642	37,765

COLUMBUS

	1926	1925
Dispatch	1,942,774	2,169,557	226,783
Journal	631,068	686,767	55,699
*Citizen	1,134,417	1,036,909	97,508
Totals	3,708,259	3,893,233	184,974

LOUISVILLE

	1926	1925
Courier-Journal	1,306,600	1,248,950	57,650
Herald-Post	680,249	593,071	87,178
*Times	1,152,708	1,050,290	102,418
*Post	548,318	468,127	80,191
Totals	3,687,875	3,360,438	327,437

ST. PAUL

	1926	1925
*Dispatch	819,546	850,738	31,192
Pioneer	745,136	850,486	105,350
News	787,094	735,266	51,828
Totals	2,351,776	2,436,490	84,714

OAKLAND

	1926	1925
Tribune	1,579,172	1,591,954	12,782
*Post-Inquirer	970,270	933,380	36,890
*Times	146,664	191,744	45,080
Totals	2,696,106	2,717,078	20,972

Times inaugurated October 23, 1925.

OMAHA

	1926	1925
World-Herald	1,030,610	963,368	67,242
Bee	451,850	551,866	100,016
News	337,659	460,992	123,333
Totals	1,820,119	1,976,226	156,107

BIRMINGHAM

	1926	1925
Age-Herald	741,860	705,250	36,610
News	1,495,704	1,514,646	18,942
*Post	567,168	511,378	55,790
Totals	2,804,732	2,731,274	73,458

RICHMOND

	1926	1925
*News-Leader	1,147,062	1,184,884	37,822
Times-Dispatch	1,074,486	1,008,266	66,220
Totals	2,221,548	2,193,150	28,398

DAYTON

	1926	1925
News	1,628,788	1,619,030	9,758
*Herald	1,071,826	1,023,148	48,678
Journal	754,012	672,518	81,494
Totals	3,454,626	3,314,696	139,930

HOUSTON

	1926	1925
Chronicle	1,287,986	1,327,592	39,606
Post-Dispatch	1,176,056	1,013,566	162,490
*Press	671,384	603,764	67,620
Totals	3,135,426	2,944,922	190,504

DES MOINES

	1926	1925
Register	639,817	619,172	20,645
*Tribune	818,939	778,256	40,683
Capital	437,543	‡537,379	99,836
Totals	1,896,299	1,934,807	38,508

‡ Sunday Capital discontinued with issue of February 1926; include 26,875 linage Sunday issue.

LEADING NEWSPAPERS GAINED 4.4 PER CENT IN 1926 LINAGE

AIN of 4.4 per cent in the linage carried by leading newspapers during 1926 over 1925 is shown the New York Evening Post statistical department es, which follow:

SUMMARY OF ADVERTISING BY CITIES

ities listed	27 show gain		3 show loss
apers listed	102 show gain		29 show loss
	2 no comparison
	1926	1925
York	176,951,231	167,831,296	9,119,935 Gain
go	92,432,073	87,089,484	5,342,589 Gain
elphia	82,344,076	85,038,042	2,693,966 Loss
it	65,009,000	62,713,462	2,295,538 Gain
land	46,579,725	46,188,975	390,750 Gain
ouis	51,398,120	49,356,600	2,041,520 Gain
n	77,932,892	72,844,290	5,088,602 Gain
nore	54,122,738	51,466,555	2,656,183 Gain
Angeles	84,179,967	82,772,327	1,407,640 Gain
lo	42,380,430	43,974,641	1,594,211 Loss
rancisco	57,175,635	55,780,425	1,395,210 Gain
ukee	36,374,460	35,013,546	1,360,914 Gain
ington	58,137,765	52,587,349	5,550,416 Gain
nati	42,398,100	39,908,100	2,490,000 Gain
Orleans	47,939,055	44,198,990	3,740,065 Gain
apolis	36,570,982	34,447,395	2,123,587 Gain
e	35,736,656	32,942,006	2,794,650 Gain
napolis	37,637,919	37,377,921	259,998 Gain
r	27,202,028	27,600,160	398,132 Loss
ience	34,195,849	33,044,780	1,151,069 Gain
ibus	42,757,530	39,408,687	3,348,843 Gain
ville	40,929,091	37,559,113	3,369,978 Gain
aul	29,596,938	28,056,168	1,540,770 Gain
nd	30,728,530	29,154,608	1,573,922 Gain
a	22,887,921	22,198,799	689,122 Gain
ngham	32,873,022	30,229,304	2,643,718 Gain
mond	23,435,154	22,882,960	552,194 Gain
n	35,692,958	34,877,164	815,794 Gain
on	33,843,222	29,895,944	3,947,278 Gain
oines	23,585,271	23,128,515	456,756 Gain
Totals	1,503,028,338	1,439,567,606	63,460,732 Gain

NEW YORK

	1926	1925
ican	13,112,851	14,183,094	1,070,243 Loss
d Trib.	18,785,853	16,525,824	2,260,029 Gain
	29,788,828	28,200,444	1,588,384 Gain
l	17,658,831	17,237,062	421,769 Gain
r (T.)	3,699,719	3,926,302	226,583 Loss
(T.)	7,881,770	6,832,472	1,049,298 Gain
Graphic	3,699,155	†2,186,676	1,512,479 Gain
Journal	14,758,009	15,057,218	299,209 Loss
Post	5,181,281	5,059,968	121,313 Gain
World	9,842,432	8,921,428	921,004 Gain
	16,245,237	14,705,916	1,539,321 Gain
gram	5,803,533	6,655,486	851,953 Loss
Eagle	17,899,284	16,718,464	1,180,820 Gain
Times	6,982,716	5,255,662	1,727,054 Gain
Union	5,611,732	6,365,280	753,548 Loss
Totals	176,951,231	167,831,296	9,119,935 Gain

nday Graphic inaugurated May 3, 1925, discontinued nber 1, 1925; 364,152 lines in the eighteen Sunday issues ed.

CHICAGO

	1926	1925
News	21,811,503	20,483,166	1,328,337 Gain
e	32,715,561	31,068,405	1,647,156 Gain
l-Examiner	12,987,654	12,179,577	808,077 Gain
	6,078,525	5,689,395	389,130 Gain
ican	13,726,488	12,694,074	1,032,414 Gain
al	5,112,342	4,974,867	137,475 Gain
Totals	92,432,073	87,089,484	5,342,589 Gain

PHILADELPHIA

	1926	1925
er	21,893,400	21,460,500	432,900 Gain
d	8,805,000	9,229,200	424,200 Loss
	15,865,668	15,141,359	724,309 Gain
Ledger	15,300,208	15,242,083	58,125 Gain
American		3,428,100
tin	20,479,800	20,536,800	57,000 Loss
Totals	82,344,076	85,038,042	2,693,966 Loss

h American combined with Ledger May 18, 1925.

DETROIT

	1926	1925
	34,030,570	33,,366,494	664,076 Gain
	13,516,636	12,699,092	817,544 Gain
ress	17,461,794	16,647,876	813,918 Gain
Totals	65,009,000	62,713,462	2,295,538 Gain

CLEVELAND

	1926	1925
Dealer	18,417,750	18,895,650	477,900 Loss
	13,059,450	13,056,825	2,625 Gain
	15,102,525	14,236,500	866,025 Gain
Totals	46,579,725	46,188,975	390,750 Gain

ST. LOUIS

	1926	1925
ispatch	25,161,920	23,658,600	1,503,320 Gain
Democrat	14,864,400	14,540,400	324,000 Gain
	7,116,600	7,264,800	148,200 Loss
	4,255,200	3,892,800	362,400 Gain
Totals	51,398,120	49,356,600	2,041,520 Gain

Sunday edition.

BOSTON

	1926	1925
	15,860,799	14,487,395	1,373,404 Gain
	16,109,364	15,116,626	992,738 Gain
	12,490,384	12,085,689	404,695 Gain
iser	5,776,200	4,887,167	889,033 Gain
can	5,240,520	4,764,522	475,998 Gain
ler	12,661,615	11,349,358	1,312,257 Gain
ript	7,588,770	7,271,708	317,062 Gain
am	2,205,240	2,881,825	676,585 Loss
Totals	77,932,892	72,844,290	5,088,602 Gain

ram discontinued November, 1926.

BALTIMORE

	1926	1925
Sun	17,849,909	17,652,737	197,172 Gain
*Eve Sun	17,844,842	17,133,866	710,976 Gain
American	6,220,224	5,768,479	451,745 Gain
*News	7,905,894	7,737,788	168,106 Gain
*Post	4,301,869	3,173,685	1,128,184 Gain
Totals	54,122,738	51,466,555	2,656,183 Gain

LOS ANGELES

	1926	1925
†Times	26,489,386	25,909,058	580,328 Gain
Examiner	22,952,143	22,773,969	178,174 Gain
*Express	9,213,582	9,399,516	185,934 Loss
*Herald	17,505,474	16,505,384	1,000,090 Gain
*Record	5,147,660	4,975,628	172,032 Gain
*News	2,871,722	3,208,772	337,050 Loss
Totals	84,179,967	82,772,327	1,407,640 Gain

News Sunday edition suspended publication May 2, 1926.
†Includes 164,668 lines of advertising that appeared in the two annual midwinter editions of the Times, issued on January 1, 1926, and December 28, 1926. One annual edition only issued during 1925, which contained 96,068 lines.

BUFFALO

	1926	1925
Express	2,757,933	5,850,577	3,092,644 Loss
Courier	9,366,522	7,874,754	1,491,768 Gain
Post	81,447	1,166,803	1,085,356 Loss
Times	13,786,110	12,860,301	925,809 Gain
*Star	815,363	1,500,825	685,462 Loss
*News	15,573,055	14,721,381	851,674 Gain
Totals	42,380,430	43,974,641	1,594,211 Loss

Commercial—Name changed to Post, February, 1925; discontinued February, 1926.
Enquirer—Name changed to Star, February, 1925; combined with Courier June 19, 1926.
Express combined with Courier June 19, 1926.

SAN FRANCISCO

	1926	1925
Chronicle	11,530,610	11,176,494	354,116 Gain
Examiner	19,671,021	19,135,663	535,358 Gain
Bulletin	6,665,106	6,943,090	277,984 Loss
*Call	10,778,684	9,251,732	1,526,952 Gain
*News	7,954,618	7,485,310	469,308 Gain
*Herald	575,596	1,788,136	1,212,540 Loss
Totals	57,175,635	55,780,425	1,395,210 Gain

Herald discontinued May 5, 1926.

MILWAUKEE

	1926	1925
Journal	18,950,379	17,539,375	1,411,004 Gain
S. T. & A. Sentinel...	6,944,604	7,301,847	357,243 Loss
*Leader	2,970,348	2,881,711	88,637 Gain
*Wis News	7,509,129	7,290,613	218,516 Gain
Totals	36,374,460	35,013,546	1,360,914 Gain

WASHINGTON

	1926	1925
Star	28,900,824	26,569,198	2,331,626 Gain
Post	11,343,381	10,396,057	947,324 Gain
*Eve Times	8,086,245	8,352,351	266,106 Loss
Herald	7,028,191	5,327,998	1,700,193 Gain
*Eve News	2,779,124	1,941,745	837,379 Gain
Totals	58,137,765	52,587,349	5,550,416 Gain

CINCINNATI

	1926	1925
*Post	9,758,400	8,649,900	1,108,500 Gain
*Times-Star	14,871,600	14,124,300	747,300 Gain
Enquirer	14,307,900	13,707,000	600,900 Gain
Tribune	3,460,200	3,426,900	33,300 Gain
Totals	42,398,100	39,908,100	2,490,000 Gain

NEW ORLEANS

	1926	1925
Times-Picayune	19,860,920	18,088,854	1,772,066 Gain
Item	11,259,341	10,830,493	428,848 Gain
States	9,787,445	9,092,665	694,780 Gain
*Tribune	7,031,349	6,186,978	844,371 Gain
Totals	47,939,055	44,198,990	3,740,065 Gain

MINNEAPOLIS

	1926	1925
Tribune	15,335,281	14,847,855	487,426 Gain
Journal	15,561,859	14,392,219	1,169,640 Gain
*Star	5,673,842	5,207,321	466,521 Gain
Totals	36,570,982	34,447,395	2,123,587 Gain

SEATTLE

	1926	1925
Times	16,445,030	15,436,134	1,008,896 Gain
Post-Intelligencer	10,791,270	9,035,362	1,755,908 Gain
*Star	6,766,344	7,062,074	295,730 Loss
*Union-Record	1,734,012	1,408,436	325,576 Gain
Totals	35,736,656	32,942,006	2,794,650 Gain

INDIANAPOLIS

	1926	1925
*News	18,272,586	17,897,664	374,922 Gain
Star	13,361,904	13,465,023	103,119 Loss
*Times	6,003,429	6,015,234	11,805 Loss
Totals	37,637,919	37,377,921	259,998 Gain

DENVER

	1926	1925
News	6,687,352	7,175,168	487,816 Loss
Post	15,103,312	14,806,400	296,912 Gain
*Times	5,411,364	5,618,592	207,228 Loss
Totals	27,202,028	27,600,160	398,132 Loss

PROVIDENCE

	1926	1925
Journal	10,542,104	10,239,424	302,680 Gain
*Bulletin	14,175,342	13,373,496	801,846 Gain
Tribune	4,718,533	4,573,162	145,371 Gain
*News	4,759,870	4,858,698	98,828 Loss
Totals	34,195,849	33,044,780	1,151,069 Gain

COLUMBUS

	1926	1925
Dispatch	22,962,084	21,544,376	1,417,708 Gain
Journal	7,801,456	7,557,000	244,456 Gain
*Citizen	11,993,990	10,307,311	1,686,679 Gain
Totals	42,757,530	39,408,687	3,348,843 Gain

LOUISVILLE

	1926	1925
Courier-Journal	14,789,402	13,571,569	1,217,833 Gain
Herald-Post	7,532,407	7,751,760	219,353 Loss
*Times	12,488,974	11,126,384	1,362,590 Gain
*Post	6,118,308	5,109,400	1,008,908 Gain
Totals	40,929,091	37,559,113	3,369,978 Gain

ST. PAUL

	1926	1925
*Dispatch	10,135,468	9,634,072	501,396 Gain
Pioneer	10,336,074	9,942,506	393,568 Gain
News	9,125,396	8,479,590	645,806 Gain
Totals	29,596,938	28,056,168	1,540,770 Gain

OAKLAND

	1926	1925
Tribune	19,071,710	18,849,726	221,984 Gain
*Post-Inquirer	10,166,184	8,052,972	1,213,212 Gain
*Record		932,704
*Times	1,490,636	419,146	1,071,490 Gain
Totals	30,728,530	29,154,608	1,573,922 Gain

Record discontinued October 24, 1925.
Times inaugurated October 23, 1925.

OMAHA

	1926	1925
World-Herald	12,549,474	11,465,538	1,083,936 Gain
Bee	5,619,985	5,533,178	86,807 Gain
News	4,718,462	5,200,083	481,621 Loss
Totals	22,887,921	22,198,799	689,122 Gain

BIRMINGHAM

	1926	1925
Age-Herald	8,549,996	8,344,602	205,394 Gain
News	18,220,272	16,972,872	1,247,400 Gain
*Post	6,102,754	4,911,830	1,190,924 Gain
Totals	32,873,022	30,229,304	2,643,718 Gain

RICHMOND

	1926	1925
*News-Leader	12,725,406	12,125,626	599,780 Gain
Times-Dispatch	10,709,748	10,757,334	47,586 Loss
Totals	23,435,154	22,882,960	552,194 Gain

DAYTON

	1926	1925
News	17,030,986	16,781,576	249,410 Gain
*Herald	10,569,314	10,147,284	422,030 Gain
Journal	8,092,658	7,948,304	144,354 Gain
Totals	35,692,958	34,877,164	815,794 Gain

HOUSTON

	1926	1925
Chronicle	15,121,190	13,912,388	1,208,802 Gain
Post-Dispatch	12,336,100	10,063,586	2,272,514 Gain
*Press	6,385,932	5,919,970	465,962 Gain
Totals	33,843,222	29,895,944	3,947,278 Gain

DES MOINES

	1926	1925
Register	8,094,359	7,370,789	723,570 Gain
*Tribune	9,608,754	8,792,600	816,145 Gain
Capital	5,882,158	6,965,117	1,082,959 Loss
Totals	23,585,271	23,128,515	456,756 Gain

Sunday Capital discontinued with issue of February 21, 1926.

ATLANTA

	1926	1925
Constitution	10,112,312	9,822,848	289,464 Gain
Journal	14,831,075	13,862,026	968,949 Gain
Totals	24,943,387	23,684,974	1,258,413 Gain

KANSAS CITY

	1926	1925
Journal	4,443,452	5,418,357	974,905 Loss
Post	4,742,232	4,303,084	439,148 Gain
Star	19,046,921	17,794,219	1,252,702 Gain
*Times	10,029,075	9,434,171	594,904 Gain
Totals	38,261,680	36,949,831	1,311,849 Gain

MEMPHIS

	1926	1925
Commercial Appeal....	16,433,872	15,265,089	1,168,783 Gain
*Press-Scimitar	6,808,384	5,948,432	859,952 Gain
*News Scimitar	6,124,510
Totals	23,242,256	21,213,521	2,028,735 Gain

PITTSBURGH

	1926	1925
*Chronicle-Telegraph	11,893,742	11,700,276	193,466 Gain
Gazette-Times	10,253,614	9,730,560	523,054 Gain
Press	25,254,684	23,597,392	1,657,292 Gain
Post	10,336,152	9,522,996	813,156 Gain
*Sun	8,692,208	8,989,414	297,206 Loss
Totals	66,430,400	63,540,638	2,889,762 Gain

PORTLAND

	1926	1925
*News	5,733,264	5,896,160	337,104 Gain
Oregonian	14,969,154	14,872,340	96,814 Gain
Oregon Journal	12,507,152	12,019,252	487,900 Gain
*Telegram	5,778,686	6,465,928	685,242 Loss
Totals	38,988,256	38,753,680	234,576 Gain

S. N. P. A. BOARD PHOTOGRAPHED AT MID-WINTER MEETING

Front row, left to right—Wiley L. Morgan, secretary-treasurer; John A. Park, Raleigh Times, president; Walter C. Johnson, Chattanooga News, chairman of th board; A. G. Newmyer, New Orleans Item-Tribune; Victor H. Hanson, Birmingham News. Rear row, left to right—Herbert Felkel, St. Augustine Record; W. W Holland, Spartanburg Herald & Journal; L. K. Nicholson, New Orleans Times-Picayune; J. S. Parks, Fort Smith Southwest American and Times-Record; W. Gu Tetrick, Clarksburg Exponent; A. E. Clarkson, Houston Post-Dispatch; Capt. Cranston Williams, manager; M. Stratton Foster, Clarksville Leaf-Chronicle.

S. N. P. A. PICKS ATLANTA FOR 1927 MEETING

25th Anniversary of Founding of Association to Be Celebrated July 4-6

The Southern Newspaper Publisher's Association will hold its annual convention for 1927 in Atlanta, on July 4-6, according to the announcement of the tors of the organization.

The tentative program for the convention includes reports and discussion of postage rates and the regulation of advertising agency service to newspapers. Also memorial services are to be held for the late C. P. J. Mooney, editor of the Memphis Commercial Appeal; Edgar M. Foster, of the Nashville Banner; and Frank G. Bell of the Savannah News.

The association, which was founded in Atlanta 25 years ago, has gained four new members since the last meeting, bringing the total membership up to 200, including the representative daily newspapers in 14 southern states.

John A. Park, of the Raleigh (N. C.) Times is president of the association, and Wiley L. Morgan is secretary and treasurer.

WASHINGTON PROGRAM READY

Round Table Discussions to Feature Seattle Newspaper Institute

Fewer set speeches and more round table discussions, where every publisher may give his own views and listen to the experiences of others, is to be the policy followed this year in the Fifteenth Annual Newspaper Institute of the Washington Press Association to be held at the University of Washington, Seattle, Feb. 17, 18 and 19.

Rev. Mark A. Matthews, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Seattle, is to address the institute Friday afternoon on the subject, "Can the Newspapers Help the Pulpit?" Other set speeches are: "Laws the Publisher Should Know," by E. L. Skeel, attorney for the Washington Press Asosciation, and "What Does the Farmer Want?" by Mrs. Ruth McGlade, director of the Extension Service of the Washington State College.

A symposium of "Reactions to Circulation Contests" will be a feature of the last day's session. A number of Washington publishers who have recently conducted contests will take part.

Round table discussions include: "Mechanical Problems," led by R. P. Milne, member of the Milne-Ryan-Gibson advertising agency of Seattle; "Make-up," under the leadership of George Astel, publisher of the Snoqualmie Valley Record; "How Many Days Shall an Editor Spend on His Paper?" directed by C. F. Brown, editor of the Stanwood News.

"Editorial Paragraph Writing," led by George Hopp of the Camas Post; "What to Do When the Presses Go Wrong," introduced by an expert from Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, Seattle printers; a discussion of the 12 em versus the 13 em column, led by Ezra T. Hazeltine, publisher of the South Bend Journal, and "A System of Uniform Accounting and How to Trace Repeat Jobs in the Job Department," to be introduced by R. E. Reed of the Kennewick Courier-Reporter.

N. Y. NEWSPAPER WOMEN TO HOLD ANNUAL BALL AT RITZ-CARLTON MARCH 11

Some of the members of the annual ball committee of the New York Newspaper Women's Club (front row, left to right) Helen Rowland, Emma Bugbee, Josephine Ober, Martha Coman. Second row (left to right) Charlotte McLevedge, Rose Therese Nagel, Marie L. Darrach, Madeline Riordan and Olive Hurlbut.

THE New York Newspaper Women's Club will hold its annual ball, March 11, at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York City. Publishers of the New York newspapers and their wives will be patrons and patronnesses.

Louella Parsons of the New York American is honorary chairman of the Ball Committee: Emma Bugbee, New York Herald Tribune, president of the Club, Jane Dixon of the Telegram and Martha Coman of the Scarsdale Enquirer, former president, comprise the Executive Committee.

Chairmen of the general committees are: Josephine Ober, New York World, music; Helen Rowland of King Features, hospitality; Jane Grant, New York Times, hotel; Dorothy Herzog, Mirror, entertainment; Madeleine Riordan, Evening Post, society; Amy Hogeboom, art; Therese Rose Nagel, radio; Martha Coman, finance; Deborah Corle, New York Herald Tribune, invitation; Rose Pelswick, Journal, motion picture; Olive Hurlbut American, ticket; Elsie Mc-Cormick, World, supper; and Charlotte McLevedge, Chicago Daily News, publicity.

RADIO STATION URG NEWSPAPER SPACE

WGL, New York, Demands That Ad tisers Using Air Time Announc Programs in Paid Advertising

Two significant developments in New York radio program censo situation came to light this week.

First, Lewis Landes, president of International Broadcasting Corpora operating station WGL, atop the H Majestic, issued an official order structing all his salesmen to ende to sell newspaper space in conjun with their broadcasting contracts.

ondly, a correction was sent out by National Broadcasting Company, ing editors to strike out the b name "Ipana" from the listed prog offering the "Ipana Troubadors," s sored by the Bristol-Myers Company

The order issued by Mr. Landes r

"In keeping with the policy of station please instruct your sale when interviewing prospects to them to use newspaper space in cor tion with their broadcast adverti This rule must be strictly adhered

Mr. Landes, sought out by EDITOR PUBLISHER, said he hoped to induc advertisers using his station to buy s in the newspapers to detail the at tions on their programs.

"The newspapers made radio," Landes said, "and they are now cert entitled to be paid for further prom of the new medium. It is beneficial an advertiser to call attention to air program by advertising it in space in the newspapers."

One of the big accounts handle WGL is Sterno Canned Heat. The tion charges advertisers $300 an hour commercial broadcasting.

CALL IN NEW PLANT

The Paterson (N. J.) Morning has moved into its new building, 3 Church street. The entire task of ing was consummated in 36 hours, s ing at 1 a. m. Saturday morning. plant was in good running order an operation at 5 p. m., Feb. 6.

NEW SOUTHERN MAGAZINE

Beginning with a March issue, w was distributed Feb. 7, the New S Magazine made its appearance. I edited by Paul Severance, a former n paper man. George Fort Milton, ed and publisher of the Chattanooga (Te News is contributing editor.

Detroit's Homes Are Furnished With The Aid of The News

FOOD, shoes and clothing are essentials and will be bought by any population in quantities regardless of income, but large expenditures for furniture depends on how much more the market has to spend than it actually needs for living. Furniture expenditures betoken a surplus for luxury. The Detroit market is a large purchaser of furniture. The great volume of furniture lineage carried by The Detroit News in 1926 not only indicates the prosperity of Detroit's population, but also shows how furniture advertisers have come to regard The News as their outstanding medium, due unquestionably to the fact that The News is the home newspaper, reaching practically every English-speaking home, and to the fact that The News' articles on home building, home furnishing and interior decoration are authoritative and have a distinct influence on the householders' buying trend.

The Detroit News in 1926 carried 3,501,526 lines of furniture advertising, more than two and a half times that of both other Detroit papers combined. This is evidence of what the possibilities of the Detroit market are and what The News can do for any advertiser of any worthy product.

The Detroit News

The HOME newspaper

350,000 Sunday Circulation—320,000 Week Day Circulation

TWO N. Y. EXECUTIVES DENOUNCE "SMUT" PUBLISHED IN TABLOIDS

Swope of World and Wiley of Times Say They Cast a Taint on All Journalism, at Broadway Association Luncheon, Feb. 9

WHAT New York newspapers are doing for their city was detailed at length by executives of the metropolitan dailies addressing members of the Broadway Association at a luncheon-meeting Feb. 9. Two of the speakers, representing standard papers, took occasion to rap the tabloids, while others stuck to the keynote struck by Fred A. Walker, managing director of the New York Evening Telegram and chairman of the Publishers Association, who declared "indescribable chaos" would result if newspaper presses stopped for any appreciable length of time.

It was Herbert Bayard Swope, executive editor of the New York World, and Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, who condemned the small-sized papers. Mr. Swope, in his address, which was read by James W. Barrett, city editor, asserted that certain tabloids had tainted the entire profession of journalism and might bring about a limited press censorship.

"Their brazen violations of privacy, in short, their outright filth, have brought about a condition that is reflected on all journalism. None of us can escape the taint," he said.

"The condition that has arisen is so serious that it would not be surprising were a form of censorship forced. Perhaps it might be an act similar to the one recently passed in England forbidding the publication of divorce and separation details.

"We are proud of the freedom of the press, but we should be fearful lest it become a license. Our right to speak should be limited by good taste as well as by honesty and a proper regard for libel laws."

Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, said that certain tabloids cast "an unfair taint" upon all newspapers and newspaper men. On the other hand, Armistead R. Holcombe, managing editor of the New York Herald Tribune, said that news "must be as clean as possible," but defended the publication of testimony such as was brought out in the Browning divorce action.

"The newspapers performed a real service of civic usefulness in publishing the Browning story," said Mr. Holcombe. "If it has served to arouse public opinion it has been a good thing. Besides, it showed people just what we have in our midst."

Julian S. Mason, editor of the New York Evening Post, discussed newspaper funds for charities, which in New York, he said, reached a total of $870,000 actually collected last year. He led with mention of the New York Times's fund for the Hundred Neediest Cases, which accounted for more than $277,000 of this total, and then listed the following other newspaper enterprises for charity last year.

Hearst newspapers (Milk Fund, etc.)	$225,000
Herald Tribune (Fresh Air Fund)	142,216
World (Children's Christmas Party)	25,000
Evening World (Coal Fund, etc.)	80,000
Sun (Funds for Roosevelt Heroes and Victims of Linseed King Sinking)	25,000
Evening Graphic (Help for Needy)	15,000
Evening Post (Old Couples' Fund)	42,000
Brooklyn Eagle (Neediest Cases)	38,000

The total of $870,000 did not include funds for Florida relief and other enterprises in which newspapers acted merely as money-collecting agencies, Mr. Mason said. On a capital basis, he said, the $870,000 would represent an investment of more than $17,000,000.

Lee Ettelson, managing editor of the New York American, pleaded with business men to discourage unscrupulous and untruthful publicity men and press agents.

Others who spoke included Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the Sun; Meyer Solmson, city editor of the Morning Telegraph; State Senator Alexander Simpson of New Jersey, prosecutor in the Hall-Mills case, and Lee J. Eastman, president of the Broadway Association, who presided.

"Upon the publicity afforded by the newspapers depends in large measure the prosperity of a thousand different forms of activity and the return on millions of dollars invested," said Mr. Walker. "Firmly as sports are established in this, the greatest centre of sport in the world, there is not a single sport which would not be practically killed if the newspapers unanimously refrained from printing anything about it. Baseball would die, boxing would be discontinued and racing would end if the newspapers printed nothing about them."

JUDGE GIVES ENWRIGHT 8 MONTHS IN JAIL

$500 Fine Also Imposed on Former Boston Telegraph Publisher After Conviction for Criminal Libel Based on Cartoon

Sentence of eight months in jail and a fine of $500 was imposed upon Frederick W. Enwright, former publisher of the Boston Telegram, later the Telegraph, by Judge Elias B. Bishop of Suffolk County superior court, Boston, Monday, Feb. 7, following conviction last week of criminal libel upon former Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston. The libel suit followed publication in the Boston Telegraph last Oct. 5, of a cartoon and editorial attacking Curley.

A motion for a new trial was denied and after a plea by Michael L. Sullivan, Enwright's counsel, for the imposition of a fine, Judge Bishop granted a stay of sentence pending an appeal to the supreme court. It is expected to be a matter of months and possibly a year before the latter disposes of this appeal.

In arguing for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, Attorney Sullivan filed an affidavit, sensational in nature, dealing with the raising of campaign funds in Curley's campaign for governor in 1924, which was impounded by the court.

TUCSON DAILY WINS FIGHT

Campaign Against University President Ends with His Resignation

The fight of the Tucson (Ariz.) Daily Independent to rid the State University of the services of President C. H. Marvin ended in success Jan. 31, when the board of regents announced that his resignation had been accepted by unanimous vote.

Dr. Byron Cummings was appointed president pro tem. With President Marvin four pro-Marvin regents resigned.

The Independent fought Marvin for many months, charging that he had broken down the morale of the institution. As a result of its campaign, the paper was boycotted by the Tucson Merchants Association, the group refusing to grant the paper a permit to solicit advertising as long as it fought Marvin.

The story of this fight, won by the Independent, was told in a recent issue of Editor & Publisher. W. D. Upshaw is editor of the Independent.

JACKIE COOGAN HAS A RIVAL

Maybe John Cohen III, pictured above is asking Dad, John Cohen II, movie editor of the New York Sun, to boost him into screenland. His grandfather, John S. Cohen, is publisher of the Atlanta Journal.

OLD WILL ADVISED AGAINST DAILY'S SALE

Document Drawn by D. R. Francis Former Owner of Old St. Louis Republic Although He Sold Paper Later

David R. Francis, former Governor of Missouri and former Ambassador to Russia, who died in St. Louis recently, left a will, made in 1916, advising his sons against selling the St. Louis Republic, which he owned at that time, and which he nevertheless sold in 1919 to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The section of the will regarding the Republic says:

"At the time this will is written I own the control or a majority of the stock of publishers, George Knapp & Co., of the St. Louis Republic. If my estate should be possessed of said control at the time of my death, I desire the executors should hold the stock in trust for the beneficiaries under the will, and not distribute my holdings, as control of a newspaper is always worth more than the minority interests. It is my wish, furthermore, that this property should be retained by my sons and operated, as there is not only a good field for the Republic, if properly managed, but the control of a great metropolitan daily affords an unequaled opportunity to benefit the community, city and section in which it is published, and gives to its owners potentialities to promote the good of society to an incalculable degree. If, however, three-fourths of the beneficiaries under this will, per stirpes, should prefer to sell the Republic rather than to operate it, then, and in that event, the executors are hereby empowered to sell when they can do so to advantage and without sacrificing the value of the property."

The value of the estate will not be known until after the completion of a long inventory. Gov. Francis' six sons are named as principal heirs in the will, which makes specific bequests of $1,087,500, including $20,000 for public objects, and which gives the city additional land for park purposes.

WARNS AGAINST CROOKS

Warning has been issued by J. M. George, secretary of the National Association of Direct Selling Companies, Inc., that a gang of crooks is operating in various cities using a new fraud device. They open up a "temporary store" and take orders for men's suits, overcoats and other clothing at absurdly low prices, promising delivery in "a few days." The customer leaves a substantial deposit. In a week or two the crooks disappear from town, having made no delivery.

"GAS" WARFARE MARK DENVER PRESS BATTLE

Five Gallons of Fuel Free for a 28-C Ad—News Gives Away Book Which Post Is Publishing Serially

(By telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

Denver, Colo., Feb. 9.—The journ istic "battle of the century" which been waged here for the past two mon took on spectacular aspects not with humor during the past few days, in form of promotion methods with parallel in American newspaper operati As a result, circulation and advertis linage both of F. G. Bonfils' Post, e ning, morning and Sunday, and the Ro Mountain News and Evening Ne owned since the beginning of Decem by the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, h taken quick and precipitous upward le and the city, accustomed to spectacu newspaper methods, is being treated stunts far beyond any in its previ experience.

One of the early surprises came ab as the result of publication by the N of a localized serial story, which dramatized by a party given at a hall w the 5,000 present being introduced t well known Denver girl employed for occasion to represent the heroine.

The Post countered by starting serial "Chickie," advertising it enth iastically.

The News met the challenge with announcement that serial readers need wait for the installments published in Post. The whole story, in book fo could be had at the News office as a cl ified ad premium.

"It's four years old, anyway," the N explained, "and we don't think so m of it."

An added inducement was given w the News announced a "sequel 'Chickie'" in which her adventures carried to a marital conclusion, and that too could be had at once with a w ad.

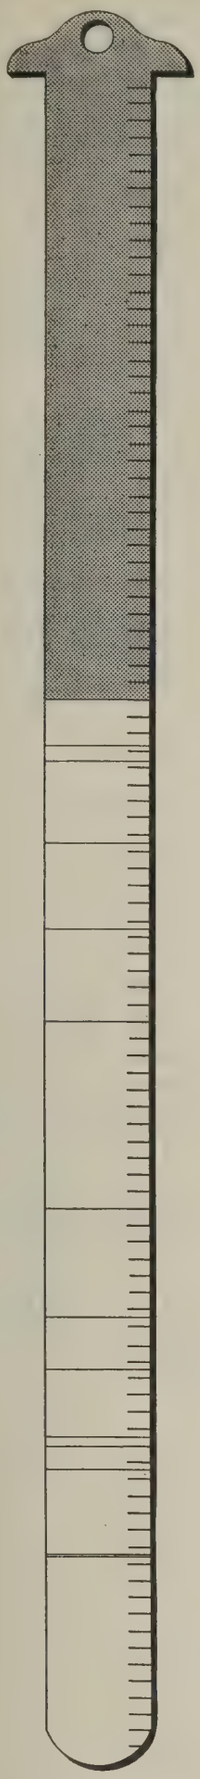
On the heels of the "Chickie" epis came the gasoline war.

The Post has for a long time offe premiums with classified advertiseme

Two weeks ago it announced tha credit slip exchangeable for two gall of gasoline at a designated filling sta would be given for each two-line classi advertisement.

Next morning the News informed readers that a classified ad would proc three gallons of gas.

The Post on the next morning ra the ante to four gallons and the N moved at once to a five-gallon bas five gallons of 21-cent gasoline, avail at any one of 20 stations throughout city, as a premium for a 28-cent w advertisement.



The Post did not meet the last r and the News on Feb. 6 printed 15 classified advertisements.

Last Saturday afternoon, when coupon-holders called for their gasol the queue stretched for two blocks an nearby restaurant man was employed the News to serve sandwiches and co to the waiting line. The News paid bill.

The past three days have seen no stunts of spectacular nature, but 325 citizens of Denver are watching with concealed interest for the next skirm in the war, which promises to continue definitely as a "wow of a scrap."

TORONTO STAR WINS SUIT

A decision in favor of the Toro Star has been returned in a libel brought by a Mr. Boys, a member the Canadian Parliament. The art complained of asserted that Boys prevented a criminal prosecution counsel for a person accused of sm gling and afterward of trying to bril customs official. The Star's defense that it had criticized him as an M. not as a member of the bar, and what it had said was founded on facts.

First Newspaper

The New York Times . 29,788,828

Agate Lines

The New York Times advertising leadership over the second New York newspaper was greater in 1926 than in 1925.

	Agate Lines
2nd	18,785,853
3rd	17,899,284
4th	17,658,831
5th	16,245,237
6th	14,758,009
7th	13,112,851
8th	9,842,432
9th	7,881,770
10th	6,982,716
11th and 12th	5,803,533 / 5,611,732
13th	5,181,281
14th	3,699,155

The Times excess over the second newspaper was 11,002,975 lines in 1926. In 1925 the excess was 10,693,382 lines.

The margin of The Times leadership over the second newspaper was greater than the margin of any other one newspaper over another.

Daily and Sunday The Times circulation is now at the highest point in its history. Net paid sale daily over 375,000 copies; Sunday over 650,000 copies.

The New York Times.

First in the First Market

OMAHA BEE ACQUIRES DAILY NEWS AT REPORTED PRICE OF $400,000

Nels Updike, Bee Owner, Declares Intention of Merging Papers Sometime This Month—Bee Will Occupy News Plant

(By telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 8.—Nels B. Updike millionaire Omaha grain man and owner and publisher of the Omaha Bee, a morning, evening and Sunday paper, announced today that he had purchased the Omaha Daily News, evening paper, and would merge the two papers some time this month.

The official notice from Mr. Updike follows:

"The consolidation of the Omaha Bee and the Omaha Daily News was effected today when the Bee purchased the News.

"The publication and delivery of the two newspapers will continue separately as at present until details of consolidation can be worked out.

"At that time, which is expected to be some time during February, the consolidated newspapers will be delivered to all subscribers of both publications."

Mr. Updike also announced that by purchasing the newspaper he also purchased the ground, building and all machinery and fixtures.

The lease on the Omaha Bee's present quarters is up this year and it is the plan of Mr. Updike to move the Bee into the News office as soon as possible.

Additional building will be started on the News at once and as soon as these are completed, the Bee equipment will be moved to the Daily News plant.

While no official statement was made concerning the purchase price, information from well informed sources is that the price was slightly over $400,000.

The deal, ratified this morning, was closed after conferences in St. Paul, Minn., last week by Mr. Updike and Joy M. Hackler, the business manager and Joy Bee, and Mrs. Mary McCurdy Ashbaugh, N. W. Reay, president of the Daily News Publishing Company, both of St. Paul, and C. D. Bertolet of Chicago. The three were the principal stockholders of the News, Mrs. Ashbaugh holding the majority interest.

The Omaha Daily News was founded 28 years ago as one of the Scripps-McRae chain of newspapers. Together with other mid-west Scripps papers, stock was acquired by men in active charge, and they, in a few years, formed the Clover Leaf Syndicate which published the Omaha Daily News, the Minneapolis News, the St. Paul News, the Des Moines News, one farm weekly, and a daily paper at St. Joseph, Mo. Other papers were the Kansas City World and the Sioux City News.

One by one the papers were sold or discontinued. With the sale of the Omaha Daily News, the syndicate now owns, only the St. Paul Daily News. Mrs. Ashbaugh, with the death of her husband, L. V. Ashbaugh, inherited the majority of stock.

Among others in Omaha who formerly held stock interests in the News were Mel Uhl, Sr., and F. W. Kellogg.

Under the merger Mr. Updike will remain owner and publisher while M. J. Hackler will continue to be business manager and Ballard Dunn editor.

The various editors, such as managing, city, sports, etc., are still undecided, and according to officials, there will be some of the News department heads retained.

There are nearly 300 employes of the Daily News.

The News was an evening and Sunday paper with a circulation of nearly 75,000 while the Bee has a circulation of 78,000. The official statement said that for the present the two papers would be printed separately and delivered to each subscriber.

The Bee has the full Associated Press morning and evening services, also the International and Universal services and a special Universal sport service.

The Daily News has the United News and United Press services.

Ballard Dunn came to the Bee to fill the office of editor-in-chief on Jan. 1, 1924. Previous to that he had spent some years in Washington, D. C., where he was head of the Bureau of Suggestions and Complaints of the railroads.

He started his newspaper career on the old St. Louis Chronicle in 1899. Later he worked on the Chicago American, the Inter-Ocean, Chicago Daily News, and was city editor of the Chicago Journal, from 1905 to 1907.

The politics of the merged papers will be solid Republican, which is the politics of the Bee. The News was Independent.

The merger leaves only the Omaha World Herald, owned by Senator G. M. Hitchock as the only other daily paper in the city.

The National Advertising representatives will continue to be the firm of Pudden, King and Pudden.

The best machinery of the two papers will be taken into the newly equipped building and the rest of it will be sold. For the present the name, Omaha Daily News and Omaha Bee, will be carried on all editions of the publication. Eventually the Omaha Daily News name will be made smaller, until within a year it will be down to a twelve point caps head.

Edward Gans, who came to the Omaha Daily News only four months ago to take over the reorganization of the paper in the capacity of publisher said he did not know just what he would do. He said he was under a long time contract with the Clover Leaf Syndicate, and would go where they sent him.

Neal Jones, editor of the News, was also undecided as to what he would do.

The News building at present is a two-story affair, but under the new building arrangements, the building is to be made longer first, so as to accommodate more presses and machines, and that another story or two would follow as soon as conditions permitted.

OHIO DAILIES MERGED

107-Year-Old Newark Advocate Buys 100-Year-Old American Tribune

The Newark (O.) Advocate on Monday purchased the Newark American Tribune and consolidated the two dailies as the Newark Advocate-American-Tribune, a six-day evening paper. It is being published at the Advocate plant.

The American Tribune, Republican, was established 100 years ago, and was owned by 16 prominent business men of Newark, including the owners of the two largest department stores of Newark. The Advocate, Democratic, is owned by the Spencer family, with Charles H. Spencer as editor, publisher and business manager. The Advocate was established in 1820 and is 107 years old, making it one of the oldest papers in the middle west.

Purchase of the American Tribune was effected through the purchase of all of the capital stock by the Advocate, which is recapitalizing the business with $150,000 preferred stock and 5,000 shares of common non par stock.

MICHIGAN DAILY SOLD

Church and McCall New Owners of Grand Haven Tribune

The Grand Haven (Mich.) Daily Tribune, evening newspaper, has been sold by Harry Nichols and Kingsbury Scott to Felix M. Church and Ernest J. McCall. Mr. Nichols, whose father founded the paper forty years ago, has not announced his plans. Mr. Kingsbury will remain in Grand Haven and devote his time to the magazine fiction field.

Mr. Church was former owner of the Cadillac Evening News, and is president of the Michigan League of Home Dailies. His partner, Mr. McCall, one of the owners of the Ithaca Grati County Herald. He is a former pres dent of the Michigan Press Associatio Scheerer, Inc., Chicago and New Yor represents the Tribune in the nation field.

QUINCY DAILY SOLD

Patriot Ledger Will Continue Publica toin of the Telegram

The George W. Prescott Publishin Company, Inc., publishers of the Quinc (Mass.) Patriot Ledger, last week pu chased the Quincy Evening Telegram, a afternoon paper, from Mrs. Willia Spargo, widow of the former publishe Mrs. Spargo assisted by her children, ha been running the paper since her hu band's death two years ago.

The purchase price was not announce The Patriot Ledger will continue pul lishing the Telegram for the presen printing it at the former's plant. Fran Keefe and James Collins, members of th reportorial staff of the Telegram, a continuing in the employ of the Patri Ledger.

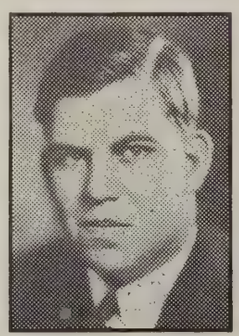
252,137

was the average net paid daily circulation of The Baltimore Sun (morning and evening issues) for the month of

January, 1927

The average net paid circulation of THE SUNDAY SUN per Sunday for the month of January, 1927 was 194,897.

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around



THE SUN

Morning Evening Sunday

GEORGE YOUNG'S OWN STORY

"How I Won the Catalina Channel Swim"

Dramatic Human Document By America's Most Picturesque Boy Hero

Fourteen One-Col. Installments For Daily Release

LEDGER SYNDICATE

INDEPENDENCE SQUARE PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The DAILY OKLAHOMAN OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES thoroughly and alone cover the Oklahoma City Market

Oklahoma City is in the center of the best agricultural land in the State—and the Oklahoma City market produces 61% of all of the State's crops.

The year 1926 closed with an increase of $21,000,000 in the value of crops in the State over the 1925 production.

—and the Daily Oklahoman and Oklahoma City Times alone cover this market.

Circulation Daily 140,000
Sunday 83,000

E. KATZ SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENCY

New York Chicago Kansas City Detroit Atlanta San Francisco

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

NEW YORK

145,647

NET PAID DAILY CIRCULATION

considers that the granting of a two per cent cash discount to National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies for prompt payment of bills, is in accordance with custom dictated by sound business judgment.

This discount is also a barometer of financial responsibility, and an incentive for prompt payment of bills, which is necessary to the conduct of any business.

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building, New York City
Waterman Building, Boston, Mass.
Atlantic Building, Philadelphia, Pa.
Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

J. C. HARRIS, JR.
Atlanta

GANNETT SELLS TWIN-CITY SENTINEL TO WINSTON-SALEM JOURNAL

Owen Moon, Publisher of Journal, Discontinues Six-Month-Old Evening Star and Will Publish Sentinel From Journal Plant

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Feb. 7.—Owen Moon, Jr., president of the Journal Publishing Company, today announced the purchase of the Winston-Salem Sentinel from Frank E. Gannett. The Sentinel will be published from the Journal plant and the Evening Star discontinued.

The price was not made public, but it is said to be about $1,000,000, the highest price ever paid for a Carolina daily. At the time of Mr. Gannett's purchase it was reported that he had paid between $600,000 and $700,000 for the Sentinel.

The Sentinel was purchased last August by Mr. Gannett, W. M. Clemens and W. M. Ingalls, Mr. Gannett holding majority control and his associates acting as editor and business manager, respectively. The former owners, Rufus A. Shore and Henry R. Dwire, continued as directors under the new ownership, but were not active in the management. It is understood that Messrs. Clemens and Ingalls will not remain in Winston-Salem, but will rejoin the Gannett organization in New York State.

The Evening Star was established Sept. 1, 1926, by Mr. Moon, who had purchased the Morning and Sunday Journal late in 1925. Both the Journal and the Star were issued from the former's plant and work was begun at once on a new building of novel architectural design near the center of the business district. Competition between the Sentinel and the Journal and Star has been especially keen during the past six months, with both groups spending freely to produce strong newspapers and obtain maximum distribution. The resulting situation was described by Messrs. Clemens and Ingalls in the Sentinel's announcement of the sale today in the following words:

"Thus is relieved an uneconomic situation—the publication of three newspapers where only two are necessary to serve the readers and advertisers. Neutral parties, recognizing the undesirable possibilities of a continuation of this situation, brought about a conference in which the principal owner of each paper was asked to name a price for his property. This was assented to with great reluctance by Frank E. Gannett, majority owner of the Sentinel, who had no idea of parting with the property. The result was that his price was accepted by Mr. Moon, who plans to publish the Sentinel and the Journal from the Sentinel plant and to discontinue publication of the Evening Star.

"Mr. Gannett desires to emphasize that this sale was made despite his great confidence in Winston-Salem and the bright future of the Piedmont Section. He has been much gratified at the great progress made by the Sentinel. The circulation and advertising, in volume and in revenue, have reached the highest peak in the history of the paper and, with increased space and facilities completed within the week, the Sentinel has just reached a position insuring even greater and more rapid development.

"Mr. Gannett had hoped, originally, to spend considerable time personally in Winston-Salem but, owing to the distance from New York State in which all of his other papers are located, he found this impossible without encroaching too much on the time and attention it is his custom and pleasure to give to the supervision of each of his newspapers. But for this fact it is improbable he would have acquiesced in the request to name any price for the Sentinel, in the growing success of which he had, and still has, entire confidence.

"We have been grateful to the former owners, Rufus A. Shore and Henry R. Dwire, for having built up an organization of high character, which it has been a real pleasure to hold together.

"We point with pride to the Sentinel, the result of these efforts. We can have no better wish for Mr. Moon than that he may inherit the same loyalty and devotion from the Sentinel force and the confidence of the Sentinel readers and advertisers which have made our association here both pleasant and profitable."

DETAILS COMPLETED FOR N. Y. CAMPAIGN

Advertising Managers of N. Y. State Dailies Hold Two-Day Meeting in Syracuse—Agency Man Speaks

Details of the co-operative promotion campaign to advertise New York State as a market were worked out at a meeting of the Advertising Departmental of the New York State Publishers' Association, held in Syracuse, Monday and Tuesday of this week.

The campaign will run in 78 dailies, members of the departmental, and will describe in detail New York state as a market for food products, fuel, furniture, men's clothing, etc., and will present official statistics covering the resources of the state.

Statistics will be obtained from every source available, and organized under the direction of R. C. Harris of the Utica Press, who is secretary of the Advertising Bureau of the departmental. Each newspaper will be furnished with the statistics. They will also be available for every advertiser interested in selling his products in the state.

Copy for the campaign is being prepared by the Advertising Bureau and will run for a year in the co-operating dailies. Size of the ad is four columns on about 15 inches.

President L. S. Chubbuck of the Watertown Standard presided at the opening session Monday. Questions were submitted to the secretary in advance for discussion and these questions were taken up one by one at the meeting.

The advertising division of the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce held a combined banquet with the advertising managers Monday evening. Professor Arthur J. Brewster, head of the advertising department of Syracuse University, was toastmaster. Thomas H. Moore, associate director of the bureau of advertising, American Newspaper Publishers' Association, and Z. L. Potter, president of the Z. L. Potter advertising agency, Syracuse, were among the speakers.

Mr. Potter gave an analysis of what the advertising agency tries to get from the newspaper prior to placing contracts. He said there is "too great variety in rates and national rates vary all the way from the local rate to 100 per cent higher than the local advertising rate." He maintained that newspaper advertising is being sold more intelligently every year and he pointed out the value of newspapers presenting merchandising service, a sound basic policy for fixing rates with some uniformity on national advertising rates, standards of efficiency in selling, mechanical efficiency in printing and a real study of copy service to advertisers.

Frank Tripp, of Elmira, general manager of the Gannett newspapers, told of the difficulties encountered in interesting publishers in promotion work by the advertising departments. He said the publisher had his eye too much on the figures coming up in the cash register than he did on the keys that made the figures come up. It was his opinion that retail stores are going to ease up in advertising to some extent and he believed that the advertising campaign in the state was coming at the most opportune time.

Ross Kellogg of the Empire State School of Printing told of the assistance being given by the school in getting out the state-wide advertising campaign in the newspapers. He also told of research work being done to improve the quality of illustration in newspapers.

The next session of the Advertising Departmental will be in Jamestown, N. Y., in September.

N. Y. TIMES AWARDS PRIZES

In the recent contest of the New York Times in which prizes of $50 and $25 were offered to librarians for the best essays on "The Value of The New York Times Index and Files as a Newspaper of Record," first prize was awarded to Miss Irma M. Walker, reference librarian, Long Beach Public Library, Long Beach, Cal., and the second to Miss Bertha Baumer of the Public Library at Omaha, Neb. Judges were Carl V. Van Anda, Miss Jennie Welland and Irving E. Pfeiffer.

LOCAL DISPLAY

Are you getting your Share?

Every publisher has to contend with the problem of lining up local firms who do no newspaper advertising at all.

Our plan has met with universal success all over the country in turning these dead prospects into active weekly or semi-weekly accounts.

The Briggs' plan will get you your share of this local display business without any cost.

WRITE for full particulars.

THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.
Columbian Tower Building
MEMPHIS, TENN.

NOTHING ELSE TELLS LIKE GOOD WORK

A host of Editors have written letters in praise of the Ellis Sunday School Lesson. Some of them have been using it for more than twenty-five years.

Like a golden thread, there runs through these testimonials discriminating comment upon the quality of the Lessons. Generous tribute is paid to the literary worth of Dr. William T. Ellis' writings.

After all, it is only because of its good work—sincere religious convictions; painstaking preparation, and first-hand study of present-day life, and of the Bible and of Bible Lands and Customs; and a tireless care really to serve the newspaper public—that the Ellis Lesson has experienced a growing success for more than twenty-five years.

New Subscribers Inherit the Experience and Training of all these years.

THE ELLIS SERVICE
Swarthmore, Penna.

To the National Advertiser

IN that section of the great Metropolitan District which, statistics prove, is the most important, populous and wealthy of all, the stands as an advertising medium exceeded by no other newspaper in the United States.

Newark Evening News.

Its 1926 record of

5,041,148 Agate Lines of

NATIONAL ADVERTISING

exceeds that of any other Metropolitan daily, and places it FIRST among the week-day newspapers published in the entire nation.

Newark Evening News
ALWAYS REACHES HOME

Eugene W. Farrell
Business and Advertising Manager
215-221 Market Street
Newark New Jersey

O'MARA & ORMSBEE, Inc.
General Advertising Representatives
New York Chicago Detroit San Francisco

Informal Notes

L. G. ELLINGHAM,
PUBLISHER,
FT. WAYNE JOURNAL-GAZETTE:

We are interested to read of your purchase of a three-story brick building which you propose to remodel into a modern newspaper plant. New homes for newspapers seem to be quite the thing this year. In this morning's mail we had one letter from a florist, suggesting that we send flowers to one opening, and another from a newspaper soliciting advertising in a special edition celebrating a new plant.

* * *

E. S. McCLURE,
PRESIDENT,
REPUBLIC SYNDICATE, INC.:

I predict that your new feature "Sound Auction Bridge" by Wilbur C. Whitehead will be a big success. It is certainly well gotten up. The way in which you make it possible for a newspaper reader to match his skill against Mr. Whitehead's is unique. As your circular states, it combines entertainment, competition and instruction.

* * *

GARDNER COWLES &
JOHN COWLES,
PUBLISHERS,
DES MOINES REGISTER AND TRIBUNE:

23,082 circulation increase in one year, from 170,131 to 193,213 daily, is indeed something to be proud of. We congratulate both the Register and Tribune, but the Register especially—we noticed it passed the Tribune in circulation during the year.

* * *

HARRY B. CROZIER,
MANAGING EDITOR,
ST. PAUL DISPATCH AND PIONEER-PRESS:

We congratulate you on your appointment as managing editor of the Dispatch and Pioneer-Press, and extend to both you and Mr. Dunlop our best wishes for your success in building still further the great daily which you serve.

* * *

W. L. AIKEN,
EDITOR,
SHARON NEWS-TELEGRAPH:

We commented, last week, in this column on the sale of Striebel's "Kids" in South Bend, his home town. Now we are more than pleased that the "Boys and Girls Page," edited by W. Boyce Morgan, is to be published in Sharon, his home town.

* * *

JOHN E. WODELL,
EDITOR,
ALBERTA FARMER:

Our "Farm Editors Service" which you have just ordered, may come closer home to you than you have suspected. John Matter, one of the important contributors to the service, started his career homesteading in Saskatchewan.

* * *

W. B. CHILSEN,
PUBLISHER,
MERRILL HERALD:

Our Mr. Meyer, in sending in your order for three of our services, comments: "a live city, a live newspaper, a live publisher—he knows good features when he sees them."

* * *

J. H. LITTLE,
CLASSIFIED MANAGER,
MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL-APPEAL:

An envelope from the Commercial-Appeal is always welcome in this office because some apt suggestion that can be used by the "Associated Editors Classified Service" is usually contained therein. How do you like the new general promotion advertisements?

* * *

W. J. HENNESSEY,
CLASSIFIED MANAGER,
NEW BRITAIN HERALD:

Permit us to congratulate you on your new position. We are sure that the publishers of "The Hartford Times" have not made a mistake in closing with you.

* * *

C. S. WALSH,
CLASSIFIED MANAGER,
BINGHAMTON SUN:

We wish to thank you for your appreciation of our "Associated Editors Classified Service." Such expressions as yours serve to spur us on to greater efforts.

John H. Millar

The Right
COPY
+
The Best
ART
in
CLASSIFIED PROMOTION is a Winning Combination!

—You Find BOTH in

Associated Editors Classified Service

Copy—Sales Tie-Ups—Consultation by Experts

Art by Meyer—Both Artists—the Best in Their Line

ASSOCIATED EDITORS, Inc.

John H. Millar, President

440 South Dearborn St., Chicago

"Ideas—not merely big names"

JUDGE O'DUNNE QUASHES CONTEMPT CASE AGAINST DETECTIVE CHIEF

Drops Action Upon Receiving Letter Intimating Comments on Arrests Will Not Be Given to Newspaper Men— Jurist Calls His Act Constructive

By H. S. SHERWOOD

CHARLES H. BURNS, found guilty of contempt of court by Judge Eugene O'Dunne last December, appeared before the Judge on Feb. 4, and was discharged. The proceedings against him were quashed.

A week before, the Supreme Bench of Baltimore had refused to grant a writ of certiorari applied for by Clarence W. Miles and Eugene A. Edgett, counsel for Burns. The purpose of this writ was to force Judge O'Dunne to transmit the record in the case to the Supreme Bench and ultimately to bring about a new trial. While denying the writ, the Supreme Bench on its own initiative, directed that the record be transmitted to it. The Judge had previously over-ruled a motion for a new trial.

In his original decision finding Burns in contempt, Judge O'Dunne had said that if Burns, who is the chief of Baltimore detectives, would file with the court a letter in which he said that he would not grant any more such interviews as that which has led to the contempt citation, the court would be willing to drop the case. The Judge had originally found Burns in contempt because of an interview appearing in the Evening Sun on Dec. 23, in which a statement was made in regard to William Neimoth and J. E. Sammons, indicted for holding up and robbing the paymaster of Henry Sonneborn & Co. in Baltimore last October and robbing him of $47,000. The Judge held that Captain Burns was in contempt in that he discussed the merits of a case pending in the courts.

Burns filed in the proceedings in which he was dismissed, the following letter which the Judge read at the beginning of his decision:

Hon. Eugene O'Dunne,
Court House,
Baltimore, Md.

My Dear Judge O'Dunne: My counsel have dismissed the motion filed on my behalf for a new trial, resulting from my conviction by you for contempt of Court, and I want to take this opportunity to express to you my views in the entire matter.

I want to make perfectly clear to you that my remarks in the Neimoth and Sammons case were never intended by me to in any way impede or interfere with the administration of justice, nor do I now think that they had any such effect. However, I am not a lawyer, consequently I have not sufficient knowledge to pass on such a technical question.

I merely want to emphasize to you that in the past I have always attempted in my official duty to cooperate in every way possible with the judiciary, and propose in the future to do so.

Very Respectfully,
CHARLES H. BURNS.

In his decision, Judge O'Dunne said in part:

"Captain Burns, it was an unhappy coincidence in my life (and to me a regrettable one) that in the discharge of public duty I felt constrained to reach the conclusion that you were technically guilty of what is known in law as 'contempt of court' growing out of a published interview regarding a serious felony indictment pending in the Criminal Court.

"Your letter, which I direct to be filed in these proceedings, when read in connection with your testimony given last December indicates:

"(1) That it was not your intention that the statement given to the reporter should be published, but was intended as a personal explanation to him and his paper of your action and your reasons for it in the Neimoth-Sammons case.

"(2) That you had no intention thereby to hinder, impede or in any wise contribute to the obstruction of justice in the case of Maryland versus Neimoth and Sammons . . . and that neither the publication nor the possible far-reaching consequences thereof on a pending case were foreseen by you, nor were they intended.

"(3) That you are not a lawyer and are unfamiliar with the legal precedents obtaining in such cases, and that you had never heretofore received legal advice from the Attorney General or otherwise as to when a case in law is a 'pending case' or what are the legal limitations applying not only to detective departments, but also to counsel, parties litigant, public press and all other agencies in such cases. For these reasons and, because of the high esteem in which you are held by your commanding officer, General Gaither, by reason of your good record in the department, I feel that probably the interest of public justice can be better promoted, and secure for the future that hearty co-operation between the Courts and the Police Department so essential to public justice, by this Court now relieving you of whatever embarrassment might attach to a verdict of guilty of contempt of Court.

"Therefore it will be ordered that the verdict of guilty of contempt of Court be stricken out and the citation of contempt is hereby quashed, and the respondent discharged, Q. E. S. D.

"As said in the original opinion filed in this case, what I was trying to accomplish was something constructive and not destructive. The object of this proceeding was to cause a more accurate survey to be made of the boundary lines of the Judicial territory, to the end that litigants seeking refuge within its borders might be, while there detained, protected from all outside, extra-judicial interference pending legal determination.

"Interference with the orderly procedure of Courts is one of the most serious problems today of public justice in its administration through the nation. The responsibility therefore, in my judgment lies primarily with the Courts themselves. They have been too sluggish in protecting litigants 'seeking sanctuary' within their domains * * *

"The public press has, of course, been a great offender, but neither the sole nor the greatest offender. When information of a sensational character is fed to these journalistic enterprises, from such eminent sources as the prosecution and counsel for defense, and when Courts sit supinely quiescent through such spectacular performances, can they (the Courts) in common justice fix the responsibility for these breaches of decorum and of legal ethics solely on the public press, without themselves sharing in a generous manner the responsibility for the contempt of law thereby promoted?"

Judge O'Dunne referred to a letter he wrote Commissioner Gaither last October in which he said:

"* * * The thing that I deprecate is the constant detailing by subheads of departments (meaning detective department) of every clue, real and imaginary, about cases where the suspect is not even apprehended. I think it is a great public evil; one that seriously interferes with the administration of justice and one that should be cured in some way by someone.

"There are ways that it can be cured. The department when running down clues should be muzzled. The papers ought to have sense enough not to print such things even if they are taken into the confidence of the department, but they seem to publish most everything of human interest regardless of the public effect of such publication. It is a criticism of your subordinates and I so intend it, and I think the criticism to that extent is richly deserved.

"If they persist in this kind of publicity there is power inherent in this court sufficient to curb it."

Elsewhere in his opinion, Judge O'Dunne said:

"I think the object has been accomplished. Both local and national thought has been directed to a consideration of the problem. It has created better understanding and a better relation between the administration of Justice and the public press."

The case of the three Hearst editors and two Hearst photographers who we found guilty of contempt for maki photographs in Judge O'Dunne's cou room during a murder trial and who we sentenced to serve one day in jail eac one of them being sentenced to pay, addition, a fine of $5,000, will be final disposed of in the next few weeks, wh the sentences will be served and the fi paid. The Maryland Court of Appe has sustained that decision. As soon the mandate of the Appellate Cou reaches the clerk of the Baltimo Criminal Court, the men will pay the fi and serve the sentences.

USE TRANS-ATLANTIC PHONE

The new era of the trans-Atlantic tel phone was marked in Baltimore on Fe 5 by a conversation between Paul Pa terson, president of the A. S. Abell Co pany, and editors of the Baltimore Su and Evening Sun on the American e of the 'phone, and C. P. Scott, editor the Manchester Guardian; E. T. Sco his son; Van Lear Black, J. Fred Essa and James Bone on the English end. M Black, one of the directors of the A. Abell Co., was in England and was t week-end guest of Mr. Scott. Mr. Essa is the London correspondent of the Ev ning Sun and Mr. Bone is the Lond editor of the Manchester Guardian.

MAKES BRAVERY AWARD

The Fort Wayne (Ind.) News-Sen nel's first bravery award has been ma to Martin W. Fiegel, city motorcycle o ficer, for his courage in a gun duel wi Joseph Hedges, in which Hedges w killed by the officer.

The Place to Push Sales—

Kansas—made unusually prosperous this year by excellent crop yields—offers an attractive market to persistent advertisers.

The Topeka Daily Capital—thoroughly covers Topeka and its big trading radius. The only newspaper with a circulation throughout the State.

Included in primary distribution campaigns by leading national advertisers.

40,000 Guaranteed Circulation

Published by Arthur Capper
Topeka, Kansas

From the Linotype Mailbag

"Real Service"

We appreciate very much the manner in which you handled our recent rush order for parts by telegram and wish to say that this is real service and is a great help to publishers.

The Sedalia Democrat
Sedalia, Missouri

BUFFALO EVENING TIMES

uses

Certified Dry Mats Exclusively

This representative newspaper is just as zealous of its physical appearance as it is of the contents of its columns.

They know that Certified Dry Mats mean Certified printing results—cleanly and clearly printed pages. As with the Buffalo Times, so it is with us, quality first, last and all the time.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION

340 Madison Avenue New York, N. Y.

for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility—use Certifieds
MADE IN THE U. S. A.

Our Policy

One Size all mats 20"x24"

One Quality only the best we can make

One Price 15% on standing order

Announcing -

WINSTON-SALEM
North Carolina

—is located in the heart of the prosperous Piedmont Section and is North Carolina's largest city—population, 76,000. (300,000 within 50 mile trading radius)

* * * *

—leads the world in the manufacture of tobacco

* * * *

—leads the state in the value of manufactured products

* * * *

—leads every Southern city in the amount of revenue paid the United States Government

* * * *

—spent $5,583,000 for building improvements in 1926.

* * * *

—has the lowest tax rate in the state.

—the purchase of the Twin-City Sentinel by the Winston-Salem Journal Co., publishers of the morning and Sunday Journal. The two papers will retain their present identity and will offer to the people of Winston-Salem and the surrounding territory a complete all-day news coverage, and to the local and national advertiser an INTENSIFIED morning and evening coverage of the most prosperous section of Piedmont North Carolina, of which Winston-Salem is the center.

National line rate 12 cents daily—only one set of plates and one order required.

WINSTON-SALEM JOURNAL

Mornings including Sunday

TWIN-CITY SENTINEL

Evenings except Sunday

OWEN MOON
Publisher

SANTFORD MARTIN
Editor

W. K. HOYT
Manager

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building
New York City

Waterman Building
Boston, Mass.

Atlantic Building
Philadelphia, Pa.

Tribune Tower
Chicago, Ill.

A. D. GRANT, Atlanta, Ga.

MILLION-DOLLAR PLANT ANNOUNCED BY AKRON BEACON-JOURNAL

Ohio Daily Will Occupy New Home About Sept. 1—Plans Call for Five Story Structure, Initial Two Stories to Be Expanded as Needed

CONSTRUCTION of a million dollar newspaper plant has just been started by the Akron (O.) Beacon-Journal. Under direction of the Moran Construction Company, who have the general contract, work was begun last week on wrecking the old Seiberling mansion which now stands on the site at East Market and Summit streets. The building will be ready for occupancy Sept. 1, 1927.

CHARLES L. KNIGHT

In collaboration with executives of the Beacon-Journal, the plant was designed by Samuel P. Weston of New York, who has been associated in recent years with the design and construction of new plants for the New York Herald Tribune, Milwaukee Journal, Scranton Times and other papers. He has recently been retained in an advisory capacity for the new building of the Chicago Daily News.

With the awarding of the general contract to the Moran Construction Company, provision is made that all of the work will be done by Akron firms.

The new building is designed to carry five floors, although all of these will not be erected now. The Beacon-Journal will occupy the amount of floor space required adequately to take care of its needs plus normal expansion at this time.

Proper elevator shafts, composing room, press room and other facilities needed to produce a circulation many times that now enjoyed by the Beacon-Journal have been considered.

Constructed of approved fireproof materials, the exterior will be composed of face brick with stone and terra cotta trimmings. The basement will be given over to paper storage, heating plant and the press sub-basement. It will have a floor capacity of some 15,000 square feet.

The first floor will be occupied by the business office, advertising department, circulation department, public lobby and press room. Offices of the business manager, advertising manager, classified advertising manager and circulation manager will be on this floor. There will be two public entrances, one on the Summit street corner and the other at the northeast corner of the building. A marquee is to be constructed over the sidewalks in front of each entrance to protect patrons in alighting from automobiles or public conveyances.

A business office counter will run parallel with the entire width of the building. At the rear of the building there will be a private stairway for the use of employes of the mechanical departments.

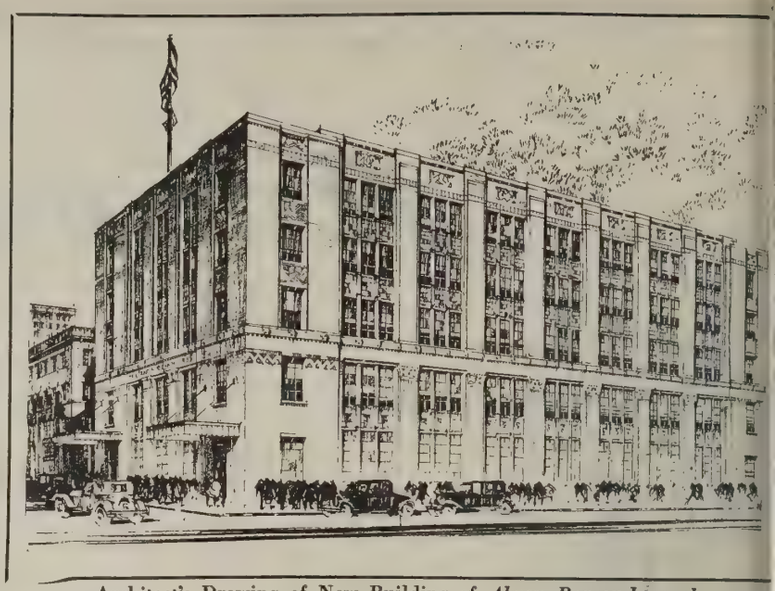
A private 20 foot street on both the east and south sides of the building will assure plenty of light and air throughout the plant. The rear of the first floor will be recessed that circulation trucks may be loaded within the building. The building's dimensions are 80x190 feet on property 102x210 feet.

In order that newsprint and other supplies may be more readily supplied, arrangements have been made with the Pennsylvania railroad for the construction of a siding, with an unloading platform on the east side of the building.

The press room will occupy space parallel to the Summit street side of the building where all press operations will be visible to the public through large windows.

The presses will be constructed in a straight line, extending for 100 feet along the Summit street windows. Press equipment is being built by the Duplex Printing Company of Battle Creek, Mich.

This new press equipment will give the Beacon-Journal a page capacity of 112 pages at the speed of 72,000 papers an hour. The present capacity of the plant is limited to 48 pages.



The second floor will be occupied by the offices of the publisher, managing editor and mechanical superintendent, as well as with the editorial, composing room and stereotype departments. It will be reached through the stairway leading from the public lobby and elevator lobby on the first floor. Employes of the mechanical departments will enter the building by the rear stairway and mechanical equipment will be brought to the second floor by an elevator at the rear of the composing room.

All departments on the second floor will have more than triple the present floor space. Machinery in the composing and stereotype departments will be of the most modern character.

The editorial rooms will contain, in addition to the executive offices, a generous reference department, greatly increased facilities for the seven wires now furnishing the Beacon-Journal with world news.

In all departments, spacious locker and rest rooms will be provided for the comfort of employes. Individual lockers will be provided for each member of the mechanical departments and large rest rooms will be included for all departments.

The new building will be completed by Sept. 1, 1927, although the new presses will be installed before that date. It will be the third building occupied by the newspaper under present management.

Architect's Drawing of New Building of Akron Beacon-Journal

Officers of the Beacon-Journal Company are: Charles L. Knight, president; John S. Knight, vice-president; E. R. Held, president of the Central Savings & Trust Company, treasurer, and John H. Barry, secretary. Directors are Charles L. Knight, John S. Knight, E. R. Held, John H. Barry and H. S. Seymour, all of Akron.

The organization includes Charles L. Knight as editor and publisher; John S. Knight, managing editor; John H. Barry, business manager; H. S. Seymour, circulation manager; E. A. Neutzenholzer, advertising manager; Frank Wynhoff, manager classified advertising department; Harry B. Reese, superintendent composing room; John Horrigan, superintendent press room, and Terence Mahan, superintendent stereotype department.

The company is owned by the following stockholders, all residents of Akron: Charles L. Knight, Clara I. Knight, Jo S. Knight, John H. Barry, H. S. Se mour, E. R. Held, W. W. McIntosh, V B. McIntosh, Mrs. Carrie P. Dick, Jar Brodhead, Louisa Whitaker, Mrs. Amel Camp, W. C. Hall, Amelia Rowley an the S. G. Rogers estate.

NEW ZEALAND MERGER

The New Zealand Times, the olde Wellington morning newspaper, wa merged with the Dominion, Jan. 22, ac cording to the London Bureau of Inte national News Service. The New Zea land Times was established in 1874. was liberal in politics. The loss of it identity as a separate newspaper coin cides with the date for the projecte establishment of a new evening news paper in Auckland, to be the evenin edition of the Christchurch Sun.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

BOSTON, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, RICHMOND, ATLANTA, BUFFALO, PITTSBURGH, CLEVELAND, DETROIT, CHICAGO, CINCINNATI, ST. LOUIS, MILWAUKEE, MINNEAPOLIS, KANSAS CITY, DES MOINES, DENVER, LOS ANGELES, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, SPOKANE, WINNIPEG

Scripps-Howard Newspapers

Desire to Announce the Appointment of Marcellus E. Foster "MEFO" As Editor of

THE HOUSTON PRESS

Effective February 7, 1927

DAILY'S EXPOSE STIRRED OFFICIAL ACTION IN N. Y. RIVER DISASTER

Linseed King Which Sank Drowning 55 Was Unlicensed and Overloaded Daily News Revealed—Reporter Combed Water Front to Get Facts

SOMETIMES it is the duty of a reporter to expose an "act of God" as the neglect of man.

Joseph Brady, a reporter of the New York Daily News, has done just that, and, as a result, the disaster of Dec. 20, when 55 lives were lost with the sinking of the Linseed King, a launch, in the icy Hudson River, is something more than a horrible memory. Congressional action has been taken for the protection of workers, not from Providence, but from human carelessness, and the case against the launch's pilot, John Rohweder, to be heard soon in Homicide court, New York, will not be the "whitewash" it might have been.

For two days after the Linseed King disaster, the public was deluged with promises of official action to fix responsibility and punish those guilty. Then followed a long official silence. Assistant District Attorney John F. McGowan was in charge of the inquiry. He allowed newspaper photographers to take pictures to be captioned "Probe Begins," but he locked his doors to reporters. Former District Attorney Frederick Sullivan, representing Spencer-Kellogg & Sons, owners of the Linseed King, obtained a postponement of the case against the pilot.

The general feeling prevailed that the fact that the Linseed King had struck ice, and 55 men had died, was one of those "acts of God" so hard to understand. The New York Daily News wasn't content with this theory. Brady was assigned to the story. He was told to do the investigating which officials apparently were failing to do.

For a month he virtually lived along New York's waterfront, and on Jan. 17 the News announced it had taken action because of the failure of officials to push the case.

"The facts are presented by the News," the announcement said, "in justice to the survivors and the destitute relatives of the dead, the widows and the children."

Brady started his series of articles in the Daily News on Jan. 17. His investigations brought to light that the 55 laborers met death on a boat being operated without a license in violation of laws of the United States and the regulations of the Department of Commerce. He had also discovered that the Linseed King had been cut and spliced and ten feet added to its length, without the proper government officials being notified. Brady had obtained his information from C. W. Clayton, builder of the boat, not from official sources.

The Daily News reporter also obtained detailed statements from the survivors of the disaster, seeking them out a week after the wreck, when they were able to tell their stories calmly. And the stories they told were even more damning than the hasty statements obtained when the catastrophe was a screamer-headline story. The men going to their work across the treacherous, ice-filled Hudson were herded aboard like cattle until the boat was overloaded, in violation of federal laws.

Before the second story in Brady's series had appeared, Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora declared he would at once review the evidence in the case and take the necessary official action. Assistant District Attorney McGowan was taken off the case and Assistant District Attorney Brothers substituted for him.

For the third article in his exposé, Brady had obtained a signed statement from Captain John J. Brown, former licensed pilot of the launch. Captain Brown charged that Spencer, Kellogg & Sons had refused to lay the boat up for necessary repairs and that he quit after giving warning of the boat's dangerous condition. It had required some detective work on Brady's part to find Brown, and he had located him finally in a waterfront dive. Without telling him that he was a Daily News reporter, saying rather he was simply investigating the case, he finally obtained the statement. After writing it down, he came back and persuaded Brown to sign it. When he returned the second time, he brought two cameramen with him and obtained flashlight pictures of the former pilot just as he affixed his signature to the important evidence.

The Congressional action followed, a bill being introduced in Congress providing stricter inspection of boats plying New York harbor. Under the new bill laborers being carried to work free would be given the same protection as passengers paying fares.

Brady recently left the staff of the New York Herald Tribune to join the New York Daily News. He said, at the time, that "real action could be found today on the tabloids rather than on the standard-size papers."

He had become associated with the New York Herald Tribune in the fall of 1924. From 1912 to 1917, Brady worked on the New York Evening World. Then, after service with the marine corps in the war, he became news editor of the Syracuse Journal, leaving that newspaper to become assistant managing editor of the Syracuse Post-Standard. For several subsequent years he was managing editor of the Providence (R. I.) News.

ENTERS BALLOON RACE

The Akron (O.) Beacon Journal has entered a balloon in the national balloon race to be staged May 29 under the auspices of the Akron chapter of the National Aeronautical Association.

Euro-Press
93 Fifth Avenue
NEW YORK CITY

WEEKLY FEATURES

Can Germany Come Back?
By Emperor William
(Release Feb. 26th)

Wanted — Another Peace Conference
By Aristide Briand
(Release March 5th)

Radio and the Next War
Lt. Col. Sarnoff of the U. S. S. C. R. and Radio Corporation of America makes some startling predictions.
(Release March 12th)

The New Italy
By Benito Mussolini
(Release March 19th)

His Romantic Highness—Prince Carol of Roumania
An intimate portrayal by Baron Szolney Vilmos
(Release March 26th)

New York Rights Sold

Photograph Accompanies Each Feature.

Wire for Terms

CHARGES WEEKLY WITH MONOPOLIZING NEWS

CHARGING the Skowhegan (Me.) Independent Reporter, weekly, with attempting to create a monopoly of news in that town, the Augusta (Me.) Kennebec Journal has made editorial attacks on the weekly which, the Journal alleges, has gained such control over the residents of the town that they authorize the publication of news only through its columns. As a result, the daily charges, the news is too old to publish by the time papers other than the Skowhegan paper get it. Through the columns of the Journal, the question has been put up to the citizens of Skowhegan. To date the Independent Reporter has made no reply to the daily's complaints.

NEW KENTUCKY DAILY

Local Company to Launch Ashland Times Tuesday, Feb. 15

The Ashland (Ky.) Times, new 7-day morning newspaper, will begin publication at Ashland, Ky., on Tuesday, Feb. 15, according to Paul J. Hughes, editor of the proposed paper.

The paper will be published by the Advance Publishing Company, a Kentucky corporation capitalized at $100,000. W. S. Clayton, a young business man of Ashland, is the president of the organization, and H. T. Kerns, formerly in the fire clay industry at Ashland, is secretary and treasurer.

Albert K. Moore, formerly with the Charleston (W. Va.) Gazette, is the business manager.

Mr. Hughes was formerly editor of the Ashland (Ky.) Daily Independent his service there ending when he sold his interest in that newspaper in 1924. Before that time he was graduated from the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri; operated the Boonville (Mo.) Advertiser; was assistant city editor of the St. Louis Times, going from that paper to the United Press at Chicago in 1918. Transferred to the New York office of the U. P., he served as wire filer and reporter until 1921 when he went to Ashland.

The organization of the Times, so far as completed, will consist of those already mentioned and Samuel B. Reed, circulation manager; Miss Edna Louis Wells, society editor for Ashland; Mrs. Mary Elliott Flanery, Kentucky's first woman legislator, society editor for Catlettsburg, the county seat; G. Van Gorder, Catlettsburg reporter; Gay N. Friel, city editor and reporter; George Hatcher, sports, and Wydea Zachem, assistant circulation manager.

The Times will have the leased wire of the Universal Service.

DAMON RUNYON ILL

Damon Runyon, special writer on the staff of the New York American, is seriously ill with pneumonia at his New York apartment. He was taken sick with influenza last Friday and it developed into pneumonia Sunday.

It Will Put More

Sparkle

Into Your Pages

YOU can quickly tell a Ludlow-set newspaper by the snap and sparkle of its pages. So can advertisers, from the results they get—a sound basis for increasing their linage.

Ludlow type in slugs prints clear and sharp, for it is freshly cast for every ad. The Ludlow supplies any size of face up to full-width 72-point, without machine or mold changes.

The high quality of Ludlow-set ads and heads is at once apparent when you look at the pages of the many Ludlow-equipped metropolitan dailies.

In these papers the Ludlow, with its abundance of type on slugs, meets the peak loads of even their biggest editions, and puts snap and sparkle into every page.

The constantly increasing linage of all Ludlow equipped newspapers, the economy with which they are produced, and the fine printing qualities of Ludlow slugs, even when dry mats are used—warrant your investigating this most flexible and efficient system.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

Boston: 470 Atlantic Avenue
New York: 63 Park Row
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
San Francisco: 5 Third Street

LUDLOW QUALITY SLUG COMPOSITION

THE RICHMOND NEWS LEADER

VIRGINIA

62,602

Net Paid Daily Circulation

The two per cent cash discount, for prompt payment of bills to National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies, should not be considered a courtesy but a business necessity.

This cash discount is conducive to a prompt settlement of financial obligations—a procedure of undeniable benefit to the newspapers and national advertisers and agencies.

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building, New York City
Waterman Building, Boston, Mass.
Atlantic Building, Philadelphia, Pa.
Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

J. C. HARRIS, JR.
Atlanta

NEWSPAPERS USED TO GIVE NEW NAME TO AN OLD PRODUCT

"FreezFoil" New Term for Industrial Alcohol Sold to Motorists in 18 States in Well-Planned Co-operative Campaign—Bought 5,000,000 Circulation Per Week

By HAMMOND EDWARD FRANKLIN

WHEN you drive your car in the winter, you probably use some sort of "anti-freeze," ranging from ordinary calcium chloride to unrefined honey, with results to your radiator sometimes satisfactory and sometimes "not so good."

Consider, then, the difficulty in applying advertising encountered by the manufacturers of denatured alcohol:

This product, which has proven its value for anti-freeze use, is made by all distilleries under government formula. There cannot be the slightest deviation in quality. Various individual brands have become known, and more or less unlabeled denatured alcohol also is sold through trade channels. Other products than alcohol for anti-freeze use have crept in: the industry's main problem has been "denatured alcohol against the field."

Leaders of the industry decided the problem could be worked out and the future for all the distilleries made more secure by educational advertising, but how to put it into action in a really practical way was a serious question.

First, the Industrial Alcohol Manufacturers' Association was formed, bringing together the various key firms in the industry. Headquarters was established at New York with Dr. Lewis H. Marks, executive secretary, as a bond of contact between the members and in charge of scientific research and other executive duties.

A small assessment per gallon produced by each member was voted to be set aside for an advertising fund, making the cost equitable to all, according to size of production. The J. H. Newmark, Inc., advertising agency of New York was called in to work out a plan, in co-operation with the association's advertising committee.

The word "FreezFoil" was chosen as a generic trade name for denatured alcohol to be featured in the advertising. All member firms put their efforts behind this word, which in most cases, was added to their containers in addition to their own trade names.

The first part of the name, "Freez," was lettered with snow and ice and the second half, "Foil," in letters of fire, together with the added description, "Highest test completely denatured alcohol," and the command, "Save your radiator," were registered as a joint trademark. A thermometer at 32 degrees Fahrenheit was made part of the mark.

A study showed that the most promising market is in the 18 northeastern states, because of climate and number of cars. The committee decided upon a twelve weeks' campaign in key cities covering these states. This began the second week in October and continued through December to prepare the way and establish the buying habits of motorists before the actual buying season was at hand.

Newspapers with an aggregate circulation of 5,000,000 per week were used in Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Louisville, Milwaukee Minneapolis, New York City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis. In addition, sectional farm papers carried the industry's message.

A brochure with details of the campaign was furnished each salesman and jobber of a member firm—about 500 in all. Merchandising co-operation was obtained from newspapers. A large cardboard sign in red and black for use by the dealers and visible at great distance was supplied.

A broadside, entitled, "A new name for an old friend," merchandised the advertising by reproducing headings of newspapers and farm papers and reproducing several advertisements. Inside was copy to be used as a window hanger to stimulate consumer business. The piece was used by jobbers and dealers to mail to their trades. The dealer was told that the advertising was to help make industrial denatured alcohol as essential as gas and oil.

Another dealer aid was a window strip in colors for pasting up. Still another was a chart which showed exactly how many "FreezFoil" quarts, plus water, would be needed for all the leading makes of cars at the lowest temperatures expected. "Save your radiator" hand-out folders with the chart and story in brief for passing out to car owners by garages and service stations formed yet another link in the sales plan.

Note how artist has characterized product in "FreezFoil" signature

"This sign might save your car," "Cracked cylinders due to carelessness," "Safe—and always certain," "When it won't start in the morning," "Blankets are useless," "Freezing weather means nothing if you use FreezFoil," "Keep this icy finger away," "Just as essential as oil and gas," are headlines from the newspaper copy which show how denatured alcohol was brought before the public.

Each advertisement carried this explanatory line:

"FreezFoil is not a motor-damaging compound—it is highest test completely denatured alcohol—sold under various trade names by members of the Industrial Alcohol Manufacturers' Association who are licensed to use the trademark above in connection with their own brands."

"Any product which is a generally known, unpatentable commodity can best be marketed by 'selling the industry'," commented J. W. Darr of the J. H. Newmark, Inc., agency, who, for a number of years, has been a vigorous proponent of association advertising in certain industries. "Never did this feeling fit the case better than in the denatured alcohol industry.

"The organization of an association of this kind is at once a difficult, yet a most interesting task. Those, who by nature, business training, and financial rewards, are competitive, must be induced to sit in council, discuss their problems frankly with each other, and there must be a meeting of the minds on some general type of publicity which will work for the good of all and to the detriment of none.

"An association of this kind brings together the important leaders in an industry, all of whom are different and have different ideas concerning the business, but with the whole-hearted co-operation which all members have shown, each member's special knowledge and ability supplements that of the others and makes for the good of the industry as a whole. Since the organization of the association and the start of the advertising campaign, there has been no dissension—only co-operation from every member, with a far-sighted view of the future, and advertising as a form of business insurance. The president of the association is George F. Dieterle of the Federal Products Company, Cincinnati.

"Newspapers were selected because they are the most flexible medium, because of automobile news and because of intensified circulation in localities where car ownership is highest. To say th the new name, FreezFoil, has taken ho is to put it mildly."

Want to Buy Interest In Newspaper

Young man with wide and successful experience in the business and advertising departments of a newspaper desires to buy majority interest in daily paper in good town. Will consider smaller interest if proposition is sound. Complete details desired.

Address
Box B-795, Editor & Publisher

RADIO ADVERTISIN AGENCY LAUNCHED

Chicago Firm Placing Air Contrac and Arranging Programs—H. A. Fall and A. Linick Owners—12 Stations Cooperating

Chicago's first radio advertising agen opened this week with the announceme it was out to work with, rather th against, the established organizations f preparing and placing the printed copy.

The agency, Radio Presentations Co pany, was opened by Harold A. Fall, f four years sports announcer and assista director of KYW, and Arthur Linic

A radio production department h been organized to prepare continuity pr grams around the sales ideas of the a vertiser or his agency. When the contra is placed by an advertising agency t radio concern allows the usual commi sion.

Twelve radio stations have alrea placed time at the disposal of the organiz tion. Many of the city's leading rad agencies have been signed. The firm offices are in the State-Lake building.

NEW A. N. P. A. MEMBERS

The Toledo (O.) News-Bee and t Cambridge (O.) Daily Jeffersonian ha been elected to membership in the Amer can Newspaper Publishers Association, B. Palmer, manager, announced this wee

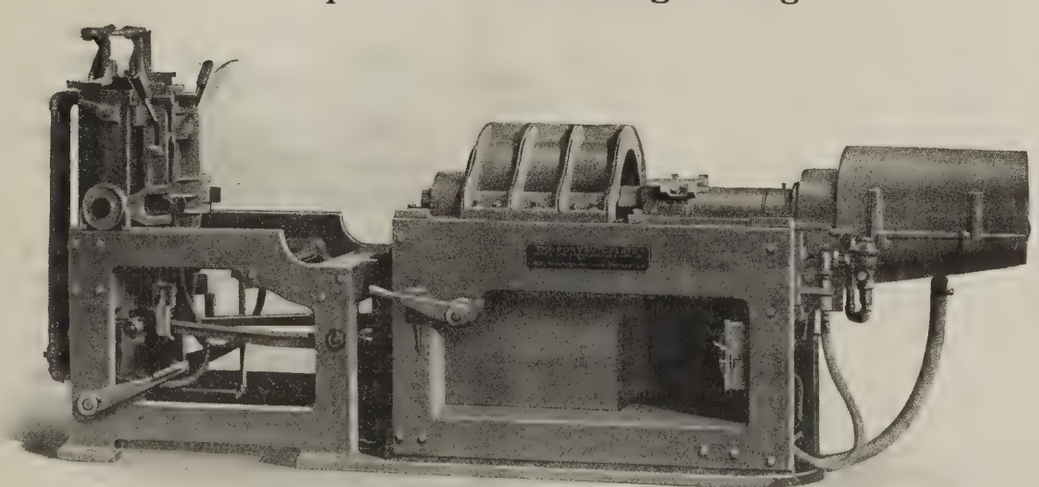
SENDS TELEPHOTO AD

A financial announcement of t National Tile Company occupying 1 lines across 4 columns, sent to the Ne York Times by the W. N. Gates Co pany of Cleveland, transmitted by tel photography appeared in the Times Ja 28.

If you have not received your copy of the

New KANGO Plan

for building circulation and increasin good will, write us now. A revise printing is in an envelope ready to l addressed and mailed to you.



MAREL TOY PRODUCING CO
JOYTOWN TOYS MARY CLEVELAND, President
122 Fifth Avenue New Yor

The Economy of the SINGLE TWIN PONY AUTOPLATE Machine

THE SINGLE TWIN PONY AUTOPLATE MACHINE is the all-purpose PONY AUTOPLATE. Its operation and production are essentially the same as the popular PONY AUTOPLATE MACHINE but it possesses this advantage: It may be converted instantly into a TWIN PONY AUTOPLATE MACHINE—doubling production without doubling floor space or doubling investment.

The SINGLE TWIN PONY AUTOPLATE MACHINE costs a trifle more than the PONY AUTOPLATE MACHINE but when increased production is required the direct value of its convertible feature is worth many times the small additional first cost.

It is the most economical machine for the publisher who is growing.

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORPORATION

501 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK

N. Y. EDITOR ENDORSES MELLETT MEMORIAL

Barrett of World Says in Radio Address Ohio Man's Martyrdom Stirred Editorial Conscience

The martyrdom of Don Mellett, murdered editor of the Canton Daily News, was held up as a splendid example for newspaper aspirants by James W. Barrett, city editor of the New York World, in a radio speech from Station WNYC on "Newspaper Work as a Profession," delivered Feb. 7. The lecture was one of a series of talks being offered by the New York Board of Education.

JAMES BARRETT

"Mellett's martyrdom," Mr. Barrett said, "has stirred the professional conscience of American newspaper men and teachers of journalism as few things ever have, and has made many realize for the first time the dignity and respect attendant upon our profession.

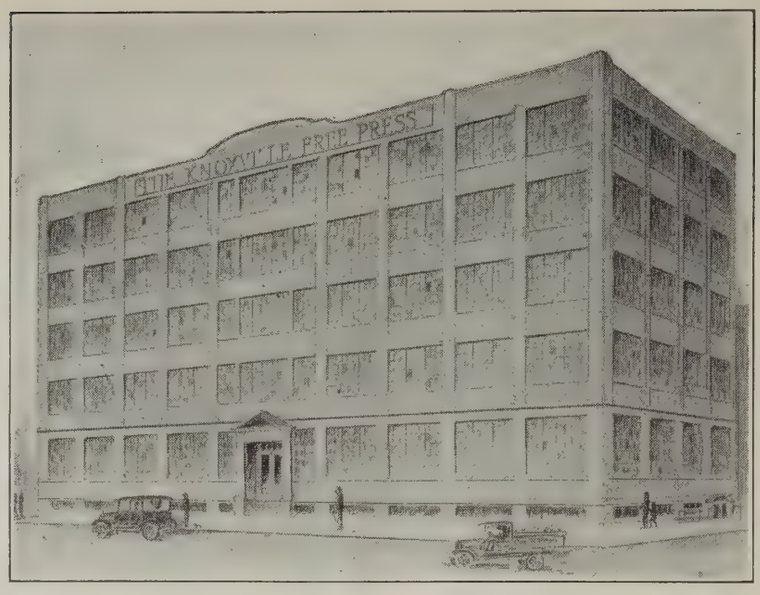
"He who most highly serves his fellow men today, whether in the large cities or in a small community, is the newspaper man who fully, fearlessly, impartially and accurately presents the essential facts about the problems that concern the particular community in which he lives."

Mr. Barrett endorsed the plans for the Mellett Memorial at Indiana University, as advocated editorially by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, and also the lectureship at New York University.

In the course of his address, Mr. Barrett remarked that 50 per cent of those taking journalism courses in the United States today were women. He wondered what became of them after they were graduated.

"My experience has been that the professional mortality among lady newspaper writers is very high," he declared. "Most women are fundamentally unfitted to be either reporters or editors for the reason that a woman by nature attaches more importance to people than to facts."

Mr. Barrett concluded by giving the following as the "newspaper man's unwritten code of ethics:"



"A good newspaper man will not accept private employment. He will not accept gratuities or any kind of remuneration, which he does not earn from his professional work. He will not accept favors; he will not promote the interests of any person, be he a private individual or a public official. He will not invade privacy, except in the interest of news in which the public is rightfully involved. He will be fair. Above all, he will strive to the utmost to be accurate. He will be trustworthy. He will not accept communications in confidence, which he has no right to accept without the permission of his paper; but, having accepted a confidence, he will not betray it, even under a Washington date-line. He will keep his work clean, and he will think first of his paper all the time."

BOK AWARDS NEXT WEEK

The 1926 winners of the Harvard Bok advertising awards will be announced at a dinner to be given at the new Harvard School of Business Administration in Cambridge, Mass., next Tuesday evening, Feb. 15. Members of the jury of award and prominent advertising men will be guests at the dinner.

DAILY CHANGES NAME

Women's Wear, New York daily, has changed its name to Women's Wear Daily.

Proposed Plant of Knoxville Free Press

TEXANS WANT TWO LIBEL LAW CHANGES

New Bills Before Legislature Explained to Members of State Press Association Meeting in Austin

Proposed changes in the Texas libel laws were explained to members of the Texas Press Association at its mid-winter meeting in Austin, Feb. 2 and 5. Two changes in the present statutes were outlined by Tom Finty, Jr., of the Dallas News and Journal.

The first amends the present law so as to allow evidence of public apology, correction or retraction, of a libel to be admitted as evidence in suits for actual damages. At the present time retractions are admitted in mitigation of exemplary or punitive damages only.

The second change would amend the law of privilege to include accounts of speeches made at public meetings held for a public purpose.

Governor Dan Moody addressed the editors at a joint meeting with the Texas House and Senate Friday.

After outlining some of the needed amendments to Texas libel laws, Governor Moody said: "My interest in libel law changes is not as a privilege to the newspapers, but as a privilege to the people. These changes will enable the newspapers to publish information which the public ought to have and to which it is entitled."

R. L. Baldridge of Clifton, president of the association, presided at the sessions.

STATE TO FIX AD RATES

California Supreme Court So Rules in Telephone Directory Case

Official California will launch upon its first venture in fixing of advertising rates next summer in accordance with an opinion recently handed down by the Supreme Court of the State of California.

The rates in question are for advertisements appearing in directories published by telephone companies, and the order of the court affects all classes of display and special advertisements appearing in that class of publication.

In its order the court placed the rate fixing within the jurisdiction of the state railroad commission. That body recently issued a communiqué giving the telephone companies until July 1, 1927, to file a complete record of the various kinds of advertising service offered in the directories and the rates charged therefor.

The opinion of the supreme court was given in the case of the California Fireproof Storage Company of Los Angeles, an advertiser in the directory published by the Southern California Telephone Company, which protested against an increase in the rates for the advertising. The storage company claimed that the telephone company has shown discrimination in that the rate for some other advertisers remained at the old figure. The court held that the company was a natural monopoly, hence a proper subject for public control.

The court does not attempt to define the extent of the railroad commission's authority in fixing the rates and it is anticipated that the matter will be reopened in the supreme court to obtain a clearer definition of the authorization.

KNOXVILLE DAILY PLAN NEW 5-STORY PLANT

J. P. Roddy, President of Free Pre Says Work Will Start at Once —Recently Changed to P. M. Field

J. P. Roddy, president of the Knoxvil (Tenn.) Free Press, has announced pla for the erection of a new five-story pla expected to be completed within the ne four months. The building will be 1 feet long and have a depth of 50 fe Negotiations are under way for a ne multi-unit high speed Scott press, a modern stereotyping equipment.

The Free Press entered the daily fie in Knoxville as a morning paper Ap 30 last. Upon the recent consolidati of the Knoxville Sentinel with the Kno ville News, it changed to the afterno field. The management claims that i creased business since that time h caused the Free Press to exceed the c pacity of its present plant.

The immediate plan of the company to hurry construction of the basement a the first floor of the new building, cor pleting this section before the other fo stories are added. The new press a other equipment will be installed in th section and the offices moved from t present quarters as soon as the seco floor is in place to serve as a roof. Th first floor and basement of the propos building will give the Free Press fo times the floor space now available.

Officers of the Free Press in additi to Mr. Roddy are: S. H. Hodge, vic president; A. R. Ganoe, managing edito and Ralph Cate, treasurer.

Though man is admonished to "kno thyself" he is not advised to tell.—Tole Blade.

EDITORIAL CARTOONIST

Available

¶ Somewhere there is a paper with the editorial vigor and independence of the New York World or the Chicago Daily News, that would like to replace its "canned" cartoons with a staff cartoonist who can more vitally reflect the paper's own point of view.

¶ But publishers are so used to reading about the fabulous salaries paid to cartoonists that they instinctively shudder at the thought of hiring one. However, speaking for myself, I'd welcome an opening that offered little more than the per diem wage of, say, a New York bricklayer — provided the paper's policy was liberal enough to give full scope to my challenging portrayal of local and national issues.

If you publish that sort of a paper you may be interested in looking over proofs of my work appearing in national periodicals.

ADDRESS BOX B-827, EDITOR & PUBLISHER

The Trenton Times

and

STATE GAZETTE

NEW JERSEY

Morning State-Gazette	Evening Times	Sunday Times-Advertiser
14,732	41,518	30,504

The two percent discount as now accorded National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies for the prompt payment of bills is sound business. Not only does it make for a rapid turnover of cash, which alone is of great importance, but it also inspires satisfactory business relations.

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building, New York City
Waterman Building, Boston, Mass.
Atlantic Building, Philadelphia, Pa.
Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

J. C. HARRIS, JR.
Atlanta

READING M. E. MARKS 50TH YEAR ON DAILY

Eagle's Management and Staff Give Testimonial Dinner to A. N. Burkholder—Outlines His Ideal Paper

Albert N. Burkholder, managing editor of the Reading (Pa.) Eagle, on Tuesday, Feb. 1, rounded out 50 years of continuous service with that newspaper. The same day also marked his 66th birthday anniversary.

ALBERT N. BURKHOLDER

The event was given signal recognition by the management, department heads and Mr. Burkholder's news staff, at a testimonial dinner which took place at the Berkshire Country Club near Reading.

Speeches of eulogy were delivered by Edwin A. Quier, vice-president of the Reading Eagle Company, who was toastmaster in the absence of William Seyfert, president of the company, who is wintering at Palm Beach, Fla.; Hawley Quier, secretary and treasurer of the company and general manager of the Eagle and a grandson of the late Jesse G. Hawley, who founded the newspaper 59 years ago; Benjamin A. Fryer, city editor; Daniel K. Hoch, circulation manager, and H. Luther Frees, 75-year-old member of the news staff whose birthday anniversary coincided with Mr. Burkholders.

Vice-president Quier on behalf of the management presented Mr. Burkholder with a 23-jewel gold watch, bearing an appropriate inscription inside the case. The staff and department heads presented the veteran editor with an easy chair. A huge basket of flowers was presented to Mr. Burkholder's wife earlier in the day. As a special gift from his staff of reporters and editors, Mr. Burkholder was presented with a large framed layout in which is mounted individual pictures of the members of the staff, each photograph at his own desk in the news room, with a large picture of Mr. Burkholder in the center. On the frame is an 18-karat gold plate bearing a suitable inscription.

Mr. Burkholder was pleasantly surprised on his arrival at the office on the day of the anniversary when he found on the top of his desk a huge gilt eagle holding in its beak a card on which his photograph and a felicitous message appeared. It came from his friends in the press room and stereotyping department.

During the testimonial dinner a surprise was sprung when Dr. Warren F. Teel, president of Schuylkill College, Reading, conferred on Mr. Burkholder the honorary degree of master of arts, "for distinguished service to the community through the medium of the Reading Eagle."

Mr. Burkholder was born in a log cabin in the foothills of the South Mountains, in Lebanon County, Pa. His parents moved to reading when he was eight years old. At that time he spoke not a word of English, the only tongue known to him being Pennsylvania German. He attended the public schools of Reading until he was 16, when he was indentured an apprentice boy in the composing room of the Eagle. He has been with this newspaper continuously ever since. Five years in the composing room, 10 years a reporter, 14 years as city editor and 21 years as managing editor—that is a thumb nail sketch of his newspaper career.

In a speech at the testimonial dinner Mr. Burkholder outlined his ideal of a newspaper, as follows:

"The ideal newspaper is a tireless seeker after the truth, one of the most elusive and ephemeral qualities on earth. Its very life depends on its success in this respect. Running through all of its columns is the fundamental for which it was created—news, news and still more news, all based in the elements of truth.

"I regard the editorial direction of a newspaper as a position of responsibility, but the task is easy to one who knows enough to know that the people to whom he caters, their history, traditions and aspirations; when he knows enough to know the news which is not fit to print; when he knows enough to know how to separate the weeds and thistles from the real products of the fruitful field which he cultivates; when he knows enough to know that the elements which make up the paper having been called the 'people's daily bread.' should not be mixed with poison. Its influence is for good or evil according to the will of those who direct it. Its hopper is filled with news which has been poetically defined as the 'crumbs of humanity and the sweepings of history.' Fill the hopper with poison grain and it will grind it into meal, but there is death in that kind of bread."

MURPHY JOINS BRITISH FIRM

Agency Man Named Advertising Manager of Tobacco Company

The new advertising manager of the British-American Tobacco Company, as announced this week, will be Gail Murphy, now associated with the George Batten Company, New York advertising agency. Mr. Murphy's British appointment becomes effective March 1. He will make London his headquarters, but will also be in charge of the tobacco firm's advertising in all Europe and the Far East.

The American advertising man has had nine years' advertising training with large manufacturing concerns in this country, and for the last 10 years has been an advertising agency executive.

Mr. Murphy started his business career in 1905 with the National Cash Register Company in Dayton, O. Following experience with this firm, he became associated with the Burroughs Adding Machine Company, in charge of its bureau of information and research. When St. Elmo Lewis was made vice-president and general manager of the Art Metal Construction Company, he appointed Mr. Murphy his advertising manager. Later Mr. Murphy became advertising manager of the Chalmers Motor Company.

In advertising agency work, Mr. Murphy was for five years associated with the Charles W. Hoyt Company, New York, as a director. He has been with the George Batten Company for the past three years.

WOULD BAR NAMES

Three bills introduced at the recent session of the California legislature would make it a misdemeanor for a newspaper to publish the name of a person under 16 years of age in connection with all criminal cases, or the names of women or children involved in sex crimes.

FOSTERING INDIANA ART

Newspapermen and advertising men have been selected as officers of the Hoosier Solon Patron's association, an organization of Indiana artists. John C. Shaffer, publisher of the Chicago Evening Post, is president. Charles A. Segner, managing editor of the same newspaper is secretary and John T. McCutcheon, Chicago Tribune cartoonist and Wilbur D. Nesbit of the William F. Rankin Co. are vice-presidents.

By Far the Largest City and Suburban Circulation

In

West Virginia

Huntington Advertiser

Evening and Sunday Member A. B. C.

January, 1927, Net Paid Average:

City	14,244
Suburban	3,374
Country	454
Total	18,072

The Evening Advertiser is for ALL the Family.

Advertising Representatives

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Largest HOME delivered circulation in Los Angeles!

Los Angeles Examiner

190,000 DAILY 400,000 SUNDAY

The Meeting Place

An Advertisement of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company

It is not so long ago since people met in town hall, store or at the village post-office, to talk over matters of importance to the community. Then came the telephone to enable men to discuss matters with one another without leaving their homes. With the growing use of the telephone, new difficulties arose and improvements had to be sought. Many of the improvements concerned the physical telephone plant. Many of them had to do with the means of using the apparatus to speed the connection and enable people to talk more easily. This need for improvement is continuous and, more than ever, is a problem today. Speed and accuracy in completing seventy million calls daily depends upon the efficiency of Bell System employees and equipment as well as upon the co-operation of persons calling and those called and numerous private operators.

It is not enough that the average connection is made in a fraction of a minute or that the number of errors has been reduced to a very small percentage.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its associated Bell Telephone Laboratories have practically for their sole task the making of the telephone more serviceable and more satisfactory—as a means of conversing with anyone, anywhere, any time.

NUMBER ONE OF A SERIES

THE DISTINGUISHED NEWSPAPER

A VALUABLE NEW LINOTYPE HELP

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

THE DISTINGUISHED NEWSPAPER, as distinguished from the ordinary newspaper, does not "just happen." It is the result of thoughtful planning—both editorial and mechanical.

THE DISTINGUISHED NEWSPAPER increases its circulation because it is pleasing to the eyes of its readers. It gains their confidence in its accuracy and completeness, and attains a place of preferment over its competitors.

THE DISTINGUISHED NEWSPAPER increases its advertising lineage because local advertisers like the appearance of their printed message and national advertisers can feel sure that the effectiveness of their plates will not be impaired by the matter which surrounds them.

AS A CONTRIBUTION to the cause of better newspaper typography we plan to run a series of inserts in this publication which will demonstrate effective ways of handling the various sections of the paper; front pages, inside pages, display and classified advertising, editorial and special features; everything that goes to make an interesting and successful paper.

THE DIFFERENCE between the Ordinary Newspaper and the Distinguished Newspaper, with an explanation of some of the factors that combine to make each distinct from the other, is shown on the following pages.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE CO., BROOKLYN, N. Y.

LINOTYPED IN THE BENEDICTINE FAMILY

319.18

THE ORDINARY NEWSPAPER

VOLUME I AMERICAN CITY, NOVEMBER 13, 1926 NUMBER 1

MIXING TYPE FACES IN MAIN HEADS IS A COMMON FAULT

Right Underneath the Gothic Head Comes Another Deck Set in Cheltenham Bold Extra Condensed—No Harmony Between the Two Faces—The Caps in the Top Deck Are Hard to Read; There Are No Hooks For the Eye to Catch Hold Of.

The only excuse for mixing type faces in main heads is the lack of sufficient quantity of type to set all the main heads uniformly.

The style head reproduced above and the others that surround it were not conceived in an effort to be facetious, but were copied from a recent issue of a daily paper printed in an eastern city. The makeup, too, as it appears on this page is similar.

CAPS DIFFICULT TO DECIPHER IN THESE 3 LINES

Word Count Reduced By Extended Face Used Thus

TYPE TOO WIDE

This Deck Should Be Smaller and Relate To the One Above

Apparently no head schedule was used by the paper that allowed its front page to be thrown together in this manner.

The purpose of the head is to outline the story as completely as possible in a very limited number of words.

Space is at a premium for head writing. Large, extended type faces are impractical for this purpose. All caps require more space than caps and lower case of the same size and make the job of writing heads much more difficult.

Some makeup men in an effort to play up every possible story set the head out of proportion to the news value of the article.

The old axiom "all display is no display" seems to have been forgotten in some newspaper offices.

SQUARE BOXES "SQUATTY"

Because the shape of a newspaper page is proportionately deeper than it is wide, objects placed within that page should conform in general to this shape. A square box is out of harmony with its surroundings.

Indenting both sides would have extended the depth several lines and would have improved the appearance of this feature.

Heavy rules and black face type are not pleasing to the eye.

PARALLEL HEADS OF THE SAME SIZE PUZZLE THE EYE

When two single column heads of the same size occur in a parallel position they appear at first glance like a double column head, especially so when the top line of the left hand head is too long as happens in this case.

Three Steps Taken When Two Would Have Been Enough

The use of heads like this might be compared to taking one step backward in every three forward. A short article like this does not warrant three lines of 18 point type for a head.

The depth of the head is equal to half the entire text. Nevertheless, we frequently find examples like this in the makeup of the ordinary newspaper.

THIS APPEARS TO BE A DOUBLE COLUMN HEADING

Confusion Caused By Haphazard Style Of Makeup

The first impulse of the reader on encountering two single column heads like this is to read right across the top line into the adjoining column.

The weight of the type face is so much greater than that of the column rule, the division between the columns is hardly noticeable at first glance.

Newspapers have been accused by eye specialists of contributing to a considerable extent toward the increasing number of sufferers from eye trouble and as the newspaper constitutes the main reading matter of the majority this may not be without some foundation in fact.

Whether true or not, anything that contributes toward greater legibility is an object well worth obtaining.

THE

ORDINARY NEWSPAPER

CONTAINS MANY EXAMPLES OF VARIOUS STYLES AND SIZES OF

TYPE FACES

INCLUDING BOLD, ITALIC AND CAPS

They Make the "Ad"

CONFUSING TO THE READER

DISAPPOINTING TO ADVERTISER

INJURIOUS TO THE PAPER

The Distinguished Newspaper

VOLUME I AMERICAN CITY, NOVEMBER 13, 1926 NUMBER 1

Lower Case Easier Read Than Caps

Eye Perceives and Mind Registers the Thought Instantly

Heads More Complete

Greater Word Count Makes For Better Outline Of Story

Newspapers that have adopted caps nd lower case for heads have nearly all one so only after lengthy study of the omparative legibility of this form as ompared with the old-fashioned all-cap yle.

The head writer can make his heads ore complete when lower case is used n the main deck on account of the increased number of letter units at his ommand. Space for one or two extra etters means a great deal in formulating heads.

Another advantage is the closer spacing between words which is possible ith caps and lower case. Frequently here is only room for a thin space, but his does not impair legibility as in the ase of two words set in all caps and not paced wide enough apart.

Two Lines Often Tell The Story

Good Head Arrangement For News Items of Lesser Importance

A study of newspaper heads would eem to indicate that the use of too nany lines in the main deck or too nany secondary decks causes more difficulty to the head writer than if he were cramped for space.

Superfluous words are frequently employed in order to make the head run out to fill the required number of lines.

The style head illustrated at the top of this article will answer for a majority of all the stories passing over the desk with the exception of the few big features, and these, in the average newspaper office, are not nearly as numerous as the lesser items.

Word Count Increased; Legibility Is Unimpaired

Combining the word count of 6 point with the legibility of 8 point is accomplished by the use of Linotype 6½ point Ionic No. 5 which has met with widespread approval as a step in the right direction and away from the old tendency to disregard the legibility of the type used for body matter.

This face is more readable than seven point which is very generally used and with the added word count is ideal for newspaper use.

Italic When Sparingly Used Gives Brightness To Page

Furnishes Necessary Element of Contrast and Relieves Monotony Sometimes Caused by Too Many Heads of Similar Appearance

Italic is appropriate for heads of items having an unusual news angle, a human interest appeal or of a lighter vein than the ordinary run of news.

Especially at the top of the page the italic head serves a splendid purpose in breaking up the straight line across the columns and make it possible to give a much better arrangement to the other heads.

It brightens the appearance of the page and helps the reader select the stories of most interest to himself or of greatest importance as news items.

What has been said of roman caps applies even more strongly to italics. We can think of no possible situation where the use of italic caps is warranted for newspaper heads.

There is really no more justification for setting heads in caps than there is for setting text that way.

The early papers started out with caps (for such heads as they had) and the custom has come down through the years with nothing but tradition to support it.

Boxes Better When Rectangular in Shape

The rectangular shape of this box is in keeping with the general shape of the page itself and overdisplay is avoided by the use of light-face type and border instead of bold face and heavy rule.

A little white space all around the type matter brings it out even more emphatically than the treatment shown on the opposite page and the effect is better.

A few short paragraphs of out-of-the-ordinary news is the kind usually run in a box and as news of this character elsewhere in the paper carries italic heads, box heads should also be in italic.

All Heads In Single Face Best Method

Sure Way to Obtain Dignified and Harmonious Appearance

Acts as "Trade Mark"

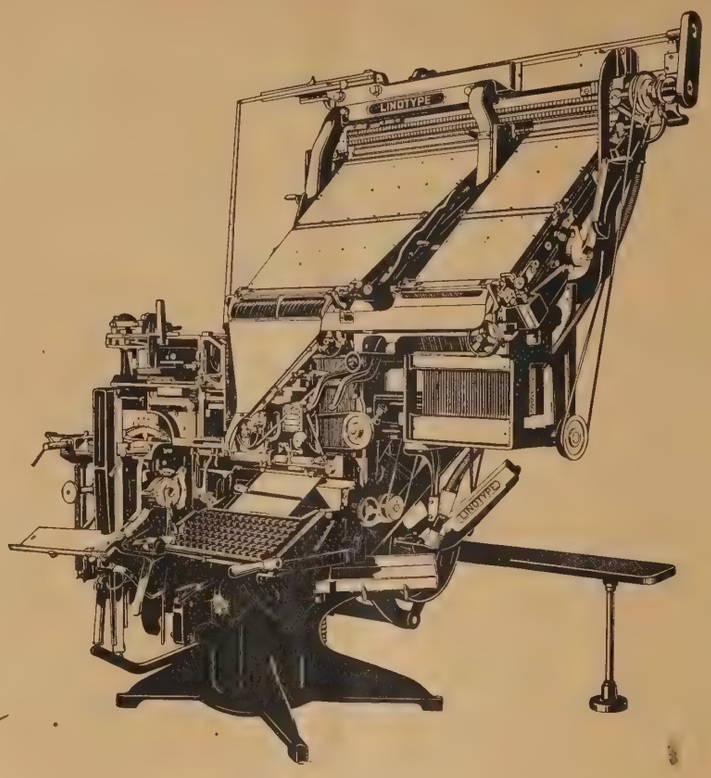
Readers Quickly Recognize Their Favorite Paper

One type family with its series of condensed extended, italic and bold is all the variety that any paper needs. Only three variations of a single type family were used in setting the heads and text matter on this page; condensed for the large heads, regular for the secondary decks and italic for the features.

This page was set entirely on the Linotype (except for the title line) using the Bodoni series for all heads.

BETTER TYPOGRAPHY

ALWAYS RESULTS IN



MORE ADVERTISING

The Distinguished Newspaper takes pains in the composition of its display advertising. It keeps abreast of the times by supplementing its type faces with the newest styles which modern advertisers expect, always striving to make its advertising columns

PROFITABLE to the advertiser

PLEASING to the reader

CREDITABLE to the paper

MODERN EQUIPMENT

IN THE COMPOSING-ROOM

One definite way to boost the ordinary newspaper into the distinguished newspaper class is to have Modern Linotype Equipment. When such type-faces as Garamond, Benedictine, Caslon Old Face, Cloister, Narciss, Bodoni and many others are available on Linotype Matrices there is really no reason why any newspaper should deny itself the distinction which good type gives. The Linotype effects such savings in composing-room operation that the paper can well afford the time to properly groom itself typographically.

Modern methods and equipment in the composing-room are best expressed in two words: Linotype Composition

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO · CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

LINOTYPED IN THE BENEDICTINE FAMILY

EDITORS TO STUDY CONDITIONS ABROAD

Leave for Ten Weeks' Tour July 16 as Guests of Carnegie Endowment for International Peace

irty newspaper editors, representing ections of the United States, will Europe this summer as guests of Carnegie Endowment for Internal Peace, Dr. Nicholas Murray But- president of the endowment an- ced this week.

e purpose of the tour is "to observe ng economic, political and social tions in European countries and to their institutions which are devoted nternational association and co- tion."

e party will sail from New York on tlantic Transport liner Minnetonka ly 16, will visit London, Paris, The e, Berlin, Prague, Munich and a and sail for home from Boulogne ept. 24 on the Minnetonka, arriv- New York on Oct. 3. Details of eception in each city visited are arranged by the Carnegie Endow- The visitors will be introduced to ers of the Permanent Court of In- ional Justice at The Hague by Brown Scott, director of the en- ent's Division of International Berlin they will see how Germany rking out her economic reconstruc- in Prague they will see how a new nment has been modeled after the l States and in Geneva they will the activities of the League of s. Announcement of the tour fur- ays:

nferences will also be arranged dministrative officials of the Uni- Postal Union, of the Interparlia- y Union, of the International In- of Agriculture and with the direc- l chiefs of the International Labor The visitors will be in Geneva time of the annual meeting of the l and Assembly of the League of s and will have opportunity to see meet a large number of the lead- n in the public life of Europe.

e party will be composed of edi- epresenting all sections of the States and chosen without any ce to their opinion on domestic ign affairs."

e invited to constitute the party ge McClellan Bailey, Houston Post-Dispatch; Marshall Bal- New Orleans Item; Arthur L. San Jose (Cal.) Mercury; Tho- Dillon, Minneapolis Tribune; S. Freeman, Richmond (Va.) eader; Harold Goff, Salt Lake Deseret Evening News; C. C. Colorado Springs (Col.) Wade H. Harris, Charlotte Observer; William Harrison, ma City Oklahoman.

C. Hopwood, Cleveland Plain M. J. Hutchins, Missoula Missoulan; Harvy Ingham, Des (Ia.) Register; R. A. James, (Va.) Register; Harold B. Watertown (N.Y.) Times wen Jones, Lincoln (Neb.) State J. Earl Langdon, Sacramento Bee; Robert Lathan, Charleston News and Courier.

an J. Levinson, Portland (Ore.) Telegram; George Morris, s (Tenn.) Evening Appeal; Douglas Meng, Kansas City Hamilton Owens, Baltimore Evening Sun; Edgar B. Piper, Oregonian; Maurice S. Sher- artford (Conn.) Courant; J. W. Phoenix (Ariz.) Republican; B. Stoneman, Miami (Fla.) Frederick A. Stowe, Peoria urnal and Transcript; James A. Indianapolis Star; Arthur R. or, Saginaw (Mich.) News Tom Wallace, Louisville (Ky.) and Casper S. Yost, St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

OIL WELLS BRING EDITOR $20,000 A MONTH

AMONG those who have benefited financially by the recent development in the Seminole oil fields in Oklahoma is W. S. Livingstone, editor of the Seminole (Okla.) News. Mr. Livingstone's monthly income from oil now is $20,000 with prospects of an increase. With that revenue to depend upon, Mr. Livingstone has moved his family to Norman, Okla., where his three boys and two girls will have better educational facilities.

Mr. Livingstone, like J. W. Kayser, editor of the Chickasha (Okla.) Star, who made a fortune in oil, expects to continue editing his paper.

Assistance to students in attending the University of Oklahoma at Norman is being planned by Mr. Livingstone.

NEWSPAPER STORIES NOT PREJUDICIAL

So Judge Rules in Denying Change of Venue in Pennsylvania—Says Evidence Upheld Newspapers

Publication of facts concerning a crime at the time and following the crime are not sufficient grounds for a change of venue or the granting of a new trial in Fayette county, Pennsylvania, criminal courts.

This point is raised in a decision just handed down by Judge S. John Morrow, Uniontown, presiding judge in the trial of Joseph M. Weisel found guilty of first degree murder, with the stipulation of life imprisonment, for slaying his wife.

It is the first time in recent years, at least, that the matter of news publication incident to a crime has been injected into trial procedure in Fayette county.

The prominence of the parties involved and the character of the murder made the crime sensational. Newspapers all over the county "played it up" with a vengeance. Counsel for the defense, maintained that such publication of the news had so inflamed public opinion as to prejudice a fair trial. The matter was brought up when the case was called in petitions for a change of venue.

The Court, Judge Morrow presiding, refusing a new trial, said in his opinion:

"When the original motion for change of venue was made as the trial was about to begin, all the members of this court were of the opinion that the public mind was not inflamed against the defendant as alleged, and the subsequent developments down to and including the verdict of the jury have satisfied us that this opinion of the Court was right.

"In urging the allowance of the motion the reasons emphasized were that certain newspapers had published articles to the effect that the defendant had made a confession admitting his guilt and that he had had illicit relations with. . . . Undisputed evidence showing all this was actually submitted to the jury at the trial under instructions not assigned as error."

FOUR PASS BAR TESTS

Four Wisconsin newspapermen and one newspaperwoman passed the state bar examinations last week and are now privileged to practice law in Wisconsin. They are: Fred L. Holmes, head of the Holmes News Service, Madison; Gerald L. McDonough, of the Milwaukee Wisconsin-News staff; John O'Brien, Milwaukee Sentinel; James G. Carnachan, Milwaukee Leader, and Doris Berger Welles, Milwaukee Leader.

NEWSPAPER MEN EXEMPT

The Ohio house of representatives has passed a bill exempting newspaper men from jury duty.

Go after business where business IS!

Nothing could be simpler or truer than that sound, old dictum.

Indianapolis is the twenty-first city in population, the thirteenth in volume of retail sales. That's because of the Indianapolis Radius (population 2,000,000) of which Indianapolis is the heart and center and soul.

National advertisers used nearly a million lines more space in The Indianapolis News in 1926 than in 1925. Not because they were interested in helping to make a new linage record for all time for The News, but because sales—and profits—justified the increase in selling effort.

They made substantial profits, at comparatively low selling costs, out of the Indianapolis Radius in 1926.

Business analysts point to the Indianapolis Radius as one of the brightest spots on the map of the nation for 1927.

There is absolute proof from past experience, and expert judgment for the immediate future, that the Indianapolis Radius is and will be one of 1927's outstanding selling opportunities.

The Indianapolis NEWS

Frank T. Carroll, Advertising Director

New York Office
Dan A. Carroll
110 E. 42d Street

Chicago Office
J. E. Lutz
The Tower Bldg.

EDITORIAL

And the bramble said unto the trees, If in truth ye anoint me king over you, then come and put your trust in my shadow; and if not, let fire come out of the bramble, and devour the cedars of Lebanon.—Judges, IX; 15.

$20,000,000 FOR RADIO

GRADUALLY newspapers are backing away from radio broadcast affiliations. EDITOR & PUBLISHER's little crusade to stop the absurd use of merchandise brand names in newspaper radio program columns is now bearing fruit. Each week we learn of additional papers that have cut out this form of free advertising.

The Publishers' Association of New York City some time ago decided to discontinue the practice of furnishing broadcasters with news. They have found that when a news fact is known to the public there is not the same demand for newspapers. This fact seems as plain as a pikestaff, yet we continue to hear newspaper men say that air publication of news "stimulates interest and creates circulation." The simple fact is that radio news announcements have hurt circulation. We hope that the great press associations that favor radio broadcast hook-ups will soon change their views.

H. V. Kaltenborn, of Brooklyn Eagle, told editors at Washington recently that the American air broadcasters did more than twenty million dollars in advertising business last year. How much of that business was sold with the promise to get the brand names of advertised merchandise into newspapers through radio programs we do not know, but it is quite an interesting fact that broadcasting cut so deeply into the advertising dollar. Mr. Kaltenborn said, quite truly, that "we can't hold back this magnificent new science." But neither should we put the immensely expensive system of world-wide news collection, supported by the daily press, behind a competitor. What has become of that great principle of "property right in news"? Radio broadcasters cannot go into the news business, at least at present. Why lead them in at the expense of newspaper advertising and circulation, the two means of newspaper life?

These are prime questions for forth-coming national and sectional conferences of newspaper publishers and business executives.

"The trouble with censorship is that it undertakes to emphasize what is bad and lays absolutely no emphasis on what is good."—Prof. John Erskine, of Columbia.

SPECIOUS REASONING

IN a little conversational skit appearing in the Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald, two citizens are made to virtuously proclaim against newspapers that publish the details of sordid sex relationships revealed in court cases, the while exposing that each has a perfect knowledge of the facts in all such current cases. The argument is that these people create the demand for such material.

"We give them what they want" is a specious newspaper policy and no alibi. Editors give the public exactly what they select to print. Naturally they seek to print the news, but always within certain limitations. The subjects of interest that are featured as of leading importance are, of course, immediately reflected in public and private conversation. If a newspaper publishes smut, many people will be heard talking of that smut. If newspapers turn their attention to other matters, the man in the street will be heard talking of them.

Lechery is not a first-class news subject, all statements to the contrary notwithstanding. Just as an evil-minded gossip disgusts and repels you, after you have heard enough of his nastiness, so does the average reader turn against the smutty newspaper. Many editors would be surprised, no doubt, at the number of readers that revolted at the Browning case and cussed out editors that printed it. It was very doubtful stuff and circulation gained through it will be hard to hold.

In the same week that this cesspool was overflowing, there were a number of wonderfully interesting stories running. For instance, there was the revelation that Henry Ford's wealth is two billions of dollars. Does any sensible person contend that fact was a less interesting dinner-table topic than the testimony of a stupid roué and his cheap little nobody hussy? In the broad sense, the people take what they get from newspapers—they demand nothing in particular.

GOOD-BYE PATTEE!

MANY of our readers are bound to remember that about a year ago EDITOR & PUBLISHER proclaimed the genius of John G. Pattee who had discovered for his employer, the Newcomb-Endicott store at Detroit, that newspaper advertising really wasn't in it compared with direct-by-mail advertising. Mr. Pattee, under the patronage of the direct-by-mail advertising interests, made a speech loaded with statistics and marvelous trade adventures which was broadcast to retailers in many large cities, the obvious purpose being to destroy confidence in newspaper advertising. We are reminded today of the incident by news from Detroit that the Newcomb-Endicott store is no more. Whether this is the supreme, ultimate manifestation of Mr. Pattee's philosophy in advertising we do not know, but it is certain that Newcomb-Endicott have retired from the field, their business having been absorbed by the J. L. Hudson Company.

American Bar Association now has a Committee on Co-operation of the Press and Bar. We can imagine work that would engage this committee 24 hours per day, every day, for a year, with much desirable co-operation yet to be accomplished.

RIGHT OF APPROVAL

IN Rochester, N. Y., the old question has been raised again whether a newspaper has the right to refuse to censor advertising. Supreme Court Justice John B. M. Stephens found in favor of the Times-Union in a suit begun by a furniture company. It was contended that the advertising was not carried because it was misleading to the public and that the rate card expressly stated, "All Copy Subject to Approval." The judge held, in denying a motion for an injunction to compel publication, that the advertising did contain misleading statements and that the notice on the rate card was a part of the contract. EDITOR & PUBLISHER again takes this opportunity to impress upon newspaper managements the necessity of making the words, "All advertising copy is subject to approval and revision by this newspaper," a definite part of every advertising transaction.

Salute Abraham Cahan, who has just celebrated the 25th anniversary of his editorship of New York Forward, true interpreter of the Melting Pot and creator from small beginnings of one of the outstanding journalistic successes of the day.

CHAIN STORE CHALLENGE

TWENTY-THREE representative chain store corporations report aggregate sales of $1,125,919,133 last year in 12,888 retail stores, gains over the previous year ranging up to 45 per cent. This huge economic power is sweeping the country, presenting to clever advertising men opportunities of the highest calibre, whether in support of the chain or in defense of the old system of retailing that it threatens to supplant. It is a local problem in hundreds of cities. In its very nature it plays into the hands of the local advertising medium, but on new, co-operative lines. It is a challenge to the best minds in advertising.

"SWEETEST DAY"

WE have just indulged the excitement of re a "jobber's bulletin" recently issued by National Confectioners' Association. It reference to an "$800,000 Candy Advertising paign," which is being started. It is to be "co-o tive, educational and to popularize candy and inc its demand." The plan was adopted by the Exec Committee, at a Chicago meeting.

A schedule of page advertising, in colors, is run through four magazines. Particularly, this sell "Sweetest Day." Then there will be some d by-mail work, and proofs of the colored adve ments will be circulated among jobbers.

But the big stuff, as we see it, will come whe Association opens up its 14-inch guns in free spa all of the leading newspapers of the land. We from the bulletin: "A most important feature i educational campaign is our news publicity se by means of which we will make available new information about the product candy, its purity, w someness and energy-giving qualities."

Does the executive board really believe it will pen? We mean, that the newspapers of the U States will proclaim, as "news," that candy in inc ing volume is a boon to physical man and child

---

The Mayor of Winnipeg, alleging misquot tion in an interview, declared recently in fav of legislation compelling verbatim newspap reports. Vancouver Daily Province repli quite truly, that in the interest of accura readability, economy and decent English, r porters should continue to do their work their own way.

FORD ADVERTISING

IT is widely reported in the advertising field Henry Ford has decided against advertisin what period we do not know, for the reaso do not need it." Simultaneously the Ford pul machine begins to whirr. Almost every news one picks up contains something that promote name and fame of the Detroit manufacturer. is, of course, a legitimate interest in Ford ar enterprises. We do not refer to such news. interest is in the out-and-out advertising "fea that are presented as news. If they are subst for paid advertising, as they appear to be, we p that the policy is unfair both to the newspaper Mr. Ford himself.

Kindly scrap, as outworn, "rich mat "sheik," "love nest," "daddyman," "sweeti "flaming," "silver screen" and "wow."

UNIVERSITY PRESS AGENTR

"SCIENTISTS Uncover Buried Cities of geddon" is the title over an attractive page that the University of Chicago ha been distributing to the newspapers of the c without cost, offering to send mats of any editors will return a postal card. It was a er good story, and we enjoyed reading it until we to that part of the great adventure of the exp in ancient Palestine which had to do with thei of building material in the form of 20,000 squa of "sheetrock wallboard" imported from the States. The story told all about what "she wallboard" is, how it resists fire and wind an nicely it turned the trick for the university expe Then this press-agent literature became merel other of those joint free-advertising stunts whe university and a building material manufacturer the expense of mats, proofs and postage, and a course, the benefits of grafted space. Queer to great university in that business, isn't it?

Late this week we learned that the Pruden Life Insurance Co. has decided to take adv tage of newspaper advertising, which we h long been contending offered to an enterpris insurance concern extraordinary opportunit Watch it win!

PERSONAL

FRANK B. NOYES, president of the Associated Press and publisher of the Washington (D. C.) Evening Star, and Mrs. Noyes recently visited Miami, Fla., on their way to Nassau for a vacation. In Miami they were guests of Olin D. Kennedy, managing editor of the Miami Herald.

John Steward Bryan this week retired from the board of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, stating that his duties as president of the A. N. P. A. and as editor and publisher of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader required his entire attention.

Roy Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, has returned to his New York office after a vacation spent in Florida.

A. G. Bixby, assistant publisher of the Seattle (Wash.) Times, is visiting in New York.

Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press Associations, last week concluded a speaking tour which had carried him from New York to the Pacific Coast. He addressed the recent annual meeting of the Southern California Editorial Association.

J. L. Mapes, publisher of the Beaumont Enterprise and Journal, with Mrs. Mapes, is in New York this week on a combined business and vacation trip.

George E. Graff, publisher, Williamsport (Pa.) Sun, is on a pleasure trip to Honolulu.

John L. Stewart, president of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers Association, is on a holiday with his wife and daughter. They will travel through the mountains of North Carolina, then to New Orleans, El Paso and Los Angeles.

M. E. Tracy, editorial writer and columnist of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, who is now in San Francisco, is planning to return to his New York office about March 1.

Edgar B. Piper, editor of the Portland Oregonian, delivered the Lincoln day address before the Los Angeles Lincoln Club this week.

George F. Booth, publisher, Worcester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette, has been elected an honorary member of the Advertising Club of Worcester.

C. S. Sterling, owner of the Houston (Tex.) Post-Dispatch, has been appointed by Governor Dan Moody as a member of the State Highway Commission.

Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, veteran Texas newspaper man, now editor-in-chief of the Marsh-Fentress string of newspapers, has been reappointed by Governor Dan Moody to a place on the Board of Regents of the College of Industrial Arts at Denton.

Simon G. Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Record-Telegram, has resigned from the Texas Technological College directorate, of which he was chairman.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

FRANK TRIPP, advertising manager of the Frank Gannett newspapers, was principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Wellsville (N. Y.) Merchants Association.

John C. Blackmore, of the advertising staff of the Milwaukee Journal, has been appointed advertising manager of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald.

H. Hultzen, formerly of the advertising staff, Niagara Falls (N. Y.) Gazette, has been chosen an assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of that city.

William Eilers, for several years director of national advertising for the Sioux City (Ia.) Tribune has joined the advertising department of the Sioux Falls (S. D.) Press.

Eugene Kelly, business manager, Sioux City (Ia.) Tribune was re-elected chairman of the Sioux City and Woodbury County Red Cross chapter at the annual meeting this week.

A. Dair, formerly advertising manager of the Selma (Ala.) Times-Journal, has become advertising director of the the Asheville (N. C.) Citizen. Before going to Selma, Mr. Dair was with the advertising departments of the Birmingham Age-Herald and the Mobile Register and the Mobile News-Item.

R. A. Franklin, until recently general manager of the Cleburne (Tex.) Daily Times, has resigned to become editor of the Electra (Tex.) News.

Harvey R. Young, advertising manager, Columbus (O.) Dispatch, who has been ill for several weeks, has gone to Florida for a month's stay.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

HUGH O'CONNOR has joined the reportorial staff of the New York Herald Tribune. Mr. O'Connor has been on the staff of the New York World for several years, previous to which he was a member of the old New York Tribune.

Ralph Thorn has been granted an indefinite leave of absence from his duties as tabloid editor of the Buffalo Evening News and has gone to California. His desk has been taken over by Jed Fiske, formerly with Miami newspapers.

"Gee" Ahern, former Nova Scotia athlete, returned to the staff of the Halifax (N. S.) Herald and the Evening Mail after more than a year spent in newspaper work in the United States. He will be sports editor of these papers.

Arthur J. Busch, city editor of the Brooklyn Citizen is writing a weekly column called "I Was Thinking ——," following the establishment of a new local feature page.

Peter Vischer of the sports department of the New York World, and Mrs. Vischer will sail on the S. S. France, Feb. 19, for two months' vacation on the Continent.

Jerry P. Shaloo, a former member of the city staff, Worcester (Mass.) Telegram, has been appointed an instructor in Greek at Clark University.

A. M. Nutting, for many years on the editorial staff, Lewiston (Me.) Sun, is ill in a local hospital.

Newell G. Welty formerly night manager of the Rocky Mountain division of the Associated Press is now news director of the Bartlesville (Okla.) Morning Examiner.

W. O. Adams has returned to newspaper work as sport editor of the Bartlesville (Okla.) Examiner.

Marc Wilkinson has resigned as editor of the Toronto (O.) Daily Tribune to become director of public relations of the Manos theatres in Ohio and West Virginia and to become publisher of the Toronto Press, new tabloid.

Albert G. Laney, night editor of the Paris Herald, foreign edition of the New York Herald Tribune, sailed for Paris last week, after an extended leave of absence. He spent his time in America working on the Herald Tribune staff and visiting his family in Florida.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

JAMES W. LINDSAY, who has been representing the Intertype Corporation in Europe since August, 1920, was recently elected a vice-president of the corporation.

JAMES W. LINDSAY

Mr. Lindsay has been managing director of Intertype Limited since he engineered its organization in the latter part of 1920.

Mr. Lindsay was born in Scotland and is descended from a line of distinguished Scottish manufacturers. His parents removed to the United States when he was a small boy and he was educated in American schools, finishing his studies with an engineering course at the Worcester Polytechnic Institute. For many years he was engaged in the practice of engineering and during the war period was connected with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Mr. Lindsay's responsibilities were further increased in December, 1926, by the organization of Intertype Setzmaschinen, g.m.b.h., of Berlin, Germany, of which corporation Mr. Lindsay is also directing head.

In addition to directing the affairs of Intertype's two important European subsidiaries, Mr. Lindsay is the liaison officer between the home office and the various European dealers.

Royal Cortissoz, art critic, New York Herald Tribune, has written a series of articles on the Flemish Art Exhibition in London. Because of the extraordinary character of this exhibition Mr. Cortissoz went abroad several weeks ago to cover the show.

George R. Weintraub, dramatic editor or the Atlantic City Daily Press, is back at work after a brief illness.

George Beaty, Atlantic City Press artist, is now conducting a fan column on the radio page of the Sunday Press under the title "Station WBUG."

H. A. Armstrong, formerly manager of the development department of the Corsicana (Tex.) Daily Sun, is now editor and manager of the Corsicana Democrat and Truth.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

DON WILLINS, from city editor, Iowa City (Ia.) Press-Citizen to St. Louis Star copy desk.

Vernon Spencer, from editor, Bloomsburg

(Continued on page 36)

The Appeal of Pictures

What does the public want?

One of the outstanding discoveries of the past five years is that the newspaper reading public likes pictures more than any publisher had before realized, and that the public will favor the newspaper that is well illustrated.

Our daily picture page is, we believe, the best to be had. It offers more pleasure to the reader than any other. It is full of feature interest. It is light, and prints well. We recommend it for trial.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — FARRIS A. FLINT, Manager

Now Ready

MILDRED BARBOUR

In a Smashing New Newspaper Serial

SYBIL, TRAPPER OF MEN

A Story of Deception, of Hate, and of Overpowering Love

12 Weeks of 6 Installments Each, Dramatically Illustrated

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St., New York City

(Continued from page 35)

burg (Pa.) Herald, to city editor, Flushing (N. Y.) Evening Journal.

Arthur Crookham, from city editor, Portland (Ore.) Telegram, to staff, Portland Journal.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

FRED G. COWLES, owner and publisher of the McAlester (Okla.) News-Capital has just purchased the two-story and basement brick building in which the newspaper is published.

These newspapers have recently adopted the Ludlow system: Denver Rocky Mountain News; Jones County Call, Laurel, Miss.; and New Orleans States.

A complete outfit of stereotyping machinery and a Hoe right angle quadruple press has just been purchased by the Indiana Tribune, Indianapolis.

St. Louis Times has ordered two straight-pattern superspeed Octuple Hoe presses.

Three Linotypes, including two Model 14s, have been installed by the Shawnee Morning News.

MARRIED

O. W. COWLING, former telegraph editor, Spokane Chronicle and now on staff of Portland Oregonian, to Miss Frances Watson of Spokane Chronicle business office staff, at Portland, Jan. 31.

Albert Ehl, stereotyper for the Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Republican to Miss Patricia Brock, in St. Mary's Church, Solon, Ia., Jan. 31.

William A. J. Scholten, editor of the Allen (Neb.) News to Miss Josephine LaNotte, Jan. 27, in Omaha, Neb.

Leon Hatfield of the staff, Kansas City Star, to Miss Marguerite Rose, in Olathe, Kan., Feb. 5.

Ray Shanahan, former illustrator and portrait painter for the New York Times and formerly with the Boston (Mass.) Traveler and Boston American, to Miss Catherine T. Connors, formerly secretary in the advertising department of the Boston Herald-Traveler, at St. Peter's Church, Dorchester, Mass., Jan. 30.

Ryan Walker, art editor of the New York Graphic, to Miss Edith Lovejoy, newspaper woman, formerly with the Chicago Tribune and Boston American, last week in New York. The couple are on a honeymoon trip in the South.

Miss Lucy Donnan Stewart, daughter of John L. Stewart, publisher of the Washington (Pa.) Observer-Reporter, and Mrs. Stewart, to Cecil Pickney Northrop of Charleston, S. C., in the Little Church Around the Corner, New York, Feb. 1.

Edwin Balmer, novelist and writer of a series of short stories appearing in the Chicago Tribune, to Miss Grace Kee, Winnetka school teacher, in Chicago this week.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

C. H. COWLES of Poteau and Fred G. Cowles of McAlester, Okla., have purchased the Poteau LeFlore County Sun, from Joe Edelmann.

Toledo (Ore.) Lincoln County Leader has been sold by Hall brothers to R. H. Powell, R. E. Collins and J. E. Cooter. Cooter will be editor and Collins mechanical superintendent.

Brookfield (Mo.) Linn County Gazette established 75 years ago has been absorbed by the Linn County Budget and the consolidated paper appears as the Linn County Budget-Gazette, a tri-weekly. The Rev. J. D. Mendenhall, mayor of Brookfield, is editor.

F. F. Erkstrom, Marshall, Minn., newspaper man has leased the Mellette (S. D.) Tribune from Mrs. Nona Axtell, owner, and will operate the plant.

J. H. Kavanaugh, who recently sold the Brady (Tex.) Sentinel to Foster & Huffor, has taken charge of the Lometa (Tex.) Reporter, which he acquired from R. E. Bradbury.

J. L. and J. E. Nunn and David M. Warren, owners of the Borger Daily Herald, Tampa News, Panhandle Herald and Hutchinson County Herald of Stinnett, have added to their chain of Texas papers the White Deer Review, purchased from M. B. Cavanaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Smith, joint publishers of the Slaten (Tex.) Times, have sold their subscription list, advertising and good will to Mrs. W. Donald, editor and publisher of the Slaton (Tex.) Slatonite. Mr. and Mrs. Smith retain their equipment and announce that they plan to establish a new paper in some West Texas oil field town.

NEWS VENDORS DON'T SHOUT IN HONGKONG

News vendors do not shout their wares in the streets of Hongkong, that picturesque city of the Orient, but instead, display a sheet printed in large letters, containing the subjects of the live topics of the day. Many old women of the former nobility now sell papers, this fact proclaimed to the world by their small deformed feet. One is shown above displaying a sheet of News bulletins.

ON THE MECHANICAL SIDE

I. J. POLL, 20 years in the composing room of the Salt Lake City (Utah.) Deseret News, has resigned to join the Denver Morning Post.

James J. Rickey, foreman at the Owego (N. Y.) Times, is spending the winter in Florida for his health.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

QUINCY (ILL.) HERALD-WHIG, Jan. 30, 100-page Progress Edition, including a 64-page tabloid section in which were pictured 355 homes and business buildings erected during the year.

SCHOOLS

COLLEGE editors of Utah at a conference in Salt Lake City this week decided that they had a right to express independent criticism and that faculty domination of the papers should be entirely eliminated.

Certificates of award for the best reporters and copy editors on the University of Indiana Daily Student for the first semester were made at the recent annual banquet of the staff. Charles F. Foster was judged the best reporter, while George MacKnight was ranked second and Arthur Flannigan third. Honors for the best copy editing were given to Ruth McKorkle, first, and Vivian Crates second.

Editors of the four daily newspapers will be instructors in a new course in journalism offered at the Cleveland College. Earle Martin, editor and publisher, Cleveland Times; T. A. Robertson, managing editor, Cleveland News; Ted O. Thackery, managing editor, Cleveland Press, and Erie C. Hopwood, editor, Plain Dealer, will offer lectures on "The American Newspaper." Clyde C. Miller, publication editor, Cleveland Board of Education, has been named as head of the Journalism department of the college.

Burgess Johnson, formerly director of publications at Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, is now at Syracuse University in a similar capacity and began his duties last week. He came to Syracuse from Boulder, Colorado, where he was located during the first semester.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

AUBURNDALE (Fla.) TRIANGLE TIMES is a new weekly started by James Metcalf. It will cover the towns of Auburndale, Lake Alfred and Winter Haven.

ASSOCIATIONS

OFFICERS of the TRI-STATE EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION met in Sioux City recently to outline plans for the annual fall meeting to be held Interstate Fair week in Sioux City, Sept. 21, 22 and 23.

Redwood county, Minnesota, editors have formed a county association with John Peterson, Belview, president; John Dietz, Wabasso, vice-president; Bess M. Wilson, Redwood Falls, secretary-treasurer. Seven newspapers are affiliated.

Annual convention of the ADVERTISING AFFILIATIONS, composed of advertising clubs in Western New York, Northern Pennsylvania and Southern Ontario, will be held in Erie, Pa., May 20 and 21. The keynote subject will be "Reaching a Greater Market in 1927." Col. Leonard B. Ayers, vice-president of the Cleveland Trust Company, will give the keynote address.

In conjunction with its annual convention the BRITISH ADVERTISING ASSOCIATION in this year to hold an Advertising Exhibition at Olympia, venue of the Automobile Show, the Daily Mail Ideal Home Exhibition and similar annual shows. Both exhibition and convention will be held at Olympia from July 18 to 23.

SUN CLUB, social and welfare organization of the New York Sun, is to give a dinner in honor of Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the Sun, at the Cafe Savarin, Saturday, Feb. 26. The dinner will be followed by a dance.

ADVERTISING CLUB OF ST. LOUIS and the Sales Managers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce will give a joint Valentine party at Hotel Chase, Tuesday evening, February 15.

$100,000 LIBEL SUIT

County Treasurer Eugene Torstenson recently filed a libel suit asking $100,000 damages from the Helena (Mont.) Independent and Will Campbell, editor. The suit is based on an article printed in December, 1926, which quoted the treasurer's comments following the robbery of his office at Plentywood, when $100,000 was stolen. He claims the story was "false, malicious and unprivileged."

FLASHES

The old fashioned, rugged type o journalism still flourishes in the west A coast editor says of a political can didate: "If there is an idea in his head it lives the life of a hermit.—Halifa Herald.

After Chicago erects the propose memorial to the cow that burned th city, it should award sharpshooter medals to its machine gun bandits.—Worcester (Mass.) Gazette.

It appears that Charlie Chaplin wa fully able to write the scenario for "Th Gold Rush."—Janesville (Wis.) Gazett

We may expect to hear any day tha Casey of Mudville was "sloughing when he staged his famous strike-ou —Florence, (Ala.) Herald.

Germans won't lead long as chemist They haven't the incentive of industri alcohol.—New York Telegram.

About the only time the little E ropean states present a united front when they are in the market for a loa —Vancouver (B. C.) Province.

You can estimate a town's size. Th smaller the population the bigger th municipal slogan sounds.—New Yo Telegram.

If the Marines can protect Americ property in Nicaragua, why not try the in Chicago?—Stamford Advocate.

Everybody would favor selective bir control if it could be made retroactive. San Francisco Chronicle.

A lot of our modern problems seem come in liquid form. Take oil, for i stance, or alcohol. Or, for that matt whitewash.—San Diego Union.

World Leadership in Radio Advertising

For years radio advertisers have used more space in THE SUN than in any other newspaper in the world.
In 1926 THE SUN alone published 33 per cent. of all Radio Advertising placed in the twelve New York newspapers.

The Sun
280 Broadway New York

The Flexitype Dry Flong

is successful in newspaper plants because, it is

1—Easily prepared and,

2—Produces plates with (a) type that prints black (b) and halftones distinguished by their clearness and detail.

We have convinced others. Let us show you.

Brooks Paper Company
St. Louis, Mo.

Largest Newspaper West of Chicago

500,000

Copies DAILY

The KANSAS CITY STAR

The Hartford Times.

CONNECTICUT

53,168

Net Paid Daily Circulation

realizes that the two per cent discount is vitally essential in smooth running business relationships between newspaper, advertiser and agent.

The two per cent discount policy develops prompt payment of accounts by National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies.

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building
New York City

Waterman Building
Boston, Mass.

Atlantic Building
Philadelphia, Pa.

Tribune Tower
Chicago, Ill.

J. C. HARRIS, JR.
Atlanta

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Publix Theatre Subsidiary Using Full Pages in Illinois Newspapers—Seattle Lists Metropolitan Dailies for Campaign—W. J. MacInness Made Ad Manager of Bright Star Battery Company

THE Great States Theatres, Inc., subsidiary of the Balaban & Katz chain and affiliated with the Publix Theatres Corporation is using full-page advertisements for an "institutional publicity" campaign in the Illinois downstate cities in which its houses are located. The full-page evidently is the forerunner of a series of promotional copy for new copy has been appearing in some of the papers on the early schedule. Readers are invited to send in to the Chicago office for a booklet describing in detail the chain, its investment and its policies. Officers of the Great States Theatres and their affiliation with the Publix and Balaban & Katz corporation are designated with list of all the houses under the Great States control in Illinois.

A newspaper advertising campaign will be started in March by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce to bring tourists and residents to Seattle and "The Charmed Land" region. The chamber is selecting metropolitan papers in the Middle West for the beginning of this campaign.

W. J. MacInness, associated with the Wm. H. Rankin Company for twelve years, has become advertising director and assistant to J. R. Crawford, general sales manager, for the Bright Star Battery Company of Hoboken, N. J. An extensive magazine and newspaper advertising program for Bright Star Radio Batteries and Flashlights has been launched—metropolitan dailies will be used extensively.

Merger of four leading office equipment manufacturers as Remington Rand, Inc., is virtually completed. The new organization, it is estimated, will have sales of about $60,000,000 annually and net earnings in excess of $8,500,000.

The Remington Rand Company will consolidate and co-ordinate the Remington Typewriter Company, the Rand-Kardex Bureau, the Dalton Adding Machine Company of Cincinnati, the Baker-Vawter Looseleaf Ledger Company of Benton Harbor, Mich., and another company whose name was not made public.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company is using more than 1,500 newspapers in the United States and Canada to present its annual report to its 24,500,000 policy holders.

As in former years the fiscal report is boxed in the center of a general health message, 16 inches by five columns. This year the message tells of "The Value of Human Life at All Ages." The annual advertising appropriation of this company totals more than $4,000,000.

A campaign against corrosion in motor car parts has been launched by the Standard Oil Company of New York in newspapers of New York State and New England. Fortnightly insertions, 15 inches by five columns, will be run through April, explaining the desirability of better gasoline. The H. K. McCann Company handles the account.

Merchants attending the Southwest Retail Merchants' council in Kansas City, Mo., last week were told by T. K. Kelly, Minneapolis, that newspaper advertising is the best medium for the use of all retail merchants. "Good will for any store first must be created by newspaper advertising," Mr. Kelly said.

Speaking before the Buffalo chapter of the American Institute of Banking, Charles H. Moore, vice-president of the Union Trust Company of Rochester, asserted banks of the United States will invest $15,000,000 in advertising this year, of which $7,500,000 will be invested in newspaper and magazine advertising, largely the former.

Joseph H. Appel, director of advertising for the John Wanamaker store, New York, sailed Thursday of this week on a Mediterranean tour.

The Oregon Poultrymen's association, Portland, Ore., has made tentative plans for a $5,000,000 advertising campaign in the interests of western poultry. R. J. Dixson, manager of the Pacific Co-operative Poultry Producers, which markets eggs from Oregon and Clark County, Wash., is back of the movement.

A newspaper schedule is being drawn up in the Philadelphia office of the Charles C. Green Advertising Agency, Inc., for the Coopers Creek Chemical Company, West Conshohocken, Pa., manufacturers of "C-4 Motor Fuel."

PAPER MAKERS TO MEET

Association Reports $2,000,000 Spent to End Waste

The fiftieth anniversary convention of the American Paper and Pulp Association will be held in New York, Feb. 21 to 24. Among the reports to be made is one on the efforts of the association to assist state governments in purifying streams used for power and water supply.

Dr. Hugh P. Baker, secretary of the association, said Wednesday the paper industry has spent more than $2,000,000 in the last few years for research work designed to curb waste.

AD TIPS

Brandt Advertising Company, 431 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Supplying some midwest papers with orders on Foot Remedy company, Chicago.

Chappelow Advertising Company, 1709 Washington avenue, St. Louis. Now handling the advertising of the Langenberg Manufacturing Company, of the same city.

Ferry-Hanley Company, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will use a small list of selected towns in the spring on the advertising of the Southern Pine association, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Charles C. Green Advertising Agency, Inc., 450 4th avenue New York. Has secured account of Skiler's Laboratories, Inc., Philadelphia, manufacturers of Skiler's Antiseptic.

Gundlach Advertising Company, 400 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Now issuing orders to a list of newspapers on Deisel-Wemmer Cigar company, Lima, Ohio.

Henri, Hurst and McDonald, 58 East Washington street, Chicago. Orders have been issued to a list of newspapers on the Marquette Cement Manufacturing company, Chicago.

Lord, Thomas and Logan, 400 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will have list on Palmolive Company, Chicago, ready in the course of a few weeks.

W. D. McAdams Company, 360 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Has issued orders on Van Camp Company, Indianapolis.

C. P. McDonald Company, Inc., 250 West 57th street, New York. Has secured account of the Manifold Supplies Company, Brooklyn, manufacturers of Panama typewriter ribbons and carbon papers.

McJunkin Advertising Company, 5 South Wabash avenue, Chicago. Supplying general list of newspapers with contracts on French Lick Springs Hotel Company.

C. F. W. Nichols Company, 14 East Jackson boulevard, Chicago. Supplying a few metropolitan papers with copy on H. W. Gossard Company, Chicago.

Fred M. Randall Company, Book Tower, Detroit, Mich. Now placing account for the Hy-Style Garment Manufacturing Company, Detroit.

Van Allen Co., 307 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Has issued orders to a large list of newspapers on Critchlow Company, Chicago.

Williams & Cunningham, Inc., 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago, Ill. Placing account for the Richards-Wilcox Mfg. Company, Aurora, Illinois, manufacturers of door hangers and hardware specialities.

P. P. Willis, Inc., 507 Produce Exchange Building, Toledo. Handling account for the Warner-Patterson Company, Chicago, manufacturers of auto accessories, etc.

Woolf-Gurwitt Advertising Co., 8 South Dearborn street, Chicago. Will handle the account of the Platt Drug Company, Chicago, manufacturers of Make-Man tablets and Cod Liver Oil Emulsion.

In San Francisco
In Los Angeles
In Oakland

California's First Three Cities

The Call's Advertising Gain
1926 Over 1925, Leads All Papers

The tabulation below shows the total lineage carried by the newspapers in these cities for 1926 and 1925, together with their gains and losses:

(All Figures Stated in Agate Lines)

PAPER	1926	1925	Gain or Loss
San Francisco Call	10,933,311	9,334,345	1,598,966 Gain
Oakland Post-Enquirer	10,166,184	8,952,972	1,213,212 Gain
Los Angeles Herald..	17,505,474	16,591,498	913,976 Gain
Los Angeles Times.....	26,489,386	25,909,058	580,328 Gain
San Francisco Examiner..	19,671,021	19,135,663	545,358 Gain
San Francisco Daily News.	8,044,564	7,549,661	494,903 Gain
Los Angeles Examiner....	22,953,248	22,460,665	492,583 Gain
Oakland Tribune	19,071,710	18,849,762	221,984 Gain
San Francisco Chronicle..	11,710,123	11,497,850	212,269 Gain
Los Angeles Record.....	5,147,660	4,975,628	172,032 Gain
San Francisco Bulletin....	7,011,878	7,106,631	94,753 Loss
Los Angeles Express.....	9,213,582	9,399,516	185,934 Loss
Los Angeles News.....	2,871,722	3,208,772	337,050 Loss

CIRCULATION
of San Francisco Evening Papers

Government Statements, October 1, 1926

	CALL	News	Bulletin
City	70,165	61,788	39,779
Suburban	25,968	9,167	18,329
Country	11,506	1,657	11,266
Bulk	252	175	1,458
Total	107,891	72,787	70,832

No copies of The Call are circulated free or at a reduced rate, either alone or in combination with any other newspaper.

Over 90% Circulation in the Rich San Francisco Area

THE CALL

San Francisco's Leading Evening Newspaper

CHARLES SOMMERS YOUNG, Publisher

Representatives

NEW YORK	CHICAGO	LOS ANGELES
Herbert W. Moloney	John H. Lederer	Karl J. Shull
604 Times Bldg.	901 Hearst Bldg.	Transportation Bldg.

OUR CUSTOMERS WRITE OUR ADS

THE WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL

OF THE LEE SYNDICATE

THE WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL
MADISON, WISCONSIN

January 24, 1927.

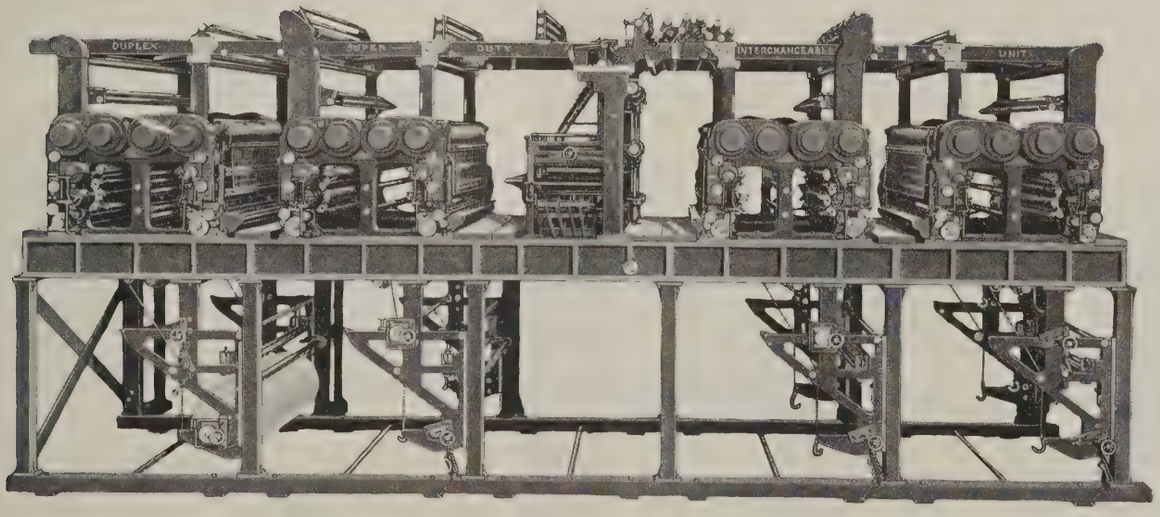
Irving K. Stone, President,
Duplex Printing Press Company,
Battle Creek, Michigan.

Dear Mr. Stone:

It seemed unfair to contemplate the pleasure we are experiencing in the operation of our Duplex Super Duty press without sharing with you the knowledge of our satisfaction.

The purchase of such a press means a very substantial investment, one that is not made without thorough study and deliberation. Perhaps I can make my message no more clear than to say that after one year's experience with the press, we are as sold on it as we were upon the day of purchase.

Sincerely yours,
I. U. SEARS,
Business Manager.



P. S.—We have not only published The Journal but also the opposition paper for the last two days.
I. U. S.

"After One Year's Experience With The Press, We Are As Sold On It As We Were Upon The Day Of Purchase."

I. U. SEARS, Bus. Mgr.
Wisconsin State Journal
Madison, Wisc.

THE DUPLEX SUPER DUTY PRESS

INTERCHANGEABLE UNITS

The Duplex Super Duty Interchangeable Unit Octuple Press Now Printing The Wisconsin State Journal

A New Standard of Excellence For Metropolitan Requirements

THE DUPLEX PRINTING PRESS COMPANY

OF BATTLE CREEK, MICHIGAN

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

G. Herb Palin "Sloganizing" the New York Sun—Wide Range of Contests Underway—Newsdealer's Protective License Proves Boomerang in Raleigh

G. HERB PALIN, sloganeer, is "sloganizing" the New York Sun for a truck-poster campaign now being conducted by that newspaper to build good will and attract new readers. The veteran catch-line rhymster has prepared more than a score of slogans, for the Sun. So far nine have appeared on the newspaper's delivery trucks. They follow:

"Unsurpassed and Growing Fast."
"Gives best reports in the field of sports."
"On merit alone, It's prospered and grown."
"After all is said and done the evening paper is the Sun."
"Prosperous people read it, Advertisers need it."
"Read and bought by those of thought"
"Every one needs the Sun."
"Makes interest grow in radio."
"Far in advance in the field of finance."

Contest editors are helping the circulation managers in several cities these days with out-of-the-ordinary ideas and revamped stunts of other years.

The Chicago Herald-Examiner is dividing $5,000 in prizes among winners of "The Greater Chicago Amateur Piano Playing Contest." The promotion appeal is being directed particularly to school children. First prize is $1,500.

In Baltimore the Evening Sun has all the local artists busily drawing masterpieces for its sketch contest. The Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger is running a "What Do You Think About It?" contest on its woman's page, awarding seven cash prizes ranging from $10 to $1 for the best letters on subjects of interest to women. Different subjects are assigned each week to write about, such as, "Should an Engaged Girl Go Out With Anybody But Her Fiance?" and "Should the Girl Who Does Not Have to Earn Her Living Take a Position?". The same paper is also claiming success with a new twist of the old cross-word puzzle game. The words to be filled in the empty squares are all historical, and the Evening Ledger is promoting the contest as an education in history, awarding $500 as first prize to "the foremost graduate" of its history class.

Hearst Sunday papers are offering $50,000 as prize money for a "Presidents and First Ladies of the Land" contest, the advertising for which was prepared for Victor Polachek, general manager of the Sunday papers, by the general promotion department in New York.

North Carolina publishers are protesting a bill introduced in the state legislature by Representative N. B. McDevitt, providing a graduated tax of from $10 to $105 on all wholesale newspaper and magazine dealers, the size of the tax being determined by the size of the town. The bill was prepared on the suggestion of a Raleigh news dealer, who desired a state tax for those plying his trade, ostensibly to keep "fly-by-nighters" out and to establish a responsible business. He has since come to realize that the measure as introduced would tax newsboys off the streets, and is seeking to have another bill drawn. Members of the legislative finance committee have been apprised of the newsdealer's mistake, and it is expected the bill will be pigeon-holed.

More newsboys are sent to college from Lynn than any city in New England, E. E. Keevin, director of the Lynn Newsboys' Association declared in an address broadcast from Station WEEI Feb. 4. The speech was made in connection with a ball sponsored by the association on that date for its scholarship fund. Eight newsies will be assisted in college work from proceeds of the ball, he said.

Mr. Keevin told a story of Thomas A. Edison's boyhood days. He said:

"Edison's school teacher sent him home one day and was also told that he was a 'lunk head,' in the bargain. The words 'lunk head' in Edison's day carried the same meaning that the phrase 'dumb bell' does today. This directly led up to young Edison quitting school when only 14 years of age. Edison's mother was his guiding star and he wanted to help support her. He became a newsboy and delivered the Detroit Free Press in a territory covering a railroad run of 30 miles out of Detroit.

"During his spare time he learned how to operate a telegraph instrument and could sent messages by the Morse code when 15 years of age. He utilized this knowledge as a newsboy and used to telegraph bulletins of news to station masters along the road in advance of his arrival with the newspapers. All this happened in the closing days of the Civil War and people were very eager to learn the news of that struggle.

"In my work with junior newsboys there are two Americans I always try to hold up as an inspiration. Thomas A. Edison is one. The other is Theodore Roosevelt."

E. E. Scott, formerly circulation manager of the Tulsa World has taken the same position on the Miami (Fla.) Tribune.

A letter mailed by the Hartford (Conn.) Times on June 6, last, to its New Britain, Conn., distributor was only recently delivered after a lapse of nearly eight months. The two cities are less than 10 miles apart. During its wanderings the letter strayed off the beaten path and went to New York and Ireland and then came back to the fold. The address was typewritten.

Every department of the Baltimore (Md.) Sun was represented among those attending the annual dinner, Jan. 27, of the Sun Route Owners' Association. Francis J. Wolfe, president of the association presided. Among executives and editors present were: Paul Patterson, president of the A. S. Abell Company; James C. Fenhagen, director; William F. Shimick, vice-president; J. Haslup Adams, editor of the Sun; Hamilton Owens, Evening Sun; Edwin A. Fitzpatrick, assistant managing editor, Evening Sun; Joseph A. Blondell, treasurer; Charles O. Reville, circulation manager; R. E. Vogelman, assistant circulation manager; F. K. Wilson, manager of street sales; F. A. Dittus, manager of out of town circulation; C. Bruce Ernest, city editor, Evening Sun, and Paul Menton, sports editor, Evening Sun.

ADVANCES DEADLINE

N. Y. American Now Reaching Street Between 7:15 and 7:30 P. M.

Seeking speedier circulation representation, the New York American has advanced its first edition deadline and is now on the street between 7:15 and 7:30 P. M. of the day preceding the publication date.

Last Saturday for the first time, the Sunday American was on New York streets at five o'clock. This makes the composing room deadline 4:30 Saturday afternoon, in place of the previous hour of 7:25.

The daily deadline is now 6:45 P. M. Up until a few weeks ago it was 7:45 when it was first changed to 7:25, before being advanced to the present early hour.

Lee Ettelson, managing editor, is responsible for the innovation.

FASCIST PAPER SUPPRESSED

Suppression of the Fascist paper, Il Pensiero Latino, published at Nice, was ordered by the French Minister of the Interior on Jan. 25.

Imperial METAL

Money Wasted in the Melting Pot

THERE are still some publishers who insist on throwing their good money into the melting pot. They seem to be perfectly willing to buy frequent supplies of new type metal and to indulge in expensive toning metals. They look on metal and machine troubles as necessary, expensive evils. And yet, thousands of their fellow publishers have long since put the clamp on all this type metal waste.

The hard and fast rule of publishers who are getting the maximum of type metal efficiency with a minimum of cost is that only Imperial Type Metal, serviced by the Plus Metal Plan shall be used in their shops. Strict adherence to this rule means their metal is uniform in quantity and quality at all times. Trouble is minimized and years of additional working life are added to their metal.

The Imperial Plus Metal Plan removes the waste at the metal pot. It's efficient, reliable and economical. That's why it is standard practice with thousands of publishers.

IMPERIAL TYPE METAL CO.

Manufacturing the following metals:

LINOTYPE MONOTYPE INTERTYPE STEREOTYPE
ELROD LUDLOW LINOGRAPH THOMPSON

Philadelphia Cleveland New York Chicago

Complete Coverage Complete Vindication

Advertisers are now assured of Maximum Coverage and Maximum returns, in the Prosperous Louisville Market at one small cost!

The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times' Circulations and Circulation methods have stood the test of what was probably the most thorough and complete inside and outside investigation any newspapers were ever subjected to. They emerge triumphant with the greatest circulation volume, morning, afternoon and Sunday, ever enjoyed by Kentucky newspapers and today give their advertisers Complete Coverage of the Great, Growing Louisville market. With over 150,000 circulation daily and over 121,000 circulation every Sunday they simplify and materially reduce the cost of reaching all the buyers in this territory. Anything less than The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times is wholly inadequate. Anything more is a needless expense.

over 150,000 daily

During 1926, their 100th and their Greatest year, they gained over a million agate lines in National Advertising alone

over 121,000 Sunday

The Courier-Journal
THE LOUISVILLE TIMES

REPRESENTED NATIONALLY BY THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

John F. Murray to Move New York Offices—World Wide Advertising Corporation Elects—Houghton Returns to Agency Work with Byron G. Moon Company, Inc.—Kennedy with Barton, Durstine & Osborn

THE John F. Murray Advertising Agency will move about Feb. 15 into the new Ley Building, Madison Ave., near 57th street, New York. This agency is prominent in the field of proprietary medicines, cosmetics and toilet goods, among its accounts being Bayer's Aspirin, Castoria and Watkins Mulsified Cocoanut Oil. It also owns Murray's Newspaper Service, Inc., which syndicates advertising copy to nearly 2,000 newspapers.

At a recent meeting of the stockholders of the World Wide Advertising Corporation, New York, directors were elected as follows: Emil Maurice Scholz, S. H. Somerton, W. G. Fallon, Katharine Gannon, Gertrude Holmes.

The directors elected the following officers: Emil Maurice Scholz, president; S. H. Somerton, vice-president and treasurer; W. C. Fallon, vice-president; Katharine Gannon, assistant treasurer and secretary; Gertrude Holmes, assistant secretary.

Walter L. Houghton, formerly general manager of the Luxite Silk Products Company, Milwaukee, Wis., manufacturers of hosiery and underwear, has joined the Byron G. Moon Company, Inc., of Troy and New York City, sales counsel and advertising agency service. He will assume charge of their agency service department in the latter city.

Mr. Houghton is returning actively to the advertising agency business after a lapse of four years, having left the field in 1923 to become salesmanager for the Luxite Silk Products Company. After being with the concern for one year, he was promoted to general manager, which position he held for three years, resigning Dec. 31, last. Prior to that time, he was for 10 years vice-president of the Redfield Advertising Company.

George Kennedy, Jr., formerly of the Buffalo Evening News staff, has resigned as editor of the Backer, monthly publication of the Buffalo Athletic club, to join the staff of Barton, Durstine and Osborn, at Buffalo.

Victor J. Nichols, formerly of the Spokane (Wash.) Chronicle, and circulation department of the Seattle (Wash.) Times, has joined the staff of the Carl W. Art Advertising agency, Seattle.

Gerald F. Champ of San Diego, Cal., has opened an advertising service agency office at 250 Spreckels building. For ten years he was a member of the San Diego Union and Tribune staffs.

Finley H. Greene, proprietor of the Buffalo advertising agency bearing his name, has been chosen chairman of the publicity committee of the Buffalo Automobile club.

O. A. Zahner, manager of the St. Louis office of Ruthrauff & Ryan, Inc., and R. Fullerton Place, direct mail and house organs, have moved to larger offices in the Arcade Building.

Lee Meriwether, Jr., formerly with the New York office of the General Outdoor Advertising Company, has joined the staff of the Chappelow Advertising Company, St. Louis.

The advertising firm of J. F. Held, Seattle, has moved to larger quarters at 717 Lloyd building.

E. W. Calvin, formerly advertising manager for Werner & Werner and more recently vice-president of the Frank D. Boyd Advertising Company, St. Louis, has gone to Chicago to engage in the automobile business.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Joseph P. Crynes Succeeds Frank McCabe on New York World—Moore Appointed by Charleston (W. Va.) Gazette—Hershey Begins Duties on Cincinnati Enquirer

JOSEPH P. CRYNES, for the last 3 years publication office manager, has been appointed classified advertising manager of the New York World, succeeding Frank McCabe, who, after a rest, may return to the World in some other capacity. Mr. McCabe is at present in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Crynes started with the World 27 years ago as a reporter. Then he was transferred to the publication office, working up to the head position in this department. The various positions he has held during his long service with the World include: circulation statistical clerk, charge clerk, manager of the service department, and chief clerk of the Brooklyn office. He was made assistant publication office manager six years ago. The position he has vacated to become classified manager has been filled by Henry Mueller, formerly his assistant.

Gene Moore has been appointed classified advertising manager of the Charleston (W. Va.) Gazette, succeeding John L. Hunt, resigned to become advertising manager of the Ashland (Ky.) News.

William H. Hershey, formerly classified advertising manager of the Columbus Ohio State Journal, is now holding a similar position on the Cincinnati Enquirer. He assumed his new duties last week. Mr. Hershey was for nearly two years with the Ohio State Journal and prior to that had been in classified syndicate work with the Basil Smith Company, Philadelphia, for which he was supervisor for Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia and several other southern states. He is a member of the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers and last year was named on a committee of the association to promote a national campaign for the education of the public as to the possibilities and use of classified advertising.

M. X. Garinger, classified advertising manager of the Johnson City (Tenn.) Staff-News, has resigned, to accept the same position on the Charleston (W. Va.) Mail.

The Chicago Tribune has just awarded the first prize of $500 to the winner in a want ad contest that has been running for several months. Users of the classified column were invited to write in and tell of their results. The winner, Mrs. Alice E. McKee, had sold a fur coat for $275, a used car for $750 and her furniture for $1,500 following the death of her husband. Each summer she has been renting a group of Michigan resort cottages through the classified columns.

TO REPOSSESS MACHINERY

Vice Chancellor Robert H. Ingersoll on Tuesday granted the American Type Foundry Company the right to repossess machinery now in the possession of the defunct News Publishing Company. The company published the Atlantic City Times, afternoon and Sunday, from April to November, 1926.

Prosperous Homes

are the back-bone of the many thriving communities which make up Long Island.

In Queens, Nassau and Suffolk Counties there are 127,058 dwellings.

The 236,777 families that occupy these dwellings require not only the necessities of life but also many luxuries, such as radios, automobiles and sporting goods.

If you can supply the needs of these families tell them about your product in their home town newspapers.

The papers listed below are leaders in their field. They are part of the home life of the communities which they serve and they will entrench your product firmly in the buying habits of Long Islanders.

Town	Paper	Publication Days	Circulation	Rate per Inch
Babylon	Leader Suffolk	Friday	3,400	.35
Bay Shore	Consolidated Press (South Shore Sentinel, Islip Press)	Thursday	2,750	.45
Elmhurst	Newtown Register	Saturday	2,500	.75
Farmingdale	Post	Friday	1,100	.30
Floral Park	The Sunrise Trailer	Friday	5,200	.60
Freeport	Recorder	Friday	3,100	.42
Great Neck	North Hempstead Record	Wed.	2,400	.50
Jamaica	Queens County News	Friday	14,675*	1.00
Lynbrook	New Era	Tue. & Fri.	2,800*	.60
Mineola	Central Island Weeklies (Hicksville, Westbury, New Hyde Park)	Friday	4,000	1.00†
Oyster Bay	Enterprise & Pilot	Friday	2,000	.45
Patchogue	Advance	Tue. & Fri.	3,226*	.55
Woodhaven	Leader-Observer	Thursday	8,600*	.84

*Sworn Net Paid Circulation.
†This rate includes the Farmingdale Post.
Figures not marked with a star indicate total run of paper.

The El Paso Post, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, gained 1,589,098 lines of advertising during 1926. During the same period the circulation gain was 37%. The Post is first in city circulation. Total circulation, December average, is 16,189, a gain of 50%.

Represented by Allied Newspapers, Inc., 250 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y.
Chicago Detroit San Francisco Los Angeles Seattle

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Sports Pages Now Claiming Talents of Newspaper Women—Miss Hannah Mitchell to Edit Scarsdale Enquirer—Michigan Women's Press Association Elects

SOME there are these days who are predicting a merger of the sports and women's pages of the nation's newspapers, retaining the best features of each.

PEGGY WILLIAMSEN

Peggy Williamsen, at least, the new women's sports editor of the Milwaukee Journal, was bold enough this week to assert that "the day is near at hand when the athletic activities of mere man will no longer dominate the sports page."

"I may be prejudiced, of course," Miss Williamsen declared, "but I do feel that putting a woman on the sports page is a mighty good thing for any newspaper. The woman reader of the sports page wants the story from a woman's angle; she wants the woman's interpretation of events and their significance. The realization of this serves to increase her interest and confidence in athletics and in the stories on the sports page."

Miss Williamsen, a Milwaukee girl, has acquired considerable local fame as a swimmer, which she hopes to make international at the 1928 Olympics. Already she has tied and broken world's records in swimming. When she was 15, she broke the girls' record at the Illinois Athletic Club, with 220 yards in 3:35⅘ minutes, and the same year tied the world's record at the Hamilton Club in Chicago, when she swam 100 yards in 1:25 minutes. In 1924 she went east for the Olympic tryouts but was disqualified.

CORRINE FRAZIER

The belief held by Miss Williamsen that women must more and more invade what was formerly considered man's exclusive domain, the sports page, is confirmed by Miss Corinne Frazier, who covers all women's athletic activities for the Washington Evening Star in a daily column headed "Women in Sport."

Miss Frazier is the only woman in her section covering football for a newspaper. She also regularly reports basketball games between men's varsity teams, and has covered baseball, boxing, polo, cricket, racing and other men's sports, giving a woman's angle on them.

Miss Frazier became a member of the Star staff about two years ago. She had previously taken a course in journalism at George Washington University and had served as secretary to John J. Spurgeon, when he was managing editor of the Washington Post. Since she is one of the ranking tennis players of the district, Miss Frazier covers a large part of the tennis news for the Star, in addition to her column work. She also conducts a junior tournament each summer to encourage interest in tennis and as a means of making news during a dull season. On Sundays she writes a column called "Clubwomen of the Nation."

Recently Miss Frazier has had a measure of success with magazine articles, and her ambition is to become a short-story writer. Her father was the late Hon. Robert T. Frazier, First Assistant Commissioner of Patents under Woodrow Wilson.

Miss Martha Coman has resigned as managing editor of the Scarsdale Enquirer. She will be succeeded by Miss Hannah Mitchell, who has been doing the publicity business in New York City for some time, and was formerly on the staff of the New York Herald Tribune.

Arrangements are now being made for the annual party and ball of the League of Advertising Women, New York, which will be held March 15 at the Hotel Astor.

The committee in charge of arrangements includes: Helen Rockey, president of the League; Bertha Bernstein, Beatrice Brown, Minna Hall Simmons Carothers, Ida Clarke, Emily E. Connor, Sadie G. Emanuel, Louise D. Garth, Kathleen Goldsmith, Lena E. Hauser-Hollweg, Mildred Kallfelz, Cora E. Morlan, Bernice Ormerod and Elsie Wilson.

Mrs. Vesta Hardy Vandeveer of Detroit was re-elected president of the Michigan Women's Press Association at a recent convention held at Lansing. Other officers chosen were: Mrs. Edith Lennon Pavey, Lansing, and Mrs. Ella N. Wood, East Lansing, vice-presidents; Mrs. Mary Thompson Stevens, Detroit, recording secretary; Mrs. Anna R. S. Willston, Detroit, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Caroline Davis, Fenton, treasurer; Mrs. E. L. Calkins, Ypsilanti, assistant treasurer.

Miss Marcella Moore is writing a column of art news and comment for the Brooklyn Citizen.

Miss Flora Thomason has succeeded Don Williams, resigned, as city editor of the Iowa City (Ia.) Press-Citizen.

Mrs. Marie L. Darrach, a newspaper woman who has worked in San Francisco, New York and Chicago, left New York on Feb. 10, for a four months' tour through the Orient. She will report conditions in China for New York newspapers, among them the New York Evening Post.

Mrs. Darrach is the mother of Frank Walton, of the reportorial staff, New York Herald Tribune.

Miss Selma Robinson, formerly a member of the staff of the New York Herald Tribune, is doing publicity for R. E. Johnston, musical manager, of New York City.

Leone Cass Baer, for 15 years dramatic editor of the Portland (Ore.) Oregonian, has resigned because of the transfer of her husband, Harvey Hicks, a railroad official, to Hollywood, Cal. Don Skene has succeeded her on the dramatic desk.

BREAKS TOWING MONOPOLY

Toledo News-Bee's Exposé Aids Automobile Owners

The Toledo News-Bee recently aided automobile owners of its city by exposing and breaking up the operations of a political group which was turning into the coffers of a few, thousands of dollars annually through a monopoly in the towing of recovered stolen cars, cars incorrectly parked, and other vehicles which for one reason or another required the attention of the police department.

One company handled this business and prices charged were claimed by the automobile owners to be exorbitant. As a result of the News-Bee's stories when a car is found or tagged the owner is notified and he is given the opportunity of calling for it himself or having it brought in by his own garage.

The News-Bee is a Scripps-Howard paper. Harold Place is editor.

REPRESENTING THE NEWSPAPERS

Helping Manufacturers Localize Their Testimonial Copy—Glens Falls (N. Y.) Post-Star Appoints Kelly-Smith Company—E. M. Burke, Inc., to Move

ABILITY to help manufacturers localize their testimonial copy is one of the newest selling arguments available to newspaper publishers' representatives, J. W. Turnbell, secretary of the Alcorn & Seymour Company, believes. He cited the current Lucky Strike copy of the American Tobacco Company.

To advertise Luckys, the statements and pictures of celebrities are now being used. It is quite likely, as Mr. Turnbell commented, that the copy would strike it even luckier in the smaller cities if locally prominent citizens were produced to publicize their taste in cigarettes.

"And we could get them to do it easily," Mr. Turnbell said.

The Glens Falls (N. Y.) Post-Star has appointed the Kelly-Smith Company as its national representative, effective Feb. 5.

E. M. Burke, Inc., newspaper publishers' representatives, will move their New York office about April 1 from 1457 Broadway to the new Graybar Building, near the Grand Central Terminal. This firm also maintains branch offices in Chicago, Atlanta and Dallas.

Paul Block, president of Paul Block, Inc., is entertaining Mayor James Walker of New York at his Havana estate.

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency, New York, has been appointed to represent the New Kensington (Pa.) Daily Dispatch in the national field.

Arthur A. Hoopingarner has been appointed Eastern manager of the American Press Association, national advertising representative of country newspapers. He will continue in charge of The Ameri Press, which he joined a year ago as itor and general manager.

The Six Point League is planning hold two more meetings before the s son closes, F. St. John Richards, v represents the St. Louis Globe-Democ and is League president, it is announc

---

J. Fred Henry, formerly manager the New York office of the W. B. Company, special representatives, has b made general sales manager of both New York and the Chicago offices.

Joseph A. Small has joined the Chic staff of the G. Logan Payne Compa publishers representatives.

CONNECTICUT GROUP ELECTS

John Hersam of New Canaan Adv tiser Named President

The Connecticut Editorial Associat held its thirty-ninth annual meeting New Haven recently, with business s sion at 3 p. m. and dinner at 6:30. the business session these officers w elected: President, John E. Hers New Canaan Advertiser; vice-presider Arthur S. Barnes, Bristol Press; P P. Ives, Cackle and Crow, Guilfo George H. Grout, New London D Howard W. Palmer, Greenwich Pre Gordon J. Gale, Windham County Tr script; Francis P. Flinn, Waterto News; Ernest L. Prann, Deep Ri New Era; Walter Stemmons, C. A. Publications; secretary-treasur Everett G. Hill, Ansonia Sentinel; au tor, O. S. Freeman, Connecticut West News, Canaan.

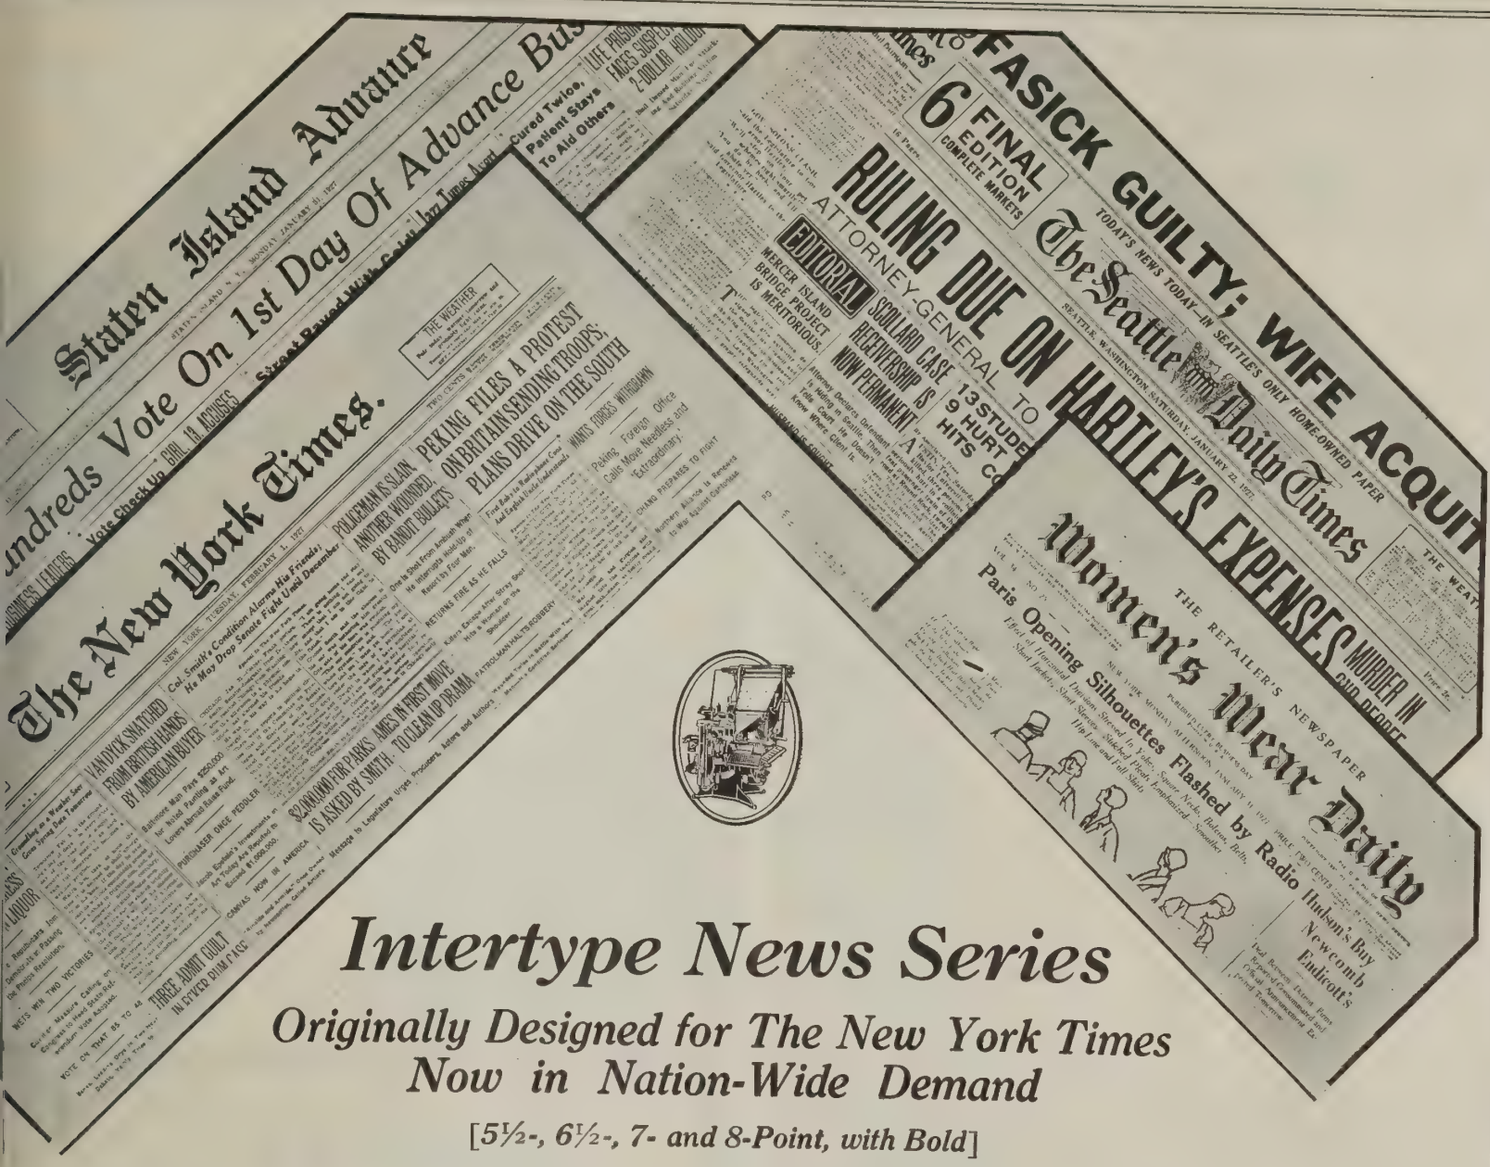
A Good Idea

Let us submit a good selling idea that will interest the national advertiser and space buyer in your market and newspaper.

We are an organization of trained newspaper copywriters and artists who know how to portray your market and tie up its value with your newspaper.

We will submit, in rough form, ideas how we can feature your market and newspaper to the advertiser that will bring results.

No obligations incurred unless they are accepted.



Why not get in touch with us?

"Tie Up Your Newspaper With Your Market"

PUBLISHERS SPACE SELLING SERVICE

49 West 45th St. New York City

Copy - Layout - Art - Typography

Intertype News Series

Originally Designed for The New York Times Now in Nation-Wide Demand

[5½-, 6½-, 7- and 8-Point, with Bold]

At the request of the New York Times, Intertype experts began investigation with the purpose of developing a news face with maximum readability without decreasing word count.

Intertype designed and presented for consideration, a 6½-Point, with bold, cast on a 7-Point slug, which was adopted by the Times in December, 1925.

As exhaustive tests of the Times demonstrated, the new face embodied all the essential features of an ideal newspaper face.

Since then, Intertype has designed other sizes of this face. The series at present consists of: 5½-, 6½-, 7- and 8-Point with bold. The complete series gives you a perfect step-up in sizes from which every requirement can be satisfied.

Among the well-known newspapers throughout the country which have adopted the Intertype News face are: The New York Times, The Seattle Daily Times, Staten Island (N. Y.) Advance, Women's Wear Daily (N. Y.), Cleveland Plain Dealer, Catholic News (N. Y.), Long Island City Daily Star, Porterville (Calif.) Recorder.

Write our nearest branch for specimens and further details on how the Intertype News Series will improve the readability of your news columns.

Standardized INTERTYPE TRADE MARK

INTERTYPE CORPORATION: New York 1440 Broadway; Chicago 130 N. Franklin Street; Memphis McCall Bldg.; San Francisco 560 Howard Street; Los Angeles 1240 South Main Street; Boston 80 Federal Street; London; Berlin

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Another New Syndicate Started—"Stoney" McLinn to Cover the Baseball Camps—Famous Features Offering New Series on Divorce by Zoe Beckley

"STONEY" McLINN will cover the spring baseball training camps for the Ledger Syndicate, Philadelphia. He will visit 16 camps between March 14 and April 2.

Famous Features Syndicate, Inc., New York, is offering "Speaking of Divorce," a series of authorized interviews by Zoe Beckley with Judge Ben B. Lindsey; Cardinal Hayes; Fannie Hurst; Dudley Field Malone; Natacha Rambova, the former Mrs. Rudolph Valentino; Father Francis P. Duffy, Chaplain of the "Fighting 69th"; Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton; Rev. John Haynes Holmes; Prof. Felix Adler; Max Steuer; Justice Selah B. Strong, of the New York Supreme Court; and the Rev. Randolph Ray, of "The Little Church Around the Corner."

Lyman Young, brother of "Chic" Young, has created a new daily comic strip called "The Kid Sister," to be marketed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., New York. "Chic" draws "Dumb Dora."

Euro-Pres, a syndicate recently established in New York by William Jourdan Rapp at 421 W. 121st street, is offering a weekly feature on world affairs, written by native correspondents in all the European capitals. The articles are by Emperor William, Aristide Briand, Mussolini and other "big names."

"The Marriage Problem" has been taken up by the Ledger Syndicate, which announces a series under that title written by Arnold Bennett, W. L. George, Will Irwin, A. Hamilton Gibbs, Jesse Lynch Williams, Rebecca West, Hendrick Van Loon and many others.

Gene Tunney's by-line is now being carried over three articles a week on boxing, being offered by the King Features Syndicate, Inc., New York.

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York, announces that the newest serial by Ruby M. Ayres, to be ready shortly, will be called "The Planter of the Tree."

Mark Hellinger's "Broadway" column is now being offered in picture-strip form by the Chicago Tribune Newspapers Syndicate.

"Chic Cherie" is the name that has been given to a new fashion news strip which the King Features Syndicate has added to its list.

Barbara Webb, author of "Joy," is writing a new fiction serial for Famous Features Syndicate, Inc., New York. The name of it has not yet been announced.

Irwin Barbour, general manager of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, has returned to New York from a business trip to the Pacific Coast.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

H. R. EKINS has opened a new United Press bureau in Honolulu. Simultaneously the U. P. started serving the Honolulu Advertiser, formerly a member of the Associated Press.

G. Perez Sarmiento has been placed in charge of a new U. P. bureau opened at Bogota, Colombia.

Robert T. Small, of the Consolidated Press after covering the Norris murder trial in Austin, Tex., swung down to the Mexican border, and is now on his way to Hollywood and points north.

Joseph Jones, of the foreign department of the United Press in the New York office, is recovering from an operation at his New York home and will return to active duty in about three weeks.

H. Martin Glenn, Associated Press correspondent at San Antonio, has been transferred temporarily to Austin to succeed Lloyd Gregory, who resigned to join the Houston Post-Dispatch.

T. J. McBreen, chief of the traffic department, Consolidated Press, has been spending some days in the organization's New York office perfecting a system for speeding up the transmission of tabular matter.

Port Arthur (Tex.) News has been elected to membership in the Associated Press.

Horace Epes, director of editorial department, Consolidated Press, has returned from a recent trip to the Middle West.

Elwin B. Thompson, former night editor of the Fort Worth (Tex.) Record and make-up editor of the New York American, joined the New York office of Universal Service this week as assistant night editor. Mr. Thompson leaves the Fort Worth Engraving Company, in which he was a partner, to return to active newspaper work.

Phoenix (Ariz.) Gazette this week began the full leased wire report of the International News Service. The Phoenix Republican started using the United News report Feb. 3.

The address of the Paris office of the Associated Press is now 21 Rue Vivienne.

J. W. Mette is again United Press correspondent at Charleston, S. C.

Edmund Behr has joined the staff of the Universal Service Bureau, Los Angeles.

J. C. Royle, editor, Consolidated Press business service, is making a survey of conditions in basic industries. He will visit important industrial centers in Buffalo, Detroit, Akron, Cleveland, Youngstown and Pittsburgh.

Frank E. Mason, director of the eastern division of the International News Service, addressed the Business Men's Club of Martins Ferry, O., Feb. 9 on "The Gathering of News."

Newspapers signing contracts with the United Press recently include, the Longmont (Col.) Times; Montrose (Col.) Press; Chattanooga (Tenn.) News; Sterling (Col.) Adovocate and the Shamokin (Pa.) Daily News.

WOULD BAR BEAUTY CONTESTS

The New South Wales (Australian) Parliament is considering the practicability of providing legislative enactment against beauty competitions or any similar competitions where semi-nude girls are photographed and their pictures published in the public press. The Victorian National Council of Women, who organized the Women's Union of Victoria, has passed a unanimous resolution against beauty competitions, which they term "a degradation to women."

WOULD NAME N. M. "COOLIDGE"

A proposal to change the name of New Mexico to Coolidge has been made by the Advertising Club of Albuquerque, N. M.

ADDRESSES WANTED

James V. Murray
Wilfred Wright
Howard S. Smith
Joseph H. Adams
B. S. Brown
W. O. Paisley
Louis Brownlow
Paul J. Morgan

A KING WILL BE HIS MANAGING EDITOR

Frank J. White, New York newspaper man sailed recently on the President Wilson, for Bangkok, Siam, to become the editor of the Bangkok Daily Mail. This newspaper is owned by the King of Siam and operated under his personal direction.

CHILD SUES FOR $100,000

Suit for $100,000 damages was filed against Macfadden Publications this week by the legal guardian of Eleanor Samuels, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Samuels of Scranton, Pa., as a result of being mentioned in "The Revealing Kiss," a "true story" appearing in the January number of True Story magazine. The story carried the names of real people living in and near Scranton. Eleanor's older sister Agatha recently brought suit against the magazine over the same story.

INLAND TO CELEBRA 40TH ANNIVERSAR

Special Program Arranged for Chi Meeting at Palmer House, Nex Week—Adams First Charter Signer

Members of the Inland Daily Press sociation will celebrate the 40th ann sary of the organization at the a meeting to be held at the Palmer House, Chicago, Feb. 15-16. The Inland was incorporated March 7, 1887.

WILLIAM SOUTHERN

A special program marking the event will be presided over by Thomas H. Adams of the Vincennes (Ind.) Commercial, who was the first signer of the Inland's charter. Wil V. Tufford of Clinton the association's secretary, has held office continuously for 25 years.

Speakers on the program, prepare William Southern, Jr., Indepen (Mo.) Examiner, association presi will include: Fred LeRoy, Streator (Times-Press; George W. Marble, Scott (Kan.) Tribune-Monitor; Ru Chapman, Rockford (Ill.) Star; Schilplin, St. Cloud (Minn.) Times C. Snyder, Norwalk (O.) Reflector- ald, and president of the Associated Dailies; S. J. Duncan-Clark, Chi Evening Post; Frederick Landis, Log port Pharos-Tribune; and Howard S Chicago Daily News.

AGENCY MAN SAILS FOR U.

Edgcumbe Brighten, joint mana director of the Westminster Advert Service, Ltd., London, sailed for York on a business trip Feb. 9.

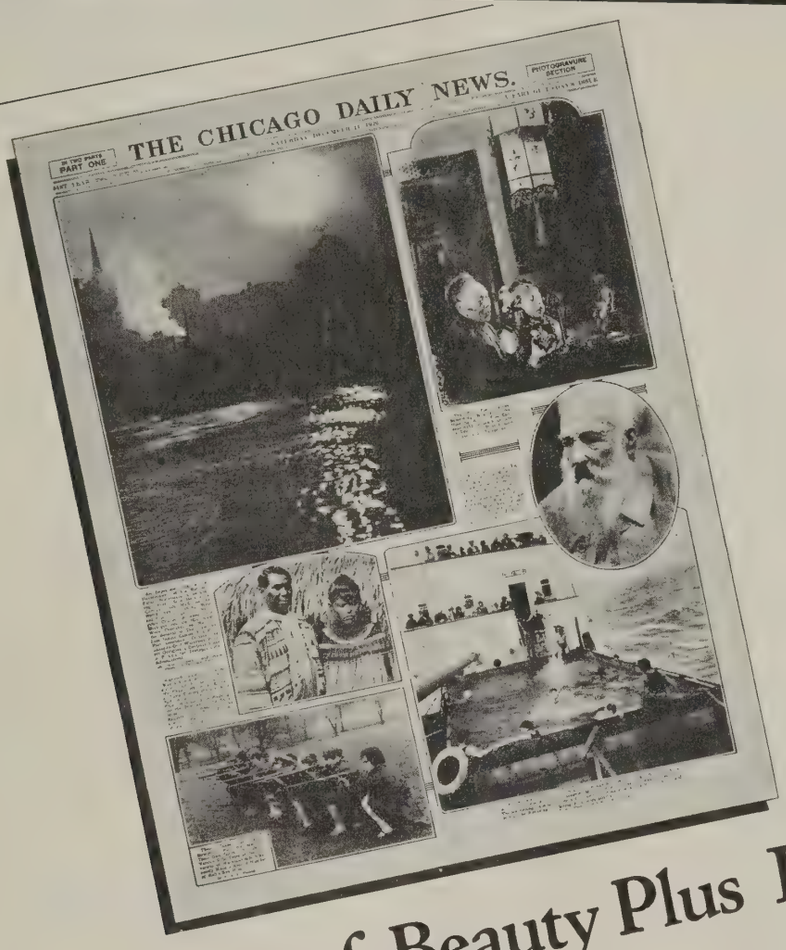
RESULTS

Through EDITOR & PUBLISHER a New York editorial man obtained appointment as Editor of a great English daily in a foreign country with an excellent contract.

Through EDITOR & PUBLISHER a man who was employed on a New York daily newspaper obtained the management of a syndicate—salary $125 per week.

Use Classified Advertisements liberally and intelligently and GET WHAT YOU WANT.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER has established a record as a result-producer.



For more than two years the rotogravure section of the Chicago Daily News has been printed on SUPEROTO made by the INTERNATIONAL PAPER CO.

Executive and Main Sales Office: 100 East 42nd Street
NEW YORK CITY

J. L. FEARING, Vice-President and Sales Manager

Other Sales Offices in BOSTON CHICAGO PITTSBURGH PHILADELPHIA ATLANTA

The Appeal of Beauty Plus Interesting Subject Matter

It has become an established tradition among Chicago newspaper readers that in beauty and fidelity of reproduction, as in general editorial attractiveness, the Saturday Photogravure Section of The Chicago Daily News is unexcelled anywhere. The consequent attention that it receives from readers of The Daily News in more than 400,000 homes in Chicago and its suburbs has convinced advertisers that art in selling pays.

As a result, advertisers of quality merchandise who seek a medium in Chicago adapted to bring out in delicate relief the detail of their product choose the Saturday Photogravure Section of The Daily News. In 1926 The Daily News carried 90% of all local photogravure advertising.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

FIRST IN CHICAGO

Member of The 100,000 Group of American Cities

NEW YORK
J. B. Woodward
110 E. 42d St.

CHICAGO
Woodward & Kelly
360 N. Michigan Ave.

DETROIT
Woodward & Kelly
Fine Arts Building

SAN FRANCISCO
C. Geo. Krogness
253 First National Bank Bldg.

CIRCULATION FOR DECEMBER, 1926, 426,8

BUEK, ALCO-GRAVURE PRESIDENT, DIES

End Comes in Albuquerque After Two Years' Illness—Owned Famous Payne Home on Long Island

Gustave F. H. Buek, 77, president of Alco-Gravure, Inc., of New York, died in Albuquerque, N. M., Feb. 8. Mr. Buek had undergone a serious operation two years ago, and had gone to New Mexico in search for health. With him at the end were his wife and Frank Bender, vice-president of Alco-Gravure.

Mr. Buek was also vice-president of the American Lithograph Company of New York and a director of the Crowell Publishing Company.

Born in Boston, Mass., Mr. Buek with his family moved to Brooklyn, N. Y., when he was a young boy, and he was educated in Brooklyn public schools. In 1866 he became apprenticed to Hatch & Co., Brooklyn lithographers. Later he gained experience in the art department of Donaldson Brothers, also of Brooklyn.

Mr. Buek went into business for himself in 1891, establishing the Buek-Lindner Company, which later became G. H. Buek & Co. This latter firm was subsequently absorbed by the American Lithograph Company of New York, Mr. Buek remaining as vice-president.

Mr. Buek was owner of the famous "Home Sweet Home" homestead, in East Hampton, L. I., where John Barton Payne wrote the beautiful song. He was a collector of antiques and had many valuable pieces in his collection.

ALBERT H. ALFORD

Editor of Lewiston (Idaho) Tribune Dies at 55

Albert H. Alford, 55, editor of the Lewiston (Idaho) Tribune, died Jan. 24, at Hot Lake, Ore., where he had gone for a rest.

He was born in Texas, and after attending Washington and Lee University, Virginia, entered newspaper work on the Dallas News. Later he worked on the Tacoma Morning Globe, and in 1892 went to Lewiston and joined his brother in the establishment of the Tribune.

In 1896 Mr. Alford was elected to the legislature and served as speaker of the house of representatives.

JOSEPH B. GOSSAGE

Joseph B. Gossage, 74, founder of the Rapid City (S. D.) Journal, and a pioneer of the Black Hills district, died Feb. 3, in Rapid City. For half a century he had headed the Journal and its predecessor, the Black Hills Weekly Journal, which he founded in 1878. He retired two years ago. Mr. Gossage was a native of Ottumwa, Ia., and learned the printer's trade in the Ottumwa Courier.

Obituary

MATTHEW J. O'NEILL, president of American Printer, Inc., died Feb. 3, in New York.

E. M. FUNK, founder of the Rogers (Ark.) Democrat, and father of Erwin Funk, present editor, died at his home on Jan. 29. Mr. Funk, a native of Iowa, came to Arkansas 30 years ago and started a newspaper at Springdale, later moving to Rogers. He served a term in the Arkansas legislature and was one of the founders of Rogers Academy.

JUDGE OMAR A. TOWNE, 76, New Hampshire's oldest newspaper publisher, who for 40 years edited the Franklin Journal-Transcript, died at his home Feb. 1. He retired as judge of the Franklin Municipal Court six years ago but still remained active in newspaper work up to the time of his death.

LEN V. DOTY, for 42 years editor and publisher of the Doland (S. D.) Times-Record died recently. Since pioneer days he has been active in the South Dakota Press Association.

FREDERICK F. BYRON, for 10 years traveling representative of the circulation department of the Boston Herald-Traveler died recently at his home in Ipswich. He was known throughout New England as a circulation man.

FRANK H. POPE, former Massachusetts State Auditor and correspondent for the Boston (Mass.) Globe in Marlboro, Leominster and surrounding Massachusetts towns, died at the Corey Hill Hospital, Brookline, Jan. 27, following an operation.

MISS LOUISE PAYNE, who 30 years ago owned and edited the Fayetteville (Ark.) Daily Gazette, died Feb. 5, in Lynchburg, Va.

ELIJAH F. CHAPMAN, 76, for 36 years employed in various capacities as a writer on newspapers at Huntington, W. Va., died at his home there after a long illness.

CHARLES DIAMOND, 50, of St. Paul, a compositor for the Burlington (Ia.) Hawk-Eye, was stricken and died Jan. 28, while at work in the composing room.

HENRY M. BOLAND, news editor of the Montreal Star for several years past, died recently at his home following a severe attack of typhoid. He had been ill since November. Commencing his career as reporter on Toronto Daily Star in his native city he came to Montreal 13 years ago as city editor of the Montreal Star and some years later was promoted to news editor.

AUGUST ELBERT, 72, father of Louis C. Elbert, vice-president and general manager of the Galveston (Tex.) News and Tribune, died at the John Sealy Hospital in Galveston last week.

W. W. WARROCK, 55, editor of the Rosebud (Tex.) News, died Feb. 5 in a Temple hospital.

DANIEL E. SULLIVAN, founder and former publisher of the Pawtucket Valley Daily Times, died Feb. 7 in Pawtucket, R. I. He retired from newspaper work two years ago to become secretary of the Pawtucket zoning and traffic commission.

ED HEATH, 54, for a number of years circulation manager of the Gainesville (Tex.) Daily Register, died at his home in Gainesville last week.

EDWARD MARTIN, 54, for many years an employe of the Boston American composing room and former president of the Boston Typographical Union, died Feb. 7 of pneumonia, following an operation.

MRS. NED MCINTOSH, wife of a member of the staff of the New York Herald Tribune died in New York last week following an operation. Burial was in Birmingham, Ala., Mrs. McIntosh's former home.

LEWIS G. STUART, 65, dean of Grand Rapids, Mich., newspaper men, died last week at his home in Grand Rapids after an illness of two years. He was at one time editor of the old Grand Rapids Eagle, and was later managing editor of the Telegram-Herald, now the Grand Rapids Herald. At the time he was stricken he was financial editor of the Grand Rapids Press.

Thorough Coverage in One of the World's Richest Buying Centers—Coupled with the Ability to Produce Results

Pittsburgh Gazette Times

(Morning and Sunday)

AND

PITTSBURGH CHRONICLE TELEGRAPH

(Evening except Sunday)

These newspapers in News and Advertising have the confidence of their readers.
Their readers have the power to purchase.

Sold Singly or Combined

URBAN E. DICE, Nat'l Advg. Mgr.
Gazette Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

E. M. BURKE, Inc.,
1427 Broadway, New York.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

R. J. BIDWELL COMPANY,
742 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
White-Henry-Stuart Bldg., Seattle, Wash.

Illinois is the recognized center of transportation. It derives strategic advantages as a meeting point of water and rail traffic. The State is in close touch with all important sections of the Nation and a greater percentage of its population than any other industrial and commercial center.

Illinois is the leading distributing center for many of the Nation's raw materials and manufactured products. It is a great central market for world commerce. Every product can be sold successfully and profitably in this State.

Manufacturers of raw materials or finished products who desire to reach the large producer or consumer will find Illinois a responsive market for his product or merchandise.

The newspapers listed below have all the information you need. They will gladly send it to you on request. Write them today.

	Circulation	Rates for 2,500 Lines	Rates for 10,000 Lines
*Aurora Beacon-News .....(E)	18,918	.07	.07
†Chicago Herald & Examiner...(M)	385,276	.55	.55
†Chicago Herald & Examiner....(S)	1,153,360	1.10	1.10
Chicago Daily Journal.....(E)	123,469	.26	.24
*Evanston News Index.....(E)	7,631	.05	.05
*Freeport Journal-Standard.....(E)	9,545	.045	.045
*Joliet Herald News.....(E)	19,644	.07	.07
*Mattoon Journal Gazette.....(E)	5,836	.04	.04
*Moline Dispatch .....(E)	12,048	.05	.05
*Monmouth Daily Review Atlas...(E)	5,338	.035	.035
*Peoria Star.....(S) 23050 (E)	30,429	.085	.07
*Rock Island Argus.....(E)	11,364	.05	.05
*Waukegan Daily Sun.....(E)	5,348	.03	.03

*A. B. C. Statement, Oct. 1, 1926

†Government Statement, March 31, 1926

Now Set in TRADE LINOTYPE MARK Ionic No. 5

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

Gentlemen:

We have received many compliments on our new 6½ point Ionic No. 5 dress. Set on a 7 point slug it is much easier to read and more restful to the eye than was the old 7 point dress.

In setting, it requires so little hand spacing that the operators' strings have increased over 5 per cent since the change.

A. N. DAMON
Foreman, Composing Room

LINOTYPE IONIC No. 5 IS MADE IN THREE SIZES

"It would be unfair for me or any one else who realizes the amount of good that will result from your recent change in the style of type you use in the makeup of the News if this was not recognized, appreciated and so acknowledged by every one interested in the conservation of vision," says Dr. Joseph H. Salov, a prominent optometrist and past president of the New Jersey Optometric Association, in a letter to the Newark Evening News after that paper had adopted Linotype Ionic No. 5 for setting its body matter.

"It is the accumulated unnecessary strain on the eyes, due to the extremely small and poor type used in many newspapers, that hastens the day when artificial aid must be sought," he said.

"Although not versed in the nomenclature of the type you have been using

7 Point Ionic No. 5 on 7½ pt. body

"It would be unfair for me or any one else who realizes the amount of good that will result from your recent change in the style of type you use in the makeup of the News if this were not recognized, appreciated and so acknowledged by every one interested in the conservation of vision," says Dr. Joseph H. Salov, a prominent Optometrist and past president of the New Jersey Optometric Association, in a letter to the Newark Evening News after that paper had adopted Linotype Ionic No. 5 for setting its body matter.

"It is the accumulated unnecessary strain on the eyes, due to the extremely small and poor type used in many newspapers, that hastens the day when artificial aid must be sought," he said.

"Although not versed in the nomenclature of the type you have been using for the last few days, it is of a style and character that immediately makes it-

6½ Point Ionic No. 5 on 7 pt. body

ACCOUNTANT—Books opened, audits, tax reports; part time bookkeeping at reasonable rates. Piper, 41 John st. Beekman 4581.

ACCOUNTANT—Expert, will keep few small sets books. D 103, Herald Tribune, Downtown.

ACCOUNTANT—Audit, systems, bookkeeping arrangements; taxes; financial statements; moderate fees. Cathedral 5372.

ARCHITECTURAL—General draughtsman, 25 years' experience in New York; take care of large work. D 96, Herald Tribune, Downtown.

ARTIST PLASTIC—Young man; also book cover designer in ink. Plaster caster wants connections. Phone Orchard 305, after 6 p. m.

BOOKKEEPER—Beginner; references. John Muratori, 37 E. 58th st. Regent 7340.

BOOKKEEPER—Cashier, neat, experienced; excellent references. D 11, Herald Tribune, Downtown.

BUTLER wishes position private family; personal references; city, country. Lotz, 120 W. 102d.

BUTLER, useful, thoroughly experienced; excellent references; Friday. Mason's Agency, 47 East 44th.

5½ Point Ionic No. 5 set 14 lines to the inch

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY
BROOKLYN, NEW YORK
SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS
CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO
Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

Linotyped in Bodoni Family and Ionic No. 5

ADVERTISERS' GROUP HAS 336 MEMBERS

Arthur Ogle, A. N. A. Secretary, Reports "Solid Growth"—Executive Committee to Meet in N. Y., Feb. 17

A "solid growth" in the membership of the Association of National Advertisers was reported this week by Arthur H. Ogle, secretary-treasurer, at New York A. N. A. headquarters.

While several losses in the membership have been caused by mergers during the past year, many new members have been added, Mr. Ogle said, bringing the total up to 336.

New members who have joined the association recently include: W. T. Brown, advertising manager, A. G. Spalding Brothers; J. L. Miller, advertising manager, Rex Spray Company; Walter Kiehn, advertising manager, Gulbransen Company, Chicago; Carl K. Hart, advertising manager, W. A. Sheaffer Pen Company, Fort Madison, Ia.; J. M. Hawkins, sales manager, Odorono Company; Walter E. Lopeman, advertising manager of the Sandusky Cement Company, Cleveland, O.

Former members who have recently rejoined the association include: A. W. Page, vice-president, American Telephone and Telegraph Company; J. C. Bebb, advertising manager, Otis Elevator Company; W. W. French, advertising director, Dodge Manufacturing Company, Mishawaka, Ind.; Fred D. Morgan, Liquid Veneer Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y.; Alfred Putz, manager of the advestising department, W. Atlee Burpee Company, Philadelphia, and W. F. Hartzell, advertising manager of the Barber Asphalt Company, Philadelphia.

Detailed plans for the May convention of the association will be discussed at a meeting of the A. N. A. program committee to be held in Detroit next week under the chairmanship of Gordon Kingsbury, of the Kelvinator Corporation. It has already been decided that the convention will be based principally on the subject "Laying the Foundation of Advertising Campaign." Particular attention will be paid to research and planning. There will also be a clinic on how costs may be cut in advertising departments. It will be held May 9-11, in Detroit.

The association's executive committee will hold its next meeting in New York, Feb. 17.

HAYS JOINS ROOSEN CO.

John R. Hays, for many years mechanical superintendent and superintendent of printing on the New York Herald under the Bennett management, and later mechanical superintendent on the New York Times, has joined the selling force of the H. D. Roosen Company, news ink division. Mr. Hays was recently engaged as traveling engineer for the International Pressmen's Union.

RETAILER LOSING PLACE AS DISTRIBUTOR

(Continued from page 3)

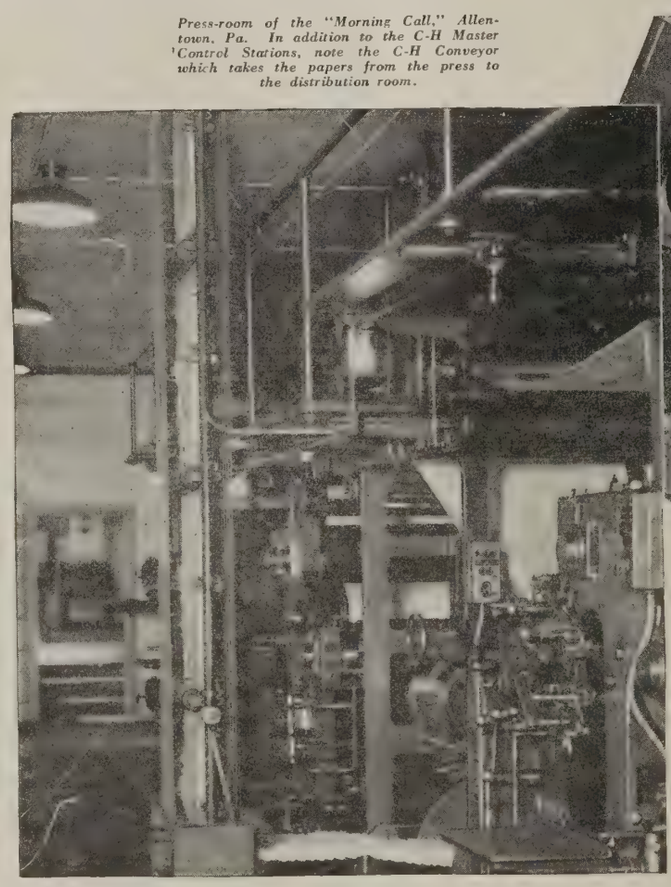
the thread. They have tested colors for generations, found the best and brightest and most durable. In times past, their rugs were always offered first to the Emperor, and the Ling weavers were entitled to put the fifth toe to the Dragon of Infinity as a mark of their royal patronage. All the art of 2,000 years has been preserved among these weavers. And so last year Soo Ling wove a rug. It had a border of gold that reflected light like a girl's golden hair. It was embellished with bats and tea flowers and other ancient symbols that bring good fortune and happy days to its owners. It had a blue field broken only by the central design of the Dragon, a blue you will find in no sky or sea in this world, a blue lovelier than a child's eyes, or wood smoke, or the mist over mountains. It is tedious to sit day after day on a small scaffold, tying twenty-two tight knots to the inch, to work day after day on inches of unbroken blue. But when he had finished, Soo Ling felt that he had done a lifework worthy of the best of his ancestors. Two thousand years of art and skill and experience and critical judgment had gone into the weaving of that rug.

"In due time a buyer bought it, and it was shipped to a store in this country, to be sold to the white men who are rich beyond Soo Ling's dreams. The store advertised Ling's rug with others. Faced by this masterpiece, the copywriter wrinkled his brow and thought lengthily. Three days later the advertisement appeared. It read—'Starting Tomorrow, A Special Selling of Chinese Rugs. Room Size, mostly 9 by 12 feet. An unrivalled collection at $315!'

"Sell your store in your copy. Your store must have some reason for existence, some reason why people come there to buy the same merchandise they can get in many places. Find that reason and sell it.

"Do not forget speed. It is the newest factor in business and one of the most important. It is not necessary to stress this point because most of you already realize it.



"Finally, remember that this new public is the realization of the American ideal. It is the actual expression of all that men of any time and any race have hungered for—the fullest equation of fraternity, equality in material things, liberty to secure and enjoy the fruits of this earth and its wonders; in a country where no child goes hungry to bed, where even the humblest and lowest hold up their head and their eyes free from oppress of either rule or circumstances, wh there is plenty and peace and the provis of a future that human beings never before. So you must appeal to this pu in its own terms, through its own asp tions and accomplishments. If you dc you cannot lose!"

The nation's youth as a distinct nomic entity was put before the meet as an excellent new approach to the b ing power of 1927 by Arthur W. The advertising manager of the Big St Cincinnati.

The boy and girl of today do not mother or father decide what they sl wear, and according to Mr. Theiss, young people display excellent taste their own selections.

"In these hectic days of volume gett beating last year's figures, increasing profits and what not," he said, "gol opportunities to insure increased pres and future sales are neglected or wh disregarded. Many stores are telling t story day after day to grown-ups o while thousands of prospective custom who could be aligned by giving jus little more thought and effort to childr needs and children's whims, are sho into the background always, of cou with the hope in mind that when the t comes, these same children will rally the standard of the store."

Press-room of the "Morning Call," Allentown, Pa. In addition to the C-H Master Control Stations, note the C-H Conveyor which takes the papers from the press to the distribution room.

C-H Master Push-Butto Stations are mounted o each press. From thes stations the motors ar governed automatically.

As fast as they are printed the C-H Conveyor gets the papers to the distribution room. It enables the "Morning Call" to get on the street on time.

Raising the "ad lineage" with C-H Automatic Press Contr

READER interest — circulation — coverage — telling weapons in the contest for increased lineage—advertising leadership.

The "Morning Call," Allentown, Pennsylvania, in a city of 84,000 population, reaches 88.2% of the families in Allentown. The Morning Call is equipped to get news on the street while it is still news. Hence, the reader interest and coverage that results in additional lineage. C-H Automatic Press Control gives that convenient, time-saving press control that gets the paper "on the street first"—that saves valuable minutes in the race with competition. C-H Control gives smooth, safe acceleration, easy push-button control of speed adjustment and instant stopping. It insures perfect handling of presses and motors.

There is a C-H Controller for every type motor in your plant. Tell us what equipment you have and our engineers will be glad to make recommendations.

The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.

Pioneer Manufacturers of Electric Control Apparatus

1203 St. Paul Avenue MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN

CUTLER C-H HAMMER

Press Room Efficiency Depends on Electrical Control

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper

Member of the A. B. C.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

INTELLIGENT MANAGEMENT

o Editor & Publisher: Your edi-al on the subject of allowing agencies cash discount on national advertising, attracted my attention, and you are e congratulated upon the manner in ch you handled the subject.

seems to me that if this discount ld ever be disallowed, the agency have forced the publisher to with-w the discount by a continued viola- of the time limit rule.

owever, in my opinion, most of the cies, certainly the reliable ones, can made to see the folly of continued ation of the rule, if the publisher goes t in the right way. Formerly many e agencies caused us trouble by over-ing the discount date, but we have a whereby we write the agency, on the offence, calling their attention to violation of the discount date, and ng that should it occur again, we be compelled to return their check correction. Of course when all check-copies have not been received, we w for it.

ur plan has worked so effectively that he present time about three-fourths ur national advertising accounts are ir hands by the middle of the month, sometimes the percentage of receipts the 15th runs even higher than nty-five per cent. In this way, we w just about what we can depend , and it is a great convenience to this money coming in regularly by ed date, each month. I do not think an instant this would be the case, ld there be no cash discount. In fact, ly, we allow no discounts and as a equence local merchants feel that have the privilege of remitting any during the month.

the discount were removed, it would e considerable antagonism between ublisher and agency, and I do not be- it would be a wise plan. I doubt that would ever consent to a removal of two per cent discount, certainly not ng as the present plan is working out successfully with us.

ay I take this opportunity to con-ulate Editor & Publisher upon the did paper it is publishing? The edi-l page is especially commendable and er like to miss an issue.

ith best wishes for your continued ess,

Mrs. Chas. K. Brown,
onal Adv. Mgr., The Leader Pub-g Co., Staunton, Va.

CASH DISCOUNT ISSUE

Editor & Publisher: Your edi-, "Cash Discount Issue" is the most cut and convincing article on the ct that I ever expect to read.

s difficult for me to believe that any sher who will read your editorial ally, will fail to appreciate the rea-you give for the cash discount as a sary aid to the proper development vertising.

You make a plea for better advertising in better volume, to maintain that degree of permanence which the publishing business must have for its continued growth.

The only answer to such a plea is the restoration of the cash discount where it has been abolished and its continuance where it now exists.

Sincerely,
James O'Shaughnessy.

WHAT'S NATIONAL ADVERTISING?

To Editor & Publisher: There seems to be considerable difference in opinion among the various newspapers as to what constitutes national advertising and what constitutes local display advertising. It has been our practice to classify as national display all advertising which is billed to an address outside the city of Des Moines; on the other hand, any display advertising which is billed to a Des Moines address is considered local. I understand, however, that the Indianapolis News, Milwaukee Journal and other newspapers classify the space used by local manufacturers and other local concerns paying the general rate as national.

In 1926, in our evening and Sunday editions, we carried a total of 3,620,870 lines of national advertising. If we had included the display linage used by local manufacturers, insurance companies and other local concerns paying the general or national rate the figures would have been at least 1,000,000 lines greater.

We would be interested in knowing your definition as to where the line should be drawn between local and national advertising.

The Register and Tribune,
H. T. Watts,
Business Manager.

Editor's Note: A definition of national, as distinguished from local advertising, is as futile a pursuit as an answer to the query, "What is news?" It is something that every newspaper must decide for itself according to local conditions. The billing method does not hold in a variety of cases. Of course, classification according to rates paid, gives an accurate linage figure, but the problem of fixing national and local accounts remains unsolved. Editor & Publisher can only advise publishers to consider each account separately and rule according to the known facts.

LOOSE RATE HANDLING

To Editor & Publisher: We want to write in the most emphatic terms our approval of the article which appeared in your January 15th issue entitled "Agency Man Protests Loose Rate Handling," by James R. Fox. This discusses a subject vital to both newspapers and agencies. We hope this letter, together with others which you undoubtedly will receive, will encourage you to continue the discussion to the end that newspapers generally will differentiate more clearly and on a universally common basis the difference between local and national accounts. We have run against this problem several times and it causes not only misunderstandings between agencies and newspapers but also embarrassment before a client.

J. Wm. Sheets, Inc.,
Philip R. Fennelly, V. P.

WIN READERS APPROVAL

To Editor & Publisher: The policy of the Camden (N. J.) Evening Courier and the Morning Post in condensing the Browning trial into a brief summary, with all testimony deleted, no pictures and never more than a half column of space, resulted in no circulation drop whatever. Camden, situated directly across the river from Philadelphia, within a two-hour train ride from New York, was saturated with tabloids during this period and Courier-Post circulation, normally 67,000 daily, showed no change whatever. Street men boosting tabloid sales, reported an increase of about 700 per day during the period of the Courier and Post's "Self-Censorship" policy. The only noticeable reaction was more than 100 letters to the editor commenting on the change in policy, of which all but six thoroughly endorsed the new departure.

Harry T. Saylor,
Managing Editor, Evening Courier-Morning Post.

Professional Sports

To Editor & Publisher: I have read an article in a recent issue of Editor & Publisher by William J. McNulty, a plea for less discrimination in the treatment of professional sports in the newspapers. I have also read a criticism of the article by Telford Work and endorsement of the statements of Mr. McNulty by Ray Jones.

It seems to me Mr. McNulty hit the nail on the head in his exposures of veiled professionalism in college and amateur sports. It is useless to camouflage things. There is no doubt that the college and club promoters of athletics are paying their athletes in various ways, just as the cases cited in the southwest by Mr. Jones, a sporting editor. I have known of numerous instances of amateur athletes receiving money for their services.

I must congratulate Mr. McNulty for his able article. There is far too much hypocrisy in the world today.

I believe, like Mr. McNulty, there is ample room for fair treatment of both amateur and professional phases of athletics, from the newspaper standpoint.

J. M. Thatcher,
Boston.

IN BUENOS AIRES
LA PRENSA
the Only Newspaper That Owns a
ROTOGRAVURE PLANT

Three rotogravure presses are necessary to supply the needs of the newspaper. From 16 to 24 pages are printed for the Roto section of the Sunday Edition. Eight pages of pictures and the first a magazine section of unusually high quality.

Average Sunday Circulation - 310,981
Average Daily Circulation - - 240,233

JOSHUA B. POWERS
Exclusive Advertising Representative
250 Park Ave., New York
"South America's Greatest Newspaper"

Baltimore American

The Baltimore Sunday American

The family paper —children cry for the funnies—men look for the news and editorials— and women demand it for the shopping news.

173,132 average net paid circulation

NEA

Buy Once--- and you've bought Everything!

Our full service clients receive DAILY—

Five topnotch comic strips.

Two three-column block comics.

Two one-column comics.

Boy's adventure strip.

Romance of America strip.

A page of newspictures and newsfeatures from New York.

A page of newspictures and newsfeatures from Cleveland.

Children's bedtime story.

Washington letter.

New York letter.

Topical cartoon.

Cross-word puzzle.

Intelligence test.

Motion picture column.

Radio program.

Complete sports page edited by Billy Evans and including Joe Williams' "Nutcracker."

Complete Woman's Page, including famous "Ethel" drawings, Paris fashion letter, "400" society fashion letter, Allene Sumner's "Woman's Day," Olive Roberts Barton's family editorial, menu and recipe feature, beauty articles, woman's serial.

Complete editorial page, including editorials, paragraphs, health article, travel series, interpretative resumes of big news, nature article.

And each week we issue---

Sunday School lesson.

Radio page.

Farm page.

Auto page.

Page of fillers, justifiers, household hints and fashion suggestions.

Theatrical column.

Book review.

House plans.

AND we protect all clients on big news breaks with special services transmitted by airplane, telephoto and fast train.

Special preparedness services take care of holidays, big conventions, important trials and other set events.

NEA Service, Inc.,
1200 West Third Street
CLEVELAND, OHIO

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service—Backed by 34 Years' Experience.

NEW JERSEY EDITORS MEET IN TRENTON

Gov. Moore Addresses Winter Convention—Prof. Will Outlines Work in Rutgers Journalism Course

Governor A. Harry Moore, speaking before the Winter meeting of the New Jersey Press Association in Trenton, Feb. 7, asked the newspaper men of the state for confidence in the legislature.

FRED L. CRANE

"Tell the people the facts," said the governor, "and let them choose for themselves. Do not try to influence them to views which you alone hold."

Fred L. Crane, publisher of the Elizabeth Journal and president of the Association, presided.

Rudolf E. Lent, of the Passaic Daily News, who is chairman of the committee on co-operation of Rutgers University Journalism course and the Press Association, made a report on the work of the committee. He told of the increase in the appropriation for the course, which has grown from $2,000 in 1925-26 to $11,000 expected for 1927-28.

Mr. Lent introduced Professor Allen Sinclair Will, Director of the Department of Journalism at Rutgers, who spoke in detail of the manner in which instruction in journalism is being given under the auspices of the Press Association. He said that at the December meeting of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism held at Ohio State University special interest was expressed in the methods recently instituted at Rutgers because they are the product of an attempt to establish a Department of Journalism in complete accordance with the wishes of the leaders of the newspaper profession.

"We intend," said Prof. Will, "to continue doing this work in the way in which the Press Association wishes to have it done. The reason is that your way is the best way, and we seek the best way."

Carl R. Woodward, who has charge of the yearly institute of the Press Association outlined the fall meeting, reporting 93 paid registrations and an attendance of 150. Three hundred papers were entered in the exhibit, which according to Professor Bristow Adams, the judge, showed great progress in the quality of New Jersey papers.

W. B. R. Mason and E. V. Savidge reported on a proposed libel bill which would require the plaintiff to prove malice on the part of the paper accused. The bill is to be submitted to Senator Case for recommendation. A summary was given of a bill proposing a court newspaper in Essex and Hudson counties, to contain all court news of the two counties, and to be supported by lawyers' and court advertisements.

A memorial to Henry Butler Rollinson, of the Rahway Record; Charles Hamilton Frost, Plainfield News; and R. E. Fithian, Bridgeton Evening News, whose deaths occurred during the past year, was read.

The following new members were admitted to the association: A. L. Kohnfelder, Hoboken Observer; Theo. W. Hendershot, Paterson Morning Call; W. Rubel, Union County Dispatch; Carl Ruklmann, Bayonne News Review; Isaac Untermann, Hudson Jewish News, Jersey City.

Francis B. Davis, president of the senate, and Anthony J. Siracusa, speaker of the house, also spoke.

Samuel G. Blackman, a member of the Journalism class at Rutgers, was awarded the annual scholarship of $100, given by the Press Association to the most deserving student in the course. Mr. Blackman and Miss Dorothy A. Grundy were guests of the association as representatives of the students in the Department.

FORM HALF-CENTURY CLUB

15 Michigan Publishers Eligible State Press Association Finds

Organization of the "Half-Century Club" marked the 56th annual meeting, just concluded at Michigan State College, East Lansing, of the Michigan Press Association, composed of 300 publishers of weekly newspapers.

The Half-Century Club has an exclusive membership of 15 Michigan editors who have been connected with the newspaper business in the rural field for 50 years or more. Six of the members were present at the organization session and were honored by their younger confrères, who voted them honorary life memberships in the Press Association and made them special guests at one of the banquet sessions.

The meeting was attended by 175 editors and publishers.

"Shop talk," discussion of mutual problems in making the rural press more influential and more profitable, occupied most of the sessions. Herman Roe of Northfield, Minn., president of the National Editorial Association, was a speaker. He told the Michigan publishers that failure to account accurately for the cost of issuing each edition is undoubtedly the most expensive error the rural publisher commits.

One of the interesting features of the convention which drew the attention not only of the visiting newspapermen but of many others attending the annual Farmers' Week at Michigan State College was an exhibit of rural weeklies, including some 300 sample copies of Michigan publications and a few papers from neighboring states. The papers were classified according to population figures of their towns.

New officers of the association were elected for the year, as follows: H. A. Johnson, Saranac Advertiser, president, succeeding Schuyler Marshall, Clinton County Republican-News; W. H. Berkey, Cassopolis Vigilant, vice-president; Herbert A. Wood, Bangor Advance, re-elected secretary-treasurer. Len W. Feighner, Nashville, is the association's first field director, a full-time job, and his successful work during the year was highly complimented at the sessions.

The dean of the "fifty-year" group is C. R. Jackson, owner of the East Tawas Gazette, who started his life work as a printer apprentice in Corunna in 1865, and who has been the owner of the Tawas Gazette for slightly more than 50 years. He is 73, and still helps get out the paper although it is now operated by Miss Edna Otis under lease. J. D. West, publisher of the Ishpeming Record, is the oldest member north of the Straits of Mackinac. He has been in Ishpeming since 1874.

George F. Adams has been with the Fowlerville Review for 51 years, during most of which time he has been managing editor. Mat D. Blosser has been managing the Manchester Enterprise for more than half a century. Patrick O'Brien, editor and publisher of the Iron River Reporter, started on the Brighton Citizen in 1876, and has conducted a newspaper in the Upper Peninsula since 1889.

Other members of the "50-year club" are George W. Minchin, Evart Review; W. A. Fox, Rochester Era; and H. C. McKinley, of the Grayling Avalanche.

PLANS 30,000 TON OUTPUT

The Inland Empire Paper Company at Millwood, Wash., will manufacture 30,000 tons of paper, mainly newsprint, during 1927, a recent announcement by William A. Brazeau, manager, says. Eighty per cent of the output is contracted for. Territory served includes papers as far east as Oklahoma, Denver, Dallas, Houston and San Francisco.

DROPS "SKYSCRAPER" PLANS

William J. Conners has abandon plans to erect a "skyscraper" home f the Buffalo Courier and Express on Niagara Square site purchased for th purpose. Mr. Conners has agreed to s the property to the State of New Yo for a new state building at a cost $460,000, said to represent only the pu chase price and back taxes paid by M Conners since purchasing the proper from the city of Buffalo.

BROUN WRITES ABOUT COMSTOC

Heywood Broun, columnist of the N York World, is author of a life of A thony Comstock, which will be publish in March by A. & C. Boni.

THRIFT COMMITTEE MEETS

The National Thrift Week Commit held a luncheon at the Bankers' Cl New York, Feb. 11.

Write and ask us how we are building volume for specific classifications every day of the year.

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building Philadelphia

Modern
Composing Room Furniture
as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.
Do it now!
HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration
The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.
The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.
N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

THROUGH the HEART of COLUMBUS OHIO
106,814
Dispatch average daily net paid circulation six months' period ending September 30th, 1926. This exceeded second paper by 19,163.
City 55,920
Suburban 27,897
Country 22,997
City circulation of the Dispatch equals 90% of the homes in Columbus.
The Columbus Dispatch

Time Saver
By accepting our Complete Checking Proof Service a newspaper publisher automatically eliminates all detail work from his office that has to do with checking copies. No longer would it be necessary to keep records of each individual agency and advertiser checking requirements, nor to make out wrappers, attach proofs with some agencies' monthly invoices, or handle a good many "requests" for missing copies, each month. Instead, the publisher sends our nearest office a few complete copies—and we do the rest. And we guarantee complete satisfaction to all concerned.
NOW—370 subscribers
The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.
79 Madison Ave. New York
538 So. Clark St. Chicago

The World
These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.
The Evening World
Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

A typographical error

in the

Editor & Publisher's Year Book is responsible for the Tampa Morning Tribune being listed as located in Tarpon Springs, Florida.

As a matter of fact, users of newspaper advertising the country over recognize the Tribune as the dominant medium of the West Coast of Florida and know that it is published in Tampa, the Metropolis of Florida.

Tampa Morning Tribune

showed a circulation increase greater than any paper in Florida at the close of the last A. B. C. Publishers Statement period, Sept. 30, 1926. Comparative figures will be gladly submitted on request.

In Local, National and Classified advertising the Tampa Morning Tribune shows a most substantial lead over the second Tampa paper.

Advertisers who want to cover Tampa and West Florida at one cost invariably use the Tribune.

S. C. Beckwith Special Agency

NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVE

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

DON C. SEITZ, who for many years sat in the chair of the business manager of the New York World, has a wonderful collection of items relating to American journalism. Evidently he has drawn upon this collection for his volume "Horace Greeley" (Bobbs-Merrill Company). While the volume is written in the chatty style and has a popular mode of treatment, it gives the reader the impression that it has been somewhat hastily thrown together at odd moments when the author was not busy on his controversial articles. In craftsmanship, it does not begin to compare with that admirable piece of biography, "The Life and Letters of Joseph Pulitzer" from the same pen. To add to the published information about Greeley and to write the authoritative biography would take an immense amount of research. To do the job well one would have to read the files of the New York Tribune somewhat consistently and at the same time not overlook the contemporary comments published in other newspapers of the period The task should have been started long ago when it would have been possible to talk with those who worked with Greeley on the Tribune. Yet the book that Mr. Seitz has compiled is unquestionably the best popular life of Greeley that has appeared.

Because of the space Mr. Seitz devotes to the political activities of Greeley, the volume has considerable interest for all who write political editorials. The cub reporter will find it as interesting as many of the popular novels. Greeley certainly climbed the ladder of newspaper success in a most spectacular way. His death was more dramatic than the death scenes of some of our best sellers. Unlettered and uncouth, Greeley undoubtedly wielded the greatest editorial influence of any man in the history of American journalism. Thousands bought the Tribune just to see what he had to say. Having obtained an enormous editorial following, Greeley was unable to lead his readers along a safe path at critical itmes. That is the great tragedy in Greeley's career, but one that is not sufficiently brought out by Mr. Seitz. Climactic situations are well handled, but somehow the background seems incomplete and barren.

* * *

THE latest book to come to my desk is "A History of Caricature" (Little, Brown, and Company) by Bohun Lynch.

* * *

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO., announce for early publication "The Marketing Problem," by Edward T. Elbourne. It will show how the problem is being tackled in America.

* * *

AN article in The Bookman for February that should be marked for the perusal of those connected with the advertising staff is "Advertising High Hats Itself" by Helen Woodward. Mrs. Woodward begins her chat with a bouquet to the advertising man in the United States who "thinks himself somebody special because his business is swollen with pride and dollars, and is a faint relative to art and literature—a sort of stepsister."

The author then takes the reader to France where he gets a shock, for in that country the advertising man is considered a rather low sort of human being —one to be sent around to the back door. In England, according to the author, the advertising man is a bit better—but not much. Crossing the channel again, the author takes the reader to Germany where the advertising man is happier because there advertising is much like our own and in some respects is better because the illustrations are more attractive and there are fewer billboards. In other words, England is where America was 25 years ago, while France is where America was 75 years ago.

The evolution of American advertising is then traced somewhat in detail. A nice tribute is paid to the colonial merchant because he had news sense in his advertising, even if he did attack competitors—something which the modern advertiser considers bad business.

Here and there through the article are scattered interesting anecdotes. One of them tells how in a local town paper there was an ad that ran from time to time offering a certain house for sale. The house had been sold years before and the seller had moved to California, but the ad was kept standing and was used as a space filler whenever news copy was low.

The reader is then switched from the United States to France where advertising is considered undignified. Until recently, established business concerns in Paris thought that advertising was a symptom of a sick business. With a delightful touch of sarcasm, Mrs. Woodward adds that now France is beginning to have Rotary Clubs and that consequently everything will be all right before long.

In discussing billboard advertising, Mrs. Woodward believes that that type was never born, but like Topsy, "jes' grew." In her opinion, the first organized bill posting publicity was done for Barnum and Buffalo Bill. Of course mention is made that today bill posting is closely organized and controlled by two or three companies who look after all the read-as-you-run advertising.

On the whole the article has the backward glance and wanders from one campaign to another—but always with charm. It concludes with an ethical note about truth spelt with a very timid little "t" and truth with a large "T." The article makes a nice appendix to Mrs. Woodward's recent volume, "Through Many Windows."

LOUIS WILEY, business manager of the New York Times, is one of the contributors to the January issue of The Scholastic Editor with "The Press and the College Student's Career."

* * *

SEVERAL members of the working press are represented with contributions in the February issue of the American Mercury. Among them are W. A. S. Douglas, who is the regular correspondent of the Baltimore Sun; Henry F. Pringle, who is on the staff of the New York World; John L. Van Zant, an Indiana newspaper man; Milton Waldman, associate editor of the London Mercury; Benjamin De Casseres, a frequent contributor of book reviews to the New York Times, etc.

* * *

ONE of the leading editorials in McNaught's Monthly for February urges the newspapers of this country to abolish the nuisance of "Presidential spokesman." The editorial then goes on to say:

> The President sees newspaper correspondents in a group at stated intervals, and hands out to the boys whatever he wants printed. It is mostly publicity matter for the White House. But the newspapers are not permitted to say that the President handed out the information and opinions. They must say, instead, that all this publicity matter was uttered by "the Presidential spokesman." The whole world knows there is no such person, and the thing has come to be a silly joke. Many newspapers rail against the President for his "spokesman" fiction, in their editorial columns, and continue to print the publicity matter as directed, in the news columns. Let any two or three of the metropolitan newspapers refuse space to the White House handouts for a month and the Presidential spokesman would be a thing of the past. The President cannot do business without publicity, and if the newspapers will not print his views on his own terms, he will be glad to have his views printed on terms agreeable to the newspapers and the public.

The editorial then concludes that no one, not even the President of the United States, ought to be permitted to make himself ridiculous by setting up an imaginary dummy to speak for him.

PATCHES LAUNCHED

Newspaper Men Editing New Washington Satirical Weekly

William Moore Patch, who started a reporter on the old Pittsburgh Di patch at the age of 17 and then in tu became city, Sunday and dramatic ed tor of that paper, and who has since be prominently identified with theatrical, i surance and other business circles, is b hind a new weekly magazine entitl Patches, edited by Hugh Sutherland, f 25 years associate editor of the now d funct Philadelphia North American.

Bond P. Geddes, a veteran newspap man, who for years was in charge the Capitol staff of the Associat Press, is Washington correspondent.

Lewis Y. Hagy is managing edito Stavert Hudson, business manage Ralph T. Sheldon, advertising manage N. K. Conderman, secretary-treasure and Edgar Scott, dramatic editor.

CLINE SYSTEM
CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO
CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control is used by

HARRISBURG PATRIOT
Harrisburg, Pa.

Ask them about it.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.
Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

LINAGE GAIN IN 1926

The Tribune gained 652,092
lines in total advertising in 1926 — the only Salt Lake daily paper to show a gain over 1925.

The Salt Lake Tribune

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency —Sole Eastern Agents.
M. C. Mogensen & Co., Inc.—Pacific Coast Representatives.

EVERY week, every month, every year The Cleveland Plain Dealer publishes MORE paid advertising than any other Cleveland newspaper.

For the year 1926:
Plain Dealer, 18,418,713 lines
Press .....15,104,534 lines
News .....13,059,507 lines

The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium — ONE Cost ALONE Will sell

NEW YORK 110 E. 42d St. DETROIT Fine Arts Bldg. CHICAGO 360 N. Mich. Av

BUILDINGS PLANT LAYOUTS PRODUCTION OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON
Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation
120 West 42nd Street New York

Away Ahead!

2,196,676 - 1925
3,699,155 - 1926
1,502,479 - Gain

The New York Evening Graphic shows greater gain in lineage (41%) than any other New York paper.

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and New Rochelle and The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.

Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

Compare!

Incomes of $5,000 or over...

NEW YORK STATE
146,639

CALIFORNIA.
NEVADA.
OREGON.
WASHINGTON } 62,501.

Income Tax Returns determine buying power. Take for example, the four Pacific Coast States —California, Nevada, Oregon and Washington—their combined income returns are not equal to half of that of New York State.

Suppose you were planning a sales and advertising campaign on the Pacific Coast. Think of the territory the salesman must cover, the expense and time involved. Whereas, in New York State, you have a compact unified territory with all the large trading centers closely knit together, where travel is convenient and distances are easy to cover.

In New York State you have population, wealth, buying power, and distribution can be obtained easily and economically at minimum expense.

If you have a meritorious product how can you afford to stay away from the New York State markets. These newspapers listed below are the most important papers in the Empire State. They will gladly help you obtain distribution.

		Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
*Albany Evening News	(E)	40,552	.12	.12
*Albany Knickerbocker Press	(M)	36,970	.13	.13
*Albany Knickerbocker Press	(S)	55,870	.17	.17
*Amsterdam Recorder-Democrat	(E)	7,824	.04	.04
†Auburn Citizen-Advertiser-Journal	(E)	10,000	.065	.055
*Brooklyn Daily Eagle	(E)	75,189	.22	.22
*Brooklyn Daily Eagle	(S)	85,839	.22	.22
 Buffalo Courier-Express	(M)	118,588	.22	.22
 Buffalo Courier-Express	(S)	154,046	.30	.30
*Buffalo Evening News	(E)	145,648	.25	.25
*Buffalo Evening Times	(E)	101,812	.21	.21
*Buffalo Sunday Times	(S)	114,255	.21	.21
†Corning Evening Lader	(E)	9,098	.05	.05
*Elmira Star-Gazette Advertiser	(E&M)	34,370	.11	.11
*Freeport Daily Review	(E)	9,011	.05	.05
*Geneva Daily Times	(E)	5,292	.04	.04
*Gloversville Leader Republican	(E)	7,108	.035	.035
*Ithaca Journal-News	(E)	7,567	.05	.05
*Jamestown Morning Post	(M)	11,665	.04	.035
*Middletown Times-Press	(E)	7,145	.04	.04
*Mount Vernon Daily Argus	(E)	9,575	.05	.05
*Newburgh Daily News	(E)	12,130	.06	.06
*New Rochelle Standard-Star	(E)	7,976	.04	.04
*The Sun, New York	(E)	265,000	.60	.58
*New York Times	(M)	358,350	.80	.784
*New York Times	(S)	591,425	1.00	.98
*New York Herald-Tribune	(M)	290,534	.6435	.624
*New York Herald-Tribune	(S)	343,716	.693	.672
*New York World	(M)	283,870	.595	.58
*New York World	(S)	553,400	.595	.58
*New York Evening World	(E)	295,472	.505	.58
*Niagara Falls Gazette	(E)	21,508	.07	.07
*Port Chester Item	(E)	4,695	.03	.03
*Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise	(E)	12,974	.06	.06
*Rochester Times-Union	(E)	70,660	.21	.20
*Syracuse Journal	(E)	64,910	.16	.16
*Troy Record	(M&E)	21,709	.06	.06
*Watertown Standard	(E)	17,232	.07	.07

 Merged as Buffalo Courier-Express, June 14, 1926.
† Government Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
* A. B. C. Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.

EUROPEAN NEWS MEN WANT SPECIAL TRIBUNALS TO SETTLE CRAFT PROBLEMS

Rights Cannot Be Protected by Ordinary Law Courts, Committee Declares—Consider "Conscience Indemnity" When Policy Forces Resignations

By G. LANGELAAN

PARIS, Jan. 21.—The very first meeting of the newly created International Federation of Journalists, which met in Paris last November, took up the question of the journalist and his peculiar position. Measures for his special protection were discussed. The representatives of Austria, Bulgaria, France, Great Britain, Germany, Greece, Poland and Rumania were for measures peculiar to journalists alone among all categories of workers. Nowhere is the profession of journalism so precarious as in Europe and especially in France.

The value of a journalist is hard to determine. He may often mean so much for the success of a newspaper, and yet, unlike the manager of a commercial house, he cannot always definitely point to results and claim to be measured by them. His position being such a special one, there has for long been a desire in Europe for special laws regulating his relations with the owners of newspapers. Attempts have been made, for instance, in the matter of notice of termination of employment to establish the rule of one month's notice for every year of employment, so that a journalist having served a newspaper five years should receive five months' notice or five months' pay in lieu of notice. This is a ruling that has often prevailed in arbitration, but it has never been consecrated by law and no French tribunal has ever admitted the principle. The last time it came before the courts was in France in a case where a former employe of the Associated Press abroad claimed payment in lieu of notice on the basis of a month per year. The court most categorically threw down the action, not even granting costs. The judges no doubt felt that if such a principle were admitted in the case of journalism there would be no reason for its not being admitted in the case of other professions.

But, say the journalists of France, and for that matter of most of Europe outside England, our profession really is a very special one and we need special protection.

This was reflected in the proposals at the first sitting of the Executive Committee of the International Federation of Journalists, when that body came to the following conclusion:

It is necessary to make a distinction between ordinary notice of dismissal and payment in lieu of notice. These, the Committee contend, are two entirely different things. Notice can be given to correspond to a period of work really done or be represented by a sum of money equal to the salary for such period of work. That is the ordinary case, but the Committee considered that it did not entirely cover the question. The whole prosperity of a newspaper, says this body, can be considered as due to the journalists working on the paper, and ordinary payment in lieu of notice does not represent that part of the prosperity of a paper due to a journalist who has given of his best to help it to its enviable position. Also, it considers that the position a journalist has relinquished on another paper to take up work for the paper dismissing him should be taken into account, as well as loss of prestige through dismissal. For these reasons, the Committee contended, that not only should the length of service be taken into consideration but the position of the journalist in his profession.

Another curious point considered was that which the Committee named Conscience Indemnity. Conscience indemnity, it was decided, should cover the risk run by the journalist who, owing to a change of policy of the newspaper he works for, or change in the proprietorship, might feel that he could no longer continue his collaboration without a diminution of his personal dignity, in his own eyes or in the eyes of others. The indemnity to be paid should be at a higher figure than mere payment in lieu of notice, it was decided. And the benefit of this conscience indemnity should not be restricted to political writers, but could be claimed by any reporter or collaborator who sincerely and reasonably judged that he could not remain with a paper.

The Committee was of the opinion that the rights and interests of journalists cannot be protected by the ordinary courts of law, and the proposal was made that special professional tribunals should be created for newspapermen, such tribunals to be formed after an understanding between directors and journalists. The tribunals should be instituted by a law and their decisions have the force of law, and be without appeal.

Such were the novel questions discussed by the Executive Committee at its first meeting. Europe is the home of the mushroom newspaper, often founded to further the fortunes of a political party and of no more use to its backers when the particular object which called it into being has been attained. These ephemeral organs often employ one or two writers of note, and, when the battle is won, dismiss them with short notice or bare payment in lieu of notice. Such cases as these were in the minds of the members of the Executive Committee, but the points raised interest newspapermen everywhere and the activities of the International Federation of Journalists, which met under the auspices of that child of the League of Nations, the International Institute of Intellectual Co-operation, will be worth following.

MERCHANTS PRAISE DAILY

Twelve Shawnee, Okla., merchants took space on a page of the Shawnee Morning News Feb. 6, to congratulate the paper on the installation of four new Linotype machines.

CURTIS DONATES $100,000

Cyrus H. K. Curtis this week contributed $100,000 to the "Greater Temple University" fund in Philadelphia.

PROMISES REAL NEWS

Publisher in Charge of Rotary Publicity Will Not Fool the Press

William C. Edwards, publisher of the Denton (Tex.) Record-Chronicle, has been named by Rotary International to direct the publicity for the Rotary convention to be held in Ostend, Belgium, June 5 to 10. He will act in conjunction with Vivian Carter of London, former editor of the Bystander, who will have charge of the work in Europe.

W. C. Edwards

Mr. Edwards, like most western editors, is a bitter foe of propaganda and "free advertising" and has promised the news associations and the newspapers that nothing would be released to the American press which did not, in his opinion at least, have news merit.

"The amount of canned material and selfish propaganda coming to an editor's desk is nauseating," said Mr. Edwards last week when in New York to visit the various news associations. "The quantity is so great and the quality so poor that it is a sore temptation to any editor to push the whole mess in the waste basket without taking the trouble to read it.

"We believe the activities of three thousand American business executives and their families on a European trip is news. We are not going to attempt to fool the press or offer the papers anything but the news of the gathering. We have nothing to sell; we have no 'cause' to further and we are not conducting a campaign to keep ourselves on the pay roll of anything. No member of the publicity committee receives a cent for his services."

HOWE MEETS MUSSOLINI

Arthur Howe, editor of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, was granted an audience with Premier Benito Mussolini in Rome, Feb. 7.

CELEBRATES 40TH YEAR

With the issue of Feb. 5, the New York Catholic News, weekly, celebrated the 40th anniversary of its founding. Henry Ridder is publisher.

BAHAMAS BECKON NOTED N. Y. WRITERS

Left to right—Grantland Rice, sports columnist, New York Herald Tribune, Mrs. Mary Wilson Preston, Mrs. Grantland Rice, Miss Florence Rice, Mrs. Ring Lardner, and Ring Lardner, photographed before sailing on the S. S. Munargo for the Bahamas.

"MY LIFE WITH A GENIUS"

the Real Story of

Charlie Chaplin

Written by

MILDRED HARRIS

His First Wife

Filled with intimate details, names, and hitherto unrevealed facts. . . . Describes Chaplin as lover, husband, father and artist. . . . Analyzes his very soul. . . . Tells why no woman can ever be happy as his wife. . . . An unparalleled human document concerning the best known and least known man in the world.

This series was planned for six articles but there was so much good material it burst its bonds. . . . It was finally crammed into eight articles of 1,000 words each. . . . This story is sweeping the country. . . . Wire for territory.

Famous Features Syndicate, Inc.

1819 Broadway,

New York, N. Y.

These People Are

"SPEAKING OF DIVORCE"

Judge Ben B. Lindsey
Fannie Hurst
Natacha Rambova
Lucille Pugh
Rev. John Roach Straton
Prof. Felix Adler
Justice Selah B. Strong
Cardinal Hayes
Dudley Field Malone
Michael J. Cruise
Father Francis P. Duffy
Rev. John Haynes Holmes
Max Steuer
Rev. Randolph Ray
(of "The Little Church Around the Corner")

"SPEAKING OF DIVORCE"

is a series of authorized interviews by Zoe Beckley, covering the whole field of

LOVE, MARRIAGE, AND DIVORCE

Startling Opinions! Controversial Opinions!

But every phase of opinion is represented. 15 stories, 1,200 words each.

A BIG Feature for EVERY READER

Wire for Territory

Famous Features Syndicate, Inc.

1819 Broadway,

New York, N. Y.

SHOP TALK AT THIRTY

By MARLEN PEW

WHER a man gets much or little n of a reporting job depends, in gree, upon the sheet he is work- nd the editor who sets the pace. worked for a few stale, un- ve, unfeeling blockheads, whose was missing all the natural bets d the game. but looking back- lize with the keenest gratitude major portion of my life has under true and inspiring editor- for newspapers that were made who read them. Therefore life happy, interesting, often ex- l sometimes even thrilling. I genial spirits that have given ing to do that was worth while least as vital as the job of a on a busy corner.

tor I am thinking of today did e in capital punishment, par- of women. Martha Place, of was the first woman to die ectric chair, and I recall how Man" gagged. Every time the ld bring in a story of the hang- me wretched female or some youth he would fume in his olumn and swear the day would n civilized man would end that This idealism undoubtedly led dertake the rescue of two ob- rderesses from their fate on ws within a period of three r years, and if the customers it the recital I shall rattle on of those experiences during e of the "Shop Talk" ship and ther for the trip that must be week.

* * *

F despatch in the New York one Sunday, told of prepara- ng in the County Jail at Read- woman named Kate Edwards, f the murder of her husband. ime I was making my own ts, as a special correspondent for the Scripps-McRae news- nd I hastened to Reading to y that, perchance, would make Man" sit up and take notice. e hotel I located the young o had unsuccessfully defended . It had been his first murder found him to be a brilliant on of a prominent family, but wretchedly reduced circum- He reminded me of Sir Gil- r's famous character Charlie e lawyer told me the woman's . With her husband she had cabin in the foothills of the ntains. There were several mong them a daughter of 13 s. Edwards was a drunken, t and for years had profited wife's prostitution. She had issive until, the lawyer said, had attempted to make the he slave of rough men em- ployed in a near-by quarry. In a quarrel Mrs. Edwards had seized an axe and had cloven the man's skull, attempting to cover the crime by dropping his body down a deserted well. His absence from usual haunts started an investigation and Kate Edwards, then soon to become a mother, was jailed at Reading. She was tried and convicted but execution was delayed by her maternity.

* * *

THE young lawyer told me this story in moving terms. He had sought every legal device in his experience to save the woman, holding, among other things, that the murder was done in self-defense and that the extenuating circumstances entitled Kate Edwards to the merciful consideration of the court. His pleas had been in vain, and so deep was his distress that he wept like a defeated boy. He told me how the woman had kept her baby in the cell and had tenderly nursed it. She and her husband were white, but the child was a mulatto. He showed me a picture taken of the woman when she had been arrested, and I have never seen a face more deeply creased with lines of hardship and despair.

"But see what a year in jail, with good food and rest, have done for her!" he exclaimed, as he drew forth another photograph, now of a self-respecting, middle-aged, motherly woman, not of high type, but perhaps better than average. It was an astonishing contrast. We discussed how we might move to get a pardon for her. I believed that Governor Pennypacker was a just man and would be moved to clemency if the facts were laid before him. The lawyer said the governor had shown no disposition to interfere.

"Then," I said, "we must bring public pressure to bear."

* * *

AFTER further investigation of the case, which corroborated the lawyer's statements, I began sending out of Reading a series of stories reciting Kate Edward's story. They were published, through syndication, in some 60 newspapers. I had intended to launch a petition enterprise, but so patent was the injustice that readers in a number of cities, particularly in Ohio, spontaneously began circulation of memorials addressed to the governor. Presently this idea became quite general in the middle west. Petitions were hung up in hundreds of retail stores and carried about by club women and other willing souls. I do not remember how many thousand signers were counted but I do recall that the petition from Cleveland was so large that it was sent to Harrisburg in a flour barrel.

* * *

ONE story in particular infuriated the readers of our papers and added many thousands of names to the petitions. The sheriff of the county was a good-natured, red-cheeked roly-poly who, prior to his election to the office, had been a retail butcher. One morning I found him engaged in carpentry in the jail yard. He had constructed a crude cross from two light planks. It was about seven feet in length and the cross-arm was about four feet in width. He had just started to cover this contraption with a coat of sky-blue paint. The sheriff volunteered that he was "vixing diss up to hang Kate mitt." He would put straps on the cross to hold the body, with arms outstretched and feet pinioned. But why was such an instrument necessary?

"Vell," said he, "diss Kate iss alvays vainting on me. Ven she vent to trial she topples over like she iss det. Ven she iss sentenced she vaints and doan vake up for a hour. Ven I go to get her to hang her Kate iss sure to go like she iss det. So, I strap Kate to diss board, put the rope around her neck, standt diss on der trap and cut the vaits and she svings." What could any reporter, in the circumstances, make out of that little flight of a good butcher's fancy!

* * *

GOV. PENNYPACKER was kept busy for days receiving delegations and petitions from distant parts but was slow to act. He did grant a stay of execution and in the nick of time. The lawyer and I induced some public spirited women in Reading to call a meeting to protest against the hanging, although there was heavy prejudice against Kate Edwards and her kind in that city. We addressed these women, seeking to bring to their conscience the extenuating circumstances. There was opposition, but finally it relented. The local judge, who had sentenced Kate, was obdurate, but a weird circumstances occurred, of which I regret I cannot tell because of confidences, and ultimately the judge withdrew his objection to any action the governor might take Kate's sentence was commuted to a term of years in the State Penitentiary. A good home was found for the baby, followed by a legal adoption.

(Next week read exclusively in this palladium of liberty, all about the thrilling rescue from the gaping noose of Mrs. Annie Valentino. Advt.)

5,000 PAGES OF FARM NEWS

Iowa newspapers, daily and weekly, printed 5,000 pages of agricultural news during the year 1926, or approximately 880,000 inches, according to the annual report of H. J. Metcalf, in charge of information in the agricultural extension service, Iowa State College.

in
Detroit—

Free Press circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

The "Free Press"
"Starts the day in Detroit"

With a stable, uninflated, liberal pursed circulation productive of greater advertising returns at lower cost.

Another Quality Feature
a dog-gone good DOG series for all who love
DOGS
YOUR DOG AND YOU
Helpful, practical hints to dog owners
Weekly—Illustrated
United Feature Syndicate
World Bldg., New York

The Meridian Star
Mississippi's Largest Daily
A. B. C. Circulation Exceeds 12,000. All in State of Mississippi.
The Meridian Market is not controlled by Cotton.
Meridian territory has over 6,000 workers on annual payroll of $20,000,000. large wholesale and jobbing business, livestock, dairying, poultry, fruit, forest products and diversified farming interests, in great volume—all independent of cotton.
Jas. H. Skewes, Editor & Publisher
THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY
National Advertising Representative
New York—Chicago—St. Louis—Detroit
Kansas City—Atlanta—Los Angeles
San Francisco

Angeles Evening Herald
Has a greater Circulation and carries more advertising than any other Daily in this entire territory
Largest in 41 States
Total Advertising 1926
17,505,474 Agate Lines
050
200,000)
Representatives
Chicago: John H. Lederer, 910 Hearst Bldg.
San Francisco: A. J. Norris Hill, 610 Hearst Bldg.

65,563 NET PAID CIRCULATION
Cover Half a State
EVENING COURIER MORNING POST
CAMDEN, N. J.
National Representatives
Story, Brooks & Finley.

MICHIGAN
is growing faster than any State in the Union.
Its increase in manufacturing products surpasses anything in the world.
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS
cover Michigan outside of Detroit —Eight principal cities with the only or leading Newspaper in its respective community.
The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News
National Advertising Representatives
I. A. KLEIN, 50 East 42nd St., New York City
J. E. LUTZ, Tower Building, Chicago, Ill.

IT WILL PAY YOU TO HIRE TRAINED MEN
Ambitious young men, schooled in every branch of the newspaper or magazine field, may be secured to fill that opening on your publication by simply making your wants known to the Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity.
No Charge To Employers
Avail yourself of this free service to replenish your staff whenever the occasion requires. Write or wire John G. Earhart, 836 Exchange Ave., Chicago, Ill., and he will put you in touch with the right man.

WEEKLY CLOSES TWO GAMBLING HOUSES

Miami Beach Beacon's Exposure of Conditions Brought Quick Results—Threatened Police With Grand Jury Action

Two large gambling houses were closed by city authorities in Miami Beach, Fla., this week as the result of an editorial expose by the Miami Beach Beacon, a community weekly of which Kent Watson is editor and publisher.

Charging that "Miami Beach today is infested with the most pernicious gang of crooked gamblers that ever before gathered in a city of this size," Watson, in a front page editorial, demanded the closing of the two gambling houses and asserted that "if the authorities assume a passive attitude toward our demands, we are going to use the Dade County Grand Jury as a weapon to remove such authorities from office—for malfeasance."

In naming the two gambling houses and giving their locations, Watson asserted that "stacked decks, crooked dice, known as 'shapes,' and roulette wheels that are manipulated as the croupier sees fit, combine to fleece those who enter these places."

"This challenge to the police department is made public," the editorial concluded, "so that there can be no mistake about it having been issued."

One of the gambling houses was closed on the day the editorial appeared, but the other remained open. This brought a second and more trenchant challenge from the editor of the Beacon.

This resort was closed on the day following publication of the second challenge. Neither of the places will be allowed to reopen, city officials advised.

BIRDSALL RESIGNS

Succeeded by Armstrong as St. Petersburg News M. E.

R. H. Armstrong, managing editor of St. Petersburg (Fla.) Daily News, tabloid, has been appointed editor to succeed Major Alfred Birdsall who recently resigned to become general manager for the Weekiwachee Water Company, a local concern.

Armstrong, formerly with Hearst's Atlanta Georgian, the Macon Telegraph and other southern papers, joined the staff of the News as city editor when it was started, March 6, 1925.

Major Birdsall had been with the News for more than a year, and was engaged as editor by Frank Pulver, president, while Birdsall was with the Miami Daily Tab, Vanderbilt paper.

MEMORIAL TO McCLATCHY

Sons Give Park to City in Honor of Forty-Niner

The memory of James McClatchy, founder of the Sacramento (Cal.) Bee, is to be preserved in the city which knew and loved him.

V. S. McClatchy, son of James McClatchy, and formerly part owner of the Bee with C. K. McClatchy, the present publisher, has announced the purchase of Joyland Park, a local recreational site, and its renaming as James McClatchy Park. The purchase was made for the sum of $90,000, and was turned over to the city as an outright gift by Mr. and Mrs. McClatchy.

DEL-MAR-VIA ELECTS

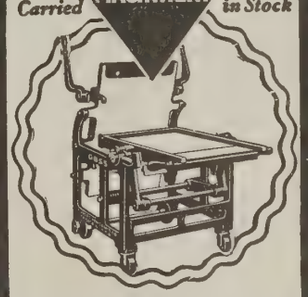
S. Charles Walls, of the Centerville (Md.) Observer, was elected president of the Del-Mar-Via Press Association at the annual meeting held in Wilmington, Del., recently. Other officers are: vice-president, Harry C. McSherry, Dover (Del.) Index; secretary-treasurer, William F. Metten, Wilmington Every Evening; executive committee, S. E. Shannahan, Easton (Md.) Star-Democrat; Fred C. Usilton, Kent News of Chestertown, Md. The Association is composed of editors and publishers on the Delaware-Maryland Peninsula.

Supplies and Equipment

Stereotype Room Efficiency

Means quick production of good plates and the elimination of recasts as far as possible.

Moulding Blankets



Hard and Soft Cork Blankets
Heavy Wool Moulders
Light Wool Moulders
Thin Wool Moulders
(All Sizes)

Space Packing Felt
4 Thicknesses—No. 25, No. 35, No. 40, No. 50

Easy to tear, quick to place

New England Newspaper Supply Company
Worcester, Mass., U. S. A.
Cable Address NENSCO
Worcester, Mass.

GOSS STEREOTYPING MACHINERY Carried in Stock

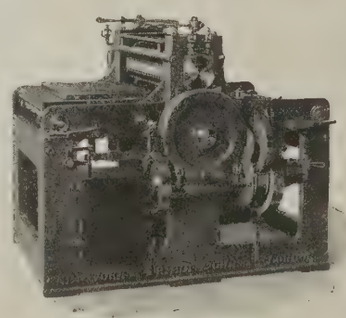
Fastest, most easily operated, most accurate and durable flat casting box you can buy. Perfectly balanced. New design lock-up bar allows for quick change when regulating thickness of casts. Positive quick lock-up at four points on box with one lever movement. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Rebuilt GOSS & HOE PRESS BARGAINS

ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO - NEW YORK - LONDON



Drive and Control for Newspaper Presses

A representative installation on a Scott Straight-unit press is that of a 100-h. p., a-c. equipment at the Newark, N. J., Ledger.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

HOE New-Design Heavy-Duty Matrix Roller

Built especially for heavy-duty work from the best grade of materials. Heavy supporting Frames are cast in one piece and secured by two substantial crossbar castings. Bed, with five second travel in one direction for wet mats and twenty second travel for dry mats, accommodates the largest single and double-page chases in ordinary use.

Designed Especially for Dry Mats

R. HOE & CO., INC. 504-520 Grand St., New York City
7 South Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL. — Pere Marquette Bldg., NEW ORLEANS, LA. — 7 Water Street, BOSTON, MASS.

Classified

EDITOR & PUBLISH

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)
1 Time — .40 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATION (Cash with Order)
1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

White space charge at same rate per l insertion as earned by frequency of in Minimum Contract space, three lines.
rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertion
Editor & Publisher reserves the right to fy, edit or reject any advertisement.
COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

Advertising Promotion—If you want business, communicate with the Inter Publications Service, Incorporated. 1841 way, New York City.

Build Linage, make more money. Use righted "Worthwhile" Feature advertisin or Special Edition and know the genuin faction that has brought repeat order hundreds of publishers year after yea sell the ads for you. Write F. G. Hog dicate, Indianapolis, Ind., or Kane, Pa.

Special Editions, Special Sections, Pages solicited and placed for reasona mission. Accounts guaranteed. William dan, 568 Pacific street, Brooklyn, New Y

Supplies

Shading Sheets for Art work and Ben fects. Bourges Service, Inc., 144 We St., New York.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNIT

Brokers

Industrial Monthly, established, pr growing. Price $100,000; $40,000 do ance in 6 years. Harris-Dibble Co., 345 son avenue, New York City.

Omar D. Gray, the Newspaper Broke geon, Missouri, writes:

"Here is my problem this week: I client who wants to own a prosperous Weekly in Missouri city of 80,000. He the man for the job, but he is short on This paper serves its church in 32 of counties in Missouri. Its present owne years of age and must get out of th He has managed this paper for 34 year paper is priced right and has the sup the Catholic bishop and the priests und The paper needs to be enlarged, a new stalled and the circulation and advertis ronage doubled. It can be easily d have thoroughly investigated this proje I had the time I could go out and sell worth of 7 per cent preferred stock on terprise. But this is out of my line. this ad to reach the eyes of Catholics w put $5,000 or more of their money i paper deal. The investment is a safe you are interested and want full par write me. If I do not succeed in rais money for my present client, then th will be for sale to others. I am going this property within 60 days to someone.

"I have a morning daily up in Orego made last year over $20,000. You this property with good building for $ with a reasonable payment down, balan terms.

"I have an afternoon paper in splen kansas city, no opposition, with wonderf ing I can sell for $100,000.

"I have a prosperous afternoon daily souri I can sell for $50,000. It takes cash to handle.

"I have seven clients who want a dailies within two hundred miles of and you boys who want to sell should l me.

"I have clients who ask me to buy papers for them in Massachusetts, Con Rhode Island and other states.

"I have a client who has $25,000 in c other good securities who wants an e county seat weekly, semi-weekly or da a gross income of $30,000 to $50,000. o urban city property priced right and good money, who prefers the West, go anywhere except the South.

"I have a fine opening for a real adv man who will help build a weekly into in the South. I have seen this plant is a good proposition. State how much you can invest in such an enterprise.

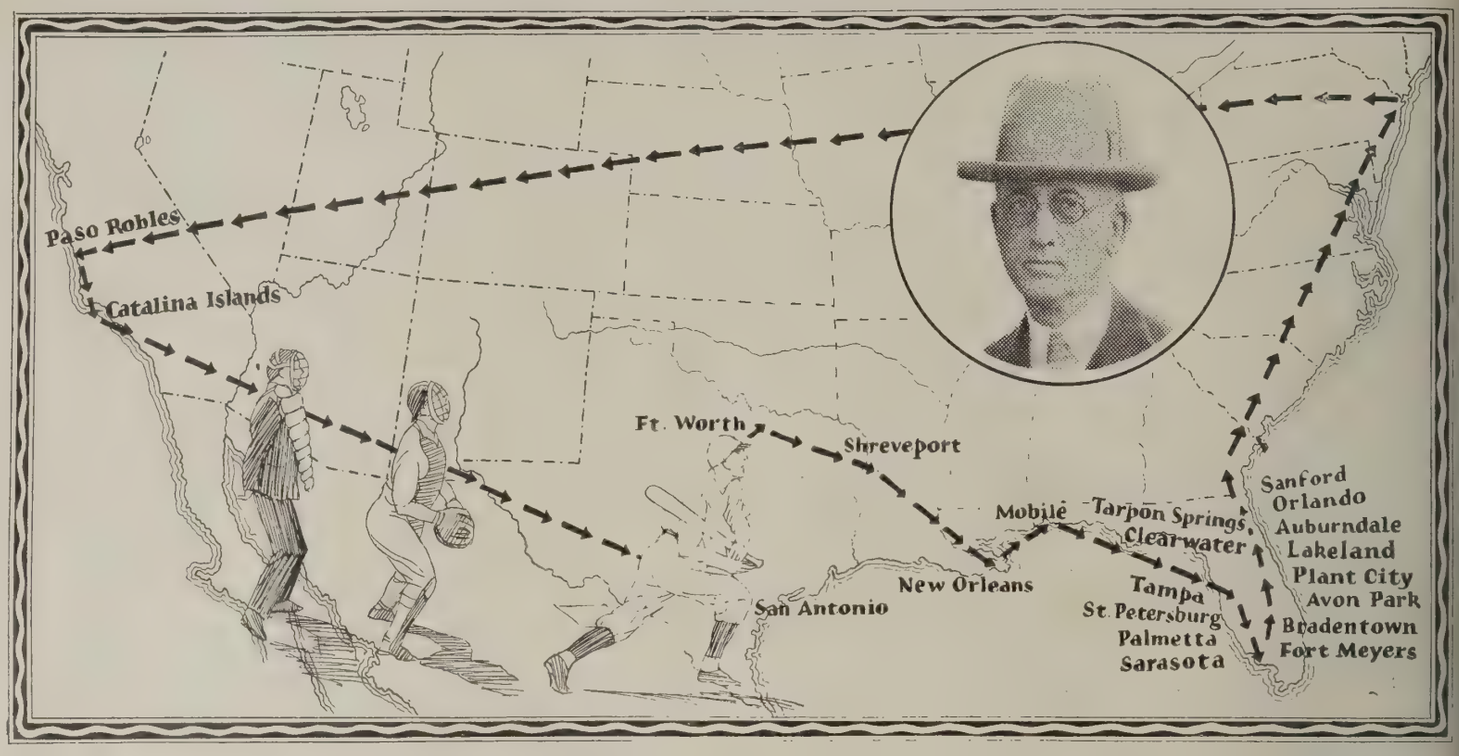
"I sold this week the other afternoon Jefferson City, Mo.—to the sa who bought from me the Tribune on 1927. The two deals aggregated, with ev ing, $81,500. If I keep my January sales several months this year I will pass my of last year. I am too busy to go to C this winter and visit the newspaper boys offices, but I hops to spend July and out there."

Important factors in the South's development

Labor — Power — Cotton —Climate — Natural Resources — Transportation — Financial strength — Diversification of industry and agriculture — these are the contributing factors to the South's prosperity.

No section of the Country is blessed with the natural riches of the South. No territory today offers such vast opportunities for expansion and development.

The South's buying power is daily increasing. The national advertiser should turn his attention to this outstanding market if he wants to share in the South's prosperity.



The newspapers listed below can pave the way.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
ALABAMA
*Birmingham Age-Herald (M)	34,994	.09	.09
*Birmingham Age-Herald (S)	50,699	.11	.11
*Mobile News-Item (E)	11,993	.05	.05
*Mobile Register (M)	20,427	.08	.08
*Mobile Register (S)	32,096	.10	.10
FLORIDA
††Daytona Beach News (ES)	5,560	.04	.04
*Florida Times-Union (M) 49,903 (S)	59,239	.12(S.15)	.12(S.15)
*Lakeland Ledger (E)	5,173	.03	.03
*Miami Herald (M)	48,108	.11	.11
*Miami Herald (S)	60,006	.12	.12
*Orlando Reporter-Star (E)	8,502	.06	.06
*Orlando Sentinel (M&S)	10,655	.06	.06
*Pensacola News and Journal (E&M)	9,490	.07	.07
†St. Augustine Record (E&S)	3,382	.04	.04
††St. Petersburg Independent (E)	9,708	.065	.065
*Tampa Times (E)	24,389	.08	.08
*Tampa Tribune (M) 38,316 (S)	58,468	.10(.14S)	.10(.14S)
*West Palm Beach Post (M)	11,339	.06	.06
GEORGIA
*Augusta Herald (E)	14,515	.05	.05
*Augusta Herald (S)	15,254	.05	.05
*Macon Telegraph (M)	25,903	.08	.08
*Macon Telegraph (S)	26,198	.08	.08
*Savannah Morning News (M), 21,220 (S)	22,161	.06(.07S)	.06(.07S)
KENTUCKY
The Lexington Leader (E)	19,262	.06	.06
The Lexington Leader (S)	19,266	.06	.06
††Paducah Sun (E)	9,287	.04	.04

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
NORTH CAROLINA
*Greensboro Daily News (M)	27,656	.08	.07
*Greensboro Daily News (S)	30,691	.09	.08
*Salisbury Post (E)	7,324	.04	.04
*Winston-Salem Sentinel (E)	17,774	.07	.07
SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia State (M)	22,627	.07	.07
Columbia State (S)	24,281	.07	.07
*Greenville News (M)	21,648	.075	.07
Spartanburg Journal (E)	6,112
Spartanburg Herald (M) 6,112 S	9,110	.05	.05
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga Times (M)	31,107	.10	.10
Chattanooga Times (S)	30,573	.10	.10
††Memphis Commercial Appeal (M)	101,603	.18	.18
††Memphis Commercial Appeal (S)	130,794	.21	.21
*Nashville Banner (E)	54,519	.11	.11
*Nashville Banner (S)	56,007	.12	.12
VIRGINIA
Danville Register and Bee (M&E)	14,336	.06	.06
Danville Bee and Register (E&S)	19,217	.07	.07
*Newport News Times-Herald (E)	7,968
*Newport News Daily Press (S&M)	5,413	.05	.05
Roanoke Times & World News (M&E)	25,246	.08	.08
Roanoke Times (S)	15,458	.07	.07
*Staunton News-Leader (M), Leader (E)	6,855	.035	.035

* A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
 A. B. C. Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.
†† Government Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.

Look Them Over with John B. Foster

JOHN B. FOSTER, Baseball writer for the Consolidated Press, starts on his swing around the training camps this month.

He will "look them over" as he has in past years and telegraph his daily dispatches exclusively to C. P. A. papers.

Last March Foster wrote from the Cardinals' camp:

"The St. Louis Cards have the best looking ball club I have ever seen at a training camp.

"As the teams stand today it is impossible to avoid ranking the St. Louis Cardinals along with Pittsburgh and New York."

And later he telegraphed the prediction that the New York Americans would come back and asserted that three of the player-managers were in their last season.

When the latest baseball scandal arose, he stated consistently that the charges of Risberg and Gandil would be dismissed.

He KNOWS.

John B. Foster's daily dispatches from the training camps and a round-up story at the end of the trip are delivered without extra charge to C.P.A. members.

This special training camp service is available to one paper in each of the few cities still open. For details, address

The Consolidated Press Association

Executive Offices, Evening Star Building, Washington, D. C.

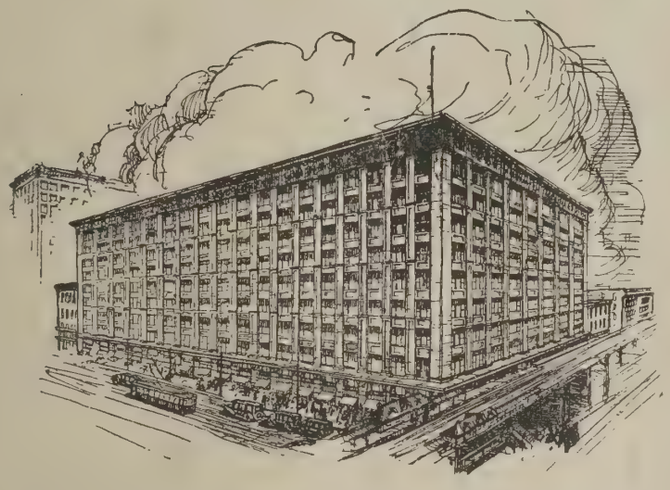
New York	Chicago	San Francisco	Paris
Eighth Floor	Third Floor	Third Floor	Fourth Floor
World Building	Daily News Building	Bulletin Building	19 Rue d'Antin

THIS ISSUE: ALL-NEWSPAPER CAMPAIGN FOR WESTINGHOUSE

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1927

MEMBER A.B.C.



SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

MEMBER A.B.P.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 41 NEW YORK, MARCH 5, 1927 By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign 10c Per Copy

The greatest volume of advertising ever placed by a Chicago store in ONE NEWSPAPER

IT is frequently said in merchandising circles that The Davis Company is the fastest growing store in Chicago.

In the year 1926 The Davis Company placed 1,254,028 agate lines of advertising in The Daily News—the greatest amount ever placed in one newspaper, in a like period, by any single Chicago advertiser. This amount was greater than the total advertising of The Davis Company in all other Chicago newspapers in the year 1926.

The accompanying letter from The Davis Company tells how they have made use of space in The Daily News to achieve a most remarkable success in Department store operation.

It offers guidance to all who are interested in promoting the rapid growth of business through efficient advertising in Chicago.

THE DAVIS COMPANY
CHICAGO

December 20, 1926.

Mr. L. M. Barton,
Advertising Manager, The Chicago Daily News,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Sir:

It is hardly necessary to say that we are exceedingly gratified by the growth of our business during the past year. This development has been marked not only by sales figures but by a great increase in the number of people coming into the store.

There are, of course, many factors in this success. We can not minimize the importance of our "Bottom Prices Guaranteed" policy. It is becoming more and more widely known that quality for quality we will not be undersold. We have made many improvements in our organization and facilities. We have added substantially to our store space and have greatly improved our service.

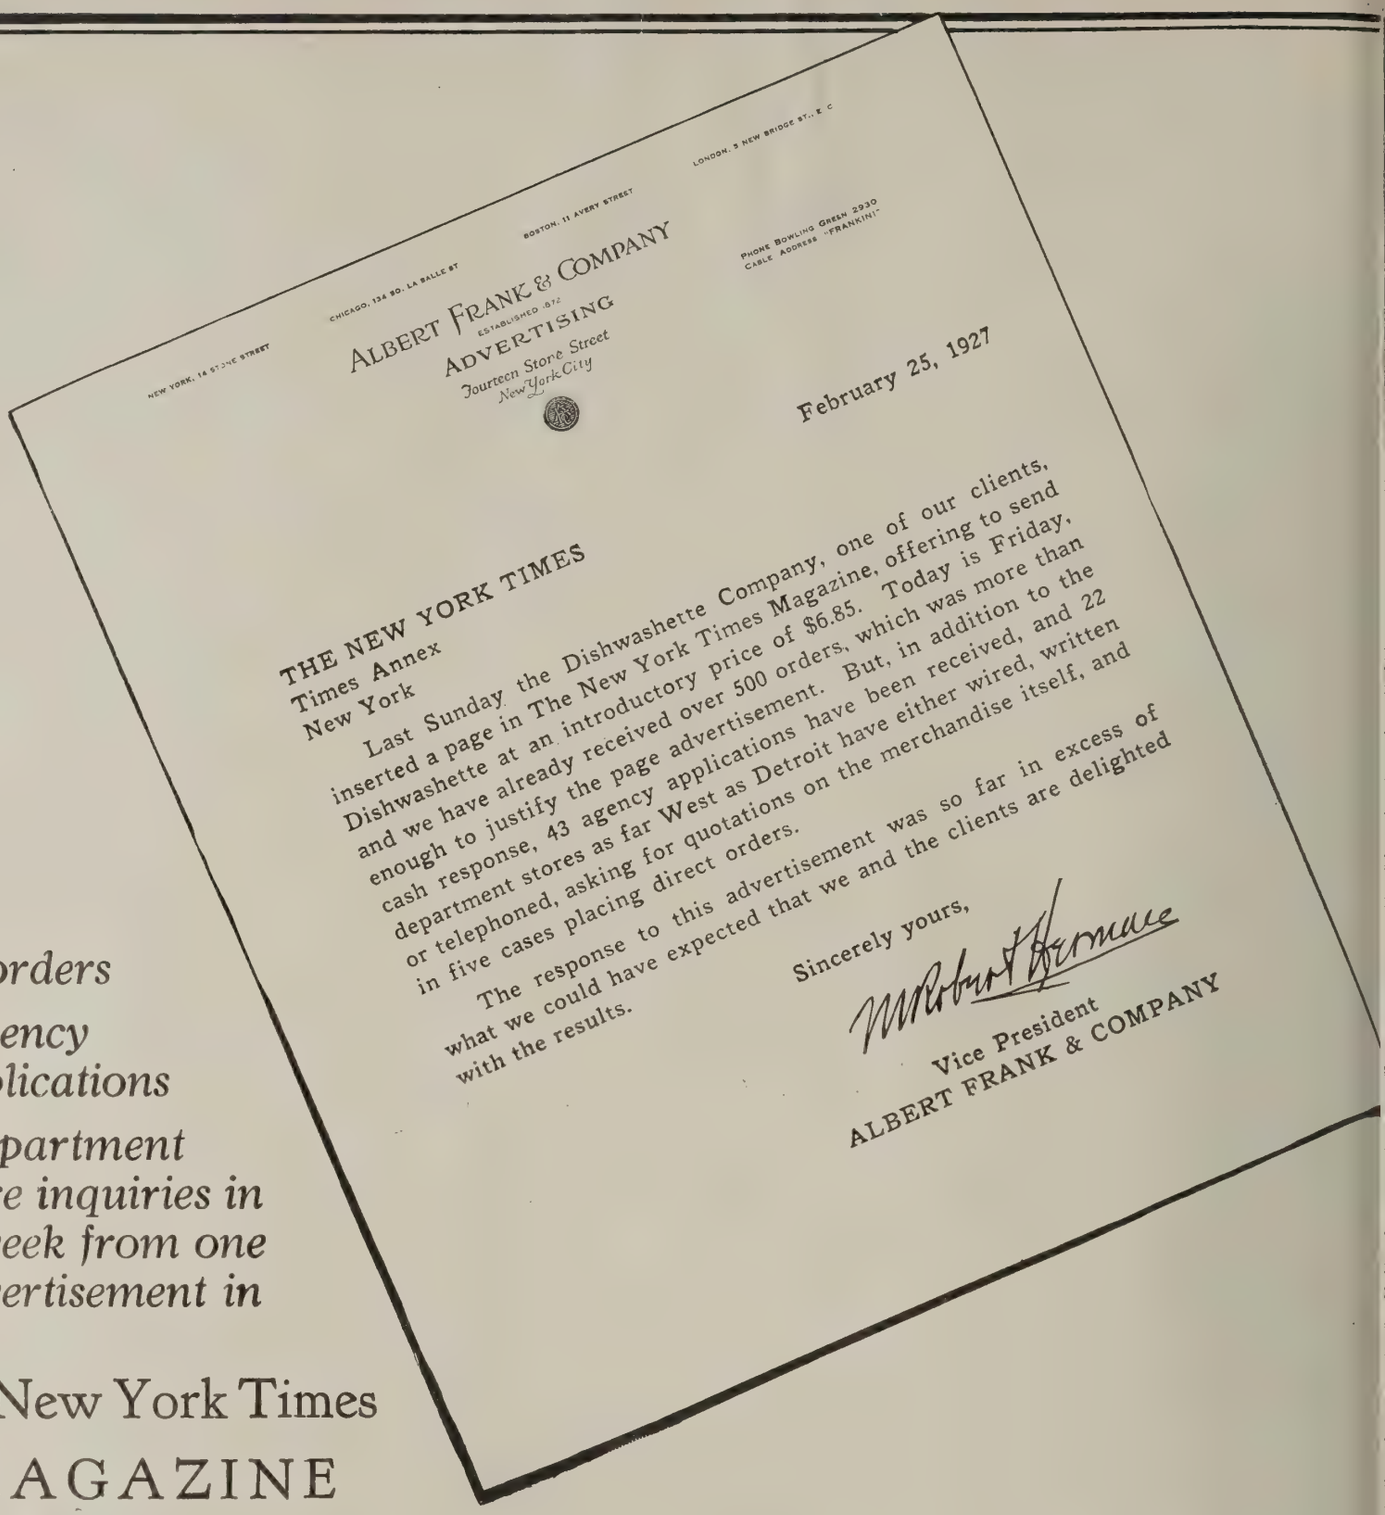
The Daily News has been the principal medium for our advertising. Our opinion of the efficiency of The Daily News as a business builder is best indicated by the amount of its space we have used.

Yours very truly,

Austin Davis

President.

In 1926 38.39% of all the department store lineage used in Chicago papers, daily and Sunday, appeared in The Daily News—more than twice the volume any other daily or Sunday paper carried.



THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

FIRST IN CHICAGO

Member of The 100,000 Group of American Cities

Advertising Representatives:	NEW YORK J. B. Woodward 110 E. 42d St.	CHICAGO Woodward & Kelly 360 N. Michigan Ave.	DETROIT Woodward & Kelly Fine Arts Building	SAN FRANCISCO C. Geo. Krogness 253 First National Bank Bldg.

Average Daily Net Paid Circulation for February, 1927—447,762

ALBERT FRANK & COMPANY
ESTABLISHED 1872
ADVERTISING
Fourteen Stone Street
New York City

NEW YORK, 14 STONE STREET · CHICAGO, 134 SO. LA SALLE ST · BOSTON, 11 AVERY STREET · LONDON, 3 NEW BRIDGE ST., E. C.
PHONE BOWLING GREEN 2930
CABLE ADDRESS "FRANKINT"

February 25, 1927

THE NEW YORK TIMES
Times Annex
New York

Last Sunday the Dishwashette Company, one of our clients, inserted a page in The New York Times Magazine, offering to send Dishwashette at an introductory price of $6.85. Today is Friday, and we have already received over 500 orders, which was more than enough to justify the page advertisement. But, in addition to the cash response, 43 agency applications have been received, and 22 department stores as far West as Detroit have either wired, written or telephoned, asking for quotations on the merchandise itself, and in five cases placing direct orders.

The response to this advertisement was so far in excess of what we could have expected that we and the clients are delighted with the results.

Sincerely yours,

Robert Furnace

Vice President
ALBERT FRANK & COMPANY

500 orders
43 agency applications
22 department store inquiries in one week from one advertisement in

The New York Times
MAGAZINE

THE LETTER above cites the experience of one advertiser in The New York Times Magazine, a part of the Sunday edition. Other advertisers obtain satisfactory, traceable returns.

The lowest rotogravure milline rate purchasable anywhere—for circulation of The New York Times high quality—for space in a medium strong in the confidence of readers.

Net paid sale over 650,000 copies

The New York Times

The Times has issued a 32-page booklet on rotogravure in connection with its exhibit of rotogravure printing now open to the public in The Times Annex, 229 West 43rd Street. A copy will be mailed to those interested on request.

Speaking of Specialists

¶ In this day and age when "specialization" has become almost a national religion—

¶ Consider the Sun Carrier!

¶ He's a specialist of specialists, a man who confines his activities to a single purpose—delivering the Sunpapers to the homes of Baltimore, Morning, Evening and Sunday.

¶ The Sun Carrier is a hustling business man—proprietor of a route which earns an annual income which is not subject to violent fluctuations. For in Baltimore the Sunpapers grow with the city. Sunpaper circulation increases as naturally, as steadily, as regularly as the population.

¶ A healthy growth, year after year! A growth which is materially aided by the efforts of these Sun Carriers—the men who do so much to make Sunpapers the home papers of Baltimore.

Average Net Paid Circulation for Month of February, 1927

Daily (M. & E.) . . 254,793
Sunday 198,485

A Gain of 6,542 Daily and 8,773 Sunday Over February, 1926

JOHN B. WOODWARD
Bowery Bank Bldg.,
110 E. 42d St., New York

GUY S. OSBORN
360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago

C. GEORGE KROGNESS
First National Bank Bldg.,
San Francisco

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

MORNING EVENING SUNDAY

Baltimoreans Don't Say "Newspaper"—They Say "SUNpaper"

HELP YOUR DEALERS

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

The Evening Bulletin

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

537,974 COPIES A DAY

The circulation of The Bulletin is the largest in Philadelphia

Member of The Associated Press

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St., at Broadway, New York. Telephones, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations. Member Associated Business Papers, Inc.

Vl. 59 NEW YORK, MARCH 5, 1927 No. 41

All-Newspaper 1927 Advertising Campaign Announced By Westinghouse

Magazine Expenditure Curtailed to Gain Flexibility and Adaptability of Dailies—Campaign Starting April 1 Will Run Into Several Millions—414 Papers in 313 Cities on Schedules for First Month

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

NE of the most significant advertising trends of the year will become lic property March 7 when the Westpuse Electric & Manufacturing Com will announce from its headquarters in Pittsburgh, Pa., its new "all-paper advertising plan," scheduled to to effect April 1.

tails of the plan were given to Editor & Publisher this week by J. C.

J. C. McQuiston

iston, manager of publicity, with nderstanding that readers of this be asked to refrain from reproduc em until the general release-date set xt Monday.

se details are to be published in the ghouse Advertiser, a new dealer which the company will start pub April 1.

lead story in the first number of dvertiser will tell of a wholesale of the Westinghouse advertising riation from the general magazines spapers. The amount of the ap tion is being kept in strict confi but its size may be guessed at he following available details:

newspaper advertising will be in a total of 414 newspapers in 313 at cities. The total newspaper cir n is listed as 19,375,000 average d daily.

campaign will start in April with full page advertisements in 59 ies. These full pages are described esenting the "back log of the cam the heavy smash effort, which, at intervals throughout the year, added weight and importance to ge number of other individual ad nents featuring specific products." average copy will occupy the en pth of either one or two news columns and in some cities will appear as often as three times a week

Only one month of the drive, April, has been mapped out in detail, it was explained to Editor & Publisher. It is the plan of those in charge to place the campaign in monthly sections.

The company expects that the sum which they intend to invest nationally in newspaper space, will also influence local dealers and jobbers to buy considerable tie-in advertising.

"You can safely say that the expenditure will run into several millions of dollars," Gerald MacSweeney, an executive of the company, told Editor & Publisher.

Explaining the fundamental change in his company's advertising policy, Mr. McQuiston will be quoted as saying:

"The decision is a pioneering step in the use of newspaper space by an electrical apparatus manufacturer of the importance of the Westinghouse Company since its products range from domestic electrical appliances to giant electric locomotives and huge generating station units.

"Newspapers seem to offer the only medium by which we can both 'nationalize' and 'localize' our various sales campaigns, thus permitting us to conduct a nation-wide campaign on products and at the same time vary our program to fit the needs of specific districts.

"For many years we have been users of a considerable amount of newspaper space for certain of our merchandising lines, and the results so obtained have prompted us to expand this advertising to cover all of the many lines in which the company is interested.

"Our decision to concentrate on newspaper space came after a careful study of all factors entering into the marketing, selling and advertising situation. One important item was flexibility whereby we could vary our plans to conform to various factors such as weather conditions and peculiarities in the economic situation with respect to any particular district of the country.

"Certain cities present a greater industrial market opportunity than others. Others are outstanding in the character and extent of their new building operations. In still others a greater market is offered for certain products in our merchandising lines than others. The flexibility of newspaper space will permit us to cover all such points with advertising of a specific character.

"Heretofore the company has expended its newspaper appropriation primarily to advertise electric products used in the home. The new plans, however, in addition to appliance advertising include advertising of street lighting equipment, industrial motors, transportation apparatus for street railways, and railroads, industrial and commercial motors, radio apparatus, farm lighting equipment, electric meters and other measuring devices, and institutional advertising concerned with public relations of utilities, generating stations, factories and personnel.

"The Westinghouse Company began advertising to the general public in 1886 and is one of the pioneer manufacturers to adopt and maintain advertising of this nature."

The Advertiser will describe the new policy as follows:

For about ten years now the advertising policy of the company has been to use the popular and general magazines such as Saturday Evening Post, Literary Digest, Ladies' Home Journal, Nation's Business, Forbes, etc. to create a sound background of Westinghouse prestige and reputation. This has been augmented by a limited amount of newspaper advertising, in co-operation with our dealers, on fans, irons, ranges and appliances. Of course, trade magazines such as Electrical World, Power, Coal Age, etc. have been used consistently for the specific advertising of our more technical products. This policy has had a great deal of merit and has resulted in building a splendid reputation.

For the coming year it has been decided to capitalize very definitely the prestige built up through this past advertising by devoting practically all the money heretofore used in the popular and general magazines to specific apparatus advertising in newspapers exclusively.

Our advertising is now brought very definitely into every District Office. Newspapers in every important or strategic city will now be used to help sell our product directly to customers. Heretofore the salesman did not fit intimately into the general advertising picture—he merely profited by the reputation obtained by this advertising. Now he becomes perhaps the most important factor in the whole scheme.

An extensive newspaper advertising campaign, on particular apparatus, brought directly to prospects, in that medium which they all read, their daily newspapers, supported by full-page general company advertisements, two, three or four times per year in these same newspapers—that in short is the 1927-28 plan for Westinghouse popular and general advertising. "A local campaign, fitted to each district office's peculiar problems, yet knit together between districts so that it also becomes national in character" describes the scope of this plan.

All district office representatives "in" on the plan to date have waxed enthusiastic about it. They have pronounced it the biggest "more sales through advertising" scheme in the history of the electrical industry.

Not only through newspapers, trade and technical papers, or direct mail—but through the whole three, co-ordinated and working together in one grand campaign, will customers be told the Westinghouse story, week by week.

In the first place, striking newspaper ads, stratagetically timed and placed, will bring Westinghouse and Westinghouse products to the attention of customers in 400 important buying centers in the country.

In the second place, the Electrical World, Industrial Engineer, Coal Age, and 107 other trade, technical, or semi-technical publications will sell specific Westinghouse apparatus to executives, purchasing agents, engineers, radio fans, and similar potential buyers in every nook and corner of the land.

In the third place, the United States mail will deliver hundreds of thousands of personal messages to key men in the central station industry, the transportation field, the steel industry—altogether to thirty different classes of customers. Westinghouse dealers and jobbers will mail thousands of broadsides on resale apparatus.

THE WESTINGHOUSE PLAN IN BRIEF

IN epitome, the all-newspaper plan of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, and its chief advantages, are told as follows by T. J. Pace, director of sales:

"Instead of spreading a rather thin blanket of advertising over the entire country, as we have been doing in the popular magazines, supplemented by relatively little newspaper advertising, the new plan provides for the abandoning, except for certain collegiate publications, of advertising in popular magazines, and the use instead of a number of the more prominent newspapers.

"For advertising purposes, whether of an institutional or a product character, the newspapers possess certain inherent advantages.

"FLEXIBILITY—as regards space requirements, repetition, variable and seasonal demand.

"EXPEDIENCY—as regards the day by day events of local or national interest, and "ADAPTABILITY—with respect to promptness combined with effectiveness.

"When properly used, these features should themselves loudly proclaim the advantages of the new plan and give our field forces a background of advertising support that has never been equaled in the electrical industry."

FILIBUSTER DIMS CHANCES OF POSTAL BILL CUTTING RATES TO 1921 SCHEDULE

House and Senate Conferees Agree and White House Will Sign Bill, It Is Believed, If It Survives Last-Minute Jam

By J. BART CAMPBELL

Washington Correspondent of EDITOR & PUBLISHER

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3.—The usual last-minute jam of legislation, complicated by the Reed-La Follette filibuster in the Senate will probably bring to nothing efforts of newspaper publishers to obtain relief in second-class postal rates. Early this week the bill, carrying the 1920 schedule desired by the publishers, emerged from the conference committee with the old 1921 rate schedule substituted for the 1920 charges.

This, if enacted, would provide a reduction from the existing rates and it was put forward as the utmost that the Administration would accept in the way of a reduction.

While the White House is not committed to any phase of the postal legislation, it is believed by the newspaper advocates here that President Coolidge will sign the bill if it is enacted before noon Friday—noon being whatever hour Congress finds it possible to set for adjournment.

This view is set forth by the postal committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, of which J. D. Barnum, Syracuse Post-Standard, is chairman. In a statement issued to members, March 2, the committee said:

"Your committee has made every effort to secure a reduction to the schedule of rates which was put into effect July 1, 1919, and called for a spread for advertising matter from 1½ cents in the first and second zones to 5½ cents in the 8th zone. These rates, your committee believes, would produce more revenue and profit for the Post Office Department than the higher rates which have been recommended by the conferees.

"It is the consensus of opinion around the Capitol that if the bill does pass it will be signed by the President, but, as a filibuster is being conducted in the Senate by Senators Reed of Pennsylvania and La Follette of Wisconsin, there is no certainty that the bill will be passed."

A schedule of the rates on advertising matter follows:

Zone	Desired 1920 Rates	Present Rates	Proposed Rates	Reduction
1	.01½	.02	.01¾	.00¼
2	.01½	.02	.01¾	.00¼
3	.02	.03	.02½	.00½
4	.03	.06	.04	.02
5	.03½	.06	.04¾	.01¼
6	.04	.06	.05½	.00½
7	.05	.09	.07	.02
8	.05½	.09	.07¾	.01¼

The 1921 rates were agreed upon by the conference committee for second class late Tuesday at the third meeting of the conferees since the bill was sent to them. The 1921 scale is about midway between the present rates and the 1920 rates which had the unanimous support of all second class users, and provides:

For first and second zones, 1¾ cents per pound; third zone, 2½ cents; fourth zone, 4 cents; fifth zone, 4¾ cents; sixth zone, 5½ cents; seventh zone, 7 cents; eighth zone, 7¾ cents.

Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, declined to sign the conference report, although his House Democratic colleagues, Representatives Bell, of Georgia, and Rouse, of Kentucky, approved the report. Senator McKellar would not agree to any less reduction than the 1920 rates which he sponsored in the Senate bill.

It is conceded here that the 1921 rates were the lowest that the Administration would approve. Postmaster General New and his assistant, Joseph Stewart, had frequent interviews with the members of the conference committee, and, according to reliable information, the Department declined to go further than the 1921 rates when it was found that some kind of reduction would be given parcel post users in the fourth class.

The Department contends the reductions in the conference report cause a net decrease in revenue of $7,475,000, and claims that the reduction from the present rates on second class would cause a net decrease of $4,150,000.

The following table shows the expected increases and decreases in revenue expected under the new bill:

Recapitulation

	Net increase in revenue	Net decrease in revenue
Post cards—reduction in rate from 2 cents to 1 cent each	.....	$1,200,000
Private reply cards—collect on delivery	$4,000,000	.....
Deficiency in postage—penalty for	75,000	.....
Second class—1921 rates	.....	4,150,000
Second class—transient matter	.....	100,000
Third class—reduction to 1¼ cents for each 2 ounces or fraction thereof	.....	2,500,000
Fourth class—reduction of service charge from 2 cents to 1 cent on each parcel in the 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th zones	.....	3,800,000
Special handling—exclusively	.....	600,000
Special delivery with special handling	800,000	.....
	$4,875,000	$12,350,000
		4,875,000
		$7,475,000

COL. KNOX HEARST ADVISER

Publisher, Manchester (N. H.) Union-Leader Named N. E. Regional Director

Although continuing as publisher of the Manchester (N. H.) Union and Leader, Col. Frank Knox, a member of the United States Board of Indian Commissioners since 1911, became on Tuesday the New England regional director for the Hearst newspapers.

Col. Knox, a native of Boston, has been long active in newspaper work in New England. He received his newspaper training on the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald and the Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) News and entered the newspaper field in Manchester in 1912. He is a member of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and an active worker in the New England Council. The William R. Hearst organization papers in New England are the Boston (Mass.) American evening and Boston Advertiser, morning and Sunday.

The position of regional director is principally advisory it was stated at New York headquarters of the Hearst newspapers.

ADAMS STILL FIGHTING

Vincennes, Ind., Editor Demands Action by Representatives

Corruption in Indiana politics was again attacked by Thomas H. Adams, editor of the Vincennes (Ind.) Commercial in a front page editorial in the Commercial Feb. 26, in which he demanded action by the house of representatives on a petition to impeach Judge James Collins, Marion county superior court. Following appearance of the editorial Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom of Indiana demanded complete and ample retraction of an alleged "false and defamatory reference to him in the editorial."

Corruption charges made by Adams last fall caused an 11 weeks' grand jury investigation.

CLEVELAND TIMES QUITS

Circulation and Goodwill Taken Over by Plain Dealer

CLEVELAND, O., March 3.—The Cleveland Times suspended publication March 3. Samuel Scovill, president of the Commercial Publishing Company, in a "personal word," explained why the Times quit, after its struggle to establish a second morning daily in the city.

Earle E. Martin, editor and publisher who took over the task eight months ago, resigning as editor of the Cleveland Press to accept the undertaking, made no public statement of his intentions.

Mr. Scovill's statement to the public was supplemented by another, saying:

"The good will and circulation lists of the Times have been taken over by the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The plant and physical assets of the Times will be disposed of by the Times as opportunity offers. The Plain Dealer will undertake to continue the service of a morning newspaper to all of the Times patrons who desire it."

The Plain Dealer carried both of Mr. Scovill's signed statements on its front page, making no further comment on the transaction.

The first issue of the Times was published March 2, 1922, with O. K. Shimansky as president and editor-in-chief, and Mr. Scovill as treasurer.

LEAVING DAILY FIELD FOR SUMMER SEASON

Miami Tribune Will Resume Daily Publication Next Winter—Tom Arnold Will Edit Weekly Edition

(By telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

MIAMI, Fla., March 1.—In its issue of Monday, Feb. 28, the Miami Tribune announced discontinuance of its daily edition during the summer season and that instead it would concentrate on "a big weekly newspaper."

The Miami Tribune was launched four years ago, March 11, by Frank P. Fildes, the present publisher. It first appeared at Miami Beach, but shortly afterward moved over into Miami proper where it since has been published, installing modern presses and other modern equipment.

Several months ago it went from an eight columns 12 em to tabloid size. Mr. Fildes recently sold his Palm Beach Times property at a reputed sum of $350,000. Discontinuance of the daily edition leaves the Miami daily field to the Miami Morning Herald, Frank B. Shutts, publisher, and the Miami Daily News, James M. Cox, publisher.

Tom Arnold, who has been managing editor of the Daily Tribune, will continue as editor-in-chief of the weekly edition. He will have two or three assistants but other members of the staff are finding new places.

FLORIDA MERGER

Daytona Beach News and Journal Combined—Fitzgerald Publisher

The Daytona Beach (Fla.) Morning Journal and the Daytona Beach Evening News have been merged into a single daily edition and are now being printed under the name of the Daytona Beach News-Journal with an afternoon and Sunday edition.

The Journal Printing Company and the Gazette News Company were consolidated Dec. 1, the new organization being known as the News Journal Company. Both the morning and evening editions were published until Feb 12, when the single edition plan was announced.

Eugene C. Pulliam is editor, Raymond A. Thomas, general manager, and William D. Murray, managing editor.

T. E. Fitzgerald, former owner of the Daytona Beach News, is publisher of the News-Journal but is not actively connected with the management under the new organization.

OLD LOUISVILLE DAI LEAVES A. M. FIEL

Herald-Post Will Continue as Eve and Sunday Paper with Bull-D Predate—Was 58 Years of Age

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 3.—For first time since December, 1869, L ville is to be served by one mo newspaper—the Courier-Journal. nouncement was made by the Lou Herald-Post today that it will conf efforts to the afternoon and Sunday and continue the publication of its dated bull dog street and mail ed Immediate betterments of both the noon and Sunday issues are contemp Herald-Post officials said.

James B. Brown, Louisville banke capitalist, purchased the morning e of the Herald-Post, then the Lou Herald, from John C. Shaffer of Ch in January, 1924. The reported sideration was $750,000 for the dail Sunday edition.

The morning edition of the H Post had its inception with the orga tion of the Louisville Daily Comm a Republican newspaper, in 1869. A its founders was John M. Harlan, later became a member of the U States Supreme Court. Colonel Kelly was its first editor. The pape sold at a receivership sale in 187 purchased by Gen. Eli H. Murray. Kelly remained as editor and contin that capacity under the later owners Bidderman DuPont, father of Sena Coleman DuPont of Delaware.

The paper next passed to Geor Newman and the name was chang the Louisville Herald. Young Allis came editor and served the paper 1905.

In 1911 the property was taken o Mr. Shaffer, who assumed all oblig and paid $20,000 cash consideratio January, 1924, the property was chased by Mr. Brown and the foll month consolidated with the Lou Evening Post. The papers were porated with a capital of $1,400,000

Late in 1925 the morning pape changed to tabloid size, which was doned after seven months' try-ou the morning edition of the Herald again appeared as a standard size

Priority, it was said, would det the status of employes in all depart in the reorganization now under w

20 STUDENTS GRADUATE

Walker, Gannett, Ridder Speak Empire School Commenceme

Twenty students, 19 young me one young woman, were graduate the Empire State School of Pr Ithaca, N. Y., at the ninth semi-commencement Feb. 25. It was a second commencement of the new of Engraving, operated in conj with the printing school.

The principal address was delive Fred A. Walker, chairman of the tive board of the New York Si president of the Publishers Asso of New York City. Ross W. K director of the school, awarded the cates of graduation. John W. chairman of the committee of ed of the New York State Publishers ciation and general manager of the Journal News presided.

WINGER NAMED PRESIDE

Succeeds Late Gustave H. Bu Alco-Gravure, Inc., Chief

Albert E. Winger has been president of Alco-Gravure, Inc., Board of Directors to fill the v created by the death of Gusta Buek. Raymond P. Gilleaudeau elected a vice-president.

HOUSE VOTES TO IMPEACH JUDGE DEARTH

ıdiana Legislators Take Speedy Action Against Editor Dale's Foe Following Arrests of Newsboys—Dale Arrested in Ohio and Held for Extradition

By RICHARD P. OVERMYER

(By telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

DIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 2—The ndiana House of Representatives y passed a resolution to impeach ge Clarence W. Dearth of the Dela- e circuit court by a vote of 93 to 1 alleged misuse of his judicial author- in connection with the feud that has ted between Judge Dearth and George Dale, editor of the Munice Post-Demo- he action came after a number of erences during the day by the Judici- A committee, which has had under ideration since last Friday the peti- of Muncie citizens, presented by resentative John W. Scott of Gary, the jurist be impeached.

n open hearing on the extradition of , arrested at Ft. Recovery, O., Tues- on a charge of criminal libel on a rant from the Delaware circuit court, be asked of governor Vic Donahey hio, Thomas V. Miller, Dale's attor- has said. Requisition papers for 's return were to be asked of Gover- Ed. Jackson of Indiana by Sheriff ry McAuley of Delaware county, these papers will be taken to Colum- O., for Gov. Donahey's approval. ale was released today after giving l last night of $1,000. He returned t. Recovery, nine miles from the na Line, where he has established es and directs publication of his paper luncie.

mediately on adoption of the report ard of six managers was named by House to prepare the articles of achment to be filed with the state te, Thursday.

presenting the resolution for im- hment, Representative J. Glenn ris, Chairman of Judiciary A com- e, reversed his previous decision that House had no authority to impeach dge or a prosecutor. Harris had ld Arthur L. Gilliom, attorney gen- for an opinion on the subject. The ney general held that the constitu- did not give the House such author- s it specifically provides for removal dges only by the supreme court.

harges against Judge Dearth grew of his action in causing the arrest, 19, of boys selling Dale's newspaper having them brought into circuit t and their papers confiscated. The e declared the newspaper contained rticle of a libelous nature about him John Hampton, mayor of Muncie. ious to that day Judge Dearth had Dale for contempt and had filed ges of criminal libel. Dale was in hington, D. C., at the time of the of libel charges by Judge Dearth.

spite the attorney general's opinion, the House had no authority to bring les of impeachment against a circuit judge under the present constitu- the committee after a series of meet- brought out a unanimous report passage of a resolution impeaching e Dearth. The committee's action aken under the Acts of 1897 regard- mpeachment, this act has never been for impeachment proceedings and, quently, has never been passed upon he state supreme court.

der the resolution six legislators, esentatives Harris, William H. ison of Indianapolis, Lawrence E. on of Huntington, Republicans, and L. McKesson of Plymouth, David yers of Vincennes and Milton J. asser of Laporte, Democrats, were d as managers for the prosecution e impeachment charges. All are rs. Representative Sallwasser is nly one of the six not a member diciary A committee.

ge Dearth will continue to preside the Delaware circuit court until of his impeachment is served.

will resume court tomorrow morn- Judge Dearth said this evening. her than that I will say nothing at ime."

Wilbur Ryman and Van L. Ogle, attorneys representing Dearth said they would have a statement in behalf of their client later on. In the meantime, they said they expect to have a conference with Judge Dearth.

It became known this evening that Judge Dearth appeared before a meeting of representative members of the Muncie Bar Association this afternoon. Details of the meeting, however, were not forthcoming. The meeting was understood to have been called for the purpose of inquiring into certain testimony that was offered at the hearing conducted by the Judiciary A committee of the House last Monday night.

Although the general public would not be surprised on receipt of any news concerning the Dearth case which was inspired by the controversy between the judge and George R. Dale, word that the legislature had voted against the jurist almost unanimously was the occasion of great surprise.

The Indiana Press Probe Committee through Chairman Thomas H. Adams, publisher of the Vincennes Commercial, issued the following statement:

"For months the Press Probe Committee has battled for truth and clean government. Last June Chairman Adams of the Probe Commitee exposed the Dale case at Muncie, in which Mr. Dale was persecuted because he dared to expose a corrupt judiciary. Mr. Adams in the Probe Committee's demand for clean government, exposed the invariable influence that seemed to try to dominate some of the judiciary in Indiana.

"The Press Probe Committee created a furore last fall when Stephenson's letters were printed and a constant demand since on official life has been made to clarify the atmosphere in Hamilton, Delaware, Vanderburg, Marion counties, and the legislature, when it assembled, was strongly urged to order a sweeping investigation from beginning to end. This body was cold and unresponsive and mute, and would not heed the demand to commandeer the evidence that has accumulated before the grand jury of Marion county. An investigation was demanded of Judge Clarence Dearth's court at Muncie. The final break came when Judge Dearth arrested thirty-eight newsboys and practically confiscated George Dale's papers. The people of Munice arose in their wrath and petitioned the legislature to impeach Judge Dearth. The hearing was held by Judiciary A committee, the court which recommended impeachment, and when put to a vote, the House voted 93 to 1.

"This action is the first real forceful, manly movement for the people that has been made. There are many other serious offenses in Indiana government just as bad as this."

Suit for $1,000 damages was filed Saturday against Ira Pittenger, a Munice patrolman and cousin of Representative Lemuel A. Pittenger, Republican floor leader of the Indiana House, by John Ranes Schweitzer, 15 years old, a newsboy, who alleges that the policeman slapped him after taking him into custory when Judge Dearth ordered all persons selling Dale's newspaper brought into court.

Both of Judge Dearth's attorneys were outspoken in their denunciations of the alleged characters of persons who signed the petitions that demand the impeachment of Judge Dearth.

Dale's paper, last Saturday was filled with letters, the signers including members of the Muncie Ministerial Association. They pleaded for more civic boosters and fewer agitators, after pointing out how the city's good name has suffered principally through misinformation. Dale's leading editorial pleaded his cause, after attacking Judge Dearth and the Muncie police department for suppressing his newspaper, and it ends with a plea to "those merchants who have not advertised in this paper." Other editorials were reprints of editorial opinions expressed by state papers.

Citizens of Muncie, aroused at Dearth's act in detaining the newsboys, have arranged bonds in unlimited amounts for Dale on his return.

The change in sentiment is recorded in the fact that whereas in the past Dale has been left to his own devices and has received no support of money from local citizens in his various fights, voluntary offers in unlimited amounts have now been made.

That fact is interpreted as evidence that Muncie has entered into a fight for free speech and intends to test the power of a judge to suppress any newspaper by forcible use of power and edicts to policemen.

The parents of the thirty-eight newsboys whose papers were confiscated and who were listed with the sheriff with all the semblance of being held as criminals, although no formal charge of any sort was made against them, are planning to enter the matter.

Selection of jury panels from the telephone directory instead of the legally prescribed jury box and having as high as twelve women with many of them members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union on the jury to try liquor cases were some of the practices in the court of Judge Dearth cited Monday night by public officials and attorneys of Muncie testifying before the House Judiciary A committee on the petition for impeachment.

In addition it was charged that Jake Cavanaugh, one of the jury commissioners, was not a property holder at the time of his appointment but soon after was deeded a cheap piece of property by Judge Dearth. Another instance cited was that on one occasion the judge called the sheriff to the bench and told him to summon two men he named for jury service. That only friends of the judge or persons favorable to the reigning faction of Republicans in Delaware county were called for jury service was another charge.

CARTOONISTS HONOR BENJAMIN FRANKLIN IN WREATH LAYING CEREMONY

Cartoonists of America, newly formed organization, paid tribute to Benjamin Franklin, Wednesday, when representatives of the group laid a wreath at the foot of his statue on Park Row, New York. The event preceded the dinner to be held March 18 at the Hotel Astor, honoring three deans of their craft, Charles Dana Gibson, W. A. Rogers, and Frederick Burr Opper. Photo shows group at foot of Franklin's statue after wreath laying. Left to right, they are: Eugene Bisbee, Harry Hershfield, Milt Gross, Edwin Marcus, Quinn Hall, Tom Powers, Herbert Johnson, who laid wreath; Nell Brinkley, Fay King, Maurice Ketten, Rube Goldberg, Windsor McCay, Robert McCay and John C. Oswald, of the Benjamin Franklin Society, who spoke.

MARC ROSE NEW EXECUTIVE MANAGER OF INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

I. N. S. Executive Personnel Remains Unchanged but Duties Are Redistributed—Rose Former Managing Editor N. Y. Evening Sun and Buffalo News

MARC A. ROSE, former managing editor of the Buffalo Evening News who resigned last week, has been named executive manager of International News Service, M. Koenigsberg, president and general manager of the service announced this week.

Except for the addition of Mr. Rose the executive personnel of the New York office remains unchanged with a redistribution of duties. The executives are:

Marc A. Rose

M. Koenigsberg, president and general manager; Marc A. Rose, executive manager; George G. Shor, business manager; Barry Faris, news manager; W. B. Goode, traffic manager.

The appointment of Mr. Rose and the specializing of executive work was necessitated by the increasing expansion of International News, Mr. Koenigsberg stated.

"Less than six months ago we created three new executive positions as an aid to the general management," he said. "We divided the domestic service into three major zones, each zone under the direction of a regional director.

"The regional directors and their fields are: Capt. Frank E. Mason, director of the Eastern Division, New York; Hector H. Elwell, director, Central Division, Chicago; and William Parker, director, Western Division, Los Angeles.

"Mr. Rose is one of the best-known newspaper executives in the country. His thorough editorial and executive ability was developed during the regime of the late E. P. Mitchell, the New York Sun's famous editor. Mr. Rose filled in succession a number of executive positions and also wrote editorials for Mr. Mitchell's famous page. Eventually he was appointed managing editor of the Evening Sun, a post he filled for about a year, after the resignation of George Smith. He became managing editor for the Buffalo Evening News, E. H. Butler, publisher, in June, 1920.

"Mr. Rose has the news sense to a degree which invariably excites the admiration of every man who works with him. In the phrase of our craft, he can 'see tomorrow's paper' with a clarity which unceasingly claims the admiration of his fellow craftsmen. He has a special flair for seeing and getting all angles of the story.

"I am confident that in the appointment of Mr. Rose as executive manager of the news service, our clients will have as their representative in the news marts of the world a man tried and proven in the ethics and practice of his profession."

Marc Rose got his first newspaper job at the age of twelve. The job was to deliver the Chicago Daily News to the homes of about 100 residents of Waukegan, Ill. He was born in that town, April 3, 1888.

At the age of 13, he was writing high school notes for the local daily and spending all his spare time around its office. He corresponded for Chicago papers and his chance came, when, at the age of fifteen, the Chicago Tribune carried a page one full column report of his story on a sensational sermon of Dowie, the bewhiskered old prophet of Zion.

After two years on the home town papers and two years on the Joliet (Ill.) Herald where for a time he was city editor, Mr. Rose became financial editor of the Atlanta Georgian by way of the Memphis News-Scimitar and the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

In January, 1915, Mr. Rose became make-up man on the Sunday staff of the New York Press. When Mr. Munsey merged the New York Sun and the Press and later the Sun and the Herald, Rose went to the Sun and worked through various desk jobs to night city editor and "swing man."

He acted as managing editor for about a year after the resignation of George Smith, and he resigned to go to Buffalo.

"I break the relation with the Buffalo News with sincere regret, and only because a wider opportunity offers," Mr. Rose stated.

Mr. Rose has been an occasional writer of fiction and of magazine articles. He has been an instructor in the University of Buffalo for the past four years. He is a member of the Buffalo Club and many other clubs and civic organizations.

He has been active in the American Society of Newspaper Editors since its organization, and for the past year has been chairman of the membership committee.

ASSOCIATES HONOR ROSE

A. H. Kirchhofer succeeded Marc A. Rose as managing editor of the Buffalo Evening News at the beginning of this week. Members of the News staff gave a farewell dinner to Mr. Rose in the Elks club of Buffalo, with 100 in attendance. Mr. Rose was given a traveling bag. Later E. H. Butler entertained department heads of the News at a similar event in his home.

EUGENE (ORE.) GUARD SOLD

Keltys Sell Evening Daily to Alton F. Baker—Price Not Disclosed

(By telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

EUGENE, Ore., March 3.—Alton F. Baker, of Cleveland, son of Elbert H. Baker, publisher of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, has bought the Eugene (Ore.) Guard, an evening paper, from Paul R. Kelty and his son, Eugene Kelty. The Kelty bought the Guard in July, 1924.

The new owner of the Guard, who is a brother of Frank S. Baker, publisher of the Tacoma (Wash.) News Tribune, has taken possession of the property. Paul R. Kelty has been invited to remain permanently as its editor, but has not announced his plans further than that he and his son will remain with the paper temporarily. Price was not disclosed.

HOLDS "SCHOOL" FOR STAFF

The Fort Dodge (Ia.) Messenger, with the co-operation of the Webster county farm bureau recently held a one-day "school" for its rural correspondents. More than 40 attended. Prof. H. J. Metcalf, who conducts a news writing course for the extension department of Iowa State College, was the chief speaker.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

March 10-11—Texas Women's Press Assn., annual meeting, Dallas, Tex.
March 11-12—Interscholastic Press Assn., third annual meeting, Columbia University, New York.
March 11-12—Ozark Press Assn., meeting, Joplin, Mo.
March 11—New York Newspaper Women's Club, annual ball, Ritz Carlton Hotel, New York.
March 11-12—Advertising Club Presidents, conference, Detroit, Mich.
March 14-19—Associated Press, executive committee meeting, New York.
March 14-19—Farm Markets Week.
March 15—League of Advertising Women, annual dinner and ball, Hotel Astor, New York.
March 18—Cartoonists of America, dinner, Hotel Astor, New York.
March 23-24—International Advertising Assn., Sixth District annual convention, Milwaukee, Wis.

TO ARRANGE DETAILS OF DENVER MEET

Conference of Club Presidents Will Discuss Program at Detroit Meet March 11-12 — Woodbridge, Gibbs, Hodges Speakers

Plans for the Denver convention of the International Advertising Association will be discussed at the semi-annual conference of club presidents and district chairman to be held at Detroit, Mich., March 11 and 12.

E. D. Gibbs, chairman of the general program committee, will speak on "What the Convention Program Will Accomplish for Advertising"; Ralph H. Faxon, president of the Advertising Club of Denver on "How Denver Will Entertain the Convention"; and Gilbert T. Hodges, of the New York Sun and general chairman of the On-to-Denver Committee, on "How We Are Promoting Attendance for the Denver Convention."

Charles W. Brooke, president of the Adcraft Club of Detroit and president of the board of club presidents, will preside at the sessions.

C. K. Woodbridge, I. A. A. president will be a speaker. Others on the program will include: W. Frank McClure, chairman of the advertising commission; Lee H. Bristol, president, Window Display Advertising Association; Frederick M. Feiker, managing director, Associated Business Papers, Inc., New York; and Mrs. Minna Hall Carothers, president of the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs.

BUYS EVANSTON PAPER

A. D. Albert of Jacksonville, Fla., New Owner of News-Index

Allen D. Albert, president of the Jacksonville, Fla., Gas Company, has announced the purchase of the Bowman Publishing Company, publishers of the Evanston (Ill.) News-Index, daily afternoon newspaper of which he becomes editor and publisher.

Joseph C. Northrup, for more than 20 years on Chicago and Pacific Coast newspapers, has been made news editor.

SOUTHERN EDITOR ATTACKED

H. M. Flanders, editor of the Soperton (Ga.) News, was attacked the night of Feb. 25 by three men while on his way from Swainsboro to Soperton and beaten into insensibility because of an editorial in his paper attacking bootleggers. He is under the care of physicians who say he will recover. The men wore small white sacks over their heads, Mr. Flanders reported.

BUSINESS OFFICE SH IN SOUTHERN GRO

Hamilton, Henderson and Ba Take New Posts with Scrip Howard Dailies—Burdett Joins Houston Press

Several changes in the business personnel of the Southwestern gro Scripps-Howard Newspapers wer nounced this week by Ward C. Mayborn, general business manager of the group.

Peter Hamil

Peter Hamilton, business manager of the Fort Worth (Tex.) Press, has been appointed business manager of the Oklahoma City (Okla.) News, succeeding Leslie L. Rood, resigned. Succeeding Hamilton as business ma in Fort Worth is Ralph Henderso vertising manager of the Houston Jeff Ba Henderson' sistant, has promoted t vertising ger of the ton daily.

Ralph Henderson

A. S. Bu formerly wi Wilmington C.) Mor Star, has added to Houston P staff as loc eign manag Mr. Ha first became ciated with the Fort Worth Press i as advertising manager, after holdi same position on the Houston Pres was promoted to business manager during the same year.

Jeff Barnett

Henderson has been with the Scripps - Howard concern for about two and a half years, and succeeded A. G. Normet.

He started his newspaper career on the Joplin (Mo.) News-Herald and came to Houston from the Wichita (Kan.) Beacon.

Henderson is to become a stockh in the Fort Worth Press, of which rison E. Toomer is editor.

Barnette is an experienced adver man, who has worked with the Ho Chronicle and with the Southern I prises, Inc.

TO DISCUSS A. N. P. A. PROG

A tentative program for the convention of the American News Publishers Association will be cons at the next meeting of the boa directors scheduled to be held in York March 14. The convention w held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel 26-27. The annual golf tournamen probably be held at the Westch Biltmore Country Club, Rye, N.

LUNCHEON FOR WOODBRID

A luncheon will be held March the Advertising Club of New Yo C. K. Woodbridge, president of th ternational Advertising Association was last week appointed an officer Electric Refrigerating Corporation troit, and is leaving New York to assume his new duties. H formerly president of the Dicta Sales Corporation.

N. Y. NEWS BREAKS RECORDS AT NEW PLANT

Issues 72-Page Edition from $2,250,000 Printing Establishment in Brooklyn on March 4—Lay-out of Building and Mechanical Equipment Described

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

A NEW high record was hung up this week for "compact journalism" as sponsored in New York by Capt. J. M. Patterson and Col. R. R. McCormick, when the New York Daily News issued a 72-page regular edition from its new $2,250,000 Brooklyn plant on Friday, March 4.

This record edition, the largest tabloid of journalistic history, was made up of a 56-page regular section and a 16-page Brooklyn section. The Brooklyn plant published 400,000 copies of the total circulation of the Daily News, which long since has passed the million mark. The previous high in page size of the Daily News was 56 pages issued Feb. 25.

For some time the Daily News has been issuing a special Brooklyn section on Sundays, but from now on this feature will be published thrice a week Wednesdays, Fridays and Sundays.

The Brooklyn plant which made this latest expansion of the tabloid possible was opened Feb. 22. Located at 716 Pacific street, it now stands six stories high with basement, but is so designed that three more stories may be added when required. The building measures 223 by 110 feet and has a gross floor area of 166,872 square feet. It was constructed to handle the Brooklyn and Long Island circulation of the New York picture paper and is part of a "decentralization plan" which provides for the eventual erection of similar printing establishments in other districts of the metropolitan area. The main office with editorial and composing rooms will continue to be located in downtown Manhattan.

Printing of the 72-page paper was started at 9:04 Thursday evening. All composing room work was done at the Manhattan plant and mats were transferred by special automobile messenger service. The distance separating the two offices is approximately three miles, and the average running time with the mats is 10 minutes. The procedure is part of the regular operating system.

On Wednesday of this week, the writer inspected the Brooklyn plant, with John Low, mechanical superintendent, and A. M. McVeigh, assistant business manager, as guides. These two men with J. W. Barnhart, business manager, collaborated with Lockwood Greene & Co., architects of the New York Herald Tribune plant, in the design and arrangement of the building.

Mr. Gow was asked what feature of the building was particularly significant. "The entire plant," he unhesitatingly replied. "There is no one feature that stands out above others. I have seen many plants in my experience and there is no other to my knowledge that is so complete as a manufacturing establishment."

Its location emphasizes the factory purpose of the building. Easy inflow and outflow of raw materials and finished products are insured, since the building stands close to the main arteries of Brooklyn and Long Island traffic. Directly opposite the main entrance run the Long Island railroad tracks and within a minute's run are main highways to all parts of Brooklyn.

To inspect the building it is best to begin at the roof and work downwards; the gravity system has been adopted as most effective for speeding newspaper production.

On the roof, one sees the mechanism operating what is claimed to be the biggest paper roll conveyer in any American newspaper building. Built by the Link Belt Company of Philadelphia, the conveyor hoists paper rolls by the endless chain method from an unloading platform at street level to the various storage floors or directly to the pressroom. The swinging cradles of the conveyor are so spaced that they carry three rolls upwards every minute or 180 an hour. Paper can be loaded or unloaded from every floor.

The sixth floor is given over entirely to paper storage. Part of the fifth, fourth and basement floor space is used for the same purpose, affording the plant a total capacity of 5,500 tons of newsprint, providing reserve supplies for both Brooklyn and Manhattan establishments.

A small editorial office takes some space from paper storage on the fifth floor. It is used exclusively by the editorial men who make up the Brooklyn section. On the same floor there will eventually be a photographic studio, an art studio to be used by two Daily News cartoonists, and a testing laboratory for analyzing paper and experimenting with ink.

From an enclosed section of the same floor the visitor can look down through iron grilled hatches into the stereotyping foundry on the fourth floor. The hatches are part of a splendid ventilating system designed for the foundry.

This ventilating system is particularly complete. Two flues on each Double Junior Autoplate machine take the metal fumes from the pots, while a third flue is connected with each gas-fired furnace. Air brought in from outside the building is distributed by ducts in the side walls of the foundry. The heated air and fumes rise through the hatches to the fifth floor to be expelled by large fans.

The stereotyping foundry is laid out for an ultimate installation of five double Junior Autoplates with auto shavers. Two of these outfits are in operation at the present time.

A plate conveyer system manufactured by the Alvey Company, St. Louis, brings the curved printing plates from the stereotyping foundry to the pressroom and returns them after use as dead metal to the foundry. It carries the plates at a speed of 250 feet a minute, which Mr. Gow declared was not too fast for convenience of the pressmen who lift them off as they pass by the presses on the third floor.

One feature of the stereotyping foundry, originated by Mr. Gow, is the fact that half the flooring is steel plating set into the concrete.

"The printing plates break up the concrete when they are dropped," Mr. Gow said, "and we believe steel flooring will save us a lot of money."

The view of the pressroom from the control gallery is inspiring. Already installed are thirty units of Goss presses, arranged in two rows. The foundation is already prepared for the addition of fifteen more units, and a total of 24 units can be added without any building extension. The maximum pressroom equipment planned for consists of three rows of 25 units each.

The power and control equipment of the presses represent the most modern developments in electrical apparatus of this type. Both Cline and General Electric controls are in operation. Although only 10 press drives are now actually installed, the conduits are laid and the control equipment designed for 24 drives. Each circuit for pressroom equipment is encased in a separate galvanized iron conduit and the wiring of the motors is such that each drive has an independent power supply.

The drives, roll stands and tension devices are under complete push-button control. For controlling the drives, three stations are provided in desirable locations on each press unit. In addition, on each folder is a master control station. This master control alone permits starting of the press. The other control stations on the presses only provide for decreasing speed and stopping. They also operate a safety stop. Lights, red and white, indicate when any safety button is in, and when the press is free to start. This arrangement assures flexible control and provides maximum safety to workers.

Selector switches throwing the controls on the units to the motor that drives them are mounted in different combinations on marble panels on the control gallery. Here also are the controller switchboards and the banks of resistance coils used for starting and controlling the speed of the drive motors.

To carry out this elaborate system, it was necessary, Mr. Gow explained, to lay in the cement fill on the second floor over 12 miles of conduit pipes, varying in size from three-quarters of an inch to three inches.

On the reelroom floor, the second, an industrial track system receives the rolls of newsprint paper from the vertical conveyor and transfers them on trucks to the paper roll stands under the presses.

Chain bucket conveyors carry the printed papers from the presses in stacks of 350 and 400 down two floors to the mailing room on the street level. Five of these paper drops constitute the present equipment, with provision for one more to be added later. These drops deliver six loads a minute.

In the mailing room the stacks are taken from the conveyors to movable tables, on which they are counted and arranged for delivery to the trucks. The truck stand, which is recessed into the building can accommodate 10 cars at one loading.

A boiler room, an electrical sub-station, a deep-well pump room, ink and oil tanks, a record storage vault, and additional space for paper storage are in the basement. The capacity of the ink tanks is 65,000 pounds, sufficient to print 20,000,000 24-page papers. Additional space and pipping is provided to a 25,000-pound tank. With this tank installed an ink supply sufficient to print 7,500,000 24-page tabloids will be available. The tanks are filled from street connections. A centrifugal pump system delivers the ink to the press fountains.

A staff of about 200 men are employed at the Brooklyn plant. Frank Lambert and William Barry, newly appointed assistant foremen, have charge of the new pressroom. Harry Cousens, formerly assistant foreman of the mailing room at the main building, has been transferred to Brooklyn to superintend the mailing department. Al Maag has been made assistant foreman of the stereotype department and supervises the casting of the plates.

New Brooklyn plant of New York Daily News

MOVIE COPY "R.-O.-P."

N. Y. Telegram Adopts Scripps-Howard Rule on Extra Display Space

The New York Telegram this week departed from the practice of New York City publishers and put into effect the Scripps-Howard established rule that amusement advertising appearing in addition to and outside of the amusement directory columns should pay the run-of-paper rate rather than the amusement directory rate.

This subject become controversial in New York several weeks ago when the Hanff-Metzger Agency attempted to place display advertising for the new Paramount Theatre at run-of-paper rates. The business was refused by several newspapers which held that it should pay the rate scheduled for amusements.

The agency's argument that the copy was not of directory character, but ordinary display, was accepted recently by the New York Journal of Commerce, following its purchase by the Ridder Brothers, but none of the other newspapers up to this week had changed their prevailing practice to obtain the Paramount business. The Telegram was purchased three weeks ago from William T. Dewart by the Scripps-Howard Newspapers.

LIBEL DECISION REVERSED

Case Against Tulsa Tribune Must Be Tried, Supreme Court Rules

The supreme court of Oklahoma recently reversed the decision of the Tulsa County district court in sustaining demurrer to a libel suit brought by Paul Tooney against the Tulsa Tribune and Richard Lloyd Jones, editor. The opinion announced by the higher court held that, when a word is capable of being construed as having a derogatory meaning a court should not sustain a demurrer but should let the case go to a jury to decide how readers understood the publication.

Tooney in 1920 brought suit against the newspaper asking 50,000 damages as result of an article in which he was referred to as "Red."

PRIZES FOR CHICAGO BOWLERS

The Chicago Evening Post will stage a bowling tournament that will give every man in the city a chance to roll his way into a big prize list, with the 165 average man having as much chance to win a prize as the bowler who averages 200. The bowlers in the Post tournament will be divided into four classes. The Post has put up four diamond medals, one for the winner in each class, and $2,000 in prize money. The Post's bowling tournament is the first one sponsored by a newspaper in Chicago.

"NEWSVERTISING" NOTED AS NEW AD TREND

Tendency of Copy to Ride Waves of Current News, Fads and Fancies Discussed in "Good Copy," Late Publication of A. N. P. A. Bureau of Advertising—"Glorified Testimonial" Popular

A NEW word was coined for the advertising man's vocabularly this year by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association. It is "Newsvertising," and is used as the title head for the first chapter of the Bureau's latest book, "Good Copy" prepared for the information of national advertisers and as a special demonstration for them of the "power and beauty of modern newspaper advertising."

"Newsvertising" is defined as "advertising which rides the waves of current news, fads and fancies. Its advocates believe in talking to people in language they understand and on subjects which are live topics at the moment.

"The fact that some catch phrase, some favorite bit of slang or some remembered quip is on everybody's lips, offers just as good material for 'newsvertising' as the probably more important fact that somebody's motor oil helped somebod else to fly to the North Pole.

"'Newsvertising,' the Bureau's book 'Good Copy,' continues, 'is one of the privileges of the newspaper advertiser.' With it he may put the very pulse beat of a nation into his copy and illustration. He and his newspaper reading audience both know 'what's going on.' He introduces himself on this common ground an talks about his product after his audience has recognized in him a fellow reader of the news—a fellow observer of the passing show."

There are other privileges accorded the user of newspaper space as the Bureau of Advertising succinctly shows in its newest book, a paper bound, handsomely printed volume of 52 pages. As its title "Good Copy" implies the book deals exclusively with the fine examples of copy that appeared in the newspaper medium during the past year.

In addition to the effective employment of newsvertising, the manufacturer who seeks to reach his public through the columns of the daily press may find many other privileges plainly displayed for him in "Good Copy."

He may, for example, localize his campaign, an attribute distinctly foreign to the magazine field. The national newspaper effort, the Bureau points out, can be made to "talk the language of specific localities or cities and to take on an intimate, personal atmosphere."

"A sort of glorified 'testimonial' has come into existence," the book's author explains, "and most compelling and interesting it has proven, too, with none of the acknowledged defects of the old-style personally signed document, which might or might not be completely sincere.

"The Springfield, O., advertisement will carry a message from some well-known woman in Springfield; a display in San Francisco will refer you to Mrs. K. L. G., who lives on Orange avenue."

"Good Copy" also describes in illustrated detail the manner in which the national newspaper advertiser has overcome what once were considered the "hazards" of purchasing space in the dailies.

No longer need an advertiser be the victim of a newspaper fear complex. The halftone problem has been settled. Fusion of two engraving processes, halftone and line, has also appeared to advantage in newspapers all over the country. The art of the cameraman has now found a definite niche in newspaper advertising.

The book also produces sufficient evidence to prove that there is a new spirit of co-operation abroad between newspaper publisher and advertiser to make "the newspaper page more artistic, with a measure of justice for all."

There is a growing understanding of typography. Good type faces and artistic composition, newspaper advertisers have found, often takes the place of elaborately conceived illustrations. Staid advertisers are "humanizing" their copy before introducing themselves to the newspaper public. The Bureau notes a "new freedom in copy writing," seeing trite ideas and phrases and old-style writing methods giving way to spirited action and the "literary quality."

In presenting what successful advertisers are doing in the dailies the Bureau has been thorough and practical.

A candy manufacturer "Charlestons" his appeal; the banker humanizes his copy; a tea merchant puts across the idea of heat by clever black and white illustration; and the makers of Listerine dramatize the horrible tragedy of bad breath.

The drafting of popular newspaper artists to illustrate advertising appeals is commended by the Bureau. The story of how John Held helped "Tintex" is told.

"Here is an opportunity open to every user of newspaper space!" the book declares.

"If a certain artist's work or a certain art technique seems to blossom forth into national favor—grab it! Your receptive audience is hand-picked before your campaign ever starts in newspapers."

"Local Copy" for national advertisers is also highly indorsed. To quote from the book again:

"This is a plan which cannot be too highly commended and which is being far more generally practiced today t in all the history of newspaper adve ing. It is particularly effective in case of (1) quickly introducing a and unknown product; (2) checking on sales and on what the competi field is doing; (3) winning the l dealer and jobber over to your side the fence; (4) making an intensive s drive in territory which is slow to spond or which is apparently slippi (5) making a product lastingly pop in a section which is being bombarde intensive sales methods and adverti of rival products.

"One of the most successful newsp serials ever issued in behalf of Ri Lever Brothers, has been based on localized appeal idea. There is a c paign for each locality, each city, w operations of this character are justi by market outlets. When space is use New York City, the top-most dis space is given, in each advertisemen such headlines as: 'Mrs. G. C. Shay, Lexington avenue, says:—' and then signed letter appears, likewise her l ness, halftoned from a photograph.

"But when the advertising shifts other cities, the top portion of each p of copy is sliced off, and local portr headlines and testimonials inserted. all intents and purposes, despite the that over half of the layout is stand the advertising is intensively and clusively localized."

After noting the technical impr ments in half-tone illustration, illustr clearly by the Listerine campaign, Bureau's book deals diplomatically the question of "reforming" heavy bla

Advertisers, the Bureau maintains, the winners in the anti-black cru started by the newspapers.

"The rule has proved a blessing disguise," it states, and continues:

"For example: a series of 24 pen ink illustrations was prepared for a tional advertiser, each containing s black backgrounds. The advertiser informed they could not be run in a ne paper in a certain large city, because t violated the new edict. Somewhat pee the advertiser was on the point of w drawing his contract, when a proof submitted showing the newspaper o revision. Somber black backgrounds been considerably lightened, and the graver had substituted a most art texture.

"It was agreed that the illustrat gained by this process: they had m character, more individuality, and figu

(Continued on page 32)

Pen and ink character studies run amuck on newspaper stock, where they are over-shaded, confused with too many unnecessary lines. In the right-hand plate we see the confused and shaded drawing which will never print well, regardless of the size.

Here you have, in a simple, direct way, the point illustrated of that vast difference between the complex newspaper illus tration and the one which deliberately seeks to simplify its parts and its technique.

LAX METHODS SLOWING PROGRESS OF WEEKLIES

Country Publishers Make It Difficult for National Advertisers to Use Their Papers, Agency Man Declares—Urges Retention of Cash Discount

By GEORGE O. LEONARD

Director of Media and Research, Campbell-Ewald Company

MANY small town publishers are passing up golden opportunities for obtaining profitable business because they unwittingly make it difficult for out of town advertisers to do business with them, is the message George O. Leonard, director of media and research for the Campbell-Ewald Company, Detroit advertising agency, is taking to the weekly newspapers of the country. Mr. Leonard has recently elaborated this idea before two large press association gatherings, the New York State Press Association in Syracuse, and the Iowa Press Association in Des Moines last week.

Mr. Leonard has also made a strong plea for the retention of the two per cent cash discount by all newspapers, declaring that its abolishment means confusion and expense for both the publisher and the advertiser.

"To those of us in agency work, who stand midway between advertisers and the publications, it is almost inconceivable that newspapers will ever think of turning their backs upon a policy which has accomplished so much for them in the past and is becoming even more necessary each day," he told the New York publishers. "In advertising we are not selling a commodity which can be attached or repossessed if pay for it is not forthcoming. Therefore, since service is what we sell it is vitally necessary that we have a check upon the financial condition of clients at all times. This is accomplished effectively and gracefully by your cash discount which we always pass on to the advertiser. The failure of an advertiser to avail himself of this discount for cash is at once a signal of distress and warning both to the agency and the advertiser.

"Publishers will do well very earnestly to consider whether or not they are willing to discard a system which works so effectively in gaining for them prompt payment on the national accounts which run in their publications.

"Perhaps it would prove enlightening if publishers were to compare the prompt and sure payments they enjoy on national accounts cleared through national advertising agencies, with the frequent delays and delinquencies in the payment of accounts by some local advertisers. Two per cent is very economical insurance against 'slow pay' and 'no pay'. What protection, as effective, as inexpensive, and as free from complications is offered as a substitute?"

In describing the difficulties met by agencies and advertisers in dealing with the smaller papers, Mr. Leonard said:

"There has been for the past few years, a very definite trend towards the wider use of local newspapers by national agencies and national advertisers.

"Those who plan and execute advertising campaigns are, more and more, taking advantage of the local tie-ups which round out and strengthen a national campaign. The newspaper advertising placed by our own agency, particularly with the medium sized and smaller newspapers has increased very greatly each year for the past few years. We are in hearty agreement with this trend and realizing its importance, we have taken special pains to study the problems involved in national newspaper advertising.

"The desire of any well established and progresive agency is to serve its clients faithfully and intelligently. The same rules that apply to the proper conduct of our going busing apply here. All transactions with clients must be orderly and business-like and to this end there must, of necessity, be hearty co-operation on the part of publications.

"It will at once be obvious to you that the agency will not involve itself or you in the unnecessary details. The cost of handling newspaper advertising in an agency is very high and you can be sure that every effort is made to expedite and simplify the task.

"Many of you who publish newspapers in the smaller towns probably have a feeling that national advertisers should use your publication more freely and there is an unquestioned field of opportunity here that has not been developed to anywhere near its capacity. But one of the first rules in selling is to make it easy, convenient and desirable for the customer to buy your goods and I think it can be shown that many small town papers are passing up golden opportunities for securing profitable business because they unwittingly make it difficult for out of town advertisers to do business with them.

"There are today tremendous urges from many directions for the advertiser's dollars. Magazines—hundreds of them—of all varieties, outdoor, direct-by-mail, radio, novelties, theatre programs, street cars, etc.—all have their own arguments and high pressure sales efforts. And not the least of their arguments and efforts is that they give 'service'. Practically all of them endeavor to make it easy and convenient for the advertiser to do business with them. Magazines are an excellent example. Any advertising agency can use general, women's, trade technical, farm vocational and many other magazines, with little or no difficulty, because these magazines have organized themselves to handle advertising in a business-like and orderly manner. It is perfectly obvious, therefore, that newspapers must also be alert to make it easy and profitable for the advertiser to use their particular form of advertising. In a way you are competing for the advertiser's dollars and the best thing you can do is to make it convenient for him to spend some of them with you.

"Picture, if you can, the magnitude of the task of sending out orders for a half million newspaper insertions in a single year! That is at the rate of more than 1500 in a day and each order must show the correct newspaper and its address, the correct insertion date, the right sized advertisement, and proper caption, and must order out a companion package containing the correct mat or stereo. On one account alone orders are sent out for weekly insertions to 5500 newspapers in 4800 towns—a big task in itself!

"You can begin to appreciate now why rather inflexible instructions must accompany these orders. In every case we have worked with the client to perfect the campaign and unauthorized variations from the instructions on the orders are not only annoying but they may actually tend to lower the effectiveness of the client's advertising. Every effort is made to have instructions complete and clear on the orders which go to newspapers. Often when an advertisement runs incorrectly, it is obvious that the newspapers failed to follow, or perhaps failed to note the concise instructions in the order. It is excedingly difficult and often impossible for an agency to explain to a client why a newspaper runs an advertisement contrary to instructions and you can see how such cases slow up and complicate a newspaper campaign, especially when similar cases are occuring in scores of papers at the same time. An agency's insertion orders are indirectly some clients instruction that we order space in your paper for him, he agrees to pay you the line rate you ask, and in return he, through us, specifies the dates, the sizes, and titles of the advertisments which are to run. It is just as important to your business that you deliver service to him according to instructions as it is important to your grocer to deliver to you the kind and quality of food you order. Every failure of a newspaper to carry out the letter or spirit of an order tends to make this form of advertising less desirable and trustworthy in the eyes of both client and agency.

"I want to take you with me to our accounting department. This department is composed of 74 individuals whose sole purpose is to pay publisher's bills promptly and to bill clients properly. Of these 74 people, 29 do billing work, 34 do checking and 11 have general duties.

In this department invoices are received from publications such as yours and are matched with the tear sheets to prove insertion. Invoice and tear sheets must be brought together before we can pay you or before we can bill the client and this must be done in our own offices. It is at this point in a newspaper campaign that genuine optimism, indefatigable workers and patience extraordinary are required. Despite the fact that every order and contract we issue requests proper invoices at the proper time and tear sheets to prove insertion, it is astounding how many newspapers each month fail to do a part or any of the simple, yet necessary, things asked for. This, too, in spite of the fact that our only requests are for the bare essentials normally required to complete any business transaction. The head of the Accounting Department tells us that the impression one gains after observing the laxity of many newspapers in sending invoices and tear sheets, is that these newspapers are in the enviable position of not needing their money very badly.

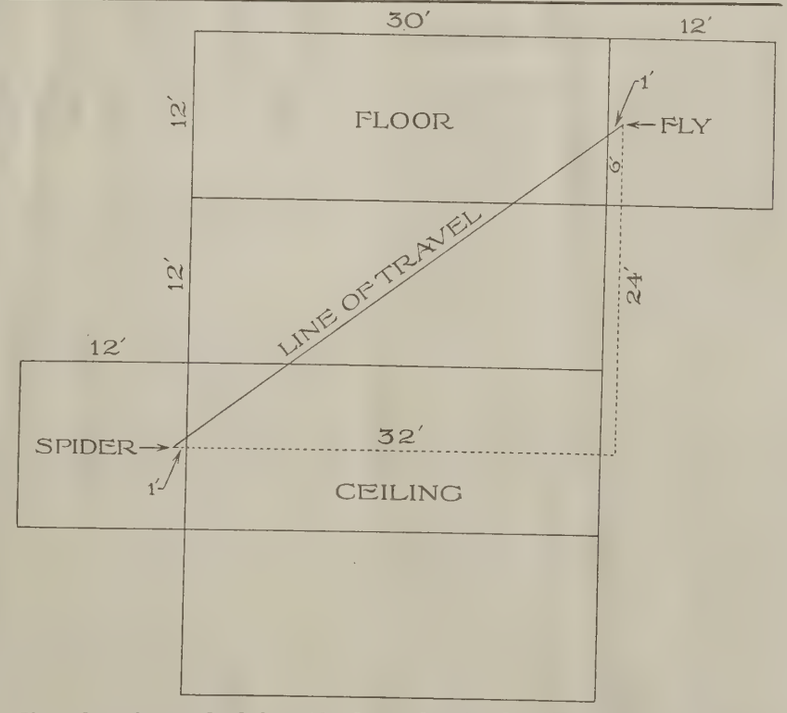
"Briefly, let me reiterate the points developed and mention several other factors which the time has not permitted me to enlarge upon:

"1. Co-operate fully with advertising agencies. They work with and develop many national accounts and they can often use small town papers to advantage.

"2. Read the orders you get and follow them to the letter or get in touch with the agency if in doubt. You can be sure in most cases that there are important reasons why the advertisement must run when and as ordered.

"3. Invoice the agency promptly and clearly for the advertisements you run and attach tear sheets to the invoice. We are anxious to pay you promptly, and the advertiser is waiting to pay us. Many times both of us are waiting for the facts you alone can give.

"4. Send tear sheets—the whole page—for each ad you run. Do this promptly also. If you are looking for the best way to serve agency and advertiser attach the tear sheet to your invoice and send it first class mail. Thus you insure prompt and certain delivery of both invoice and proof of insertion.



"5. Answer the agency's letters when they write you. This is plain courtesy but aside from that, the agency needs information or it wouldn't be writing you. Remember that it doesn't help to promote the idea of advertising in newspapers when a publisher seems indifferent in his dealings with agencies and then fails or is slow in answering letters.

"6. Print your paper well, which is another way of suggesting that you make the advertisers' copy appear at its best in a good looking newspaper. He is entitled to a clean and faithful reproduction of his mat or stereo.

"7. Encourage prompt payment of national acounts and avoid losses by continuing the cash discount which has proved its worth and value for so many years.

"8. Supply agencies and advertisers with circulation figures and the facts about your paper which are accurate and complete. Incorrect or exaggerated figures are dangerous in the long run and do not foster all-important good will.

GREAT SPIDER MYSTERY SOLVED!

If you haven't yet solved the spider-fly puzzle printed in "Hunches" by EDITOR & PUBLISHER for February 12, try again before you read this: The above diagram shows the room opened out flat—30 feet long, 12 feet wide, twelve feet high. The spider is on an end wall one foot from the ceiling and six feet from either side. The fly is on the other end wall one foot from the floor and six feet from either side. The spider traveled, crawling all the way, the shortest possible distance to reach the fly—40 feet. This distance represented by the black line, is equal to the square root of the sum of the squares of the other sides of the triangle. 32 feet and 24 feet—1024 plus 576 equals 1600, the square root of which is 40. Prove it by cutting out the diagram and folding it in the shape of a room.

NEWSPAPER'S RIGHT TO PRINT PHOTO WITHOUT CONSENT IS DENIED

Court Overruling Washington Herald's Demurrer, Would Not Apply Bar to Public Characters, but Says Press Freedom Is Not Involved

By J. BART CAMPBELL

(Washington Correspondent of EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

THE right of newspapers to publish personal photographs without consent of the persons involved is denied in an opinion filed in a case pending in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

The opinion was written by Associate Justice Frederick L. Siddons of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in the case of Mrs. Maud Peed against the Washington Times Company, which also publishes the Washington Herald, a morning paper.

The decision draws no distinction in favor of any special circumstances, but broadly holds it to be a violation of a personal right for any newspaper to publish a photograph of a private citizen at least, without the person's consent.

The question was raised by the Times Company's demurrer, which declared the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press to be a complete bar to the suit. Justice Siddons' decision establishes Mrs. Peed's right to damages provided she proves her case. The case will be set for trial of its merits and will probably go over until the fall term.

Wilton J. Lambert, president of the Washington Times Company, and Rudolph H. Yeatman, attorney for the publisher, cited in support of their demurrer the case of Hillman vs. Star Publishing Company from the Supreme Court of the State of Washington, reported in 64 Washington, page 691. This was the case of a child whose photograph was published in connection with the story of her father's alleged criminal conduct. The Supreme Court held that although there may have been a wrong done in publishing the picture, there was no legal remedy and therefore the suit failed.

Opposed to this view, Foster Wood, attorney for Mrs. Peed, cited an article written by Justice Louis D. Brandeis before his elevation to the Supreme Court of the United States and published in 4 Harvard Law Review, page 196.

Justice Brandeis' article was in effect an attack upon a decision of the Appellate Court of New York in which the right to sue for publication of a photgraph without consent had been denied. In this case the New York court appears to have followed the Washington case cited. The New York Legislature subsequently nullified this decision by passage of a law specifically establishing the right to sue in such cases.

Justice Siddons commenting on the case from the State of Washington said: "It is, perhaps, enough to say that this position of the court is not in consonance with the oft-repeated statement of the books that 'there is no wrong without a remedy.'"

Concluding, the court said: "It was suggested in the oral argument that to sustain the right of action in such cases as the pending one would be to invade the freedom of the press. The suggestion, the court thinks, is not sound, if for no other reason than that the freedom of the press, guaranteed by our constitution, is not a freedom to violate the rights of others. Even a public character may be libeled by a newspaper, and the newspaper or its owner compelled to respond in damages for the libelous publication. Nor does the freedom of the press carry with it the privilege of invading any other right of the citizen. Such a contention, if carried to its logical extreme, would justify a newspaper publisher in invading the home of a citizen and publishing the results of its invasion, and shield itself in so doing by invoking the freedom of the press."

THOMPSON LIBEL CASE SET FOR MARCH 17

Birmingham Publisher Accepts Service and Declares He Is Complimented by Suit Brought by Klan Dragon

(By telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 2.—Frederick I. Thompson, publisher of the Birmingham Age Herald, the Montgomery Journal and the Mobile Register and News-Item, will be tried March 17 on charges of libel in Birmingham.

Two separate counts face the publisher, one preferred by Charles C. McCall, state attorney general, and one by James Esdale, Grand Dragon of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Realm of Alabama. Attorney McCall's warrant was sworn out after the paper had criticized the way the attorney general handled the first of the cases against the school book publishers to reduce the prices for school books in Alabama. Mr. Esdale's warrant was sworn out following publication of an alleged report of a speech made by him before the Robert E. Lee Klan in which he is said to have advocated masked flogging.

Mr. Thompson, who has been out of town since the warrants were sworn, returned last Sunday and Monday afternoon went to the office of Sheriff Hartsfield and accepted service, making bond for $300 in each case. The case will be heard in Judge Abernathy's court. The libel charge preferred by Mr. Esdale also names C. M. Stanley, associate editor and R. M. Kincey, city editor, who will be tried at the same time as their employer. Both Mr. Stanley and Mr. Kincey have made bond for $300.

In an interview Mr. Thompson stated that he construed the suit of Mr. Esdale as a compliment.

He said in part: "In ordinary circumstances I would feel a measurable humiliation at being charged with committing criminal libel because of matter in the newspapers published by me," the publisher declared, "but if publication concerning and in opposition to the methods and policies of the Ku Klux Klan prompts the Grand Dragon of the order in Alabama to charge me with criminal libel because of such position of the newspapers, then I would regard such action of the Grand Dragon of the Klan as a compliment rather than one of discredit."

N. Y. AMERICAN LOSES

Court of Appeals Affirms $10,000 Libel Award for Use of Wrong Name

The Court of Appeals, Albany, has handed down a decision affirming the New York Supreme Court in granting a judgment of $10,000 in favor of Eliot G. Farrington against the Star Company as damages for an alleged libel published in the New York American Nov. 19 and 20, 1921. The action was brought to recover $200,000 damages.

The articles purported to give an account of Farrington's marriage to Margaret Hodson at Waterbury, Conn. and stated that a sensation was caused by the appearance of Loretta Rodden with her child, alleged to have been deserted by him.

On the trial it was shown that a mistake had been made in using the name of the plaintiff for that of Edward J. Farrington and that a retraction was made in a later issue. Farrington is a Yale graduate and lives at Detroit, Mich. and testified he had been humiliated by his associates and others at the Detroit Yale Club by the publication of the story connecting him with the affair.

Counsel for the Star Company sought a reversal of the verdict on the ground that the admission of this testimony was error.

TORONTO DAILY LOSES $6,000 LIBEL SUIT

Woodstock (Ont.) Sentinel-Review Brought Action Based on Three Editorials Charging Liquor "Hypocrisy"

Finding in favor of the plaintiff on all points raised by the judge, the jury in Supreme Court at Woodstock, Ont., awarded the Sentinel-Review Company, Ltd., $6,000 damages in its libel action against the Toronto Evening Telegram, before Justice Logie. The action was based on three editorials published in the Toronto Telegram of Aug. 9 and Apr. 11, 1920.

The gist of the statements as presented to the jury were that the Sentinel-Review had had a quantity of liquor stolen from its cellar while at the same time it was advocating prohibition in its newspaper. D. L. McCarthy, counsel for the plaintiff, stated that these statements charged the Sentinel-Review with "damnable hypocrisy," and also with having committed an offence under the Ontario Temperance Act which prohibited corporations having liquor in their cellars under pain of fine and imprisonment.

Very little evidence was presented in the case. Three witnesses were called for the plaintiff. These were John Markey, chief editor of the Sentinel-Review; M. McIntyre Hood, city editor, and Harry McIntosh, Woodstock business manager. They testified as to the identity and name of the plaintiff's newspaper, and to the fact that W. J. Taylor, proprietor, and the newspaper were two entirely separate entities. Mr. Markey gave some evidence regarding the stand of the Sentinel-Review in the abolish-the-bar campaign of 1914.

On the verdict being given, a motion for non-suit on technical legal points was made, but this was refused by the judge.

HERMAN BLACK IS HOST

Theatrical stars of the first water from several of the shows now appearing in Chicago, entertained at the annual publisher's "Get Together" banquet of the Chicago Evening American last week. Herman Black, publisher of the American, was toastmaster at the banquet, and William A. Curley, managing editor, was one of the speakers.

REBEL AGAINST RADIO ADS

A movement to protect the radio listeners from direct advertising over the air was started this week at the Mid-West Radio Congress, meeting in Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 23-24. Francis Stanstell, president of the Iowa Radio Listeners' League, said his association intended to find out whether certain stations should be "allowed to go on broadcasting or be forced off the air."

Metropolitan!

"WHAT a magnificent building," exclaims many a vistor to Jacksonville. "That would be a credit to any city in the nation."

Quite so—for the Barnett National Bank purposely intended to express in their new, magnificent 18-story structure, not only steady growth in banking but firm confidence in the future of Jacksonville. Both city and state have been keenly analyzed by this institution during half a century of financial service in this territory.

Truly a "metropolitan" building—for an enterpising city, alert in business, consistent in growth, modern in taste, quick to sense the invitation of advertising.

Consider the factors which made the Barnett National Bank Building possible, and you will recognize the power your advertising message gains in Florida's largest newspaper—

The Florida Times-Union

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

Buffalo the Wonder City of America

Calling on the Trade

In selling goods there is no substitute for calling on the trade. The more calls made the more orders taken, the more business done.

So it is with your advertisements . . . . your printed salesmen . . . . carrying your sales story to the trade . . . . to dealers and consumers.

Calling on only a part of the trade brings only a partial response in orders.

But calling on all of the buying market, or practically all of it, through a newspaper which not only carries your sales message but has reader influence as well, brings the largest possible returns in orders and in dealer and consumer acceptance.

The Buffalo Evening News calls on all the trade every day. It is a welcome visitor, an effective medium for your selling message in the Buffalo market.

Cover the Buffalo Market with the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

A. B. C. Sept. 30, 1926, 145,647

EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor and Publisher

Present Average Over 150,000

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building, New York City
Waterman Building, Boston, Mass.
Atlantic Building, Philadelphia, Pa.
Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

DETROIT NEWS SPONSORING AIRPLANE SEARCH FOR NEW ARCTIC LAND

Seven Flights Over Frozen Seas Will Be Made by Capt. Wilkins in Next Few Weeks—A. M. Smith Covering Story for News

DETROIT, March 3.—Seven times within the next few weeks, if his plans go well, Capt. George Hubert Wilkins, commander of the Detroit News Wilkins Arctic expedition, will fly out over the jagged ice of the Arctic Ocean north of Alaska in a second attempt to find new land.

Four of these excursions will be made in a standard Stinson-Detroiter, a Detroit manufactured plane now in use on several commercial lines, while the other three will be made in the Alaskan, a huge Fokker monoplane used by the 1926 expedition. On all seven trips Capt. Wilkins will be piloted by Carl B. Eielson, pioneer Alaska flyer, who a year ago made the first flight from Fairbanks, Alaska, across the Endicott Mountains to Point Barrow.

Should a forced landing and a disabled plane leave them alone on the drifting ice, the two explorers will walk ashore. "It may take months, even years, but we can shoot seals and bears for food and live in snow houses or tents," Capt. Wilkins says. "There is really very little danger."

For that reason an order has been made requiring the other members of the expedition to leave Alaska if Wilkins should be gone long enough to indicate that his plane is disabled. A search would be useless, and a waiting policy foolishly expensive.

The exploratory trips in the Stinson plane will be comparatively short hops of 1,200 miles each, 600 miles out over the frozen sea from Point Barrow, and 600 miles back. The flights will radiate from the base in the shape of a fan, covering two-thirds of the "region of comparative inaccessibility," Northwest and Northeast of Barrow. Owing to the size of the ship, its safe flying range is limited to 1,500 miles, even though it has been fitted with an enormous gasoline tank capable of carrying fuel for 20 hours of flying.

Three other flights, to be made in the Alaskan, will be 2,000 miles long, 1,000 miles out and 1,000 miles back. On these long journeys over the Polar basin, Capt. Wilkins hopes to penetrate nearly to the other side of the unknown region.

The direction he will take in the Fokker ship on his several flights will be determined by the results of soundings he will make by landing on the ice in the smaller ship. By testing the ocean's depth at several places, and by taking samples of sea water, Capt. Wilkins believes that he can determine where new land, if any there be, is most likely to lie.

While the expedition hopes to find new land, its purpose is also meteorogical. Weather in the vicinity of Point Barrow shows a marked similarity to weather near Nova Zembla and Greenland, indicating high ice covered masses. If a high island is found near Barrow, the relation will be established. If nothing is found, the theory will have to be discarded and science will benefit. If suitable land is found near the middle of the Arctic ocean this will facilitate a commercial air service across the top of the world.

At present the members of the expedition are waiting for the arrival of the Stinson plane and a second ship, sent with it as a fling box of spare parts. In the meantime they have refitted the Alaskan with the wing of the Detroiter, the second of the two craft sent last year. Gasoline, enough for 20,000 miles of flying is already at Barrow.

The members of the party in addition to Wilkins and Fielson, A. M. Smith, correspondent for the Detroit News; Alger Graham, former Canadian army pilot, second pilot; Howard Mason, wireless operator for the 1926 expedition, radio man; Orval H. Norton, mechanic for the Stinson Aircraft Corporation, mechanic.

FOSTER TALKS TO LONDON

Marcellus E. Foster, editor of the Houston Press, on Feb. 21 talked over radiophone with Webb Miller, assistant European manager of the United Press in London, inaugurating the Texas-London telephone service. Mayor Holcombe of Houston also talked over the connection in the Press office to the Lord Mayor of London.

BRYANT SUCCEEDS HOOKER

Named Chairman, A.P. Eastern Advisory Board, When Latter Resigns

Richard Hooker, member of the Associated Press for the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, has resigned as chairman of the Eastern Advisory Board of the Associated Press. W. B. Bryant, publisher of the Paterson (N. J.) Press-Guardian, has been elected chairman to succeed Mr. Hooker.

The latter and W. J. Pape, Waterbury (Conn.) Republican, were recently nominated by the A. P. nominating committee to fill the unexpired term of Charles Hopkins Clark as a director. The resolution of the annual meeting provided that two forms of proxies for the annual meeting should be sent out, one in blank and one made out to the chairman of the Eastern Advisory Board. Thus Mr. Bryant's name will appear instead of Mr. Hooker's on the advisory board proxies for election of directors and Mr. Bryant will cast the proxies given to the Eastern Advisory Board.

$1,000,000 FORD LIBEL SUIT SET FOR MARCH 15

Postponement Granted from March 7 —Sapiro's Case Based on Dearborn Independent Articles

Trial of the $1,000,000 libel suit brought by Aaron Sapiro, Chicago lawyer, against Henry Ford and the Dearborn Independent was this week postponed from March 7 to March 15. The postponement was granted at the request of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, chief of defense counsel.

Judge Fred Raymond of Grand Rapids has been called in to hear the case, following disqualification of Judge Arthur J. Tuttle, when Mr. Ford submitted an affidavit charging the jurist was prejudiced.

Mr. Ford is expected to take the witness stand in his own defense. It will be the first time since the famous Chicago Tribune-Ford libel suit that the automobile manufacturer has appeared in a court room. His testimony was sought in several law suits, but each time he evaded the process servers. William Henry Gallager, chief counsel for Sapiro, succeeded in serving Mr. Ford with a subpoena.

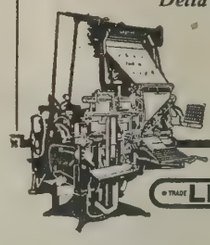
Sapiro, a Chicago lawyer of Jewish descent and organizer of nearly a hundred co-operative marketing system among farmers, brought suit against Ford and the Dearborn Independent, Ford's monthly publication, for $1,000,000 in the summer of 1925.

He based his suit on a series of ar carried in the Independent, in Ford charged the co-operative orga tions were intended to be profitable to Sapiro, and that farmer mer were compelled to sell produce at money than they would have rec under current market prices.

The articles further asserted that piro was the working agent of a ' ish conspiracy" seeking to gain co of agricultural products marketing.

AIDS THE POOR TAXPAYE

The Chicago Daily News is off income taxpayers needing help in ing out their returns the free servic a deputy internal revenue collector signed by the government, and the in tax experts of the Daily News. help, together with income tax forms the services of a notary, is given a Daily News personal service bureau



From the Linotype Mailba

"Your Snappy Service"

Enclosed is our check to cove January invoices from you.

Thanks to your snappy servic and the air mail, we were able t be going again Monday mornin as usual even though it's a lon way to Chicago.

Delta County Tribun
Delta, Colorad

INCREASE YOUR LOCAL DISPLAY

We are getting 100,000 to 500,000 extra lines per year for publishers today all over America. Firms that never before used your space become steady weekly or semi-weekly advertisers. Our representative will explain how the Briggs plan gets this new business without any cost to you.

THOS. W. BRIGGS COMPANY-----
Columbian Mutual Tower
MEMPHIS, TENN.

JOURNALISM? Train the Eastman Way

. . . emphasizing practical result-getting methods that qualify students for quick advancement into journalism positions that PAY.

Vivid-Dramatic-DIRECT

The Eastman classroom system, by mail, under a strong faculty of keen business men.

Entirely different from the ordinary "book course" methods.

Box 21

EASTMAN-POUGHKEEPSIE N Y
A National Institution for over Half a Century

Quicker and Better Results
the Ludlow Way

WITH late copy coming in—customers' proofs required—early editions to get out—every minute counts. Under such high-pressure conditions the Ludlow demonstrates its ability to meet widely varying demands.

Ludlow promotes speed, quantity and quality of production. From durable brass matrices you can set and cast enough new type in slugs to print the biggest edition on time. Lines in any size of typeface from 6 to 72-point are readily produced with the Ludlow system without interruptions for machine or mold changes, or delays in hunting sorts.

Learn how leading metropolitan dailies, and hundreds of other newspapers of every size throughout the world are using sparkling new Ludlow type in slugs for getting better, quicker results. We will gladly send you complete facts.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

Boston: 470 Atlantic Avenue
New York: 63 Park Row
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
San Francisco 5 Third Street

SET IN LUDLOW QUALITY SLUGS

A good year's GROWTH in just 4 months

Circulation Figures for

November	December	January	February
	The Sunday News
54,101	58,819	64,987	82,156
	The Rocky Mountain News
28,904	28,988	29,981	32,317
	The Denver Evening News
26,959	38,809	39,041	47,966

THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS
THE DENVER EVENING NEWS

SCRIPPS-HOWARD NEWSPAPERS

W. C. BUSSING, Advertising Manager
MCHENRY TICHENOR, National Advertising Manager

Represented in the National Field by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC.

250 Park Avenue, New York

Chicago Detroit San Francisco Los Angeles Seattle

BALTIMORE VETERAN, 85, HAS SERVED 64 YEARS AT TELEGRAPH KEY

T. J. Bishop at His Post Daily in Sun Office—Handled Civil War News—Friend of Edison in Early Days—Once Retired but Returned to His Key

By H. S. SHERWOOD

SIXTY-FOUR years continuous service at the telegraph key, and now, at the age of 85 years, ready to scrap with a rival telegraph operator for business! That's Thomas J. Bishop, Western Union operator in the office of the Baltimore Sun.

THOMAS J. BISHOP

Mr. Bishop, or "Bish" as he is called by the Sun men, is believed to hold the record in this country for the longest period of continuous service at the telegraph key. He is also believed to be the oldest operator in active service. He opens his wire on time six afternoons in the week and signs off some time after midnight, goes to an owl restaurant, gets his supper and goes home to bed. He has been following that routine for a period longer than the entire life span of many men.

"Bish" has a special reverence for words, not merely because he has been handling them all his life, but because it was the result of choosing the right words, that he escaped hanging 62 years ago.

He was an operator on duty at one of the railroad bridges over the Susquehanna river back in 1865. One day the news came over the wire that Abraham Lincoln had been assassinated.

"Just as good men as Lincoln have been assassinated before," said "Bish" carelessly and thought no more about it.

But it got around in the town of Havre de Grace, Maryland, that he had said this and several hours later a crowd appeared before "Bish's" office. They carried a long, thick rope. To the astonished operator, they said that they did not like his expression as to Lincoln. If he still felt that way, well they thought they'd make use of the rope—one end of it over a tree limb and the other end around his neck. He understood? Yes; he understood. He made what is said to have been his first and his last speech then. He chose his words very carefully. He apologized. The crowd accepted his apology. He was only 23 years old then. He's been very careful about the words he let escape from his lips ever since that time.

That's an index to "Bish's" character when it is considered in connection with another incident which occurred earlier in the same war. He was an operator on another railroad bridge when Harry Gilmor, a Confederate cavalry leader whose name and fame are well known to all Marylanders, descended on the bridge and proceeded to wreck it. "Bish's" key was in an office out on the bridge, over the deepest water. It was a part of the Union communications. Although he knew that Gilmor was trying to burn the bridge, "Bish" stuck to his key to get a message through telling of the raid. Gilmor walked in on him, snatched the key from his hand and threw it out the window and into the river. Then he escorted "Bish" over the ties to shore.

He was once imprisoned by General "Ben" Butler, the famous Union leader. He was an operator in Baltimore. A report went out over the wires to the effect that President Lincoln was about to call for 500,000 additional soldiers. The report was circulated for its effect on the stock market. Butler ordered every telegraph operator in his territory flung into jail and kept there until the men who had sent that message out confessed. "Bish" went to jail with the rest, but stayed only a few hours. The men who had started the story confessed.

To round out his Civil War experiences, Mr. Bishop was in charge of the wire when General Ulysses S. Grant was dying in New York. He sent out bulletins on the condition of the famous military figure and President of the United States until Grant died.

Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, was one of his "buddies" more than half a century ago when both were telegraph operators.

Back in 1912, when he had served practically half a century at his key, Mr. Bishop thought it time to retire. He announced that he was going to quit. Telegraphers and former telegraphers all over the country contributed to a fund to buy him a gold watch. Mr. Edison was among these. The watch was presented to him and he was made a life member of the telegraphers union. He went down to rural Maryland, where his daughter lives, and prepared to live a life of retirement.

But that lasted only for a few days. He couldn't stay away from his key. Presently he was back at work in the Sun office and has been there since.

PRESS AGENT SHOW

The annual "Press Agents Show," staged by the Theatrical Press Representatives of America for the benefit of their emergency relief fund, will be held at the Liberty Theatre, New York, Sunday March 13. Wells Hawks is chairman of the entertainment committee.

WON'T ARREST NEWS DEALER

Magistrate Goodman in Yorkville Court, New York, this week refused to issue a warrant for the arrest of a newsdealer who had sold four "art" magazines to a police sergeant. A special agent for the Society for the Suppression of Vice requested the warrant.

MONEY FOR WORD MAKERS

The Chicago Evening American will award $275 in cash prizes in a word-making contest to those who can make the most words out of the letters in "Evening American." First prize will be $100; second prize, $50; third prize, $25; next 20 prizes, $5 each.

NICHOLSON RESIGNS TO JOIN TOKIO DAILY

Production Manager of N. Y. Evening Post Will Assist B. W. Fleisher on Japan Advertiser

Ralph Nicholson has resigned as production manager of the New York Evening Post, effective March 5, to join the staff of the Tokio Japan Advertiser, American newspaper in the Orient. He plans to sail for Japan with Mrs. Nicholson March 19, from Vancouver, B. C., on the Empress of Russia. On the Japan Advertiser, Mr. Nicholson will be assistant to B. W. Fleisher, editor and publisher. Mr. Fleisher is now in this country, but expects to return to Japan early next month.

RALPH NICHOLSON

Mr. Nicholson has been connected with the Evening Post for the last year and a half. Before that he had been in the foreign service of the Philadelphia Public Ledger in London and Berlin and had also been a member of that newspaper's local reportorial staff.

Graduated from Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., Mr. Nicholson had his first taste of newspaper work on the Richmond (Ind.) Item. While h the Public Ledger's Berlin bure obtained an exclusive interview Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, cel draft dodger, which created consi sensation in this country at the Returning to this country, Mr. Ni spent a year at Harvard Univer the graduate school. Soon afte he became associated with Carl man in publicity work in New Yo 1922 he was assistant director of p for the National Republican Com

JOINS WESEL COMPANY

Paul W. Gardner, for 19 year nected with the Eureka Specialty ing Company of Scranton, Pa., as tant secretary in charge, at various of purchasing, sales and factory m ment, has been named general m of F. Wesel Manufacturing Co dealers in printing machinery an plies. He also had complete supe of the Eureka Paper Converting M

CELEBRATES 45TH YEAR

The Wall Street Journal, New celebrated the 45th anniversary founding last week. It was th anniversary of the electric page ticker operated by Dow, Jones the publishing company.

THE SPRINGFIELD LEA
Y CASUALTIES IN BALKA
Board Plans Building Program
U. S. Transport, Sent On
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MA
Ionic No.

THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL is Ousted ialist Party
Britain and Japan Indor
Idea of Further Naval
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

The Flexitype Dry Flong

is successful in newspaper plants because, it is

1—Easily prepared and,

2—Produces plates with (a) type that prints black (b) and halftones distinguished by their clearness and detail.

We have convinced others. Let us show you.

Brooks Paper Company
St. Louis, Mo.

CERTIFIED VALUE

The price paid for dry mats doesn't necessarily determi the value received.

It's what the dry mats will do for YOU that represen their real value to you.

That is why the Certified measure of value is, an always has been, COMPARISON.

That is why such papers as the New York Time Cleveland Plain Dealer, Detroit Times and several hundre others, after COMPARISON, have chosen Certified Dr Mats, and are using them exclusively.

You may be paying more for your dry mats, but w doubt that you can get more value for your money tha is represented in Certified Dry Mats.

To COMPARE is to know—we welcome you comparison.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATIO
340 Madison Avenue New York, N. Y for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility—use Certified
MADE IN U. S. A.

Informal Notes

CHARLES W. NAX,
CLASSIFIED MANAGER,
ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT:

Ralph O. Bradford, Manager of the "Associated Editors Classified Service," was commenting a few days ago on the great number of sound, practical ideas in the recently published report of a talk made by you before the American Newspaper Publisher's Association. Mr. Bradford recommends that this address should be read thoroughly by every classified manager.

* * *

W. H. RIBLE,
BUSINESS MANAGER,
OHIO STATE JOURNAL:

During the past two weeks, I have noticed that more result story blanks are coming to us from your newspaper, and that in return our classified promotion department is writing for stories exclusively for you. Glad to see you using this feature of the service—keep it up.

* * *

HARRY J. GRANT,
PUBLISHER,
MILWAUKEE JOURNAL:

I thought I had seen complete newspaper plants but the trip through the Milwaukee Journal plant a week or so ago, and your description and demonstration of how smoothly and efficiently the entire institution works, were a revelation to me. Evidently, you are planning big things for the Milwaukee Journal. Your plant is built not only for today but for the future. You could handle a half million a day circulation.

* * *

EDWARD FLICKER,
GENERAL MANAGER,
BRIDGEPORT POST-TELEGRAM:

We were quite pleased last week when we received from our Mr. Dolbey your contract for three of our services. In your ad in "Editor and Publisher," on February 19th, you asked in big type "Are you getting your share?" Thanks to you, we are now going to get a little more of the $123,000,000 cash which you folks in Bridgeport have on deposit in your banks.

* * *

CURTIS B. JOHNSON,
PUBLISHER,
CHARLOTTE OBSERVER:

We congratulate you on the opening of your new $500,000 newspaper home. It has never been my good fortune to visit Charlotte, N. C., but when I do, I will certainly ask for the privilege of looking around your plant.

* * *

H. INGE,
CLASSIFIED MANAGER,
MOBILE REGISTER:

So Mobile and The Register like the material furnished by "Associated Editors Classified Service"! We were glad to receive this expression from you, and glad that you are asking us to write "Result Stories" regularly for you. We believe our latest material is setting a new standard in the classified promotion field; perhaps you will drop us a line giving your reactions.

* * *

R. J. SALLANS,
BUSINESS MANAGER,
BORDER CITIES STAR,
WINDSOR, ONTARIO:

We quote from your letter "It is our intention, when we move into our new home, to issue an edition in which we shall tell the complete story of how our newspaper was created and of how it was developed since 1918, when it had its inception, until today when we feel that it holds no mean position among the newspapers of Canada." Congratulations! Don't fail to send us a copy of your special edition!

* * *

J. W. MOORE,
AUTOMOBILE EDITOR,
RUTLAND (Vt.) NEWS:

Your wire, ordering the "Auto Editors Service," might be taken as one of a number of indications that spring is coming. We are glad to see you getting ready this early to corral new automobile business during the coming season.

* * *

FREDERICK E. MURPHY,
EDITOR,
MINNEAPOLIS TRIBUNE:

It is always of interest when a newspaper as widely circulated as the Minneapolis Tribune changes from seven to eight columns. We congratulate you on the move.

* * *

R. ARMSTEAD,
MANAGING EDITOR,
HARTFORD COURANT:

The calibre of newspapers that use John H. Striebel's "Kids" is very high indeed. It is very fitting that the Hartford Courant should be added to the list. We predict Striebel will rapidly become one of your important features.

John H. Millar

As Timely as a New Spring Suit—

Auto Editors Service

NOW is the logical time to put new pep into your automobile department.

ASSOCIATED EDITORS, INC.
JOHN H. MILLAR, President
440 S. Dearborn St. CHICAGO

"Ideas—not merely big names."

EDITOR'S GUNS AIMED AT COLLEGE TRAINED MEN, SAYS STUDENT

Journalism Grads Overestimate Their Equipment While Bosses Underrate Their Possibilities, Declares Sigma Delta Chi Contest Winner

By HAROLD W. FLEMING
De Pauw University School of Journalism

The following article on "The College Man in Journalism" won first prize in a recent essay contest conducted by Sigma Delta Chi, honorary professional journalism fraternity.

THE college man who is preparing to enter newspaper work finds himself bombarded from the front and from the rear. Those who are doing the bombardment to his face are his colleagues who picture to him an easy job and a good salary. Their roseate promises ring true and he is imbued with the spirit that has seized his colleagues. He believes that he can learn everything in college that is essential to his success in everything from cub reporting to editorial writing after graduation, and that his diploma is a guarantee to success and ability to pursue the art of journalism.

H. W. Fleming

Those who are doing the bombarding to his back are the owners and managing editors of newspapers. Their ammunition consists of criticism directed at the college graduate in an attempt to "show him up." Just as surely as the student has overrated his ability, so has the managing editor by the same token underrated his possibilities.

A more medial attitude of the graduate toward his ability as a journalist and a better prospective of the nature of his work is the thing that he needs most. On the other hand a friendly co-operation between the graduate and the managing editor will go a long way toward solving the problem of the college-made journalist.

A college education gives to the young man technique and practice which would take years for him to learn in an office. His mind is trained to function rationally under any circumstance in which he may find himself. The four years in college give him a superior equipment with which to work. His mental alertness and his ability to exercise his own judgment and initiative is developed to a higher degree.

The college man is more in a position to assume responsibility than the man who has not had an academic training.

However, not from the college student do we get the best glimpse of the college man in journalism. For a college student to theorize on the college man in journalism proves one of the criticisms directed against him—that he does not know what he is talking about. The managing editors of the newspapers throughout the country are in a better position to tell of his strong points, his weaknesses, and his needs.

William Allen White, editor of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette, comes to the defense of the college student.

"The college man has certainly made good in my office," declares Mr. White. According to Mr. White, his good points are intelligence, a trained mind, and a habit of industry. His weaknesses are that he cannot spell, his handwriting is rotten, and he does not know the names and the initials of the people in the town.

"The thing that he needs most," states Mr. White, "is more education, a more general knowledge of books, modern literature, current movements in politics, religion, literature and art."

James A. Stuart, managing editor of the Indianapolis Star, characterizes the chief weakness in the college man as due "to his lack of contact with the business and professional world and to an inability to adapt the theory of the classroom to practical purposes. In part, this has been the fault of the college but it is being remedied by the institution of more practical purposes. The college man's chief advantages consist in greater mental alertness, and an ability to exercise his own good judgment and initiative."

A. R. Holcombe, managing editor of the New York Herald Tribune, reaches the conclusion that a "college trained man more often reaches a position of responsibility and is better equipped to hold it than the man who has not had the advantage of early academic training. While the college trained man starts with an advantage, it is nothing more than an advantage, and unless he applies himself with the same intelligence and industry as the man who has not had college training he is apt to be outdistanced by his less fortunate competitor."

"In this business," contributes R. L. O'Brien, editor of the Boston Herald, "as in others, the more training and equipment a man can have the better, and the college is usually an economical way of getting training, but by no means an indispensable one."

"A college education naturally provides an excellent and advantageous background for a career in journalism, but I can not say that I have noticed any particular difference in the ability displayed by college men and men not so fortunate as to have a college education. Journalism is a very exacting calling. Success in it depends largely on native ability and application by the individual" is the opinion of T. V. Ranck, managing editor of the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

The indication is that the college graduate is making good in the field of journalism. While more is expected of him than he really does, the college man had the advantage of his education over the non-college man. The college man in journalism is somewhat of an innovation in this field, and it can hardly be supposed that he can have all the qualifications editors desire. The education and training which will be offered to the college student will be of a nature to correct and to improve the man so that he can fit more easily in the newspaper world after being graduated.

DAILY CHANGES FIELD

The Beatrice (Neb.) Sun this week changed from the morning to the evening field. E. M. Marvin is publisher.

Thank goodness, we didn't recognize the Soviet Government and have to back it up with Marines.—San José News.

WHITE CUTS WORKING HOUR

Emporia Gazette Owner Gives Wo ers Saturday Afternoons Off

Employes of the Emporia (Kan.) G ette are now being given a half-day every Saturday, William Allen Wh editor and publisher announced recen The final edition of the paper herea will be published at 2 P. M. and entire staff is dismissed from that ho

"I instituted the new regime," s Mr. White, "because I feel that five a half days will get me more kilow of human labor than a six day wee

N. Y. REPORTER ATTACKED

Paul Wallace, reporter for the N York Daily News, was attacked Feb. and stabbed in the back and chest, wh standing in front of a Greenwich Vill restaurant. He said he did not kn his assailant, whom he described as short man with a scarred lip.

THE SCRANTON SU
PIT WHERE THREE LIE
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

Norfolk Journal and Guide
DELAY THE MALONE SUIT
FEDERAL AID FOR HOWARD
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

Youngstown Vindicator
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

LOS ANGELES
Bank and Financial Advertising for 1926
Stated in Agate Lines

Los Angeles Times 1,960,224
Both Other Morning Papers Combined 1,416,814
All Three Afternoon Papers Combined 1,737,540

The above figures show how the Los Angeles Times completely dominates its field in selling bonds, stocks and bank services. It prints 12 per cent more such advertising than the combined three evening newspapers, and 38 per cent more than its two morning contemporaries put together.

For those who might argue that bonds and stocks indicate pulling power in terms of dollars only, it is important to know that the Los Angeles Times holds a similar position in the sale of ordinary small articles that represent "mass." For instance, in shoe advertising during 1926 the Los Angeles Times exceeded the second morning paper by 58 per cent and the largest afternoon paper by 59 per cent.

Whatever the object may be or the price at which it is sold, home-delivered circulation rates first, and the largest home-delivered circulation on the Coast is furnished by

Los Angeles Times

Eastern Representative:
Williams, Lawrence & Cresmer Co.
360 N. Michigan Blvd. CHICAGO
285 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

Our Customers Write Our Ads

"I am delighted with the report made to me by Mr. J. Kaster, our mechanical superintendent."

CHAS. G. MULLEN, General Manager
Tampa Daily Times

THE DUPLEX
SUPER-DUTY INTERCHANGEABLE UNIT PRESS

DOUBLE SEXTUPLE NOW BEING INSTALLED BY TAMPA DAILY TIMES

D. B. McKAY
President

CHAS. G. MULLEN
General Manager

"Florida's Great Home Daily"

THE TAMPA DAILY TIMES
TAMPA, FLORIDA

January 10, 1927.

MR. IRVING K. STONE, Pres.
Duplex Printing Press Company,
Battle Creek, Mich.

Dear Mr. Stone:—

I am delighted with the report made to me by Mr. J. Kaster, our mechanical superintendent, who is just back from Battle Creek after inspecting the new Super Duty Double Sextuple press you have just finished for us. Mr. Kaster is enthusiastic about the design and general sturdiness of construction, and he says it is the sweetest running machine he has ever examined. He is particularly pleased with the ease and simplicity of operation.

Mr. Kaster tells me that you began dismantling the press for shipment after his inspection. Our new mechanical building will be ready in about six weeks. If you can make shipment about the last of the month, we should be able to start erection immediately upon arrival. We need the press. Our present equipment has been overtaxed for months, and circulation continues to climb.

Yours very truly,
THE TAMPA DAILY TIMES,
Chas. G. Mullen,
General Manager.

CGM/H

"It is the sweetest running machine I have ever examined. I am particularly pleased with the ease and simplicity of operation."

JACK KASTER
Mechanical Superintendent
TAMPA DAILY TIMES

THE DUPLEX PRINTING PRESS COMPANY
of
BATTLE CREEK MICHIGAN

"MARINE DIPLOMACY" SATIRIZED AT ANNUAL GRIDIRON DINNER

President Coolidge and High Government Officials Present at Brilliant Washington Affair—Brown Installed as President

ALL Washington buzzed last Sunday with accounts of the brilliant Gridiron Club dinner and satirical stunting at the Willard Hotel ballroom on Saturday night, in the presence of President Coolidge, members of his Cabinet, distinguished members of the diplomatic corps, the governors of Maryland and New Jersey and scores of Senators, Representatives, prominent federal officials and invited guests, approximately 300, including the fifty-odd members of the club.

In the whole realm of social activities Gridiron dinners have been remarkable since 1885 when the club was organized, and this season's event, flavored with international significance and celebrating the close of a super-heated session of Congress, was notable even in club annals.

Two rules govern a Gridiron party and they were solemnly announced by Ashmun Brown, president of the club and Washington correspondent of Providence Journal, when the diners had found their places at the rose and tulip-decked tables: (1) Ladies are always present; (2) reporters are never present and guests are at liberty to speak from the heart in complete confidence that no word will be published.

On that platform the members of the club were free to jibe their guests in good nature and hear from them, in the same humorous spirit, exactly what they might think of those who interpret their acts before the reading public.

The tables were arranged in the form of a huge grill, faced by a raised platform also in the form of a grill. The latter was the stage for the stunts, all acted by members of the club. The ballroom was decorated with flags of all nations. The first course had no sooner been disposed of than the new officers, Ashmun Brown, as president and Harry J. Brown, Salt Lake Tribune correspondent, as vice-president, were installed with a gay little skit which played upon the name Brown. With customary flourishes a new member, Robert Choate, Washington correspondent of Boston Herald, was initiated.

At the last moment Secretary of State Kellogg sent word that he could not attend because of illness, and he missed a show very largely dealing with affairs in his bailiwick. He would have sat in the presence of the ambassadors from Germany, Cuba and Chili and the ministers from Canada and China.

Onto the stage marched a company of Washington correspondents in the uniforms of United States Marines, led by an officer impersonating none other than the Secretary of State himself. Here is the song they sang:

"Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching,
Forward, Kellogg, on the run;
Although Sherman may be right,
We are not too proud to fight,
For the diplomat is the man behind the gun."

"Coolidge, Coolidge, this is the way to do:
Just call the marines and they will get another term for you.
Coolidge, Coolidge, this is the way to do,
Just call the marines and they will make the world all safe for you."

Senator Borah, represented by a club member, rushed on the stage, declaring he was "against the men who put chevrons on our shirt-sleeve diplomacy," only to be told by one of the marines. "That's nothing, you're against everything." The senator then sang a solo, entitled, "Everything's Wrong," whereupon Sergt. Maj. Kellogg ordered a marine guard over him.

The officer impersonating Secretary Kellogg sang this solo:

"If involved in a dispute, do not stop to argue
—shoot!
Then you'll have the other fellow on the run;
Arbitration is all right,
But don't let it spoil a fight—
For the diplomat's the man behind the gun."

Congress, the marines decided, "had dictated long enough. Let's march up Capitol Hill and tell them where to get off," and marched off the stage singing:

"We are the bold marines,
Everywhere they need us,
Everywhere they speed us;
Statesmen can all resign
For here come the bold marines."

Government instruction in the "speakeasy" business was portrayed with Uncle Sam in the role of proprietor and big Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of prohibition, as bartender. Amid all the paraphernalia of an old-time, pre-Volstead bar, Uncle Sam spoke approvingly of undercover work, although he urged Gen. Andrews to keep within the budget.

"Aren't you getting any co-operation from Canada?" he asked.

"You bet—by the truck load," replied Andrews.

"Who's bringing it in?" pursued Uncle Sam.

"The undercover men," responded Gen. Andrews, "here he comes now."

An undercover man carried in a large keg which he deposited in front of the bar.

"Say, General," he said, "this Scotch is good. There ought to be an indictment in every drink."

"I hope it's better than the last lot," returned the General. "It didn't average a conviction to the barrel."

Uncle Sam spoke reminiscently of the "good old days when, as a rule, they didn't die on the premises."

Pleading with Uncle Sam to "come home," Senator Bruce recited:

"Oh, uncle dear uncle, come home with us now,
The clock in the steeple strikes 1.
That you should sell gin is a terrible sin,
For you know there is death in a bun."

Uncle Sam, guided by the orphans, started to go home, fearing that unless he didn't he might encounter difficulty in getting appropriations for government speakeasies.

President Coolidge's "iron horse," was the subject of another skit, a member representing Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis declaring that "Jocky Calvin Coolidge," mounted on "Old Dynamo, by Thomas Edison out of Electric Socket," would be the winner of the 1928 presidential race.

The paper navy was jibed at in another satire by club members. One song ran:

"A capital ship for an ocean trip
Is the good ship 5-5-3;
Though I suppose that nobody knows
What kind of a ship that be.
Now iron and steel may make you feel
Contempt for the lurking foe
But 'tis cheaper to find 'mid the raging wind
How far a dollar will go."

"Since investigation has become the Senate's outstanding characteristic," announced a club member, "we have concluded that its nosiness entitles it to be called the Cyrano de Bergerac of politics."

The music committee put on a "Purity" skit with a senatorial candidate appearing for admittance only to be arrested by Senator James A. Reed, policeman. A member, representing Reed, sang a solo, to the tune "Here Comes Fatima."

"We are quite aghast at such presumption
When a candidate
Knocks upon the Senate gate
Everyone we view with the assumption
That he is a crook
And he must be brought to book.
We want to be exclusive,
We'll keep all others out—
And every time we see one coming, you will hear us shout:
Lock the doors and windows,
Chase that man away,
'Cause here in the Senate we are all so pure today."

Following is a list of the Gridiron members who gave the show and were hosts at the dinner tables:

Ashmun Brown, President; Clinton W. Gilbert, Philadelphia Public Ledger; C. K. Berryman, Washington Evening Star; John C. O'Laughlin, Army and Navy Journal; Leroy T. Vernon, Chicago Daily News; Arthur S. Henning, Chicago Tribune; W. W. Jermane, Seattle Times; Henry Suydam, Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

John E. Monk, New York Times; John Snure, Des Moines Register; Robert Patchin, New York; Henry Xander, Washington; Walker S. Buel, Cleveland Plain Dealer; Harry J. Brown, Salt Lake Tribune; J. Ha Cunningham, Washington; Charles G. Ro St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Charles S. Groves, Boston Globe; Edgar Snyder, U. S. Marshal; M. Harry Steve Washington; Walter E. Adams, Boston, Mas Mark L. Goodwin, Dallas News; James Wright, Buffalo News; Jay G. Hayden, troit News; R. M. Ginter, Pittsburgh Gaze Times.

Ernest G. Walker, Bangor Commerci Richard V. Oulahan, New York Times; Jan P. Hornaday, Indianapolis News; R. A. R erts, Kansas City Star; Mark Sullivan, N York Herald-Tribune; Alfred J. Stofer, I mingham News; Ulric Bell, Louisville Cour Journal; Charles P. Keyser, St. Louis Glo Democrat.

Robert L. Norton, Boston Post; Char Michelson, New York World; Robert Choate, Boston Herald; J. F. M. Bowie, N York; J. P. Miller, Washington; Robert Bar New York Evening World; Thomas F. Log New York; A. H. Kirchhofer, Buffalo Ev ing News.

Carter Field, New York Herald-Tribu E. B. Clark, Chicago Evening Post; J. Ryan, New York; Ira E. Bennett, Washi ton Post; H. E. C. Bryant Charlotte Observ Arthur J. Sinnott, Newark News; Stanley Reynolds, Baltimore Sun; John H. Sm Washington.

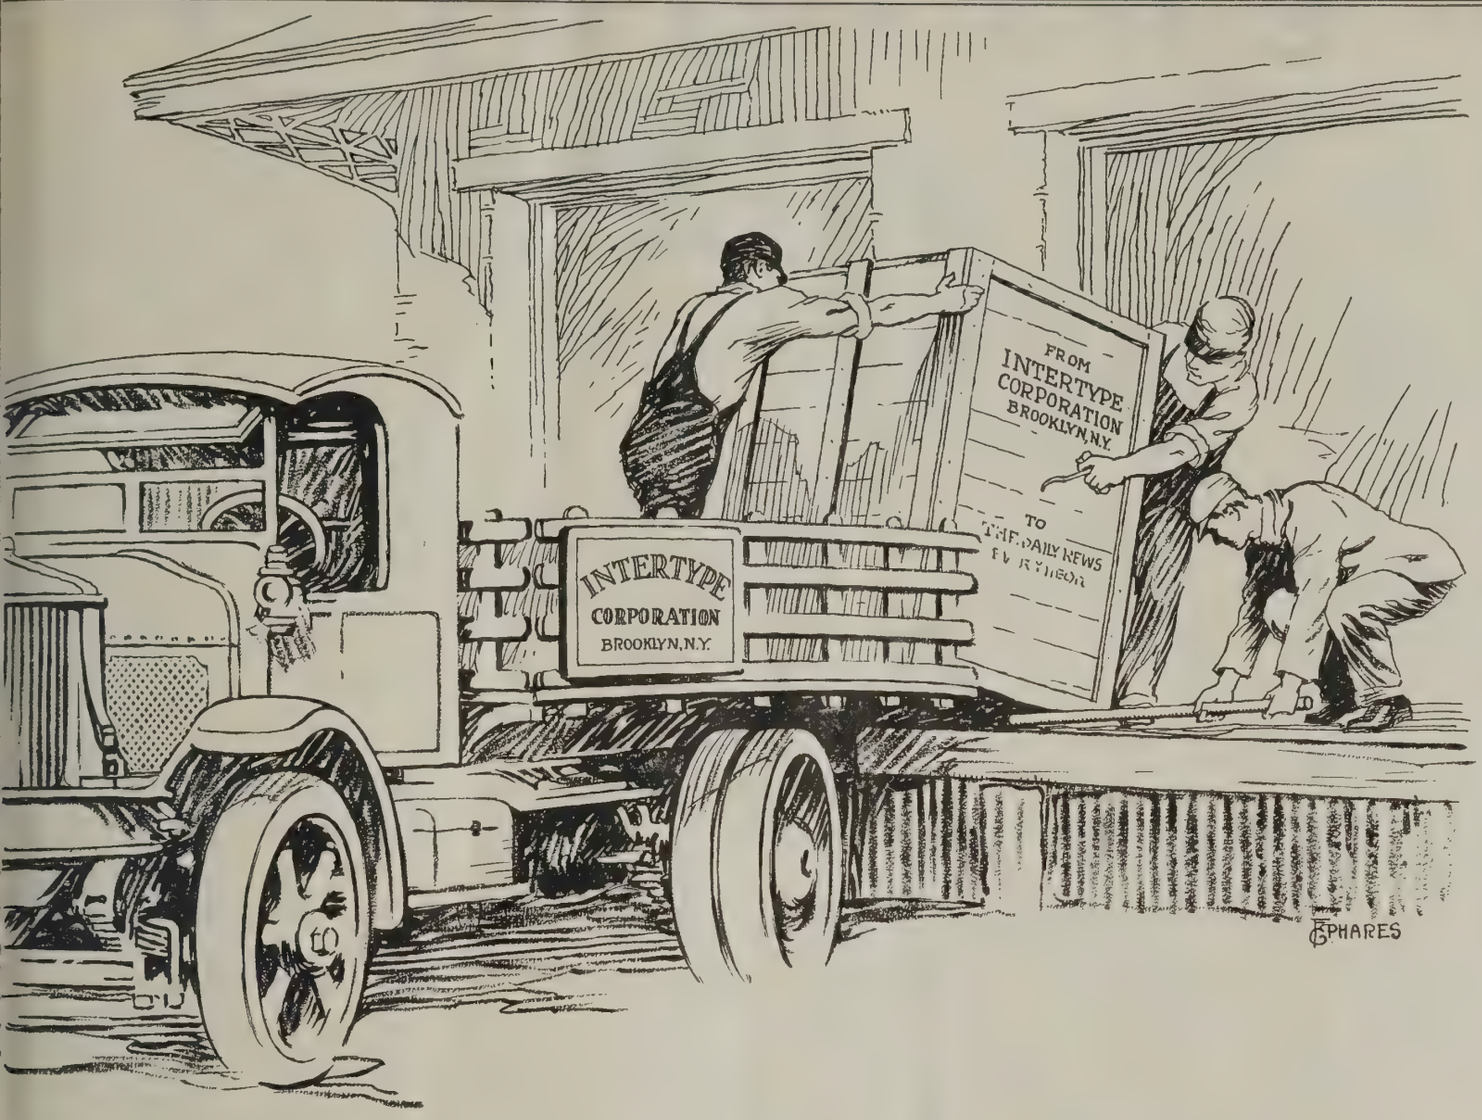
Herndon Tudor Morsell, Washington; F East, Washington; George H. Wilson, Wa ington; A. B. Pierce. Washington; Henry West, Washington Post; Henry Hall, Pi burgh Chronicle-Telegraph; John P. Sou Port Washington, Long Island, and P. Johnson, Washington Evening Star.

Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

SCHENECTADY UNION-STAR
130 AWARD FOR F., J. & G. LAND AND T
and Poor. He Slays Family Railway Cor
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5



Largest HOME delivered circulation in Los Angeles!
Los Angeles Examiner
DAILY SUNDAY

Read and Approved

"I am very glad to refer inquiring men to the Classified columns of Editor & Publisher. I read the Classified advertisements every week with a great deal of interest and no doubt every executive does the same."

And the prominent Newspaper Executive who wrote the above knows our Classified, because, through that department, he got the opportunity that led to his present position and whenever he needs a man he consults our

Classified Service

A Repeat Order Is Proof of Satisfaction

Of all Intertype customers operating 10 or more Intertypes, 87% have shown their satisfaction in Intertype performance by one or more repeat orders while 63% have placed 3 or more repeat orders.

For the year 1926, 42% of all Intertype customers were repeat-order customers.

Could you ask any stronger proof of the uniform satisfaction with Intertypes?

Isn't it quite evident that the Intertype Composing Machine MUST have very valuable features? Wouldn't you like to know what these valuable features are?

Investigate....

Standardized INTERTYPE TRADE MARK

INTERTYPE CORPORATION: New York 1440 Broadway; Chicago 130 N. Franklin St.; Memphis McCall Bldg.; San Francisco 560 Howard St.; Los Angeles 1240 S. Main St.; Boston 80 Federal St.; London; Berlin

EDITORIAL

THE BOOTLEG TERROR

A GANG of men wearing flour sacks over their heads stopped the driver of an automobile on a country road in Georgia on the night of Feb. 25, pulled him from his seat, flogged him with straps, sticks and fists and flung his unconscious body on a highway bridge. When the victim revived he dragged himself home and the sheriff offered $300 reward for the apprehension of his assailants.

The man was H. M. Flanders, editor of the Soperton (Ga.) News. He is a cripple, having six years ago been shot by a thug because of an editorial printed in the News. The men who flogged the editor last week told him as he was lying in the road, that they would "learn him what to print in his paper."

What was the animus toward Mr. Flanders? Why, he had editorially complained of lack of enforcement of the dry laws in his county. He had said that it seemed to him as if "God had forgotten Soperton." He said that local citizens were profiting as bootleggers, defying principle and civic decency in order to get rich quick. That was the offense.

Poor old Editor Dale's fight in Indiana is similar, although his case is complicated by a judge whose conduct on the bench needs no characterization in a newspaper audience. Whisky was at the bottom of the slaughter of Don Mellett in Ohio. There is scarcely a week that EDITOR & PUBLISHER does not learn of some outrage or threat against editors who have dared to speak out plainly for law observance. The Bootleg Terror is sweeping over the country, usually aided and abetted by public officials. Just how high the evil influence goes we can only surmise.

No man in his senses will dispute the statement that public opinion in this country is heavily against the traffic in spirits and the United States is legally through with whisky, at least so far as this generation is concerned. While the laggard Federal government whines of the "impossibility" of dealing with offenders against the dry law courageous editors in many states are battling against the mischief that booze is creating among the people of their communities. When they use plain language, and commence to hit at the foul official conspiracy, that gives the bootlegger his only lease on life, they are flogged, locked up and persecuted or shot to death from the back.

It is a black chapter in newspaper history that is now being written. It is something for the defenders of free press and editorial candor to get excited about.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER puts the question to the craft: Is everything being done by newspapers that newspapers can do to support the causes of editors who are under fire? The Bootleg Terror becomes a hideous nightmare when it strikes at your own threshold, and that may happen any day to any honest editor. Shall the American press permit an ignorant, brutal, lawless mob to censor its opinion, "learning" us what we shall print?

Frank R. Kent in Baltimore Sun maintains that "since President Coolidge entered the White House he has had more solid support than any other President."

"TABLOID PRESS"

SOME standard-size papers in New York are frequently referring invidiously to the "tabloid press." We object to the generalization. If there is fault to be found with a newspaper, it should be called by name. "Tabloid" refers to form, not contents. The "tabloid press" represents almost as many degrees of virtue in this country as does the "standard-size press." We rise to a point of fairness.

The semi-annual satirical plays of the Gridiron Club, where the high dignitaries of the government witness humorous skits portraying public opinion on matters of public concern, and where "ladies are always present, but reporters never," is one of the staunchest pillars of democratic institutions.

And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.—I. Corinthians, XIII; 3.

THE NEW NATIONAL ADVERTISING

LIKE the tale of a 1918 attack on the Western front reads the announcement of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company's plans for an "all-newspaper" advertising campaign to sell its varied merchandise and services during 1927. Even today, when advertising people have become accustomed to thinking of agate lines by the billion and appropriations which run into seven figures, the facts of the Westinghouse campaign fall on the field with terrific impact.

Starting in April, the advertising message will be spread month by month thereafter, varying as the seasons and the articles in public demand warrant. It will be carried by 414 newspapers in 313 cities, reaching a local and trading area population in excess of 80,000,000 individuals. Nineteen million, three hundred seventy-five thousand copies of the selected newspapers are circulated daily. Only in the daily newspaper can national advertising be presented with the local, timely sales message; only in the daily newspaper can local advertising, with the direct, timely sales message, be duplicated until it assumes nation-wide proportions.

No special pleader for the daily newspaper has ever made so strong a case for the daily newspaper as has this company in its decision to change its advertising channel from general to specific, particular, sharply defined channels, and the reasons it gives to its sales force for the change. In the new era of competition between commercial giants, profit is derived from volume of business. Advertising is indispensable to the program, of course, not advertising, the mystery science, but advertising, the mass salesman, regimented and manoeuvred like every other element of the sales force. The shotgun distribution of "national" advertising in magazines cannot hold its place in the new trade alignment, against the hard-striking, straightline force of a well planned and timed campaign in daily newspapers.

In discussing the 2 per cent cash discount to advertising agencies, publishers should keep in mind that they are not dealing with the principal, but his agent, and that the service perforced by the latter is a prompt collection service.

ANOTHER "LAST FRONTIER"

ONE of the last links of the present with the frontier passed this week when the Texas Legislature amended the libel statutes which two generations ago replaced the six-gun as arbitrator of questions of honor between editors and outraged citizens. The times no longer call for laws which hardly permit the name of a man to be mentioned in newspaper columns unless with special precautions that the mention could in no way be construed as a reflection upon the mentioned, and newspaper men of the State hail the new statute as one of the most liberal in the entire libel code.

No newspaper man, however jealous he may be of professional privilege, can quarrel with a law which provides only that a news report be correct, fair and truthful. That is the daily aim, even though it sometime fails to hit the center of the target. Texas editors, in the past privileged only to report the legislative proceedings and placed under the burden of proving every assertion they reported from other sources, have won a notable victory in their long fight against influences, which preferred to operate in the darkness that the old law afforded.

THE SPIDER AND THE FL

HERE is a room, thirty feet long, twel wide, twelve feet high. A spider on his occasions paused on an end wall, a foot fr ceiling and six feet from either side. From his myriad ocular facets he leveled a long glar paling with it a fly, enjoying a siesta on the c side wall a foot from the floor and six fee either side wall. Knowing nothing of triangles tenuses, square root or trigonometry, the spide it a simple task to travel in the straightest possible line to his prey, and he thereby set for the best minds in America.

"How far did the spider travel?" the Kans Star asked its readers early last month. Eve the answers before them—40 feet—only a han the thousands who solve the Star's Sunday traced the spider's path. EDITOR & PUBLISHE weeks ago passed the idea to readers of "Hu with credit to the Star, and a new army of a Euclids wore pencils pointless and destroyed re copy paper. Their path to truth was blocke long line of decimals, which, in the bliss of hi ignorance, the spider had wholly avoided.

In despair, hundreds of them, apparently written to the Kansas City Star, demanding grammed demonstration of the spider's travel the Star's stock of reprinted answers was lo exhausted. The volume of personal mail sw the puzzle editor and was beginning to reac high levels in EDITOR & PUBLISHER office.

In response to an appeal from the puzzle edito started this fruitful speculation, we print on a page the chart of the eight-legged pest's voyag the earnest hope that our readers will turn thoughts to affairs of less importance and per and the Kansas City Star's people to do lik We've got to get busy next week with our tax blank, for instance.

California Newspaper Publishers Associa has adopted resolutions to mail back to employers of press agents all manuscripts s mitted, thus indicating the waste. The edi agreed to form local committees to handle p licity matter for all worthy charities o co-operative, non-profit basis. Good stuff!

ON THE RADIO

HUXLEY'S undying tragedy is with us a another theory has tangled with a set o facts and come away badly battered. months ago, gossip in advertising circles had manufacturers and others who engaged time air of commercial radio stations had paid $20,000,000 to reach the public through thi channel. The figure was as good as any otl the absence of definite information, and has accepted as plausible by some people well inf on other matters. Apparently, however, it is stuff that poets transmute into dreams.

Statistics for January, 1927, compiled by N Advertising Records, covering the paid broad over the three principal radio "hook-ups," i that the advertisers paid about $270,000 for th Many famous national advertising names contr to this total, which includes all of the bro advertising of the major stations in all parts country, but does not take over the hundreds o broadcast efforts through stations of small pow limited range. Assume that the total time char these efforts equal those of the listed "Red" and "Southern" radio chains—an assumption requires considerable effort. Assume also th cost of employing artists and entertainers is on the average to the cost of the station another assumption which approaches the far Assume also that January—at the height of the for good radio reception—represents only an a month. Taking all of these at maximum valu highest estimate of the sum spent in radio adve is less than $13,000,000 for the year. Half o figure is probably more nearly correct.

Anne Nichols sells "Abie's Irish Rose" t rights for $2,300,000, again demonstrating limitless heights of reward for mediocrity.

PERSONAL

ROBERT LINCOLN O'BRIEN, editor of the Boston Herald, spoke recently on "Lincoln and the American Ideals," at the Woman's Republican club, Boston.

William T. Dewart, publisher of the New York Sun, and Mrs. Dewart left New York on Tuesday for Florida.

Marcellus E. Foster, who recently joined the Houston Press as editor and part owner, was recipient Feb. 21, of a resolution extending the felicitations of the Houston Press Composing Room Chapel on his resumption of newspaper work.

Henry L. Stoddard, former publisher of the New York Evening Mail and later editorial adviser on the New York Telegram, sailed for a tour abroad following the recent sale of the Telegram.

J. E. Rockwell, former publisher of the Duluth News-Tribune is in New York to meet his wife, who is returning this week from an extended trip abroad.

M. E. Tracy, New York City, editorial writer for the Scripps-Howard newspapers, is on an extended trip during which he will visit all members of the group.

Thomas B. Shoaff, for 64 years in the printing business and 54 years editor and publisher, celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary Feb. 23. He is senior editor of the Shelbyville (Ill.) Shelby County Leader.

J. G. Kelly, owner and editor of the Walla Walla (Wash.) Daily Bulletin, recently purchased the controlling interest in the Church Grape Juice Manufacturing company of Kennewick and Pasco, Wash.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

HERBERT L. THOMAS, JR., of the advertising department, Columbus Ohio State Journal, and Miss Rachel Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey R. Young of Columbus, will be married April 6. Mr. Young, father of Miss Young, is advertising manager of the Columbus Dispatch.

Howard F. Hancock, formerly with the advertising department of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times in the local field promotion department, has resigned to become advertising manager of the Seminole (Okla.) County News.

Clare Cook, of the advertising department Cleveland Plain Dealer, and son of C. E. Cook, editor of the Scripps-Howard Ohio newspapers, has been appointed assistant director of the newly organized Columbus Industrial Bureau.

S. L. Hagen has joined the advertising staff of the Port Angeles (Wash.) Evening News.

Milton Gifford, of the detail department of the Camden (N. J.) Evening Courier, has been made head of the detail department of the Morning Post, published by the same company.

J. T. McGiveran, for seven years a salesman in the national advertising department of the Chicago Herald & Examiner, has been appointed head of that department. He has already assumed his new duties. He will direct the national business of the Herald and Examiner with full responsibility for the Chicago staff and for its offices in other cities.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

HERT HEAL, managing editor of the Salt Lake City Telegram, has joined the Salt Lake City Tribune as managing editor, a new editorial title on that paper. He is succeeded on the Telegram by Robert C. Elliott, formerly news editor of the Indianapolis Star.

Edward C. McAdams, for the past four years managing editor of the Lynn (Mass.) Telegram-News, has resigned.

Russell Bennett, former radio editor, Boston Sunday Advertiser, is conducting a department for Radio Land, a new magazine.

Harry N. Moore, until recently on the editorial staff of the Camden (N. J.) Evening Courier, has been appointed chief editorial writer for the Morning Post, published from the same plant.

William C. Howells, correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer at Columbus, has been commissioned a major in the military intelligence branch of the officers reserve corps. He is a nephew of the late William Dean Howells.

Frank P. Sibley, reporter of the Boston (Mass.) Globe, addressed a meeting and banquet of alumni of Northeastern University Law School at the Boston City Club last week.

Ervin Christy, formerly with the Jamestown (O.) Journal, has joined the staff of the A. H. Prine newspaper agency at London, O.

C. A. Harrley, city editor of the Pomeroy (O.) Daily Tribune, has retired because of ill health.

Edwin V. O'Neel has been promoted from the copydesk to assistant city editor of the Indianapolis Times.

Kenneth Delano, Augusta representative of the Portland (Me.) Press-Herald, has been elected president of the Augusta Men's Club.

John J. Elson of the Buffalo Evening News staff submitted the prize-winning manuscript in a "Stories of Buffalo" contest conducted by the Buffalo Atheletic Club.

W. L. Martin has been made editor of the Southeast Oklahoman at Hugo, Okla.

W. S. Coughlin, sports writer for the Buffalo Courier, is with the Buffalo International League baseball team in training in Florida.

Ralph Thorn, editor of the Saturday tabloid of the Buffalo Evening News, is touring through the Pacific coast region by automobile.

Earle A. Meyer, former newspaperman, has joined the publicity staff of Famous Players-Lasky at the New York office.

Frank J. Barnard has resigned as city hall reporter for the Lynn (Mass.) Telegram-News.

Ernest LeRoy Cascadin, who has been doing assignments for the Brooklyn Standard Union, sailed two weeks ago for France. He will do special articles for the New York World.

Joseph Lilly, a reporter on the Brooklyn Eagle, is taking three months' vacation to finish a novel.

Clarence Paden has become editor of the Woodward (Okla.) Daily Press, succeeding Pierce Munsey.

MARRIED

EDWARD FRANCIS ROGAN of the Fall River (Mass.) Herald News composing room to Miss Madeline Mary McLear of Fall River at St. Patrick's church, Fall River, Feb. 21.

Harold P. Robinson, of the advertising staff, Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review, to Miss Dorothy Lenore Stewart of St. Maries, Idaho, Feb. 15.

Edward Mulligan of Dorchester, Mass., former member of the staffs of the Boston Herald and Traveler, to Miss Margie Daley of South Boston, in New York, Feb. 24. Mulligan is now in the advertising department of the New York Times.

King Williams, editor of the Chicago Heights Star, to Miss Dorothy Marion Young of Chicago on Feb. 19.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

L. C. STRATTON, who is editor of the recently organized Associated Press Feature Service, has been connected with the A. P. for seven years, having joined the organization as an editor in the Kansas City bureau. Prior to that his early training had been on the staff of the Winfield (Kan.) Courier.

L. C. STRATTON

From Kansas City, Mr. Stratton was transferred to the Oklahoma City bureau, where he first entered the A. P. mail service. Later, after a short experience as correspondent in Lincoln, Neb., he became connected with the Chicago office as filing editor. This was in 1922, and shortly afterwards he was promoted to the position of director of the state mail services of the central division. Coming to New York a year and a half ago, he was appointed general mail editor, the position he held when the feature service was organized, and he was placed in charge of it.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

KINGSPORT (Tenn.) TIMES, 88-page Tenth Anniversary edition, Feb. 27.

Galveston (Tex.) Tribune, Greater Galveston edition, Feb. 24.

Shawnee (Okla.) News, 48-page Industrial Number, Feb. 27.

Galveston (Tex.) Daily News, 42-page Greater Galveston edition, Feb. 25.

Lexington (Ky.) Herald, 64-page Annual Thoroughbred edition, Feb. 24.

Newport (R. I.) Daily News, Home and Industrial Number, two sections, Feb. 23.

Terre Haute (Ind.) Tribune, Auto

(Continued on page 22)

We Announce the Appointment of

Frank K. Speidell

lately with the George L. Dyer Co. of New York as a member of our sales organization, effective March 7

The McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

V. V. McNITT, President — TIMES BLDG., New York — C. V. McADAM, Vice President

This Is

LUCILLE VAN SLYKE

You have doubtless seen short stories or serials by her in the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Red Book, American, Ladies' Home Journal, McClure's, Pictorial Review, Harper's Bazaar, Delineator, McCall's.

Mrs. Van Slyke has written, especially for Metropolitan Newspaper Service,—

"That Gay Young Set"

A series of weekly short storials, each superbly illustrated, each complete in itself, but featuring the same principal characters

Combining Serial Pull with Short Story Speed

Send now for copy and terms

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St., New York City

(Continued from page 21)

Show Number of 22 pages, Feb. 20.

Rockford (Ill.) Morning Star, 10-page Palace theater anniversary number, Feb. 20.

Marysville (Cal.) Democrat, special section on completion of Hart building, Feb. 19.

Terre Haute (Ind.) Sunday Star, 38-page automobile show edition, Feb. 20.

Lawrence (Mass.) Evening Tribune, automobile show section of 26 pages, Feb. 14.

Worcester (Mass.) Evening Post, annual Home Craft edition, tabloid size, of 40 pages, Feb. 16.

Boston (Mass.) Evening Transcript, dog show section, Feb. 19.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

TWO new Duplex presses installed by the Brisbane (Australia) Courier were put in operation recently by Hon. J. W. Blair, Chief Justice of Queensland, and Justice Webb.

Sheboygan (Wis.) Press adopted a new type dress. Heavy headline letters have been replaced with Bodoni and Bookman light italic.

Cosmopolis (Wash.) Times is making plans for moving into a larger plant and increasing its equipment.

Monroe (N. C.) Journal recently celebrated its 33rd anniversary with the installation of a new press.

SUSPENSIONS

DOW CITY (Ia.) VISITOR suspended publication last week, after having been in existence 10 months. It was established by Earl J. F. Cooley and taken over later by Earl Wolven. The Bulletin, Denison, has taken over the subscription list.

Livingston (Wis.) Leader, well known southwestern Wisconsin paper, published the last 10 years by Harvey Schermerhorn, suspended last week and the publisher formed a partnership with his brother, who publishes a Muscoda paper.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

HERBERT F. KRETSCHMAN, from copy desk, Seattle Star, to editor, Auburn (Wash.) Globe-Republican.

Charles Brunner, from staff Winlock (Wash.) News, to Raymond (Wash.) Advertiser. Arthur Eastman has taken the place made vacant by Brunner's change.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

THREE Atlantic City news services, the Atlantic Press Service, K. E. Taylor Photos, and the Abner J. Gelula Service has combined as the Atlantic News Association.

Reginald P. Mitchell of the Miami Associated Press bureau has been sent to Palm Beach to cover news there during the season.

Myer Berger, rewrite man for the Standard News Association, New York, underwent an operation for appendicitis Tuesday at Peck Memorial Hospital, Brooklyn, and is convalescing.

Norman E. Brown, sports editor of the Central Press Association, has left for the southern training camps and will have a daily article during the training period.

Jack Cuddy has been transferred from the Atlanta Bureau to the New York office of the United Press. Roscoe Snipes succeeds him in Atlanta.

Pratt (Kan.) Tribune was this week elected to membership in the Associated Press. Charles W. Pratt is publisher.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

RICHARD DOBYNS, partner with William Curry in the Oregon (Mo.) Sentinel, has sold his interests to Mr. Curry.

Edgar White, editor, and Charles W. Weisenborn, manager, have acquired the Macon (Mo.) Republican, which for many years has been operated by Philip Gans, former president of the Missouri Press Association.

Charles D. Ulmer and his son, Prescott Ulmer, have purchased the Port Angeles (Wash.) Olympic Tribune.

C. O. Hedrick has purchased the Wewoka (Okla.) Capital-Democrat.

Holden (Mo.) Enterprise was sold last week by Ralph G. Bray to Clarence J. Kearney.

Delphi (Ind.) Citizen changed hands last week when Henry B. Wilson and his wife sold the newspaper and office building to Edmund Parke Beadle of Rockville, president of the Indiana Democratic Editorial Association and former owner of the Rockville Tribune.

Thomas C. Snyder, publisher of the Belmont (Wis.) Success, which he founded in 1903, has sold the paper to Benedict & Moody, and will devote his attention to his duties as postmaster in Belmont. Mr. Snyder, a veteran of Wisconsin journalism, founded the Cuba City (Wis.) News, the Belmont Success and the Livingston (Wis.) Leader.

Plans for the annual spring frolic of the ADVERTISING CLUB OF INDIANAPOLIS March 7 to 12 have taken shape with the opening of headquarters at 36 West Ohio street in charge of Claude Wallin, show manager. The play "Patricia" will be presented at the Murat theater each night of the frolic.

ASSOCIATIONS

J. V. WEBER, publisher of the Slayton (Minn.) Murray County Herald, was recently elected president of the MINNESOTA EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION at its 61st annual convention, succeeding Carl Eastwood, of the Le Seur News-Herald.

The silver loving cup awarded by the WASHINGTON PRESS ASSOCIATION as a prize for the best slogan submitted in the "Awakening of Washington" campaign was awarded to H. N. Whitelaw of Oakesdale for the slogan—"Nature's Paradise; Man's Opportunity!"

At a recent meeting of the NEW BEDFORD (Mass.) ADVERTISING CLUB, Charles T. Smith was chosen president with Leo C. Higgins vice-president, and J. Maxim Ryder as secretary and treasurer.

More than two hundred members of the NEWSPAPER CLUB OF BOSTON met last week at the University Club for their annual banquet which had been postponed from last month. George W. Perkins, Edward E. Whiting, and Fred C. Green were in charge of the affair.

New officers of the PRESS PHOTOGRAPHERS ASSOCIATION OF BOSTON, include Lester R. McLellan, Boston Advertiser, president; Maynard N. White, Herald-Traveler, vice-president; Charles Snyder, free-lance photographer, secretary; Morris Fineberg, Boston Post, treasurer; Alton Blackinton, Herald-Traveler, assistant secretary; Robson Nelson, Advertiser-American, assistant treasurer.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY (Pa.) PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION held a meeting Feb. 25 as a tribute to Frank A. Crumb, editor of the Alfred Sun, who celebrated his 40th anniversary as editor and publisher of the publication.

NORTH LOUISIANA PRESS ASSOCIATION held a one-day semi-annual meeting at Monroe, La., Feb. 26. Fifty members attended. C. E. Faulk, publisher of the Monroe News-Star, president of the association, presided.

LEAGUE of ADVERTISING WOMEN of NEW YORK inspected the Brooklyn plant of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company, March 1, and in the evening held a dinner meeting in the Linotype cafeteria. Fred C. Grumman, manager of the New York Agency of the Company, welcomed the guests. Helen M. Rockey is president of the league.

BOSTON CLUB of PRINTING HOUSE CRAFTSMEN observed Newspaper Night at their banquet held at the Hotel Westminster in Boston last week. Carl A. Fowler of the Transcript was the toastmaster.

SCHOOLS

THIRTY-TWO students voted against theatre censorship, thirteen for absolute censorship, and three for a modified form in a recent poll conducted by Gilbert Gabriel, dramatic critic on the staff of the New York Sun, in his journalism class at New York University.

Maine Campus, University of Maine weekly newspaper has been taken over by a group of former newspapermen and writers, now connected with the faculty, headed by Edward H. Kelley, comptroller of the University and for many years managing editor of the Bangor (Me.) Daily Commercial.

Sixty students of the University of Iowa school of journalism have produced more than 24,000 inches of news matter, concerning the university, which has been printed in state papers, according to a summary of the activities of the first semester. Although the bulk of material went into local papers, clippings from a score of states are included in the grand total. Requirements are that each student have a minimum of 400 inches of copy printed each semester and a corps of 35 copy readers handle the news matter thus produced.

Russell Pierce, formerly publicity director at the University of Chicago, has been given charge of a new study course in public relations at the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern University. Pierce was graduated from the University of Chicago, where he was editor of the Daily Maroon.

REJOINS UNION CITY DAILY

Haddon Ivins, Elizabeth Times M. E., Named Dispatch Editor

Haddoh Ivins, for 12 years managing editor of the Union City (N. J.) Hudson Dispatch has returned to that newspaper as editor-in-chief after an absence of one year in Elizabeth with the Times of that city. During his absence, Thomas F. Martin, owner of the Dispatch, and for 15 years Secretary of State of New Jersey, died, and Mr. Ivins returns to join in the management with William Rubel. Mr. Rubel has been with the Dispatch 20 years and is now president and general manager.

Morris Miller has been named day city editor. Miller was with the Dispatch for nearly 10 years, having left two years ago to become managing editor of the Bayonne (N. J.) Times. Frank Boyce remains as night city editor.

Two others of the former Ivins staff have returned to the Dispatch in the reorganization, Irving Brody who went with him to Elizabeth to write politics, and Alice Manning, feature writer.

Morris Lending, managing editor during Mr. Ivins' absence, has resigned.

WOULD BAR DENTISTS' ADS

A member of the dental profession who is a member of the Utah legislature has introduced a bill which would make it unlawful for any dentist or group of dentists to practice under an assumed name or a trade name of any kind, or to advertise prices for their services.

FLASHES

It takes a lot of vanity to fear that th kid won't turn out as well as you did.—Vancouver Sun.

A suitor, also, occasionally has a thi party scare.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

The per capita apportionment library books is said to be six-tenths a book. By reading eight out of ten the modern novels the average pers can reach his quota.—Cincinnati Enquir

"Until last month," says D. L. H., regarded Texas as our outstanding h state. But while traveling through th section I found a number of cafeteri groceries operating under the name Helpy-Selfy Stores."—Kansas City St

In the armament race our bandits le those of all other nations.—Brookl Eagle.

One trouble with teeth in the Prohi tion Law is that they require so mu gold filling.—Seattle Argus.

Another thing about old Dobbin. Y didn't need to pour any anti-freeze in hi —Vancouver Sun.

The molecule has been broken up, ports Professor Taylor of Princeton, charging mercury atoms with light ra The charge of the light brigade! L rays and atom!—Chicago Daily News.

The press is quite colorful these d reviewing the yellow peril, the red m ace and blue laws.—Atlanta Constituti

Headline informs us, "Noted Archit Sold His Art for Spite, Wife Say Judging by some public buildings, l of 'em do the same thing.—H. R. Far in Edmonton Bulletin.

The butchers use everything about hog but the squeal, and the consur uses that when he is told the price pork.—Durham Sun.

Altho the United States possesses 000,000 automobiles, the average Am ican buys three times as many shoes the European. Evidently the few pe trians left in this country must step liv —Seattle Times

Half a Million Dollars stands between you and the hazard of Experiment

THE American Gas Association has set aside the sum of $500,000 for laboratory testing and development of Factory Furnaces using gas for a fuel.

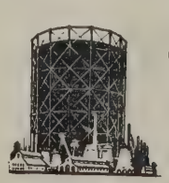
Manufacturers are not asked to put their money in any gas-burning equipment on an experimental basis. Careful, competent and scientific investigation will be made on any industrial gas-burning equipment the installation of which is under consideration by any manufacturer.

Write to the American Gas Association or your local gas company for facts, laboratory test and record of performance. They will gladly supply you with all available data.

Gas is the Ideal Factory Fuel—clean, convenient, economical and easily controlled. Get the facts.

American Gas Association

342 Madison Avenue, New York City



Send today for our interesting book,
"Gas—the Ideal Factory Fuel"

YOU CAN DO IT BETTER WITH GAS

Four Advantages of Gas

Dependable— any time, any place, any quantity.

Controllable— exact temperatures, automatically controlled.

Economical— lowest final cost per unit of production.

Clean— comfortable factory working conditions.

REPRESENTING THE NEWSPAPERS

Three Cardinal Rules of Newspaper Space Salesmanship Listed—Sydney Record Names William Wolfe—Six Point League Committee to Meet

THREE cardinal rules of newspaper space salesmanship were listed this week for EDITOR & PUBLISHER by one of the country's leading newspaper representatives. They follow:

"1.—Sell the real stability of your newspaper; its position in the field; and tell the truth about your field.

"2.—Never discuss the demerits of the opposition newspaper; discuss the merits of your own.

"3.—Sell white space backed by circulation in a definite buyer's market and unsupported by weak promises of co-operation."

"Destructive competition is one of the chief weaknesses of newspaper solicitation," this representative continued. "It is one of the most baneful things in the whole scheme of newspaper life. Comparisons are proverbially odious, and the stench of them is particularly strong in the selling of newspaper space.

"When a solicitor discusses his opposition paper to discredit it, the solicitation unsettles the space buyer's mind and breaks down his confidence in the whole system of newspaper advertising."

William Wolfe, publishers' representative, New York, has been appointed national representative for the United States, for the Sydney (Nova Scotia) Record.

The G. Logan Payne Company, New York, has been appointed to represent the Merrill (Wis.) Herald in the national field.

Hal Hursch, formerly a member of the staff of Guy S. Osborn, Inc., Detroit, has joined the advertising staff of the Nation's Business, Washington.

A luncheon meeting of the executive committee of the Six Point League, New York society of newspaper representatives, will be held at the Advertising Club of New York on March 8.

MITCHELL HONORED AGAIN

President of Northwest Missouri Press Heads Republican Editors

Fred Mitchell, editor of the Excelsior Springs (Mo.) Standard and president of the Northwest Missouri Press association, was elected president of the Republican Editorial Association of Missouri in St. Louis, recently. Walter S. Dickey, owner and editor of the Kansas City Journal Post who has served two years as president, again was offered the presidency, but declined.

FRED MITCHELL

Sam A. Clark, editor of the Republican-Record of Carrollton, was elected vice-president; W. B. Talbott of the Warrensburg Standard-Herald, recording secretary, and Charles W. Fear, editor of the State Blue Book, secretary-treasurer.

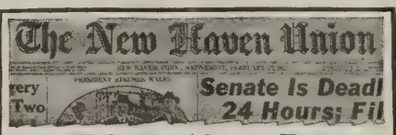
Mr. Mitchell is promulgator of a plan in Excelsior Springs which has resulted in $30,000 being raised for advertising that health resort in newspapers.

DAILY STARTS BROADCASTING



First Program of WBET, Boston Transcript, Put on Air Feb. 28

The Boston (Mass.) Evening Transcript, the only Boston newspaper to operate its own radio broadcasting station, went on the air for the first time from station WBET, Boston, 500 watts, 384 metres, Monday evening with a four and one-half hour program starting at 7 o'clock. Several features are being arranged for the initial broadcast from the new studios at the First National Bank building, 1 Federal street. Telephone lines will carry the transmission to the operating room in the Transcript building, 324 Washington street.

While the Transcript will be the only Hub paper to operate its own studio, the Boston Globe has just inaugurated the Boston Globe Studio of Station WEEI, broadcasting news bulletins four times a day over the Edison Electric Illuminating Company station from the private studio in the new quarters adjacent to the Globe building. The broadcasts are at 11:59 a. m., and 4, 7:50 and 10:05 p. m.

SUMMER CAMP FOR NEWS MEN

Alfred D. Greene, night wire chief of the United Press in New York, is going into the summer camp business this coming season. He will be granted a leave of absence to open "Six Point Lodge," a camp for newspaper men at Paudash, Ont., 80 miles north of Lake Ontario.

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

NEA Service, Inc.,
1200 West Third Street
CLEVELAND, OHIO

The Omaha Bee an
Omaha Daily New =Combine=

GIVING ADVERTISERS A GREATER CIRCULATION THAN ANY OTHER NEWSPAPER IN NEBRASKA BY MANY THOUSANDS

THE Omaha Bee purchased the Omaha Daily News and merged the two newspapers.

The first combined issue was published on Monday Evening, February 14th, 1927. The merged newspaper is published under the name:

The Omaha Bee
The Omaha Daily News

We now are in position to offer advertisers by far the largest circulation of any newspaper published in Omaha and Nebraska. As quickly as possible a definite statement of the net circulation of the merged newspaper will be issued.

Below are the figures on advertising in the annual Automobile Edition of the Omaha newspaper published on February 20th.

(Measurements by Haynes Adv. Company.)

The Omaha Bee & Daily News . . . 47,432 lines
World-Herald . . . . . 35,714 lines

THE
Omaha Bee & Daily News
Nebraska's Greatest Newspaper

PRUDDEN, KING & PRUDDEN, Representatives
New York Chicago San Francisco Los Angeles
Boston Seattle

Reach New England at Small Sales Expense!

A single salesman can cover this small, compact, thickly populated territory in quicker time, with greater results, than two, three or more men in other territories.

New England's diversified manufacturing industries of stable products eliminate dull periods or slack times. The people are always at work and the earning power is not only constant but unusually large as proven by the high standard of living.

The majority of the population is concentrated in the large thriving cities within one-half to one hour traveling distance from each other. The large retail stores, modern and progressive are all centered in these cities where the great bulk of the trading is carried on. Distribution of products is therefore greatly simplified as the value of advertised goods is already established and dealer and jobber co-operation is easily obtained.

Don't overlook this market—a market of unusually large sales potentiality. These papers listed below have the facts to guide you and with a systematic plan of co-operation they will help you secure distribution in the shortest possible time.

MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 3,852,356

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
leboro Sun .....(E)	5,497	.03	.03
ston Globe .....(M&E)	278,988	.50	.50
ston Globe .....(S)	325,234	.55	.55
ston Transcript .....(E)	33,243	.20	.20
ston Post .....(M)	393,002	.60	.60
ston Post .....(S)	339,486	.55	.55
chburg Sentinel .....(E)	11,842	.06	.045
verhill Gazette .....(E)	16,061	.065	.05
n Item .....(E)	16,587	.065	.05
well Courier-Citizen and Evening Leader.....(M&E)	21,310	.07	.07
w Bedford Standard Mercury .....(M&E)	32,787	.10	.10
w Bedford Sunday Standard (S)	28,056	.10	.10
th Adams Transcript..(E)	10,265	.05	.04
sfield Eagle .....(E)	18,202	.05	.05
em News .....(E)	21,444	.09	.07
unton Gazette .....(E)	9,174	.05	.04
roester Telegram-Gazette (M&E)	92,862	.28	.25
roester Sunday Telegram (S)	50,960	.21	.18

CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,380,631

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
*Bridgeport Post-Telegram (E&M)	44,446	.15	.15
*Bridgeport Post .....(S)	21,910	.10	.10
*Hartford Courant .....(M)	34,725	.09	.09
*Hartford Courant .....(S)	57,795	.13	.13
*Hartford Times .....(E)	53,665	.13	.13
*Middletown Press .....(E)	8,381	.05	.03
†New Haven Register..(E&S)	48,076	.145	.135
*New London Day.....(E)	12,671	.07	.045
†Norwich Bulletin .....(M)	12,826	.07	.05
*Norwalk Hour .....(E)	6,196	.04	.04
†South Norwalk Sentinel..(E)	5,188	.035	.03
*Stamford Advocate .....(E)	10,619	.05	.04
*Waterbury Republican-American (M&E)	24,018	.08	.08
*Waterbury Republican....(S)	15,214	.08	.08

MAINE—Population, 768,014

*Portland Press-Herald Express (M&E)	59,035	.18	.16

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Population, 443,683

*Concord Monitor-Patriot..(E)	5,309	.0375	.025
†Keene Sentinel .....(E)	3,934	.036	.023
*Manchester Union Leader (M&E)	32,032	.15	.12

RHODE ISLAND—Population, 604,397

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
†Newport Daily News.....(E)	6,442	.0336	.0293
*Pawtucket Times .....(E)	27,548	.08	.08
*Providence Bulletin .....(E)	69,039	.18	(B).25
*Providence Journal .....(M)	39,770	.11	(B).25
*Providence Journal.....(S)	70,186	.18	.18
*Providence News .....(E)	28,189	.08	.08
*Providence Tribune.....(E)	21,808	.10	.09
*Westerly Sun .....(E&S)	5,139	.025	.025
*Woonsocket Call .....(E)	14,680	.05	.05

VERMONT—Population, 352,428

*Barre Times .....(E)	6,998	.03	.025
†Bennington Banner .....(E)	3,155	.03	.015
Brattleboro Reformer.....(E)	3,416	.03	.0175
*Burlington Free Press...(M)	13,621	.05	.05
*Rutland Herald .....(M)	11,539	.05	.05
†St. Johnsbury Caledonian-Record .....(E)	4,057	.03	.02

*A. B. C. Publisher's Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
† Government Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
(B) Combination rate Daily Journal and Eve. Bulletin.

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Arkansas City Traveler Claims to Be "Feminized"—Grace Walton to Leave on European Trip—Mary Margaret McBride's Latest Book Is Called "Charm"

(No. 1) Fern Bourland, copy girl, Arkansas City Traveler; (2) Miss Ruth Betts, make-up "man"; (3) Miss Hazel Myers, telegraph editor; Miss D. H. Stone, vice-president of the newspaper company and writer of household features.

JULIA G. HILL reports from Arkansas City, Kan., that newspaper work is "no longer mere man's job" in her town. She writes:

"When the two dailies in Arkansas City were consolidated less than three years ago into the present Arkansas City Traveler, there were just six women in the organization, three in the business office, one in the news department and two in the mechanical department.

"Today there are 16 women working for the Traveler, four in the business office, one of whom is cashier, six in the news department, one of whom is vice president of the Traveler, one, the telegraph editor, and one who devotes part time to advertising work; and six in the back office, one of whom is the 'make-up man.'

"Oscar Stauffer, editor of the Traveler, in discussing the 'feminization' of the Traveler office, says that the reason there are so many women on the force is simply that women have proved they can handle the work as well, and in many cases, better, than men.

"The four women who are in the business office are Frances Shirley, who has been with the paper nearly four years; Charlotte Boyd, cashier, who has been with the paper 3½ years; Hettie Calkins who has had nine years of newspaper office experience in the city; and Verda Lemmon.

The vice-president of the Traveler organization is Mrs. D. H. Stone. She also runs a feature in the household department of the news section each week.

"One of the most important positions on the paper held by a woman is that of telegraph editor, Miss Hazel Myers, who came with the Traveler last spring from Parsons, Kan.

"In the news department, besides Miss Myers and Mrs. Stone, there are three girl reporters, Mabel Bowman, Katherine Maus, and Levia Slater. Mrs. Walter Hutchinson is club editor of the paper.

"In the back office 'Midge' or Mrs. Ruth Betts, who is married and has two children, handles the make-up. She has been working on a local paper for 23 years. Mrs. Bessie Crowe, also married with two children, has been working on the paper 10 years. She is proof reader. Mrs. Eva Clark, Miss Elsie Benbrook and Miss Hilah Bell operate linotypes and Fern Bourland is copy girl, having taken the place of a boy who once held the job.

Grace Walton, advertising manager of Julius Kayser & Company, New York, is leaving March 12 for London and Paris to get style information for use in preparation of advertising copy for her company. She will be accompanied by Miss Ruth Taylor, editor of Le Bon Ton. From Paris, Miss Walton and Miss Taylor will go to Norway, Sweden and Denmark to study the newspaper situation in connection with style advertising in foreign countries.

The latest book by Mary Margaret McBride, formerly of the New York Evening Telegram, is called "Charm" and is scheduled for publication April 5 by the Rae D. Henkle Company, Inc., a new publishing house. Miss McBride is co-author with Alexander Williams.

Miss Mary Farmer of Bloomington, Ind., has joined the Indianapolis Times as society editor. She was formerly society editor of the Shelbyville (Ind.) Republican and more recently held the same position on the Bloomington (Ind.) Telephone.

Mrs. Ellen S. Patten, president of the Philadelphia Club of Advertising Women, defended the newspaper advertising columns in a recent address before the Pilomusian Club of her city.

"Advertising needs fair, honest, censorship," she said. "And that lies in your hands. You are the purchasing agents of the American home. When a product is advertised dishonestly you can refuse to buy it. I hold no brief for newspapers, but I do say this, that from the very nature of their creation, justice requires that we do not place the burden of censorship upon them. Most advertisers are honest. Mistakes are bound to creep in. Our American club woman has accomplished so many things that as she comes more and more to give her attention to advertising I know she will have a sympathetic understanding for its needs and its aims."

Miss Betty Kirk, graduate of the University of Oklahoma, has been employed as reporter for the Oklahoma City (Okla.) News.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Steubenville Herald Star News Man Held in $2,500 Bail

An investigation inaugurated by the Steubenville (O.) Herald-Star after numerous Steubenville business houses had reported the theft of money from the mails led to the arrest and confession of Ralph S. Miller, 34, its telegraph editor, and one of the most popular and most efficient news writers in Eastern Ohio. Miller is free under $2,500 bond to await action of the federal grand jury following arraignment before U. S. Commissioner James Borkowski.

Miller claims to have obtained about $400 by use of keys to lockboxes in the new federal building that were obtained when box renters forgot to remove the keys from the doors. When arrested, he had 26 keys to lockboxes in his pockets.

NEW SEMI-WEEKLY

The Chicopee (Mass.) Herald, semi-weekly, was launched with the issue of Feb. 22, sponsored by the Chicopee Board of Trade and Kiwanis Club. Lester G. Taft is editor, George E. Walsh, advertising manager, and E. C. Lackie classified and circulation manager. The sponsors expect to turn the paper into a daily.

U. S. WELL INFORMED CHINESE TROUBLES

Associated Press Veteran Says Americans Receiving Better News Struggle Than Residents of Shanghai

Readers of American newspapers more about the Chinese civil war natives and foreigners living in Shar Walter Whiffen, recently Peking respondent of the Associated Pres clared last week.

Since his return to this country, Whiffen said he had received letters friends in the Orient asking him Chinese war news.

"American newspapers are consid the Chinese situation more seriously it is regarded in China," he conti "There it is a case of business as in the day time, with the night clu full swing evenings."

Mr. Whiffen sailed Friday of week to become the A. P.'s Moscow respondent, succeeding James A. who will return to this country leave of absence. He has been in R before for the Associated Press, h been in Petrograd in 1914. He has with the A. P. 26 years, startin Chicago after experience on the Ch American. In addition to servic Peking he has also been correspond Mexico City. In 1912 he wrote from Mexico under fire during the battles which preceded the arrest assasination of Madero.

BICKEL A BROADCASTER

Describes World News Gathering Over Two "G.-E." Stations

Karl A. Bickel, president of United Press Association, gave a f minute talk from WGY, the Ge Electric Company's radio statio Schenectady, Feb. 18. Mr. Bickel t on "The News and You," in whi took occasion to explain just wh required in the collection of news international agency. In addition t ing broadcast on the regular wave l of 379.5 meters, the talk was also b cast over 2XAF on superpower c short wave of 32.79, the one whic been frequently rebroadcast in En and South Africa and has been hea Australia and Chile. Mr. Bickel introduced to the radio public by M P. Rice, manager of broadcasting f General Electric Company.

The San Diego Uni
For a Greater San Diego
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MAR
Ionic No.

TULSA DAILY WORLD
NDS LIFE AS SON ADMITS TI
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

The Morning Tribu
Fate Moores Foot fro Speed Boat
COURT UPHOLD
RIGHT TO KEE
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MAR
Ionic No.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Announces

A NEW SERVICE

To General Advertisers and Advertising Agencies in the publication, beginning soon, of a notable series of articles, continuing for months to come, giving entirely new, original, simplified and tested

KEYS TO CONSUMER BUYING ABILITY

BY STATES, COUNTIES AND CITIES, FOR SIX MAJOR CLASSES OF COMMODITIES.

These articles will be accompanied by charts and maps, with full directions for ascertaining whether enough sales or advertising effort is being spent for YOUR product in any city or trading area in the country.

Nothing like them was ever before published. They completely revolutionize the use of index figures in computing the potential worth or buying power of any community, in that they give a different index figure for the six different kinds of products of mass appeal, into one of which will fall almost every commodity nationally sold.

The first article shows the fallacy of the nine basic elements that are commonly used in arriving at buying power index figures, and explains why the two elements of population and income alone are sufficient—if, as is done by the author, a different weighted index figure is computed for each class of products for each city.

The first state to be taken up is the State of Massachusetts, with detailed buying power index figures for each of its 14 counties and each of its 70 cities of over 10,000 population.

These charts will show some market conditions existing in certain cities hitherto undreamed of by many general advertisers, the revelation of which should cause revisions in many campaign plans.

Watch out for these articles. They are written by Nelson H. Seubert, a past master in the art of compiling market statistics, and are the result of long study, first-hand research, repeated checkings and practical tests.

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

Airplane Helped San Diego Tribune Solve Distribution Problem Caused by Storm—Carrier's Job Held as Antidote for Crime—Parker Made Circulation Manager of Chicago American

Loading San Diego Union's plane with papers for flood area.

WHEN the recent storms on the Pacific Coast isolated the Imperial Valley and San Diego's back country, the enterprising circulation department of the San Diego Evening Tribune and Morning Union pressed an airplane into service to distribute papers. A. J. McCutcheon of the circulation department of the two papers, carrying a cargo of Tribunes and Unions, was the first man through and over the mountains and the storm-stricken area.

In the photograph reproduced above, Dewey Schellenberg, assistant circulation manager, and aviator Douglas T. Kelley are loading papers into an airplane preparatory to taking off. E. H. Schlink is shown at the cabin window, while George Hammong "gasses up" the 'plane.

The newspaper carrier's route was recommended as an excellent antidote for crime by Detective Lieutenant Fred P. Good of the Worcester, Mass., headquarters bureau in a recent interview. Lieutenant Good, who has charge of the detectives' night division, declared that the habits of thrift, industry and honesty cultivated by boys who carry papers have an excellent effect on the newsies.

Walter J. Parker has been appointed circulation Manager of the Chicago Evening American and C. R. Deuel, assistant circulation manager.

Mr. Parker came to the American eight years ago as circulation promotion manager, was later advanced to country circulation manager and then made assistant circulation manager.

Mr. Deuel has been with the Evening American for 15 years and has advanced from a clerk in the circulation department to superintendent of the mailing room and then to city circulation manager.

W. A. Buck has been appointed circulation manager of the Wilmington (N. C.) News-Dispatch.

H. L. Belle has resigned as circulation manager of the Wichita Falls (Tex.) Record News to become circulation manager of the Texas Commercial News, a monthly magazine published at Sugar Land, Tex.

Worcester (Mass.) Evening Post is offering to those who obtain three new six-months' subscriptions the new "Post Dodger," a 56-inch sled.

The Brockton (Mass.) Enterprise is seeking new subscribers by offering a series of puzzles such as cross-word, checkerboard, picture and other types of brain teasers appealing to the newspaper readers. Theatre tickets and candy are offered as prizes to the winners. Another circulation booster now being used by the Brockton newspaper is a "prettiest baby contest" which it it staging in co-operation with a local theatre and photographer. Brockton merchants are donating merchandise for prizes in addition to three grand prizes in gold. The winners will be filmed for presentation at the theatre.

A travel accident policy is being offered by the Lawrence (Mass.) Telegram to its new and present readers at a small additional cost.

The Lawrence (Mass.) Evening Tribune has just conducted a Washington Essay Conest among the grammar school pupils of Greater Lawrence, with five cash prizes totaling $35.

The Chicago Tribune is awarding $50 in prizes daily in a "Snappy Cum-Bax" contest. Each day an illustration and a first line appear in the paper, and the prizes are awarded for the best snappy come-backs for the second line. The prizes are awarded as follows: First prize, $25; second prize, $10; third, fourth and fifth prizes, $5 each.

An epidemic of questions has hit the Chicago newspapers, following the discussion aroused by the book of general information, "Ask Me Another." Three Chicago papers—the Daily News, the Tribune, and the Evening American—are now printing sets of questions for their readers to answer. The Daily News prints its list of questions in place of its cross-word puzzles twice a week, and with the questions a report of the grade made on them by prominent Chicago fans. The answers appear a few days afterwards. The American does much the same thing, but it prints the questions daily and the answers on the same day. The Tribune has been reprinting the questions from "Ask Me Another" on its book page, but starting Saturday, March 5, Fanny Butcher, literary editor of the Tribune, will award a weekly prize of $25 for the best list of 25 questions concerned entirely with literature. The answers will be printed one week after the questions appear.

Charles S. Wilson, circulation manager of the Columbus (Ohio) State Journal and Dispatch, has been elected a director of the First National Bank.

The Boston (Mass.) Traveler is conducting its eighth annual short story contest for high school students in New England. George B. C. Rugg of the Traveler staff has been appointed short story editor. The Boston paper is offering $155 in ten cash prizes. The stories must not be more than 1,000 words in length. Three dollars will be paid for all specimen stories published. During the seven years that the contest has been run, a steadily growing interest in composition has been aroused and more than 10,000 stories have been submitted.

The Concord (N. H.) Daily Monitor-Patriot is carrying on its front page at frequent intervals special sketches of its newsies under the caption "Future Concord Business Men." R. C. Bishop, circulation manager, said this week:

"The feature has not only created much favorable comment from the reading public, but has also developed a splendid esprit de corps among the carriers."

The Monitor-Patriot established a newsboys' club last October. The club meets weekly at the local Y. M. C. A., and the organization is assisting the newspaper materially in building its circulation, according to Mr. Bishop.

The New York Daily Mirror is broadcasting the names of its contest winners from station WHN, New York. The same Hearst tabloid is also broadcasting certain of its feature headliners, such as its dog exchange and advice to the lovelorn. It is adhering to the general policy of the Publishers Association of New York and is not broadcasting news.

AMERICAN PRINTER SOLD

M. C. Robbins of the Robbins Publishing Company, New York, has purchased the American Printer, a graphic arts magazine established in 1858. Mr. Robbins is publisher of Advertising & Selling, Gas Age-Record, Brown's Directory of American Gas Companies, Gas Engineering and Appliance Catalogue.

RALPH PULITZER PLANS SECOND AFRICAN HUNT

RALPH PULITZER, editor of the New York World, is planning to start on his second big game hunt this coming July. He expects to sail from Southampton, England, about July 16, for Angola in West Africa, and will probably return to this country about the middle of November.

Mr. Pulitzer had considerable success as big game hunter last year, bringing back many specimens. On this forthcoming expedition, the World editor will be accompanied by Alan A. Black, a noted hunter.

During his absence it is understood Herbert Pulitzer will be in charge of the World. The younger brother is now active in the editorial direction of the Evening World.

ALLARDYCE RESIGNS FROM EAGL

James J. Allardyce this week resigne as circulation director of the Brookly Eagle, a post he had held since N vember, 1925, when he left the Alban Knickerbocker Press. Mr. Allardyce ha established a system of circulation branc offices in Brooklyn and Long Island.

RATCLIFFE TO LECTURE

Will Give Two Newspaper Addresse at Yale, March 10-11

Yale University has announced that th Bromley lectures for this year will b given by Samuel K. Ratcliffe, Englis journalist, in Sprague Memorial Hall c March 10 and 11. His subjects will b "Your Newspaper and Ours," a compar son between American and Englis journalism, and "The Centre of Powe A Study of the Altered Positions Editor and Manager." He will also di cuss the great newspaper consolidations the past few years.

Mr. Ratcliffe has been editor of th London Echo, and at one time was actin editor of the Statesman. He spent thre years in Calcutta, India, after which h edited the Sociological Review for seve years. He has represented the Ma chester Guardian in the United States.

The Bromley Lectureship, founded memory of Isaac H. Bromley, B.A. Ya 1853, for many years an editorial writ on the New York Tribune, provides f annual course of lectures on journalis literature, and public affairs. The fir lecture on this foundation were give by Whitelaw Reid. Frank A. Munse Bliss Perry, Hamilton Holt, Richa Hooker, Col. Norris G. Osborn and D Marquis have also given Bromley lecture

ENGLAND "REGRETS" BILLBOARD

The smothering of the English lan scape with posters and billboards "aft the American manner", was consider a cause for universal regret by speake of the Oxford Union, historic debati society, in a debate held Feb. 27 Oxford. It was conceded that adverti ing might be a good thing in Americ where "big business makes its home a competition is acute," but the debate deplored the introduction of mode advertising methods into English li more local!

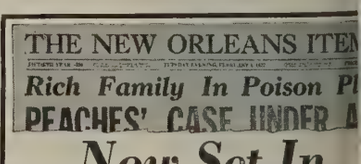
LOUIS BROWNLOW

on live topics of local interest to the citizens of your city

Distributed by

CURRENT NEWS FEATURES, INC.



Star Building Washington, D. C.

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

T. S. HOMANS, INTERTYPE ENGINEER, DIES

eft Linotype Company to Develop First Intertypes—Fifty-one Patents Granted Covering His Inventions

Thomas S. Homans, designing engineer the Intertype Corporation since its in- ption in 1912, died in the Brooklyn Hospital after a major operation, Saturday, Feb. 26. He is survived by his wife Mary Alexander, and one son Robert, 18.

Thomas S. Homans

Mr. Homans was graduated from the Yale-Sheffield Scientific School in 1892. He was a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and of the Yale Club.

pon leaving college he immediately ered the composing machine field, be- ing with the famous Paige Composi- Company of Chicago. This is the hine in which Mark Twain was very vily interested and lost a large sum noney when it finally proved too com- ated for practical use.

fter the failure of the Paige Com- y, Mr. Homans spent several years in gning and developing machine tools, n elevators, envelope making ma- es, paper cutters, etc., but his early rest in composing machines eventu- induced him to return to that field. joined the Mergenthaler Linotype pany, of Brooklyn, as an experi- tal engineer, working in that or- ization from 1904 to 1912. It was Homans who designed the Linotype el 5, the first Linotype to have a ck-change" magazine.

1912 he joined the Intertype Cor- tion and developed the first Inter- with one magazine. Later he de- ed a two-magazine machine and then ree-magazine machine, as well as side with one, two and three magazines. out two years ago the Intertype oration brought out a "mixer" ma- which had been designed by Mr. ans more than ten years ago. Fifty- patents have been granted covering nventions of simplification and im- ements in typesetting machines, of which were of major impor-

. Homans was born in Englewood, , 56 years ago.

e following resolution was passed by ntertype Board of Directors: "Re- d, That the Board of Directors of type Corporation records its sorrow e death of Thomas S. Homans, who een Chief Experimental Engineer of rporation during its entire existence. Homans possessed great skill as an eer which, added to a rare creative , resulted in distinct advancement, gh his efforts, of the typesetting ma- art.

is personality was so attractive that of his associates feels in his death sonal loss."

The Knoxville Journal

SLATION IS PASSED BY S

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

onic No. 5

JAMES W. BARNHILL

James W. Barnhill, 80, died in Presbyterian Hospital, New York, Feb. 25. Of his seven children, all living, five are connected with the advertising or publishing business. J. D. Barnhill is one of the principals of Lord & Thomas & Logan, New York; W. Roy Barnhill is chairman of the board of W. Roy Barnhill, Inc., New York, publishers' representatives; Mrs. S. Keith Evans is the wife of Keith Evans of the firm of Evans, Kip & Hackett, New York, advertising agents; Mary Boone Staples is the wife of Henry Lee Staples, president of Staples & Staples, Inc., advertising agents of Richmond; and George B. Barnhill, advertising manager of the Farm Finance Corporation, Oakland.

DONALD GILLIS

Donald Gillis, 57, editor of the Asheville (N. C.) Citizen, died suddenly Feb. 23, of heart failure. Mr. Gillis served as chairman of the board which for many years operated the Pack Memorial Library as a private institution; and he held the same office after the library was taken over by the city of Asheville several years ago.

JOURNALISM DIRECTOR DIES

Prof. Charles H. Weller, director of the School of Journalism of the University of Iowa, Iowa City, died this week following a long illness. Prof. Weller was also Professor of Greek and in charge of all University publications, with the title of University editor.

Obituary

WILLIAM H. TUCKER, associate editor of the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun and co-publisher of the Russell (Ala.) Register, died of pneumonia at a hospital in Columbus recently. Burial was at his native city, Seale, Ala. His column "Home Brew" which appeared daily in the Enquirer-Sun was widely quoted in the South.

WILLIAM HENRY ORR, who died at Gulfport, Miss., and who is believed to have been the last surviving person who was present at the ceremony of confederation of Canada, on July 1, 1867, was born in Powmanville, Ont., in 1836. For three sessions he was parliamentary reporter of the old upper and lower Canada legislature at Quebec. Mr. Orr had the distinction of being the first shorthand writer in Canada. At one time he owned and edited the Oshawa Vindicator.

J. B. STROUPE, 83, former editor of the South Solon (O.) Advance, died at his home Feb. 20. He was a veteran of the Civil War, and served 12 years as mayor of the town.

WILLIAM H. MCMEIN, 67, city editor of the Quincy (Ill.) Whig in the '70's and advanced to managing editor when he resigned to open a commercial printing plant which he conducted until his retirement two years ago, died Feb. 21 in Quincy.

RALPH S. BOYESEN, 43, who rose from police reporter to Director of Public Relations in the Los Angeles police department and organized the Southern California Academy of Criminology, suffered a stroke of apoplexy and died at his Los Angeles home Feb. 24.

DR. JOSEPH H. HILL, 79, father of Alfred G. Hill, owner of the Arkansas City (Kan.) Daily Traveler, died recently at his home in Kansas City, Kan.

JOHN T. CLAPP, 57, reporter for the Burlington (Vt.) Free Press, died Feb. 27, at a local hospital.

EVERETT A. ANDERSON, 71, former publisher of newspapers in Bolivar, Friendship and Cuba, N. Y., and at one time a member of the editorial staff of the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, died in his home in Bath, N. Y., after a long illness.

MAJOR WILLIAM C. HANDY, 66, one-time managing editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, died in Los Angeles, Feb. 20.

WILLIAM V. FINK, 50, for nearly 30 years city editor of the Goshen (Ind.) Democrat, and one of the best known newspaper correspondents of northern Indiana, is dead at his home after an extended illness.

JOHN FITZGERALD, 30, former Quincy (Ill.) Journal reporter and later of the St. Louis Star and Post-Dispatch, died recently in Monrovia, Cal., where he had been the last year following a nervous collapse.

HENRY WILSON YOUNG, 79, former state senator of Kansas and publisher of the Independence (Kan.) Weekly Star and Kansan, died recently at his home in Coquille, Okla. He was at one time one of the owners of the Topeka State Journal and was editor of that paper.

E. M. FUNK, 79, founder of the Rogers (Ark.) Democrat and father of Erwin Funk, present editor and owner, died at his home recently.

C. F. LAKE, editor of the Republic (Wash.) News-Miner, died Feb. 24, following an attack of apoplexy several days previous. He was born in Wisconsin, in 1859, starting in the newspaper busniess when 12 years old as a "devil" in a small South Dakota town.

The Parkersburg News

hat's Political ... DEFENSE HARRY DAUGHERTY IS ... RUDNER ASKS FOR A SECOND TRIAL ... PREPARE MORE DATA TO SUBMIT ... Woma Collisi

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

BOSTON, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, RICHMOND, ATLANTA, BUFFALO, PITTSBURGH, CLEVELAND, DETROIT, CHICAGO, CINCINNATI, ST. LOUIS, MILWAUKEE, MINNEAPOLIS, KANSAS CITY, DES MOINES, DENVER, LOS ANGELES, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, SPOKANE, WINNIPEG

Has your net income from national advertising increased like this?

1918 - - - - - $7,705.69
1919 - - - - - 11,347.28
1920 - - - - - 15,174.44
1921 - - - - - 17,402.63
1922 - - - - - 21,372.69
1923 - - - - - 27,235.04
1924 - - - - - 36,912.73
1925 - - - - - 39,808.55
1926 - - - - - 60,795.00

"Every annual showing shows we keep your profits growing"

Howland and Howland
Newspaper Representatives
New York Chicago Phila.

"Fair dealing begets good feeling"

CLIP HERE

Howland and Howland
New York Office
393 Seventh Avenue
(Equitable Life Bldg. opposite Penn. Station)

Gentlemen:
We do not commit ourselves in any way. But if you are in a position to represent us, if appointed, please send some one to tell us how you would go about increasing our income from national advertising.

Name .....

Address .....

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

I. N. S. to Start Pictorial News Service—Marion Talley Signs with Famous Features—NEA plays "Father Confessor" to Washington Wives—Garden Series on Market

H. A. McNITT, formerly editor and manager of the Central Press Association, has organized a new pictorial mat service for the International News Service and the King Features Syndicate, Inc., New York. He will be in charge of the new service, scheduled to start March 14, assisted by Clark Kinnaird, a former C.P.A. editor, and more recently with Johnson Features, Inc.

Mr. McNitt arrived in New York this week following a tour he has been taking to complete arrangements for the new venture. In addition to news pictures, the service will include illustrated features, localized to suit various sections of the country, it was announced.

Marion Talley, youthful star of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is writing her story for the Famous Features Syndicate, New York. The series will probably be called "The Price I Paid to Become an Opera Star at 17."

Marjorie Henderson, creator of "The Boy Friend" a daily comic distributed by the Ledger Syndicate, has started a new daily comic for the same syndicate called "Steaming Youth."

A garden series which has been appearing in the Philadelphia Record for the last few years is now being syndicated nationally by the author, Mrs. Donald Ashcraft Hilsee, Gwynedd Valley, Pa.

Theodore Dreiser, novelist and former newspaper man, has written a new series of articles for the Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York.

A new series entitled "Confessions of Washington Wives" was announced this week by the NEA Service, Inc., New York and Cleveland. Allene Sumner, the author, spent several weeks in Washington interviewing the wives of Senators and Representatives to obtain material for the feature.

John C. Kofoed, assistant sports editor of the New York Evening Post, is author of "Today in Sport," a new feature being offered by the Ledger Syndicate, Inc., Philadelphia.

Johnson Features, Inc., will move into new offices in Cleveland this month. This syndicate has been using the machinery of the Cleveland Times and will have its own equipment at the new headquarters.

Barbara Webb, author of "Joy" has finished a new serial for Famous Features Syndicate, New York. It will probably be titled "Sherry."

Neal O'Hara, former columnist of the Boston Post and later on the Boston Traveler, whose column is now handled by the New York World Syndicate, has left Boston for the Pacific Coast where he is to write film titles for the Film Booking Office at Hollywood.

Harold S. W. MacFarlin, who writes a daily inspirational feature for the Rochester Journal and Post Express, is now selling the feature nationally.

"Think!" is the title of a daily editorial feature by Harlan Eugene Read, marketed by the H. E. Read Newspaper Syndicate Service, St. Louis, Mo.

Short stories for newspaper publication now being offered by the Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York include: "The Quest" by Percival Christopher Wren; "The Purple Scarf," by Fanny Heaslip Lea; "The Third L," by Royal Brown; "The Bride Book," by Margaret Culkin Banning; and "Matrimonial Conversations," by Alice Duerr Miller and F. P. Adams, conductor of the Conning Tower of the New York World.

Peter McGregor, photographer, is now in Florida taking pictures at the baseball training camps for Acme Newspictures and NEA Service, Inc.

DOCTOR TOURS COAST

McCoy Lectures Under Auspices of Ten Newspapers

Thousands of newspaper readers attended health lectures delivered by Dr. Frank McCoy, head of the McCoy Health Service, Los Angeles, in ten cities of the Pacific Coast late last month. Dr. McCoy spoke under auspices of newspapers which are subscribers to his service.

These newspapers include the San Diego Tribune, Los Angeles Record, Oakland Tribune, San Francisco News, Portland Telegram, Tacoma Times, Seattle Star, Bellingham Herald, Vancouver Sun, and Spokane Chronicle.

In Vancouver, fully 8,000 people were turned away, although the Vancouver Sun had engaged the Hotel Vancouver auditorium, which accommodates 2,200, according to R. J. Cromie, publisher.

RUDNER GETS LIFE

Is Second to Be Sentenced in Slaying of Don R. Mellett

Ben Rudner, Massillon Ohio hardware merchant, was sentenced to life imprisonment, Monday, for his part in the slaying of Don R. Mellett, crusading editor of the Canton Daily News.

The sentence was pronounced after two defense motions, one of which sought a new trial for Rudner, the other asking his dismissal on the ground that the verdict returned against him last week was illegal, were overruled.

Rudner was found guilty of second degree murder. Patrick McDermott is serving a life sentence for the Mellett slaying and Louis Mazer, a third alleged conspirator, is awaiting trial.

U. P. OFFICE ENLARGED

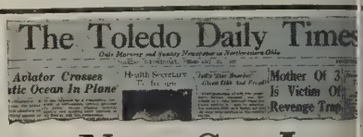
Press Association's Now Occupies Nearly Whole Floor of World Building

Headquarters office of the United Press in New York is being enlarged, and when the work is completed the news room will occupy approximately 2700 square feet. The wire room is also being re-equipped with filing tables and machine printers, so arranged as to make for speed and orderly handling of the news.

Enlargement of the news room has necessitated a re-arrangement of the executive offices. New offices have been added, and the U. P. now occupies virtually the entire third floor of the World Building, 63 Park Row. Electrical engineers have installed a new lighting system.

A. P. PRINTERS IN OHIO

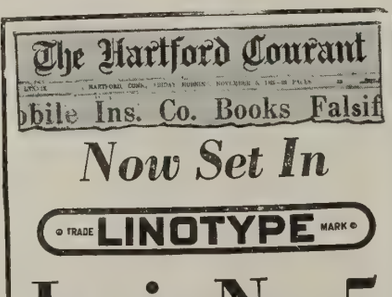
C. A. Price of the New York headquarters office of the Associated Press is in Ohio negotiating with members in that state looking toward substitution of printer circuits, replacing the state Morse wires.



SCHOOL EDITORS TO MEET

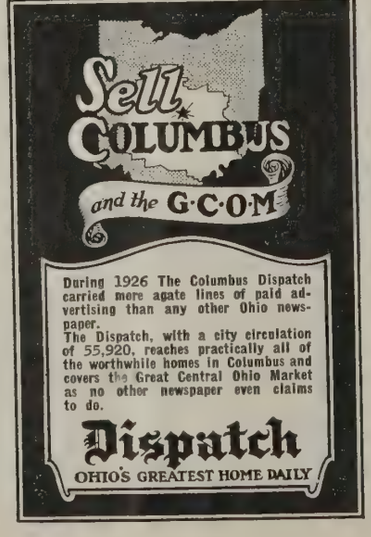
1,000 Expected to Gather at Columb University March 11-12

Leaders in the newspaper, magazi and publishing fields will address the thi annual convention of the Interscholas Press Association to be held at Columt University, New York, March 11-1 More than 1,000 student journalists, ran ing in age from 12 to 18 years, and re resenting school publications in 43 stat Canada, Alaska, Hawaii, and the Car Zone are expected to attend.

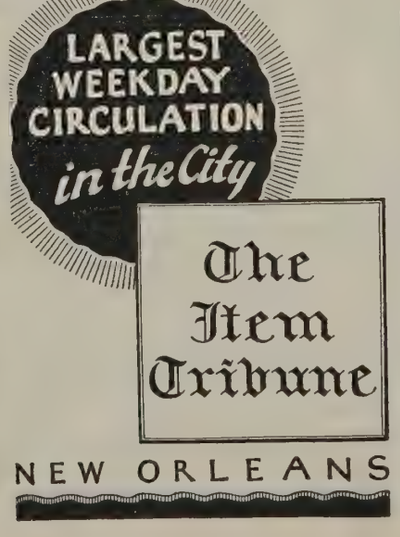


Among the speakers will be: Lo Wiley, business manager, New Yo Times; Paul Sifton, New York Wor Julian S. Mason, editor-in-chief of New York Evening Post; David La rence, president of the Consolida Press Association, and publisher of United States Daily; Mrs. Willi Brown Meloney, editor of the N York Herald Tribune Sunday magazi and F. K. Phillips of the American Ty Founders Company. Dean Herbert Hawkes, of Columbia, will deliver address of welcome.

The boy and girl editors have subm ted their publications in a competit for 13 silver loving cups and certifica of honor to be awarded.



The Toledo Daily Times
Aviator Crosses Atlantic Ocean In Plane
Mother Of 3 Is Victim Of Revenge Trap
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5



IN BUENOS AIRES
LA PRENSA
Is the Only Newspaper That Owns a
ROTOGRAVURE PLANT
Three rotogravure presses are necessary to supply the needs of the newspaper. From 16 to 24 pages are printed for the Roto Section of the Sunday Edition. Eight pages of pictures and the rest a magazine section of unusually high quality.
Average Sunday Circulation - 310,981
Average Daily Circulation - - 240,233
JOSHUA B. POWERS
Exclusive Advertising Representative
250 Park Ave., New York
"South America's Greatest Newspaper"

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO
Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control is used by
SAN FRANCISCO CALL
San Francisco, Calif.
Ask them about it.
CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO
Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Buildin

The Hartford Courant
bile Ins. Co. Books Falsif
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

THE SANDUSKY REGISTER
FOR REED BIDS FOR PRESI
ARMS PLEA DEFEATED
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

Sell COLUMBUS and the G·C·O·M
During 1926 The Columbus Dispatch carried more agate lines of paid advertising than any other Ohio newspaper.
The Dispatch, with a city circulation of 55,920, reaches practically all of the worthwhile homes in Columbus and covers the Great Central Ohio Market as no other newspaper even claims to do.
Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

LARGEST WEEKDAY CIRCULATION in the City
The Item Tribune
NEW ORLEANS

THE WELFARE COMMITTE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGER ASSOCIATION
Can supply you with cor petent circulation men capacity and ability capab to take entire charge of yo department or to fill impo tant posts in the departmer
Address the Secretar Treasurer please, Mr. Cl ence Eyster, care St Building, Peoria, Ill.

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Charles W. Hoyt Is Challenger to Will Rogers' Fame—A. V. Anderson Now with Young & Rubicam—Martin Advertising Agency Moves to New Offices

ARLES W. HOYT, president of e New York advertising agency bears his name, was hailed as a nging rival of Will Rogers when personated the mayor of Beverly Cal., before a meeting of the Ad- ing Club of San Francisco on Feb.

V. Anderson has joined the Young bicam agency, New York and Phil- ia, to do contact work. Mr. An- formerly was with the publicity ment of the Edison Lamp Works, al Electric Company, Harrison, N.

l Bartley has joined the staff of uchen Company, Chicago. Adver- agency, as office and personnel er.

cis Odone, formerly connected he advertising agencies of John O. Powers Company, New York and Bissell-Land Inc., Pittsburgh, has become copy-chief of the Spector and Goldensky advertising agency, Philadelphia.

Norman P. Hutson has joined Street & Finney, Inc., as assistant director of the research department. R. A. Barker has joined the same agency as head of the checking department.

The Martin Advertising Agency, New York, has moved from 37 West 39th street to new offices at 276 West 43rd street.

C. B. Wakeley, account manager and director of the Southwestern Advertising Company, was elected secretary at the recent annual meeting, succeeding Joe B. Wells, resigned. Howard L. McGhee, production manager, was elected to succeed Mr. Wells as director. All other officials and directors were re-elected.

vote recently was due to the fact that the voters were not properly informed about the candidates.

STOLZ JOINS N. Y. JOURNAL

Julius Stolz, formerly vice-president of the Interborough News Company, has been appointed assistant to A. B. Chivers, assistant business manager of the New York Evening Journal. Mr. Stolz has been connected with the old New York Globe and the New York Evening World. He was at one time with the Chicago Journal.

AIDING HOME BUILDERS

A home builders' library of six volumes, each dealing with a separate type of small home, has been published by The Chicago Daily News in connection with its Home Builders' Clinic Service.

AD TIPS

. Baker Co., Le Seuer, Minn. Placing ertising of the Minnesota Valley Canning y, Le Seuer, Minn., in a number of in the northwest.

s-Kirk, Inc., 752 North Michigan ave- hicago. Has prepared a list on Jos. Co., Chicago (medical).

ver-Mooney Company, 111 W. Washing- eet, Chicago. Has issued schedules to ers on Hoffman Heater Co., Louisville, y.

field & Co., 14 E. Jackson boulevard, Preparing a list on H. S. Peterson Chicago.

ll, Williams & Co., 612 North Michigan Chicago. Has prepared a tentative list ago Flexible Shaft Company, Chicago, to e a lawn sprinkler. 1,000 line schedules.

H. Dunham Company, 431 North Michi- nue, Chicago. Now handling the ac- of the Williamson Candy Company,

, Wasey & Co., 844 Rush street, Chi- Has secured the account of the J. P. Shoe Co. (Dr. Reed's Cushion Shoes)

Hanly Co., 6 North Michigan avenue, Now handling the account of y-Clark Company, Neenah, Wis.

Frank & Co., 14 Stone street, New Placing accounts of the Dishwashette and the Eagle Pencil Company, manu- of Mikado pencils.

s Daniel Frey Company, 30 North n boulevard, Chicago. Issuing contracts of newspapers quite generally on the ompany, Chicago.

Company, Dayton, Ohio. Has secured of the Champion Chemical Company, ld, Ohio.

Fulton & Cunningham, 360 North boulevard, Chicago. Handling the of the Nash Motor Car Co., Kenosha, n.

Haehnle Co., Cincinnati, O. Prepar- tional schedules on the advertising of Bros. Company, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Kastor & Sons, 14 East Jackson l, Chicago. Issuing contracts to news- on Puritan Malt Extract Company, Gibson Company, 310 South Michigan l, Chicago. Will place the advertising Meadows Manufacturing Company, ton, Ill. (Washers) in towns where dealers or can secure one.

od-Shackelford Company, 58 East on street, Chicago. Issuing additional on the Iona Company (Electric Belt) icisco, Calif.

Thomas & Logan, 400 North Michi- vard, Chicago. Has prepared a news- paper list on the Quaker Oats Company, Chicago.

Lord and Thomas and Logan, 400 North Michigan boulevard, Chicago. Will issue advertising orders on Palmolive Co. (Soap) Chicago.

W. D. McAdams Co., 360 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Issuing 10,000 line contracts to newspapers on Van Camp Co. (Beans) Indianapolis, Ind.

Williams & Cunnyngham, 6 North Michigan boulevard, Chicago. Supplying list of newspapers to be used in advertising a new alarm clock of the Western Clock Company, La Salle, Ill.

CITY WANTS TO ADVERTISE

A bill has been prepared for introduction into the Massachusetts legislature by several citizens of Newton, Mass., which would authorize that city to spend $1,000 each municipal election to advertise in the newspapers the qualifications of the various candidates for office. The voting strength of the town numbers 22-000. The citizens claim that the small

IRVIN S. COBB
writes
Ladies and Gentlemen

Among His Ladies—
One who ran away from Christmas
Another who decided to be "Southern"
A Lady of Easy Virtue

Among His Gentlemen—
A banker with a past
An elderly movie actor
A man who arranged his death to escape his wife

The Best of Cobb's Recent Work
Price $2.00
Wherever Books Are Sold
Cosmopolitan Book Corporation
119 West Fortieth Street, New York

The Evening World
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

Baltimore American
The Baltimore Sunday American

The family paper —children cry for the funnies—men look for the news and editorials— and women demand it for the shopping news.

173,132
average net paid circulation

THE CHATTANOOGA NEWS
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

CATHOLICS, JEWS, PROTESTANTS are
"Speaking of Divorce"
in a series of 15 authorized interviews by Zoë Beckley

Startling, Comprehensive Opinions

Each article runs 1,200 words—Here are a few excerpts:

BISHOP WILLIAM T. MANNING—"The temporary so-called 'companionate marriage' is only another name for free love. . . . As a nation we are rapidly abandoning the ideal of monogamic marriage."

JUDGE BEN B. LINDSEY—"The increase of divorce is a hopeful sign. . . . The clergy is responsible for much that is unfortunate in marriage. . . . Their attitude encourages free love."

CARDINAL HAYES—"People who ignore the spirit and live only for the body meet disaster and perish."

JUSTICE SELAH B. STRONG—"Divorce is conducive to morality. . . . It's the gold-digger wives that make many a legal separation. . . . Alimony, alimony, alimony—that's what they clamor for."

REV. JOHN ROACH STRATON—"A man meets a girl in a night club and marries her on the way home. . . . Girls put on paint and take off clothes. . . . I wouldn't be surprised if the next thing we see will be divorce coupons on every marriage license."

NATACHA RAMBOVA (formerly Mrs. Rudolph Valentino)—"No one was ever more devoted to Rudy than I was—and still am."

FANNIE HURST—"Most biologists agree that the average of love life is only five years."

DUDLEY FIELD MALONE—"Most unhappiness springs from ignorance of facts of sex."

Other big names represented are:

FATHER FRANCIS P. DUFFY
LUCILLE PUGH
MICHAEL J. CRUISE
REV. JOHN HAYNES HOLMES
DR. RANDOLPH RAY
MAX D. STEUER
DR. FELIX ADLER

Some of the cities already closed are:

NEW YORK (JOURNAL)
BOSTON (POST)
WASHINGTON (STAR)
BALTIMORE
PHILADELPHIA
YOUNGSTOWN
SOUTH BEND
SAN FRANCISCO
BUFFALO
ALBANY
BIRMINGHAM
ROCHESTER CAMDEN
ATLANTA

Wire Collect—NOW!

Famous Features Syndicate, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

irginian-Pilot
THE NORFOLK LANDMARK RAISES IN PAY
Now Set In LINOTYPE MARK
nic No. 5

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

How Bay City (Mich.) Times Tribune Conducted a Classified Survey—N. Y. Telegram Makes Change in Make-up—Johnson Classified Manager of Denver Post

RESULTS of a reader-interest survey conducted by the Bay City (Mich.) Times Tribune were told to EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week by L. B. Hudson, classified manager.

"Reader-interest has always been a great selling point for the solicitor, yet, in few instances, could he offer specific cases or figures to prospective advertisers of the reader-interest of their medium," Mr. Hudson wrote.

"Recently, to overcome this, a classified survey was placed into every home in Bay City. Questionnaires were distributed to every carrier boy, with instructions to deliver with the evening paper on Thursday night and to gather the following Saturday morning when they make their weekly collections. A bonus of a half a cent per questionnaire returned, properly filled out, was given to each, in an effort to obtain maximum returns from the 10,500 homes we cover in Bay City. Approximately, 33% of these questionnaires were returned.

		Yes Per Cent	No Per Cent
1.	Do you read Classified Ads?	98	2
2.	Do you read them frequently?	94	6
3.	Do you read them daily?	72	28
4.	Do you make purchases from them?	70	30
5.	Have you ever used Classified Ads?	70	30
6.	Have you ever obtained results?	86	14

During the spring months, our promotional copy will have as a nucleus, the results of this survey. These promotional ads will be scheduled to run in our display columns varying in size from a quarter to full page and each ad will deal with one phase of this survey. Our appeals will be made from the standpoint of readers, transient advertisers and contract advertisers.

Our complete prospect list will be circularized with a series of four letters, dealing with the possibilities of Classified Advertising, its cost, coverage and result producing powers, with testimonials and recommendations from other advertisers. These letters will go out March 7th, March 14th and March 21st. A folder containing testimonials of contract classified advertisers, will be enclosed in each letter.

"Our regular contract advertisers, totalling approximately 155, will receive a circular campaign, consisting of three letters, giving the results of the survey with better copy and multiple ad suggestions.

"We feel that this survey has given us a keener knowledge of Classified Advertising. It has equipped us to sell more intelligently and most important, it has shown us our weak classifications from readers' attention standpoint."

The New York Evening Telegram on March 1 changed the make-up and typographical regulations of its classified pages. T. F. Mulhern is the classified advertising manager.

Under the new arrangement Telegram want ad advertisers are permitted to use a light face display type, outline cuts and borders. These changes are to apply on all classifications except furnished rooms and employment. The make-up arrangement calls for all the displayed ads to be placed at the top of the page.

The Thursday used car feature which has appeared each Thursday for the last four years was merged with the regular classified automobile section beginning with the issue of March 3rd.

E. H. Johnson, formerly assistant classified manager of the Cleveland Press, is now classified manager of the Denver Post.

Thomas A. Burke has been promoted from secretary to associate editor and Captain Pierre de Rohan to assistant manager of the classified advertising department of the Camden (N. J.) Evening Courier and Morning Post.

Additions to the classified advertising street staff of the Evening Courier and Morning Post include Irving Meyer, from the Buffalo Times; Harry Abramson, Frank L. Van Leer, Robert Howe and Andrew Wolf. Miss Helen Birkhead also has been added to the stenographic staff of the department, bringing the roster up to 21 members. F. B. Richardson has resigned as manager and the department is being conducted by Mr. de Rohan, in addition to his other duties as associate editor.

FRIENDLY HONORED

A golf bag and clubs were presented to Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the New York Sun, at a dinner given in his honor by the Sun Club on Feb. 26. Einar O. Petersen, club president, presided.

"NEWSVERTISING" NOTED AS NEW AD TREND

(Continued from page 8)

which had been overshadowed and submerged now came into their own in a composition sense. The advertiser supplied his newspapers with plates patterned after the ones 'technically edited' by the newspaper in question."

Readers of "Good Copy" are cautioned that it is a mistake to assume that no advertisement is effective unless heavily enriched with pictures. Examples are cited which are literally pictures in type. Ten rules are listed to aid advertisers in type selection. They follow:

1—Select type faces that seem to illustrate the spirit of the product and its message of the moment.

2—Remember that type is in itself "pictorial." When a new type face is "cut" it is with a definite purpose and idea. Consider, for instance, the popular "Cooper style," square-shouldered, aggressive, bold, dominating. It talks "power" in every line, without the aid of illustrations.

3—Do not use a great many different sizes and faces of type in a single display. Two or three should suffice in the majority of cases. More than that makes for confusion, scattered visual interest, and inartistic layout.

4—Observe the niceties of marginal white space. The scientific arrangement of type in a given layout is a highly specialized art. The areas of white "make" the advertisement.

5—Balance in a composition is a deciding factor. The size of the type and its position governs this and the average eyes should be able at once to ascertain the difference between the good and the bad. That layout which at once lures the eye, attracts you, makes you eager to read, is quite likely to have what is known as "perfect composition balance."

6—If simple line borders are employed in an all-type newspaper series, such borders should in every way conform to the type faces in style and spirit.

7—It is by no means imperative, but a wisely chosen initial letter often relieves a too-great simplicity and "starts an advertisement off with a rush."

Readability is influenced in an important way by the spacing of type. Cramped and congested typography, merely for the sake of formal blocks, to fit a composition ideal, are ill-advised. The eye turns away instinctively from such devices.

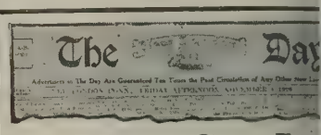
9—Avoid too many interjections and interruptions in the way of captions, subheads, little spots of emphasized type. To an important degree, they ar necessary.

10—Use large, readable type. is a popular prejudice against tin faces. It is better to edit the co boil it down to the fewest possible ber of words.

In regard to the humanization o copy, the Bureau's book points ou "this financial movement is not c to the larger cities. It is everywh evidence, and constantly increasing terest and in quality of the messa

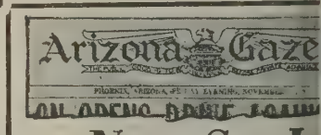
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

Our day in and day out promotion plans build classified mediums.
Ask us how we do it.
THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building Philadelphia



Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

Economical Territory
Utah, Idaho, Wyoming and Nevada can be handled economically by the sales manager who knows the circulation, linage and power of
The Salt Lake Tribune
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency —Sole Eastern Agents.
M. C. Mogensen & Co. Inc.—Pacific Coast Representatives.



Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE
Ionic No.

THE CHRONICL
Marion, Indiana
1st in A. B. C. City Circu tion in Local Advertising in National Advertising in Total Paid Advertisi
9,129
Is the Daily Circulation 6 months' age, ending September 30, 1926.
Marion and the adjacent Trade Ter can only be adequately covered wit
Marion Evening Chroni
Represented by
The S. C. Beckwith Special Age
New York—Chicago—St. Louis—D Kansas City—Atlanta—Los Ange San Francisco

Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE
Ionic No.

Peori
The
Try-Out Ci
THE PEORIA
JOURNA
Transcri
Puts Tryouts Ove
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Bosto

L ALLOWS MISSOURI TO ADVERTISE

tes Publicity Bureau Authorized to Prepare News Items and Contract for Advertising plan to advertise Missouri is out- in a bill introduced last week in tate legislature by 11 representatives. bill provides for a state publicity tor and for the creation of a pub- department. It is planned to ob- revenue to operate the office and to rtise the state by levying a $25 fee lly from all real estate, rental and agents and abstractors.

e director of publicity, is to receive a of $4,000 annually, with an as- t at $3,000 annually, and the neces- stenographers and other help. The tor is to be appointed by the Gov-e bill provides that the director shall are and distribute bulletins, stories, hlets, books and literature to prop- advertise and promote the best in- s of the state, its people and its erce, and further that:

e shall advertise to the world the al resources, the potential and de- ed industrial advantages, the climate, diversified topography, flora and the healthful conditions, the ac- ility to power, the endless crop and productions and all the advantages issouri's inexhaustible possibilities," easure stipulates.

e director also would be authorized ntract for foreign and domestic ad- ing of the state."

und would be opened and contribu- solicited from individuals and cor- ons of the state to help provide the to boost Missouri.

HOLDS SEVEN POSTS

Hoss, Oregon Newspaper Man, Active in Journalistic Affairs

E. Hoss, manager of the Oregon (Ore.) Daily Enterprise, claims the record for holding the greatest of offices in greatest variety of listic organizations. His titles are lows:

ctor of the International Press oundation.
-president of the National Editor- Association.
ident of the Pacific Coast News- per Conference.
etary of the Oregon State Editor- Association.
ctor of the Willamette Valley Ben anklin Club.
etary of the Clackamas County iblishers Association.
ager of the Oregon City Morning terprise.

ddition, Mr. Hoss has just accepted sition of secretary to the newly ated governor, the Hon. I. L. on.

AIDING DRUG ADDICTS

Milwakee Journal has purchased y of narcosan and has turned the over to officers of a local hospital atment of narcotic cases. Pro- f the treatment on the patients is reported without use of names.

DANVILLE REGISTER

CORONER'S JURY Legislative Hopper
CAN SOON TO SOUND OWN DEATH SIGNAL EXCHANGE EARLIER

Now Set In

LINOTYPE

nic No. 5

HUNTER LEAVES I. A. A.

Director of Club Service Resigns to Join Indianapolis C. of C.

Ed Hunter, this week resigned as director of club service of the International Advertising Association, to become secretary of the Indianapolis (Ind.) Chamber of Commerce. He left New York for Indianapolis Friday and will assume his new duties early next week A successor has not yet been appointed by the I. A. A.

ED. HUNTER

Mr. Hunter was formerly secretary of the Advertising Club of Indianapolis, resigning that position in 1925 to become associated with the I. A. A. While with the latter organization, Mr. Hunter originated the idea of setting aside advertising weeks to be observed by member clubs of the association. "Newspaper Week" held Jan. 15-22 was considered particularly successful.

Mr. Hunter is a former newspaper man, having been connected with the Chicago Tribune, the old Chicago Inter-Ocean, the Indianapnlis News, Indianapolis Star, and Indianapolis Times.

PROMOTING INDIAN "ADOPTIONS"

Louisville Herald-Post Sponsoring New Circulation Idea

A new circulation promotion idea is being sponsored by the Louisville (Ky.) Herald-Post, which is offering wholesale adoptions of white children and adults into Indian tribes.

The idea was first announced in the Herald-Post, Feb. 23, when the newspaper used a double-spread advertisement and first page story, offering, through Oghema Niagara, (Chief Thunderwater) of Cleveland, O., the Chief of the Supreme Council of The Tribes, to make any white child or adult of Louisville a member of the Mohawk tribe.

An application blank, to be filled out by the candidate, appeared in the advertisement, which was got up in Indian style in an artistic manner. The Herald-Post is asking each candidate to submit a one-year order for the afternoon and Sunday paper. Engraved certificates of adoption will be issued.

The Herald-Post plans to form a local society to be known as "Indians," to which boys and girls who have been adopted are eligible. Entertainments of an Indian nature are planned, and Indian ideas and ideals will be taught.

The idea of adopting children and adults into Indian tribes through the medium of newspapers was originated by Frank S. Burr, of Cleveland, retired army officer, who worked out the details with Chief Thunderwater. The "Indians" plan is copyrighted. Burr plans formation of a national organization to be known as "Indians," made up of chapters in cities all over the United States. The Indian Newspaper Promotion Syndicate, Louisville, Ky., is handling the plan with R. Campbell Kennedy, general manager of the Herald-Post, co-operating.

N. Y. TYPO CHIEF HONORED

Leon Rouse, president of Typographical Union No. 6, New York, was guest of honor Feb. 26 at a get-together dinner of the composing room employes of the New York Evening Post. Andrew Burke, Evening Post proof reader, was toastmaster, and Thomas Griffin, chairman of the daily's chapel, was in charge of arrangements.

THE TIMES RECORDER

NDIT STAGES TWO MORE HOLDUPS
NELLIE ROSS OF WYOMING TO BE GUEST OU

Now Set In

LINOTYPE

Ionic No. 5

NEWARK SUNDAY CALL

Garden Grind Sixteen Injured Quartet Near Death in Hospital

Now Set In

LINOTYPE

Ionic No. 5

Largest Newspaper West of Chicago

500,000 Copies DAILY

The KANSAS CITY STAR

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

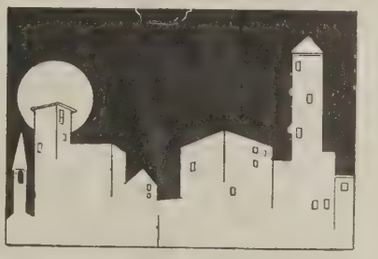
A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

GIVE YOUR READERS
DAILY HEALTH TALKS
by Dr Frank McCoy
"The Mayo of Health Writers"

A health service that is different—home treatments without medicine or costly apparatus, based on a knowledge of food chemistry and the mechanics of the body

WIRE OR WRITE
McCoy Health Service
Brack Shops Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

Picture a Busy Industrial City



With Its People Employed in Skilled Industries

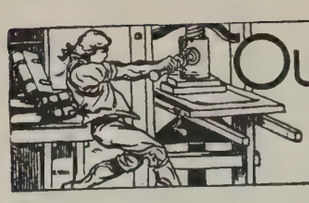
—who earn good incomes
—who live in their own homes or in two-family homes
—who are busy all year 'round
—who are seldom unemployed
—who spend freely and who patronize their neighborhood stores.

and you have a Picture of Bridgeport Connecticut Trading Market

Merchants will tell you that the POST-TELEGRAM reaches a buying class whose 64,000 wage earners alone have an $84,000,000 payroll to spend annually.

The POST-TELEGRAM with its 44,446 daily circulation represents quality, quantity and volume. Manufacturers of luxuries or necessities can obtain quick and economical distribution in Bridgeport, and the entire trading area can be merchandised as one unit with one cost, because 98% of the POST-TELEGRAM circulation is concentrated in this territory.

National Representatives
GILMAN, NICOLL & RUTHMAN
New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco.



The Times

FULLER PARTY LEAV

Now Set In

LINOTYPE

Ionic No. 5

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

AMUSING and at times interesting is the clinic which Horace J. Hubbell performs upon one of the great American news agencies in the American Mercury for March. His clinic is headed "Think Stuff Unwanted."

By way of explanation of this head, Mr. Hubbell says that during his term of service in the said organization one of his colleagues turned in a series of learned and serious articles upon political and economic conditions in the country where the latter was working. The reaction of the home office was expressed in a crisp three-word cable which is used as the title of the article. Thereafter even "traces" of think stuff could not be found either in his cable dispatches or in his mail stories.

Mr. Hubbell quotes the official house organ of the association as printing that the six most desirable subjects for mail articles were those dealing with "women, liquor, wealth, religion, science and immorality." Some of these subjects are listed in the dispatch quoted as having been sent by the cable editor to the London bureau:

> Anything on matrimonial chitchat about the Prince of Wales or the rest of the family, now that he's back on the home grounds? Also what's he doing with himself—anything spectacular in the night-club or following any pretty actresses

The article defines a scoop as "an exclusive story," while a beat is "a story obtained well in advance of the competing agencies." A desire for scoops and beats is said to explain this S.O.S. from the New York cable desk:

> May I preface my bouquets and brickbats this week by telling you: The mail product is in the doldrums. It needs a lot of waking up. Pep; color; oddity; originality; enterprise. Sometime ago I told you of the New York Times man's observation that the XYZ was trying to speed up and brighten up, but that it was hard to teach an elephant to dance. It was a merry quip. But the elephant is learning to dance. He's turning out some gay steps from all over the world, and they're treading over the front pages, and onto our toes.

By this time the reader has a pretty definite idea what news agencies are thus dramatized in the story. Sufficient quotes have been given to indicate the general trend of the article.

What is said about mail stories being put on the wire from New York as cable dispatches is right to the point. It would be interesting to know whether newspaper readers value more highly the story that carries a by-line of cable transmission than they do one that is honestly acknowledged as having come by mail. Occasionally a newspaper frankly gives credit for a story to the mail and thus sets their readers guessing about the honesty of other newspapers where practically the same material appears under a cable by-line.

The article has already been the subject of much comment in newspaper clubs throughout the country.

* * *

PROFESSOR WILLIAM LYON PHELPS of Yale University in his department, "As I Like It," in Scribner's Magazine for February, prints several squibs about American newspapers. In his opinion the New York Times has a first rate columnist in Will Rogers. He questions the accuracy of New York newspapers in reporting the Mexican highway race run by the two Indians—Thomas Zafiro and Leonicio San Miguel. He thinks that the two editorials in the New York Sun—one on the country store which commented on Bruce Barton's interview with President Coolidge, the other which expressed an opinion on Kipling's poem on America—were worthy of the best traditions of that paper—and he knows no higher praise. He describes the Barton interview as "a triumph of American journalism."

* * *

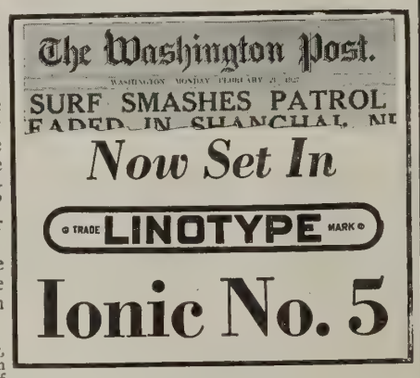
ARE the tabloid newspapers imperiling our manners, morals, and good taste? Do their efforts to please "readers who cannot read" lower the general tone of the standard size papers? Do they wash too much dirty linen and print too many pictures of bathing beauties? Do they breed a dangerous sophistication in the young? Are they becoming the literary equivalent of the drug habit? These questions—and then some more—are answered by Aben Kandel in the affirmative in an article, "A Tabloid A Day," which he contributes to The Forum for March.

His article may be said to tabloid the tabloids. It is as jazzy as anything the tabloids print. The opening paragraph will do by way of illustration:

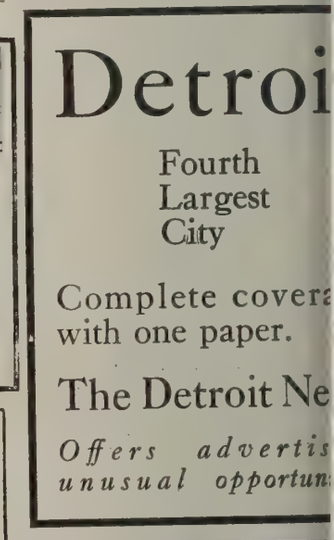
> Eight years ago, the New York Daily News, dean of the tabloids, set up its first wail in New York. It was a sickly infant, a sort of half-acknowledged child of the Chicago Tribune, self-styled, "World's Greatest Newspaper." A midwife had babbled, and the story ran that the News had been infused with life for the sole purpose of draining away some of the excess profits which the parent paper had piled up in that abnormally prosperous year. When the first issue appeared on the stands, the wiseacres of Park Row picked it up gingerly, felt the heft of it, observed its pallor, listened for faint heartbeats, and sadly wagged their nicotine-stained beards.

Statisticians are quoted as saying that every day two million men, women and children read the tabloids in the Greater New York area alone. It is even said that many read all three and pant for a fourth. This wonderful development of the tabloids practically overnight into such powerful newspaper giants is described as the most phenomenal chapter in the history of American journalism.

Mr. Kandel says that this remarkable growth of tabloids cannot be explained by merely saying "pictures." He calls attention to the fact that the United States has had picture papers before—but they failed. He finds the answer in the French saying, "Cherchez la femme." Here she is:



> The admission is made that in the tabloids are sports, theatricals, comic strips, fiction, radio and other departments that go to make up a newspaper. The flag found nailed to the masthead of the tabloids is, "It is easier to look and feel, than it is to read and think."



Mr. Kandel says in this Forum article that the regular readers are shop-girls, stenographers, housewives, lower theatrical folk, laborers, and, what is most serious, school children." It would be interesting to know upon what surv deduction is made. Students of lism who stand at street corne watch buyers drop their penni tabloids bring back a different re to the character of the readers.
students are not special pleaders tabloids—but that is another st
Kipling would say.

Mr. Kandel, however, is on mo ground when he remarks:

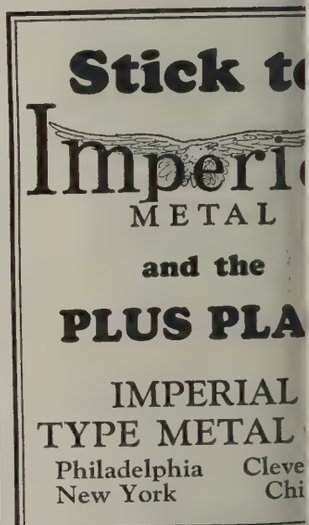
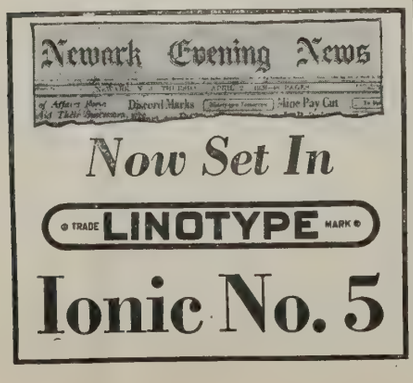
> A serious by-product of the amazir > larity of the tabloids is the effect upo





Another
Quality Feature
BEAUTY AND YOU
By Viola Paris of Vogue
(DAILY AND SUNDAY)

Boston Globe
Chicago Daily News
New York Sun
Philadelphia Inquirer
Baltimore Morning Sun
Cleveland Plain Dealer
Birmingham News
Washington Post
San Francisco Chronicle
Cincinnati Enquirer
St. Louis Globe Democrat

UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE
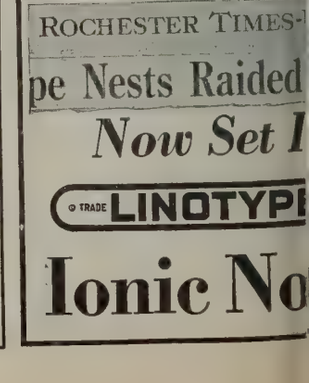
World Building, New York

Thorough Coverage in One of the World's Richest Buying Centers—Coupled with the Ability to Produce Results

Pittsburgh Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening except Sunday)



These newspapers in News and Advertising have the confidence of their readers.
Their readers have the power to purchase.

Sold Singly or Combined

URBAN E. DICE, Nat'l Advg. Mgr.
Gazette Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

E. M. BURKE, Inc.,
1457 Broadway, New York.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

R. J. BIDWELL COMPANY,
742 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.
White-Henry-Stuart Bldg., Seattle, Wash.

ently edited newspapers. In the struggle to old their circulation and to make a bid for ew readers, they have been obliged to adopt ome of the picture devices of the newcomers. ortunately, however, their concessions have not een very radical, and their indentities are still ntact. But should the encroachments of the abloids meet with greater and continued suc- ess, one is terrified by the prospect of future ewspapers.

From this point on the article be- omes less interesting and is only a re- ash of material that has already appeared n print about the tabloids. But the hole question of the tabloid journalism is to be debated in the April number of he Forum. The article in the March ssue is evidently merely an "attention- rrester" or an introduction to the debate heduled for April. In this debate the bloids will be defended by Martin eyrauch, Assistant Managing Editor f the New York Graphic. The other de will be taken by Oswald Garrison illard, who publishes a weekly tabloid hich, known as The Nation, is slightly fferent both in subject matter and in ode of treatment from the common or ily variety. A follow-up story will ubtless appear in this department after e April Forum is on the newsstands.

* * *

N America, a Catholic review of the week, there is an editorial in the issue r Feb. 26 on William Randolph Hearst, aded "Mr. Hearst Needs Shoring p." It comments about the attitude of e Hearst newspapers towards Federal pervision in education.

* * *

N article in the current issue of Di- rect Reflections is headed "Buying e Truth." It opens with an anecdote it is worth quoting:

Mr. Edward S. Jordan of automobile-world ne, the man who shocks the advertising world r so often with sensible departures from the aight and narrow advertising path, handed prim members of the profession a jolt not long ago by admitting in the public prints t there were other automobiles better than

Remember the advertisement in point? It how time has divided automobiles into price ses, and brazenly stated that in the price s immediately above the standard of his car, his estimation, the Cadillac reigned supreme. hen the advertisement ran through the gamut classes and sold its own particular machine the outstanding value in its class. It truly a remarkable advertisement, not because it unusual, but because it tapped a type of ing appeal which rarely is used in present- marketing.

The article then goes on to venture prophecy that the day will come when nder certain conditions—the advertis- world will see one merchant recom- nding the product of his competitor. t day, however, will be when mer- nts recognize the fact that they are servants of the public and must play with the public.

* * *

APPLETON & COMPANY an- nounce for early publication "Bible ds Today" by William T. Ellis. Mr. s is well known to newspaper pub- ers for his syndicated articles on gious topics.

* * *

NE page in the current issue of The Quill certainly should not be over- ed. I refer to "The Anatomy of Jour- sm" by Master Surgeons. On this e are the brief extracts of those who various times have conducted clinics American newspapers. Among those esented are Melville E. Stone of the ociated Press; Dean Walter Williams he Press Congress of the World; Koenigsberg, president of the Inter- national News Service; H. J. Haskell of the Kansas City Star; Stephen Bolles, editor of the Janesville Gazette; Edgar T. Cutter, superintendent of the Central Division of the Associated Press; Emil Dovifat, chairman of the Berlin Section of the German Press Association; Charles G. Ross, Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Erie C. Hopwood, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; and last and also least the conductor of this department.

WEEKLY PUBLISHERS MEET

Publishers of twenty weekly newspapers gathered in Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 26, in the Chamber of Commerce to discuss advertising problems. C. C. Charles, publisher of the Ponca (Neb.) Journal-Leader, presided and talks were made by W. A. Murchinson, advertising manager of Davidson Bros. Company; Don Holt, president of the Sanitary Plumbing Company and Vaughn Weidel, president of the United Advertising Agency. The publishers were guests of the Motor Trades bureau at the auto show.

CLUB INDUCTS OFFICERS

The annual induction of officers of the New York Press Club was held last week at the club rooms. The new officers are Sidney W. Dean, president; Charles A. Hand, S. Jay Kauffman, and John A. Phail, vice-presidents; George B. Creveling, treasurer; Walter E. Warner, financial secretary; and Caleb H. Redfern, corresponding secretary.

WINS LIBEL SUIT

The Columbus (Kan.) Daily Advocate was victor recently in a libel suit brought by Daniel A. Jerald, a farmer, who asked $10,000 damages, when the case was dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff did not have cause for action.

RE-ENTERS DAILY FIELD

The Augusta (Kan.) Gazette, formerly a daily, now a semi-weekly, has returned to the daily field. Burns Hegler is owner.

New York Evening Post

HT: SOCIETY BOBBIES Champion Tenney Finds SMITH TO REVEAL MRS.
OVE ESCAPE WITH GEMS Old Couple, Auto Victims, HIS POWER PLANT BY FALL
Facing Hopeless Destitution

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

A Simple Practical Solution

Just consider the detail work now done in a newspaper publishers office pertaining to checking proofs, and the high cost of newsprint, postage and clerks time in handling detail, and then consider the fact that under our Complete Checking Proof Service the only detail necessary is to send us a few complete copies each day—and we do the rest. In other words, we relieve a publishers office of all detail work and at the same time we give his agencies and advertisers a much more satisfactory service on which they can depend at all times . . . . and the cost is less.

NOW—375 subscribers

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

79 Madison Ave. New York — 538 So. Clark St. Chicago

HE SALEM EVENING NEWS

ECTED ABODY. TESTIMONY OF LEITS IN LOCAL FOUR NEW MEN FOR COUNCIL ONE CHANGE

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

onic No. 5

INDIANA

Always in the Limelight

2~ DIVERSIFICATION of INDUSTRY

Indiana is a typical American State, where the advertiser is almost sure to obtain results from his advertising campaign if properly planned and executed.

Indiana is blessed with a great number of important industries that furnish employment to its people. The industries are diversified, employing skilled labor at unusually high wages.

These industries represent the basic commodities that are in demand all year 'round. They work full blast all year 'round. Therefore Indiana's people are always at work and with the high living standards they enjoy they are among the best potential buyers in this Country.

Make your appeal to these people through the newspapers listed below. You will find the response surprisingly great.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines
*Columbus Republican .....(E)	4,851	.03
†Decatur Democrat .....(E)	3,204	.025
*Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette .....(M)	36,070	.08
*Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette .....(S)	28,910	.08
*Fort Wayne News-Sentinel .....(E)	43,021	.10
*Gary Evening Post-Tribune .....(E)	16,315	.06
*Huntington Press .....(M&S)	5,099	.03
*Indianapolis News .....(E)	127,079	.25
*Lafayette Journal & Courier...(M) 7,794 (E) 13,336	21,130	.06
†La Porte Herald-Argus .....(E)	7,069	.04
*Marion Chronicle .....(E)	9,129	.04
†Shelbyville Democrat .....(E)	4,021	.025
*South Bend News-Times.....(M) 9,771 (E) 17,070	26,841	.07
*South Bend News-Times .....(S)	25,133	.07
*South Bend Tribune...(S) 21,775..(E)	22,769	.06
†Terre Haute Tribune .....(E&S)	23,273	.06

*A. B. C. Statement, Publisher's, October 1, 1926.
†Government Statement, October 1, 1926.

SHOP TALK AT THIRTY

By MARLEN PEW

IN the Senate Press Gallery at Washington last week, I had an hour's talk with an old friend. We sat at the long writing table during an executive session of the Upper House. The exhausting Boulder Dam filibuster was drawing to an end. Lanky Jim Preston, patron saint of the press, was deftly moving about attending to the wants of every correspondent, typewriters were clicking, telegraph instruments were buzzing dots and dashes, boys were running about excitedly, copy was reeling off that the man in the street might know all that we knew as we sat there under the big dome. My friend was weary from long hours of observing and writing during a strenuous session of a Congress. He related the inside story of the filibuster and then, with a far-away look in his eye, turned to a wholly irrelevant subject. "Can a fellow make a living raising chickens?" he asked. "I suppose it is possible to be bored doing that, too." It seemed a queer thing to say in those surroundings which were so absorbingly interesting to the casual visitor, but there is no conscientious newspaper man who will not understand and sympathize with the mood of my friend. After one has lived on a diet of excitement for ten or twenty years a mere Senate filibuster, with Jim Reed of Missouri spitting fire at the roaring Old Guard, is about as stimulating as the day's last cigarette.

* * *

THE conscientious newspaper man carries peculiar burdens. In addition to the complications of private life, constantly becoming more tangled for most of us, he carries a weight of public or community responsibility. The job of putting spangles on mediocrity and of interpreting the day's news without violating either conventions or personal reputations, though both may be contemptible, is what puts that far-away look into journalistic eyes and cries out for relief. But I do not think that the chicken farm is the avenue of escape. Many have tried it, but few have succeeded. Investigate its pitfalls and its boredom before venturing, say I.

* * *

REFERENCES to chicken farming always remind me of the tragedy of John Breen. He was a reporter of the old school, for years the star of the New York Evening World staff. I shall never forget one story that came from his mill. Early one morning the fashionable home of a wealthy family named Andrews was destroyed by fire and, as I remember it, six or seven persons were burned in their beds, including two children. John Breen was early at the scene, working furiously. For the early editions he had telephoned the facts to rewriters. Early in the forenoon he went to the office and poured out a complete rewrite of the whole story. His first paragraph was a description of a clear, cold winter night on Central Park West, with the residents sleeping while Policeman O'Brien paced up and down the wide thoroughfare, beating his breast to keep the blood circulating. The handsome Andrews home was pictured and then Breen, in his wonderful imagination, saw a spark fly from an electric wire and start a tiny flame in a rug. From this spark the writer developed a conflagration in all of its horrifying details. It was a masterpiece of the old-style narrative form of news reporting, filling eight or ten solid columns of space, remarkable for sequence as well as for plausible detail.

* * *

BREEN had dramatic genius and no story lost anything in human interest quality from his handling. For instance, he was once assigned to report the suicide of a woman in the tenement district of the East Side. Enroute to the scene he stopped in a bookshop and purchased a Bible. Presently he learned, as he had anticipated, that the woman who had killed herself had merely thrown off the tawdry garments of a wasted life and the actual news in the event would scarcely merit a four-line item. But Breen opened the Bible and found scripture bearing on the case. He pricked his finger and marked these moral passages with his own blood. Handing this exhibit over to the police, to whom he pretended he had found it in the room, he dashed back to the office and wrote a piece which was calculated to be a sermon from the grave. To me he later admitted the fake, but in extenuation said: "You can't tell what good a thing like that may do. Certainly it did the dead woman no harm. It might now be said she did not live in vain."

* * *

ONE day the world turned black for John Breen. He was suddenly stricken with blindness. Joseph Pulitzer, himself blind, was deeply touched by news of the reporter's affliction and for several years he sent Breen from place to place for treatment by the world's most skilled scientists. But all was in vain. It was then that Mr. Pulitzer set John Breen up on a poultry farm on Long Island. The venture was not a financial success, and I do not know what has become of the blind reporter during the intervening years.

* * *

MOST newspapermen take their work more seriously than any other class of toilers and the sacrifice is often tragic.

It is possible to give the job all that it deserves and yet not permit it to consume one. Newspapering becomes a bore when it is an obsession, rather than a trade. Too often office troubles are dragged home. I incline to the view that the journalist's wife stands more "shop talk" punishment than the average woman. There are, of course, wives and wives, some making men bigger than God ever intended them to be and some dwarfing their husbands hideously. One newspaper man of sound sense once told me that he had long made it a practice to drop at the threshold of his home all disagreeable phases of his professional life. It is his refuge when the hounds are on the trail.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT

Editor of Atlanta Life Refused to Reveal Sources of News

Parks Rusk, editor of Atlanta (Ga.) Life, a weekly paper, was fined $100 or given the alternative of serving three days in jail for contempt of court, because he refused to disclose to the grand jury information on which he based charges that liquor was served at the Atlanta Co-Operative Club party on Jan. 17. Rusk paid the fine.

Judge E. D. Thomas, who imposed the sentence, commended the motive of Rusk but declared that the matter of violating a confidence became distinctly seconc where such action interfered with proper functioning of the law and cou

INTRODUCING STAFF

Fort Worth Press Running Persona Stories About Its Workers

The Fort Worth (Tex.) Press adopted a plan of introducing its sta its readers. Personality stories a Press workers are printed each da the editorial page. An editorial expl tion stated:

"The Press adopted this plan of in ducing to its readers the men and wo who make the paper, just to bec better acquainted all around. In series on the editorial page appear little secrets about what makes the wh go round—how fast editions are through, and how the daily work newspaper is done with less of the dening fuss and bother you may been led to believe."

SET FIRE TO GET STORY

With the object of making a story obtaining a beat on the opposition paper, Charles Marsh, 19, a reporte the London (Ont.) Free Press, se to some corrugated cardboard in a ing there on Feb. 12.

The Daily Advertis
AN GOVERNMENT HAS
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No.

THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

65,563 NET PAID
CIRCULATION
Cover Half a State
EVENING COURIER
MORNING POST
CAMDEN, N. J.
National Representatives
Story, Brooks & Finley.

The World
These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.
The Evening World
Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

The Providence Journal
Distress as Cold Sweeps New England — HALL-MILLS TRIAL — ARBITRATORS GIVE — State G. O. P. Delays — of Woman Vice-C
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

MR. EDITOR:
You can increase circulation with Motion Pictures!
Bass has shown dozens of newspapers how to use motion pictures in conjunction with local events. Pulls big!
Write today for information about the marvelous new B. & H. Eyemo. Automatic hand-held camera for professional motion pictures. Also detailed data, cost of producing and free catalogues.
Bass Camera Co.
109 North Dearborn Street
EYEMO DIVISION CHICAGO, ILL.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America
Buffalo—a profitable Market for Advertisers
Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the
BUFFALO EVENING NEWS
Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes
EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor and Publisher
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y. Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia
Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill. Waterman Bldg. Boston

MICHIGAN
is growing faster than any S in the Union.
Its increase in manufactu products surpasses anything in world.
BOOTH NEWSPAPE
cover Michigan outside of De —Eight principal cities with only or leading Newspaper in respective community.
The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News
National Advertising Representati
I. A. KLEIN 50 East 42nd Street New York City
J. E. LU Tower Bui Chicago,

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Prudential Insurance Company to Start Newspaper Campaign—223 Papers Listed in Sunkist Orange Drive—More Companies Advertising Radio Programs

IRST copy will appear March 14 in a newspaper campaign to be conted by the Prudential Insurance Comy of America, Newark, N. J. Company officials declined to discuss ails of the drive when questioned this ek by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stating the n was experimental. The account is ected by the Frank Presbrey Comy, New York.

t is the first time this insurance comy has purchased newspaper space for er than the presentation of its annual ort. The copy of the present drive l be educational in tone and designed help local dealers sell policies. Both ck and white and rotogravure will used.

A list of 223 newspapers will be used the Fruit Growers Exchange, Los geles, in its spring and summer camgn on Sunkist oranges. This adverng is directed by the Los Angeles ce of Lord & Thomas and Logan.

Eight advertisements of 336 lines each l two advertisements of 624 lines will used in metropolitan dailies. Newsers in smaller cities will receive six ertisements of 336 lines.

A growing number of broadcasting adtisers are supporting their radio proms with paid copy placed on newser radio pages. Some of the latest ay their way include the Greater New rk Gas Companies; the Brunswick on, Inc.; the Cheek-Neal Coffee Comy, Nashville, Tenn.; United States ying Card Company; the Cities Serv- Company; and the Leverich Bond Mortgage Company, Brooklyn, N. Y.

More than 84,000 inquiries were reved during the first two years of a -year advertising program of the neville (N. C.) Chamber of Comce, F. Roger Miller, manager, anced this week. An appropriation of 0,000 is being spent annually by the amber.

The India Tea Association, London, gland, is issuing a circular to all erican tea distributors, entitled "How u Can Sell More Tea." The disutors are advised to advertise their nd of tea containing India tea next the association's advertisements. The ler lists all the newspapers in which ia tea copy is appearing, with dates.

ames J. Ruch has been appointed adtising manager of the Coffield Washer mpany, Dayton, O., manufacturers of ctric washers and ironers.

The Endicott-Johnson Company, Bington, N. Y., has started a new rotovure campaign of 12 insertions. The ount is directed by N. W. Ayer & Son.

Beatty Stevens was last week appointed ertising manager of Abraham & aus, Inc., Brooklyn department store. the past seven years he has been s manager of the Shepard Stores in Boston and also has been active in the Providence store operated by the same company.

Edward W. Young, for the past year advertising manager of Conrad's, Boston, women's wearing apparel, became publicity director of the Shepard Stores, Boston, March 1.

Advertising plans are now being made for the Dry Ice Corporation, a new concern, by the George Batten Company, New York.

TEXAS DAILY IN NEW PLANT

5,000 Persons Attend Formal Opening of Wichita Falls Times Building

Five thousand persons visited the Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times new home during the formal opening recently. The building, which utilizes part of the former structure, is described as Northwest Texas' most modern newspaper plant. An orchestra played and staff members escorted visitors through the building during the public reception.

The two-story building fronts 90 feet on Scott street and 75 on Seventh street. Bedford stone, buff face brick, copper and plate glass in artistic combination make it unusually attractive. A large lobby leads from the main entrance. On one side is the display advertising department, on the other classified and circulation. On the first floor also are pressroom, paper storage, mailing room, bookkeeping department and offices.

No artificial light is needed except on dark days in the large editorial and mechanical rooms on the second floor, where also are two private offices, rest and lounging room, telegraph and stereotyping rooms.

E. D. Howard is president of the Times Publishing Company; B. D. Donnel and J. H. Allizon, vice-presidents; Rhea Howard, secretary and treasurer.

JOHN B. PERKINS

Secretary of Sioux City Journal—43 Years with Paper

SIOUX CITY, March 3.—John B. Perkins, secretary of Perkins Bros. Company, publishers of the Sioux City Journal, died Wednesday of cardiac bronchitis.

Mr. Perkins was born in Cedar Falls, Iowa, Aug. 17, 1866, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Perkins, attended school here and, upon completing high school, attended a business college in Chicago.

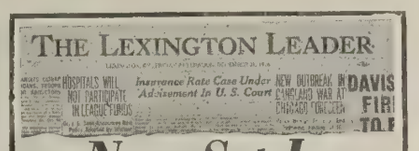
In 1884 he entered the employ of the Journal, serving in various capacities. For many years he had been in charge of the advertising department and, as secretary, was one of the directing heads of the company.

Surviving are his widow, two daughters and a son. Mr. Perkins' father, Henry Perkins, was one of the founders of the Journal.

FORMER HERALD MAN DEAD

Jesse Smith, 50, cashier of the Frank Presbrey Company, New York advertising agency, died Feb. 16. He had been with the agency for the last eight years, and prior to that had been for 20 years with the old New York Herald. George L. Smith has been appointed the new cashier by the Presbrey company.

CLUB HOUSE DEDICATED



Formal dedication of the new club house of the City Press Club of Chicago took place Feb. 26. The building is at 1415 North Dearborn street. Clyde A. Morrison is club president.

FIRE WRECKS FRENCH PAPER

The plant of Le Jean Baptiste, oldest French language newspaper in the United States, was destroyed by fire Monday night at Pawtucket, R. I. The building was owned by W. J. Dunn, publisher of the New Bedford (Mass.) Times.

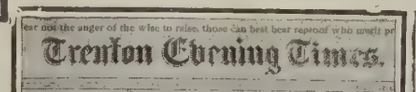
DAILY AWARDS PRIZE

M. S. Middleton of Waxahachie, Tex., was recently announced winner of the $25 prize contest for the best design for a letterhead for the Terrell (Tex.) Daily Tribune.

THE LEXINGTON LEADER
HOSPITALS WILL NOT PARTICIPATE IN LEAGUE TURUS
Insurance Rate Case Under Advisement In U. S. Court
NEW OUTBREAK IN ENGLAND WAR AT CHICAGO CONCLUSION
DAVIS FIR TO F
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration
The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.
The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.
N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle



in
Detroit—
Free Press circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.
The "Free Press"
"Starts the day in Detroit"
With a stable, uninflated, liberal pursed circulation productive of greater advertising returns at lower cost.

Away Ahead!
2,196,676 - 1925
3,699,155 - 1926
1,502,479 - Gain
The New York Evening Graphic shows greater gain in lineage (41%) than any other New York paper.

The Roanoke World-News
SESSION OF 69th CONGRESS
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

The Oklahoma News
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION
An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.
S. P. WESTON
Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation
120 West 42nd Street New York

Trenton Evening Times
ACTS TO REMOVE EXPLOSIVES F
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

Lancaster Intelligencer
DAUGHERTY MILL
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

LONDON DAILY LOSES SUIT

Failure to Register Name Nullifies Telegraph's Action

Failure to comply with the Registration of Trade Names Act resulted in the London Daily Telegraph losing a suit to enforce an advertising contract between the paper and Frank Sandell & Sons, contractors, according to International News Service.

The Telegraph, after having been published continuously for 70 years, was recently bought by Lord Burnham. It sued under its newspaper name for twenty pounds sterling for an advertisement of the defendant which was to have appeared in a special supplement.

The defendant set up a defense that the supplement had not been published and that anyway the name of the newspaper company had not been registered.

The defense admitted that Lord Burnham, after purchasing the Telegraph, had not registered its trade name. The court therefore ruled that the plaintiff was nonexistent as a legal entity when the advertising contract was made.

The question whether the advertisement was printed or not, was not considered and could not be considered, the court held, since there was no contract, and dismissed the action with costs.

Section 1, paragraph B, of the Act, reads: Every individual having a place of business in the United Kingdom and carrying on business under a business name which does not consist of his true name without any addition other than his true Christian name or the initials thereof, shall be registered."

PRESS RATES CUT

Further cuts in cable and wireless press rates became effective this week. The Western Union Telegraph Company reduced its cable press rate on dispatches to Germany from New York to 12 cents a word. The Radio Corporation of America has lopped two cents off the press charge for wireless between New York and London, the reduction being from 7 to 5 cents. A corresponding reduction of the rate between New York and Paris is expected.

Supplies and Equipment

Rebuilt
GOSS & HOE PRESS
BARGAINS
ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO – NEW YORK – LONDON

Modern
Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Drive and Control for Newspaper Presses

A representative installation on a Duplex press, just completed, is that of two 100-h.p., a-c. equipments on a 6-unit Duplex press at the Tampa, Fla., Times. This is a repeat order.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

GOSS
STEREOTYPING MACHINERY
Carried in Stock

Fastest, most easily operated, most accurate and durable flat casting box you can buy. Perfectly balanced. New design lock-up bar allows for quick change when regulating thickness of casts. Positive quick lock-up at four points on box with one lever movement. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

INVISIBLE EXPENSE

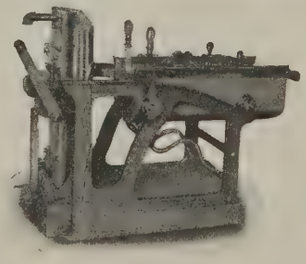
When your blankets are old and worn out, they cause poor printing and many delays, due to the sheets breaking.

Complaints from readers on late delivery and loss of sales.

Rebates to advertisers for poor printing.

Excessive waste paper and extra expense for power and light.

The saving in these items of Invisible Expense for one week will buy a new set of blankets.



You cannot afford to lower your efficiency by false economy.

New England Newspaper Supply Co.
Worcester, Mass., U. S. A.
Cable Address NENSCO, Worcester

Hoe Patented Duo-Cooled Equipoise Curved Casting Mould

"It is essential to Success to be the first but with the news—and Minutes count."

This Hoe Curved Casting Mould is a time-saver, designed especially for Speed and Efficiency. Cold Water circulating through the stationary Lid and the concave Side, gives quick cooling for rapid Casting.

IF IT'S A HOE, IT'S THE BEST

R. HOE & CO., INC. 504-520 Grand St., New York City

7 South Dearborn Street CHICAGO, ILL.
Pere Marquette Bldg. NEW ORLEANS, LA.
7 Water Street BOSTON, MASS.

JOB WANTED?
Use Our Classified Department

Classified

EDITOR & PUBLISHER Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line
13 Times — .50 per line
26 Times — .45 per line

White space charge at same rate per line insertion as earned by frequency of insertion. Minimum Contract space, three lines. Special rates quoted for 52 insertions. The Editor & Publisher reserves the right to classify, edit or reject any advertisemnt.

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

Advertising Promotion—If you want business, communicate with the International Publications Service, Incorporated. 1841 Broadway, New York City.

If You Want More Local Advertising put to work for you selling our "Worthwhile Features. Write F. G. Hogan Syndicate, Lemcke Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind., or Kane.

Special Editions, Special Sections, Special Pages solicited and placed for reasonable commission. Accounts guaranteed. William E. Sheridan, 568 Pacific street, Brooklyn, New York.

Supplies

Shading Sheets for Art work and Benday effects. Bourges Service, Inc., 144 West 27th St., New York.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

Have You $40,000? If so I can offer you a real bargain in North Dakota. Exclusive evening field; splendid equipment; good circulation earning large dividends on price asked. Box B-Shale, Times Bldg., New York.

Only Paper in mid-west city of 7,000—doubled in population last three years. Paper is now weekly; should be made daily at once. Owner made $11,000 profit last year. Will stand rigid investigation. Available for short time at $27,000; $15,000 cash. Prop. 1113x. Care F. Henrichs, Litchfield, Ill.

Trade Journal, established, in good condition, capable of expansion. Gross about $2 Asking price, $17,500 cash. Harris-Dibble Co., 345 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Newspapers for Sale

Fine Small Daily in Florida coast town. To be bought at inventory price, due to health of owners. Is grossing $6,000 to $7,000 per month. Excellent prospects for future of city and plant. B-824, Editor & Publisher.

Three Owners California commercial printing plant and semi-weekly, showing consistent profits 17 per cent up, plus salaries, last three years, will sell to enter larger business. Exclusive field, town 12,000, near Los Angeles. Down payment, $27,000. B-868, Editor & Publisher.

(Continued on following page)

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSES

Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Presses

GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for color or color work, also Goss Sextuple.

HOE Pony Quadruple, Quadruple, Sextuple color Press, Octuple and Double Octuple Presses.

DUPLEX Metropolitan Quadruple stereotype presses—print up to 32 pages.

Available for Early Delivery

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Main Office & Factory.....Plainfield, N. J.
New York Office..Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office.....Monadnock Block

Pennsylvania-STILL GROWING!

Total value of products from Raw Materials used:

1923 . . $7,438,609,142
1921 . . 5,059,009,410
1909 . . 2,626,742,034

In the past 13 years Pennsylvania increased her production value of products from raw materials almost 3-fold. From 1921 to 1923 the increase is shown to be almost 2½ billion dollars, which demonstrates that her industries have been on the up-grade in growth and expansion, far above the average found in other industrial sections.

Greater production means more labor. More labor denotes more incomes and greater per capita buying, and Pennsylvania's great army of labor is among the best paid in the country.

Every national advertiser should keep pace with the growth and expansion of Pennsylvania. In the Keystone State he can reach one of the major markets of the country. The territory is thickly populated, the cities are large, modern, up-to-date and all the buying is concentrated in these large cities.

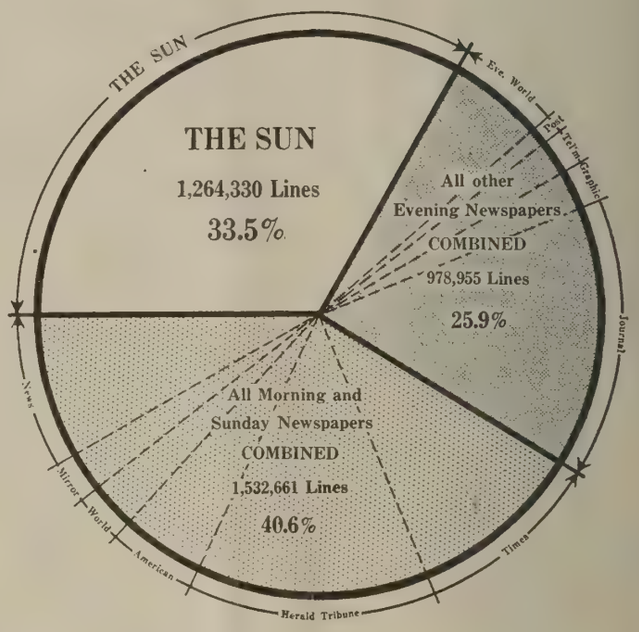
The newspapers listed below are all located in the important buying centers. Each one can show you that he has a profitable market. Why not get the facts from them.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
*Allentown Call .....(M)	32,685	.11	.11
*Allentown Call .....(S)	23,020	.10	.10
†Beaver Falls Tribune.....(E)	6,821	.03	.03
††Bethlehem Globe Times.....(E)	13,272	.06	.06
†Bloomsburg Press .....(M)	7,786	.04	.04
*Chester Times .....(E)	18,612	.06	.06
†Coatesville Record .....(E)	6,834	.035	.03
*Connellsville Courier .....(E)	5,652	.02	.02
Easton Express .....(E) Easton Free Press.....(E)	34,523	.10	.10
*Erie Times .....(E)	30,985	.08	.08
††Greensburg Tribune Review..(EM)	14,883	.05	.05
††Hazleton Plain Speaker.....(E) ††Hazleton Standard-Sentinel....(M)	19,582	.07	.06
*Mount Carmel Item.....(E)	4,229	.0285	.0285
*Oil City Derrick .....(M)	7,088	.04	.04
*Pottsville Republican and Morning Paper .....(EM)	15,403	.08	.07
*Scranton Times .....(E)	42,501	.13	.12
*Sharon Herald .....(E)	7,456	.0357	.0357
*Sunbury Daily Item .....(E)	5,442	.03	.03
*Washington Observer and Reporter .....(M&E)	17,384	.06	.06
†West Chester Local News.....(E)	11,826	.04	.04
*Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader .....(E)	26,204	.06	.06
†Williamsport Sun and Gazette & Bulletin.....(ME)	29,890	.09	.09
†York Dispatch .....(E)	19,955	.05	.05

*A. B. C. Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
Consolidated Aug. 28, 1926. A. B. C. Oct. 1, 1926.
†Government Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

33% of ALL the RADIO ADVERTISING

In New York Newspapers



World Leadership in Radio Advertising

For years radio advertisers have used more space in THE SUN than in any other newspaper in the world.

In 1926 THE SUN alone published 33 per cent. of all the Radio Advertising placed in the twelve New York newspapers.

THE SUN'S leadership in Radio Advertising is due largely to the superiority of its Radio news columns, which have drawn to THE SUN a large body of people who are interested in radio and are responsive to radio advertisements.

THE SUN'S Radio Magazine, issued on Saturdays, is edited by radio experts and is the best Radio Magazine issued by any newspaper anywhere. It contains more editorial features of interest to the radio public than the corresponding section of any other newspaper.

RADIO ADVERTISING—1926
New York Newspapers

Evening Papers		Morning Papers
THE SUN	1,264,330	Herald Tribune	463,181
Journal	580,728	Times	407,293
Eve. World	193,590	News	303,582
Graphic	100.056	American	175,031
Telegram	77,266	Morning World	95,521
Post	27,315	Mirror	88,053
Total	2,243,285	Total	1,532,661

THE SUN is New York's Market Place for Radio Products

The Sun

280 BROADWAY NEW YORK

THIS ISSUE: BIG OIL FIRM DOUBLES NEWSPAPER APPROPRIATION

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1927

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

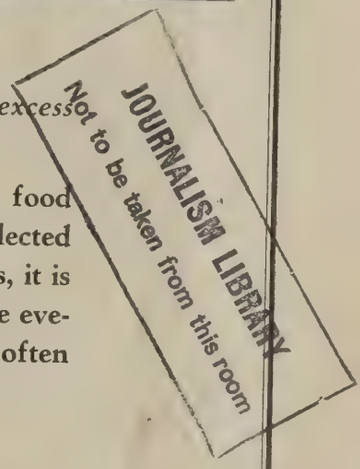
MEMBER A.B.C.

MEMBER A.B.P.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 47 NEW YORK, APRIL 16, 1927 By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign 10c Per Copy

As Conducted by The Chicago Daily News



A typical session of the Chicago Daily News 1927 Cooking School

THE friendly purpose of the cooking school is to provide a rallying point for the forces that prepare a city's breakfasts, luncheons and dinners—to inspire anew the most ancient and respected of the arts.

As conducted by The Chicago Daily News the winter session cooking school held in February is a momentous event, sharing abundantly in the immense popularity of The Daily News itself. The meetings of the 1927 Cooking School, twelve in number, were, as usual, overflow sessions, though held in the largest suitable halls to be had. The average attendance at the meetings was in excess of 6,000 women.

The Chicago Daily News leads in food products advertising because, as reflected in the success of its cooking schools, it is read in the homes of Chicago in the evening when the culinary art is most often discussed and appreciated.

In 1926 The Chicago Daily News published 964,827 agate lines of food products advertising, which was 118,620 lines more than were carried by the next daily paper.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

FIRST IN CHICAGO

Member of The 100,000 Group of American Cities

Advertising Representatives:	NEW YORK J. B. Woodward 110 E. 42d St.	CHICAGO Woodward & Kelly 360 N. Michigan Ave.	DETROIT Woodward & Kelly Fine Arts Building	SAN FRANCISCO C. Geo. Krogness 253 First National Bank Bldg.

Average Daily Net Paid Circulation for March, 1927—440,448

Greatest Gain in New York

Suburbs

and City

Steadily gaining intelligent, thoughtful readers, The New York Times has just reached a new high record net paid sale—414,990 copies, average daily and Sunday for the six months ended March 31.

The Times gained more new readers than any other New York standard sized newspaper, morning or evening, and had greater gains in New York City and suburbs. The total increase, average daily and Sunday, was 22,295 copies.

The Times increase over the preceding year, daily, was 18,778 copies—and of these 15,570, or 83 per cent., were in city and suburbs.

The Times gain in Sunday net paid sale was 43,396 copies—and of these 31,210, or 72 per cent., were in city and suburbs.

Thousands of new newspaper readers in the metropolitan district, intelligent and discriminating, have thus expressed in the past year their preference for The Times news—accurate, complete and impartial.

The preference of readers for the New York morning newspapers (standard size) is shown in this table of circulations:

	Average Daily and Sunday, Six Months Ended March 31, 1927.	Average Daily and Sunday, Six Months Ended March 31, 1926.	Gain or Loss.
The New York Times....	414,990	392,695	G. 22,295
Second newspaper.....	343,247	329,860	G. 13,387
Third newspaper.....	336,280	347,771	L. 11,491
Fourth newspaper.....	300,610	294,327	G. 6,283

No other newspaper appealing to a high quality of readers in New York or elsewhere has ever equaled or approached The Times figure of 414,990.

The New York Times.

"All the News That's Fit to Print"

ADVERTISING LEADER IN VOLUME AND CHARACTER IN THE FIRST MARKET IN THE WORLD.

Why Do We Harp On "Homes"?

¶ If you knew Baltimore as we know Baltimore, you'd understand why we keep talking of the Sunpapers as the home-papers.

¶ Baltimore has its share of large, modern apartment houses. Baltimore has beautiful suburbs with luxurious private residences.

¶ But more characteristic of this city are the two-story houses—owned by the people who live in them—stretching mile after mile and spreading over a large part of the city's area.

¶ It is this feature of Baltimore which makes the Sun Carrier so important in the distribution of the Sunpapers. A Sun Carrier distributes his papers one by one at the front doors of hundreds of homes, covering many blocks—Morning, Evening and Sunday—down one side of the street and up the other, dropping a Sunpaper at practically every door along his route!

¶ For home-owners, above all others, must have the "home-papers" of their home town—the Sunpapers.

Average Net Paid Circulation for Month of March, 1927

Daily (M. & E.) . . .	254,962
Sunday	200,117

A Gain of 2,363 Daily and 9,433 Sunday Over March, 1926

JOHN B. WOODWARD
Bowery Bank Bldg.
110 E. 42d St., New York

GUY S. OSBORN
360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago

C. GEORGE KROGNESS
First National Bank Bldg.,
San Francisco

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

MORNING EVENING SUNDAY

Baltimoreans Don't Say "Newspaper"—They Say "SUNpaper"

CONCENTRATE

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

The Evening Bulletin

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

537,974 COPIES A DAY

The circulation of The Bulletin is the largest in Philadelphia

Member of The Associated Press

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St., at Broadway, New York. Telephones, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations. Member Associated Business Papers, Inc.

Vol. 59 NEW YORK, APRIL 16, 1927 No. 47

Vacuum Oil Doubles Newspaper Space; $450,000 to Reach Consuming Public ormerly Used Bulk of Advertising in Magazines and Farm Journals—Find Need to Reach "Larger Market"—Mass of Automobilists Read Newspapers

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

HE Vacuum Oil Company, makers of Gargoyle Mobiloil, this week anced that they had more than doubled r newspaper advertising appropriation rder to reach "a larger market." Last r's newspaper expenditure of $200,000 been raised to $450,000 for the 1927 paign, Paul F. Wiggin, assistant adising manager, informed EDITOR & BLISHER in an exclusive interview.

o the 76,000 Mobiloil dealers, the nge in the Vacuum Oil Company's ertising policy was described as "a ng climax to the 16 years of Mobiloil ional advertising."

Eight and a quarter million families more, who read 118 newspapers, will Gargoyle Mobiloil advertised each k for 29 weeks beginning in April and ning through October," the dealers e told. The campaign started on il 15.

o EDITOR & PUBLISHER, Mr. Wiggins :

Since 1912 we have placed the bulk of advertising in the magazines and farm nals, but as the market grew we e gradually added to this through the spapers in order to reach a larger ket, the larger mass of automobile ers who are not readers of the magas."

he Vacuum Oil Company started adising in the newspapers in a small way 1921, gradually increasing the appro-tions, but making the biggest jump year. The medium has been put to e by the firm's advertising department several outstanding occasions and has the test.

n a Sunday last year when Commander Byrd made his sensational airplane ht to the North Pole and back using biloil in his engines, the Vacuum Oil npany worked fast and got advertising y on the feat into a list of 120 newsers in the Monday morning editions. This one advertising flash in the newsers cost us about $40,000," Mr. Wigi said this week, "but it was well worth price. If it were possible I would e all my advertisements based exclu-ly on the news.

Timeliness is one of the biggest adtages of newspaper advertising. pled with this is the fact that in using spapers an advertiser can concentrate advertising where it is most needed, where sales need strengthening."

group of New York special repreatives were called together by Mr. ggin and the Blackman Company, the York advertising agency handling account, on April 4. The 1927 camn was explained to them at that time various plans for "co-operation" ussed.

We are not interested in any trick peration," Mr. Wiggin told EDITOR & BLISHER, "but we believe it is the duty newspaper to give our advertising a nce to be read. We certainly do not t the unusual.

There are several services which newsers are offering that we like, such as the use of a newspaper's show window or possibly the mailing to dealers of a broadside telling about the advertising campaign. That is about the extent of the co-operation we expect.

"We do think that newspapers can also help in making this campaign mean more to our salesmen by, as some publishers have themselves suggested to us, addressing branch meetings of our dealers, or, as several New York newspapers have promised, to show our men through their plants and give them talks on the value of newspaper space.

"We don't want any free publicity for Mobiloil."

For EDITOR & PUBLISHER Mr. Wiggin briefly outlined the history of Mobiloil advertising.

"In 1912 when we started advertising the number of automobiles registered in this country was about 639,000, and we bought 5,000,000 magazine and farm paper circulation. The ownership of automobiles in those days was largely confined to well-to-do and very wealthy people. These people, we thought, would be reached better through the magazines. We believed that there would be better receptivity of our copy if it was presented to a reader in the magazines. At that time our copy was educational in tone and was quite long, being full of engineering data and fact.

"We continued this policy for 10 years. In the meantime, the registration of automobiles grew rapidly. Between the years of 1912 and 1919 it increased about 1,000 per cent, and, in 1921, we decided to add newspapers to our advertising program, feeling that we were not buying enough circulation in the magazines and farm papers to reach adequately the increased registration.

"Our advertising in newspapers began very conservatively. Few insertions and small space was our policy during this early period.

"After 1921 the size of our newspaper appropriation increased somewhat, but it was not until 1926 that we spent as much as $200,000. Automobile registration since 1921 has grown even more amazingly than during the period of 1912 and 1921. It has been more than doubled in the last six years, and the necessity for more newspaper advertising on a larger scale became doubly apparent.

"This year's campaign is made up of 29 advertisements running approximately three newspaper columns and ranging from a total of 21,000 to 28,000 lines in 118 newspapers in 100 cities. By doing this we have added 8,300,000 circulation to our magazine and farm paper circulations, giving us very nearly a blanket coverage of automobile owners in this country."

From the New York office at 61 Broadway the Vacuum Oil Company sent out a broadside on April 15 to its dealers announcing the big newspaper advertising campaign. The broadside was made up in the form of a newspaper and carried on its masthead the title "Mobiloil Advertiser."

Statistically minded persons in Mr. Wiggins' office were put to work and an impressive story on what $450,000 spent in newspaper advertising means was prepared for this publication. Some of the features of the campaign as explained thus for the dealers are herewith reproduced.

"Babe Ruth fills the Yankee Stadium home of the American League baseball team, with 70,000 people.

"But the great throng of Mobiloil advertising readers could fill Yankee Stadiums every week for 29 weeks if there were two stadiums in each state in the country. And after crowding 96 stadiums of that size, enough people would have to be turned away to fill twelve more stadiums just as big.

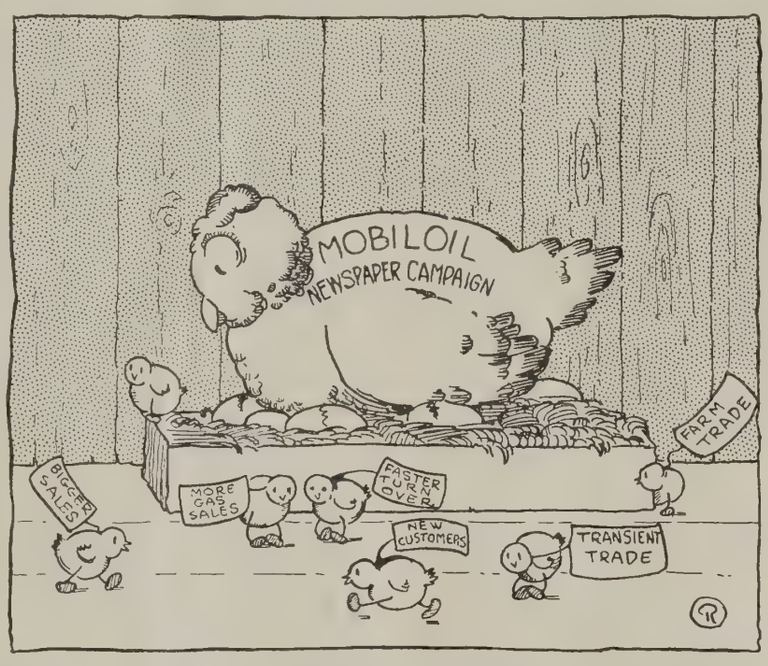
"Every week for 29 consecutive weeks, 118 newspapers in 89 cities will carry the Mobiloil message to Correct Lubrication to more than eight million readers, a total of more than one-quarter of a billion copies of Mobiloil newspaper advertisements during the run of the campaign.

"This is by far the biggest and most comprehensive motor oil newspaper campaign ever attempted by Vacuum or any other oil company.

The tremendous number of one quarter of a billion readers reached in the effort of the Vacuum Oil Company to sell its products for its dealers is so vast that without comparisons with some familiar figures is almost beyond the power of the mind clearly to comprehend.

"The total population of these United States is less than one-half the number of copies of Mobiloil advertisements that will appear in the coming seven months. That is, there will be two copies of advertisements for every man, woman and child in this country.

"Every week of this campaign will find in newspapers four times as many Mobiloil advertisements as there were American soldiers overseas during the World War.



"The total of these advertisements will represent 6,037 copies for each Mobiloil dealer in this country.

"If it were filled once a day, it would require over two months to accommodate in the Sesquicentennital Stadium in Philadelphia, with a capacity of 125,000, the people who will be reached each week by the newspapers containing Mobiloil advertising.

"Printed on high speed presses at the rate of 3,000 an hour, these newspapers would require 80,499 hours of continuous running, or 3,354 days. This is more than twice the length of the great war, which began in August, 1914, and ended on Armistice Day, November 11, 1918.

"If piled one on top of the other the quarter billion copies of Mobiloil advertisements would attain the astounding height of 43,581 feet. When it is considered that the Eiffel Tower in France is the tallest structure in the world, it is evident that nothing of human construc-

(Continued on page 22)

Hatching bigger and better Mobiloil sales

CANTON PUBLISHER'S CLASSIFIED AD REFORMS MAN WHO RIFLED HIS HOME

Penitent Wrongdoer Now Working for C. E. Morris, Publisher of Canton News—Returns Automatic Revolver and Other Articles After Reading Advertisement

(The following remarkable story of what a classified advertisement accomplished in the Canton (Ohio) Daily News was published in the Daily News April 8.)

A YOUNG man whose name shall not be told has been diverted from a life of crime with its certain end, and property stolen by him from a home he entered as a burglar has been returned through a proper appeal in the classified advertising columns of the Canton Daily News.

CHARLES E. MORRIS

While the family was out to dinner on Thursday evening, March 31, the home of Charles E. Morris, publisher of the Canton Daily News, was entered by an unknown, who now shall remain unknown, by breaking in the glass of a back door and the house was completely ransacked. Among other articles taken was an automatic pistol and its clips, the property of Maj. H. W. Miner, managing editor of the Canton Daily News, which had been loaned to Morris at a time when threats were being made against him for pursuing the investigation of the murder of his predecessor, Don R. Mellett.

The police were notified by Morris and a thorough investigation was made both by city detectives and by Acting Bertillon Chief William Grether, but nothing was found which might lead to apprehension of the marauder. With a faith both in humanity and in the appeal of advertising, thinking that need may have driven some one to theft, Morris placed this advertisement in the "Help Wanted—Male" columns of this newspaper:

> If the person who took an army colt .45 cal. automatic and other articles from ———— residence Thursday evening will return the gun to the business manager of The News, he may keep the other articles without fear of prosecution and will be given employment if that is what he needs. This gun is the "buddy" of an ex-service man who carried it through many battles.

The following day, which was Saturday, this anonymous response came:

> "Back inside of a month. Please forget. Gun."

And with all that had gone before left open either a threat or a promise.

Still another communication, also anonymous and hand-printed, came:

> "Your gun will be restored to you in a few days. Please forgive me but I am on my last legs. I served time and had made good for a long time, building up a good name and was engaged to marry a fine girl of good family, but while with her at a party, to be a good sport I drank. Then something was stolen where I worked. My past came up when the police investigated although they proved I was innocent. But I had to quit my job. Future nil. Then I got started again and went back three months later to visit the girl. Got drunk. Then came to my senses and was about to be arrested for breaking into or attempting to break into a house. I don't think I did it but don't know what I may have done while drunk.
>
> "Went hungry. No work. Always looking for my past to come up if I had work. Go back to old game because I have the name so I enter your home, take gun and think go stick up now got gun.
>
> "Read paper and found out who I robbed. Think of what you went through. That gun maybe saved your life, or your wife, children. It may have brought you back to them. Fond memories. All I have to cherish can't deprive you of yours. So will return gun. Trust to your sense of honor, which must be high or you wouldn't have your job, to keep this from police."
>
> "Let me know through paper if you get this; also let me know if you get gun O. K."

Through the "Want Ad" medium assurance desired was given.

Returning home late Wednesday evening, Morris was called to the telephone and asked if he had "looked on the back porch," then told to do so. Asking the caller to hold the line, he looked and found the gun and other articles wrapped in newspapers. Returning to the telephone Morris sought to learn the young man's story and to make an appointment with him.

By pre-arrangement the young man, who might be called Brown only that is not his name, came to the office of the publisher on Thursday and unfolded his entire story, giving consent to use it that others may be helped. According to him, save for the boyhood escapade—he looks only like a boy now although he served a long term in the Ohio State Reformatory—the Morris burglary is the first and only one he ever did, and this only because he was hungry and thought to get food.

"While in the governor's office, associating with Warden Thomas, who also believes in men," said Morris, "I learned that no man can be so bad, unless totally irresponsible for his acts, that there is not some good in him. What has happened here is proof."

The young man—call him Brown—is no longer hungry. And thanks to one of Canton's "hard-hearted and hard-headed" business men, the young man will be given a job, with another chance to make good.

Meantime, with scarcely a clue, Chief of Police Wise and his aides had virtually closed on their man, who meantime had returned the stolen property and thereby earned the chance now given him to "make good."

TACOMA DAILIES WIN $50,000 LIBEL SUIT

Jury Decides Against J. H. Ryan, Publisher of Ryan's Weekly, Who Was Called "Negro Publisher" in Article

By unanimous verdict a jury on April 6, returned a verdict for the defendant in the lawsuit instituted by J. H. Ryan, publisher of Ryan's Weekly, Tacoma, for damages against the Tribune Publishing Company, publishers of the Tacoma (Wash.) News-Tribune and the Tacoma Ledger. Ryan sought $50,000 damages which he alleged were caused to him when the two papers last July referred to him in newspaper articles as a negro publisher.

Ryan, who several years ago served a term in the state legislature, sought to prove that the reference to him as a negro caused damage to his paper and forced his withdrawal as a candidate to the legislature last year. He attempted to prove political animus, also, it being understood that he was receiving the backing of the forces of Governor Roland H. Hartley, to which the News-Tribune was opposed.

Superior Court Judge E. D. Hodge, who heard the case, held, however, that the entire case hinged upon the point as to whether Ryan was a negro, and instructed the jury that if it determined this to be the case it must hold for the defendant. Ryan declared he had Creole Indian blood, but birth certificates and death certificates of relatives introduced as evidence caused the jury to decide otherwise.

Joseph H. Zuker of Cleveland, prominent libel attorney and former Cleveland newspaperman, was associated with Lyle and Henderson of Tacoma in representing the Tribune Publishing Company in the case.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

April 19—Associated Press, directors' meeting, New York.
April 19—League of Advertising Women, monthly dinner, Advertising Club of New York.
April 21—American Association of Advertising Agencies, New York Council, monthly dinner, Hotel Pennsylvania, New York.
April 22-23—Panhandle Press Assn. 20th annual convention, Amarillo, Tex.
April 24-30—Forest Week.
April 25-26—Associated Press, annual meeting, Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York.
April 25—United Press Associations, 20th anniversary banquet, President Coolidge speaking, Biltmore Hotel, New York.
April 25—International News Service, "Garden Lark," Friars Club, New York.
April 25—National Advertisers' Day.
April 26-27—American Association of Advertising Agencies, executive committee meeting, New York.
April 27-29—American Newspaper Publishers' Assn., annual convention, Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York.
April 28—100,000 Group Newspapers, luncheon, Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York.
April 28—Bureau of Advertising, A. N. P. A., annual banquet, Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.
April 29—Dinner to Ed Howe, Biltmore Hotel, New York.

15 ADVERTISERS SPENT $1,800,000 IN DAILIES

Additional Estimates Obtained by A. N. P. A. Bureau of Advertising Bringing Total Spent by 324 Firms to $102,117,000

Fifteen more estimates of national advertising expenditures in newspapers during 1926 have been added to the previously announced list of 309 by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. The 15 spent a total of $1,800,000 in newspapers. The new total estimates of the Bureau becomes, therefore, a list of 324 advertisers spending $102,117,000. They follow:

Elizabeth Arden	$115,000
Associated Oil Co.	200,000
B. V. D. Co.	90,000
Chicago Great Western R. R.	100,000
Church & Dwight Co.	60,000
Daggett & Ramsdell	70,000
Dollar Steamship Line	70,000
Flint Motor Co.	180,000
Pacific Steamship Co.	100,000
Philippe, Louis, Inc.	65,000
Piver, L. T., Inc.	150,000
Polk-Miller Drug Co.	150,000
Schilling, A., & Co.	150,000
Shell Co. of California	50,000
Standard Oil Co. of California	250,000

HOE OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

Board of Directors Also Re-named at Stockholders Meeting

At a meeting of the stockholders of R. Hoe & Co., Inc., held Tuesday the following were unanimously re-elected as directors: Boudinot Atterbury, Frederic G. Coburn, John W. Cutler, Arthur I. Hoe, Morris W. Kellogg, Fred G. Kent, Wallace E. McCaw, Harold Stanley, H. R. Swartz, Harold M. Tillinghast.

At the annual meeting of the Board which followed, the following officers were all unanimously re-elected: President, H. R. Swartz; vice-presidents, Harold M. Tillinghast, Fred G. Kent, Harry V. Ball, Charles W. Gaskell, Addison J. Gallien; treasurer, Allen W. Lishawa; secretary, John M. Masterson; assistant secretary, Louis Roehm.

MEMPHIS DAILY SUE FOR A MILLION

Commercial-Appeal Attacks Pr Scimitar's Figures in Editorial— Latter Orders Audit and Starts Suit

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER*)*

MEMPHIS, TENN., April 14.—A suit $1,000,000 was filed here today by Memphis Press-Scimitar against Commercial Appeal as a result of all tions printed by the Commercial Ap that Press-Scimitar sworn circula figures were false.

The Commercial Appeal charges cipitated the hottest circulation fight city has ever seen. The Press-Scim a Scripps-Howard newspaper, in its filed by Baker and Sidlo, general cou declares that the Commercial App statements were made with knowledg their falsity and asks active, compensa and punitive damages. Both papers members of the A. B. C.

The Commercial-Appeal made the charge in its last Sunday issue that Press-Scimitar circulation figures w false. The Press-Scimitar Mon printed a brief announcement that Commercial-Appeal would be held countable. Tuesday the Press-Scim announced that the Commercial-Ap charges would be proven false throug double audit and that a civil suit damages would then be filed against Commercial-Appeal.

Both papers have resorted to full-p advertisements in presenting their cla and charges and the word "lie" has b used by each.

On April 1, the Press-Scimitar nounced that its daily average net circulation for the past four and half months was 93,562. The period ered by the statement was that since consolidation of the Memphis Press News-Scimitar.

In opening its attack on the figures Commercial-Appeal said:

"The recent press runs and circula records show that the Press-Scimitar far less than 93,562 paid subscrib probably not more than 73,000."

In announcing the action it would the Press-Scimitar said Tuesday:

"First a complete audit of the fig in question has been called for from central office at Chicago of the A Bureau of Circulations. In addition, the public may be doubly convinced, audit has been ordered from one of nation's most noted firms of certi public accountants, Haskings & S Upon completion of these audits, the ing will be published. Following t publications, the audits will be utili as the basis for a civil suit for dama by the Press-Scimitar against the C mercial-Appeal."

The Press-Scimitar announces its d circulation now is above 96,000. Commercial-Appeal (morning) annou its circulation is 103,739 and the Ever Appeal 41,542. The circulation battl the climax of keen competition betw the Press-Scimitar and the Morning Evening Appeals following the purch by the Scripps-Howard papers of News-Scimitar and its consolidation w the Memphis Press under the name the Press-Scimitar.

The Evening Appeal was launche few weeks after the Press and Ne Scimitar consolidation. Lovick P. Mi attorney, succeeded the late C. P. Mooney as president of the Commer Publishing Company.

SIGNS 1,000,000 LINE CONTRAC

The largest local advertising contr ever entered into by a San Antonio b ness firm has just been signed by Frederick G. Oppenheimer, president, the Joske Bros. Company departm store. It is with the Express Publish Company and calls for use of more t 1,000,000 lines annually in that compa two papers. Joske Bros. Co., under contract, will use a page daily exc Saturday in the Evening News, with r ular daily advertising also in the Exp and a page in the Sunday Express.

SESQUI PUBLICITY MAN "CONFESSES ALL"

Managing Editor of Bridgeport (Conn.) Herald He Is Making Atonement by "Socking" Press Agent Matter — Asks Publishers to Match Nerve with Space Grabbers

By ANDREW McCLEAN PARKER

Managing Editor, Bridgeport (Conn.) Herald

Andrew McClean Parker, author of this article, joined the publicity department of the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition early in 1926, jumping fresh into the publicity game from a career which up to that time had been devoted exclusively to legitimate newspaper work. With the Exposition, he served in a dual capacity, as assistant director in charge of the administration and publicity of the American Youth Award and as executive assistant to the director of publicity of the Exposition. He was the last member of the department to leave, electing to return to newspaper work rather than to pursue his experiments in the fine art of space grabbing. Mr. Parker now is managing editor of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Herald, craving, he says, the forgiveness of sins and the resurrection of an honest-to-goodness line between news and advertising.

AVING recently emerged from the inner circles of the space bandits' n to return to the heavenly bliss of spaper work, I have fresh upon my mory the impressions of this journey n the ridiculous to the sublime and pose here to set forth the fact that ine art of the space grabber, viewed n either side of the fence, is today worst thorn in the side of an editor. rtunately, the average press agent crude beast, usually foraging around r a high-sounding title like "di- or of public relations." His stuff vious. And while ninety-nine out of ndred vaguely try to disguise their pet mes and slip one over, the secret lly is as prominent as the Rock of ltar and the editor doesn't have to e much time in separating his wheat his chaff.

lit now and then a subtle boy will t over a fast one and while these are and far between, it means that every- these days has to be watched care- lest something is maneuvered past lesk.

litors need not become alarmed over act that nearly every newspaper man me time or other feels the lure of the lled "easy money" in the publicity . In actual practice, the easy money t as easy as it looks, and the worst most of us have to contend with is mber or two of the local staff doing eekly bit for a movie house or a ry Club. My own publicity ex- rnce was no deeper than that when rtunity came to me to be an "expert" he staff of the Sesqui-Centennial national Exposition.

Overnight I lost my identity as a news- man and started in the next morn- s executive assistant to the publicity tor of the big show.

Heviously I had looked upon publicity passive nuisance and a necessary yance, not to be taken seriously. But outlook, I found, depended largely the viewpoint. It never had red to me that publicity men were ws who ran around trying to get thing for nothing. But such indeed the case.

t of the horrors of the past I have e me the official and final report of irector of publicity of the Exposition, one legal-size, typewritten pages, e-spaced, a document which fell to lot to compile and which contains g other things, a general estimate of mount of space which we were able rab from the generous editors of ica.

m January 1 to October 30, 1926, lepartment released 45,800 publicity lcasts under the guise of news and tres. A regular clip sheet went to newspapers and other publications week, a list representing the total lation of newspapers on the North ican continent. And all of the news- ring agencies, in addition, were l targets for Exposition material.

t of this flood of propaganda, the ds showed that from January to mber, five clipping bureaus alone ned 200,000 clippings, with their estimate that they were only scratch- e surface and that the clippings they red represented less than ten per t of the number actually printed.

m May to July over 22,000 photo- s were slammed down on the ial desks of America, more or less sfully, the most notable single ivement in this respect being the ing of a double truck spread of six- columns in the Sunday rotogravure n of the New York Times.

one was ever able to figure accurate- e total amount of space grabbed gh the plate and mat "service" which ent to nearly 12,000 newspapers, but servative estimate compiled from a l check of newspapers in Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania Texas, Washington and Wisconsin, revealed that each of the 3,195 papers in these states which received this service, used 90 inches of Exposition propaganda —better than a full half page of pictures. These figures, showing the generosity of American newspaper editors, are exclusive of the number of "news" clippings mentioned above.

On page 47 of the report, I find the cunning paragraph, written, I recall, with some glee:

"Another effort to get the message of the Exposition into the newspapers of the country was made through Philadelphia advertising agencies which were asked to send to newspapers and periodicals a summary of Exposition facts and figures and copies of the statements of Herbert Hoover and Secretary Kellogg. All of the advertising agencies which were approached on this subject consented to carry out the suggestion."

Thus the pernicious influence of the press agent was carried into newspaper business offices through a number of the advertising agencies of Philadelphia.

Through a network of publicity representatives which extended from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from New England to Tennessee, the constant hammering at the editorial desks and the news agencies was continued, and as a final word from the "official" report, I run across this morsel to delight the fellow editors to whose fold I have returned.

"Advertising and publicity are totally different procedures and do not mix any better than oil and water. Persons who know advertising best know least about publicity on account of this very antithesis of viewpoint. The outside promotion of the Exposition had to be done either by advertising or by publicity. A combination of the two would have been distinctly unwise because one would have nullified the effect of the other.

"To make any effect upon the people of the 48 states through the great number of metropolitan dailies, smaller dailies, and the innumerable weeklies, to say nothing of the magazines of national circulation, would have required an appropriation of from two to three million dollars, and any advertising man who will face the fact squarely will admit that this would be only a drop in the bucket.

"What would have been the effect if such an appropriation had been made and the advertising had been placed? Obviously, it could have been given to only a very small number of publications if there were to be enough repeated insertions in each of them to make any effect on their readers. Obviously, also, the publications which did not receive this advertising—and they would have been in the majority —would either have declined to print anything about the Exposition at all in their news columns, or, in a smaller number of instances, where there is a close association between the business offce and the editorial management, would have adopted a hostile attitude. In other words, if the outside promotion of the Exposition had been placed on a strictly commercial basis it would be folly to expect a majority of the publications to give free of charge what their competitors were being well-paid for."

Words of wisdom, those. And yet everywhere, publications today are falling for the press agents' wiles and are giving away their space, prostituting their news columns with material which other newspapers print as advertising at advertising rates.

Depending upon the immediate situation, the job of publicity man requires begging, imploring, pleading, faking, and to be quite frank about it, a whole lot of shyster work which in time has come to be looked upon as "legitimate"—from the press agent's viewpoint.

From beginning to end the publicity game was a battle of wits with the keenest class of executives in the world, the newspaper editors of America, and it occurred to me often that if I ever got back upon a newspaper desk my one aim in life would be to defeat every press agent who attempted to steal my space.

And what a glorious time I am having! Years ago as a youngster, it was my privilege to serve under a managing editor, one Robert Bentley, then of the Tampa (Fla.) Tribune. Bless his heart; I hope he may still be on earth.

He said to me one day, when scoring a doubtful piece of copy:

"Mac, if there's any question about it, throw it up to the ceiling. Then if it sticks, print it!"

His logic often comes back to me as the more subtle of this press agent stuff comes to my desk. I find it a splendid rule to follow and you must believe that darn little of that copy sticks.

I have before me at the moment, a one-mail collection of press agent stuff which has reached my desk. Here are a few of the subjects:

Six pages from Henry Ford on his Sapiro troubles.

Five pages of appeal for the standardization of weights and measures.

A flock of stuff from the Inter-Ocean Syndicate of Chicago, espousing everything from clocks to deodorizers. These people are particularly obnoxious in their press agentry.

Many sheets from the First National Pictures Space grabbers on a "College-men-wanted-for-movies" scheme.

A 12-page book from the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association.

Four pages from the "National Industries News Service" of Washington, with a return postal which I am requested to sign. It reads: "Send us your copy. We will cooperate." The stuff is terrible, and the effort obviously has been made to disguise the products they are attempting to put over. One story plays up a scheme to keep rugs flat and to prevent

(Continued on page 45)

Today Is Easter

Following is an Easter editorial written a year ago by Don R. Mellett, slain editor of the Canton (O.) Daily News.

TODAY is Easter. In some ways Easter is and should be the most wonderful day of all the year, more wonderful even than Christmas. It means a rebirth. It was on this day almost two thousand years ago that Christ Jesus came back to life on earth and by so doing gave to us renewed life, hope and faith in things eternal, gave to us the truth about life and the way to live. And ever since that day Easter has meant to us the coming to life of all things. For us it should mean the rededicating of our lives to the things for which Jesus stood, to the things for which He so willingly gave his life and suffered that we might know.

And how beautiful is the thought of Easter. Nature, as well as man, seems to know that she too must burst out into a new life at this time of the year. The trees are putting forth their new buds, the grass is beginning to grow green, the crocus is just beginning to unfold its delicate petals to the sun. All seem to be ready and willing to show their faith, their trust, in a higher power to bring them into full growth and maturity. It is a wonderful thought. Nature is thus, and yet man, with all his powers for reasoning and understanding oft times trusts not, plodding on he knows not where without the help and guidance of Him who died that the world might live.

But springtime, the time of Easter is here. New life, new thoughts, new love responds to the great miracles of nature. Our Savior made it so knowing that we must be ever reminded of the truly worth-while things, not money nor gold but faith, hope and love. Easter does this for us all. This rebirth given to plants and the trees and the grass and the flowers ever stands as emblematic of the rebirth of man, as a memorial to the things which make life worth the striving. It stands as a monument, ever re-representing itself to our minds, to the worthwhileness of loyalty to standards, devotion to truth, faithfulness to mission, steadfastness to ideals, and a lofty and unwavering faith in God and in spiritual realities.

At Easter time anyway, we leave the material things of life if even for only a moment and do homage to the things through which the world must be redeemed. Nature makes us do this, and the Lord so made nature, and gave to us the greatest lesson of life for all time to come in the rebirth of Christ Jesus. The Son of God could not have come back to earth at anytime of the year other than spring nor could spring have come at any time of the year than at just the time when the Son of God was reborn.

Easter Time is truly a wonderful time. It is a time for reverence, a time for reconsecration to the only worth-while things of life—the things of eternity. Nature is leading the way—showing the light of wisdom. Man should follow. The observance of Easter is both wise and beautiful, and the world would be much poorer were it otherwise.

May this Day of Resurrection come to mean more and more to all the peoples throughout the world with every year.

GREAT WASTE IN FLORIDA COMMUNITY ADVERTISING HUNT TELLS CONVENTION

City Funds Being Badly Handled by Incompetent Committees He Tells Fourth District Meeting, in Urging State Board to Supervise Expenditures

ASSERTING that there is such a serious waste in the expenditure of publicity tax funds in Florida that some action must be taken soon, or the public will lose interest in the annual opportunity to meet tax levies for this purpose, Carl Hunt, of Orlando, former general manager of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, told the Fourth District, International Advertising Association convention, that he favored a State Publicity Board to assist communities in wiser expenditures. The meeting was held in Daytona Beach, Monday and Tuesday.

CARL HUNT

"Technically, as I understand it, the tax levy is for publicity and tourist entertainment, but I am using publicity and advertising interchangeably because the objective is to make known, and the one great opportunity to get effective publicity is through paid advertising space," Mr. Hunt said.

"The need here," he continued, "is urgent for two reasons. In the first place, practically every city and county in the State, and this even includes quite small cities, has a tax levy for advertising, and if this is to be continued, which of course we hope it will be, there must be more intelligent use of these funds. People will get tired of the advertising tax unless the money raised for the purpose of advertising can be employed so that it will yield at least some return.

"And in the second place," he declared, "while I am not intimately informed upon the manner in which tax advertising funds have been employed in other sections of the United States, it would be difficult to imagine a looser or less intelligent expenditure of funds than has come to my attention through inquiry among a number of chamber of commerce men about the State.

"A great deal of this money is used for purposes that are only distantly related to advertising, publicity and tourist entertainment—objectives which are seventeenth cousins to such purposes. And any advertising agent who has had experience in handling community advertising funds in Florida will tell you that even that portion which does find itself into recognized advertising mediums is often used in a way that is utterly astonishing, because some committee of local character—and a new committee each year—determines the mediums without knowledge either of the advertising problem or the circulation or appeal of the mediums used.

"I will give you just one example," he said. "In one city, the chairman of the advertising committee insisted upon the use of a certain weekly which he himself read, in the face of the fact that no advertising man in the world would have devoted such a proportion of the appropriation to that publication—if indeed, it would be included in the list at all—because the chairman said other local people would see the advertisements in that weekly and would feel that the committee was doing good work. His notion prevailed, too. Another member of the same committee brought about the inclusion, on the list, of a woman's publication appealing to society women, and that part of the appropriation brought just one inquiry and nothing ever came of that one.

"We do not administer our school funds in any such fashion. What I am saying does not apply to all community advertising tax money in Florida, but to a great deal of it. It is only because the general public—the tax payer—has so little knowledge of advertising and the wonderful things that it can do, and because the public is often misinformed as to the results obtained, that we still have such faulty administration of advertising tax levies in many of our communities.

"Such a State Board as I have suggested would do a world of good if the law establishing it did nothing further than to require that each municipality prepare an advertising plan and budget and submit it to the State Board for constructive criticism.

"The public it at least entitled to know what it is getting for its money.

"A chamber of commerce man asked me, awhile back, if I thought he should spend his entire advertising appropriation to help maintain a radio station in a nearby city, in exchange for which (though it was not so stated precisely in the contract) his city was to give the programs on one evening each week. It developed that he was asking through curiosity, for the arrangement had already been made by an advertising committee appointed with power to act.

"It developed that the price paid the radio station was almost sufficient to pay all the expenses of the station for seven nights a week. The chamber of commerce man did not know what, if any, connection the chairman of the committee had with the people who owned the radio station.

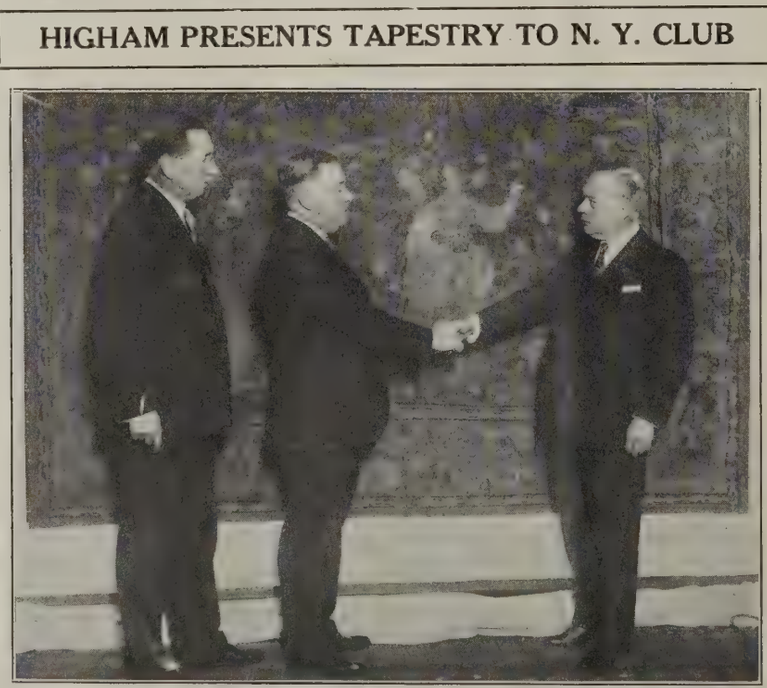
"The worst of the situation was that this little station, with nothing whatever outstanding in the way of programs, was not even so much as known to a large majority of radio fans in Florida, and you may be assured that it was on the rarest occasions that it was picked up outside of Florida. An Orlando chap I know who prides himself upon picking up far-off stations, had never heard of this one, less than 200 miles away.

"Then there are the numerous communities where appropriations are made from the advertising fund for things that hardly so much as have a remote smell of advertising or tourist entertainment. I was told today of a case where one city—and a good big Florida city, too—is planning to spend something more than 10 per cent of its advertising and tourist entertainment money for the furnishing of a public building, upon the theory, apparently, that some tourists will use that building, along with the local people. But of course the same tourists will use the sidewalks of that city, and it would seem quite as logical to use the fund for sidewalk building.

"The existence of such conditions (and I could name many specific examples) is what has prompted me to suggest a State Board of Advertising, with the power to require each municipality to file a complete statement of its advertising and tourist entertainment plans, along with its budget, the State Board of Advertising, in turn, to review the plan and budget and publish its opinion of the value of the plan."

Richard H. Edmonds, editor, Manufacturers Record, Baltimore, pointed out that a correct outside viewpoint of Florida could be adequately gained only if some fund in which the whole state has an interest is made available. Florida municipalities wisely tax themselves in order to obtain adequate advertising appropriations. The same theory that justifies local budgets to obtain advertising through taxation, justifies a state advertising budget, he said.

H. G. Andrews of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce stressed the necessity for clearly analyzing the "sales points" which the state possesses, toward creating an advertising and promotion program which would appeal accurately and honestly to potential business and population.



Harry Coleman, district sales manager, Gerlach-Barklow Company, Joliet, Ill., spoke on advertising specialties; Don Emory, Daytona Beach, talked on "Keeping the Advertising and the Follow-Up in Tune" and various phases of public utility advertising were treated by A. P. Cooke, commercial manager of the Peninsular Telephone Company, Tampa, and George R. Hilty, Florida Power and Light Company, Miami.

New Fourth District officers elected are: Chairman Frank H. Burns, Orlando; secretary, Noble T. Praigg, St. Petersburg; vice-chairman, Walter Bigelow, Miami; Don Emory, Daytona Beach; M. T. Respress, Jacksonville; Marvin Knight, Tampa. The next convention will be held in St. Petersburg.

The closing session was featured by the adoption of a resolution calling on the state to appropriate a fund of not less than $350,000 yearly for the two years, to advertise its agricu and industrial resources.

This fund, the resolution dec should be administered by a com Advertising Board to be selected b governor, of which the Commission Agriculture shall be a member. An resolution asked the legislature to port the Printers' Ink Act now in in New York which makes fraud advertising a misdemeanor.

HIGHAM PRESENTS TAPESTRY TO N. Y. CLUB

Sir Charles Higham, British advertising agent, and New York Advertising Club officials photographed at the presentation by Sir Charles of a rare 16th century Flemish tapestry to the Club. Left to right: Gilbert T. Hodges, vice-president of the Advertising Club; Charles C. Green, president, shaking hands with Sir Charles. The tapestry can be seen in the background.

WOMAN IS PRESIDE OF FLORIDA PRESS

Mrs. Lucille R. Smith of Lake W Named to Succeed G. E. Hosm at Annual Convention—Plan to Combine 3 Groups

Mrs. Lucille R. Smith, publisher Lake Worth (Fla.) Herald, was e president of the Florida Press Associ at the annual joint meeting of that with the Associated Dailies of F and the South Florida Press Associ held in Ft. Myers, April 8 and 9. Smith succeeds George E. Hosmer, tor of the Ft. Meyers Press. Worth was chosen for the next joint vention.

Other officers elected were R Sweager, of the Quincy Times, president; Bryant Mack of the Lak Ledger, second vice-president · I. R. Alpin of the Dade City Banner, urer, and R. J. Holly, Florida U News, secretary.

"Dad" Mickel, head of the Sou Printers School at Nashville, T spoke on "The Key to Success in Printing Business."

"Florida Land Titles" was disc by Don M. Lochner, editor of the mont Press; "Legal Advertising" George Hosmer and Paul Garrett o Punta Gorda Herald; "A Wo Method of Making a Newspaper by Mrs. C. H. Holderman, Cocoa une; "The World Press Congres Geneva," by Mrs. Lois K. Mays, Fl delegate; "The Column and Edit Page," by John Temple Graves II. sonville Journal; "Editing a Small Newspaper," by Lon Burton, D News; "The Labor Situation," by Brown, St. Petersburg Indepen "Necessity of One Strong Press Ass tion in Florida," by J. E. Worthin Lake Wales Highlander, and Lucil Smith, Lake Worth Herald.

Saturday's closing session was feat by talk of consolidation of the thre ganizations, the boosting of dues an employment of a full-time field secre The matters were referred back t resolutions committee.

The editors favored a survey o State public schools with a State a priation.

A message of appreciation was u mously voted to Richard H. Edm editor of the Manufacturers' Record his valuable assistance in developme the State.

The directors left by steamer Satu afternoon for the Everglades for a spection of the lower Tamiami Tr

Officers of the South Florida Association are Carl Taylor, Clerm president; Lon Lochner, Clermont F vice-president; Roy Gallemore, Ba Record, treasurer; Mrs. George K Mount Dora, secretary. Clermont selected as the convention city for semi-annual session of this organiza The convention passed a resolution dorsing the invitation of Hollyw Fla., for the National Editorial Ass tion convention in 1928.

NEWS MAN WRITES PLAY

Walter B. Lister, former reporte the Cleveland Press, and Georg Brooks, a Batavia, N. Y., world "buddie," are authors of a play "S Eagle," which opened in the M Beck Theatre, New York City, Ap Lister is now city editor of the Br lyn (N. Y.) Daily Times. After war he returned to the Cleveland P later going to the Houston (Tex.) as its managing editor.

PROXY COMMITTEE ANSWERS NOYES' LETTER

ovement to Mutualize Press Service Not "Hearst Directed" J. F. Neylan and Col. Ewing Declare in Letters to Members—Ewing Opposed Three Grades of Membership in 1900, He States

MBERS of the self-appointed proxy committee of three Associated members who are leading a move- to change the A. P. by-laws as relate to the bond votes and the bership protest rights this week replies to the letter sent associa- members last week by Frank B. s, publisher of the Washington ng Star, and president of the A. P. . Noyes' letter was published by DR & PUBLISHER last week. In it, A. P. president urged members to d the annual convention in New on April 25, if possible, and offered the opportunity to cancel any proxy might already have made over to proxy committee of three, the mem- of which are John Francis Neylan, sher of the San Francisco Call; Col. rt Ewing, publisher of the New lms States, and Arthur H. Vanden- publisher of the Grand Rapids h.) Herald.

. Noyes also expressed the opinion he proposals advocated by this com- te were for the benefit of the "pri- y owned news services" and "de- id to check and confine the growth e Associated Press."

phrased by Mr. Neylan the pro- s are for the Associated Press to all members equal voting rights e election of directors, and to ex- the protest rights, now held by 205 bers to the entire membership.

emphatic denial that the present ment within the Associated Press Hearst-directed was the burden of etter sent out this week under Mr. g's signature.

le text of the letters are herewith nted in full.

. Neylan wrote:

am just advised that Mr. Noyes, dent of the Associated Press, has en a letter to the entire membership. his letter is an obvious eleventh-hour pt to confuse the issues and to nt real action by throwing a sop e membership in the form of a questionable compromise.

he proposals to give all members voting and protest rights, which nore important, were presented to oard in concrete form more than nonths ago, and for six months, or they learned of the tremendous in- of the membership, Mr. Noyes he directors never deemed it neces- to advise or confer with the mem- ip.

ndoubtedly they are now advised n state after state the entire mem- ip of the Associated Press is y in favor of the two propositions. considering these questions and in lering Mr. Noyes' letter, every er of the Associated Press should imself these three questions:

) Why should Mr. Adolph Ochs r. Frank B. Noyes or Mr. Hearst, y other member of the Associated , be permitted to cast 40 votes each e election of a director while the ry member of the Associated Press y given the privilege of casting one ) Why should 144 members of the iated Press be permitted to cast a of 4,285 votes for the election of ors while the entire remaining ership, amounting to 1,065, can ast 1,065 votes?

) Why should Mr. Adolph Ochs r. Frank B. Noyes and Mr. Hearst, 5 other members of the Associated be given the invaluable protection protest right while 1,000 members rived of this right?

answer to Mr. Noyes' letter, I like to point out the following irst: Mr. Noyes asserts: 'The of directors has of course no con- n with this campaign for proxies.'

"The fact is that the directors have been campaigning for proxies for months.

"In addition, they are not confining themselves to discussing these questions among the membership. Mr. Adolph Ochs, who is reputed to be the dominant figure in the Associated Press, has been discussing this question in the public prints. If you will read the conclusion of Mr. Noyes' letter you will also be able to inform yourself as to whether Mr. Noyes and his associates are interested in getting proxies.

"Secondly: Mr. Noyes endeavors to make it appear that Mr. Hearst sponsors these two measures.

"No one knows better than Mr. Noyes, who was presiding at the time, that these two issues arose in the 1926 convention and were precipitated by Mr. Adolph Ochs.

"Of course, Mr. Ochs utilized these two matters, first, to make it appear that Mr. Hearst had more votes than he should have; and, secondly, that he had protest rights while ten hundred members had no protest right.

"If Mr. Ochs and his associates on the directorate were fair and sincere in these arguments, how do they answer the fact that Mr. Hearst is willing to surrender every extra bond vote he enjoys and is willing to extend to every member the protection of the protest right which he has for himself though he will not gain one thing by the modification?

"In addition, Mr. Noyes ignores the fact that the proxy committee is composed of Mr. Vandenberg, of the Grand Rapids Herald, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and of Colonel Robert Ewing, of the New Orlean States, and myself.

"Mr. Noyes knows that Mr. Vandenberg and Colonel Ewing have no connection whatever with Mr. Hearst, but that they represent hundreds of members of the Associated Press who are interested in mutualizing the organization.

"The attempt of Mr. Noyes to make it appear that Mr. Hearst precipitated these issues when he sat within ten feet of Mr. Adolph Ochs in the 1926 convention and heard Mr. Ochs precipitate these matters requires little comment. The stenographic record of the convention shows that Mr. Noyes heard Mr. Ochs because he ruled on points of order in relation to the precipitation of the issues.

"In relation to the protest right, Mr. Noyes carefully refrains from giving any reason why one thousand members of the Associated Press who do not now enjoy the protest right should not be accorded the same rights as are accorded to Mr. Frank B. Noyes and Mr. Adolph Ochs and Mr. W. R. Hearst, and to other members of the Associated Press who enjoy protest rights.

"The memberships of Mr. Noyes and of Mr. Ochs and of Mr. Hearst are valuable today because they have protest rights and can protect themselves in their particular field. The value of the membership enjoyed by a thousand members of the Associated Press is entirely problematical because they have no protest rights and because the exclusiveness of whatever rights they have can be destroyed at any minute.

"The small member of the Associated Press is required to protect the Associated Press in his field.

"Why should not the Associated Press give him the legal right to protect himself in the value of his membership?

"Mr. Noyes further seeks to obscure the issue on the question of the extra votes enjoyed by the bond holders. He refers to momentous legal problems.

"The total outstanding bonds are $103,000. No one can hold more than $1,000 worth of these bonds. The ostensible reason why the holder of a $1,000 bond is given 40 extra votes in the election of directors is that he does not collect the interest on this $1,000 bond.

"In other words, for $40 a year the bond holder gets the privilege of casting 40 extra votes, and among themselves the bond holders, who are less than one-eighth of the membership of the Associated Press, possess the arbitrary and autocratic power to conduct the Associated Press as they see fit.

"The Associated Press can give all its membership equal and just rights in the election of directors by simply paying out of its enormous surplus fund the $4,000 a year interest to the bond holders, because the interest of the entire outstanding bonds is approximately that sum.

"Mr. Noyes' reference to serious legal problems in the bond matter might fool a layman, but I am perfectly satisfied would afford hearty amusement to anybody who had ever studied law.

"The compromise offer by Mr. Noyes and his eleventh-hour letter I think are conclusive proof of the wisdom of the course pursued by the members in giving their proxies as they wish, without dictation from Mr. Noyes.

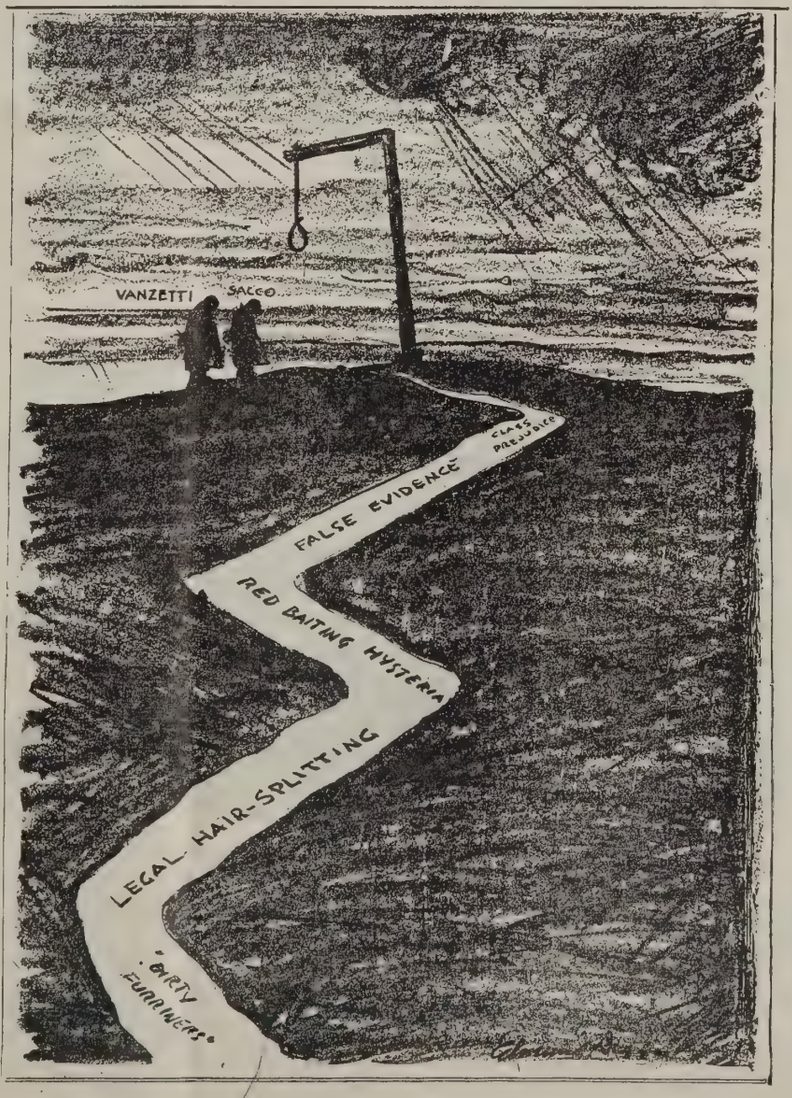
"Mr. Noyes seems very much concerned about getting new members for the Associated Press. Do you not think it would be wise for Mr. Noyes first to explain why so many members have voluntarily given up their Associated Press membership and taken the service of the United Press?

"I would respectfully suggest that you ignore the letter of Mr. Noyes and permit us to have an honest, frank and free discussion of these matters in the convention."

Mr. Ewing wrote:

"Mr. Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, has sent out and no doubt you have received a circular letter relative to the mutualizing of the Associated Press which is so palpabl unfair and so insidious an attempt to mislead the membership as to warrant this letter, for which I ask your indulgence.

"Mr. Noyes characterizes the proxy committee, of which I am a member, as 'Mr. Hearst's representatives.' He characterizes what we are seeking to do as a Hearst movement.



"These statements are false. Our proxy committee consists of three members. Only Mr. Neylan of the San Francisco Call is a representative of Mr. Hearst. Mr. A. H. Vandenberg of the Grand Rapids Herald and myself are not.

"Mr. Vandenberg, far from being a representative of Mr. Hearst, is a critic of the Hearst type of journalism. Mr. Hearst has not a penny's worth of interest in the two newspapers I own, has no voice in their policies and has no influence over my views on A. P., political or other matters.

"This is not a Hearst movement in

(Continued on page 42)

PATH OF MASSACHUSETTS JUSTICE

Remarkable cartoon printed in Baltimore Sun following Sacco-Vanzetti sentence

NEW YORK CIRCULATORS DISCUSS NEW METHOD

Many Attend Semi-Annual Convention at Syracuse—Important Gains in Seven Year Period—F Meeting Scheduled for Niagara Falls

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 13.—At the closing session of the two-day semi-annual convention of the New York State Circulation Managers at Hotel Onondaga today it was decided to hold the fall meeting in October at Niagara Falls.

Continuation of the papers of the previous day brought first for consideration "Is the average class of people who buy the tabloid newspapers readers of advertising?" This paper was presented by Otis O. Scattergood of the New York Graphic. Papers scheduled by Edward S. Dobson of the Brooklyn Times and Frank Clancy of the Buffalo Courier-Express were not presented.

R. D. M. Decker, Rochester Democrat & Chronicle, president, presided.

Informal discussion was taken up of the following papers: "Is it advisable to operate a circulation department on a budget basis?" by Charles Blewer, Binghamton Press; "Ways and Means of Developing Street Sales," Louis Trupin, Syracuse Journal-American.

F. S. Levy of the New York Herald Tribune discussed "Ways in which the association is proving invaluable to its members and the publishers they represent." Mr. Levy explained the object of the association as for "the mutual enlightenment of its members and the furtherance of the best interests of the circulation departments of the newspapers with which they are connected." He explained that the New York State Association was one of the most active of its kind in the country and that a circulation manager could ill afford to miss the discussions and fellowship which came out of the meetings.

James McKernan of New York City discussed the advantages of membership in the International Circulation Managers' Association. William Argue of the Toronto Star supplemented Mr. McKernan's remarks. Both are past presidents of the association.

Methods of inducing carriers both city and out of town to canvass new readers was the first subject outside the regular papers. It was shown that prizes to bring out the best effort in a boy, membership in clubs, and monetary awards were good plans.

Harry Weinberg, distributor of daily papers in New York City, presented a paper on methods of distribution.

The question of whether sensational news stories bring increased business was answered by Mr. McKernan in the negative.

Jerome D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse Post Standard, representing the New York State Publishers' Association, gave a report on baggage rates on newspapers. He maintained that it was unjust for the railroads to be permitted to keep their rates on carrying newspapers at war-time levels. He also mentioned that if two or more railroads carry newspapers each gets the regular 30 cent per hundred pound rate, even though the distance carried is just a few miles. He also mentioned the high cost of freight rates on print paper, and he stated that New York City newspapers pay more than $1,000,000 a year at these rates. It was brought out that New York City newspapers pay double the regular rate now, and that they have to employ their own men to see that the papers get on the trains.

Mr. Levy gave it as his opinion that "the good sense of the American reading public would draw the line on sex appeal and the digging down by some papers for filthier filth to get circulation." He said "some papers had overstepped the bounds of good sense and good taste, and that some of the tabloids had found their way into channels such as schools and civic organizations which had actually banned such publications."

Prof. J. O. Simmons, director of the Department of Journalism, Syracuse University, when asked to give his opinion of how the tabloid is received in the schools and its effect on training for journalism, stated it to be his belief that the great bulk of their circulation was among "new readers" of pictures. He stated that these picture readers, however, could be educated gradually by the picture papers to become readers of regular newspapers. At present he felt many were of the class who could not read or write. Students of journalism have not given serious consideration to the tabloid as yet, in his opinion. As secretary-treasurer of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism Professor Simmons said that this association had not included tabloids in papers presented at the last two annual meetings at Columbia University and Ohio State University. The tabloids are passing through a stage somewhat similar to the early period of some of our best known newspapers of today, he said, and out of the period may emerge a newspaper in size and form of the tabloid devoid of distasteful qualities.

E. H. O'Hara, publisher of the Syracuse Herald, addressed the luncheon meeting, which closed the sessions.

Secretary-treasurer Alfred W. Cockerill of Utica announced the following fifteen new members, bringing the total above the 100 mark: Charles A. Flanagan, New York Times; Henry H. Aschey, Rochester Journal; M. G. Sullivan, Rochester Journal-American; Joseph A. Abey, Utica Observer-Dispatch; Peter A. Bloom, New York Daily Mirror; Porter Caruthers, New York Herald Tribune; William B. Denhart, New York Daily News; T. J. Desmond, Staten Island Advance; Thomas J. Dowling, New York Evening Telegram; Harry A. Kentor, Albany Knickerbocker Press and News; George J. McNally, Brooklyn Standard-Union; Thomas J. Quilty, Saratoga Springs Saratogian; W. B. Schleigh, New York American; Earl O. Schieg, Jamestown Post; John R. Sullivan, Poughkeepsie Sunday Courier.

"The best way to hold reader-confidence after all the departments have cooperated to gain it, is for the circulation department to be wide-awake and ever on the job with regard to details of service and delivery," said Laverne Lewis, Ithaca Journal-News. "The management of any department may expend much time and money developing goodwill and reader confidence, all to no avail if the circulation department fails in any way to give proper service at the proper time. If the reader can get better service on your competitor's paper, that is the one he is going to take even though he may not like the paper as well."

"The extent to which a newspaper shall go in promoting street sales is dependent upon money, necessity, and ethics," declared Frank Roberts, Rochester Times-Union. "Certain newspapers employ hustlers at a moderate wage, merely to assure that paper of an even break on the street. Other papers take this hustler plan and develop it until they find themselves importing professionals, under the guise of street hustlers, whose jobs, at salaries out of all proportion to their abilities, consist of brow beating and intimidating newsboys into extra sales.

"Many newspapers are content to rest their case for street sales with the jury of the public. To handle such a paper, the newsboy himself must walk or run the half-mile or mile from the plant to his stand or corner, his supply piled high in his arms, stumbling along the crowded sidewalks sore at the paper itself and the system under which he makes his living. Nothing but public demand can overcome the psychological handicap under which that newspaper is sold on the street.

"Certain papers not only truck their product directly to the various corners, but actually pay the boy anywhere from $2 to $25 per week to push the paper above its competitors. Add this salary to the regular profits on sales and the result is another extent to which we can go in street sales promotion.

"A newspaper can write special 8-column, front-page lines for street editions only—intriguing the imagination the passer-by with large type, eye-ca ing stuff.

"Some owners emphasize the im tance of street sales by spending size amounts of money on banquets, the parties, picnics, sight-seeing trips, for the newsboy in an effort to win hold his goodwill.

"But, in my opinion, there is no f of street promotion which cannot trumped by the other fellow. A battle for street supremacy can pyra promotion expense so fast that the portional values of expenditure and sults are often pitiful reading in weekly report."

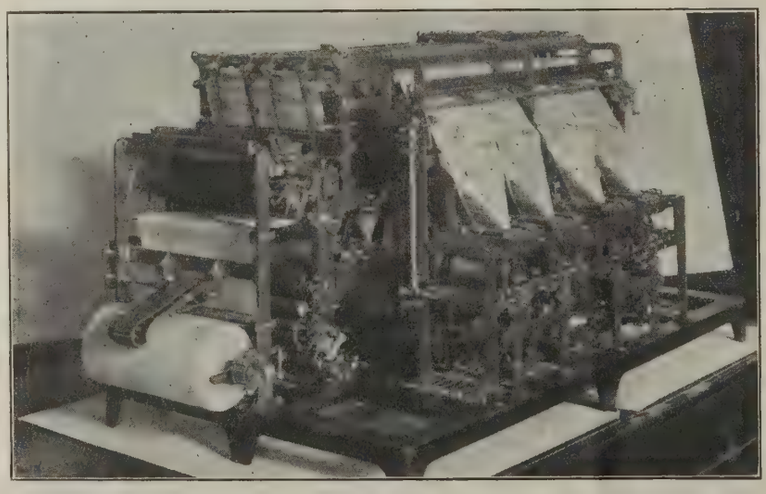
"Most new business is secured by vassing," declared Fred S. Ohrt, Niag Falls (N. Y.) Gazette, in his paper "Building New Suburban Carrier Ci lation." "Until the first of this year, Gazette canvassed for new subscri without the use of a free premium. method brought a lot of new business could not be regarded as perman The solicitor cannot sign the reader any stated time. The best he can d to urge the prospect to take the pa for a while. A circulation mana would rather pay commissions for or six-month orders and most solici would rather work on commission on a straight salary. Many women often tell the canvasser to send them paper just to get rid of him and t discontinue shortly after starting.

"The Gazette endeavors to check on discontinued subscriptions and supp carriers with postcards and carrier orders to be used when subscribers lost. It is good policy to employ b who deliver your paper exclusiv where possible. This method will br more permanent business than solici working solely upon the merits of paper, because people feel bound by t promises to the boy, with whom they generally well acquainted. They continue with the boy because of t acquaintance even though competi newspapers offer liberal inducements. some instances we endeavor to have carrier show our canvasser where he d not deliver the paper and the canva then urges the prospective customer subscribe."

W. F. Baldwin, New York World, clared that the reading public favors ably illustrated newspaper, not parti larly for the quantity of pictures u but for the timeliness and human inte of the subjects.

Changing from independent to off paid carriers produced the following fects on the Hornell Tribune-Times culation routine, according to Lewis ler, its circulation manager:

"1. Each route being controlled by office, we have established definite bou ary lines and boys cannot peddle out of their own territory.



"2. Complaints and discontinuan are easier to handle because by look up the streets we can find in a momen whom they belong. It is unusual to h more than one or two complaints a we

"3. The first two weeks following change we gained enough new subscrib in Hornell to make our coverage of t city practically 99 per cent. This done by offering a small cash prize to carriers obtaining the largest number new readers, and cost the paper pr tically nothing per customer.

"4. Although our carriers still deli on a commission basis we have, by offi ing them protection on their territo made it their desire to serve custom better. In years past the paper lost a s prising amount in bad debts. Since J 1, we haven't lost a cent in unpaid c rier bills.

"5. When a carrier sees a family m

I. A. A. DELEGATES TO VIEW TINY PRESS

Miniature printing press to be exhibited in Denver

A MINIATURE printing press approximately four feet in length and three and one-half feet in width has been loaned by H. R. Swartz, president of R. Hoe & Co., Inc., New York to the Scripps-Howard Denver newspapers for exhibition in the windows of their Service Bureau during the period of the convention of the International Advertising Association to be held in Denver the week of June 26.

The press is a perfect operating printing press capable of printing a newspaper of miniature size exactly as the larger presses operate. Mr. Swartz is a member of the Advertising Commission of the International Advertising Association, and treasurer of the Advertising Club of New York. He is making plans to attend the convention at Denver and is among those who will head the party of 150 or more from the New York Club.

NEW YORK STATE CIRCULATION MANAGERS MEET IN SYRACUSE

Officers, directors and distinguished guests of the New York State Circulation Managers convention at Semi-Annual Meeting at the Onondaga Hotel, Syracuse, Tuesday, April 12. Front row, left to right: Chauncey F. Stout, Plainfield (N. J.) Courier-News; Daniel W. Tanner, Utica Observer-Dispatch; Glen S. England, Johnstown Leader-Republican; Bernard Knight, Syracuse Herald; F. S. Levy, New York Herald Tribune; Charles Waterfield, New York Times. Back row: Frank Tripp, Elmira Star-Gazette and Gannett Group of Newspapers; Louis Gautier, New York Morning Telegraph; William Argue, Toronto (Can.) Star; Alfred W. Cockerill, Utica Press, secretary-treasurer; R. D. M. Decker, Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, president of the New York State Association; George Scrb, Jr., Buffalo News; William F. Baldwin, New York World; James McKernan, New York; James W. Brown, Editor & Publisher; and W. Clarence Hixson, Syracuse Post-Standard into a house that has been vacant, he on them the first day they are in n. If they do not subscribe through we send a man from the office. About ch 27 the new executive force for the Railroad offices arrived. There about 40 families and in two or three we were selling nearly that many papers to our boys."

harles Waterfield, suburban circula- manager of the New York Times, ared that the experience of the Times proof that quality circulation received consideration from advertisers.

mes W. Brown, president of EDITOR UBLISHER, in the course of his address The Circulation Manager, His Ideals, Duties, and How He Can Best e," cited some comparative figures lew York State circulations and ad- sing rates, which were received with usiasm.

On the evidence of statistics, the cir- tion managers of New York State done an uncommonly good job," Mr. vn said. "Seven years ago, accord- o the first edition of EDITOR & PUB- ER'S INTERNATIONAL YEAR BOOK, York State was credited by the S. Census with a population of 10.- 329.

erving this population were 32 morn- newspapers, 98 evening newspapers 27 Sunday newspapers. The morn- papers had an aggregate average daily lation of 2,000,189 copies; evening rs had an aggregate average of 2,826,- copies; Sunday editions had an aggre- circulation of 3,231,118 copies per is- The total daily circulation of 019 copies distributed daily provided wspaper for each two persons in the , or a daily average of two per fam- This average would be increased derably by omission from the popu- n of illiterates and those whose news- reading did not include the English iage dailies. The state at that time 9.8 per cent of the country's popula- 17 per cent of the daily newspaper circulation, and 18 per cent of the Sunday circulation. It had 20.3 per cent of the morning circulation and 15 per cent of the evening circulation.

"Since then the situation has changed remarkably in several respects. The tabloid newspaper was in truth in its infancy in 1920, and its development in the intervening years has wrought a revolution in the state's circulation picture.

"According to EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S INTERNATIONAL YEAR BOOK for 1927, the state has a population of 11,303,296. The number of morning newspapers remains unchanged at 32. In the evening field, where a number of striking consolidations have occurred, the number of papers has decreased from 98 to 94. The number of Sunday newspapers remains at 27.

"Morning newspaper circulation has increased from 2,001,189 copies a day to 3,171,838 copies, a gain of 1,170,649 copies, or 58.4 per cent.

"Evening paper circulation has increased from 2,826,830 copies, to 3,281,535, a gain of 454,705 copies, or 16 per cent.

"Sunday newspaper circulation has increased from 3,231,118 copies to 5,012,873 copies, a gain of 1,781,755 copies, or 55.1 per cent.

"The total daily circulation of 6,453,373 copies provides a newspaper for each 1.75 persons of the seate's population, or almost three per family.

"The state, as of Jan. 1, 1927, had 9.6 per cent of the country's population; but had increased its proportion of morning paper circulation from 20.3 per cent to 23.7 per cent; had dropped from 15 per cent to 14.4 per cent of the total evening circulation of the country; but had increased its proportion of the total Sunday circulation from 18 per cent to 20.5 per cent.

"New York's population growth, according to 1920 and 1926 figures of the U. S. Census Bureau, was 8.8 per cent. That of the entire country during the same period was 10.8 per cent. It will be apparent that the circulation executives of the New York State daily newspapers have lost few opportunities to intensify their penetration of the great New York market.

"For comparative purposes, place New York State beside the area of the country which has shown the greatest population growth in the period under consideration. The States of California, Oregon and Washington in 1920 had a total population of 5,566,871. In 1926 the Bureau estimated for them a total population of 6,732,164, showing a gain of 1,165,293 people, or 20 per cent.

"Morning paper circulation in these states as of Oct., 1920, totalled 770,374 copies. In 1926, this total had risen to 1,202,210 copies, a gain of 431,836 copies, or 56 per cent.

"Evening paper circulation in these three states has grown at abnormally fast rates—from 1,349,076 to 1,877,978 copies per day—an increase of 39 per cent. Sunday circulation increased from 1,367,911 to 2,126,586 copies per issue—a gain of 55 per cent.

"Thus, New York circulations, with the exception of evening papers, have maintained an increase equal to that of the newspapers on the Pacific Coast which had more than twice the proportionate increase in population since 1920 than that recorded for the Empire State. The failure of evening papers to maintain an equal rate of expansion is attributable to the great number of important consolidations which have occurred in the New York evening field since 1920.

"What have these great circulation increases meant to the newspapers—their publishers and advertisers? The rate schedule tells part of the story.

"The morning paper rate in 1920 was $4.415. In 1926 it was $6.743. The advance is 52.5 per cent, against a circulation increase of 58.4 per cent.

"The evening paper rate in 1920 was $7.426, and in 1926 it was $9.124. The increase is 22.9 per cent against a circulation increase of 16 per cent.

"The Sunday newspaper rate in 1920 was $5.831, and in 1926 it was $8.677. The increase is 49 per cent against a circulation increase of 55.1 per cent.

"The advertiser is thus paying less for the new circulation that you have found than he was paying six years ago, and if figures for ten and twenty years ago were available, they would no doubt demonstrate beyond doubt that newspaper advertising is selling at a lower rate per line than at any time in history."

"In many places the carrier boy and the sales boy are paid more than the cost of the papers they sell to make their deliveries," said C. E. Blewer, Binghamton Press. "We see publications being rushed by auto truck and motorcycle along the highways hundreds of miles in order to get delivery in certain towns first, where they leave 200 or 300 copies, and then go 30 or 40 miles more with 15 or 20 copies to another small town.

"Many of these auto deliveries are costing the publisher from 5 cents to 7 cents per copy for each subscriber, but, in his great desire to outdo the other fellow, he doesn't see it.

"The modern daily newspaper is a splendid product, and, in order to make it so, every department must be on its toes every minute, obtaining features and up-to-the-minute news and advertisements for the information of the subscriber. All these things cost a great deal of money, added to the cost of distribution and promotion.

"The publisher must watch out or the cost of production and selling will make the balance sheet show a loss at the end of the year."

BLOCK URGES "GO-TO-CHURCH"

Paul Block, publisher of the Newark Star-Eagle, Toledo Blade, Duluth Herald and other newspapers, urged readers to go to church during Holy Week in a signed editorial his newspaper and in the advertising columns of other papers.

DENTISTS IN MONTANA URGED TO UNITE FOR CO-OPERATIVE ADVERTISING

"We Denounce the Advertiser," Says Dr. Crary, President of State Group, "And Withhold from Public Our Knowledge of Safe and Sane Dentistry"—Should Sell Profession, He Advises

OUT in Montana the dentists are speaking of the ethical code which prohibits advertising as an "ancient idea" handed down from the days when the "sciences were shrouded in mystery as witchcraft."

The new idea, as outlined by Dr. E. W. Crary of Choteau, and president of the Montana State Dental Association, and advocated by him for the profession everywhere is co-operative advertising.

"We live on public confidence," Dr. Crary declared, "and I maintain that public confidence will grow with understanding.

"We denounce the advertiser in our code of ethics, but have we not, by our very attitude in withholding from the public proper knowledge of modern safe and sane dentistry, made it more profitable for the advertiser to ply his trade?" he questioned.

Dr. Crary's address delivered at the association's annual convention, follows in part:

"Since the first Montana State Dental association meeting 25 years ago, we have taken wonderful strides in many phases of our work; have made a record of steady progress that calls for no apology. But in others we have, and I say it with the interests of the association sincerely at heart, stood still, leaving the rest of the world to move along without us.

"The first, and in my opinion, the chief one of these phrases to which I venture to call your attention is our code of ethics, in its relation to publicity, a subject which I concieve to be of highest importance to the future of dentistry.

"Our code of ethics was handed down to us in the beginning, by the medical profession, and the medical profession, in turn, took its code from the days before Christ when all learning was in the hands of a few who set themselves apart as prophets to be blindly trusted by the masses, for whom the sciences were shrouded in mystery as witchcraft.

"To this day the situation has been but little changed, so far as acquainting the public with the true values and purposes of the sciences that pertain to health and physical well being are concerned, though other sciences, far less vital to human welfare, long ago discarded secrecy and took the public into their confidence, to their mutual advantage.

"Publicity, as it pertains to our profession, has been almost wholly neglected; has not even attempted to keep abreast of the changing sentiment within our own ranks.

"Generally speaking, the public is ignorant of dentistry, especially of the difference between poor and good dentistry. Our code of ethics forbids us enlightening patients in our offices, even to the point of explaining to them the cause of failure in the work of other dentists.

"We should in some way, it seems to me, just how, is not for me to say, start now to map a program to have for its objective the enlightenment of the laity on the whys and wherefores of modern dentistry.

"This idea, judged by the standard of our code, is, I realized, somewhat revolutionary and may appear preposterous to some. But when we stop to consider for a moment how little opportunity is offered the public to inform itself as to what constitutes safe and sane dentistry, by reading or otherwise, it seems to me that we, as members of this association, should accept the responsibility without out hesitation, of supplying this need. We live on public confidence and I maintain that that confidence will grow with understanding.

"The only chance that a layman has to acquaint himself with the importance of dental methods as they affect the results to him, is by personal contact with a practitioner. And if this contact happens to be with some dentist who is not more than suave salesman and shyster, what protection has the patient?

"We denounce the advertiser in our code of ethics, but have we not by our very attitude in withholding from the public proper knowledge of what is meant by modern safe and sane dentistry, made it the more profitable for the advertiser to ply his trade? Have we so much as raised a finger to protect the public from improper dental publicity? What have we done to give the public a standard by which to judge?

"In this connection this question presents itself: 'Does this organization really represent the majority of the practicing dentists of this state, and if not, what are the reasons that we cannot induce them to be with us?'

"What inducements have we to offer them in a financial way? It is true we have a wonderful group of clinicians and that here we have a clearing house for worthwhile ideas. But today, not only the young but the older dentists are looking, as all the rest of America looks in this age, toward the remuneration; toward the dollars and cents return that will repay them for attendance there.

"Any time we can show a non-member that membership in this association and active participation in its affairs will actually increase his income from the practice of his profession, then, and not until then, will we have a real drawing card. We should have at least 225 members in this association among the practicing dentists of the state, and that result, I believe, can be accomplished if we can but find ways and means and the right men to put over a campaign along lines which I have tried to suggest.

"In other words, I believe that there are great days ahead for us all when we have sold association work to dentists through selling the importance of proper dentistry to the public."

NEW TENNESSEE DAILY

The Murfreesboro (Tenn.) Daily News Banner was launched recently. It is owned by J. C. Beasley, Jr., with J. R. Williams editor-in-chief. United Press service is being used.

BECK RECEIVED BY POPE

Edward S. Beck, managing editor of the Chicago Tribune, and Mrs. Beck, who are visiting Europe on a vacation trip, were received by the Pope, April 6, in a private audience. Before the audience, Mr. Beck had a long conversation with Cardinal and Secretary of State Gasparri.

SEEKING OLDEST PRINTER

The committee in charge of the Fourth Educational Graphic Arts Exposition is seeking the oldest printer in the United States. When found, he will be given a gold medal and will attend the Exposition at the Grand Central Palace, New York, Sept. 5-17, as a guest of the committee.

TENNESSEE PAPERS MERGED

The Erwin (Tenn.) Magnet and Erwin Times have been consolidated, under the name of the Erwin Magnet-Times. Johnson City, Tenn., interests headed by C. T. Muse, made the purchase. J. F. Toney founded the Ergin Magnet 36 years ago and has been editor and publisher ever since.

POSTAL RECEIPTS UP

The total postal receipts for the fifty industrial cities throughout the country for the month of March 1927, were $3,572,432.89 as against $3,525,232.77 for the same month in 1926, according to figures recently made public by Postmaster General New. Reno, Nev., with an increase of 80.64 per cent led all the cities.

EDITOR COMMITS SUICIDE

Eli L. Admire, editor of the Oilton (Okla.) Gusher, shot and killed himself at his desk, the evening of April 5. Mr. Admire, who had been a newspaper publisher at Oilton for 16 years, had served a term in the Oklahoma legislature. Up to the time of his death, he had been city treasurer, election returns revealing his defeat for re-election a few hours before he took his life.

FEMININE CREW RUNS DAILY'S PRESSES

The most beautiful "crew" that ever ran presses in any newspaper operated the presses in the New Orleans Times-Picayune plant Thursday night, March 24, when a bevy of Junior League revue stars helped to get out the early edition of the paper. The girls were clad in overalls, which they wore most becomingly. This picture was made when the "pressroom gang" halted for nourishment before helping to print the rotogravure supplement. With them here are L. K. Nicholson, president of the Times-Picayune (left), and K. W. Windle, pressroom foreman.

CAN YOU FIGURE?

Here is a hypothetical problem in newspaper economics for EDITOR & PUBLISHER readers to play with. It is a test of knowledge of the factors that enter into the publication of a daily paper. It is in a sense a trick question. EDITOR & PUBLISHER will publish the answer to it in the issue of April 30th. In the meantime we shall be glad to receive answers and discussion from readers, particularly from students and young business office employes.

A newspaper prints and sells 50,0 28-page papers six days per week, realizing 1¼ cents per copy. The proportions are 60 per cent advertising and per cent editorial. The average rate 12 cents per agate line. The page size 8 columns, 21 inches deep. Costs are follows: Newsprint, delivered press room, 4¼ cents per pound, with .08 p cent wastage; Editorial, $1,650 per wee all mechanical departments, $5,400 p week; advertising sales cost, 16 per c of the average advertising rate; circulation, $1,000 per week; business office a administration, $1,200, per week; other expenses, including heat, ligh power, rents, interest and depreciatio $1,500 per week.

How much does this newspaper win lose per year?

Question: What is wrong with t above picture?

Please address communications "Problem Editor," EDITOR & PUBLISHER 1700 Times Bldg., New York.

NEW OKLAHOMA PAPER

C. C. Colbert, former editor of the Fo Cobb (Okla.) Express has started pu lication of the Geary (Okla.) Blai County Star.

ISSUES OKLAHOMA SURVEY

The Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman, pul lished by the same company which pul lishes the Oklahoma City Oklahoman a Times, has just issued a handsome book let, "In Oklahoma," giving information c the Oklahoma farm market. The bookl is issued annually. E. K. Gaylord president of the publishing company.

PUBLISHER TORNADO VICTIM

H. R. Dollahite, editor and owner the Rock Springs (Tex.) Edwar County Leader, weekly, and his daughte Mattie, were killed in the tornado whic razed that town Tuesday night.

DICKEY CASE MOVED UP

The action of Walter S. Dickey, owne and editor of the Kansas City Journa Post, to set aside the sale of the Kansa City Star to Irwin Kirkwood and asso ciates, was advanced last week on th Missouri supreme court docket to th October term of the court. The cas was advanced at request of attorneys o the Star.

REPORTER NOW MAYOR

Thomas W. Butler, 33, who was electe mayor of Alton, Ill., on Tuesday, Apr 5, was a reporter for the St. Louis Globe Democrat during 1916 and 1917, coverin the St. Louis County run, and rejoine that paper after his discharge from th 122nd Field Artillery, which he joine when the war broke out. Later he wa a copy editor on the old St. Louis Re public. After several months there h went to Alton and engaged in the grocer business.

AD MAN SENTENCED

Vincent De Pascal, 26, said to b author of a book on crime, was sentence to one year in the Bridewell Chicago April 7, for the theft of $1,200 in bond on April 11, 1926. While serving a nine months' sentence in Sing Sing he won a prize of $1,000 and a trip around the world in an advertising copy contest. De Pascal was at one time an advertising man.

DVERTISING SERVICE MEN ORGANIZE

sociated Advertising Services to Work for Better Practices in Field—D. H. Livingston Named President

Representatives of advertising syndi-es meeting in New York April 8, for-lly inaugurated a new association under name the Associated Advertising vices. Officers elected were D. H. ingston, vice-president of the Century vertising Service, New York, presi-t; N. B. Conhaim, Meyer-Both Com-y, Chicago, vice-president; F. E. ns, Evans & Brisebois, secretary, and L. Gibson, Standard Corporation, cago, treasurer. The association has opened a headquarters office at 10 47th street, New York, with Joseph Winder, formerly of the Winder Serv- Company, in charge.

D. H. Livingston

he primary purpose of the new or-ization as set down in the preamble its constitution is "to establish and ntain better principles of practice ong service companies, to eliminate un- and illegal methods of competition, to elevate to higher levels the gen- field of syndicate advertising."

Ir. Livingston, the first president, in-med EDITOR & PUBLISHER that the as-iation's membership comprised 95 per t of the concerns producing syndicated ertising services for merchants, banks, newspapers.

he original meeting of advertising dicate representatives looking toward mation of an association was held in w York City at the offices of the itury Advertising Service on Feb. 8. hose attending this meeting were eed that through lack of co-operation ong syndicate service companies unfair hods of competition had been indulged o the great damage of the service busi-s as a whole. The best means of recting this situation, they decided, to pool their experiences and benefit the interchanging of ideas.

resent at this preliminary meeting e representatives of the Century Ad-tising Service, New York; the ndard Corporation of Chicago; the tro Associated Service, New York; yer-Both Company, Chicago; Econo- Services of the Dry Goods Economist, w York; Zuckerman Services, Chica- Bonnet-Brown Corporation, Chicago; Chicago Tribune Advertising Serv-; R. C. Banker & Co., Grand Rapids, ch.; Evans & Brisebois, Grand ids, Mich.; Frank V. Martin Com-y, Detroit, and Holland Advertising npany, New York.

t the organization meeting last week ntative code of practices was adopted, the text was withheld from publica-n.

Directors of the new association are: C. Duble, president of the Century vertising Service, Inc., New York; A. Hurst, general manager of the Econo- Services of the Dry Goods Econo-t; Irving Nichols, general manager of tro Associated Services, Inc., New York; F. Schaffer, Chicago Tribune Advertising Service; M. B. Conhaim, Meyer-Both Company, Chicago; Evan S. Rusher, Standard Corporation, Chicago; Frank V. Martin, president of the Frank V. Martin Company, Detroit, and H. Philpott, Furniture Record, Grand Rapids, Mich.

ADVERTISERS TO OPEN ENGRAVING PLANT

Group of St. Louis Firms Will Make Own Cuts in Jointly Owned Establishment—Deny "Shopping News" Plans

Twelve or 15 of the largest members of the Associated Retailers of St. Louis will soon operate their own photo-engraving plant to make zinc cuts for advertising illustrations. The group is now engaged in buying machinery and in selecting a location, and will proceed with their plans despite the protests of the St. Louis Photo Engravers' Club, which has expressed apprehension that the business of its member firms would be disrupted.

K. F. Niemoeller, manager of the Associated Retailers, said it was believed the stores could get better service operating a private shop than if they depended on public establishments, as they have done in the past. This is the prime motivating factor in embarking on the enterprise, although it is possible that costs will be somewhat lower, Mr. Niemoeller added. He said the shop probably would be opened within two months.

The Photo-Engravers' Club has distributed a letter to those connected with the graphic arts industries of St. Louis requesting them to file protests with the retailers in order to discourage the practice of starting private printing and allied plants. Fear was expressed that the retailers, once having opened a photo-engraving plant, would instal fully-equipped printing and other plants as stores have done in other cities for the production of Shopping News bulletins and other advertising matter. Mr. Niemoeller denied that the local group planned these steps.

"The plant will make only zinc cuts, and it is not our purpose to print any shopping bulletins or other forms of advertising," Mr. Niemoeller stated. "From 12 to 15 firms will get their photo-engraving work done at the plant, and this is not going to put any public shops out of business. We are going ahead with our plans and do not intend to discuss the matter."

JOINS 100,000 GROUP

The South Bend (Ind.) Tribune has been voted a member of the 100,000 Group of American Cities, Inc.

DAILY RUNS OWN AD SERIES TO AID STORES

Cleveland Plain Dealer Aims to Stimulate Buying and Quicken Style Interest—Linage Increase Reported

With the aim of stimulating buying by quickening style interest among its women readers, the Cleveland Plain Dealer recently inaugurated a sales promotion campaign, marked by several outstanding factors. It approaches retailing with the idea of suggesting to the woman reader what she should buy; tying up with this, the paper carries style advertising which stresses the buying note.

A recent piece of Plain Dealer copy presented a sketched scene on the Rue de La Paix, Paris, and below, carried three short columns of copy, telling the beauties of new shades of blue.

At the bottom the ad carried this caption: "This is number one of the Plain Dealer's new 'Fashion Bulletins.' The merchandise illustrated is on sale at style shops and stores regularly advertised in this newspaper."

The last sentence, it will be noted, afforded a definite tie-up between the newspaper's own promotion copy and the retailer's ad.

The general effect of the innovation is multiple, it was said. The plan served to benefit the stores by stimulating the newspaper's readers to go a-shopping; it helped the newspaper by substantially increasing its advertising linage; and it afforded a valuable service to the buying public as a whole.

The project has aroused considerable interest among Cleveland merchants. The plan is molded somewhat along the lines of a "news advertising service"; the high spots in spring fashions are stressed in the copy, without individual stores being mentioned.

Carlisle N. Greig is now directing the sales promotion work of the Plain Dealer.

WOULD EXCLUDE U. S. PAPERS

Canadian Officials Asked to Bar Certain "Pornographic" Publication

Exclusion from Canada of a certain type of "Pornographic" newspaper published in the United States was urged by Speaker Lemieux of the House of Commons, Ottawa, April 7, when he called upon the Minister of Customs and the Postmaster General to devise means of protecting Canada against such publications.

The speaker's remarks were made before the House during discussion of the bill to reduce postage on newspapers from one and a half cents to one cent a pound, which was passed with third reading.

"Even in France," the speaker stated, "a movement is on foot to curb pornographic newspapers such as those from the United States." These papers, he declared, are being sold on every street corner in the larger cities of the Dominion and constitute a serious menace to the youth of Canada.

REFUSES LOCAL RATE TO NATIONAL FIRM

Durham (N. C.) Herald by Maintaining a Firm Policy Makes Vick Chemical Company Accept National Classification

M. F. Murdaugh, advertising manager of the Durham (N. C.) Herald, recently sent the following letter to Cranston Williams, manager of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association.

"I have just read that part of the March 10 Bulletin mentioning the fact that several North Carolina newspapers have been granting Vick Chemical Company local rates.

"Please put the Durham Herald down as being one North Carolina paper that has never made any such concession to Vick, or any other advertiser. Vick uses our columns liberally, and they don't ask for rate concessions because they fully understand our policy, and understand also that we have sufficient 'digestive apparatus' to maintain our policy of enforcing rates.

"Even in our own city where B. C. Headache Remedy is made, we require that firm to pay national rates simply through the fact that their copy is general—and not of a local nature.

"Just so long as some of our newspapers in the South refuse to recognize the difference between local and general advertising—just that long will they have squabbles with advertisers similar to the rate controversy now going on between Vick Chemical Company, and a few North Carolina papers. The papers themselves have established the precedent, and they can't blame Vick for expecting them to stick to it.

"We are glad to be on the sidelines looking on—but we decline to get into such an awkward situation ourselves."

GREENVILLE PIEDMONT SOLD

B. H. Peace of News, New Owner of South Carolina Paper

Sales of the Greenville (S. C.) Piedmont, afternoon daily newspaper, by R. B. Chandler, to B. H. Peace and associates became effective Tuesday.

Mr. Peace, who is principal owner of the Greenville News, morning paper, becomes publisher of the Piedmont, and Judson W. Chapman succeeds Mr. Chandler as its editor.

A. T. McCain and Charles H. Garrison continue as managing editor and city editor respectively of the Piedmont.

EDITOR HELD FOR ATTACK

Herbert L. Dodd, editor of the Lake City (Fla.) Reporter, weekly, was arrested and placed under $500 bond April 12 on a charge of aggravated assault and attempt to murder in connection with an alleged attack Monday night on C. W. Stewart, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. Stewart charged that Dodd slashed at him with a drawn knife. There had been ill feeling between the two for some time. Stewart recently resigned from the Chamber of Commerce, effective May 1.

U. S. SEEKING WRITERS

The United States Civil Service Commission will hold an open competitive examination of applicants for assistant in agricultural information. Applications must be on file with the Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C., not later than May 10. The entrance salary is $2,700 a year. The duties will consist of writing or editing articles along agricultural, financial, or economic lines for the use of newspapers, farm papers, commercial and financial journals.

WILKINS AND PILOT LOST IN ARCTIC

Above is latest photograph of members of Detroit News-Wilkins Expedition standing before one of the planes at Point Barrow. Capt. Wilkins has been reported missing since March 29 and searching airplanes find no trace of him. Left to right: Howard Mason, radio operator; Ben Orville Ellison, chief pilot; Porter, mechanic; Noel Wein, pilot; Capt. Wilkins, commander; Alger Graham, pilot, and A. M. Smith, correspondent.

USE OF PERFECT PROPORTIONS IN ADS AND CUTS IMPROVES APPEARANCE

Proportion of Depth to Width, Accurately Figured by Hambidge's Formulas, Gives Reader Visual Effect of Unity

By CHARLES W. MEARS
Counselor in Marketing

THE new type faces that are making newspapers so much easier to read are based on one very simple discovery—the discovery that what counts most in legibility is the amount of white light that shows through the type characters on the printed page.

Heretofore, we have had proportionately too much white light outside the characters and too little white light inside. Increasing the inner light also gives the type designer an opportunity to use heavier faces, without consuming increased space either vertically or horizontally. And the net result is that, with the new type, newspaper reading is easier today than reading of any sort has been at any previous time in the history of typography.

This space is imperfectly proportioned according to Mears' formula.

Isn't it interesting that this simple discovery—proportions of white light—should come at this late day, when letter designing is so many centuries old? And isn't it an indication that, far from having arrived at perfection, we are just beginning to realize that almost anything or everything we do can possibly be done a little better? I think so.

This space is a perfect proportion; width of column multiplied by 1.4142 to determine length.

Take so simple a matter as the shapes of newspaper heads, newspaper illustrations and less-than-page advertisements. If a newspaper column is two inches wide, how deep may a one-column advertisement run?

The answer to that question depends of course upon what you are trying to accomplish. Some advertisers run copy the full length of a single column and are satisfied with results. But the full length column advertisement is seldom pleasing to the reader's eye. The reader does not get the visual effect of unity: the length is too attenuated in proportion to the width.

Therefore, if the advertiser is looking for total visual effect and if the editor aims at good looks in heads or illustrations, we come back to relative proportion—to the same point that led to the production of the most readable type in the entire history of the printing art.

Artists like the notion that the ability to know whether relative proportions of any sort of two-dimension production is an inborn ability. If you have it, you are an artist, and if you lack it, you are a dock-walloper. But it remained for Jay Hambidge to knock that notion endways and to prove that proportion is mathematical.

Hambidge studied proportion for 20 years. His analyses of Greek art, of plant growth and of the human figure are masterpieces, out of which came the discovery that rectangles are peculiarly pleasing to the eye when they are constructed according to a definite mathematical formula.

This space is a perfect proportion; width of column multiplied by 1.618, second figure in Mr. Mears' formula to determine length.

Draw for yourself two very simple rectangles. Make one 4 inches wide and 5 inches deep. Make the other 4 inches wide and 5 1/8 inches deep. Place these two rectangles side by side and, with no leading suggestions of any kind, ask any intelligent person to pick the one which looks best. Nine of ten people will select the deeper rectangle: it is irresistible.

When the head of the art department orders a one-column cut of a society leader's photograph, does he let the depth run what it will, does he have some arbitrarily-named lengths to choose from, or is he guided by the Hambidge formula? If the latter, the result will be pleasing to the eye.

When the editor figures out a new set of heads, he will be pleased with results if he, too, follows the same formula.

And that formula is this:

Any rectangle is pleasing to the eye when its long side is 1.4142, 1.618, 1.7321, 2 or 2.2361 times the length of its short side.

These figures happen to be the square roots of 2, 3, 4 and 5, excepting 1.618, which is of another category and involves a more lengthy explanation than is needed here.

Hambidge found that Greek artists worked on the square root basis, but this doesn't mean that the advertiser or the editor seeking symmetrical forms needs to renew his acquaintance with square root extraction. Far from it. All one needs to do, in order to obtain proportionately pleasing measurements, is this:

1—When the short dimension is known, multiply it by any one of the figures given above to find the proper long dimension.

2—When the long dimension is known, divide it by any one of the figures given above to find the proper short dimension.

Thus if a cut is to measure 6 inches on its short side, its long side may properly be any one of the following that best suits the subject matter:

6×1.4142=8½ inches.
6×1.618=9 7/8 inches.
6×1.7321=10 3/8 inches.
6×2=12 inches.
6×2.2361=13 7/16 inches.

If the cut is to measure 6 inches on its long side, the short side may properly be any one of the following that best suits the subject matter:

6÷1.4142=4¼ inches.
6÷1.618=3 11/16 inches.
6÷1.7321=3½ inches.
6÷2=3 inches.
6÷2.2361=2 11/16 inches.

Thus it will be seen that a known dimension of any restangle gives a choice of ten sizes, all of them symmetrical.

Subject matter will dictate choice. A motor car seen from the side has its longest dimension horizontal. A human being standing or sitting erect has his longest dimension vertical.

Thus if a motor car picture is to run 6 inches wide its depth will be less than 6 inches. We therefore divide 6 by one or more of the Hambidge figures.

On the other hand, if a human being's picture is to run 6 inches wide, its depth should be more than 6 inches. Hence we multiply 6 by one or more of Hambidge's figures.

In small rectangles the difference between a mathematically correct proportion and one not mathematically correct may not be readily apparent, but as rectangles increase in size the superiority of mathematically accurate dimensions is outstanding. Almost nobody can honestly say that the 4x5 rectangle pleases him as does the 4x5 1/8. The difference in linear measure is less than an inch: in the visual impression, the difference is monumental.

For my own use I compiled a table of all the symmetrical rectangles from 1 inch to 25 inches (short dimension), stepping up by eighths of an inch. The long dimensions of these rectangles range from 1 1/16 inch to 55 7/8 inches. Now I need do no more figuring. For a symmetrical rectangle anywhere within this range, I simply refer to my compiled figures, and there it is. Thanks to Hambidge and his formula, I need never again ignorantly use a rectangle that disappoints the eye.

Most of the rectangles used in newspaper heads, illustrations and less-than page advertisements are shapes that, like Topsy, "just growed," with no very definite rhyme, reason or principle behind them. I anticipate that this condition will change.

Easily read type will make newspapers more popular with readers, more fully read and better advertising mediums. If page make-up becomes more attractive by the use of symmetrical rectangles in the manner I have already indicated, I can see that thereby newspapers will take another step forward in effectiveness. And whereas new type faces cost money, symmetrical dimensions in heads, cuts and advertisements are free to the world. Anybody who wants them can have them.

ATTACKING GAMBLING

A vigorous crusade against gambling of every type is being waged in Albany, N. Y., by the Knickerbocker Press and Evening News. The crusade was opened by two ministers, who demanded that the mayor close all gambling houses and "keep the lid on." The Press and News took up the ministerial cudgel by playing the story all of last week with streamer heads, in addition to pointing out editorially, that the Albany police were lax in enforcing the anti-gambling laws.

DAILY NOW SEMI-WEEKLY

The Inglewood (Cal.) Morning Gazette has temporarily suspended publication as a daily and will resume publication as a semi-weekly.

JOURNALISM STUDEN HONOR PULITZER

Place Laurel Wreath on Bust of For N. Y. World Publisher and Foun der of Columbia's Journalism School

Alumni and seniors and juniors of School of Journalism, Columbia U versity, paid honor Tuesday to the m ory of Joseph Pulitzer, founder of New York World, who endowed school, by placing a laurel wreath on bust of Mr. Pulitzer in the Journal building.

Miss Mary Smethurst and Ernest W ren, representing the junior and se classes, placed the wreath as part of annual Founder's Day ceremony, and T cott Williams, Director Emeritus of school, eulogized Mr. Pulitzer.

"Joseph Pulitzer made certain and cure the freedom of the press and immortality of the newspaper," Dr. W liams asserted, "and I call upon you s dents to remember him and the Wo and to carry on the ideals as outlined Mr. Pulitzer and put into practice the World."

Dr. Williams told the 200 assemb students and professors that, even wh partly blind, Mr. Pulitzer had his "fing on the pulse of the world."

"I remember watching him ridi horseback one day," he said. "His ho stumbled, but Mr. Pulitzer kept him fr falling by a slight manipulation of t reins. His control of things in the ne paper world with which he came into c tact was equally wonderful."

The speaker recalled the early days the school when he was called upon become its first director, but refused wh he found that women were not to be mitted as students.

"I went into conference with the thorities," he continued, "and had the r changed so that women could become s dents at this great school."

Following this ceremony a plaque the memory of Franklin Matthews, a p neer newspaper man and one of school's first professors, gift of "alu who cherish his memory," was unve in the senior city room.

Mrs. Maxwell Geffen and Mrs. Da Ginzburg of the classes of 1916 and 1 unveiled the plaque and Prof. Merr Stanley Rukeyser, president of Alumni Association, and Gerald B. Spi of the class of 1916 spoke.

Both told how Mr. Matthews, forme with the New York Times and the S would not permit students to call h "professor" or "teacher," but was pro of being called "Boss" Matthews. Dir tor John W. Cunliffe of the School Journalism, accepted the plaque in name of Columbia University.

The plaque read:

"Franklin Matthews, 1858-1917. As ciate professor of journalism in Columb University. Serene, kindly, tolerant, won the affectionate regard of all w knew him. Presented by alumni w cherish his memory."

The School of Journalism entertain at tea after the ceremonies.

McCELVEY PROMOTED

Display Manager, Houston Chronic Now Special Business Representativ

H. A. McCelvey, manager of the lo display advertising department of Houston (Tex.) Chronicle, has been p moted to special business representati and he has been succeeded in his form position by W. C. Storey, member of t advertising staff for the past seve months.

Mr. McCelvey has been connected w the local display department of Chronicle for more than 14 years, a during the major portion of this ti has been in charge of that department.

NEW MISSOURI WEEKLY

The first issue of the Anderson (M Enterprise, weekly, was issued recent Leigh Wade is editor.

OSPECTS BRIGHT FOR JOURNALISM GRADS

er Before Have Trained Men and 'omen Had Such Opportunities for Satisfactory Careers, Says Professor ere was never a time when the pects of young men and women for ng satisfactory careers in newspaper rk were so l as at pres- said Profes- Allen Sin- Will, direc- of the new artment of nalism in ers Univers- New Bruns- addressing ssemblage of student body l 11. The ad- was ex- tory of the ilities for ing professional journalism which been provided at Rutgers in co- tion with the New Jersey Associa-

ALLEN S. WILL

roughout the country, Professor said, there had developed a marked nd for experienced editors and re- rs who were able to do first class and also for well equipped recruits possessed a collegiate education. condition was partly due to the ld War, which brought about the sion of many newspaper workers to callings, and partly to an increase e number of positions on the staffs pers because of the greater general erity of the publishing business.

seeking newspaper openings," the essor continued, "the first requisite possess or acquire the qualifications loing creditable work. Next, it is rtant to have sufficient patience to until a favorable opening is found a recruit has established himself as porter or editor of the better grade, outlook for continued employment rising pay is favorable.

he pay of newspaper workers has increased an estimated average of r cent since 1914. It is now possi- or many to begin the work receiving r incomes than most lawyers, phy- s, or persons engaged in business nations can reasonably hope to re- for several years after they start. od newspaper man can make a com- ble living in an occupation which of those engaged in it believe to be ost interesting in the world. As in cupations, there are large rewards top."

he Department of Journalism at rs," Professor Will said, "is the t of all those established in Amer- universities and therefore has been to make use of the experience of s. It is the only one which is con- l under the direct auspices of and in eration with the organized news- profession. The foundation of the rtment was due to the initiative of ew Jersey Press Association, a com- of which body co-operates actively management and instruction. The sors are newspaper men of long ience on leading papers.

l of the professional instruction is . The students report the news of Brunswick and its vicinity in their and edit real news of exactly the kind as newspapers receive. We the full daily news report of the iated Press, covering the world. news is transmitted to the Journal- oom over a leased wire and tran- d on a printing telegraph machine. ractice in editing, the special news e of the New York Times is also l The standards are those of the g papers of the country, without cation."

of the most useful fruits of co- ion with the New Jersey Press ation, Professor Will said, was committee of the association made l efforts to place meritorious grad- uates, without delay, in desirable positions where there were prospects of advancement. This is another advantage which no other institution teaching professional journalism offers.

TEXAS TRAIN STARTS JUNE 19

Will Tell Story of State's Resources to Northern States

June 19 was selected at a meeting in Fort Worth this week as the date for departure of the all-Texas special train sponsored by the Texas Daily Press League to advertise the State throughout the North and East.

It was announced that the train will cost about $25,000, each person making the trip to pay about $225 for transportation, sleeping accommodations and meals. Only men of recognized attainment in business and the professions will be invited, according to committee plans.

Several committees were appointed. Lowry Martin, Corsicana Sun, is general chairman and chairman of the executive committee; J. L. Greer, Denison Herald, transportation and personnel; Sam Harben, secretary, Texas Press Association, publicity and advertising; Cato Sells, compilation, preparations and presentation of material.

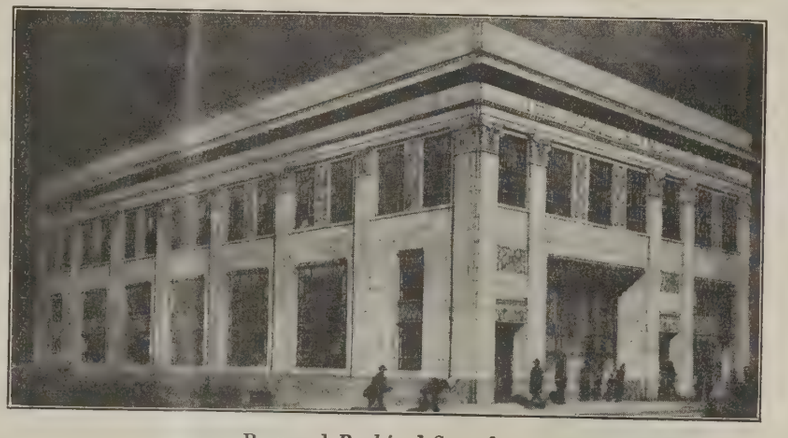
ARBITRATING UNION DEMAND

Chicago local of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association has entered into arbitration with the Chicago Photo Engravers Union No. 5 on the demand of the union for shorter hours and a wage increase of 25 to 33⅓ per cent.

SPRINGSTEAD JOINS R. HOE

Specialist in Intaglio Processes Added to New York Sales Staff

J. F. Springstead, a specialist in intaglio processes, has joined R. Hoe & Co., as a salesman of intaglio presses and accessories and also to act as a consultant on intaglio work, it was announced this week.



J. F. SPRINGSTEAD

Mr. Springstead has had experience in calico, silk, and other textile printing and engraving as well as wide experience with rotogravure. He was employed by the New York Sun when that newspaper installed the first intaglio unit in America.

Mr. Springstead was sent to the plant of La Prensa, Buenos Aires, early in 1925 to superintend the erection of the first press of three Hoe intaglio presses and the complete intaglio equipment. He then trained the crew in the production of the rotogravure supplement including not only the operation of the press, but the preparation of the cylinders and the entire intaglio operation.

From Buenos Aires, Mr. Springstead went to Havana to install the Hoe intaglio press of Diario de La Marina. He will work out of the New York office of R. Hoe & Co.

ROCKFORD (ILL.) MORNING STAR TO BUILD NEW $300,000 PLANT

Proposed Rockford Star plant

THE Rockford (Ill.) Morning Star has announced plans for the erection of a new newspaper plant representing a total investment, including land, building and equipment of more than $300,000.

It will be located on the present site, at the southeast corner of Wyman and Mulberry streets, where the newspaper has been for the last 19 years. Actual construction will be started early in May.

The new building will have a frontage of 136 feet on Mulberry street and 66 feet on Wyman street. It is contemplated first to erect the east portion of the building, which contains all the mechanical equipment. After that portion is completed and occupied, the present building will be wrecked and the remaining portion will be completed.

The building is designed to carry seven additional office floors, and all provisions for boiler capacity, elevators and piping will be arranged so that future additions may be easily erected.

On the first floor will be a large public lobby and business office. This room will be large with high ceiling and two entrances from Wyman street. A large bulletin window between the two entrances, recessed about four feet from the building line, will be a feature. The recessed window will make the sidewalk about 14 feet wide at this point. Offices of the publisher, business manager and circulation manager will be on this floor.

The press room, mail and carriers room will be located in the rear of the first floor.

The delivery room and the paper storage room will be in the basement, while the heating plant will be in a sub-basement.

A new Hoe press will be installed on a special foundation so that vibrations will not be transmitted to the building.

The mezzanine floor will be occupied by the advertising department.

A large club room with service room will also be located on this floor. This room will be available for small meetings up to 200 persons, and will also be used by the public for receiving special wire and radio returns of any important events.

On the second floor will be located the office of the editor, and editorial, composing room and stereotype departments.

All departments on this floor will more than double the present space occupied. Machinery in the composing and stereotype departments will be new, designed for speed in production.

One of the comforts of the new building will be lockers and shower stalls for the men in the mechanical department.

RADIO FAILING AS NEWS COMPETITOR

Space on Air Now Almost Completely Commercialized, Says N. Y. Post Editorial—Borah-Butler Debate "Passed Up"

Belief that radio was becoming "less and less like a newspaper" and more of a private business was expressed this week in an editorial headed "Radio and the Press," published by the New York Evening Post.

The newspaper based its belief on a comparison between methods by which the radio and the press handled the Butler-Borah prohibition debate last Friday. Only two small New England stations broadcast the debate. Time on most of the New York stations had been sold out to advertisers. The editorial continued:

"Here lies the reason, we believe, that the radio cannot take the place of the newspaper. We have never believed that it could. We have been told in turn that the telegraph, telephone, movie and radio would supplant the press. None has. Each has its field just as the newspaper has.

"The New York newspapers, filling their field, thus gave a verbatim report of the debate. Cost of space, expense of coverage and transmission of news simply did not count. It was a public service, in the view of the press, it was something that readers wanted and should have; therefore, it must be given, no matter what the bill was. In the same way several of the great journals of America, North and South, printed in full the text of the Dawes plan, although cable tolls alone ran high.

"Nor do the newspapers, as did the radio, face with a demand for payment those members of their public who suggest the publication of matters of public interest. No news columns in New York could be bought for publishing an account of any event, however important. The radio, through the nature of its business, apparently has to take a different view.

"Nevertheless, we are disappointed over the radio's failure to carry so significant a national event as the Butler-Borah debate. Its 'space' is not entirely commercialized, as its transmission of Presidential addresses, big athletic events, banquets, etc., proves, but its main attention must evidently be elsewhere than on its possibilities for popular service in the way of news and information. Perhaps, in its struggle to make itself self-sustaining, the radio has forgotten the need of giving itself editors. At any rate, it is undeniably growing less and less like a newspaper. It is becoming more of a private business and growing further from the ideal of the common carrier or public utility."

URGES MORE CHURCH NEWS

Florida Publisher Says Press Anxious to Aid Religious Work

Major Lew B. Brown, publisher of the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Evening Independent, in an address before the Ministerial alliance last Sunday at the First Avenue M. E. church, stressed the value of news column space in the work of the church and urged the churches to take more and not less news space in promoting before the public the work of their respective organizations.

Churches of the nation stand for the best interests of the country, said the speaker, who declared his desire to aid them in every manner possible.

TO REVIVE TABLOID

Leslie H. Roberts, managing director and editor of the Montreal Daily World, tabloid, which went into liquidation and ceased publication a few days ago, states publication will resume under same name April 23.

Columbia plans to start a class in crime prevention, but the difficulty will be to get the people who really need it to enroll. —New York Evening Post.

NEWSPAPERS MUST NOT FOLLOW AS SHEEP

President Eyerly Tells Pennsylvania Group Time for Leadership Is at Hand—Filth Not News—Successful Meeting at Pottstown

Fifty newspaper men from various sections of District One, of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association, gathered in Pottstown last Saturday afternoon for the first regional meeting. The meeting was followed by a dinner with W. L. Binder, president and general manager of the Pottstown News, as host. An open forum was conducted by J. H. Zerbey, Jr., general manager of the Pottsville Morning Paper, and W. L. Sanborn, of Lansdale, representing the North Penn Reporter.

The forum discussion related to "shop problems," in which a score or more of the visitors participated. Among those who spoke were: David B. Davies, Frank R. Long, E. S. Moser, Albert W. Fell, John T. Wagner, Harry W. Feather, William L. Binder, William O. Heinly, Philip A. Livingston, John C. Dye, Robert H. Harris, W. E. Griffith, Nolan Kyler, Hawley Quier, Robert M. Zeller, J. H. Kirschner, Col. C. J. Smith, I. J. Hornstein, Harry B. Heywood, and others.

Director Fell said that he was proud of the state organization, which now has in its membership more than 50 per cent of the daily and weekly newspapers in the state. The publishers must be organized if they would maintain the highest standards in their business and in profession.

President Eyerly said that so much depends upon the point of view toward a newspaper especially as it relates to the filth that is found in tabloids and papers that are not tabloid. The newspaper should not be regarded as a mere article of merchandise. When we consider it as an instrument through which good can be done and wrongs can be righted we are awed by its responsibility.

Back of every newspaper that is a success is a personality and it may not always be in the editorial office. The object of the newspaper should be to point the community to higher things rather than the low. Filth is not news. The yardstick by which we should measure our news columns, as husbands and fathers, is that we should so handle news that our own children can absorb it without blasting their innocence and corrupting their minds. The real newspaper no longer follows like sheep follow a leader.

LATHAN GOES TO ASHEVILLE

Robert Lathan, for the past 17 years editor of the Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier, has resigned to become editor of the Asheville (N. C.) Citizen. He succeeds Donald Gillis, who died recently. Two years ago Mr. Lathan was awarded the Pulitzer prize for the best editorial appearing in any American newspaper in 1924.

PLANNING MORNING PAPER

The Hamilton (Ont.) Herald, at present publishing as an evening daily, has made application to the Canadian Press for a morning paper membership. The application will be considered at the meeting of the board of directors of the C. P. to be held in connection with the annual meeting on May 4.

DENVER RAISES I. A. A. FUND

DENVER, Colo., April 14.—Funds needed for entertainment program convention are assured at end of two day campaign among Denver business men by representatives local convention committee, it was announced tonight by Ralph Faxon, president, Denver Advertising Club. 1600 reservations with cash deposits have been received.

Art is long. Especially the art of collecting installment payments.—Vancouver Sun.

GERMAN AD MAN HERE

Dr. Kauffmann, Berlin Agent, Studying American Advertising Methods

That America can teach advertising to the world and at the same time learn something from Europe, is the opinion expressed by Dr. Kurt Kauffmann, advertising counsel of Berlin, who has just arrived in New York from Germany in order to study American advertising policies and methods. Dr. Kauffmann urges a more frequent exchange of ideas between American and European advertising men. He feels that while European business men can learn much from America about the psychology of advertising, Americans can, in turn, get many interesting suggestions from a study of the new commercial art methods now being developed in Europe.

DR. KURT KAUFFMANN

Dr. Kauffmann, who speaks a half-dozen languages, has handled the advertising of 42 companies in 67 countries and has also served as "Propaganda-Chef" of the International Leipzig Fairs. At present he is acting as general advertising counsel for a number of German advertisers.

"I have been so interested in the way you do business in America," said Dr. Kauffmann, "that after getting a Ph. D. degree from Heidelberg in Economics and travelling through many European countries, I undertook a course of study in English and received the final diploma of your Alexander Hamilton Institute. I do not think that many of my countrymen have covered the same ground but I found the study of American business methods fascinating and believe I really devoted more time and effort to getting that diploma than I did to secure the doctor's degree."

In America, Dr. Kauffmann is visiting the presidents and advertising managers of a number of national advertisers as well as newspapers and advertising agencies in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis and Washington.

SUCCESS STORY TOLD OF NEW YORK STORE

Use of Small Space Regularly in Dailies Built Up $6,000,000 Annual Business for Merchants Who Once Shunned Advertising

More than $3,000,000 worth of haberdashery is sold each year by the 12 Weber & Heilbroner New York stores, according to this concern's advertising success story written recently by W. G. Bryan for Newspaper Advertising, the publication of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives.

The store's clothing and hat departments bring them another $3,000,000 annually, Mr. Bryan stated. These stores are advertised in a persistent way, using small display advertisements regularly in the daily newspapers of New York.

As told by Mr. Bryan the story reads as follows:

"Two men in New York—gifted retailers with small capital—decided they would go into business and specialize in the sale of haberdashery.

"They opened one small store. Their stock consisted of a well-chosen line of shirts, neckwear, hosiery and other accessories of men's wear.

"They didn't advertise in the beginning. But they met with enough success to convince them they had selected a ripe field for profit, providing they could acquaint enough discriminating men and women with their existence and the standard of merchandise they carried.

"They used the mails—sending literature to a picked list of names—but their sales did not increase as fast as they wanted them to.

"Newspaper advertising was suggested to them. They shunned it—were afraid of it—didn't understand how they could afford it—until it was explained how they could reach hundreds of thousands at the price they were paying to reach thousands.

"Finally they were influenced to try it—in a very small inexpensive way.

"Their distrust and their doubts immediately vanished. They obtained encouraging results from the first series of advertisements inserted—small three and four-inch displays, one column wide.

"This concern has been advertising ever since. Today its sign is over t New York stores. There is scarc newspaper reader in Greater New who does not know of the exc men's shops, conducted under the name of Weber and Heilbroner.

"Weber and Heilbroner is a co which believes in small display a tisements, knowing that these are helped pave the way to its preser success.

"In the Weber & Heilbroner there are no idle clerks—no light burning uselessly—no space is wasted. They utilize every facility for, because they are advertised—n but persistently and consistently.

"And because they are advertise have won renown for selling w merchandise at prices which make vantageous for people to pat them."

REPORTERS FEATURED IN

Albany Bank Places Novel Co Local Newspapers

"When reporters were not wel was the headline of a novel advertis run in large space in Albany N newspaper last week by the New State National Bank.

The copy said:

"No one alive today can rem back to the time when newspape porters were unwelcome visitors. January 21, 1809, was the date of a s action of the legislature which gr permission to reporters to attend ses And on that day, the Gazette—o Albany's earliest papers—first pub the proceedings.

"Probably there was no reason fo exclusion of reporters prior to 180 cept a natural desire on the part o legislators to prevent misstater Shorthand was unknown and spe could not be reported accurately. of the business done was of inter only a few. And there were no graph lines to carry messages abroa

"Now, each day through the state, sands of people scan their papers real interest to read the news fro bany, the Capital. Reporters today necessity. They carry out real s in keeping public facts before their ple. They mould public opinion.

"Long before the birth of the badge or any of the great news gath associations, State Bank had been a..other type of service to Eastern York. During 124 years, we have up a record of which we are proud. perience has trained us thoroughly financial matters. Our new bankin fices will give us increased facilities which to make our experience hel more."

WILLIAM B. GREEN

William Burton Green, 77, former lisher and editor of papers in Ken and Maryland, died Tuesday in his in Washington, D. C., following a illness. Mr. Green was born in l ville, Md. He founded the Roc Advocate and later the Hart C Democrat, of Munfordville, Ky., re ing three years later to Rockville, he established the Rockville Indepe In 1881 he came to Washington wit late Representative Milton G. Urn clerk of the Committee on Accoun the 47th Congress. He remained i service of the Government 30 years

SPEAK AT NATION DINNE

Carter Field, of the New York ald Tribune; Frank R. Kent of the timore Sun, and William Hard, pendent correspondent, were the spe at a dinner given by The Nation subscribers at the Fifth Avenue Re rant in New York, on Tuesday eve April 12. Oswald Garrison Villard, tor of The Nation, presided. The ject of discussion was President Co as a source of news.

VETERAN STARTS COLUM

After serving as a reporter on Utica (N. Y.) Morning Press for than 50 years, William Schachtel is writing a daily column "Our Town."

VANCE McCORMICK SAILS FOR EUROPE

The photograph shows Vance McCormick, publisher of the Harrisburg (Pa.) Patriot and News, with his stepdaughter Miss Gertrude Olmstead. With Mrs. McCormick and their stepdaughter, Mr. McCormick is sailing for an extended tour abroad.

ROPEAN AGENCIES AR BEHIND U. S.

Young, A. A. A. President, ls America Leads, After Tour Abroad—Rates, Circulations Uncertain

opean advertising agencies do s in about the same way that the an agencies did 25 years ago," James W. Young, president of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, and vice-president of J. Walter Thompson Company, of New York, reports.

s W. Young

Mr. Young returned to this country April 1, following a three months' trip to England, Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Switz. France and Spain with a view ning new offices in most of these for the advertising firm he rep-eneral the European development ertising, in all countries, both in and quality, is very much behind America, declares Mr. Young. the continent there is practically h thing as a circulation statement gotten from any newspaper, either quality or distribution of circulaertising rates are almost entirely er of bargaining."

ll of the countries he visited he at probably Germany would offer t opportunity for American prodthe next few years.
e reason for this is that everyAmerican now has great prestige in ny. German newspapers and ma- are filled with articles on how are done in America. How the an girl dresses; how the Ameriachelor lives; how the American s man conducts his business, and ndanavian countries have the same f receptivity of American ideas, course you haven't anything like ge a population as you have in ny.

English present a great deal of receptitude to the invasion of an ideas and products, but the ndicate that they do actually take erican products when they offer a lue."
is connection Mr. Young declared his opinion there is a great deal anized effort to get the Englishbuy British goods, but that in his it is not affecting the sale of an products.
land, in spite of the present ecodifficulties, offers a very good for certain types of American he declared.
ost of these countries, Mr. Young he found newspapers the most advertising medium, not only but nationally.
spaper circulations of a million nd over are not uncommon abroad, That one London Sunday newsas a circulation of over three milpies all over the British isles.
Young returned to this country d the Federal Trade Commission in Chattanooga, Tenn.

D ADVERTISING DIRECTOR

Crafft has been named advertisector of the Denver Post and g Post. F. I. Carruthers remains rtising manager of the Evening nd J. F. Clement as advertising r of the Morning Post.

TARTS SPANISH EDITION

Brawley (Cal.) News has started ion of a Spanish edition.

MRS. PHOEBE A. HEARST MEMORIAL DEDICATED

The University of California at Berkeley has the most complete women's gymnasium of any college in the country in the newly dedicated Phoebe Apperson Hearst Memorial Gymnasium, named in honor of the mother of William Randolph Hearst. Picture shows scene snapped during presentation of the Gymnasium. Starting at extreme left, those in the picture are: Violet Marshall, director of physical education; Governor C. C. Young, William Randolph Hearst, the donor; president W. W. Campbell of the institution, and Miriam Collins, Associated Students', vice president.

AGREE TO DISCONTINUE MISLEADING ADS

Five Firms Cited by Federal Trade Commission Will Reform Practices—Identities Not Revealed To Public

Five cases involving false and misleading advertising or misbranding were disposed of this past week by the Federal Trade Commission.

In no case was the identity of the concern or individuals involved made public.

In case No. 1 respondents agreed to desist from use of the word, "Ivory," in advertising or describing otherwise products not manufactured from dentine obtained from tusks of mammals.

In case No. 2 respondents agreed to desist from advertising or branding as "wool robes" and "wool shawls" products not composed wholly of wool.

In case No. 3 respondents agreed to desist from advertising and branding as "Havana" cigars made from tobacco not grown in Cuba.

In case No. 4 respondent agreed to discontinue use of letterheads, price lists and other advertising and printed material, including the insertion of advertisements in newspapers, bearing the statements, "Direct from Factory to You," and "Direct from Factory to User," when "in truth and fact respondent did not own, control or operate a mill or factory for the manufacture of his products."

In case No. 5 respondent, a corporation, agreed to desist from advertising or using otherwise the term, "Bakelite," in describing umbrella parts containing no bakelite.

HONOR CHILIAN EDITORS

Luncheon for Agustin Edwards and Son Given by Karl Bickel

About 20 editors and prominent New York business men attended a luncheon given April 13 at the Lotos Club in New York by Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press Associations, to Agustin Edwards, Sr., and Agustin Edwards, Jr., owners of the Santiago El Mercurio and other Chilean newspapers. Mr. Bickel, introducing the honor guests, declared the luncheon was private and the speeches would not be reported.

In addition to the Santiago El Mercurio, newspapers which the Edwards publish include Valpariso El Mercurio, Valpariso Estralla, and Santiago Ultimas Noticias.

Attending the luncheon were Roy W. Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers; Bruce Bliven, editor of the New Republic; Arthur S. Draper, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune; Lewis Gannett, managing editor of the Nation; W. L. Chenery, editor of Colliers; J. W. T. Mason, correspondent of the London Daily Express; J. H. Furay, vice-president of the United Press; C. A. Richards, New York Merchants' Association; Clifford P. Hunt, Chemical National Bank; J. T. Cosby, National City Bank; Victor Schoepperle, National City Bank; W. P. Beazell, New York World; J. W. Brown, publisher of EDITOR & PUBLISHER; David E. Smiley, general manager, North American Newspaper Alliance; Andrew Ford, managing editor of the New York Telegram; Frederick Gregg, New York Sun; E. G. Knox, Sydney Morning Herald; and Gardner Cowles, Des Moines Register and Tribune-Capital.

NEW YORK-PARIS FLIGHTS

Preparations Being Made to Cover Airplane Advertures This Spring

Preparations are being made to cover the various New York-Paris non-stop airplane flights scheduled for this spring and early summer.

The Paris-New York Non-Stop Flight Corporation, associated with Hayden & Stone, is attempting to sell exclusive rights to the news of its venture. Lt. Com. Noel Davis is pilot. Kenneth H. Britol, vice-president and general manager of the corporation told EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week that exclusive New York rights had been sold to the New York Times with an agreement that the Times would sell it to other newspapers.

Hourly reports by radio from the airplane America on its flight will be received by the America Trans-Oceanic Company and relayed by telegraph to all newspapers, Grover A. Whalen, vice-president, of the company announced this week.

This flight will be made from Roosevelt Field with Commander Richard E. Byrd in charge starting probably May 15.

ADVERTISERS PLANNING NEWSPAPER PROGRAM

Verne Burnett to Preside Over Special Session Devoted to Newspaper Problems at Detroit Meeting of of A. N. A. May 9-11

A special session devoted to discussion of newspapers has been arranged for the semi-annual convention of the Association of National Advertisers, Arthur H. Ogle, secretary, announced this week. The session will be presided over by Verne Burnett of the General Motors Corporation and chairman of the A. N. A. newspaper committee. The convention is scheduled to be held in Detroit May 9, 10, 11.

Decision to hold the special newspaper session was reached this week, Mr. Ogle said, due to the apparently growing interest among A. N. A. members in newspaper problems. The idea of the session dates back to last January when the executive committee of the A. N. A. met with a representative group of eastern newspaper executives at the Yale Club in New York for a "get-to-gether luncheon."

"The A. N. A. developed a newspaper program at this meeting," Mr. Ogle said, "and it has been given favorable consideration by many newspaper publishers. We want to permit our entire membership an opportunity to express their views on newspapers at the Detroit convention."

There are four main "planks" in the A. N. A. newspaper program, Mr. Ogle said. The advertisers hope to co-operate with publishers in carrying it out. The "planks" are:

1.—A clean-up of newspaper typography.

2.—Retention of two per cent cash discount and reinstatement where it has been eliminated.

3.—Elimination of enforced newspaper combinations.

4.—More thorough circulation analysis.

Mr. Ogle revealed this week that he had made overtures on behalf of the A. N. A. to have a representative of his association address the annual April convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and that his request had been denied.

A meeting of the A. N. A. executive committee will be held in New York next week at the association's new offices in the Graybar Building.

TAYLOR BUYS STOCK

The option held by Harry E. Taylor upon the stock owned by the late Vallee Harold in the Times Publishing Company and the Portsmouth Publishing Company, of Portsmouth, O., and the Tribune Publishing Company, of Ironton, was exercised, Mr. Taylor thereby becoming sole owner of the Portsmouth papers, and equal owner with Mrs. C. H. Moore, Miss Felonise Moore and John B. Corns, of the Ironton Evening and Sunday Tribune.

PRINTS ON KRAFT PAPER

On the occasion of the opening of the new $2,500,000 St. Helens Pulp & Paper Company, the St. Helens (Ore.) Sentinel printed an issue of light brown wrapping paper, the product of the new mill. Kraft paper is at present the sole output of the new plant.

OREGON PAPER SUSPENDS

The Jacksonville (Ore.) Post, county seat newspaper for the past 20 years, has discontinued publication, leaving Jacksonville without a newspaper for the first time in 50 years. W. T. Bray was publisher. Recently the county seat was moved to Medford.

TWO DAILIES JOIN A. N. P. A.

The Tampa (Fla.) Tribune and the Battle Creek (Mich.) Moon-Journal have been elected to membership in the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

WITNESSES DENY CONSPIRACY CHARGES AT FEDERAL TRADE HEARING

Three Newspaper and Two Agency Men Testify at Chattanooga—S. N. P. A. Members Bound to Nothing But Paying Dues, Newmyer Declares

Prominent newspaper and agency men and U. S. officials photographed in Chattanooga this week during Federal Trade Commission hearing. Front row: James W. Young, of New York, president of the American Association of Advertising Agents; L. B. Palmer, manager of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association; J. W. Addison, examiner; Harry S. Adler, general manager, of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times. Back row: Wiley L. Morgan, secretary-treasurer, S. N. P. A.; James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary, American Association of Advertising Agencies; John R. Dowlan, assistant to counsel for Federal Trade Commission; Eugene W. Burr, attorney in charge of case for Federal Trade Commission, both of New York; Cranston Williams, of Chattanooga, manager, S. N. P. A.; James F. Finlay, Chattanooga, counsel for S. N. P. A.; and Walter C. Johnson, representing S. N. P. A. Board of directors, former president and secretary of association

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 13.—Hearings of complaints of the Federal Trade Commission against the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association and other newspaper agencies opened at 10 o'clock Monday morning in the federal building, Chattanooga. Examiner John W. Addison is presiding over the hearings.

The association is charged with conspiracy to control advertising in connection with the American Association of Advertising Agents, American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the American Press Association and the Six-Point league.

Five witnesses were examined during the first three days. They were: H. C. Adler, general manager of the Chattanooga Times; Victor H. Hanson, publisher of the Birmingham News and Montgomery Advertiser; A. G. Newmyer, associate publisher of the New Orleans Item-Tribune, and former president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association; Thomas H. Basham, of the Basham Agency, Louisville, Ky., and B. E. Wyatt, of the Johnson-Dallas Agency, Atlanta.

It was at first thought that the Chattanooga hearing would be adjourned to Chicago, but it has been announced there will be no other sessions. The Chattanooga hearing was scheduled to continue through the week of April 10. It was further expected that Walter C. Johnson, former president of the S. N. P. A. and secretary-treasurer of the association when most of the alleged illegal accounts were contracted, would be put on the stand to testify before the hearing had been concluded. His testimony, for this reason, will probably require longer than any other witness.

In brief, the trade commission charges that the above organizations are in a conspiracy to control advertising.

Mr. Adler was the first witness called. He denied that any contract had ever existed forcing his paper to give or not to give commissions to direct advertisers. He further testified that he had been general manager for 27 years of the Chattanooga Times and that existing practices in handling national advertising had grown up before his time.

Mr. Hanson was the second witness. As a chairman of S. N. P. A. Agency relations committee he testified that actions of the committee were only recommendations to the membership, and members did as they pleased about recognizing an agency. He said he didn't know what would happen if present standard of handling advertising was destroyed or impaired. Like Mr. Adler, he denied he was coerced by any one concerning commissions.

Cranston Williams, manager of the S. N. P. A., was called on to furnish documents and papers. He will, no doubt, testify later. A. G. Newmyer, who was chairman of the S. N. P. A. agency relations committee which made report on agency system, which has figured conspicuously in evidence by government, was next witness.

Mr. Newmyer testified that his committee sought information from all sources and that the report was based on opinions at time. Further that it was only a recommendation as the organization had no way to bind its members to do anything but pay their dues.

Mr. Basham testified that the agency he represented bought space in newspapers without regard to whether they were members of the S. N. P. A. or A. N. P. A.. He showed that less than 10 agencies in the south were members of the A. A. A. A. but that there were twice that many agencies handling national advertising in the south, many recognized by the A. N. P. A. regardless of whether they were members of the A. A. A. A.

B. E. Wyatt, of the Johnson-Dallas agency, testified along the same lines pointing out that the agency performed a social service for newspapers and advertisers.

All witnesses are being placed on the stand by the government in effort to establish its case. It is not the purpose of the S. N. P. A. and other organizations on defense side to present their case until after the government's case has been completed. Those attending Chattanooga hearing are:

John W. Addison, of Washington, representing federal trade commission, who presided; L. B. Palmer, of New York, manager of the A. N. P. A.; James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary, and J. W. Young, president of the American Association of Advertising Agencies; Clark McKercher, attorney representing the A. A. A. A. and his assistant, R. W. Joyce, of New York; Eugene W. Burr, attorney in charge of the case for the Federal Trade Commission, assisted by J. W. Dowlan; James F. Finlay of Chattanooga, representing S. N. P. A.: W. L. Morgan, secretary-treasurer of S. N. P. A. and witnesses mentioned elsewhere in the story.

BARRETT HITS CRIME FINDINGS

Ridicules New York Committee's Criticism of Newspapers

Findings of New York State Crime Commission sub-committee on causes of crime published in Editor & Publisher last week were ridiculed this week in an address delivered in New York by James Barrett, city editor of the New York World.

Four of the five charges made against the press by the committee were described as debatable and academic by Mr. Barrett, while one was set down by the editor as "ridiculous."

The one so classed was the committee's charge that news published in the papers aided criminals to escape and hampered the police.

"In the committee's report a story published in a New York newspaper stating that 'Bum' Rogers was in Atlantic City was reproduced as an illustration of how newspapers aided criminals," Mr. Barrett said.

"Two weeks before the police finally arrested Rogers in the Bronx, the New York newspapers knew where he was, but none violated the confidence imp on them by the police.

"In all my experience as a reporte editor, I have never known of a where the police have given out infc tion with the request that it shoul be printed that the request was no served with strictest confidence.

"One charge made by the commi was certainly delicious and deserv be framed. I refer to the charge the publication of pictures of detec should be avoided by the newspa Any police reporter knows that is a order to fill. Whoever knew a dete or policeman who wasn't anxious t into the picture? It is a difficult j keep from 'glorifying the cops.'"

MacDONALD DAILY'S GUES

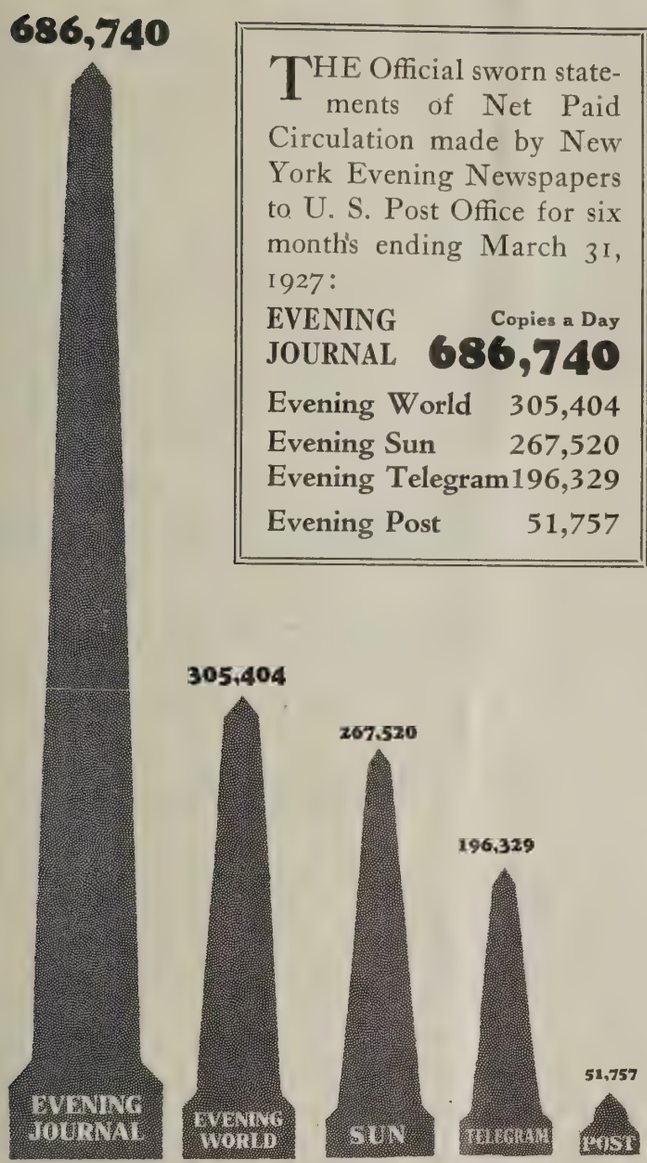
J. Ramsay MacDonald, former L Prime Minister of Great Britain, an daughter, Ishbel, will be the guest honor at the thirtieth anniversary bration of the New York Jewish Forward at the Century Theatre, 24. The labor leader will address guests on "Labor Throughout World."

COURT CONFIRMS VERDICT

The United States Circuit Cour Appeals at Boston April 8, handed a decision confirming a $15,000 ve which was won in Federal court than a year ago by Rev. John E. Lill formerly of Worcester, Mass., but of Brooklyn, N. Y., against the E pain, a Finnish newspaper publishe Worcester.

$1,505,427,662.
Changed Hands Last Yea
In Jacksonville

That's the total of bank clearings in Jacksonville, Florida, in 1926—nearly twice as much as in 1924 and three times as much as in 1922.



This is a dependable index to the size of the Jacksonville market and the rapidity of its expansion.

Jacksonville is a great market in itself and in addition, it is the distribution center for Florida. Evidence of this is the fact that more than 100 manufacturers opened branches or distributing offices in this city during the past year.

The Jacksonville trade territory offers rare opportunities to the national advertiser, with the extra advantage that he can secure complete and economical coverage in this territory by using one medium—

The Florida Times-Unio
JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

OVERWHELMING HOME CIRCULATION

THE Official sworn statements of Net Paid Circulation made by New York Evening Newspapers to U. S. Post Office for six months ending March 31, 1927:

	Copies a Day
EVENING JOURNAL	686,740
Evening World	305,404
Evening Sun	267,520
Evening Telegram	196,329
Evening Post	51,757

—of the Most Powerful Sales Force in the New York Market

EVERY day during the past six months 686,740 people bought the New York Evening Journal—at 3c a copy daily, 5c Saturdays—and carried it home where it is read by over 2,000,000 men, women and children.

For 28 consecutive years the New York Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America.

The New York Evening Journal is purchased by nealy half of all the people who buy any New York evening newspaper—and has the largest quantity of quality circulation going into the homes of Metropolitan New York.

Every day the home circulation of the New York Evening Journal is:

381,336 more than Evening World.
419,220 more than Evening Sun.
490,411 more than Telegram.
634,983 more than Evening Post.
113,816 more than Evening World and Evening Sun combined!

NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

America's largest evening newspaper circulation . . . and at 3c a copy daily, 5c Saturday

913 Hearst Building
Chicago, Ill.

2 Columbus Circle
New York City

General Motors Building
Detroit, Mich.

EVIDENCE COMPLETED IN DAILY'S SUIT

Final Arguments to Be Heard May 3 in Chicago Tribune's Action to Recover $1,732,000 of City Funds

Taking of evidence has been completed in the Chicago Tribune's suit to recover $1,732,000 for the taxpayers from real estate experts and city officials under the Thompson administration in 1920 and 1921. Final arguments will begin on May 3.

The trial is believed to have set a record for length in Cook county. Hearings were begun on March 2, 1926, and except for one five-months' recess, progressed steadily. Seventy-five witnesses appeared, and some of them testified for weeks at a time. It was estimated that they and the lawyers spoke 2,400,000 words to fill 11,600 pages of testimony.

Two of the defendants in the suit, Ernest H. Lyons and Arthur S. Merigold, made restitution towards the close of the Tribune's presentation of evidence. Lyons returned all he was financially able to restore, giving up cash, real estate and claims with a total face value of $432,-053. Merigold relinquished certificates of indebtedness and other claims with a face value of $215,304.

The fees in question were paid out of the city treasury to the experts for their services in connection with street appraisal work on the five projects involved in Chicago's City Beautiful ordinances. It is the contention of The Tribune that just and fair charges for the work would have been $50 a day for each, or a maximum of $50,000 for the three experts for a year's work. Instead, they were given more than $1,732,000. Testimony was introduced at the hearing to show that a percentage of the experts' fees was turned over to the Thompson political organization for use in the campaign then being waged.

B. & O. TACTICS CRITICIZED

Publishers File Brief Attacking Methods Before Commerce Commission

(By telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

Washington, D. C., April 14.—Criticism of the tactics employed by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad in the newsprint case, involving several Washington daily papers, was voiced in a reply brief filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission today by attorneys and traffic specialists for the newspapers, in response to a brief by the road attacking a tentative finding of a commission examiner.

"The law contemplates, we believe," the reply brief said, "that the Commission shall lend its vast powers and its services to facilitate the ends of justice on issues raised before it, and that being true, it should not countenance tactics such as have been presented by defendant carriers in these cases to increase the difficulties and expense of complainants who have been trying to secure justice over a long period of years.

The examiner's recommendation to the Commission a few days ago said the several complainants should be awarded reparation on the sum of alleged overcharge on transportation of news print paper from mill-producing points to Washington.

The Washington Publishers Association, the Evening Star Newspaper Company, and the Labor Co-operative Educational and Publishing Society are named as complainants.

SUES FOR $50,000 SALARY

Longcope Avers Maine Resort Wrongly Discharged Him

Lucerne in Maine Community Association, a corporation designed to purchase gradually all the newspapers in the State of Maine, is named as defendant in a suit brought by T. R. Longcope of Wellesley, Mass., who alleges that he was engaged as assistant to the president and offered a salary of $250 a week to start and increases from time to time until a salary was reached which would amount to about $50,000. Terms of the contract were broken, Longcope declares, and he was discharged on May 1, 1926 without reason. He is seeking $50,000 damages from the corporation.

The plaintiff declares he was employed at the time by the Hearst publications, that he was approached by the defendant through its president, H. M. Saddlemire, who outlined to him the intention of the corporation to develop the entire State of Maine on a large scale and purchase the newspapers.

MERGER IN MAUCH CHUNK

The Mauch Chunk (Pa.) News ceased publication March 31 and its circulation and good will were taken over by the Times. The April 1 issue of the new combined evening newspaper was known as the Mauch Chunk Times-News. Lindenstein-Kimball, Inc., has been appointed national advertising representatives of the Times-News.

A. P. DIRECTORS MEETING

Final Sessions Before Annual Meet Scheduled for April 19 in New York

Directors of the Associated Press on April 19 will hold their final meeting before the annual convention of members which begins at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, April 25.

Consideration of the bond vote and protest rights questions has evidently crowded the expected discussion of the New York World's editorial criticism of the "Bolshevist hegemony" story off the calendar. Herbert Bayard Swope, executive editor of the World, is prepared to meet the directors on this matter, but on April 14 had not been asked to appear before them next week. Unofficially, Editor & Publisher learned that the discussion was not included on the budget prepared for consideration of the A. P. directorate.

It is reported that the Johnstown (Pa.) Democrat and the Lexington (Ky.) Herald are discussing the same story with the directors.

The World will stand behind its editorials criticising the Associated Press, maintaining that they were based on accurate information, Editor & Publisher was told this week. The Associated Press has never questioned the World's right to find fault with the organization, but has questioned the accuracy of the newspaper's information in this particular instance.

The case dates back to last Nov. 19, when the Associated Press sent out a story from Washington reporting the government's concern over Bolshevism Mexico, and subsequently the charge v circulated that the A. P. was used by State Department to spread propagar inimical to a friendly nation. An inves gation made by a reporter of the Louis Post Dispatch alleged to show t three press associations had been as to carry this story by Assistant Secreta of State Olds, and that the A. P. alc had complied. The charge was den by the State Department and by Associated Press.

TO HONOR ED HOWE

New York Writers to Give Dinner Ce brating His 60 Years in Journalism

Ed Howe, sage of Potato Hill, a former editor of the Atcheson (Kar Globe, will be guest of honor at a din to be given April 29, at the Hotel Bi more, New York, celebrating his years in journalism. Irving S. Co will be toasmaster.

Members of the committee in char of the dinner are Ray Long, Bruce Ba ton, Robert H. Davis, John Gold Percy Hammond, Roy W. Howard, Ri Lardner, Burns Mantle, Grantland Ri and Herbert Bayard Swope.

Mr. Howe's daughter, Mrs. Mat Howe Farnham, has won a $10,000 fi novel award made by Dodd, Mead & C and the Pictorial Review.

CELEBRATES 50th YEAR

The Portland (Ore.) Telegram April 16 published a special edition ce brating its fiftieth year of publication.

Where better Classified mediums are being built — the best publicity is helping build them

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building, Philadelphia

BRIDGEPORT
Industrial Capital of
CONNECTICUT

Leads in number and diversity of products

With 443 establishments manufacturing more than 5,000 commodities; 50,000 wage earners, steady employment at wages that enable these workers to build homes and enjoy many of the luxuries. An ideal market for advertised products, easily and thoroughly covered. The

POST TELEGRAM

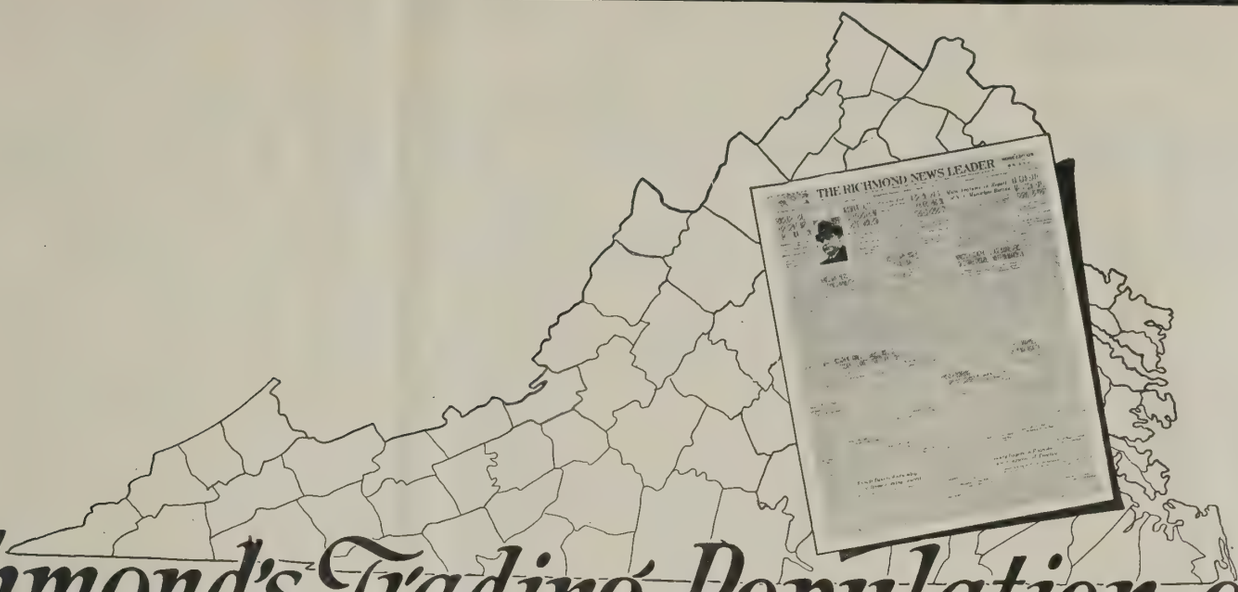
Daily circulation 44,446 dominates the trading area

Reader confidence is unsurpassed. Enjoys largest advertising patronage.

National Representatives
GILMAN, NICOLL & RUTHMAN
New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco

Said One Prominent Publisher to Another—

In a recent letter to the publisher of the London Daily Mail, Adolph S. Ochs, owner and publisher of the New York Times, said:



"The value of advertising, when properly safeguarded and selected with discrimination, cannot be over-emphasized for the newspaper reader. The advertising columns of a newspaper do not consist simply of sold space. To the greater bulk of readers they represent a vital source of news. They contain information which enters into the daily lives of the people and affects their interests frequently to an even greater extent than the news does. Many advertisements your daily publishes are read by far more people than any single item of news is, but to secure this reading public the advertiser must make his announcements so interesting and attractive that they can compete successfully with news."

The attractiveness of which Mr. Ochs speaks is largely secured for the New York Times, the London Daily Mail, and a big percentage of other leading dailies, by their use of the Ludlow system for setting ads and heads. With this system a large variety of styles and sizes of typefaces are always instantly available in any quantity and are cast fresh and new in slugs as needed for every ad. Display from the smallest sizes up to full-width 72 point, and even 84 point streamer lines, are cast on the Ludlow in bright, new faces and quickly delivered on the galley at the front of the machine ready for use.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago
Boston: 470 Atlantic Avenue — Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
New York: 63 Park Row — San Francisco: 5 Third Street

LUDLOW QUALITY SLUG COMPOSITION

Richmond's Trading Population of 550,000 People is Better Reached by The Richmond News Leader than by Any Other Medium.

If you want to reach the 550,000 Virginians who live in Richmond and its trading area—you can use no better medium than The Richmond News Leader.

Busy people, whether they live in a city or in the country—do not have time to read a newspaper until the day's work is done. Then, they want that newspaper to tell them what they can buy tomorrow.

That is what The News Leader does. In addition to its tremendous circulation in Richmond, each day huge bundles of The News Leader are sent by train and bus into the trading area of Richmond. This paper is read leisurely and thoroughly—and the reader has time to plan a buying trip to Richmond for the next day.

The merchants of Richmond realize the tremendous influence of advertisements in The News Leader, as evidenced by the fact that in 1926 The News Leader gained 581,826 lines of advertising, while the other Richmond paper lost.

The Richmond News Leader has the largest circulation of any paper in Virginia. It carries more advertising than any other Virginia paper. And it reaches the 550,000 people who come to Richmond to buy—and influences the spending of their money.

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Graybar Bldg. New York City | Waterman Bldg., Boston, Mass. | Atlantic Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa. | Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.

J. B. KEOUGH, ATLANTA, GA.

The Richmond NEWS LEADER

"On News Leader Square"

Covers Richmond Like a Roof

FIRST LOS ANGELES DAILY STARTED IN 1851

Four-Page Paper Printed First Spanish Department in a Coast Paper—Lewis and McElroy Its Founders

The first California newspaper with a department printed in Spanish, and the first effort at journalism in Los Angeles, Cal., was the Los Angeles Star, also known in Spanish as La Estrella de Los Angeles, a sheet of four pages of five columns, issued weekly and founded May 17, 1851, according to a series of historical features by Ira Berthelot Wood in the Los Angeles Times.

The Star was founded by John A. Lewis and John McElroy, who edited one-half of the paper in English and obtained the services of Manuel Clement Rojo, a Spanish journalist, to care for the Spanish section.

An antique Hoe press, which came around the Horn in 1849 in the hold of a windjammer, ground out the 250 copies of the paper which comprised the entire circulation of the paper and in those days considered a goodly list. Subscriptions were $10 per year and advertising space available at $2 a square inch and a $1 an inch thereafter.

Mechanically the paper was a success, But financially the road was rough.

Henry Hamilton, an able journalist, vitriolic with his pen, acquired the paper and ran it successfully until his pro-Confederate views during the Civil War met Union government opposition and the publication suppressed on Oct. 1, 1864.

Hamilton was back at the helm, however, on May 16, 1868, and on June 1, 1870, the paper blossomed forth as a daily, but after several changes in management it failed to shine after 1879.

The first real Los Angeles daily was the News, issued Jan. 1, 1869, by A. J. King and R. H. Offutt. A troublous career forced it to suspension in 1873.

CHARGES WISCONSIN PRESS

A charge that advertising agencies are buying the editorial policy of state newspapers with advertising contracts in order to kill a bill providing for a ten per cent tax on cigarettes was made in the Wisconsin Legislature this week. The charge is ridiculed by the newspapers who declare they are opposed to the principle of sales taxation.

BRISK FIGHT OVER CANADIAN POSTAL

Progressive Member Objects to Cut in Pound Rate, Claiming $500,000 Loss in Revenue—Postmaster Favors Bill

"I submit that this country is not in such an extraordinary flourishing financial position that we can afford to throw away a revenue of $500,000 a year in order to benefit great newspapers like the Montreal Star, that seem to be doing well enough now," declared E. J. Garland, an Alberta Progressive, speaking in the House to the bill of Hon. Peter J. Veniot, Postmaster-General, to reduce the postal rate on certain newspapers from 1½ cents per pound to 1 cent.

After vigorously denying that he had been subjected to any influence on the part of one of two big newspapers in favor of this bill, and promising the newspaper organizations opposing the bill that the department would consider any further representations they might make in favor of establishing a zone system, the Postmaster-General insisted upon the passage of the bill this session.

Hon. R. B. Bennett urged that the bill be brought into effect by proclamation, so that the opposing interests could make their representations, while C. H. Cahan (Montreal) suggested a tax on newspapers and periodicals bringing advertising into the country from the United States. The bill was given third reading.

AD TIPS

N. W. Ayer & Son, 308 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. Placing orders with newspapers in various sections for Chase & Sanborn, Seal Brand Coffee, Boston, Mass.

Barrows - Richardson - Alley, 420 Lexington avenue, New York. Placing orders with some newspapers in Pennsylvania for Wm. Underwood Company, Deviled Ham, Boston. Again placing orders with newspapers in various sections for the Glenwood Range Company, stoves and ranges, Taunton, Mass.

Biow Company, Inc., 9 East 40th street, New York. Placing orders with newspapers in various sections for Partola, Inc., New York.

Blackman Company, 120 West 42nd street, New York. Again placing orders with newspapers for the Vacuum Oil Company, Mobile oil, New York.

Brooke, Smith & French, Inc., S. E. Corner John R. and Eliot streets, Detroit. Reported to have secured account of Sparks Withington Company, "Spartan" horn, Jackson, Michigan.

Cahill Advertising Company, Pacific Building, San Francisco. Again placing orders with some Pacific Coast newspapers for the Western Meat Company, Calinut, San Francisco.

Corman Company, 49 West 45th street, New York. Has secured account of the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau, New York.

Crowell-Williams & Co., 612 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Placing orders with newspapers in various sections for the Chicago Flexible Shaft Company, sunbeam electric irons, Chicago.

Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., 130 West 42nd street, New York. Placing Chancellor Cigar account for the American Cigar Company, New York.

George L. Dyer Company, 285 Madison avenue, New York. Placing orders with a few newspapers for E. & J. Burke, Ltd., "C. & C. Ginger Ale," Long Island City, N. Y.

W. B. Finney Advertising Company, Inc., Kirkwood Building, Kansas City, Mo. Placing account for the Columbian Steel Tank Company, Kansas City, Mo.

Albert Frank & Co., 14 Stone street, New York. Placing account for the Cornish Wire Company, New York, manufacturers of antenna kits, battery cables, echo tape, flexibus and aerial wire.

Granville S. Standish Advertising Agency, Union Trust Building, Providence, R. I. Placing account for the Lyons Mfg. Company, New Haven, Connecticut, manufacturers Ejector cigarette case.

Johnston-Ayres Company, 574 Market street, San Francisco. Placing orders with Pa Coast newspapers for Sussman, Wormse Company, coffee and canned goods, Francisco.

Johnson, Read & Co., 202 South State st Chicago. Placing orders with newspaper various sections for the Jenny Wren C pany, Chicago.

H. W. Kastor & Son Advertising Comp Lylton Building, Chicago. Placing orders some Western newspapers for Gage Bros Company, millinery, Chicago.

H. E. Lesan Agency, 420 Lexington ave New York. Now handling account for E Durkee & Company, Durkee salad dress Elmhurst, N. Y.

Lewis H. Mertz & Sons, Wrigley Build Chicago. Placing orders with some Wes newspapers for the Sunlite Dessert Comp Waukesha, Wisconsin.

Redfield Advertising Agency, 34 West street, New York. Placing orders with n papers in various sections for the Dian Electric Specialties Company, radio batt Newark, N. J.

Reincke-Ellis Company, 215 North Michi avenue, Chicago. Now handling accoun the Red Sun Products Company, Double D Malt Syrup, Chicago.

J. Walter Thompson Company, 244 Mad avenue, New York. Has secured accoun Minot Hooper & Company, New York, are now making up lists to advertise "Dw Anchor" sheets and pillow cases.

United Service Advertising, Inc., 972 B street, Newark, N. J. Placing account for Mu-Rad Laboratories, Asbury Park, N. manufacturers of radio receiving sets.

Western Advertising Agency, 214—5th st Racine, Wis. Placing orders with newspa in various sections for the S. C. Johnso Company, floor wax, Racine, Wis.

Williams & Saylor, Inc., 450—4th avenue, York. Placing orders with newspapers in lected sections for the Otis Mfg. Company, underwear, Ware, Mass.

NEW OUT-OF-TOWN OFFICE

The Providence (R. I.) Journal Evening Bulletin have established a Bristol County bureau and office in Papino building, Main street, Wari R. I.

ENTERS DAILY FIELD

The Wewoka (Okla.) Capital-Dem crat, owned and edited by C. O. Hedr has entered the daily field. It will served by the United Press.

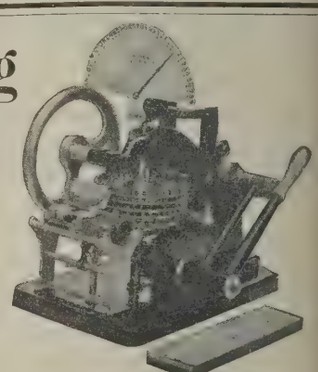
These Daily Newspapers Use the Pollard-Alling System

Action Catholique—Quebec
Atlanta Constitution (also tri-weekly)
Baltimore Sun
Brooklyn Daily Eagle, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Burlington Free Press, Burlington, Vt.
Chicago American
Chicago Daily Drovers Journal
Cleveland Press, Cleveland, Ohio
Commercial-Appeal, Memphis, Tenn. (also weekly)
Daily Metal Trade, Cleveland, Ohio
Democrat & Chronicle & Rochester Herald, Rochester, N. Y.
Forward (Jewish Daily), New York
Herald-Times-Press, Middletown, N. Y.
Herald & Examiner, Chicago
Journal & Courier, Lafayette, Ind.
Kansas City Daily Drovers Telegram
Kansas City Journal Post (also weekly)
Kansas City Star (also weekly)
Kansas City Times
Lansing (Mich.) State Journal
L'Evenment, Quebec, Canada
LaPatrie, Montreal, Canada
Mail & Empire, Toronto, Can.
Minneapolis Daily Star, Minneapolis
Montreal Star, Montreal (also weekly)
New Orleans Times-Picayune
New York World, New York City
Oklahoma City Oklahoman
Oklahoma City Times
Omaha Bee & Daily News, Omaha
Omaha Daily Journal-Stockman
Philadelphia Inquirer
Register and Tribune-Capital, Des Moines, Iowa
Rutland Daily Herald, Rutland, Vt.
St. Louis Globe-Democrat
St. Paul Dispatch
St. Paul Daily News (also Cloverleaf Weeklies)
St. Paul Pioneer Press
Topeka Daily Capital (also Capper's Weekly)
Wichita Eagle, Kansas

Power driven Reliefograph (embossing machine) capacity 250 four line addressing plates per hour

Pollard-Alling Addressing Equipment Soon Pays For Itself

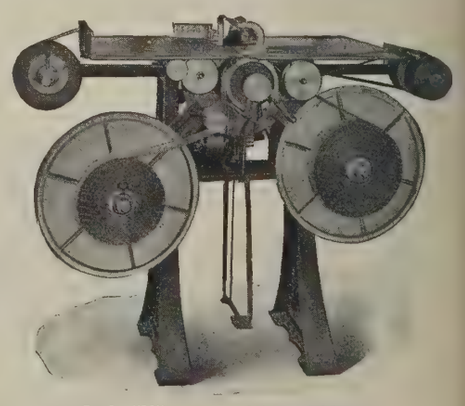
IN addressing, speed means economy. Many users of Pollard-Alling equipment pay for the cost of installation in the course of a year out of the saving it effects. Every operation—including embossing of plates, making corrections and additions in the lists and the actual addressing—is done at a much faster rate of speed than is possible with any other system. No matter what method of addressing you are now using it will pay you to investigate the advantages—the speed and economy—of Pollard-Alling equipment.



We manufacture an Automatic Mailing Machine for imprinting names and addresses on the margin of newspapers at a guaranteed speed of 12,000 net per hour.

Ask for demonstration during the A. N. P. A. Convention at our exhibit in the White and Gold Room, No. 110, Waldorf-Astoria Hotel

Pollard-Alling Mfg. Co.



Addressing, Listing and Mailing Machines

220-230 W. 19th Street, New York City

Style "C" Reliefograph

Operated by hand lever, not motor driven—capacity 50 embossed plates per hour. Absolutely noiseless. This machine may be equipped with large type for newsdealers' lists.

Style "H"—motor driven Addresser

Equipped with motor and counter. Prints addresses for mailer strip on paper in rolls, office proof for reference, newspapers and publications, directly on margin, cut wrappers, envelopes, bills, statements or anything to be addressed. Capacity 10,000 addresses on mailer strip or proof per hour; 3,000 addresses on anything hand fed per hour.

The Truth In Memphis

Editorial from Memphis Press-Scimitar of April 12, 1927

Two Audits Will Refute Commercial-Appeal Lie

Expert Accountants Called in to Verify Press-Scimitar Circulation Statement Viciously Attacked by Competitors—Their Findings Will Write the Verdict on Who Should Pay the Penalty—Suit for Damages to Follow.

THE Memphis Press-Scimitar said yesterday that it did not propose to let go unchallenged the charge made Sunday by its competitor, the Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

That the public may clearly understand the issue raised by the Commercial-Appeal, we desire today first to state the case in detail, and then to state what we intend to do about it.

Under an act of Congress of August 24, 1912, daily newspapers are required to publish semi-annually—in April and October of each year—statements of their circulation.

In compliance with that act, the Press-Scimitar on April 1 last, published as its daily average paid circulation for the four and one-half months preceding, the figures—93,562.

That publication was sworn to by J. A. Keefe, business manager of the Press-Scimitar, as per requirement of the Federal law (A charge of false statement in such a matter therefore enters the realm of perjury).

The four and one-half month period covered by the statement constituted the time elapsing since the consolidation of the Memphis Press and the Memphis News-Scimitar.

In connection with its legal publication, the Press-Scimitar took no little pride in informing its public that the statement showed it to be the largest of any afternoon paper in the south.

On Sunday, April 10, the Commercial-Appeal published the following under the heading—"A Plain Falsehood!"

"The recent press runs and circulation records show that the Press-Scimitar has far less than 93,562 paid subscribers. Probably not more than 73,000. A mere difference of more than 20,000 between fiction and fact—between falsehood and truth. So palpably untrue have been the recent circulation claims of the Press-Scimitar, that the Commercial-Appeal and Memphis Evening-Appeal have been inclined to ignore them, believing they would fall of their own weight of manifest untruth. But falsehood oft repeated and long unchallenged may mislead advertisers into contracts and subscribers into commitments.

"An untruthful paper should be boycotted by subscribers and advertisers.

"There is no more justification for lying about circulation than for a merchant to lie about the quality of his merchandise."

Now—it will be readily seen that an issue of fact has been clearly raised.

Either the Press-Scimitar lied or it didn't.

If it did, it should be branded as the greatest newspaper cheat in the history of the publishing business, should be thoroughly discredited by the public, should be entitled to no further confidence from its readers and no further support from its advertisers.

If it did not—then the Commercial-Appeal, having put forth such a charge, should be made to pay in proportion to the enormity of the charge.

A somewhat shorter but decidedly more forceful word than falsehood is the Press-Scimitar's answer to the Commercial-Appeal.

The Commercial-Appeal lied.

It lied viciously.

And, as you will see from further developments, it lied stupidly.

Its lie will find it out.

Frankly, the Press-Scimitar is puzzled as to the reason for the Commercial-Appeal's action.

Just why a newspaper of excellent past reputation should suddenly do what the Commercial-Appeal did is amazing to the Publishers of the Press-Scimitar.

But, however that may be, the Commercial-Appeal's action has been taken and here is what the Press-Scimitar is going to do about it:

First: A complete audit of the figure in question has been called for from the central office at Chicago of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

The Audit Bureau of Circulations, of which the Commercial-Appeal, by the way, as well as the Press-Scimitar, is a member, is the official circulation auditing institution to which nearly every reputable newspaper in the United States belongs.

In addition, that the public may be doubly convinced, an audit has been ordered from one of the nation's most noted firms of certified public accountants, Haskins & Sells.

And as a still further reinforcement of this procedure, the Press-Scimitar has arranged for results of these audits to be referred to a committee of highly representative Memphis' citizens.

Upon completion of these audits, the findings will be published. Following those publications, the audits will be utilized as the basis for a civil suit in damages by the Press-Scimitar against the Commercial-Appeal.

In conclusion, the Press-Scimitar desires to restate two sentences from that remarkable document published by the Commercial-Appeal. Those two sentences are:

"There is no more justification for lying about circulation than for a merchant to lie about the quality of his merchandise."

"An untruthful paper should be boycotted by subscribers and advertisers."

Those two statements constitute a challenge that the Press-Scimitar is glad to accept. With them it can agree.

And upon the final verdict of who did the lying, the Press-Scimitar will rest with the public the decision as to who should be boycotted.

Memphis Press-Scimitar

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper

Member of the A. B. C. Member of the United Press

Represented by Allied Newspapers, Inc., 250 Park Avenue, New York

Chicago Detroit San Francisco Los Angeles Seattle

VACUUM OIL DOUBLES NEWSPAPER SPACE

(Continued from page 3)

tion will serve as a basis of comparison.

"This pile of news print over eight miles in height would reach into the heavens twice the altitude of Mt. McKinley, the highest mountain peak in the North American continent, higher even than any airplane has ever flown.

"The area of these Mobiloil newspaper advertisements represents over 200,000,000 square feet of paper, in excess of seven square miles or almost 4,500 acres which would make quite a good sized farm.

"If placed end to end the copies of the newspapers which are to be used would cover a distance of over 400,000,000 feet, more than 76,000 miles.

"This tremendous length of printed matter would encircle the earth three times.

"It would reach more than one-third of the distance to the moon.

"Football crowds, baseball world series crowds, the largest congregations of people ever assembled in this country, dwindle into insignificance when compared with the hosts of weekly readers of Mobiloil newspaper advertising.

"The total number who will buy the papers in the 29 weeks of the campaign defies the powers of our imagination."

Contracts are closed and newspapers on the list are:

MAINE: Bangor News; Portland Express; Portland Press-Herald; Lewiston Journal; Lewiston Sun.

VERMONT: Burlington Free Press; Rutland Herald.

NEW HAMPSHIRE: Manchester Union; Manchester Leader.

MASSACHUSETTS: Boston Globe (morning); Boston Globe (evening); Boston Post; New Bedford Mercury; New Bedford Standard; Springfield Union & Republican; Worcester Telegram; Worcester Gazette; Pittsfield Berkshire Eagle.

RHODE ISLAND: Providence Bulletin.

CONNECTICUT: Hartford Times; New Haven Register; Bridgeport Post; Bridgeport Telegram; Waterbury Republican; Waterbury American.

NEW YORK: New York Morning World, New York Times, New York Herald Tribune; Albany Knickerbocker Press; Albany News; Buffalo News; Binghamton Press & Leader; Elmira Advertiser; Elmira Star Gazette; Rochester Times & Union; Syracuse Post-Standard; Utica Observer-Dispatch; Schenectady Gazette.

PENNSYLVANIA: Philadelphia Bulletin; Pittsburgh Press; Erie Times; Harrisburg News; Harrisburg Patriot; Johnstown Tribune; Scranton Times; Wilkes-Barre Record; Altoona Mirror; Allentown Call; Uniontown Herald; Uniontown Genius.

ILLINOIS: Chicago Herald-Examiner; Chicago Tribune; Peoria Star; Springfield State Register; Quincy Herald Whig; Decatur Review; Rockford Register Gazette.

INDIANA: Ft. Wayne News & Sentinel; Evansville Courier; Indianapolis Star; Terre Haute Star; South Bend Tribune; Muncie Star.

WISCONSIN: Milwaukee Journal; La Crosse Tribune Leader Press; Madison State Journal; Oshkosh Northwestern; Green Bay Press Gazette; Superior Telegram.

MICHIGAN: Detroit News; Grand Rapids Press; Flint Journal; Lansing State Journal; Saginaw News Courier.

MINNESOTA: Minneapolis Journal; St. Paul Pioneer Press St. Paul Dispatch; Duluth Herald.

IOWA: Des Moines Register; Des Moines Tribune-Capital; Sioux City Tribune; Davenport Times; Cedar Rapids Gazette; Dubuque Telegraph Herald; Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

SOUTH DAKOTA: Aberdeen American; Aberdeen News; Sioux Falls Argus Leader.

NORTH DAKOTA: Grand Forks Herald (morning); Grand Forks Herald (evening) Fargo Forum (morning); Fargo Forum (evening).

MISSOURI: Kansas City Star; Kansas City Times; St. Louis Globe Democrat; Springfield Leader; St. Joseph News Press; Joplin Globe; Joplin News Herald.

OKLAHOMA: Oklahoma City Oklahoman; Oklahoma City Times; Tulsa World; Muskogee Phoenix; Muskogee Times Democrat.

KANSAS: Wichita Eagle; Topeka Capital.

TEXAS: Dallas News; Fort Worth Star Telegram; Fort Worth Record Telegram Houston Chronicle; Houston Post Dispatch; Beaumont Enterprise; Beaumont Journal; San Antonio Express; Waco News Tribune; Amarillo Globe; Amarillo News.

DELAWARE: Wilmington Journal.

TO CELEBRATE 200th YEAR

Annapolis (Md.) Maryland Gazette Will Span Two Centuries August 4

The Annapolis (Md.) Maryland Gazette is planning to celebrate the 200th anniversary of its birth.

The weekly publication, which has its chief circulation in Anne Arundel county, of which Annapolis is the county seat as well as the state capital of Maryland, was founded in 1727 by William Parks.

Its editors claim that it is the oldest of all the newspapers of the United States which are still published. Other newspapers were started earlier, but they have suspended publication and been forgotten long ago.

Part of the celebration of the anniversary, which will occur on Aug. 4 of this year, will be the publication in magazine form, of a special edition entitled "Two Hundred Years with the Maryland Gazette." Files of the early issues of the paper in various libraries are being examined for data. A file, practically complete and running to within one year of the original issue is in the possession of the Maryland Historical Society.

HENRY ALLEN DEFENDS FLOATING UNIVERSITY

Urgent Business Caused Him to Leave Student Ship, Not Pranks of Students, He Declares, in New York

Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, and publisher of Wichita (Kan.) Beacon, in an interview with EDITOR & PUBLISHER in New York this week defended the "floating university" as "a most practical way to study journalism." Mr. Allen was dean of journalism on the round-the-world student cruise of the S. S. Ryndam, which he left at Hamburg, because of urgent business calling him back to Wichita. He denied he had left the ship because of the conduct of some of the student body.

HENRY J. ALLEN

"There were 60 students on board studying journalism," Mr. Allen declared. "If it were possible, I think the best training all our American editors could ever receive is a similar trip around the world while they are young. We Americans are so prone to provincialism.

"There is probably no other country in the world like the United States where the young people need to have world affairs dramatized for them to gain their interest."

Shipboard made an ideal journalism class room, according to Mr. Allen. He said a daily paper was published except when the students were "too busy or too tired" to get it out.

"There were gorgeous assignments to be given out," Mr. Allen said. "The first port we touched, for instance, was Panama. I assigned one of the students to interview the President of Panama. Several others were assigned to see if they could find any mosquitos near the canal."

While admitting that the co-educational idea did not work out with entire success upon the high seas, Mr. Allen said that he doubted if any college in the United States with 450 students could show a higher standard of conduct.

"All that happened," he said, "was that when we were in Japan twelve of the boy students made a spectacle of themselves in the Imperial Hotel by drinking too much saki. We sailed with 400 boys and 50 young women. All told, were sent back from Japan and from other ports. I think that the s which have been sent out were very colored."

Mr. Allen ridiculed the idea that had been any excessive amoun romance, and said he did not kno any engagements as a result of the The reason coeducational cruises not advisable, he said, was becau misunderstandings due to the fact foreign nations were not accustom liberal American ideas.

He said that as far as he was cerned the trip around the world demonstrated clearly to him that the of a traveling university was sound

"The American youth derives benefit from learning that the wo round," Mr. Allen said, "and h tablishes contacts and friendships in lands which develop an interna viewpoint. Finally, he applies hims work much better on shipboard, be there is no chance to cut classes, a cannot visit college inns."

DAILY OPENS NEW PLAN

Thousands Inspect Salt Lake Deseret News Building April

More than 10,000 people visite new plant of the Salt Lake City D News on Richards street which formally opened April 5. All em who could be spared for the pu served as guides, with General Ma B. F. Grant, Assistant General Ma James M. Kirkham and Managing Harold Goff in charge.

Every person entering the plant d the day was presented with a souve the shape of a piece of dry mat and a folder describing the new buildin containing a few words about the g of the paper and its organization. was furnished by an orchestra. ernor Dern attended the ceremonie

The Greenville New
BE SOLD ON SUNDAY ONLY IN
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No.

THE BUFFALO SUNDAY TIMES
TONESE MENACING SHAN
aine Supports Smith in Cas
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

This Publisher Compared

The impression seems to prevail in the minds of some publishers that because Certified Dry Mats are used exclusively by such papers as

The Buffalo Times, Cleveland Plain Dealer, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, San Francisco Examiner, New York Times, New York World, etc., only the larger papers use our product.

At the Johnstown Democrat they have used other makes of mats and have made extensive trials of every mat offered them.

As a result of their COMPARISONS they adopted Certifieds exclusively. They pride themselves upon producing one of the best printed papers published in America. In this opinion they are corroborated by many publishers.

Over 300 other publishers having dailies of 3,000 and up circulation use Certified Dry Mats exclusively. We invite your comparison, too.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue New York, N. Y.
for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility—use Certifieds.
MADE IN U. S. A.

Our Policy
One Size all mats 20"x24"
One Quality only the best we can make
One Price 15¢ on standing order

More than 195,000 Daily

Los Angeles Examiner

More than 425,000 Sunday

Daily APRIL 16, 1927 10¢ Sunday

ECENT SURVEY SHOWS L. A. 3rd GREATEST RADIO MART

KAMINER REACHES GREATEST BOND-BUYING GROUP IN CITY

XAMINER LEADS IN MAKING SALES

he Los Angeles Examiner, carrying a -advertising responsibility in the fic Southwest virtually as great as of all other Los Angeles papers comd, has lifted Los Angeles to third in radio ownership in America, gh the city is fifth in population!

here is probably no other newsr in the country—at least, as far ve have been able to discover—has shouldered a sales burden like independently of other local media so effectively. To have carried bulk of radio advertising in a tery and to have maintained that tery in the logical position its popun and buying power would entitle
, would be quite a job in itself, as space-buyer would admit. But to ally lift the market by its boots from a fifth place in population third place in buying, stamps the paper that did half the job as one extraordinary resultfulness. Plus it definitely points to that newsr's customers and readers as spend-of considerable means.

l of which are interesting highlights, g many others, of a survey of the situation in Los Angeles, just comd by The Examiner's Merchandising ice Department.

100% check of radio outlets in Los eles, both wholesale and retail, ght out facts and figures that every manufacturer ought to have in his and which are available to those request the survey on their letters.

e report shows 34 radio set manurers in the Los Angeles market, and a list of the leading wholesale and outlets, the retail price ranges, of outlets and extent of radio busi-of each (117 out of 251 outlets carry lete lines of sets, accessories and ers' parts), distribution of makes gh wholesale outlets, type of fran-granted, and other informative is.

e of the factors that helps maintain en curve on the radio sales chart in Angeles is seen in the list of Los les broadcasting stations. There are them, providing, at all times, even idsummer a variety of radio enter-ent that obviates the necessity of fans "fishing" for distance when it t be difficult to get it.

SCHOOLS COMPLETED IN YEAR AND HALF

o hundred and twenty-three school ngs completed since July 1, 1925; hers under construction at present plans prepared for 20 more—these s, according to W. E. Record, busi-manager of the Board of Education, te that Los Angeles is keeping her l facilities adequate for her increasopulation.

e 223 buildings completed since July 25, represent an expenditure of $13,- 20, according to the report given out day by Mr. Record. Nearly $8,- 00 will be spent on those now build-nd those to be built.

Broadway of the West!

EXAMINER LEADS IN FARM SALES

More farm lands in Southern California are sold through the Los Angeles Examiner than through any other newspaper in the territory, judging from the preference for this paper that is shown by farm land advertisers.

From January 1, 1927, to March 1, 1927, the figures show that The Examiner carried 70,196 lines of this kind of copy, as against the next nearest paper's 47,726 lines.

The high value of farm lands in this richest agricultural community in America makes this record especially significant. It is an indication, too of the way The Examiner is reaching newcomers to this market . . . those without buying prejudice, who arrive with sufficient funds to be largely self-sustaining.

$12,000,000 IN 300 NEW PLANT PAYROLLS

More than 300 new manufacturing establishments, employing nearly 6,000 people, with an annual payroll of $12,000,000 came into the metropolitan area of Los Angeles, said an announcement a few days ago of the Industrial Department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

The completion of the Sears-Roebuck distribution plant and retail store will see 6,000 more people employed, on a payroll reaching $10,000,000 a year. An additional 2,000 will go to work, for the Ford Company at its new manufacturing and assembly plant to be built on a 40-acre site already acquired at the Harbor. The investment will total $3,000,000.

L. A. WEALTH CALLS FOR MASS APPEAL

With 60% of its population influx either wholly or partially self-sustaining, resulting in a constantly increasing per capita wealth as population mounts, Los Angeles today offers one of the world's greatest security markets, according to figures recently released by one of the city's most conservative statistical agencies.

So widespread among the masses is the almost unbelievable per capita wealth and family income of the greatest city West of Chicago, that contrary to most other communities, security advertising in Los Angeles has become a matter of reaching the most people. Indicative of that trend were the 1926 figures that showed The Los Angeles Examiner with a greater Financial Advertising gain for the year than ALL the other Los Angeles papers combined!

There is enough liquid wealth—money in saving banks—in Los Angeles, to supply every man, woman and child with a thousand dollars! The taxable wealth of the county is second only to that of New York County, and exceeds, by a comfortable margin, that of Cook County, Illinois, of which Chicago is the county seat!

A significant wealth-factor in connection with the ability of Los Angeles to buy sound stock and bond issues are recent reports on nation-wide bank-clearings, in which this city is shown to be registering greater gains week after week than any other in the Nation.

Advertise, therefore, your financial offerings in Los Angeles. You can reach the greatest buying power and investing-group of any medium West of Chicago through the morning and Sunday Examiner, for which its readers pay a higher price than for any other paper in the city.

CITY SAVINGS OF L. A. ARE DOUBLE NATION'S

Saving Bank deposits for the City of Los Angeles are more than twice as great per capita as the average for the United States.

The figures are: United States, $211; Los Angeles $442.

The national figure is from a report made by the savings division of the American Bankers' Association. The Los Angeles figure is from the total of savings deposits, namely $552,829,648 of the Los Angeles banks, as furnished in a clearing house report, divided by a million and a quarter population.

In the past six years the wealth in Los Angeles has increased more than two times. This is a rate sharply in advance of the rate of population growth.

The Los Angeles Examiner has the largest home-delivered circulation of any paper in its territory.

PROXY COMMITTEE ANSWERS NOYES' LETTER

(Continued from page 7)

any sense of the word. It was initiated before Mr. Hearst became the factor he is today in the publishing field.

"Mr. Noyes himself knows, for he was present, that at the reorganization meeting of the Associated Press in University Hall in New York in 1900 I opposed as I am opposing today the three grades of membership, namely, (a) those with bonds and the right of protest; (b) those without bonds and the right of protest; and (c) those with neither bonds nor the right of protest and to whom is given only the privilege of receiving and paying for the report. Mr. Noyes himself will recall that among those who supported me was the late W. R. Nelson of the Kansas City Star, always a stalwart supporter of the A. P.

"Instead of a Hearst movement, as Mr. Noyes deceptively tells you, this is a movement to eliminate classes from the A. P., to make it mutual and democratic, to give every member the right, whether or not he chooses to exercise it, to a voice in the election of those who manage its affairs, to prohibit discrimination in privileges—all which would tend to increase interest in and loyalty to the organization.

"Mr. Noyes charges that Mr. Hearst has fought the A. P. in the past. Granted he has. If now he has seen the light, why should his offer to surrender his own large bond holding rights—for Mr. Hearst casts 445 bond votes, by far the largest of any member—to aid in democratizing the Associated Press be refused by those who are trying to bring this about for the best interests of themselves and the Associated Press?

"Mr. Noyes' uncalled for eleventh hour letter is an effort to check the spread of the movement to dispossess the A. P. of its feudal character. It is an improper use of his office for him to attempt to dictate to the membership how they shall give their proxies, most improper to attempt to have those who have already given us proxies revoke them.

"It offers nothing tangible in return. It merely makes a promise to lay before the annual meeting the bond question INCLUDING THE VERY SERIOUS LEGAL QUESTIONS INVOLVED. The words I capitalize are significant. They mean that Mr. Noyes and his Board will be found resolutely opposing mutualization, fighting for retention of class control of the present oligarchy on the ground that the law stands in the way of retirement of the bonds.

"We have pointed out how this objection may be legally overcome—by giving to the entire membership each forty additional votes.

"It will be noted that Mr. Noyes makes no promise at all in respect of protest rights. That is no less vital than the bond question to put every member on an equal footing provided he has held his membership for five years. Without the right of protest a member is at the mercy of anyone who may care to enter his field. With it he is armed with a strong weapon with which to protect himself.

"Why should the A. P. make flesh of one and fowl of the other? Why should the favored few enjoy protest rights and the mass be denied them?

"I renew my appeal to you to send your proxy to our committee, if you feel that the A. P. should be mutualized. If you have done so, I hope Mr. Noyes' insidious and unjust letter will not influence you to revoke it.

"Those who are making this fight for democracy have the interests of the Associated Press as deeply at heart as Mr. Noyes. Every member who entrusts his proxy to our committee may do so in confidence that it will be used for his betterment, not his injury."

In a statement to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, Mr. Vandenberg said:

"My letter to Mr. Noyes emphatically denied that my interest in this movement bears any relationship to Mr. Hearst as Mr. Noyes's letter sought to infer. My letter declares on the contrary that my interest grows out of a long-standing belief in the wisdom of certain changes to democratize A. P. elections and also to provide greater membership protection for all. Beyond that statement I do not care to release my letter for publication at present time. No useful purpose could be served in furthering a spirit of controversy when there is every reason to hope for a meeting of minds on the whole subject matter.

"This is particularly true since Mr. Neylan's letter amply covers the merits of the controversy from the viewpoint I support. It would be a tragic mistake in my judgment for both pending problems not to be considered on their merits devoid of all prejudice. I believe the master key to emphasize A. P. loyalties is to put the reality of greater A. P. power in the hands of the whole membership and also to put the maximum protection around all A. P. memberships. My sole incentive is the progressive welfare of this greatest of all the world's journalistic institutions.

"I know that Mr. Neylan and Col. Ewing have no other incentive. Certainly this same sort of purpose always has inspired President Noyes in his long and splendid service, and likewise his associates. Such common objectives should be able to find common ground. I am interested in no attempt to dictate preconceived reforms. I stand solely for an order from the membership creating a representative committee from the membership to canvass the entire A. P. for its views on both moot matters and report their findings in the form of deliberate recommendations at the subsequent convention.

"It is time this long-standing problem were met instead of dodged. Surely it is not treason for us to propose that the membership shall become thus articulate. Surely those who have a common fidelity to the great A. P. can agree on such a thesis, if we all respect each other's motives."

ENWRIGHT BEGINS SENTENCE

Boston and Lynn Publisher Sent to Jail For Criminal Libel

Frederick W. Enwright, publisher of the Lynn (Mass.) Telegram-News and former publisher of the now bankrupt Boston Telegram, later the Telegraph, Monday began his eight months' sentence in Charles street jail, Boston, imposed Feb. 7 for criminally libeling former Mayor James M. Curley of Boston. He also paid a $500 fine.

Earlier in the day before going to jail, Enwright, accompanied by Eugene B. Fraser, of the governor's council, called on Governor Alvan T. Fuller and petitioned for clemency. The governor, after hearing Enwright, referred the matter to the state board of parole for investigation and report.

Last week Mrs. Enwright and daughter Eleanore appealed to Governor Fuller.

TODD ESTATE $250,000

The will of Fred S. Todd, former general manager of the Rochester Democrat & Chronicle, presented for probate April 12, provided for the disposal of an estate approximating $250,000.

The Houston Press
PROTECT U S REFII
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

COAST PRUNE GROWERS PLANNING CAMPAIGN

$150,000 Fund to Be Handled by State Agency—Growers, Shippers and Commission Men Co-operating

Another co-operative newspaper advertising campaign is to come out of the Pacific Northwest. The Blue Mountain Prune growers of Washington, Oregon and Idaho are planning the expenditure of approximately $150,000 in advertising in the chief marketing centers of the eastern states and the Middle West. Their problem is the speedy movement into consumption of approximately 4,000 cars (6,000,000 boxes) of fresh prunes that come to ripeness quite early in the season. The Strang and Prosser Advertising Agency of Seattle has just been selected to handle the campaign.

This is the third important co-operative campaign to originate in the Pacific Northwest district in the last year, the others being for canned salmon and for lumber.

The Prune Growers' organization brings in the interesting combination of growers, shippers (commission men) and the railroads to accomplish the betterment of the industry. The railroads are taking an active part in promoting the organization through the American Railway Association, the Pacific Northwest regional director of which is H. J. Arnett.

The advertising fund is made up of a 2 cent per box contribution from the growers, plus 1 cent from the shippers, while the shippers contribute still more by reducing the actual handling charges by 2 cents per box, half of which goes for the advertising and other half as a direct saving to the growers. Other concessions are likely to be made to the growers that may entirely offset their advertising expenditures, it was stated.

COMPOSING ROOM CHIEFS UNITE

A call has been issued for the first annual conference of Daily Newspaper Composing Room Executives of Iowa to be held at Waterloo, Ia., June 13-14. To date representatives of 24 newspapers have signified their intention of being present. The organizer of the conference is Leon A. Link of the Waterloo (Ia.) Courier. Eight manufacturers of composing room machinery and supplies will have exhibits at the conference.

TO ENTER DAILY FIELD

Thomas H. Kendall, publisher of the Redding (Cal.) Independent, has announced that he will change from a weekly to a daily with the issue of May 1.

GRIDIRON ELECTS GABLEMAN

Washington Correspondent of Cincinnati Enquirer Succeeds Perry S. Heath

After a lapse of nearly 25 years a Cincinnati newspaper is represented again in the membership of the Gridiron Club of Washington newspaper correspondents. Edward W. Gableman, Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer, was elected to active membership succeeding the late Perry S. Heath, veteran Ohio newspaperman and Assistant Postmaster General of the United States.

Soon after Mr. Gableman's election he was presented as the baby member of the Club to the only surviving charter member of the organization, Col. O. P. Stealey, who for many years was Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal. Mr. Gableman has represented the Enquirer in Washington for eight years having seen service previously in its state bureau in Columbus and then its local staff in Cincinnati.

Gableman's predecessor in the Gridiron Club from Cincinnati was the late Sylvanus E. Johnson for many years a correspondent and editorial writer for the Enquirer in Washington.

SECOND DISTRICT TO MEET

Tentative Program Prepared for Schenectady Convention, June 22-24

The second district, International Advertising Association, will hold its annual convention in Schenectady, N. Y., June 22-24, inclusive. Among the speakers will be A. F. Arnold, director of development National Broadcasting Company; Philip L. Thomson, president of the Audit Bureau of Circulations; K. S. McHugh, general commercial manager of the New York Telephone Company, and C. K. Woodbridge, president, International Advertising Association. The general chairman in charge of the Schenectady meet is Edwin G. Conde, club member and postmaster of Schenectady.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS
LL'S CANDIDATE LOSES TO
REN SLAIN; POLICE HUNT FATI
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

An Advertisement directed to

Some Newspaper Publisher Who Has Earned a Rest

The effort of building your property has taken years of day and night work . . . and you now want to carry a lighter load . . . shifting many of the cares and tasks to a younger man who has the ability and is fitted by experience for such a position.

Through successive positions as advertising salesman, advertising manager, national advertising manager, business manager and general manager of newspapers, I have built such a background. The training has been varied, embracing metropolitan newspapers, medium sized dailies and one still smaller. Each position has been a step forward that added worthwhile experiences.

The cycle is complete . . . I am ready to put this knowledge . . . plus the initiative that has carried me through each of these positions . . . to work for some publisher.

I am thirty-four, married, a college graduate and expecting only what such services would be worth to your paper.

Box C-503, care EDITOR & PUBLISHER

The Second $100,000 Day In Birmingham

LAST year the Pizitz Department Store attempted a one-day, store-wide sale, setting its goal at $100,000. Although this high mark was accomplished by a narrow margin, the sale was a success. Many merchants in other Southern cities, however, branded it as a merchandising freak — a record that would not bear repeating.

On Sunday, March 13th, The News carried a ten-page section (20 pages in tabloid) in an attempt to duplicate the Pizitz' now famous $100,000 Day. On Monday the Pizitz store was crowded to capacity from seven-thirty in the morning throughout the day, with heavy buying until nine that night when the doors were closed. The total receipts from this one-day sale were $128,000—28% over the goal.

In the Birmingham trading territory, where this very remarkable merchandising triumph was made possible, your sales problems may be accomplished with comparable success through consistent advertising in The News. With its Net Paid circulation of more than 100,000 Sunday and 82,000 Daily, you are assured complete coverage at one cost—the lowest cost per unit of results.

Covered by

Net Paid Circulation Now Greater Than 100,000 Sunday

The Birmingham News

Net Paid Circulation Now Greater Than 82,000 Daily

The South's Greatest Newspaper

NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES: KELLY-SMITH CO., New York, Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia. J. C. HARRIS, JR., Atlanta

ANNOU

As the result of a long period of scientific r tion is enabled to announce the completion construction of the newspaper printing press to be epoch making. These discoveries h which are now ready for the market.

1. A new and ultra-modern newspaper printing and folding unit of extraordinary producing capacity. This is in a wholly new class in speed of production, in certainty of operation, in unbreakableness, in freedom from the excessive wear and tear now incident to the production of heavy editions, and in ease and economy of operation. Furthermore, it is an all-steel machine. It will be found to excel not in a few points only but in all of the attributes which make for high speed, fine printing, accurate folding, and the owner's unalloyed satisfaction.

A single illustration will serve to show the thoroughness with which in this machine we have dealt with the practical problems of the pressroom, its anti-friaring indestructible cylinder bearings. These cylinder bearings prevent friaring at all speeds, and need never be taken up or replaced.

2. An automatic device. This aut roll to an expirin or stopping the p
full running time
time. It not onl proves printing th
uniform speed of waste of printed p
every paper chang
3. A two-page in ables the publishe
his pages by twos
as well as small
enables a sextuple
38, 42, 46, 50 a
octuple press to p
58, 62, 66 and 68
their usual produc

'EMENT

the Wood Newspaper Machinery Corporamber of fundamental improvements in the auxiliaries, which improvements it believes en incorporated in the following devices, per replenishing

stes a full paper
it slowing down us converts the e into producing output and imaintenance of a ut it saves the ow results from nism which en-

the number of ours, upon large is for example
duce 26, 30, 34,
papers, and an
, 42, 46, 50, 54,
in addition to

4. The Bee-Line Press has now been equipped with the two-page inserting device mentioned above. This enables the publisher using it to increase his pages by twos upon a press which possesses the very great advantage of using semi-cylindrical stereotype plates. The semi-cylindrical printing plate is used by all metropolitan newspapers because it is the best printer known, and can be cast, finished and cooled automatically and at high speed. Such plates are made by Autoplate machines and require no hand tooling of any description.

Publishers are cordially invited to see these devices in operation at our plant in Plainfield, New Jersey.

OSCAR C. ROESEN,
Manager of Sales,
WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORPORATION,
501 Fifth Avenue, New York City

EDITORIAL

As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God.—1. Peter, IV; 10.

AN ADDED ELEMENT

EVERY reader of Editor & Publisher must have found solid benefit from S. P. Weston's answers to the question, "What is the formula for newspaper success?" appearing in these columns last week. There is no keener expert in the field and his study was based on the practical experience of a score of successful newspapers selected from 30 major fields. It is valuable to know that the proportions of reading matter and advertising in those newspapers are 42 per cent to 58 per cent and that the average ratios in columns are: Local news, 37.22; wire news, 14.09; editorial, 2.97; features, 22.82, and business and financial, 13.99. Mr. Weston found the following column proportions in advertising prevailing: Local, 106.32; national, 20.84, and financial, 5.74.

We believe it is an absolute rule that advertising follows the flag of editorial interest. The companion rule is that the public takes a newspaper at the estimate that its management sets up.

There is an element in successful newspaper making that should be added to the formula. It is nothing that can be charted, nor brought out in statistics. It is an invisible factor and difficult to define. It has been called the "soul" of the newspaper by some idealists. Perhaps that is as good a definition as another. But it flows from the mind and heart of a man, or a group of men, and is a physical manifestation of their spirit, taking form on the printed page Real success without it is impossible. Call it soul or genius or horse-sense, it must be there!

As the warm spring air awakens slumbering nature, let the sunshine of hope and courage into your life for a season of greater service to your fellows and personal happiness.

WHAT MOTHERS THINK

RECENTLY the present writer had the privilege of addressing a New York woman's club —mothers and home-makers of the type that sustains the best elements of modern life. Their names on any newspaper's subscription lists would be worth $100 each and cheap at the price. The talk was about censorship of the stage and press, followed by a question period.

These women seemed to be willing to accept the proposition that censorship is a dangerous expedient, is un-American and to be avoided. In regard to the press they did not appear to believe that the important truths of life, however ugly, should be withheld from the reading public. They accepted as a fact the axiom that ignorance is the great unpreparedness. They wanted to know the truth and impart it to their children. They did not want to bring up innocent lambs to be easy prey for the wolves.

But, with flashing eyes, they did protest against newspapers that viciously exploit crime and vice. They looked with grave suspicion on newspapers which treat criminals and libertines in "familiar terms," such as calling them by their given names or by nick-names. They revolted at news treatment which countenances depravity, such as light stories about "love nests" and easy reference to the girl who walked home. What they appeared to object to was flippant, intimate glossing of low and ugly life.

If we are able to judge, these women are fairly typical of the sentiment of the motherhood of America. If so, it is an outraged, indignant sentiment. It cannot be trifled with. News fakers and sensation exploiters are not, we can assure them, getting their frauds and snares by these women. They are "on."

The incident went far to convince us that the American woman does not ask unreasonable suppression of news. What she does ask is that news be treated for the good the telling can do, not the harm. Incidentally, space buyers who judge a newspaper by all standards save the place it holds in the esteem of American motherhood, might have received from our afternoon's experience a new slant on values.

American life insurance companies are writing more than 16 billion dollars of new business this year, largely by antiquated sales methods. When the full power of advertising is used by insurance the volume will increase and the sales cost decrease.

STOOD HIS GROUND

THIS is the story, in brief, of a newspaper publisher who not only preaches the gospel of community interest but practices self-sacrificing loyalty to his neighbors and makes his newspaper do the work that good newspapers are intended to do. Editor & Publisher, in behalf of American journalism, is proud to salute W. A. Rupp, publisher of the Aberdeen (Wash.) World, a man of courage and honor.

Aberdeen is the center of a community of some 60,000 citizens, one-third of whom are industrial workers, largely engaged in lumbering. It is a typical western center, usually prosperous, happy, thriving. Mr. Rupp is the editor and publisher of the single daily and because of his independent and progressive policies is held in high esteem. His paper is a success.

Recently a local bank, the third largest financial institution in the state, was learned to be in a bad condition. Rumors that the bank was shaky rapidly spread among the people. Mr. Rupp, who had $40,000 on deposit in the bank, the cash being a fund he had saved to build a new office for the World, went to work to help save the bank. When others were withdrawing deposits Mr. Rupp announced that, win or lose, he would not "run out on his community." When, on Saturday, the state examiners found that the bank could not open its doors on Monday the editor stood pat, working all day on Sunday preparing a special edition which was distributed to every door-step in Aberdeen and surrounding towns, simply detailing the facts concerning the failed bank and in a strong personal editorial assuring the depositors of the other smaller local banks that their condition was entirely safe and that runs upon them would only create a disaster. The story also contained the fact that a truck with money, in sufficient amount to satisfy the depositors of all the smaller banks, was on its way from Seattle.

Consequently there was no run on the smaller banks, but each showed an increase in deposits on Monday. There was no panic or trouble at the defunct bank, as had been feared. The city took Mr. Rupp's word and remained calm. On Tuesday Mr. Rupp announced he had borrowed money and proposed to go ahead with his building plans on schedule.

A newspaper man of the Northwest, writing these details to Editor & Publisher this week said: "I think journalism should know of the loyalty and pluck of this man. Our state bank examiner, after going into the failure, said to me, 'Mr. Rupp is certainly a game man,' and Governor Hartley, who dislikes Mr. Rupp, having dismissed him as a regent of the University of Washington, at a private dinner said to friends, 'While I am not for Mr. Rupp politically, or he for me, I'll take my hat off to him for what he has done at Aberdeen.' The community understands and appreciates the action of an editor who, with inside information, declined to save his money at the possible expense of the little depositors, loggers, longshoremen and the workers of Gray's Harbor."

Newspapers that are built on the solid foundation of personal character, such as that revealed by this incident, live to forget such temporary embarrassments. Editor & Publisher predicts that the Aberdeen World will flourish in its community when the wreckers of the local bank have vanished in the mists of time.

The easy, compromising, yielding way is the long, hard way in the publication field.

READING NOTICES

"WE find that we get more results from publicity in the news columns than we do from paid space," said the representative of a large industry to this writer recently. He added "That is the reason we are so hot to get it. We would gladly pay the rate if we could buy the editorial space from the newspapers themselves. It seems queer that newspaper men take a lofty, ethical view about selling their editorial space, but are perfectly willing to sell their columns to some outside publicity man to boost. How do you explain that?"

It is a perfect paradox and cannot be explained. Editorial space that is sold by a press agent is an imposition upon newspaper readers who look to the editorial columns for disinterested, unpurchasable news and opinion. The editor who permits misuse of his columns by press agents, while maintaining a high attitude in regard to what his reporters and editors shall publish, is blind on one side.

If reading notices draw better for some industries than does display space, why do not newspapers revert to the old paid "reader," plainly labelled as advertising, after the fashion of 25 years ago and still good and strong in the county weekly press. This line might very well be encouraged and as it is excellent service for some industries it should bring high rates.

"When everything else fails, just tell your prospect how he can use your goods, and then name your price," says William Feather.

A GOOD RULE

THE new rule of the Rocky Mountain News and Denver Evening News, announced last week that regular members of the sports staffs shall not act as officials, referees, judges, scorers or in any way participate in sporting events for pay. Coupled with the promulgation of this rule is the announcement that these newspapers will pay sports writers adequately, making it unnecessary for them to serve interests which might be in conflict with their newspapers.

This is fair and sensible and it is the solution of the "crooked sports news" problem. More than that, it is the solution of the problem of crooked news in any department. It is entirely conceivable, even highly probable, that the average newspaper man who does publicity work for an outside interest would intend to be absolutely loyal to his newspaper, and some may manage to do this, but not many. Few care to continue the risk of being influenced by outside pay when inside pay is adequate.

A good sporting department is worth having and is worth paying for. The editor who seeks to economize a few dollars a week on payroll by permitting his men to divide their time and interest in outside pursuits is, in our opinion, saving at the tap and wasting at the bunghole.

The present fight is not so much to gain new ideals, political, social or economic, as it is to hold ancient standards of common honesty, decency and right.

THE NEW THRIFT

THE thrifty press agent of the picture "La Geste" recently sent to newspaper editors in the vicinity of New York a column boost for the show. It was almost pure advertising, naming the theatre, the time of performances and asserting that the picture was the best ever.

Attached to the proof the press agent tied a coupon, which announced that if the editor would take to the theatre with a copy of his paper with the ad all marked to prove publication, the editor and his wife or sweetheart might have two seats, provided they did not show up on a holiday when all seats were reserved for cash customers.

It is said that some editors do this. If that is the estimate of the value of their advertising columns perhaps no one should object. It does not seem like business or good editing for the newspaper, but it may be an old-fashioned view. How the old-timers of twenty years ago would have roared with glee at the spectacle of one of their number tremblingly approaching a press agent with a marked copy of the paper in hand! My, my, how times have changed!

PERSONAL

ORMAN DODGE, vice-president and general manager of the Mergenthaler notype Company, accompanied by Mrs. odge, sailed for Europe on the Homeric, pril 9. While abroad Mr. Dodge will sit the offices and plants of the foreign anufacturers of Linotypes.

William Randolph Hearst is expected arrive in New York next week from Pacific Coast.

Emil M. Scholz, president of the World de Advertising Corporation, who is ring Europe, recently visited Rome.

. W. Kellogg, owner of the Los Angeles Express and 16 other newspapers the West coast, arrived in Kansas y, Mo., Monday, to visit his sister, ss Clara Kellogg, editor and publisher The Independent, society publication.

. S. Warden, manager and one of the prietors of the Great Falls (Mont.) bune, has been reappointed a member the Montana state highway commis- by Governor J. E. Erickson.

Irs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, chair- of the board of Johnson Features, , sailed Wednesday on the Berengaria Paris, to supervise the exhibition of izes executed by her late husband rles Cary Rumsey.

. G. Goldthwaite, publisher of the ne (Ia.) News-Republican, has been ointed a member of the Board of tors to Naval Academy, Annapolis.

E. Reynolds publisher of the Manka- Minn.) Free Press, is the president he Southern Minnesota Crime Preven- association which is sponsoring a ram of legislation in Minnesota.

. L. Francis, editor and owner of the er (Mo.) News and Rustler, suf- d serious injuries recently when ck by a motor car.

harles S. Parker, publisher of the ington (Mass.) Advocate and Lexing- Minute Man, weeklies, and called the of New England newspaper editors, brated his 88th birthday anniversary l 11 at his home in Arlington.

lfus Woods, editor of the Wenatchee sh.) Daily World, is visiting friends outhern California.

alter T. Layton, editor of the nomist, London, has joined the board he London Daily News.

orge F. Booth, publisher and part r of the Worcester (Mass.) Tele- -Gazette, is recovering from a slight ss.

nry Justin Smith, managing editor he Chicago Daily News, spoke on ius on Newspaper Row" April 14 e University of Chicago under the ces of the William Vaughn Moody dation.

bert H. Baker, president of the land Plain Dealer, returned to land, April 12 from trip to Hono- He was accompanied by Mrs.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

LLIAM A. GLASS, for three years an advertising salesman for the y (N. Y.) Knickerbocker Press, esigned to become manager of the y branch of the Hudson Valley and Products Company.

k Beach, credit manager, Long (Cal.) Press-Telegram, recently ed to the Coast from a tour of the during which he visited many large apers.

J. O'Fallon, Jr., has joined the staff St. Louis Times as manager of the tion department.

. Preston has joined the Owatonna n.) Journal-Chronicle as assistant ss manager and in charge of all ising.

iel F. McMahon, national adver- manager of the Chicago Tribune, before the Advertising Club of St. at its regular weekly luncheon g on April 12 on "Newspaper Ad- ng."

rent Williams, promotion manager for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and his son, John Brent Williams, became Eagle Scouts on Monday evening, April 11. This is the first time in the history of scouting in St. Louis that father and son became Eagle Scouts at the same time. The elder Williams is Scoutmaster of Troop 134.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

HALLETT ABEND, former city editor, Los Angeles (Cal.) Times, more recently managing editor of the Peking (China) Leader, has resigned his Oriental post and will sail this month for California.

John Piper, son of Edgar B. Piper, editor of the Portland Oregonian, has joined the copy desk staff of that newspaper. Until recently he was on the staff of the Associated Press at Washington, D. C., and before that had worked for the Associated Press in New York and for the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Zollie Howard has been made city editor of the Knoxville News-Sentinel, succeeding Sidney Hughes who has gone to New York.

Leo W. O'Brien, political reporter, Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union, is directing a city safety campaign as secretary of the municipal traffic commission.

Irving Parmeter, city editor of the Watertown (N. Y.) Standard, is the author of an article on submarine history in the April issue of the Current History magazine.

Thomas R. Evans, formerly sports editor of the Glendale (Cal.) News, has become city editor of the San Pedro (Cal.) Pilot. George Ashbaugh, of San Bernardino, has joined the editorial staff of the News.

L. E. Spainhower, until recently with the Denver office of the Associated Press, has returned to Montana to become city editor of the Helena Independent.

Ed Sherman of the Glens Falls (N. Y.) Post-Star, editorial staff who recently underwent an operation, is recovering.

William S. Murray, police reporter for the Fall River (Mass.) Globe, is now covering city hall for the same paper.

Harold C. Hollis, graduate student at the University of Wisconsin, is doing special work for the Madison (Wis.) Capital Times.

Douglas Turney, former executive on the Los Angeles (Cal.) Illustrated Daily News, under the Vanderbilt regime, has been named managing editor of the San Diego (Cal.) Independent.

Earnest LaBranch, former Holyoke newspaperman and recently special writer for the Fall River (Mass.) Globe, is now covering police, court and fire department for the same paper.

Clayton Cassidy, assistant city editor, Madison (Wis.) Capital Times, has been transferred to assistant sports editor of the same paper.

Bert Coleman, formerly boating and yachting writer on the San Pedro (Cal.) News, is now secretary of a Southern California yachting association.

Rud Rennie, of the New York Herald Tribune sports staff, who has been in the South with the Yankees, returned to New York with that team last week.

Henry Noll, of the Madison (Wis.) State Journal staff, will sail the latter part of May for Germany where he will visit his birthplace.

Alfred F. Wesson has succeeded Earl M. Welty as editor of the Glendale (Cal.) Press. Mr. Welty goes to the Hagerstown (Md.) Daily Mail, as assistant to the managing editor.

Garvin Hager, city editor of the Hagerstown (Md.) Daily Mail has returned from a trip to Florida.

Edward D. Fales, Jr., federal building reporter, Albany (N. Y.) Evening News,

(Continued on page 30)

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

ALFRED GLADWELL, Ogden, Utah, correspondent for the Salt Lake City Deseret News, is a reporter by day and a judge by night.

ALFRED GLADWELL

Gladwell was born in London, England, and came to Utah 17 years ago as a Mormon convert. Two years later he joined the organization of the News and was placed in charge of the paper in Ogden. Some years later he was relieved of the business end, and has since devoted all of his attention to editorial work.

Mr. Gladwell lives just outside the city limits of Ogden, and a few years ago the County Commissioners of the county needed a new justice of the peace in the precinct in which the Gladwell home is located. Gladwell was chosen for the position, and his record has been so satisfactory to all classes that during the last election he was endorsed by both of the major political parties. Violators of the law are dealt with severely in Justice Gladwell's court in every case if there are no extenuating circumstances. Bootleggers fear him.

Another "side-line" of this Utah reporter is service as a religious worker. He is a member of the Stake High Council in Ogden, and this position means that he is frequently called upon to appear in the pulpit on Sundays.

O. O. McIntyre

DAILY—WEEKLY

McIntyre writes about New York and New Yorkers, from the viewpoint of a normal man from the West.

The U. S. A. knows New York through McIntyre.

The McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

V. V. McNitt, President — Times Building, New York — Charles V. McAdam, Vice President

At the Convention
Visit
Room 146, Waldorf

METROPOLITAN FEATURES

COMICS
ELLA CINDERS STRIP
and
ELLA CINDERS PAGE
By Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb

DICKEY'S DOGS
By Robert L. Dickey

SPORTS
FEG MURRAY
Cartoons, Comment, Wise-Cracks

DAILY SERIAL
MILDRED BARBOUR
With Illustrations

FASHIONS
ELEANOR GUNN
and METROPOLITAN

JUVENILE
SECKATARY HAWKINS
With New Club Page

WEEKLY STORIAL
LUCILLE VAN SLYKE
Illustrated

WEEKLY HUMOR
STEPHEN LEACOCK
A. A. MILNE

OTHER WEEKLY WINNERS
ZENITH FICTION
PINNACLE FICTION
SHORT SHORT STORIES EXPLOIT ADVENTURE
and
PRE-EMINENT ARTICLES

Metropolitan Newspaper Service,

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St., New York City

(Continued from page 29)

for the past two years, has been appointed assistant city editor.

Calvin Chalmers has resigned as editor of the Fall River (Mass.) Globe and is spending several weeks at St. Johnsbury, Vt.

C. P. Elvins, of San Luis Obispo, Cal., is now sports editor of the San Pedro (Cal.) News.

Charles L. Mooney of the Plattsburgh (N. Y.) Republican editorial staff, is recovering from a recent operation.

Ray Jones, veteran courthouse reporter for the Los Angeles (Cal.) Times, has obtained a 60-day leave of absence to travel in the East.

Charles J. Fisk, recently with the Ketchikan (Alaska) Chronicle, has been named editor of the Anchorage Times.

H. E. M. Chisholm has been named publicity officer of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Canada. For the last 16 years he has been a member of the Ottawa Press Gallery. He came to Ottawa as representative of the Manitoba Free Press.. For the last few years, he has been resident correspondent of the Toronto Star.

Charles Blake, formerly of the Chicago Herald-Examiner, is now on the reporting staff of the New York American. Blake was the reporter who found Kenneth Ormiston, the missing radio operator in the Aimee Semple McPherson story, in a Pennsylvania city, after trailing him all over the country.

Frederick Holmes, formerly of the Baltimore Sun; Arthur Elliott, formerly of Universal Service, and Julian Seaman, formerly of the New York Evening World, have been added to the editorial staff of the New York World.

Warde H. Greene, formerly with the Cleveland Times, which suspended, has joined the reportorial force of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

ANDREW BERNHARD, from assistant city editor, Sioux City (Ia.) Tribune to copy desk, Detroit (Mich.) Free Press.

Earl Berkeley, from assistant slot man, Albany Knickerbocker Press, to Providence (R. I.) Bulletin staff.

Edward Davis, from Wilmington (Cal.) Journal, to editor, Compton (Cal.) News-Tribune, succeeding Harry Jones.

Cecil Hancock, from copy reader, Fargo (N. D.) Forum, to editorial staff, St. Paul (Minn.) Pioneer Press.

Alfred Willoughby, from staff, Madison (Wis.) Capital Times, to Madison (Wis.) State Journal staff.

J. S. Lewis, from Okmulgee (Okla.) Times, to news editor, Shawnee News.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

WHITING (Ia.) Argus has been purchased by H. R. Moethlick, formerly a publisher in Ute, Ia. Mrs. Ethel Hill Rowley was the former owner.

Jesse Ferney, of Walla Walla, Wash., has purchased the Attalia (Wash.) News-Tribune and the Wallula Gateway and will assume the editorship of the two papers. A. V. Peterson, former editor of the two papers will go to Castle Rock, Wash., where he will be associated with S. L. Moorhead in the publication of the Cowlitz County Advocate.

H. G. Rose, formerly in the mechanical department of the Chehalis (Wash.) Bee-Nugget, has purchased the St. John Journal and will assume its editorship.

C. S. Timmons of Cherokee, Okla., who has just announced sale of the Anthony (Kan.) Republican-Bulletin to Mack Stanton, will re-enter the newspaper field at Aline, Okla.

J. M. Best recently took over the Manhattan (Kan.) Tribune.

E. M. DeWeese, former city editor of the Hugo (Okla.) Daily News, has purchased the Southeast Oklahoman a Hugo weekly, from the Schooler Printing Company.

Fredonia, (N. Y.) Censor, oldest weekly newspaper in Chautauqua County, has been purchased by E. A. Towne of Conneaut, O., and E. S. Pike of Warren, O., from the estate of Frederick C. Bickers. Mr. Towne, of the Conneaut News Herald, will be manager.

The Canisteo (N. Y.) Chronicle, weekly, has been purchased from Leon L. Hough by Harold G. Hubbard of Pittsburgh, who has been connected lately with Technical Trade Publications.

MARRIED

HERBERT L. THOMAS JR., of the advertising staff of the Columbus (O.) State Journal, to Miss Rachel Van Hook Young, daughter of Harvey R. Young, advertising manager of the Columbus Dispatch, in Columbus recently.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

LINOTYPE installations have been made recently by the following newspapers: Danbury (Conn.) News; Medford (Mass.) Mercury; Chester (Pa.) Times; Providence (R. I.) Journal (2); Salem (Ore.) Capital-Journal.

Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review has just placed an order with R. Hoe & Co., Inc. for eight straight-pattern superspeed press units with two color cylinders. The Spokesman-Review has also purchased two new universal-units to be added to its Hoe color press.

Among the recent shipments from R. Hoe & Co., Inc. was a superspeed octuple press for the Auckland (N. Z.) Star.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

NEW United Press clients are: Herkimer (N. Y.) Telegram; Houston (Tex.) Press; Dubuque (Ia.) Telegraph-Herald and Times-Journal; Buffalo Evening News; Wichita Evening Eagle; Toronto (O.) Tribune; Abilene (Tex.) Times; South Norwalk (Conn.) Sentinel.

R. G. Smith, Salt Lake City correspondent for the Associated Press, was the speaker at the weekly Chamber of Commerce luncheon last week.

Donald C. Bolles, Milwaukee correspondent for the Associated Press, and Mrs. Bolles are parents of a son, born recently.

Whit Burnett, formerly of the New York Times telegraph and cable desk, has been made assistant city editor of the Associated Press, New York, day side. When on the local staff, he covered the Browning case.

SCHOOLS

PROBLEMS confronting newspaper editors and publishers are to be discussed at the annual Editors Short Course to be held at the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis May 5 to 7. Printing exhibits, round table discussions, banquets and talks by experts will be featured.

Friday the 13th holds no terror for students of the Department of Journalism, Syracuse University. On that day next month they will publish for one day the Elmira Star-Gazette, marking the sixth experiment of this kind to be conducted by the Syracuse school since 1922. The venture this year is being made through the courtesy of Frank E. Gannett, president and editor of the Gannett Newspapers. The students will work under direction of Prof. John O. Simmons, head of the department, and Samuel Cahn, instructor.

THE STATE GAZETTE
SEEK ARREST TODAY
CHINESE CRISIS NEARS AS U. S. MOVES TROOPS
Hip Deformity Corrected
MYSTERY FIRE BLASTS RAZE STOREHOUSE
STATE FACE AT F
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

Phelps Soule, editor of Yale University Press since 1925, will become editor and manager of the Press of the University of Pennsylvania, on May 1. Under his editorship, the Press of the University of Pennsylvania will become an active publishing organization.

Alfred D. Britton, member of the junior class at the Columbia University School of Journalism, has the distinction of being the only journalism student now in school who has been elected to the Columbia Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity. He plans to get his degree from the Journalism School in 1928. Britton last year won the annual Current Events Contest of the New York Times.

An all-university organization which will be known as the W. J. Murphy Press Club has been organized on the campus of the University of Minnesota, at Minneapolis. The name was selected as a memorial to the late publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune who contributed $350,000 towards the establishment of a school of journalism at the university. Alan Kennedy of Minneapolis has been named president; Joseph Mader, vice-president and Katharine Whitney, secretary and treasurer.

Dr. George Starr Lasher, head of the department of journalism of the University in Athens, was elected president of the Ohio State Journalism Association, at a meeting in Columbus, April 8.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

NORFOLK (Va.) LEDGER-DISPATCH, 16-page edition on opening of the New Cavalier Hotel at Virginia Beach, Va.

St. Paul Pioneer Press issued a special Ford section April 3 featuring the formal opening of the Ford Motor Company Northwest plant located at St. Paul.

Los Angeles (Cal.) Times First Annual Review, 64-pages.

Portland Press-Herald and Express, 16-page Spring Fashion edition, April 4.

Worcester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette, 12-page tabloid editions on Textile Industries, April 5 and 6.

ASSOCIATIONS

FIRST steps toward the organization of a press club among the newspapermen of San Pedro, Long Beach, Harbor City, Compton and Wilmington (Cal.) were taken recently at a banquet given the harbor district men by the ORANGE COUNTY (Cal.) PRESS CLUB at Long Beach. The club is expected to be officially launched at another meeting on May 12.

Boston printers were guests at a round-table discussion of the three-color process in advertising held April 14 by the WORCESTER (Mass.) CLUB OF PRINTING HOUSE CRAFTSMEN.

BOSTON (Mass.) PRESS CLUB staged its fifth annual frolic at the Shubert Theatre on Friday afternoon, April 8.

William M. Lyon, president of the RHODE ISLAND PRESS CLUB, was honored on his 70th birthday, April 2, at the April meeting of the club in Johnst[on], R. I. He was presented with a g[old] fountain pen and pencil.

Program has been completed for [the] 20th annual convention of the PA[N]HANDLE PRESS ASSOCIATION, to be h[eld] at Amarillo, Tex., April 22 and 23.

Members of the PRESS PHOTOGRAPHE[RS'] ASSOCIATION, composed of Boston ne[ws]paper cameramen, attended the Cop[ley] Theatre, Boston, Tuesday evening, as [the] guests of the management. The ent[ire] tier of boxes was occupied by the p[ho]tographers.

FOURTH ESTATE LODGE A. F. A. [M.], composed of Boston newspaper men, [will] present a musical comedy at the F[ine] Arts Theatre in Boston on April 25 a[nd] 26. The comedy is in charge of [Mr.] Davis and Williams. The title of t[he] play is "The First Edition."

Annual meeting of the OKLAHOMA [IN]TERSCHOLASTIC PRESS ASSOCIATION [will] be held at the University of Oklaho[ma] Norman, April 30. Approximately [200] editors and business managers of h[igh] school publications are expected to [at]tend.

FLASHES

A good many newspapers are publi[sh]ing extracts from the Bible, which m[ay] be live news to a lot of their readers.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

If nobody were foolish, newspap[ers] would have a lot more space in wh[ich] to print other things. But, then, wh[o] read 'em?—Windsor (Ont.) Bor[der] Cities Star.

A decent play, apparently, is one t[hat] can hope for no free advertising.—V[an]couver Sun.

It is a mistake to make light of Chi[na's] revolution. Any proof-reader can tes[tify] to its atrocities.—Dallas News.

Fashion determined to kill the [hi]skirt and it is kilt.—Little Rock Arka[nsas] Gazette.

To be sitting on top of the world is such a hot ambition. Consider the E[ar]mo.—Fort Worth Press.

"I do not cut the hair," says Ant[oine] famous French hair trimmer now in [the] U. S. "I sculpture it." Wonder if [he] ever takes a chip off the old block.—Weston Leader.

A woman living in a village in [the] province of Catalonia has given birth [to] a child with five arms. This seems t[o be] nature's attempt to produce the per[fect] jazz pianist.—Punch.

We might turn the Chinese pu[zzle] over to those sports writers who [are] telling the world how baseball c[lubs] should be managed.—J. R. Wolf in [Mil]waukee Journal.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE
TYPE
BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE
Printers' Supplies
KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT
Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the American Type Founders Company
BOSTON, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, RICHMOND, ATLANTA, BUFFALO, PITTSBURGH, CLEVELAND, DETROIT, CHICAGO, CINCINNATI, ST. LOUIS, MILWAUKEE, MINNEAPOLIS, KANSAS CITY, DES MOINES, DENVER, LOS ANGELES, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, SPOKANE, WINNIPEG

"We Soon Found It Didn't Need Help"

Says Editor T. E. Sharp, of the El Paso Post— one of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers

READ his letter telling of the great economies effected through the installation of a 42 pica Model 22 Display Linotype. ¶ Many other papers have achieved similar savings through the 42 pica Model 22 Display Linotype. For complete information regarding this model, write to the Linotype Company's nearest Agency.

El Paso Post

LARGEST CITY CIRCULATION - EVENINGS EXCEPT SUNDAY

El Paso, Texas

MEMBERS
AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS
NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSOCIATION
FULL LEASED WIRE SERVICE
UNITED PRESS

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
BY MAIL
1 YEAR $5.00
LESS THAN ONE YEAR
50c PER MONTH
BY CARRIER
10c A WEEK STRAIGHT

March 1, 1927.

Mr. Fred W. Bott, Manager,
Mergenthaler Linotype Co.,
549 Baronne Street,
New Orleans, Louisiana.

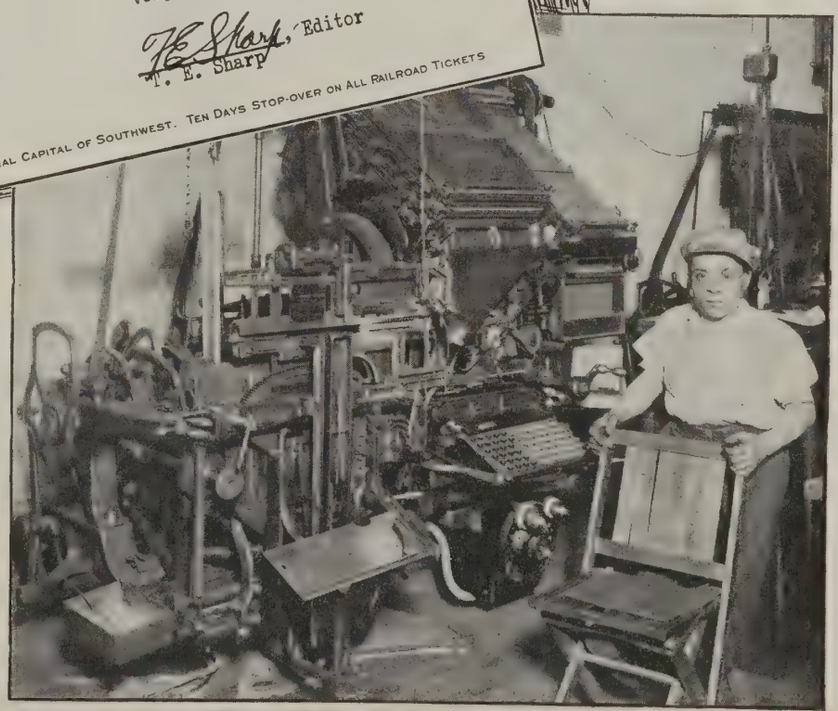
Dear Mr. Bott:

Within a few days specifications for another Model 14 should reach your office. The order will include fonts of Ionic 7 and 5½ point mats to replace all 8 and 6 point in our shop.

It may interest you to hear that in an even 13 months in our new plant we printed 4002 pages of 8 columns, 21 inches. This was done on four Mergenthaler Linotypes. The Post has no other type-setting or type-casting machine; and it uses no hand type in size lower than 48 point.

We were able to turn out so many pages on so few machines because we have a competent composing room and a 42-Pica, Model No. 22 Display Linotype.

The 42-Pica, Model 22, is in operation 16 hours a day. We have no special operator for it. Floor-men go to its keyboard and knock out the lines they want. For news heads and long takes of ad guts an operator jumps over from one of the three news machines.



Over a year ago when the 42-Pica Model 22 Linotype was installed, we kept all our hand type "to help out the Model 22," but we soon found it didn't need help as we never had to use hand type of any size the Model 22 sets.

You correctly may judge from this that we are mighty well satisfied with the 42-Pica Model 22, in fact, operation of the whole Mergenthaler battery has been so smooth that we have found no need to employ a machinist.

Very truly yours,

T. E. Sharp, Editor

EL PASO - THE GATE TO MEXICO. COMMERCIAL CAPITAL OF SOUTHWEST. TEN DAYS STOP-OVER ON ALL RAILROAD TICKETS

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Mergenthaler Linotype Company

Brooklyn, New York

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

530.27.4-F

This advertisement composed entirely on the Linotype in Narciss and Garamond

LOS ANGELES AD CLUB ON GOODWILL TOUR

"Contact" Group Takes 1,000 Mile Trip, Visiting Seven Clubs in Other Cities—Gives Special Programs

The 1,000-mile annual "good-will" trip of the club contact committee of the Los Angeles Advertising Club started Saturday, April 9. Assembling in Sacramento on Monday, the ad men met with the first of the seven northern advertising clubs, at each of which the programs will be in charge of the traveling group.

The party traveled by caravan from Sacramento to Oakland, and from there to San Francisco, Palo Alto, Stockton, Modesto, and Fresno.

Speakers in the party include Harold J. Stonier, president of the Los Angeles Advertising Club and vice-president of the University of Southern California, who will speak on "Building California"; Roy S. Kellogg, secretary of the Chamberlain Company, Inc., on "Advertising and Philosophy"; Herman A. Nater, assistant vice-president, Bank of Italy, on "Money Talks," and Don Francisco of Lord, Thomas & Logan, on "Some Advertising Gold Bricks."

The "contactors" visited Oakland, Tuesday; San Francisco, Wednesday; Palo Alto, Wednesday; Stockton, Thursday; Modesto and Fresno, Friday.

Mr. Nater, chairman of the club-contact committee, was chairman of each of the meetings, with the exception of Stockton and Modesto, where Don K. Thomas, executive director of the Los Angeles Advertising Club, acted in that capacity. Russell M. MacLennan, advertising manager of the First National-Pacific-Southwest banking group, was chairman of the committee in charge of the trip.

The club contact committee has as its purpose the visiting of every advertising club in California each year. The committee has already visited Long Beach, San Diego, San Bernardino and Riverside Clubs.

Obituary

HERBERT R. BARNEY, 70, business manager of the Rutland (Vt.) Herald for the last 18 years, died March 31 at Jacksonville, Fla. He had been in poor health for three years.

JOHN H. POWERS, 69, an employe of the Providence (R. I.) Journal for 39 years as superintendent of the building, died at his daughter's home in Providence April 6.

LE ROY ARMSTRONG, formerly an editor of newspapers in Indiana and Utah and special writer on the Chicago Herald and Chicago Evening Post, died in Los Angeles, Cal., March 29. For the past ten years he had been head of the research department at Universal City.

ALBERT J. TAYLOR, 59, formerly a cartoonist on the Houston (Tex.) Post and the Los Angeles (Cal.) Times, died in Los Angeles recently.

JOHN WILLIAM BIRD, 84, a pioneer California newspaper publisher, died in Yreka, Cal., March 23. He was born in London and made the trip to California "around the Horn" in 1856. For many years he was on the staff of the old Alta Californian.

JEAN BAPTISTE AUDET DIT LAPOINTE, general manager of Le Canada, died March 30 after a short illness at his home in Outremont. He was 63 years of age and was a brother of the late Alderman L. A. Lapointe.

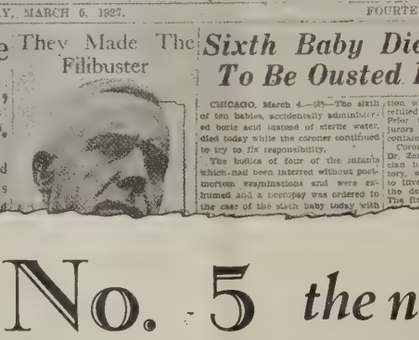
ROBERT G. LARSEN, 57, one-time Sunday editor of the Boston (Mass.) Herald and recently general manager of the B. F. Keith theater interests in Boston, died April 1 in New York while on a business trip. Larsen was in charge of advertising for the Keith interests for many years. He was also at one time Boston representative for the New York Herald.

ELMER O. HAPEMAN, vice-president of the Red Hook (N. Y.) Advertiser, died recently after a long illness.

LEWIS W. HARTT, for the past 23 years a reporter at Coney Island, died of pneumonia last Tuesday. Hartt represented the Brooklyn Standard Union and other New York newspapers.

E. F. WARREN, 68, publisher of the Spearfish (S. D.) Mail since 1889, died recently in a Hot Springs hospital following an illness of four months.

EDWARD N. HEATON, employed by the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and father-in-law of John J. Kirk, for many years general circulation manager of that paper, died suddenly recently. His son, Charles Heaton, is in the Plain Dealer circulation department.



S. FRANKLIN YEAGER, 67, writer and illustrator, who twice circled the world during his 52 years in service, was found dead Wednesday morning in his room in Tampa, Fla. Yeager was first employed in the art department of Leslie's Weekly when a youth. He later went to Harper's afterwards entering the newspaper field as a writer. Thirty years ago he came to Florida. He returned to Florida in 1920 and since that time h been devoting all of his time to painti and pen sketches.

MISS EMMA GITTINGER

Miss Emma R. Gittinger, 76, one of first women newspaper columnists in United States died April 6, in Frederi Md. Her "Mary Jane" column first peared in the Frederick News in 18 about five years after her first contri tion to the paper, and her work was c tinuous until January, 1927, when she came ill.

JAMES E. RICE

James E. Rice, 64, manager of merchandising department of the C cago Daily News, died April 4 at home in Evanston of pneumonia. He been with the Daily News ten years, prior to that with the Tribune and Herald-Examiner.

in
Detroit—

Free Press circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

The "Free Press"
"Starts the day in Detroit"

With a stable, uninflated, liberal pursed circulation productive of greater advertising returns at lower cost.

Speaking of IONIC No. 5 the new body type,

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Mergenthaler Linotype Company

Brooklyn, New York

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS
CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

The Editor of the Toledo Daily Times Says:

We are proud of the improved appearance of our newspaper since adopting the 6½ point Ionic type and the new upper and lower case Caslon heads set on one of your Linotypes.

John D. Dun, Editor.

LINOTYPED IN THE CLOISTER FAMILY AND NARCISS EXCEPT HAND SET TITLE LINE

The Kansas City Star goes Everywhere in Kansas City

SO thorough is The Kansas City Star's circulation, so complete its coverage, that there are actually delivered by carrier, twice daily in Greater Kansas City, more copies of The Star than there are families in the city.

The Star goes into all classes of homes. The homes of the rich. The homes of the near-rich. The homes of the middle classes. The homes where every penny must be counted before it is spent.

The Star goes into the downtown sections. It is delivered by carrier into the city's business and professional offices. Business and professional men need The Star.

The Star goes into the industrial sections, into the mills, the packing plants and the factories.

Literally saturating its city of publication twice every day, and again on Sunday, is it any wonder that The Kansas City Star carries more than two-thirds of the newspaper advertising in Kansas City?

New York Office:
15 East 40th St.
Vanderbilt 10172

Chicago Office:
1418 Century Bldg.
Wabash 1067

THE KANSAS CITY STAR

A Quarter of a Million Twice a Day

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

"Foolish Questions" Is Latest Book from Quiz Craze—Aerial Interviews Feature the Week—W. E. Woodward to "Debunk" Snyder Trial

LATEST book soon to come from the press as a result of the current quizzing craze fostered by the newspapers is "Foolish Questions," written by H. I. Phillips, conductor of the Sun Dial in the New York Sun, which is distributed nationally as "Once-Overs" by Associated Newspapers, Inc., New York. The publisher is E. J. Clode.

In an introduction to the book H. H. McClure, manager of Associated Newspapers, maintains that the "wisest men are those who laugh and who create laughter for their fellow men."

"I am convinced," Mr. McClure wrote out of his experience and years of association with humorists, "that there is more real worth in the observations of humorists, their whimsical slants on life and their fine sense of relative values than in a thousand text books."

Mr. McClure also argued that "humor is the balance wheel of intelligence—the most brilliant and best-balanced mind has the keenest appreciation of the ridiculous."

Aerial interviews and attempts at interviews featured the week during the endurance flight of Bert Acosta and Clarence D. Chamberlain over Roosevelt Field, L. I.

Peter McGregor, photographer and reporter for NEA Service Inc., and Acme Newspictures, went aloft with Pilot William MacMullen. Questions were written with chalk on the side of the interviewer's airplane and Acosta and Chamberlain replied by sign language. Such queries as "How is the gas?" and "Do you think you'll beat the record?", were asked.

Bruce Gould, member of the staff of the New York Evening Post, also went into the air and attempted to interview the flyers using a megaphone, with indifferent success.

"Who Am I?", a new feature with the sub-heading of "a game for those who may not 'remember names,' but who never 'forget a face,'" was announced this week by the New York World Syndicate. A series of pictures have been prepared, with three clues to the subject's identity printed as captions. Answers are furnished to be published on a subsequent page.

W. E. Woodward, author of "Bunk," has been engaged by the Post Syndicate to report the Snyder-Gray murder trial which opens next week. His assignment is to "debunk the trial, to cover it by methods exactly opposite to those of the sob-sister."

Will Durant, who wrote the "Story of Philosophy" will be the murder trial reporter for the Scripps-Howard Newspapers. Famous Features Syndicate has commissioned Rev. John Roach Straton to write the feature for them.

"One Hundred and One Wonders of the World We Live In" by Edison Watt, is a new feature being offered by Associated Newspapers, Inc., New York.

Glenna Collett, former United States women's National golf champion, is writing a new weekly column called "The Sportswoman" for the Ledger Syndicate, Philadelphia.

Dare Francis, fashion writer and artist for Associated Newspapers, will sail for Paris April 30, to establish permanent headquarters at the so-called "style capital"

J. N. (Ding.) Darling, New York Herald Tribune Syndicate cartoonist, has returned to his home in Des Moines after a South American trip.

An injunction has been issued by a Chicago court at the request of the Curtis Candy Company restraining Cannar & Marshall from using the name of "Skeezix" as a name for a candy bar. Skeezix is a character of "Gasoline Alley" a comic strip drawn for the Chicago Tribune Newspapers Syndicate by Frank King. The injunction prohibits use of Skeezix's picture for commercial purposes without King's permission. The ruling was to the effect that a cartoonist has a property right to his cartoon characters and can sell such right, the purchaser receiving the exclusive use of such property.

Publisher's Syndicate of Chicago has recently taken over the selling end of the Harrison C. MacDonald Classified Promotion Service. Arthur S. Rudd has been added to its sales staff.

At the annual meeting of Johnson Features, Inc., held Friday, April 9, the following officers were elected: Mary Harriman Rumsey, chairman of the board; W. H. Johnson, president; George Barr Baker, vice-president and secretary; asst.-secretary, E. R. McGrath, H. W. Miller, treasurer. The following directors were elected: Mary Harriman Rumsey, George Barr Baker, E. L. Shipway, E. Roland Harriman, W. P. McCool, Eleanor Pederson Bowman, Percy Pyne, Jr. and W. H. Johnson.

Johnson Features, Inc. and its allied company Editors' Features Service, Inc. have recently moved into their new $75,000 plant in the Press and Plate Building, Cleveland, Ohio, where the full service of Editors' Feature Service is produced.

MILL RAZED BY FIRE

The International Paper Company mill at Glen Park on Black River near Watertown, N. Y., was virtually destroyed by fire of unknown origin April 13. The loss is estimated at about $200,000. A small machine shop adjoining the main building was the only part of the mill saved. The company had not been using the plant for the past year.

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON

Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation

120 West 42nd Street New York

The Consolidated Press will be glad to see its friends in Rooms 363-365 at the Waldorf during the Publishers' Convention

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Increased Newspaper Campaign Planned by Chancellor Cigars—Dailies Added to Federal Motor Truck Schedule—Sheaffer Pen Company to Hold Sales Conferences

EXPANSION of the advertising program for Chancellor cigars, an American Tobacco Company brand, was reported in New York this week. The account is now being handled by Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., and the schedule is in the making. A larger newspaper list with bigger copy is understood to be on the program.

Federal Motor Truck Company is going to devote a considerable share of its 1927 advertising program in the newspapers, EDITOR & PUBLISHER has been informed. This was formerly a magazine and trade paper account.

The Borden Sales Company has adopted a newspaper schedule covering more than 100 small cities in 11 western states.

C. K. Hart, advertising manager for the W. A. Sheaffer Pen Company, will conduct a series of sales conferences for his company in Des Moines, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Columbus, Nashville, Louisville, Birmingham, Atlanta, Memphis and St. Louis during May and early June. Sheaffer dealers, prospects and salesmen will be in attendance at the meetings.

Elden C. DeWitt, multi-millionaire patent medicine manufacturer, whose death last week revealed that he had amassed a fortune of $85,000,000, was a firm believer in advertising and attributed his success to generous use of newspaper space, according to Judge F. O. Ellison of the District Court, Cedar Rapids, Ia., one of the few Iowa acquaintances of the manufacturer who recalled his early days. DeWitt was closed out of a little drug store in Elk Point, S. D., by his creditors, and en route to Wyoming with his household goods was forced to stop in Sioux City, Ia., where creditors had attached the furniture. Charles Beggs, an Elk Point friend, hearing of DeWitt's predicament paid his bills and financed him in a new venture in Sioux City under the name of Beggs & DeWitt. The firm began the manufacture of patent medicines.

"DeWitt always told me that newspaper advertising was the secret of success," Judge Ellison said. "All profits for the first years went into advertising," he said. Later the firm moved to Chicago, where the partnership was dissolved, but DeWitt continued. Most famous of his products were DeWitt's Early Risers.

Net income of the Lambert Pharmacal Company in the first quarter was $1,387 against $852,117 in the first quarter of 1926.

The report of the Wesson Oil & Snowdrift Company, Inc., and subsidiaries, for the six months ended Feb. shows a net profit of $1,251,177 after charges and taxes.

Los Angeles Evening Herald

has a greater Circulation and carries more Advertising than any other Daily in this entire territory

Circulation Sept. 30, 1926* Government Statement
196,050
*(Now over 200,000)

Largest in 41 States

Total Advertising 1926
17,505,
Agate

Representatives

New York: Herb. W. Moloney, 604 Times Bldg.
Chicago: John H. Lederer, 910 Hearst Bldg.
San Fran: A. J. Norr, 610 Hearst

The Baltimore News

has the largest circulation of any evening newspaper in the entire South 137,022

Baltimore looks to THE NEWS for the news.

NEA

covers everythin

NEA Service, Inc.
1200 West Third Street
CLEVELAND, OHIO

SUPREMAC IN building circulatio

THE CHICAGO HERALD AND EXAMINER conducting the greatest circulation-campaign in its history. Naturally, the HOL CIRCULATION ORGANIZATION is in charge lishers everywhere recognize this organizatic rivalled pre-eminence in increased circula many thousands in sure and rapid-fire fashi by absolutely clean and satisfactory methods line of metropolitan dailies, such as The Phil Inquirer, The Cleveland Plain Dealer, The Commercial Appeal, The Indianapolis News a attest Hollister supremacy.

C. B. HOLLISTER, general manager of ganization, will be at the Waldorf-Astoria H ing the publishers' convention, and will glad his plan to interested publishers.

The Herald and Examiner, CHICAGO

HOLLISTE
Circulation Organiz
Home Ad.: 717-8 Commercial Exch. Bldg., Los A heights

Ascending and descending letters of Intertype Ideal News face are in proportion to small lower case for maximum legibility.

5½ Point Ideal News Face Saves Space

Below is a specimen of the 5½ Point set on 5 Point slug. This is an extreme test of the legibility of a face.

Note that the ascending and descending letters are not cramped or blunt in order to cast the 5½ on a 5 Point slug.

Yet the column is entirely readable.

With a column 295 lines deep and 8 columns to the page 5½ Point Intertype News (on a 5 Point slug) saves about 300 lines per page. Think of the thousands of dollars this face would save without sacrificing readability. Compare the Intertype Ideal News face with the ordinary faces used for classified advertisements. The Intertype design has several features of importance for maximum legibility—as well as the serviceability of matrices.

Face Ordinarily Used

5½ POINT 2B ON 5½ POINT SLUG

84TH, 19 WEST—Gentleman appreciating cleanliness; electricity; $7; breakfast. Hawley, Schuyler 3155.

84TH, 316 WEST (Apt. 2E)—Beautifully furnished double room; near bath; reasonable.

85TH, 342 WEST (Clarke Studio), professional people, business girl, elevator; references.

85TH, 327 WEST—Large, front; every convenience housekeeping privilege; $10. Ludwig.

85TH, 119 WEST—2 rooms, bath, parlor floor; desirable front basement with kitchenette privileges.

85TH (2,345 Broadway)—Large front; private bath, foyer; kitchen privileges. Weaver (46).

85TH, 342 WEST—Lady share large room lady; piano, twin beds.

85TH, 349 WEST—Charming large sunny front living room; smaller, $8. Nash.

85TH, 349 WEST—Attractive room, private family; student or business women. 3W.

86TH (Riverside Drive)—Artistically furnished room; business women; references. Telephone Trafalgar 9667.

86TH, 11 WEST—Large, double rooms, well furnished; kitchen privileges; also small; reasonable.

87TH, 343 WEST—Large, beautifully sunny front room, adjoining private bath, references.

Intertype Ideal News

5½ POINT ON 5 POINT SLUG

84TH, 19 WEST—Gentleman appreciating cleanliness; electricity; $7; breakfast. Hawley, Schuyler 3155.

84TH, 316 WEST (Apt. 2E)—Beautifully furnished double room; near bath; reasonable.

85TH, 342 WEST (Clarke Studio), professional people, business girl, elevator; references.

85TH, 327 WEST—Large, front; every convenience; housekeeping privilege; $10. Ludwig.

85TH, 119 WEST—2 rooms, bath, parlor floor; desirable front basement with kitchenette privileges.

85TH (2,345 Broadway)—Large front; private bath, foyer; kitchen privileges. Weaver (46).

85TH, 342 WEST—Lady share large room lady; piano, twin beds. Hallock.

85TH, 349 WEST—Charming large, sunny front living room; smaller, $8. Nash.

85TH, 349 WEST—Attractive room, private family; student or business women. 3W.

86TH (Riverside Drive)—Artistically furnished room; business women; references. Telephone Trafalgar 9667.

86TH, 11 WEST—Large, double rooms, well furnished; kitchen privileges; also small; reasonable.

87TH, 343 WEST—Large, beautiful, sunny front room; adjoining private bath, references.

Intertype matrices will run in other slug-casting machines
Investigate the advantages of Intertype Ideal News Face

Write nearest branch for larger specimens

Standardized INTERTYPE TRADE MARK

Designed in 5½, 6½, 7 and 8 Point

INTERTYPE CORPORATION: New York 1440 Broadway; Chicago 130 N. Franklin St.; Memphis McCall Bldg.; San Francisco 560 Howard St.; Los Angeles 1240 S. Main St.; Boston 80 Federal St.; London; Berlin

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Ralph Fulton Resigns from N. Y. American to Open Branch of Aitkin-Kynette in New York—Harry Rick with George L. Dyer Company —Atherton & Currier Formed

RALPH FULTON has resigned from the advertising department of the New York American, effective May 1, to open a New York office for Aitkin-Kynette, Inc., Philadelphia advertising agency. The New York office will be in the Hecksher building.

Mr. Fulton has been in the Hearst organization for the last 10 years. He has been connected with the American from 1925 to the present time, and previously was with the International Magazine Company.

Among accounts of Aitkin-Kynette are Consolidated Cigar, Reading Iron Company and Sikes Company.

Harry A. Rick, formerly of Rick & Giltnane, advertising agency, has joined the Chicago office of George L. Dyer Company, as vice-president. Mr. Rick's former headquarters at 58 East Washington Street, have been taken over by Duke Hutchinson, formerly associated with Mr. Rick, who will operate his own agency at that address.

J. William Atherton in partnership with George B. Currier has formed a new advertising agency in New York as Atherton-Currier, Inc. Headquarters will be in the Graybar Building. Mr. Atherton was formerly vice-president of the Morse International Agency, while Mr. Currier was vice-president and treasurer of the North American Dye Corporation, Mount Vernon, N. Y. W. T. Tieman will be space buyer.

Rudolph Guenther-Russell Law this week announced they had made an arrangement with Emil Brisacher and Staff, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Portland, Ore., whereby the agencies will operate jointly.

David E. Caesar, for fourteen years with Charles F. W. Nichols, Chicago advertising agency, and more recently with the Chicago office of the H. E. Lesan Advertising Agency and Ruthrauff & Ryan, Inc., has been appointed western advertising manager of the Southern Pacific Lines. He will have his headquarters in Chicago.

Miss S. Adele Shaw, formerly of the editorial staff of the New York Evening Post, has become associated with the Edward M. Power Company, Inc., a Pittsburgh, Pa., advertising agency.

Smith, Sturgis & Moore, Inc., has moved from 1465 Broadway, New York, to new offices at 171 Madison avenue.

D. H. Nichols has resigned from Dunlap Ward, Inc., Cleveland, effective May 1, and will become associated with the King-Gibson Company, Chicago. E. A. Thiele, for many years western manager for Ruggles & Brainerd is now associated with this agency.

Ernest T. Gundlach, president of the Gundlach Advertising Company, Chicago, was elected president of the City Club of Chicago April 15.

Robert Emmet Kane has resigned as advertising manager for the Union Electric Light & Power Company, St. Louis, to join the staff of the Shelby Syndicate, advertising agents, of that city. Mr. Kane previously was with the Gardner Advertising Company.

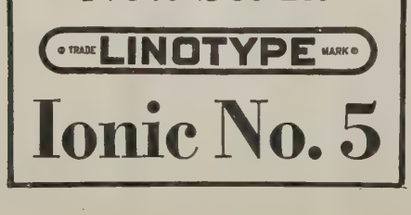
W. Ferguson-Davie has joined the staff of the Berger, Jenkins & Obear Advertising Company, St. Louis.

Natt W. Emerson, vice-president of the George Batten Company advertising agency, sailed from New York April 2 with Mrs. Emerson on a five weeks' trip too Jamaica, Havana and other Caribbean ports.

Charles C. Green, president of the New York Advertising Club and head of the agency bearing his name, sailed for Bermuda with his family April 15.

Arthur N. Day, vice-president of the Yost Advertising Company, St. Louis, will speak before the Industrial Division of the Advertising Club of St. Louis, on April 22, on "Media Analysis."

PAPER BAN SUSPENDED



A large delegation of news vendors have approached Mayor Martin of Montreal to ask that the order of the administration passed recently forbidding them to place papers along the sidewalk, be modified or rescinded. They pointed out that under the regulations it was almost impossible to carry on trade as the by-laws not only prevent keeping stands on the streets, but also force the vendors to carry their stock in their arms. The outcome is that the order has been suspended pending further inquiry.

MAKING OKLAHOMA SURVEY

Statistics concerning the 77 counties in Oklahoma as well as information about 1,330 cities of the state are being collected by the Oklahomans Inc., for use in the national advertising campaign soon to be launched by the organization. The purpose is to acquaint the United States in general with the resources and opportunities available in the state.

IOWA DAILY BROADCASTING

The Sioux City (Ia.) Journal entered the radio broadcasting field on April 4 with a new 1,000 watt station assigned the call letters KSCJ.

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

Less Expensive

When a newspaper publisher accepts our Complete Checking Proof Service he eliminates his "free" copy mailing list as well as any other "special" checking copy service he may be giving his agencies and advertisers. Here is a real saving in costs (newsprint, postage and clerks time). Instead, he sends us a few complete copies daily and we do the entire detail work of distributing all necessary checking proofs—and our efficiency is shown in "results."

NOW—400 subscribers

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

79 Madison Ave. New York — 538 So. Clark St. Chicago

Daily Mail
LONDON

ADVERTISEMENT RECORD

$337,060
IN A
SIX-DAY WEEK

THE advertisement columns of The Daily Mail have been termed "the world's greatest market-place," because they offer unrivalled chances for bringing purchaser, merchant, and manufacturer into touch with each other.

Following the adoption of 20 pages as the standard size of The Daily Mail, the advertisement columns have begun to meet the advertiser's demand for space. The result is the creation of a new record for advertisement revenue on daily journalism.

This great step forward in the history of The Daily Mail has been made possible by the installation at Northcliffe House and at Manchester of printing plant for simultaneous production unequalled in capacity and efficiency by anything in Great Britain.

The figures printed below give the daily gross revenue from advertisements during the first two complete weeks of the enlarged Daily Mail:—

First Week

		1927	1926
Mon.,	Feb. 28	$53,233.60	$42,519.95
Tues.,	Mar. 1	52,564.30	43,931.30
Wed.,	Mar. 2	55,236.65	44,508.45
Thurs.,	Mar. 3	56,400.65	44,634.55
Friday,	Mar. 4	56,361.85	45,784.00
Sat.,	Mar. 5	52,515.80	43,043.75

Second Week

Mon.,	Mar. 7	$65,053.05	$44,629.70
Tues.,	Mar. 8	55,357.90	44,387.20
Wed.,	Mar. 9	57,259.10	43,669.40
Thurs.,	Mar. 10	55,852.60	44,697.60
Friday,	Mar. 11	53,883.50	44,217.45
Sat.,	Mar. 12	49,654.30	43,237.75

These figures are based on $4.85 to the £

Issued by Associated Newspapers Ltd.
Northcliffe House, London, E.C. 4, Eng.

New York Office: 250 Park Ave., New York City

LONDON PARIS MANCHESTER

largest evening circulation in the south 93,562

Memphis Press-Scimitar

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper

Member of the A. B. C. Member of the United Press

Represented by Allied Newspapers, Inc., 250 Park Avenue, New York

Chicago Detroit San Francisco Los Angeles Seattle

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

Louisville Courier-Journal Heads National Spelling Bee—Bonus Plan for Carriers Proves Successful—Features Paraded Before Readers

A GROUP of newspapers, headed by the Louisville Courier-Journal, are now conducting the third national spelling bee, which extends annually from March to June.

Marc P. Dowdell of the Trenton Times and State Gazette, one of the participating newspapers, described the feature this week for EDITOR & PUBLISHER as "useful in sustaining reader interest as the long days and their attendant tendency toward slackening of circulation begin." More than 200 schools are taking part in the Trenton contest.

"The feature provides live material for a daily story and pictures of school champions," Mr. Dowdell said. "As a result, many schoolboy and schoolgirl photographs are published and material is added to the library which may at any time become of spot interest."

The Trenton Star-Gazette is also joining in on the annual national marble tournament, which has its finals at Atlantic City.

"Both these contests receive publicity in the Sunday Times Advertiser and thus reader interest is carried throughout the week," Mr. Dowdell continued. "Coming in the spring as they do these contests have a steadying influence on circulation.

"When the champions go to Washington for the spelling contest and to Atlantic City for the 'mib' tourney daily stories concerning their doings become heads for first page stories.

"As a result of the success of the Times with the spelling bee two other New Jersey newspapers have taken it up. These are the Atlantic City Daily Press and the New Brunswick Home News. Both have had equal success with their ventures."

An independent revival of spelling contests in the public schools of Stroudsburg, Pa., was headed by Nelson A. Frantz, publisher of the Stroudsburg (Evening) Record and the Morning Press, and a former school teacher. About 1,000 boys and girls participated in the written test given March 25, from which 24 qualified for the championships held April 1. Since the contest Mr. Frantz has received numerous letters from readers commending him on his enterprise and urging him to make the bee an annual affair.

A special bonus plan, whereby carrier boys are rewarded for care in the delivery of papers is being used successfully by the Long Beach (Cal.) Press-Telegram, under the direction of Ed Pugh, circulation manager.

Each boy who delivers his papers for a month without a complaint reaching the circulation office, receives an honor card and a bonus of $1. If he succeeds in delivering papers for an entire year without any complaints he receives an additional bonus of $12 making his annual bonus money total $24.

Both the public and the carrier boys are kept interested in the plan through the frequent publication in the Press Telegram of news concerning various honor carriers.

Not long ago a photograph of 14 boys in the yearly bonus class was published, and included in the group was one boy who had carried papers for three years without a complaint, as well as several taking a bonus for two years in succession.

H. Nogle, formerly circulation manager of Dallas (Tex.) Journal and who has been assistant circulation manager of the Port Arthur News, is now circulation manager succeeding F. E. Bulloch who is now in the circulation department of the Houston Chronicle.

For two weeks ending March 27 the Brooklyn Daily Eagle carried on its first page what it termed the "Parade of the Features," printing there cartoons, comic strips and other matter usually carried on the inside feature pages. Comment and criticism were invited from Eagle readers, and prizes totalling $250 were offered for the best letters showing the reader's reaction to the change.

The Houston (Tex.) Post-Dispatch has inaugurated a circulation stunt by opening the "Post-Dispatch summer community," a lake shore project in which a lot 20x100 feet, with certain resort privileges, is sold to each six-months' subscriber for $69.50, payable at $9.50 down and the remainder at $3 per month. Besides the lot, the following are included in the purchase price: Equal use with other lot owners of entire waterfront, piers, boat landing and bath houses; membership in clubhouse; exclusive use with other lot owners of waterfront park.

"The Post-Dispatch is not in the real estate business," says the paper's announcement. "We only desire to render real service to our readers." The advertisement also announces that the paper's automobiles will meet trains nearby to take prospective purchasers to the property.

The New Bedford (Mass.) Standard is offering a contest for its subscribers which is a little out of the ordinary. Under the title of "Who and Why" a silhouette of a man or woman prominent in New Bedford life is being printed daily with a few words to assist in identification. A prize of $1 daily is offered for the best answers of 25 words telling who the person is. As a wit sharpener, the Standard's contest is meeting with great success.

Considerable interest among readers and non-readers was aroused recently by the Lawrence (Mass.) Eagle-Tribune in a harmonica contest to decide the champion of Greater Lawrence. The papers were assisted by the Broadway Theatre of that city and there were many contestants for the title. The public picked the winner and there were also prizes for the runners-up.

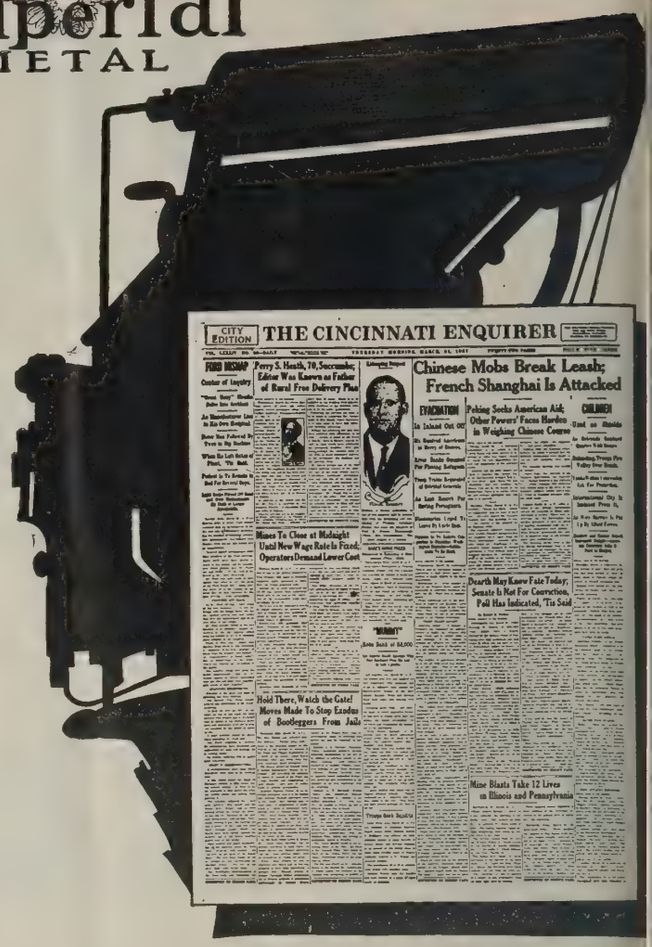
As a reward for obtaining ten new subscriptions to the Seattle Times, carriers for that paper were taken on an all day excursion to Portland, Ore., Sunday, April 10.

The twelfth annual Current Events Bee under the auspices of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle was held recently with 32 pupils from 16 high schools competing. The prize, a silver cup, has been won twice by Boys' High. The school winning it three times retains it permanently.

In connection with a new story it is printing, the Chicago Daily News is conducting a daily Daphne-Dil contest and awarding cash prizes totaling $25 each day for the best last lines to the Daphne-Dils—or limericks—printed.

The new story is "Daphne's in Love" by Negley Farson, a member of the foreign staff of the Daily News.

Manitoba Free Press



MOST PROFITABLE OPERATING

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

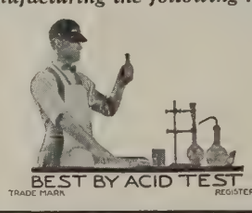
Ionic No. 5

Imperial METAL

The Cincinnati Enquirer Chooses the Plus Plan!

IMPERIAL is justly proud to serve this popular Cincinnati and southern Ohio newspaper through the medium of Imperial Metal serviced by the nationally known Imperial Plus Metal Plan.

In the plant of the Enquirer, as well as in the plants of thousands of other newspapers, the Plus Plan is working steadily day after day and year after year keeping type metal in splendid balance at all times, thus averting many troubles experienced in shops not serviced by this reliable economical Plan. In addition, it is postponing indefinitely the time when a new metal supply with its accompanying expenses will be needed.



If your shop is not on an Imperial Plus Metal Plan basis, by all means get a copy of the Plus Plan and learn its many economy advantages.

IMPERIAL TYPE METAL CO.

Manufacturing the following metals:

LINOTYPE
ELROD
INTERTYPE
LINOGRAPH

MONOTYPE
LUDLOW
STEREOTYPE
THOMPSON

Philadelphia
Cleveland

New York
Chicago

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

For April 23 and April 30

(The A. P. and A. N. P. A. Conventions Numbers) will possess a Reader Interest far out of the ordinary—commensurate with the timeliness, the importance, the brilliancy, and the permanent reference value of their contents

11,000 copies of each will be printed—11,000 copies of each will be read with avidity—at least 30,000 newspaper and advertising executives, the country over, will digest every page of each issue, every article, every interview, every news item

If you have anything to say to these readers as to how your product or your service can help them, there is no other place where you can say it to better advantage. But you must be quick! The Pre-Convention Number will be out one week from today.

A hearty welcome awaits you from EDITOR & PUBLISHER at its two Convention Headquarters—Room 116, Astor Gallery Floor, the Waldorf-Astoria, and Suite 1700, Times Building, Broadway at 42nd Street. Let both of them, please, play a large part in your comings and goings during the Conventions. And USE, please, all the conveniences we shall provide in both places for you and your friends.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Suite 1700, Times Building, New York

A. B. C.
Charter Member

A. B. P.
Member

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Bessie Bly Is Member of NEA Cartoon Staff—Mrs. Frances M. Ford Not Handicapped by Late Start on Chicago Daily News—Women to Address Advertising Agents

A MEMBER of the cartoon staff of NEA service is Bessie R. Bly, who recently made her debut into the world of comics with her domestic feature, "They're All Alike."

Bessie R. Bly

As a commercial and free-lance artist, Mrs. Bly has worked in several different cities since she began her career in Minneapolis, Minn., with an engraving company. She attracted attention in the west with her portrait work when she was only 20 and studying at the Hopkins School of Art in San Francisco.

From her interest in portrait painting grew a delight in satirical study of faces. Probably the chief appeal of her present work is the result of her close study of character and the caricatures which she first drew for her own amusement.

"I've been married nine years," she says, "and in that time we've lived in seven different cities and in everything from a tent to a ten-room house. Which proves that I've got a sense of humor and a background for ideas."

A late start in newspaper work did not handicap Mrs. Frances M. Ford, of the Chicago Daily News, who joined the staff of the Daily News after her 60th birthday, and today, at the age of 73, is at work daily on the same paper, wielding a powerful influence over policies on the home pages of the newspaper.

Mrs. Ford was brought to the Daily News by Victor F. Lawson to take charge of all news and special articles having to do with children and children's movements. She was especially fitted for the job as a result of her experience in child welfare work in Omaha, Des Moines, Philadelphia and other cities, in the course of which she was associated with John D. Morris and William Byron Forbush.

Mrs. Ford was married at the age of 19, after being educated at Wellsley College and Bryn Mawr, and is the mother of three daughters, two of whom are living. She has seven grandchildren.

While Mrs. Ford was living in Omaha the breakdown of her husband's health forced her to go to work. For a time she sang in a church choir, and was executive secretary of the woman's department of the Trans-Mississippi Exposition in 1898. Then she worked in Philadelphia, the home of her daughters, with the American Institute of Child Life. Her work took her all over the country, and it was in Philadelphia that she met Mr. Lawson, who made her the offer which started her out on a newspaper career when she was already a grandmother.

Mrs. Ford writes a signed article each week for the women's pages of the Daily News and is assistant to the music critic of the paper. She gathers her own material for her articles. She is intensely interested in child welfare, and also admits a fondness for the radio.

Minna Hall Carothers, president of the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs of the World, will be the principal speaker at the monthly dinner of the New York Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania April 21.

She is the first woman to address this group. Her talk will be "From Los Angeles to London," and will deal with the extent and work of women's advertising clubs.

She will be followed by Mrs. Katherine H. B. Mullally, a director of the League of Advertising Women of New York, who will talk on the college educational phases of advertising.

The monthly dinner of the New York League of Advertising Women on Tuesday evening, April 19, at the Advertising Club will cover the subject of public utilities advertising.

Miss Janet Scott, society editor, Albany (N. Y.) Evening News, is on a vacation in Bermuda.

Betty Brainerd, who writes the column "We Women," widely distributed by Associated Newspapers, Inc., is recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Ruth Branin is a new reporter on the staff of the Hagerstown (Md.) Morning Herald and Daily Mail.

Miss Betty M. Snyder, formerly on the Hagerstown (Md.) Daily Mail is now in charge of the children's page of the Baltimore Sunday Sun.

Miss Dorothy Kneisley is a new reporter on the Hagerstown (Md.) Evening Globe.

SMITH BUYS IN FLORIDA

Seymour (Ind.) Tribune Publisher New Owner of Lakeland Ledger

(By telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

Lakeland, Fla., April 11.—Jay C. Smith, publisher of the Seymour (Ind.) Tribune has purchased the stock of Charles G. Mullen and associates, Tampa, in the Lakeland Evening and Sun Ledger and will be actively identified with this newspaper, Sam H. Farabee, president and editor has just announced.

Bryan Mack, business manager, will retain his position and likewise will have a large financial interest in the publication.

Mr. Smith for more than 25 years editor and publisher in Indiana came to Florida two years ago for the first time and was "sold" on Lakeland. He entered his son Eugene in Southern College on his visits to Lakeland convinced him of the future of both the Ledger and the city.

The Ledger was established on April 22, 1924, by Earl Mullen and Sam H. Farabee who published newspapers in Hickory, N. C. Mr. Mullen left Lakeland a year ago to join the Tampa Daily Times of which his brother Charles H. Mullen is general manager. He was succeeded by Bryan Mack, formerly with the John H. Perry organization.

There will be no changes in the policy or personnel of the Ledger, it was stated.

In old-time journalism, the most frequently employed phrase was "A pleasant time was had." Today it is, "The latest edits escaped in a high-powered earthquake." Windsor (Ont.) Border Cities.

SACRAMENTO UNION
BUSINESS MAN DIES IN
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

FOR SALE!

Entire Present Press Equipment of

NEW YORK EVENING GRAPHIC

consisting of 4 Hoe X Pattern Lightning Sextuple Presses, with Rotary Blade High Speed Folders.

Now printing 5 Column Tabloid, but capable also of printing Standard 8 Column Newspapers.

This equipment is in first-class condition, and is being replaced because the City of New York has purchased the premises. Can be inspected running at any time prior to the GRAPHIC'S removal to their new SCOTT equipped plant.

If these machines do not suit your requirements, we can meet them with large or small machines of modern Unit or Decked type presses which we have in stock or for sale, all at reasonable prices. We also have in stock, used, both hand and automatic stereotyping equipment.

WALTER SCOTT & CO.

Manufacturers of

SCOTT "Multi-Unit" and "Straight-Unit" Presses

PLAINFIELD - - - NEW JERSEY

New York
1457 Broadway

Chicago
Monadnock Block

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

announces

for the issues of April 23 and April 30

(The Conventions Numbers)

One of the most humanly interesting documents of its kind ever given publication, namely

"THE AMAZING ADVENTURE OF THE 'STARS AND STRIPES'"

The Doughboy's Newspaper

Now told for the first time—and well worth the telling!

By DONALD L. STONE (Major M. I. Res.)

formerly Acting Chief of Press and Censorship, A. E. F.

The STARS & STRIPES won for itself an imperishable place in the history of both the country and newspaper journalism.

We all know about the STARS & STRIPES. How the soldiers loved it. How the whole world chuckled over it, quoted it, applauded it, wept over it.

But DO we know that it was one of the most remarkable successes among newspapers of any country or any time? That its circulation reached 530,000 copies weekly? That when it sounded taps, it turned over to the United States Government, in money and in property, $700,000? That it flourished under every conceivable handicap? That it conquered unbelievable difficulties in problems of production, circulation, censorship, century-old precedents? That it cemented into one vast army, with a sense of common purpose, three million men? That after the war, hundreds of thousands of copies of books were sold made up of material that first appeared in its columns?

All this, and much more of similar interest Major Stone has written out of the experience of the men who carried on this most remarkable achievement by American newspaper men in Wartime France.

Watch For This Story

And tell your newspaper and Ex-Service men friends about it NOW—so they can read it in these two issues.

On sale at principal newsstands in 90 cities at 10c a copy. Orders may be left with any responsible newsdealer. Or copies may be had at the same price, postpaid, from the publishers,

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Suite 1700, Times Building, New York

REPRESENTING THE NEWSPAPERS

O. C. Harn of A. B. C. Calls Specials "Balance Wheels of Publishing Field"—Gessford Planning Dinner for Agency Men—L. J. Delaney Now with W. W. Chew

THE special representative is a "balance wheel" in the publishing and advertising field. His important work is to steady the views of his principals with disinterested advice. He is bound to play a big part in the development of sounder business practices. These were some of the thoughts expressed by Orlando C. Harn, managing director of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, when speaking April 11 at a luncheon of the Newspaper Representatives Association of Chicago, held at the Woman's City Club.

George Noee, of Cone-Rothenberg-Noee, president of the Association, presided. The Chicago Association vies with the New York association for first place in point of size among the special representatives' organizations of the country. It has 53 members who act for 700 newspapers, published outside of Chicago. It is estimated that about 80 per cent of these belong to the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

"The special representative is a very valuable factor in working out improvement in publishing and advertising conditions. While he represents the publisher and therefore naturally has the publisher's point of view, he is in a position to take a broader view than the individual publisher on specific problems. This is because he has the interests of several principals at heart. He can see how they all would be affected if the pet plan of some one of them should be made effective generally.

"In this way he acts as a balance wheel. His detached viewpoint is valuable to the particular publisher with whom he feels himself forced to disagree, for he can save his principal from making disastrous mistakes. The close associates of that principal may be 'yes men', either because they wish to curry favor or because they honestly and naturally see the thing from the same narrow viewpoint of the boss. But the special representative dares not be a 'yes man,' because agreement on a certain pet plan of one principal may lead him to do his other principals an unpardonable injury.

"I look to see the special representatives play a big part in the development of sounder practices which I believe is already underway."

J. Douglas Gessford, general manager of Newark Suburban Newspapers, a special agency, is planning a dinner to be held at the Down Town Club in Newark about the end of this month for the newspaper publishers he represents and the advertisers and agency men in the Newark territory. Newark Suburban Newspapers was organized by Mr. Gessford last November when he resigned as publisher of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung. Associated with him is John A. Dey, former advertising manager of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung. His agency now represents a list of nearly 30 New Jersey dailies in the Newark suburban area.

L. J. Delaney, formerly space buyer of the Thresher Service, Inc., New York advertising agency, is now associated with W. W. Chew, newspaper representative in New York. Mr. Delaney was at one time eastern manager of the Audit Bureau of Circulations and has also been connected with Dorrance Sullivan & Co., and the F. Wallis Armstrong Company, Philadelphia.

The Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Sunday Independent has appointed Hamilton-Delisser, Inc., as national advertising representatives, effective May 1.

W. E. Stevens, president of the Pomona (Cal.) Progress-Bulletin, has announced that M. C. Mogensen & Co. will be the national advertising representatives of the paper which was consolidated last week.

Charles E. Miller, publishers' representative, will move April 18 from 225 Fifth avenue, New York, to the Times Building at 42nd street and Broadway.

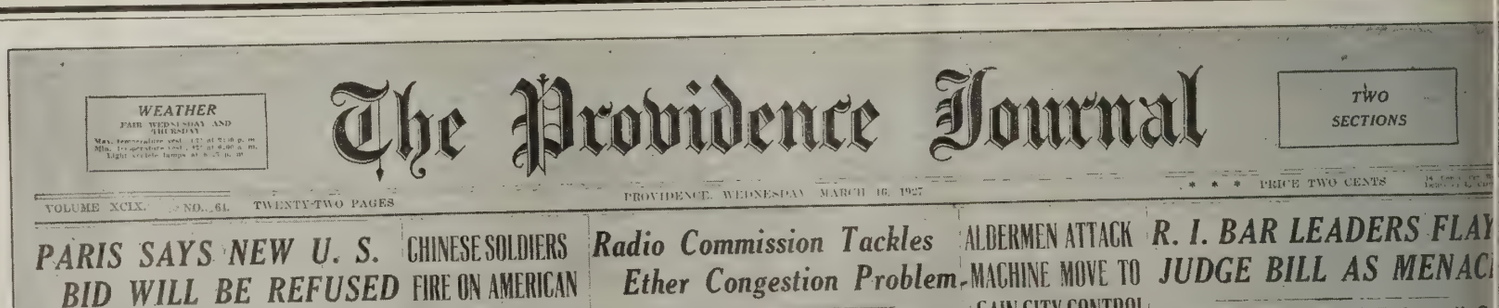
Business for newspapers this year will be good but more spotty than last year in the opinion of Leicester DeLisser, of Hamilton-DeLisser, Inc., national advertising representatives. Mr. DeLisser said he had made a check of his client newspapers and found that the average gain for the first three months of this year had been 18 per cent over last year. There are 30 newspapers on this agency's list.

Robert V. Merrick, formerly of the advertising staff of the Boston Herald-Traveler, has resigned to join the George A. McDevitt Company. He will represent the Boston Herald-Traveler, Cleveland News and New Orleans Item-Tribune in the New York office of the McDevitt company.

Powers and Stone, Inc., Chicago, has been appointed by the publishers of Screenland as their Western representatives. These same representatives will handle Screenland in New England, which will be covered by John Powers. Howard P. Stone will have active charge of Screenland's representation in the West, with headquarters in Chicago.

"When in Rome do as the Romans do" is no longer advice; it's a command.—Wall Street Journal.

SPENDER GIVEN FELLOWSHI



Will Study U. S. Journalism as W Hines Page Fellow

J. Alfred Spender, former edito the Westminister Gazette, will be tn ond British journalist to visit the U States to study American life an American press under the auspic the English-Speaking Union, it wa nounced Wednesday at a luncheo the Committee on Our American paper Fellowships of the Union. will hold the first Senior Fello Thomas T. E. Cadett, former su tor of the London Times, hold Junior Fellowship. Both fellowshi in memory of Walter Hines Page

In announcing the first recipie the Senior Fellowship, Sir Ca Stuart, vice-chairman of the co-ope British committee which nominat Fellows, said that in co-operation the English-Speaking Union of the ish Empire, the London Times ha provided a reciprocal fellowship to a young American journalist to s year similarly in Great Britain.

Mr. Spender will arrive in New next October for a three months' s

LINOTYPE IONIC No. 5

One of the 225 newspapers that have adopted Linotype Ionic No. 5, the new type-face that combines greater legibility with the same or a greater word count.

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Mergenthaler Linotype Company

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED TORONTO, CAN.

Brooklyn, New York

CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO
NEW ORLEANS

REPRESENTATIVES IN THE PRINCIPAL CITIES OF THE WORLD

LINOTYPED IN THE CLOISTER FAMILY AND NARCISS EXCEPT HAND SET TITLE LINE

Do Your Salesmen need help in Pennsylvania?

IF your salesmen only touch the high spots when selling in the Pennsylvania Market, you are unquestionably losing thousands of dollars' worth of business annually.

Why don't you enlist the aid of these newspapers listed below? They all have excellent merchandising departments and they can help your salesmen reach all the buyers in their respective territories. They are in constant touch with the dealers and the jobbers. They know them personally and enjoy their confidence.

The newspapers can furnish you with trade lists. They can tell you what dealers favor window displays. They can show you how to cover the territory quickly and economically. In other words, they can help you sell your goods to the dealer and consumer. They are waiting for your inquiry. Do not hesitate to write them.

		Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call	(M)	34,660	.11	.11
Allentown Call	(S)	23,813	.11	.11
††Beaver Falls Tribune	(E)	7,141	.03	.03
†††Bethlehem Globe Times	(E)	13,272	.06	.06
††Brownsville Telegraph	(E)	7,818	.04	.04
*Chester Times	(E)	19,742	.09	.07
†Coatesville Record	(E)	6,834	.035	.03
*Connellsville Courier	(E)	5,652	.02	.02
Easton Express	(E)	34,476	.10	.10
Erie Times	(E)	30,594	.08	.08
††Greensburg Tribune Review	(EM)	14,800	.05	.05
††Hazleton Plain Speaker / ††Hazleton Standard-Sentinel	(E) / (M)	20,582	.08	.07
*Mount Carmel Item	(E)	4,340	.0285	.0285
Oil City Derrick	(M)	6,903	.04	.04
Pottsville Republican and Morning Paper	(EM)	15,887	.08	.07
Scranton Times	(E)	43,000	.13	.12
*Sharon Herald	(E)	7,456	.0357	.0357
Sunbury Daily Item	(E)	5,922	.035	.035
*Warren Mirror-Times	(ME)	9,291	.043	.043
*Washington Observer and Reporter	(M&E)	17,384	.06	.06
††West Chester Local News	(E)	11,941	.04	.04
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader	(E)	26,442	.08	.06
††Williamsport Sun and Gazette & Bulletin	(ME)	29,931	.09	.09
†York Dispatch	(E)	19,955	.05	.05

*A. B. C. Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1927.
†Government Statement, Oct. 1, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1927.
†††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Entertaining the Readers of Promotion Advertisements—Daily Prepares Book on "How to Answer a Want Ad"—Do You Tell Prospects About "Protective Unknowns?"

TO make the advertisements so clever that they will be read because of the entertainment they give independent of the purpose they serve is the idea behind a daily feature of the Baltimore Sun and the Evening Sun setting forth the efficacy of the classified advertisements of these papers.

RICHARD Q. YARDLEY

And the ads turn the trick.

All the cleverness the pencil of the artist can put into the line cuts run at the top of the daily copy is used to attract the eye. Richard Q. Yardley, creator of the strip illustrating the history of the World War, makes the drawings.

The text, set in a modification of what is called "fifty-word technique" is sharpened by the wit of the writer for the purpose of making the words tell a story which anyone will read for the fun he gets out of reading it, whether he has any idea of using the classified advertising columns or not. The copy is written by Charles Douglas Sergeant, who got his training in the reportorial departments of the Sun and the Evening Sun.

CHARLES D. SERGEANT

The feature has become one of the most entertaining of the two Baltimore papers. People read it just for the fun they get out of it. By this means the classified advertising columns, their uses and their efficiency is written into the commen mind of the community of Baltimore.

Following are some examples of the work:

A cartoon of Thor, the thunder god, dashing madly over the clouds in his chariot, with the following text:

"Thor was a Norse God
Of Mythology.
"When it Thundered it was reputed to be Thor driving his Chariot across the Skies.
"According to legend he could stir up more noise
than a modern radio.
"Down at 414 Key Highway
the other day Thor's thunder was put to shame.
About 60 Sunpaper Classified
Readers were thundering into the offices of Mr.
F. A. Lazenby.
They were answering an ad
Mr. Lazenby had placed in the Help Wanted Columns of the Sunpapers for a salesman.
Out of the scramble, Mr.
Lazenby secured his salesmen and is well satisfied with his Sunpaper results.
Let the Help Wanted Columns of the Sunpapers settle your help problems.
Just lift the receiver and phone Plaza 7700.

To advertise the value of the Business Opportunity Columns, the following copy was offered:

Dame Opportunity
knocks but once they say.
Not so out at 724
Washington Boulevard.
Mr. H. M. Sandrock, who resides at the above address, is convinced that she will knock a dozen times if she is invited.
He issued her an invitation through the Business Opportunity
Columns of Sunpaper Classified.
Mr. Sandrock wanted to rent the Silver Creek
Lodge, on the Annapolis Blvd.
Dame Opportunity answered his invitation, twelve strong in the form of replies to his advertisement.
Invite Dame Opportunity to knock on your door through the Business Opportunity Columns of Sunpaper Classified.
Mr. Sandrock found his results extremely satisfying.
Phone Plaza 7700.

The fact that human interest can easily be found in classified advertisements is plainly shown by this copy which appeared recently, cleverly illustrated:

Vivisectionists had been abroad on North Calvert Street.
The huge wooden
Indian that stands
in front of the cigar store at 356
N. Calvert St. lost
an arm around Christmas.
Mrs. E. Boettigheimer who owns the cigar store and its wooden advertisement, wanted the missing arm back in its proper place.
So she placed a small advertisement in the Lost and Found
Columns of the Sunpapers.
The finder of the arm saw the advertisement and returned the missing member to her
the other day.
"Am very glad to have it back," she says
An advertisement in the Lost and Found
Columns of the Sunpapers
is the surest method
of letting the finder,
of anything that you lose, know how to return
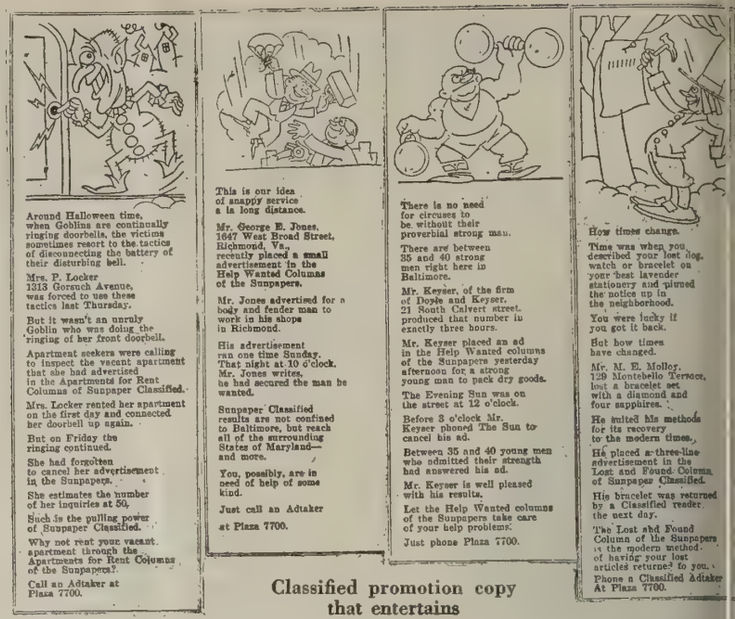
it to you.



L. L. Heaton, classified advertising manager of the New York Herald Tribune, has had a circular printed under the title of "How to Answer a Want Ad." In this example of service to classified customers, the two selling points put across are: "If you need a position or if you feel you are ready for a better position than the one you now hold, consult the New York Herald Tribune." The advice on answering want ads includes suggestions on neatness, completeness, conciseness, proper order, ability, personality, references, and how to mention your last job.

Samples of good and bad letters are reproduced. Mr. Heaton, in a concluding paragraph, offers to give advice in person or by letter to anyone applying to him at the Herald Tribune office.

In classified solicitation do you ever tell prospects about the "protective unknowns?"

C. W. Horn, classified advertising manager of the New York American, has defined this expression as follows:

"The protective unknowns are the many things that enter into the advertising equation and that actually preserve classified advertising for everyone by the inability of any few to monopolize its value through the discovery of some secret formula that guarantees results. The one great utility of classified is that no barriers of discrimination can be raised by a few to affect its value to the many."

Around Halloween time, when Goblins are continually ringing doorbells, the victims sometimes resort to the tactics of disconnecting the battery of their disturbing bell.

Mrs. P. Locker
1313 Gorsuch Avenue, was forced to use these tactics last Thursday.

But it wasn't an unruly
Goblin who was doing the ringing of her front doorbell.

Apartment seekers were calling to inspect the vacant apartment that she had advertised in the Apartments for Rent
Columns of Sunpaper Classified.

Mrs. Locker rented her apartment on the first day and connected her doorbell up again.

But on Friday the ringing continued.

She had forgotten to cancel her advertisement in the Sunpapers.

She estimates the number of her inquiries at 50.

Such is the pulling power of Sunpaper Classified.

Why not rent your vacant apartment through the Apartments for Rent Columns of the Sunpapers?

Call an Adtaker at Plaza 7700.

This is our idea
of snappy service
a la long distance.

Mr. George E. Jones,
1647 West Broad Street,
Richmond, Va.,
recently placed a small
advertisement in the
Help Wanted Columns
of the Sunpapers.

Mr. Jones advertised for a body and fender man to work in his shops in Richmond.

His advertisement
ran one time Sunday.
That night at 10 o'clock.
Mr. Jones writes,
he had secured the man he wanted.

Sunpaper Classified
results are not confined to Baltimore, but reach all of the surrounding States of Maryland—and more.

You, possibly, are in need of help of some kind.

Just call an Adtaker
at Plaza 7700.

There is no need for circuses to be without their proverbial strong man.

There are between 35 and 40 strong men right here in Baltimore.

Mr. Keyser, of the firm of Doyle and Keyser,
21 South Calvert street, produced that number in exactly three hours.

Mr. Keyser placed an ad in the Help Wanted columns of the Sunpapers yesterday afternoon for a strong young man to pack dry goods.

The Evening Sun was on the street at 12 o'clock.

Before 3 o'clock Mr.
Keyser phoned The Sun to cancel his ad.

Between 35 and 40 young men who admitted their strength had answered his ad.

Mr. Keyser is well pleased with his results.

Let the Help Wanted columns of the Sunpapers take care of your help problems.

Just phone Plaza 7700.

How times change.

Time was when you
described your lost dog, watch or bracelet on your best lavender stationery and pinned
the notice up in the neighborhood.

You were lucky if you got it back.

But how times have changed.

Mr. M. E. Moller,
129 Montebello Terrace, lost a bracelet set with a diamond and four sapphires.

He suited his methods for its recovery
to the modern times.

He placed a three-line
advertisement in the
Lost and Found Columns of Sunpaper Classified.

His bracelet was returned by a Classified reader
the next day.

The Lost and Found
Column of the Sunpapers
is the modern method of having your lost articles returned to you.

Phone a Classified Adtaker
At Plaza 7700.

Classified promotion copy that entertains

An exceptional run in classified advertising for this time of year is reported by J. O. Liebig, classified advertising manager of the Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer. A recent edition of the Intelligencer carried nearly seven pages of classified, including classified display, a new high record for this paper.

The members of the rental section of the classified advertising department of the Los Angeles (Cal.) Examiner, held a banquet and entertainment April 9. The affair celebrated a record volume of rental advertisements carried in the Examiner.

Gordon E. Blade, who recently resigned as manager of the classified advertising department of the Fresno (Cal.) Republican, has taken charge of advertising and sales for a Fresno firm dealing in farm machinery.

NEWSPRINT PRICE UNCHANGED

International Paper Company Makes Annual Report

There will be no change in the newsprint contract price for 1927, Archibald R. Graustein, president of the International Paper Company, announced this week. The present price is $65 a ton.

"Overproduction, or rather excess capacity for newsprint production, will result in newsprint mills being run at a considerably lower average in 1927 than in 1926," Mr. Graustein said.

Net earnings of the company and its subsidiaries amounted to $3,275,000 in 1926, equal, after preferred dividends, to $2.15 a share on common stock, compared with $2,550,301 or $1.14 a share in 1925. Gross sales last year were $60,177,334 against $51,379,070 the year before. Total production of paper was 740,142 a new high record. The increase earnings were made despite a redu in the price of newsprint from $70 to $65.

HOWELL NAMED TO COMMIT

Clark Howell, editor of the A Constitution, was this week nam member of a committee on Pardon, bation, Penal Laws and Institutional rection of the National Crime Co sion. The appointment was mad former Gov. Frank O. Lowden linois.

Another mystery is how the men white-collar jobs can afford to have laundered.—El Paso Times.

Our Customers Write Our A

EUGENE, OREGON, MORNING STAR Says—

"We are running a color com as well as using color on cu and ads, and the flexibility our DUPLEX TUBULA press in this feature is a stron point for it."

DUPLEX PRESSES

FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press C
BATTLE CREEK, MICH

The Evening Journal

KILLS CITY MARSH LAND TA
ALISTS SHIFT ATTACK TO

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

MR. EDITOR:
You can increase circulation with Motion Pictures!

Bass has shown dozens of newspapers how to use motion pictures in conjunction with local events. Pulls big!

Write today for information about the marvelous new B. & H. Eyemo. Automatic hand-held camera for professional motion pictures. Also detailed data, cost of producing and free catalogues.

Bass Camera Co.
109 North Dearborn Street
EYEMO DIVISION CHICAGO, ILL.

Sell COLUMBUS and the G·C·O·M

During 1926 The Columbus Dispatch carried more agate lines of paid advertising than any other Ohio newspaper.

Advertisers who use The Daily Columbus Dispatch are guaranteed a total net paid circulation of 106,814. . . . . Many, many thousands more than any other Columbus newspaper.

Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

SESQUI PUBLICITY MAN "CONFESSES ALL"

(Continued from page 5)

le from killing themselves by slipping olished floors.

In columns of propaganda from the mittee on Public Relations of the ern Railroads.

lo long pages from the American mobile Association. Pure folderol.

irty-nine typrewritten pages from the d Advertising Corporation of llo, playing up their pet automobiles.

e pages of motor truck "news" the Republic Motor Truck Com- containing complete specifications.

ee pages from the Modern Science tute on "Scientific Air Condition- bidding for space under the head- "Monkeys Exult with Lions over Climate for Zoo."

page, a regular arrival from Lon- playing up the Savoy Hotel under eading: "Try this way of mak- our cocktails last—Strange cere- in London."

ee pages of unsigned copy in which unlop tire people attempt to grab column.

ull page from the press agent in r National Park on "Squaws in ers."

ee pages on the Cadillac.

pages on the Swiss Industries ith a signed letter from a consular in New York.

e pages from the National Associa- f Travelers Aid Societies.

startling page from the Women's Union demanding the recall of all forces in China.

e pages of bla bla from the al Community Foundations—what- at may be.

contributions (?) labelled "News " from the Carnegie Institute of logy.

pages from the "Press Aid De- nt" of the United States Lines, aboard ocean liners.

merable clip sheets from various nes.

rtising in the guise of news from nmissioners of the Palisades Inter- ark.

umn and a half from the American Joint Distribution Committee on an War Orphans.

just a score of others.

a single one of these things, by ok or crook can be classed as honestly entitled to consideration. , lots of it gets by in many offices. w days ago a piece of copy came from the Inter-Ocean Syndicate ago. It was a page story on the ute earnings of various persons e laborer to the president. It f the value of minutes but the as hidden away in the mention lock-makers of the United States necessity of having a clock in m in the house.

tory itself, with the clockmakers wasn't bad, and we used it that t imagine my surprise the next n I saw the story in its original another newspaper under an ine. The mighty A. P. falling ress agent—a little astounding, so astounding after all when I k upon the Sesqui days and re- the A. P. fell for a good many reams of my own propaganda, crude as it was.

It just goes to show that there is no complete immunity from the space grabber. Eternal vigilance is the only price of safety.

In analyzing this press agent stuff from the editor's viewpoint, one must remember first of all that the publisher is downright unfair to the legitimate advertiser who pays money for space, if he permits the press agent to get the same thing for nothing, for competing firms and organizations.

If one company pays so much a line to tell the story about its automobile, why should another manufacturer who perhaps does not advertise, be permitted to sneak in free with the same story in another form?

I have had newspaper men tell me that it is difficult to draw the line between press agent stuff and legitimate news and features. But I cannot agree. There is a simple rule which adequately covers the situation and it is this:

First, be suspicious of every sheet of strange copy.

Second, delete trade names, manufacturers' names, all mention of pet ideas and schemes, and if there is anything left, toss it in the w. p. b.

The radio broadcasters today are among the worst offenders in this nation-wide attack upon the news columns of this country. I have been informed on excellent authority that the high-powered salesmen for the radio broadcasting concerns have the gall to guarantee; guarantee, mind you, that in addition to the time on the air, the advertiser will get a minimum of so many free mentions of his name in the printed radio programs as carried in the newspapers.

These radio space grabbers are one of my own particular pets, and never a week goes by that the Happiness Boys, the Eveready fraternity, the Society for the Prevention of Cannibalism in Africa and all the rest of them don't get knocked for six rows of blue-penciled loops.

And the thing I can't understand about it is the bucket of tears which the radio editor sheds over the deletions. He seems to think that the paper will go to the dogs; that no one will read his stuff. But the notion strikes me that it is high time to call a halt to the Jesse James boys who sneak in through the radio columns, especially when they have the men of our own staffs in a mood like this.

Radio editors everywhere have gotten away with murder in the past, and the radio space thieves have become unusually brazen in the face of this situation. Just recently in my own radio man's heart-to-heart talk with his fans, I ran across a paragraph in which he not only mentioned by name the make of meters he used in his test work, but added on top of it that they were the best in the world.

And this radio man, who would gleefully murder a press agent in any other field, isn't yet convinced that his meter talk wasn't a legitimate piece of news.

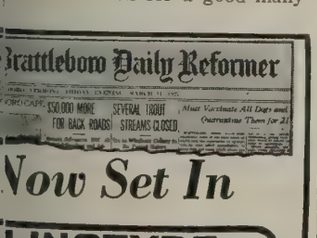
It has required constant battle, but I believe our own radio columns today are as clean as the well-known driven snow, and give a fair and square break to those concerns and individuals who legitimately use our space.

Another constant menace is the movie theatre and the never-ending request for free reading notices to accompany advertisements. I know of one newspaper which continues to print these notices free, but with a step in the right direction, by putting them under a head—"What the managers say about their shows."

Not many newspapers have gone that far but still fewer can match the little system we have on the Herald of billing the theatres at regular rates for the space consumed by movie readers. It took nerve, you will agree, and a little battling to break down the traditions of years in this respect, but after all, a little nerve can accomplish wonders. The only falling off we have noticed is in the number of "Annie Oakleys" which arrive in the Monday mail. If the editors and publishers would show half the nerve the press agents show, the great publicity racket would go to the dogs in no time at all.

If it is legitimate to give a theatre advertiser a few "sticks" of free space just because he runs an ad, then how can a publisher honestly draw the line when the butcher, the baker, the furniture store, the garage, and all the rest of the gang come running in with the same request?

Our solution of the problem was to draw no distinctions and the result has been a newspaper divided honestly and cleanly into two sections—advertising and news; fair to the advertiser and fair to the reader.



The free half-way stuff has been done away with. We simply don't stand for it, and if the advertising men cannot sell an ad without giving away a premium in the shape of free space, then we don't want the ad.

After more than a year as a publicity "expert," my fellow agents upon learning that I was to return to an honest living, indicated their belief that henceforth I would be extremely partial to the "men of vision" and the stuff they created.

But they guessed wrong. This is my period of atonement, my era of rock 'em and sock 'em, in which I crave the forgiveness of sins and the resurrection of an honest-to-goodness line between news and advertising.

If you want to lick the press agent menace, this thieving of space, just remember the formula of my old boss, Bob Bentley—

And if it sticks, print it!

Now Set In

LINOTYPE MARK

nic No. 5

now over 300,000
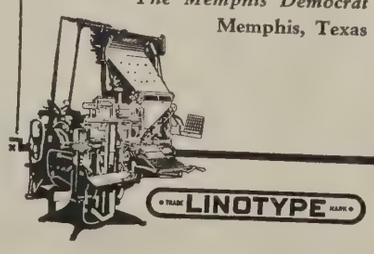
Daily and Sunday
Average Circulation
NEW YORK
Tribune
Herald

From the Linotype Mailbag



PROMPT SERVICE

700 Miles from New Orleans in 28 Hours

Allow us to congratulate you upon prompt service rendered from your shipping department. We telegraphed for a machine part at 2 p.m. Friday and received same Saturday night at 6:40. We are located a distance of approximately seven hundred miles from New Orleans.

Service of this kind is indeed appreciated and will help to hold the Linotype in the lead. We thank you.

The Memphis Democrat
Memphis, Texas

Steady Increase

The York, Pa., Gazette & Daily had an income from national advertising in 1926 three times as large as their income in 1920.

The rugged strength and character of this paper have made this record possible.

Howland and Howland

Newspaper Representatives
New York Chicago Phila.

"Fair Dealing begets good feeling"

CLIP HERE

Howland and Howland,

New York Office,
393 Seventh Avenue
(Equitable Life Bldg.
Opposite Penn Station)

Gentlemen:

Please send some one to study our field and give an opinion regarding our possibilities for national advertising.

Name .....

Address .....

SHOP TALK AT THIRTY

By MARLEN PEW

AN editorial writer, always a rather contemptuous critic of the garden variety of reporter, recently compared the versions carried by a number of New York newspapers on a single event. All were different, yet in our view all told the same story. When Kerensky stepped out on a platform to make a speech a woman approached him with a bunch of flowers in her hand. Instead of pinning the rose on him, however, she slapped his face. The news reports written of this incident differed in detail. Some said she slapped him twice. Some said he stood as if dumbfounded. Some said he staggered backward, as if to fall. His face was pale or his face showed no trace of emotion. The editorial writer evidently sought to show that the reportorial art is not highly developed, that newspapers cannot be trusted to tell the exact truth even when the news is evidential or that no two men can describe the same thing alike.

* * *

THE fact is that men do not write identical descriptions, often not even similar descriptions, of events occurring in their view because men do not see the same things, or the same things alike. Good observers see more than poor observers. The higher the intelligence the more one sees. The woman may have struck Kerensky twice, or once. If she struck him but once the repeat slap that some described was an exaggeration. But the truth probably is that she struck him twice and only a few saw the second swipe. The woman hated Kerensky for a supreme reason in feminine psychology—her lover, a Czarist officer, had been killed by Kerensky's forces during the revolution. Since the opportunity was there to strike twice we are inclined to believe, in the circumstances, that the double blow version was correct. How Kerensky took the blows was, of course, subject to varied interpretation. If two thousand people witnessed the incident there would, no doubt, be two thousand descriptions of the degree to which his face turned pale or red and whether he stepped back as if about to fall or stood his ground like a courageous man.

* * *

AN amusing indoor game is to get a roomful of people attempting to describe an incident which all have witnessed. The result of such an experiment is a tip-off on the descriptive powers of these amateur reporters. It is astonishing how much more some will see than others. In such a test a woman entered a room, sat for a moment in a chair and departed. A business man described the action as follows: "At 9:14 p. m. Mrs. Blank came into the room. She sat down and then went out." But a talented 16-year-old girl wrote two hundred words to describe the action. She pictured Mrs. Blank and her surroundings. She remembered how she had sat in the chair, with grace and dignity. The quality of her step, the fleeting expressions on her face, her dress and ornamentation all impressed the child and she accurately described them. Perhaps the business man thought the little girl a bit of a faker, but she had only seen more than he. Test the descriptive qualities of the children of your circle by playing this game at the dinner table. Some surprises may await you indicating how active or faulty are your own powers of perception.

* * *

GOOD stories go to the chopping block in every office every day because many reporters do not get under the facts, have no descriptive ability, work under severe space limitations or are chilled by the snap judgments of editors and copy readers. To many reporters the art of picturing events is rarely or ever exercised. Story writing is merely filling in the names, addresses and bare facts as if on a form. There are plenty of successful newspapers that never publish colorful stories and their editors have a right to challenge me, but I still believe that a good story, well told, is the best blood of the newspaper.

* * *

ALFRED T. NEWBERRY recently wrote a description of a negro hanging which was remarkable for detailed reporting. Mr. Newberry does not reveal whether he was an actual spectator or got his story from a Baltimore Sun man whom he merely identifies as "John." But his story possesses unusual qualities and if he wrote it from imagination he is a wizard. The negro had been convicted of the atrocious murder of a Goucher College student and the hanging was scheduled to occur in the Baltimore county jail, located at Towson, Maryland. Following is Mr. Newberry's account, written for "Shop Talk."

* * *

"REPORTER JOHN was selected by the Baltimore Sun to cover the story. John had never seen a hanging and after work, at midnight, he loafed about town awaiting the hour when he should start the eight-mile drive to the county seat and witness the event, due to occur at sunrise. Two other staff men, Richard L. Field, now of New York Herald Tribune, and Richard S. Dodson, Jr., of New York Graphic, were also to attend. After eating in an all-night dairy lunch-room the three started in one of the Sun's flivvers for Towson.

* * *

"SHERIFF BROWN went to his bed at 11 o'clock, a tired man. He had instructed his wife to call him at four and had sent final word to the lone guard to keep a watchful eye and have coffee ready in the morning for the newspaper boys and especially invited guests. The guard spent the night in a lounging position on a chair, facing the cells.

"Friday was an important day on the calendar at Towson. A negro was to hang in mid-air in the jail-yard at sunrise for attacking a college girl. The negro slept soundly in the first cell during the night. A knock on the door resounded above the assorted tempos of snores of prisoners and the guard. The latter stirred. Another knock fully awakened the keeper. A man stepped into the prison. He was a reporter. Showing his credentials he took a chair. The guard seemed slightly disgruntled. The condemned man turned over. Guard and reporter looked into the cell. The condemned man was still sleeping. Hours dragged on, as hours will. More reporters arrived. The ante-room began to fill up. Presently it was announced that no more would be permitted to enter. Those on the outside began to show all sorts of credentials. Some said they were deputy sheriffs, others relatives of the sheriff, others friends of influential persons. The guard held ground—no more!

* * *

"DAY broke. Hundreds had gathered outside. It became a happy throng, laughing, singing, whistling. The prisoner continued to sleep sound. The voices of the reporters, the deep roars of the guard, the excited voices outside had no effect. A Baptist and a Presbyterian minister entered and were permitted to go beyond the barred door. They stood in front of the condemned man's cell, waiting for him to stir. A man brought in a basket of food from a restaurant, the prisoner's last meal. The form in the cell remained motionless. No one dared awaken him.

* * *

"THE sun rose high in the heavens. Many of those in the crowd outside became boisterous. They were y-

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration
The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.
The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.
N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

20,276,943
1926 advertising linage
18% increase January, February 1927 over same period 1926.
EVENING COURIER
MORNING POST
Camden, N. J.
Story, Brooks & Finley, Nat. Rep.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America
Buffalo—a profitable Market for Advertisers
Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the
BUFFALO EVENING NEWS
Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes
EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor and Publisher
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia
Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Waterman Bldg. Boston

Detroit
Fourth Largest City
Complete coverage with one paper.
The Detroit News
Offers advertiser unusual opportunitie

Thorough Coverage in One of th World's Richest Buying Centers—Coupled with the Ability t Produce Results
Pittsburgh Gazette Tim
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
PITTSBURGH CHRONICLE TELEGRA
(Evening except Sunday)
These newspapers in News and Adve tising have the confidence of th readers.
Their readers have the power purchase.
Sold Singly or Combined
URBAN E. DICE, Nat'l Advg. Mgr. Gazette Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.
E. M. BURKE, Inc., 1457 Broadway, New York. 122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago. Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL COMPANY, 742 Market Street, San Francisco, Ca Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal. White-Henry-Stuart Bldg., Seattle, Wa

Peoria
The Try-Out Cit
THE PEORIA
JOURNAL
Transcrip
Puts Tryouts Over!
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Boston

g that they had to go to work and anted to know how much longer they ist wait. The prisoner awakened. He ered through the bars, smiling to eryone. All looked at him with hor-r. 'I am not a bit hungry,' he an-unced, stretching himself, 'give that eakfast to the white man in the next l.' The basket was carried to the ad-ning cell and the food was placed at opening where the white man could ich it. But he huddled in the far cor-r of his cell. All eyes were on the gro. He dressed in new clothes that relatives had brought to him. The nisters entered the cell, the guard lock-them in. The clean-shaven sheriff eared and began serving the coffee all who could drink. Spoons iked against the cups. The prison s hushed by a song in the first cell, ius, I Come.' The sheriff remarked the newspaper men, 'That's him, the d one.' The singing continued. The wd outside found a leader and began tear down the improvised scaffold en-ure. The crowd demanded that the oner be brought out.

* * *

HEADS were bowed in the sheriff's ante-room. 'He was a good pris-r and I did everything to make his days comfortable,' said the sheriff. re were tears in his eyes. He sobbed id. A couple of reporters pulled out dkerchiefs ostensibly to wipe their s but let them slip across their eyes. ministers asked to be released from cell. They were. They told the rd that they were ready. He told the iff. The sheriff said, 'All right.' where's the hood and straps?' asked guard. 'That's right,' acknowledged sheriff, who pushed his way through reporters and witnesses to reach age on his desk. He unwrapped the k death coverings and handed them to guard. They were fastened. The isters resumed singing, the negro's r voice joining in. They all marched n the walk leading to the rear exit. sheriff opened another door and an-nced to the crowd outside, 'He's com-

* * *

T was 7:30. The crowd outside had thinned some. Many had left to c in the fields or factories. The re-ining crowd was disorderly. They d the prisoner. Up on a hill, in the nce, some of the society clique could en astride horses. They were look-down into the jail yard. The crowd d close to the scaffold. Some yelled some cursed. Sheriffs wrestled with of the more unruly. The prisoner about to follow the Baptist minister ie steps of the scaffold when a man, ger in town, who is paid to pull asked 'Where's the rope?' A h was made for the sheriff. He was l in the jail, giving certain favored ners an ideal location from which to the execution. 'The rope, sheriff; want the rope,' said a self-appointed nger. 'That's right,' replied the ng Mr. Brown and he hurried to ffice and handed the messenger a f hemp. The man carrying the rope ed a cheer as he appeared. The g was resumed. The man with the said, 'I beg your pardon' as he d in front of the negro to get to caffold steps. He hastened up and to adjust the noose. 'How tall is he called down. Someone replied, 'About five foot, eight inches.' Minutes passed. The crowd taunted the prisoner. A couple of drunken men started to push toward him, but others held them back. The noose was fixed and the man on the scaffold beckoned. The prisoner, holding the hands of the two ministers, one leading and one following, ascended the steps. The noose was applied. The hood was now drawn down tight over his head, eclipsing a smile. The negro was told to move over on the trap. He did and his heels clicked together. Both ministers were reading different verses from Bibles when the trap was sprung. Three times the body was lowered. Each time physicians stepped up and listened and said the man was still alive. The driver of the hearse started his engine. 'Don't go away now, he'll be dead in a few minutes,' the sheriff yelled. The driver answered he was only warming up his motor.

* * *

"JOHN remembered the space all of the papers, except one, had given the previous hanging. It was that of Isaiah Fountain in Easton, on Maryland's Eastern Shore. He knew the circumstances in this case were almost parallel to that in the Fountain case. Fountain was a negro. He had attacked a white girl. John returned to the office but the editor said 'Just give it a stick.' The article merely stated the man was hanged and gave the time the trap was sprung and when he was pronounced dead.

* * *

"IT seemed as if the old Baltimore Star were a poignant spectre at the Towson hanging for it was this paper, pride of the late General Felix Agnus, which exposed the cruelties imposed upon Isaiah Fountain and brought about the law concentrating all hangings in the state of Maryland at the Maryland Penitentiary."

FASCISTS CONTROL

Only Those Enrolled in Party Will Work Under Recent Ruling

Further regimentation of newspaper men of Italy by the Fascist regime has been effected so that only newspaper men regularly listed as holding permission to practice their profession and who are enrolled in the Fascist party will be allowed employment, according to David M. Church, foreign editor of International News Service.

A recent decision of the Directorate of the Fascist party divides the Italian press into two camps.

The Fascist Secretary-General will admit into the first camp only those newspapers which "by their origins, their activity on behalf of the cause, the political faithfulness of their editors, directors and administrative personnel, give secure guarantees of their right to be considered true organs of the Fascist regime."

The Fascist party will carry out "the necessary control of the papers' political and their administrative activities," and will undertake to have all Fascists confine their support to these newspapers.

INDIANA
ALWAYS IN THE LIMELIGHT

Wealth of Population

Why does every National Advertiser who studies the Indiana Market place it among the first in importance as an outlet for his product? Here is the answer—Within Indiana's small area dwell in comfort three million people whose total wealth represents nine billion dollars. They are strategically located in the very heart of the country's agricultural and industrial regions—their farms, and their industries produce substantial incomes for these people to enjoy life. They are home owners—they use the automobile as a necessity, and they buy the best but always live within their means.

Indiana's people are known as newspaper readers. Every family receives at least one paper in its home every day because illiteracy is so negligible that less than 2% of the total population cannot read.

If your product is saleable it should be advertised in these newspapers listed below. They reach Indiana's great buying power.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines
Columbus Republican (E)	5,035	.03
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette (M)	38,539	.08
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette (S)	30,255	.08
Fort Wayne News-Sentinel (E)	44,217	.10
†Frankfort Times (M&S)	8,231	.04
Gary Evening Post-Tribune (E)	17,002	.06
*Huntington Press (M&S)	5,099	.03
Indianapolis News (E)	130,079	.25
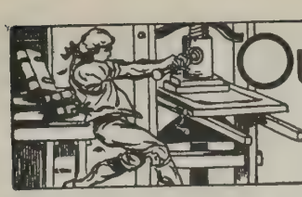
*Lafayette Journal & Courier (M) 7,794 (E) 13,336	21,130	.06
†La Porte Herald-Argus (E)	7,069	.04
*Marion Leader Tribune (M&S)	9,711	.04
††Shelbyville Democrat (E)	4,063	.025
*South Bend News-Times (M) 9,771 (E) 17,070	26,841	.07
*South Bend News-Times (S)	25,133	.07
††South Bend Tribune (S) 23,482 (E)	24,351	.07
†Terre Haute Tribune (E&S)	23,273	.06

*A. B. C. Statement, Publisher's, October 1, 1926.
†Government Statement, October 1, 1926.
A. B. C. Publisher's Statement, March 31, 1927.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1927.



BRINGING IN NEW ACCOUNTS

—for your paper is our work. Under the Briggs plan, manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers who pass you up entirely will become constant users of your space.

Write us today. We will explain how we bring this new business to you without any selling expense to you.

Thos. W. Briggs Co.
Columbia Mutual Tower
MEMPHIS TENN.

e Press-Scimitar
WAVING HANKIES BID RIDL
Now Set In LINOTYPE
onic No. 5

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

ANYONE who read "Just a Sunday Stroll," "Moonrise at Rheims," "The Sad Little House," "The Unfortunate Austrian," and "Three Authors," by Henry Justin Smith in the Chicago Daily News, will want to read his latest book, "Innocents Aloft" (Pascal Covici, Chicago), in which these and other sketches are incorporated.

"Innocents Aloft" is not just another travel book. It is a new thing in travel books because it takes the reader in a fireside trip along roads in France not ordinarily traversed by tourists. Smith's eye for news has caught many interesting glimpses along the way that would have escaped the untrained eye of the ordinary traveler. The book is so friendly in tone that the reader almost believes that he has been personally invited to step into the car and accompany the author on the trip. The story Mr. Smith lets run in the volume is an account of how six novices did the French Alps.

From a literary point of view possibly the best part of the volume is found in Part II, "Souvenirs." This contains the delightful sketches to which reference has already been made in the opening paragraph of this little chat.

Of these William McFee in the introduction to the volume speaks as follows:

> Here, then, are the travel sketches of a busy man skilled in the rapid strokes which must be used when the presses are waiting for copy. They are sketches done con amore, as a way of brief escape from the roaring life of the Loop, which is, if we are to be honest and truthful, the breath of life for the authentic newspaper man. They are the shy comments of a reporter of life, upon life itself, the comments of a benevolent chief officer upon life ashore. Nobody would be more grieved than their author if I indulged in the vocabulary of a press-agent about his victim. It is well known by now that Henry Justin Smith does not view press-agents with excessive charity.

The stories that I would like to mark "must" in the volume are the interviews that Mr. Smith had with Henri Barbusse and Romain Rolland. All that it is necessary to say in conclusion is that "Innocents Aloft" has that same delightful charm as "Deadlines."

* * *

BECAUSE of the newspaper space devoted to the Sacco-Vanzetti case members of the working press will be interested in a summary of the court proceedings made by Felix Frankfurter in his volume, "The Case of Sacco and Vanzetti," (Little, Brown & Co.). No criminal case in recent history has attracted more editorial comment not only in America but also in foreign newspapers than the one described in detail in this volume.

* * *

HENRY E. WING, who later became a Methodist clergyman, was during the Civil War a correspondent for the New York Tribune. He was the first to bring Lincoln the news of "the lost army" and the Battle of the Wilderness. Wing himself told about this incident in the little booklet, "When Lincoln Kissed Me" (Methodist Book Concern).

Later Wing became an official newsgatherer for Lincoln. His activities in covering that assignment are taken up in the little volume, "A Reporter for Lincoln" (Macmillan Company) by Ida M. Tarbell. Miss Tarbell has done a good piece of reporting—as she usually does when on an assignment. But I do wish she had given her authority for the assertion that Stanton, Secretary of War under Lincoln, ordered Wing to be shot for refusal to give news to the War Department until a story had been telegraphed to the New York Tribune. Stanton had no love for war correspondents, but no such drastic action has been attributed to him until this volume by Miss Tarbell came out.

* * *

FORTY stories make up "The Free-Lance Writer's Handbook" (The Writer Publishing Company, Cambridge, Mass.). The volume is divided into ten sections which take up such subjects as fiction, journalism, plays and scenarios, verse, book reviewing, humor, publicity, and advertising.

John Farrar, editor of The Bookman and lecturer on journalism at New York University, tells how to deal with editors. Augustus Thomas writing on the theatre tells how to break into Broadway. Burgess Johnson, formerly editor of Judge and now a teacher of creative writing at Syracuse University, tells about writing for the newspapers. Philip Kerby chats about the correspondents abroad. John Bakeless, managing editor of The Forum and also a lecturer on journalism at New York University, writes the chapter on "The Art, Craft, and Mystery of Book Reviewing." Ivy L. Lee opens the section on publicity with a chapter headed "Corporation Publicity." One of the most valuable sections of the book for the free lance is the concluding chapter, "Questions and Answers," compiled by the editor of the volume, William Dorsey Kennedy—editor-in-chief of The Writer.

The chapters already mentioned indicate the trend of the volume, which should be helpful to members of the working press who want to break into print in the magazines. A sort of appendix headed "The Literary Markets" is a directory of periodicals and syndicates buying material. It also lists special editorial needs of various periodicals.

* * *

ANOTHER valuable pamphlet to come from the School of Journalism at the University of Missouri is "International News Communications" by Eugene Webster Sharp. It is Volume No. 45 of the Journalism Series which has been frequently mentioned in this department.

In this booklet Mr. Sharp attempts to show the definite influence on the press exerted by the submarine cable and the wireless. In speaking of the former Mr. Sharp says:

> Cables, ever since their first test in 1850, have been one of the chief means of international communication. The service they render, however, is dependent not primarily upon ownership of the cable line but on international understanding. The government which has jurisdiction over the shore on which the cable stations and relay offices are located will exercise its sovereignty by specific terms in the cable landing license and by doing what is best for its own public interest, especially in time of war. Great Britain's strict censorship during the World War was based on this principle as was her cutting of German cables.

Chapter II contrasts the policy of British and American cables. At the present time, according to the author of the bulletin, the British own three-fifths of the cables of the world and operate one-half of them and so in a sense control the cable world. The reason given why the greater part of the messages from America go to Europe over foreign cables is the geographical position of the United States. Because the service varies inversely as the length, it is difficult to operate cables longer than 2,500 miles. Short routes have to be chosen.

In chapter III where the author discusses cable rates he comments as follows about press charges:

> Most newspapers and news associations are constantly pressing for lower and more equitable rates for news matter so that they may inform the public more fully on foreign affairs as well as be first with stories of prime international importance. The big rich newspapers, however, do not work consistently for lower press rates, as it would increase the competition they would meet.
>
> Cable companies, on the other hand, grant lower rates to the press than to the public, not from altruistic motives nor from any great sense of the high office of newspapers, but because of the volume of news material sent, and because they need press stories to keep their cables working to the point of saturation; they prefer to have their lines under full pressure rather than idle. But beyond the saturation point press matter is not always given full consideration.
>
> Most of the press traffic from Europe to the United States moves in the evening for the morning papers here. The plain English press messages are easier to handle than the coded commercial messages. Press messages are usually handled along with the regular traffic.

Chapter IV tells how wireless entered the field. Of its use by the press the author speaks as follows:

> The wireless telegraph is used almost exclusively today in carrying international news as compared with the wireless telephone, mainly because the code used in telegraphy cannot be picked up so easily by the average owner of a receiving set, and partly because the human voice cannot span the ocean except under most ideal conditions. The wireless telegraph, however, is occasionally used to send out bulletins of important news.

The concluding chapter has for its theme "Wireless and the Press." Some comment is made about the early use of the wireless by the press:

> As early as 1907 the New York Times was getting foreign news by wireless telegraph and giving credit in the dateline. It aided Marconi in establishing the first trans-Atlantic wireless circuit in that year. One of the stories sent by wireless and dated No. 29, 1920, was 70,000 inches long and was used as the page one story to a cable story from London. The wireless dispatch was filed in Berlin. It stated that Lenin admitted a plot in his speech delivered in Moscow. The New York Times has its own receiving station for foreign wireless and was ready for use in 1920. A story dated June 30, 1920, also sent from Berlin by wireless said that a war on cake had been declared by Berlin officials. The story was four inches long.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO — QUALITY MARKS SERVICE PAYS — CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control

is used by

Dallas News

Dallas, Texas

Ask them about it.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO

Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

South America's Greatest Newspape

"Buenos Aires IS the Argenti Republic"—

"If you introduce an article in Buen Aires it is introduced in the wh of the Argentine."

"We know that LA PRENSA h a larger circulation than all t local papers put together, a that this circulation is amon the very best class."

(Extract from letter written by the distributor in Argentina of important American products, urging his principals to place their advertising in LA PRENSA—)

National sales and distribution Argentina can quickly be attai by advertising in LA PRENSA.

JOSHUA B. POWER

Exclusive Advertising Representat

250 Park Avenue New Y

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper

Member of the A. B. C.

NEW YORK STATE

Westchester County's

Fastest Growing Cities

Mount Vernon and New Rochelle and The Vicinity Towns

Are Covered Completely by

THE DAILY ARGUS

of

Mount Vernon

THE STANDARD STAR

of

New Rochelle

Both Members of A. B. C.

Westchester Newspapers, Inc.

Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

The World

These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.

The Evening World

Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

The Pensacola Journal

FOUR BILLIONS FOR GOVERNI

Library Association Approves Body's Recommendations

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED

SPECIAL AND REGULA EDITIONS, MAGAZIN INSERTS AND COM MERCIAL WORK

Standard Gravur Corporation

LOUISVILLE KY

appeared in the Times. Since then wire- has gradually increased in favor until in 2 it had become a competitor of the cable, ing prominently in each issue of the p.

he Associated Press, according to bulletin, uses the wireless to obtain ifth of its foreign news and obtains e other four-fifths by cable. The d Press, the author declares, also e the cable more freely than wireless btaining news from abroad. The ago Tribune, another pioneer in us- wireless, receives about 5,000 words ess nightly from Europe and Japan frankly admits that wireless is not cheaper but also faster than cable, h not as dependable as yet. The of radio broadcasting news is also up in this chapter.

he conclusion reached by Mr. Sharp at the press of the world has been ed materially by submarine cable by the wireless telegraph and tele- , but that in turn cable companies wireless organizations have been as- by the patronage of the press. The uding thought is that both must ue to cooperate for mutual pros- and for international peace.

* * *

E liberal weeklies such as the New epublic and The Nation have been nely critical of the special corre- ence from China. The new Repub- or example, in its issue for April as a two-page article about the l correspondence sent from China New York Times. It takes ex- n to the expression of personal ent in the dispatches. The fact oked by the New Republic is that aper patrons may desire in signed s the personal opinions of those re actually in the field of conflict would be interesting to know what could be advanced for not meeting lesire. Special correspondence is ing quite different from Associ- ress dispatches. The signed story he responsibility for any comment y where it belongs. Some one to make a survey of what news- readers actually desire in this .

* * *

ID LAWRENCE, editor of the ited States Daily, prints a letter e Nation for April 13. In it he to his being quoted as saying that f the faults of the American press f its own creation. Mr. Lawrence izes that he had in mind the l of advertisers for quantity cir- n and so the poor publisher had w the policy of printing only those which appeal to the mass.

accuracy of the point made by wrence may be questioned. When merican newspaper editors were York City on their way to the Conference at Geneva, they were tned at luncheon by Rodman aker. One of the speakers at this n was the advertising manager namaker's store. He said very that he wasn't interested so much quantity as he was in responsive ion and that the newspaper of circulation might possibly be- cause of its clientele bring more patrons to the store than the newspaper of larger circulation. This assertion, coming as it did from one who uses large space in newspapers, deserves the thoughtful consideration of American publishers.

* * *

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued "The Measurement of Advertising Effects" by George Burton Hotchkiss and Richard B. Franken—a book sponsored by the International Advertising Association. This volume which has just reached my desk will be mentioned more in detail in a later issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

* * *

PUBLISHERS of community weeklies should be sure to read "How Ohio Weeklies Serve Their Communities" with which The Ohio Newspaper for March opens. This article is a survey of reports from 44 editors of that state. Another article in this issue is from the pen of Walter J. Reck, formerly manager of the Columbus bureau of the Associated Press. It tells how that organization serves the newspapers in Ohio. The Ohio Newspaper is published by the Department of Journalism of Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

* * *

A NEWS item about "A Short History of Stereotyping" by George A. Kubler, president of the Certified Dry Mat Corporation, has already appeared in EDITOR & PUBLISHER. Mr. Kubler has done a good job in his compilation of the historical and mechanical facts relating to the art of stereotyping.

The volume has historical value for others besides stereotypers. It contains an excellent resumé of the origin and development of the art of printing. This survey is followed by another which takes up the history of stereotyping even in more detail.

In the section headed "The History of the Newspaper" will be found an excellent summary of the pivotal points in the story of the world's diary. Especially valuable are the paragraphs dealing with the written letter of news and the so-called market reports or "relations." The latter precursors of the newspaper were issued semi-annually for distribution at the fairs and contained all important news covering the preceding six months. One slip, however, should be noticed in passing. The English Mercurie, mentioned on page 43 as having appeared in 1588, has been proved to be a forgery and not a real news sheet. Mr. Kubler does give proper credit to Nathaniel Butter who is justly entitled to be called "the Father of English Journalism."

For readers of EDITOR & PUBLISHER the most valuable section is possibly the one carrying the caption, "Newspaper Stereotyping." America may well be proud of the contributions made to this art—a fact well brought out by Mr. Kubler in the volume. Paragraphs dealing with boiler plate record pivotal points in the story of that form of stereotyping. As a matter of fact, the entire third chapter is devoted to stereotyping in America.

Naturally the volume contains much about the invention of the dry mat and its later development. While the book was doubtless issued to promote interest in dry mats, it contains so much historical material that it is worth more than passing mention in "Our Own World of Letters." Many of the illustrations used in the book are taken from rare volumes no longer accessible to the ordinary reader. Consequently the volume deserves a place in any newspaper library.

ASKS $145,000 DAMAGES

Manager of Millionair Club, Seattle, Suing Post-Intelligencer for Libel

A libel suit for $145,000 was filed in superior court April 2, by M. G. Johansen, secretary and manager of the Millionair Club of Seattle, against the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Johansen charges that the newspaper published a series of articles and photographs about him which proved damaging to that amount. The complaint alleges that the articles and photographs were published in the Post Intelligencer from April 2 to April 10, 1925, and that they falsely charged, among other things, that Johansen maintained the men aided by the club in a state of peonage.

The Millionair Club is a Seattle institution formed for the purpose of aiding unemployed men.

ADOPT NEW TYPE DRESS

The Boston Herald and Boston Traveler this week changed to a new style of body type, Ionic No. 5. The change followed balloting conducted by these papers among their readers.

PRESSMEN'S DISPUTE SETTLED

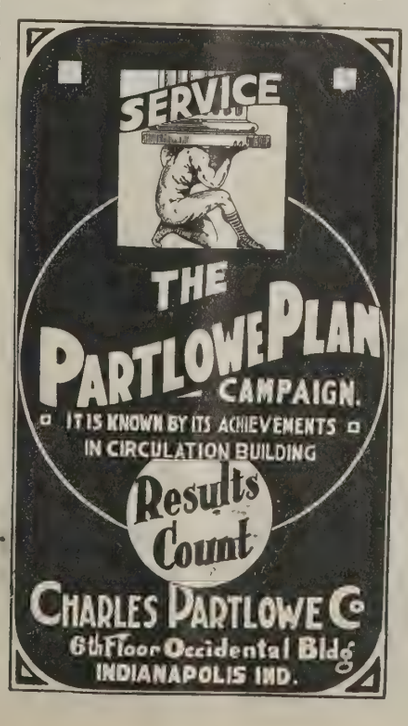
Commercial Men Will Work for Shopping News, Berry Decides

George L. Berry, president of the International Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America, has settled the controversy in the publishing plant of the Cleveland Shopping News by deciding commercial pressmen should operate the plant's presses. Sam B. Anson, publisher for the retail merchants who control the publication, locked out the web pressmen.

"It is an erroneous impression that the type and character of machine establishes the jurisdiction," Berry said. "This is not the case. It is the character of the work that determines the jurisdictional rights as between these two distinct branches of our organization."

Berry explained that the Shopping News is a commercial printing shop, therefore, commercial pressmen should be employed.

ATTIESBURG AMERICAN



ttiesburg, the Hub of South Mississippi

l Daily in Hattiesburg, Mis- pi. Only Daily covering Mississippi thoroughly.

lation 6,027. Published every noon, except Sunday. Has leased wire Associated Press ice.

Represented Nationally by

i. C. Beckwith Special Agency, York, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, nta, Kansas City, Los Angeles, San Francisco.

The Morning Telegraph

A Daily history of the World's Events, having the greatest professional following of any newspaper in the United States at a ten cent price.

The only paper in New York City progressing in advertising volume, circulation and reader interest in an exclusive market of enormous buying power.

The Morning Telegraph
50th St. & 8th Ave., N. Y. City

GIVE YOUR READERS DAILY HEALTH TALKS
by Dr Frank McCoy
"The Mayo of Health Writers"

A health service that is different—home treatments without medicine or costly apparatus, based on a knowledge of food chemistry and the mechanics of the body

WIRE OR WRITE
McCoy Health Service
Brack Shops Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

MICHIGAN

is growing faster than any State in the Union.

Its increase in manufacturing products surpasses anything in the world.

BOOTH NEWSPAPERS

cover Michigan outside of Detroit —Eight principal cities with the only or leading Newspaper in its respective community.

The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News

National Advertising Representatives

I. A. KLEIN
50 East 42nd Street
New York City

J. E. LUTZ
Tower Building
Chicago, Ill.

Away Ahead!

2,196,676 - 1925
3,699,155 - 1926

1,502,479 - Gain

The New York Evening Graphic shows greater gain in lineage (41%) than any other New York paper.

MANAGING EDITORS ATTENTION!

Let the Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, help you fill that opening on your staff with an ambitious young man, schooled in all branches of the newspaper or magazine field.

Trained men give best service. Why spend time training a man to fill a position when you can get one with experience by simply making your wants known? Write or wire John G. Earhart, 836 Exchange Ave., Chicago, Ill., and he will put you in touch with the right man.

No Charge To Employers

JOINS HEARST ORGANIZATION

Walter L. Thomas, Worcester, to Be Stationed in Boston

Walter L. Thomas, assistant publisher and advertising director of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram Gazette, has resigned to accept an executive position with Col. Frank Knox, New England regional director of the Hearst organization, and will enter upon his new duties in a few days with headquarters in Boston.

Coming to Worcester from the Brockton Enterprise in 1900, Mr. Thomas, with the exception of six years in Manchester, N. H., has been head of the advertising department of the Telegram, or the Telegram-Gazette since that time.

AD EXEMPT BILL KILLED

The proposal to exempt newspaper advertising from the reportable expenses of primary candidates has been killed by the Maine Legislature.

Supplies and Equipment

GOSS STEREOTYPING MACHINERY Carried in Stock

Fastest, most easily operated, most accurate and durable flat casting box you can buy. Perfectly balanced. New design lock-up bar allows for quick change when regulating thickness of casts. Positive quick lock-up at four points on box with one lever movement. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSES

Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Presses

GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for black or color work, also Goss Sextuple.

HOE Pony Quadruple, Quadruple, Sextuple, Sextuple color Press, Octuple and Double Sextuple Presses.

DUPLEX Metropolitan Quadruple stereotype presses—print up to 32 pages.

Available for Early Delivery

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Main Office & Factory.....Plainfield, N. J.
New York Office..Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office.....Monadnock Block

Drive and Control for Newspaper Presses

A representative installation on a Scott Press is a 75-h.p., a-c. equipment driving a sextuple for the Lake County Times, Hammond, Ind.

GENERAL ELECTRIC

Modern Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Rebuilt GOSS & HOE PRESS BARGAINS

ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO – NEW YORK – LONDON

The Problem of Dry Mat Moulding is A Question of DENSITY

Coordinate the density of the DRY MAT with the Density of the MOULDING BLANKET and the problem is solved.

No more broken moulding machines.

Eliminate spoiled mats (flongs)

Prevent wrinkles.

Increase speed in moulding.

The right moulders will do it.

We have them.

New England Newspaper Supply Co.

Worcester, Mass., U. S. A.
Cable address NENSCO, Worcester

Job Wanted?

Consult the Classified department of

Editor & Publisher

and learn how men have been put in touch with some of the best opportunities in the country.

Hoe Combined Saw Table and Mono-Rail Trimmer

This Machine combines the advantages of the Hoe Pedestal Saw Table and the Hoe Mono-Rail Trimmer.

The Trimmer is supplied with either Style "A" Cutter Head for trimming Wood Blocks or Style "B" for extra heavy cutting on Zinc or Copper. The Hoe Patented Mono-Rail principle allows the Operator to follow the work beyond the Cutter Head permitting more speed and greater accuracy in trimming Wood or Metal Blocks of varied sizes.

IF IT'S A HOE, IT'S THE BEST

R. HOE & CO., INC., 504-520 Grand Street, New York City

7 South Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL. — Pere Marquette Bldg., NEW ORLEANS, LA. — 7 Water Street, BOSTON, MASS.

Classified

EDITOR & PUBLISH

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATION (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line
13 Times — .50 per line
26 Times — .45 per line

White space charge at same rate per l insertion as earned by frequency of in Minimum Contract space, three lines. rates quoted for 52 insertions. The & Publisher reserves the right to classi or reject any advertisement.

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

If You Want More Local Advertising to work for you selling our "Worth Features. Write F. G. Hogan Sy Lemcke Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind., or Ka

Supplies

Shading Sheets for Art work and Ben fects. Bourges Service, Inc., 144 We St., New York.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNI

Brokers

Desirable Evening Papers Available price, reasonable terms. In the fo states: New York, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, North Dakota. Also real for quick buyer weekly and job plant twenty miles of New York. J. B. Shale, Bldg., New York.

Offering Fine Weekly—Only paper in seat town of south-central state, nets $4, nually and gaining steadily. Machine e plant. All for $14,000 and only $5,0 necessary. Prop. 1509x. The H. F. H Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Offering High Class Daily in exclusiv West city of 15,000, yielding owners f and investment about $25,000 a year. G progressive, healthful field. Offer inclu uable building. Complete with $10,000 counts for only $165,000. Terms avail part. Prop. 892x. The H. F. H Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Trade Journal, established, in good c capable of expansion. Gross about Asking price, $17,500 cash. Harris-Dib 345 Madison Avenue, New York City

CIRCULATION

Promotion

Circulation—When quick, additional ci coverage becomes necessary, remember twenty years in this one line of end your proof against experimenting. W wire Pacific Coast Circulation Servi Block, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Circulation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1 tre ave., Reading, Penn. Originators manship Club Campaigns.

Superior Circulation Builders—The W. dall Company, 104 North Bailey Ave. ville, Kentucky. The circulation-buil ganization that has set the standard fo sive, successful circulation campaigns fo twenty years.

The World's Largest Circulation Buil ganization—The only circulation-buildi ice in Newspaperdom furnishing pi affidavits of the exact results of campaign. The Charles Partlowe Occidental Building, Indianapolis.

Wire Our Pottery Direct for supplies a dish offer. Results—Low cost. The China Co., Carrollton, Ohio.

15,000 New Subscribers on New York n in 7 weeks. New plan of campaign and operated by former publisher w lishers' interests in view. Hudson Co., 1420 Bryant Park Bldg., New Y

Special Service

Local Appeal—Mr. Daily Publisher! brighten your paper with a distincti that creates immediate interest and tion? Individuality of this type is a asset. Home-town advertisers natu the paper packed with vigorous loc Likewise, healthy circulation thrives local appeal. This is not a tricky now definite, sincere plan of year-roun Would you let a two-cent stamp and of time stop you from learning more a B-972, Editor & Publisher.

(Continued on following page

Big Names Plus BIG IDEAS Make Big Features

RUTH
Stories - Twice Weekly - Contests

ROCKNE
Weekly Review of all College Sports

TILDEN
Covering Tennis - U.S. and Abroad

COBB
Letters to Hornsby - Weekly

As strong as the names it links together

McGRAW
Reviewing the Pennant Races - Weekly

WARNER
Pacific Coast Football Comment

HORNSBY
Letters to Ty Cobb - Weekly

JONES
Eastern Football Comment

ALTROCK
Humorous Baseball Review - Weekly

McNAMARA
Foremost Authority for Motor Car Owners

The

Christy Walsh Syndicate

LIEBER
The Baseball "Dope" - Weekly

NEARING
World's Premier Fight Manager

VAN LOON
Writer - Artist - Historian

370 SEVENTH AVE. NEW YORK

A Steady Growth in CIRCULATION

The Sun's Average Net Paid Daily Circulation for the Six Months Ended March 31, 1927, Was 267,520

—a Gain of

8,169

over the corresponding six months a year ago.

Figures From Publisher's Statement to the United States Government

The Sun's circulation has been growing steadily and consistently. Every year more people read The Sun—not because it offers prizes or conducts contests—but because they like The Sun for what it is—a complete, accurate, interesting newspaper.

The Sun

280 Broadway New York

PRE-CONVENTION NUMBER

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 — The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America — 1927

MEMBER A.B.C.

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

MEMBER A.B.P.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 48 — NEW YORK, APRIL 23, 1927 — By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign — 10c Per Copy

CHICAGO TRIBUNE
NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE

features

COMICS

Ching Chow	daily
Deer Family	daily
Gasoline Alley	D&S
Gumps	D&S
Moon Mullins	D&S
Orphan Annie	D&S
Harold Teen	D&S
Texas Slim	Sunday
Winnie Winkle	D&S
The Squire of Smithville	daily
"About Broadway"	daily

CARTOONS

W. E. Hill	Sunday
McCutcheon	D&S
Carey Orr	D&S
Gaar Williams	D&S

FICTION

Blue Ribbon Daily Serial
Blue Ribbon Sunday Serial
Blue Ribbon Short Stories
Daily True Life Stories

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES

Daily—Sunday

Doris Blake Chats
Cook Book by Jane Eddington
Antoinette Donnelley—On Beauty
Dr. Evans' Health Articles
Farm & Garden
A Line O' Type Or Two
Men's Fashions
What's Wrong Here
Women's Fashions
Margaret Orr's "Stories of Girls"
Sentence Sermons by Roy L. Smith

WEEKLY

Westbrook Pegler
Donald Ogden Stewart
"Sam 'N' Henry"
Duke Bakrak
Snowshoe Al
"About Broadway" by Hellinger
Book Reviews
Cartoon Fillers
Confessions of Authors
Club Ethics
Etiquette
Fashions (Paris)
Justice Series
Maiden Meditations
Sport Page
Women's Pages
E. W. Kemble's Children's Stories
H. L. Mencken Literary Articles
Burns Mantle Theatre Letter
Weekly Hollywood Letter
New York Society Letter
Builders Page

American Society of Editors Recommends Laboratory Test for Syndicates ... We Have It!

ONE of the specific recommendations regarding syndicate practice made to the American Society of Newspaper Editors at the New Willard, Washington, D. C., recently, prepared by the Chairman of Committee on Syndicates was:

"If there is one fair criticism that may be made of the syndicate business as a whole, it is that its tendency is to imitate features which have proved successful in the hands of rival organizations rather than to produce new things.* The papers of the United States are full of imitation comics, imitation bedtime stories, imitation fashions services and imitation inspirational editorials.

"Experience persuades us the time is now ripe for the advent of the experimental laboratory in syndicate management, and we know of no men better qualified for that task than those who make the sales of features their business."

The Chicago Tribune Newspapers Syndicate has always originated its own features for the needs of The Chicago Tribune and Daily News of New York. Our features have always had the test of the experimental laboratory. Results count!

Mr. Chas. H. Dennis, Editor of The Chicago Daily News, in his discussion of the Committee's suggestions, advised editors to develop feature talent among their own writers, sharing their product with other newspapers so that the writer may be fairly compensated. The Chicago Tribune has been doing this for years.

The great success of The Chicago Tribnue and the Daily News of New York speaks for itself.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE
PRESS SERVICE

The latest and most reliable news from all over the world! . . . Subscribed to by almost half a hundred leading American and foreign newspapers!

*Originality versus Imitation . . . The Laboratory Test . . . Chicago Tribune Syndicate Comics . . . The Two Largest Daily Morning Circulations in America.

The Chicago Tribune Newspapers Syndicate has always been a creator of new and original features rather than an imitator of features already developed. . . . .It sells only features used in and created primarily for the needs of the Chicago Tribune and the Daily News of New York . . . . .Some of the original features developed in the Chicago Tribune Syndicate Laboratory include many now world famous comics. . . . .Each of these comics is different in its appeal. . . . .Each satisfies a distinct reader need for fun. . . . .Each had to pass the Laboratory test of use in The Chicago Tribune and the New York News. . . . .The two papers with the largest Daily Morning Circulation in America!

JOURN Here's Circulation!
Not to be taken from this room

The Chicago Tribune (daily)	762,750
The Chicago Tribune (Sunday)	1,203,223
The New York News (daily)	1,147,257
The New York News (Sunday)	1,484,524

CHICAGO TRIBUNE Newspapers Syndicate . . . Tribune Square, CHICAGO

while at the Convention

Get Acquainted with the BRIGGS METHOD of increasing LOCAL DISPLAY LINEAGE

We Can Assist You In Breaking Last Year's Local Display Record

In your field there are hundreds of non-advertisers and spasmodic space buyers that our experienced salesmen can quickly convert into regular weekly and semi-weekly advertisers.

We can increase your volume 100,000 to 500,000 lines yearly at no extra selling cost to you. Meet us at our Convention Headquarters — the Waldorf-Astoria — and learn about the Briggs Plan—which is increasing Local Display lineage every month for many members of the A. N. P. A. Ask the clerk for Briggs' suite.

During the A. N. P. A. Convention April 25th to 30th

WE cordially invite our publisher friends and customers already acquainted with the Briggs Organization to pay a visit to our headquarters during the convention. We have many new features to offer that will be of special interest to every publisher who wants to break his Local Lineage records of the past. Just ask the clerk at the Waldorf-Astoria for Briggs' suite.

Thos. W. Briggs Co.

Columbian Mutual Tower Bldg.
MEMPHIS

every section to every reader everywhere

¶ Daily and Sunday, every section of the Herald Tribune goes to every reader everywhere. ¶ This means that advertisers in the Herald Tribune get the full advantage of the entire Herald Tribune circulation. ¶ The Herald Tribune has no "sectional" or "partial" editions. The Herald Tribune gives full value to every advertiser in every issue.

NEW YORK

Herald Tribune

now over 300,000

Daily and Sunday Average

By Special Permission of the New York Evening Post

We are authorized to extend to visiting publishers a cordial invitation to inspect the new Evening Post Building and Plant including their new battery of—

Photograph by Courtesy New York Evening Post

Scott

"Straight-Unit" PRESSES

12 units and 4 pairs of folders on an integral cast iron substructure magazine reel paper feed.

The owners of the New York Evening Post installed this battery of Scott Presses after making a similar installation of Scott Presses in the plant of the

Philadelphia Public Ledger

Watch the Wall Street Edition (3:10 P. M.) run on the new Scott Presses at the

New York Evening Post

Other Interesting Installations of Scott PRESSES

Worth Visiting While in New York

New York Herald-Tribune

12 units 4 pr. Folders . . . . . "Straight-Unit"
8 " 2 " " . . . . . "Multi-Unit"

New York Evening Graphic

Tabloid Newspaper—now being installed
12 units 4 pr. Folders . . . . . "Straight-Unit"

Newark Evening News

16 units 4 pr. Folders . . . . . "Straight-Unit"
6 " 2 " " . . . . . "Multi-Unit"

Newark Ledger

6 Column Tabloid Newspaper
4 Units 1 pr. Folders . . . . . "Straight-Unit"

New York Daily News

The Fastest Newspaper Color Press in the World! 8 Couple High-Grade Color press—Net average Production 40,000 per hour 8-page 4-color Tabloid Comics. Highest quality work.

Our representatives will be pleased to make appointments to visit any or all of these plants at your convenience

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Manufacturers of

"Multi-Unit" and "Straight-Unit"
NEWSPAPER PRESSES

Main Office and Factory, Plainfield, N. J.

New York Office: 1457 Broadway at 42nd St. — Chicago Office: Monadnock Block

"Over the Top" Again!

The Evening Bulletin is sold on its merits as a newspaper, no prize or guessing contests; coupons, premiums or other artificial methods of stimulating circulation are used.

The Evening Bulletin

continues to break all Philadelphia Circulation Records

560,832 Copies sold each day in March

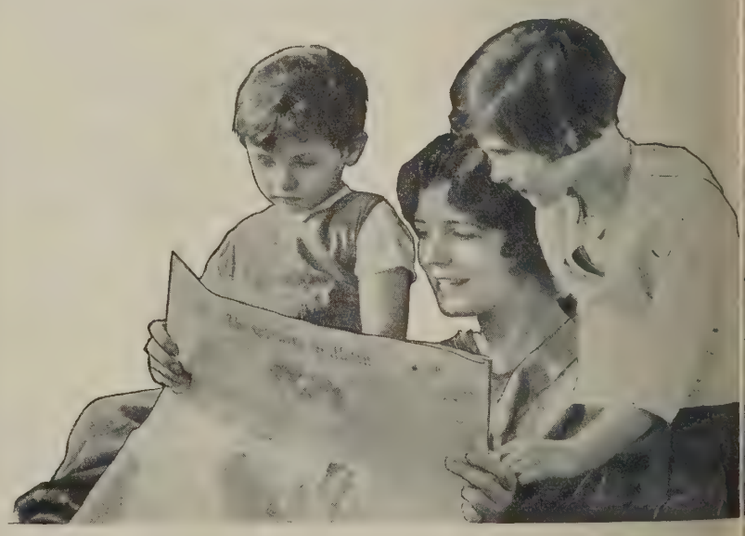
1926 Average Sales were 537,974 Copies Daily

"That the people of Philadelphia and vicinity appreciate the efforts of The Bulletin to give them all the news of the day, as fairly, as exactly and impartially as it can be laid before them, is attested by the fact that not only has the name of The Bulletin become a household word among them but that its circulation reaches far beyond the highest point ever attained by a Philadelphia newspaper."

To the American Manufacturer and Advertising Agent:

Through this one newspaper you can reach nearly every home in and around Philadelphia at one cost.

Telling Bulletin readers what you have to sell, where it can be bought, how much it will cost—and telling it simply and truthfully and constantly, brings success.



Your advertisements are carried to the greatest number of possible purchasers in the Philadelphia market if printed in The Evening Bulletin.

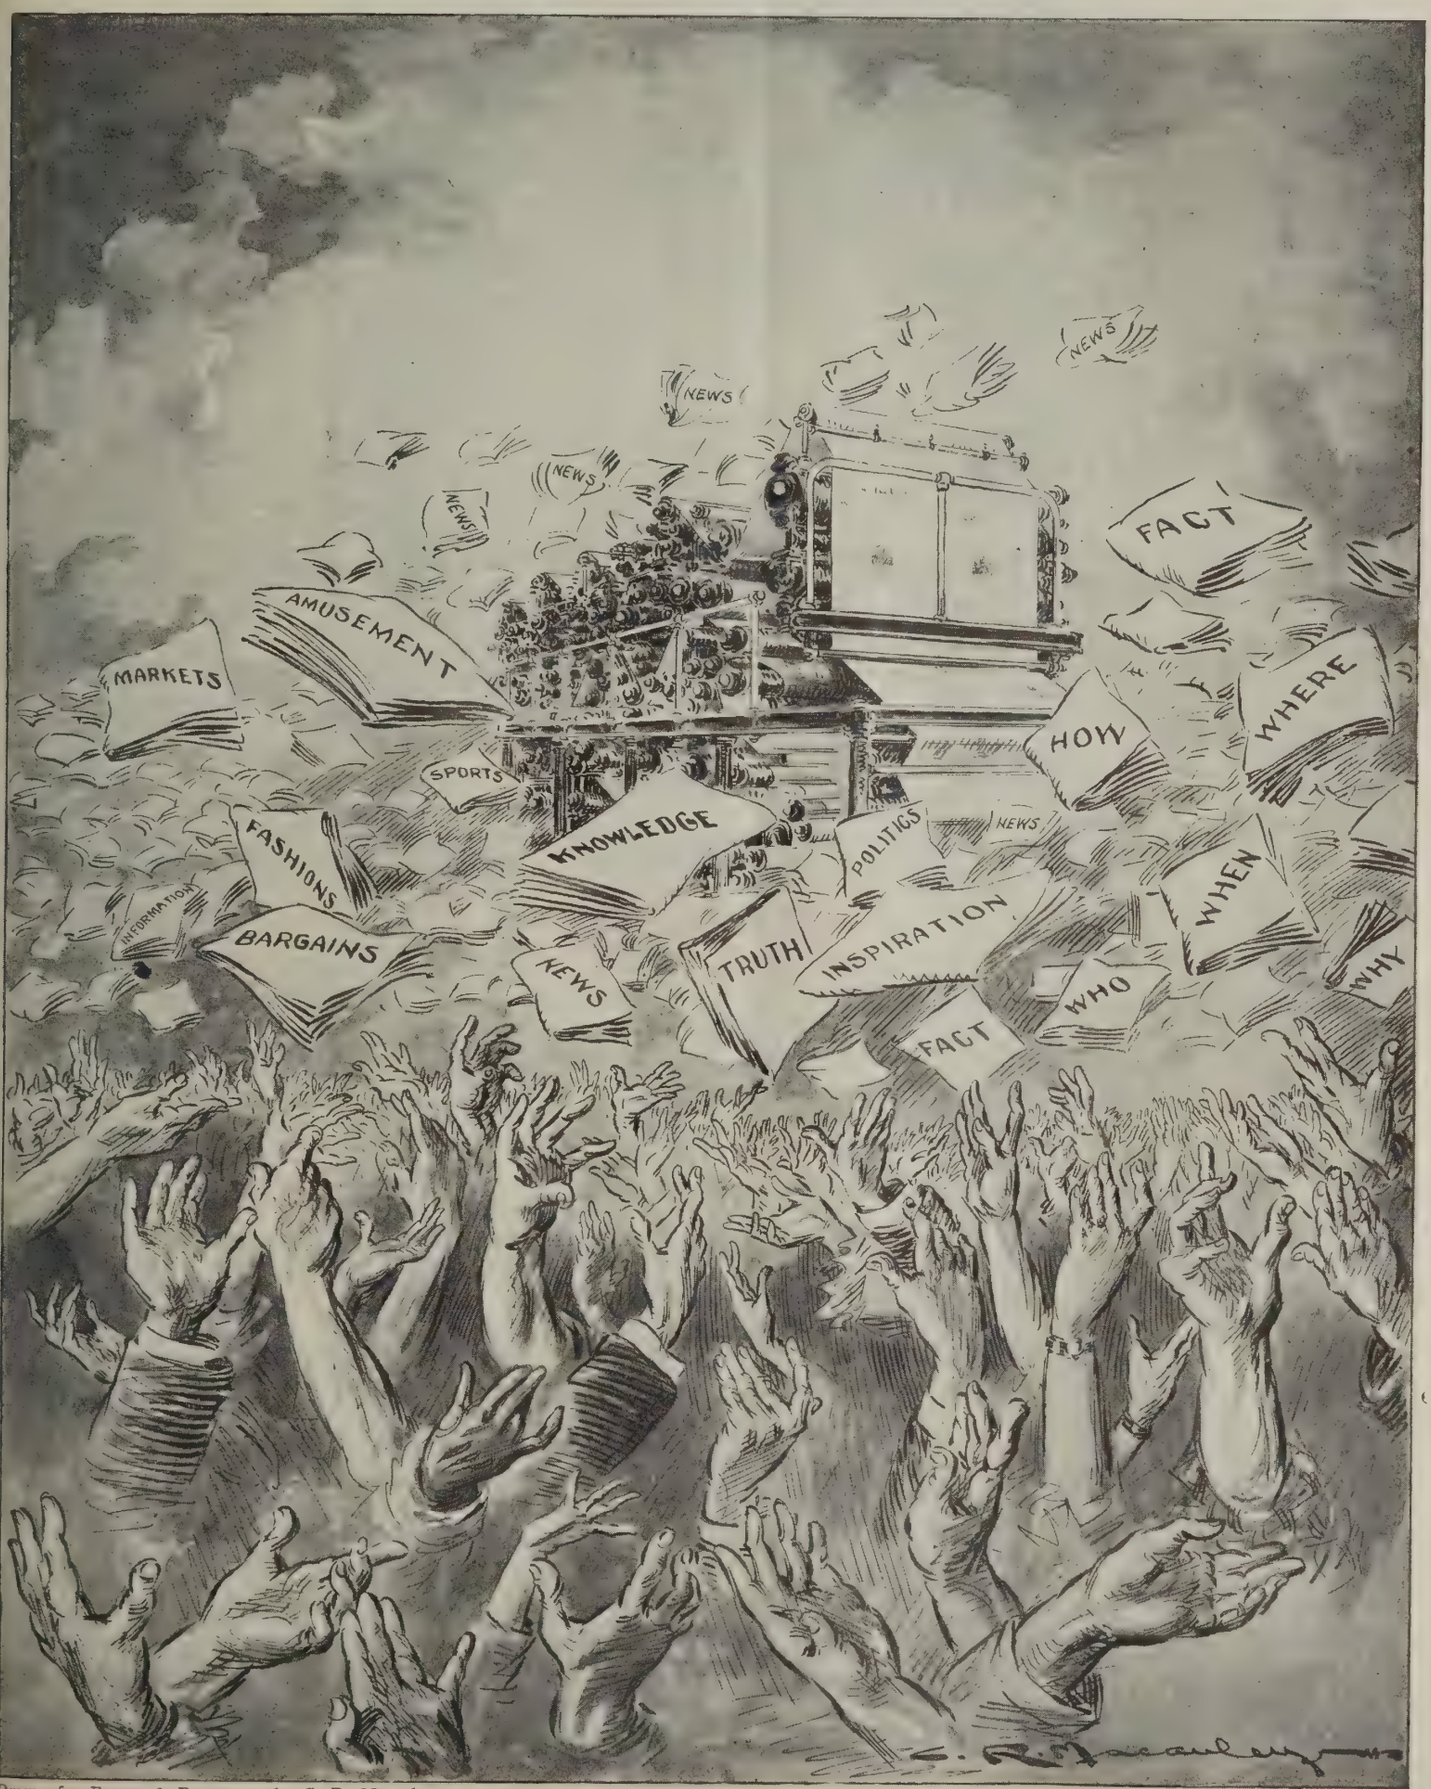
Back of each purchaser of The Evening Bulletin is his or her family—a vast army of consumers.

Advertising in The Evening Bulletin is the most effective and economical form of publicity for reaching Philadelphia buyers.

The Bulletin's advertising rate (per line per thousand readers) is one of the lowest in the United States.

A page advertisement in The Bulletin costs less than one-third of a cent per copy.

"One of the family" in nearly every home.



The mass of buying in Philadelphia is done by the families of the readers of The Bulletin and the bulk of this business will come to those national advertisers who concentrate their advertising in The Bulletin

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St., at Broadway, New York. Telephones, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations. Member Associated Business Papers, Inc.

Vol. 59 NEW YORK, APRIL 23, 1927 No. 48

Drawn for Editor & Publisher by C. R. Macauley

CIVILIZATION

A. P. DIRECTORS FAVOR BOND REDISTRIBUTION

Recommend, After Committee's Report, That Unissued and Unredeemed $49,425 Bonds Be S and That Present Holders Release Portion of Holdings to Accomplish Proportionate Allotmen

COMPLETE reorganization of the Associated Press bond structure will be proposed to the membership Monday in a resolution adopted by the board of directors late Thursday, following a report tendered by Frank B. Noyes, Adolph S. Ochs and Robert McLean, serving as a committee to consider the bond situation. The resolution follows:

"WHEREAS the Bond Committee appointed May 26, 1926, by resolution of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors with instructions to examine into the legal status and distribution of the bonds carrying voting privilege, has reported to the Board and it appears that the growth of the Associated Press and the change in the newspaper situation has made the present distribution of bonds increasingly disproportionate, and whereas there are unissued or redeemed bonds in the Treasury amounting to $49,425 of the $150,000 authorized,

"BE IT RESOLVED that the Board transmit to the membership the report of its bond committee and recommend to the membership:

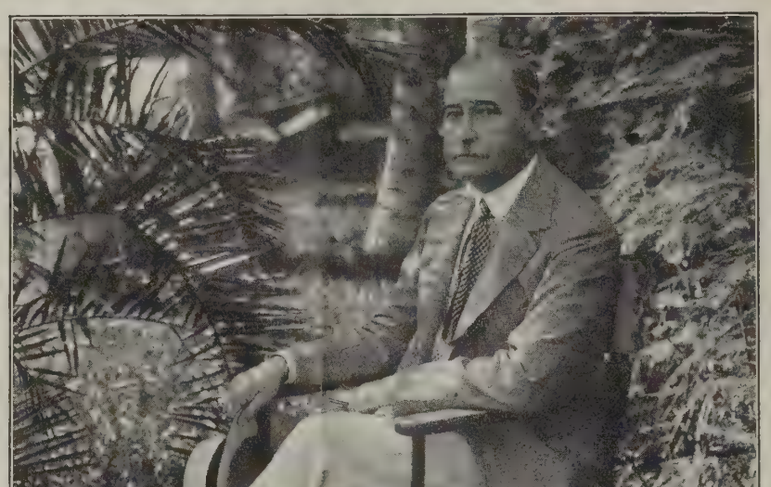
"First—That the bonds in the Treasury be offered for purchase to the membership upon a basis proportionate to the regular assessments paid by members, provided,—

"Second—That a representative committee of ten of the membership be appointed by the President to recommend to the Board an equitable plan for the allotment of these bonds, and since the amount of bonds in the Treasury may be insufficient to complete such proportionate redistribution.—

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Board unanimously recommends to the membership that present bondholders be asked to surrender such portion of their holdings as may be necessary to accomplish such proportionate redistribution; and that in conformity with this resolution all members of the Board holding such bonds offer to join with other bondholders in surrendering the portion of their bondholdings necessary to carry out the foregoing plan."

The committee's report, reviewing the history of the bond issue and its present status, and embodying the recommendations upon which the directors acted, follows:

"To the Board of Directors:



"Your committee appointed to consider the situation as respects the bonds reports as follows:

"The old Associated Press (Illinois Corporation) was a stock company and while no profits or dividends were allowed, the control of the organization was in the hands of the stockholders, the majority of the papers receiving the service having no voice in the management.

"Broadly, in the old organization, the stock was issued to the more important papers of the organization though some smaller papers in key positions were allowed stock, the maximum holding being limited to eight shares.

"When the New York corporation was formed, the incorporators felt in honor bound to carry forward, so far as was legally feasible, the existing status and moreover the larger papers paying the great bulk of the assessments felt entitled to representation in proportion to their contribution to the operating revenues of the Association.

"To facilitate this transfer and redeem the stock of the Illinois Corporation and to obtain money for operating purposes, a bond issue of $150,000 was authorized and the stockholders of the Illinois Corporation were permitted to subscribe to these bonds in the same proportion in which they held stock. Approximately $130,000 worth of bonds were sold having a voting privilege (as allowed by the New York law) in the election of directors only, the directors being vested in general with the management of the affairs of the corporation, including the news service and the assessments.

Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, photographed at Nassau, Bahamas, where he enjoyed a tropical vacation last month.

"Of the $130,000 issued, $29,425 have been redeemed because of consolidations, etc., so that there are now outstanding $100,575.

"Your Committee is advised that neither the Board nor the Association has legal authority to enforce a redemption of the bonds, save as is provided in the Deed of Trust and in the By-Laws. Certain bondholders have expressed willingness to surrender a portion of their bonds and one bondholder owning a number of member newspapers has offered to surrender all of his bonds contingent upon similar action by other bondholders. Your Committee is unable to say how many bondholders would agree either to a total or partial redemption. While the Board of Directors has had the legal authority to resell any redeemed bonds and the balance of the authorized issue, it has never done so, not thinking it appropriate for it to take any action affecting the election of the Board itself although no member of the Board as constituted owes his election to the bond vote, and also believing that in taking any such action it would be impossible avoiding appearance of favoritism.

"Your Committee cannot recommend that the Board of Directors change its attitude of regarding it as improper for that body to resell the redeemed bonds or to sell the unissued bonds unless the mandate shall come from the membership.

"The Committee is unanimous as to this.

"The Committee also feels that it would be advisable if possible to broaden the list of bondholders by issuing bonds to members not now holding bonds in proportion to the regular assessments that they pay. This would be in recognition of the fact that the general newspaper situation has changed greatly since the original issue of bonds and that many members do not have a voice in the election of directors proportionate to their contributions to the organization.

"The weekly assessments of members total $161,348 paid by 1,222 members—357 members paying less than $50 each pay $9,457.27 of this total; 406 members paying between $50 and $100 per week contribute $31,037 weekly; 459 members each paying over $100 weekly make total weekly payments of $120,852 so that thirty-seven percent of the membership, paying over $100 a week contribute three-quarters of all the revenues.

"The sixty-one members who pay each more than $500 a week provide $46,211.50 weekly. Sixty-one members who pay less than $15 a week provide $768.17 weekly.

"Your Committee recommends that the Board take such means as it sees fit to bring this question before the membership and obtain such mandate for a redistribution along lines that may be more representative of the proportionate assessments of members."

Franh B. Noyes,
Adolph S. Ochs,
Robert McLean,
Committee.

Mr. Noyes will give the administration viewpoint more in detail on April 25, when he addresses the annual Associated Press luncheon.

The subject of Mr. Noyes' address will be "The Associated Press." Another speaker at the luncheon this year, which is to be a strictly family affair, will be ex-Governor Henry J. Allen, publisher of the Wichita (Kan.) Beacon.

Members of the proxy committee were to meet together for the first time in New York on either Friday or Saturday this week, according to Victor H. Polachek, of the Hearst executive council, who is secretary of the "mutualization campaign proxy committee" of the Associated Press. Mr. Polachek this week issued a statement to Editor & Publisher in which he reiterated the committee's views and explained why the campaign was inaugurated, denying the implic made by Mr. Noyes that William dolph Hearst was its inspiration.

The proxy committee is made John Francis Neylan, San Francisco Col. Robert Ewing, New Orleans and Arthur H. Vandenburg, Grand ids Herald.

Article XV of the A. P. by-laws "These by-laws may be amende by the board of directors at any r meeting of said board by an affir vote of two-thirds of all the direct the corporation, but no amendment become operative or take effect un same shall have been recommend ratified by a vote of four-fifths of members of the Corporation at a m regularly convened."

The proxy committee believes enough votes at its command to ir to the directorate the majority o of the membership.

Another controversy came befo directors this week and was expec some to break over into the annual ing. It has been brought by Judge ham of the Louisville Courier Jo who claims that the Louisville H Post is continuing its A. P. m membership but has discontinue morning edition of the paper. Bingham alleges that the Herald-P using the morning A. P. report i early edition of its evening pap competition with the Louisville also published by Bingham.

The Louisville Courier-Journal, understood, is seeking a ruling or tion six of Article VII of the b which concerns rights and privile the membership.

This section stipulates that morni pers shall publish "not earlier t p. m.," but does not state any time that hour.

If Judge Bingham is unable to the satisfaction he desires from t rectorate he has informed friends t intends to appeal to the members convention.

While important, this problem, if to the membership, is not expec overshadow the bond and protest fight.

The statement issued this week b Polachek follows:

"The twenty-eighth annual meet the Associated Press, which conve April 25, at the Waldorf-Astoria promises to be the most notable, th interesting and the best attended gat in the history of that organization.

"The reason is that vital policies Associated Press are to be discusse settled.

"During the year just passed, the ment within the Associated Press democratization and its complete m ization crystallized into a definite paign to bring about these reforms, proxy committee was organized to to the membership for support.

"This was necessary because in years since the reorganization of th sociated Press in New York, att to bring these issues up for disc at annual meetings had been reg suppressed by rulings of the chair.

"The executive committee of board of directors who have cont the destinies of the Associated Pre all these years are now out oper opposition to a democratic reorgani with equal rights for all. They con the 'Old Guard' who have been al perpetuate themselves in office th control of the majority of the bond

"The effectiveness of the cam made by the mutualization proxy mittee is evidenced by the present ac of the board of directors in opposit

"President Noyes in making his a for proxies asserts that Mr. Hearst sors these reforms. No one knows

(Continued on page 106)

A. N. P. A. WINNING ITS FIGHT AGAINST WASTE

This Will Be Keynote of Annual Waldorf Convention Next Week When Reports of New Traffic and Mechanical Departments Will Be Submitted—Bryan to Preside

THE American Newspaper Publishers Association is winning its fight against waste in the newspaper industry, members will be told at the 41st annual convention which opens at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel New York, April 27 to continue until Friday, April 29.

This declaration will be the keynote message to be delivered to the more than 200 delegates expected to be present when John Stewart Bryan, publisher Richmond News Leader, calls the opening meeting to order on Wednesday morning. It will be stressed particularly in the first reports scheduled for this convention of the two new A. N. P. A. department managers, W. E. Haines, of the mechanical department, and H. J. Mathey of the traffic department.

Other subjects on the convention calendar, Lincoln B. Palmer, general manager of the association, announced this week, will include "new and unusually interesting" recommendations of the postal committee, laying plans for future action; a special meeting of the radio committee under the chairmanship of Walter A. Strong, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, to be held Wednesday afternoon at the Astor Gallery and which all newspaper members operating broadcasting stations have been invited to attend; and a special meeting of the open shop committee, of which Charles A. Webb, Asheville Citizen, is chairman, to be held on Tuesday afternoon April 25, in the Astor Gallery.

L. H. Butler, Buffalo Evening News, as chairman of the membership committee will report a healthy growth in the membership following the revision of the association's membership dues, which has been in effect since last year's convention. The present membership includes 482 daily newspapers with many applications pending to be acted upon at a meeting of the board of directors to be held on Saturday this week, April 23.

But featuring the convention, according to Mr. Palmer, will be the reports of the mechanical and traffic departments, dealing with activities of the association looking toward the elimination of waste in the newspaper business, and the stoppage of leaks which have been costing publishers dearly.

Thousands of dollars have been saved newspaper publishers, members of the A. N. P. A., by adjustments in railroad tariffs obtained through efforts of the traffic department since it was organized in September, 1926, and Mr. Mathey appointed as manager, the convention will be told.

An outstanding instance is the reduction of 16 2/3 per cent in the baggage rate for transportation of newspapers between all points in the central territory. Negotiations are now under way with western and southern railroads with a view to obtaining corresponding reductions.

The traffic department has also succeeded in establishing the principle that rates for carload shipments on return trips from points in the central and southern territory should be no higher than rates on newsprint paper in the reverse direction. This one accomplishment has resulted in the saving of several thousands of dollars a year to the membership, it has been estimated. It represents an adjustment that had previously been sought by publishers through applications to the Interstate Commerce Commission, without success, until the traffic department accomplished the desired results. The reductions obtained range from six cents to one half cents to 38½ cents per cwt.

Many other reductions in newsprint rates to specific points have already been obtained by the traffic department and negotiations are continuing. In several cases where the publishers have been paying exorbitant rates during the last several years they will obtain a refund of the excessive charges. In one individual case, it has been estimated, that the A. N. P. A. member publisher will receive a refund aggregating more than $6,000.

President John Stewart Bryan

Perhaps the greatest advantage resulting from the organization of the traffic department is that the A. N. P. A. members are now represented and their views expressed at all meetings of railroad officials and interstate commerce hearings of interest to newspapers.

Mr. Wines, as manager of the mechanical department, will tell members how he is striving to cut waste in this branch of the newspaper business.

Between two and eight per cent of every 1,000 tons of newsprint used by newspapers is wasted, according to a report on newsprint waste which was issued to the membership of the A. N. P. A. by Mr. Wines. The report was based on figures furnished by more than 100 members. Mr. Wines has estimated that newsprint waste costs A. N. P. A. members a sum in excess of $5,000,000 annually, and he believes this enormous aggregate waste can be reduced by 20 per cent or $1,000,000.

Mr. Wines has accompanied his report with tabulations divided into different classes representative of the newspapers reporting, such a Class A, with newsprint consumption under 1,000 tons annually, Class B with consumption of 1,000 to 5,000 tons, Class C consumption of 5,000 to 20,000 tons and Class D consumption of over 20,000 tons.

The various causes of the waste are listed as due to excessively heavy wrappers, waste in handling and in transit generally, core waste, and waste due to spoiling and tearing in printing.

Waste due to heavy wrappers is estimated as amounting to $2,500,000 yearly as far as A. N. P. A. members are concerned. Percentages of waste caused by wrappers range all the way from a minimum of .75 per cent to 2.50 per cent. Mr. Wines makes it plain that there is no apparent intention on the part of paper manufacturers to make the wrappers too heavy in order to collect on the extra weight. He says that the paper companies are always willing to follow the wishes of the publishers in this regard.

Core waste was reported from .05 per cent to 2.42 per cent and printed waste from .07 per cent to 4.44 per cent.

Concluding his report, Mr. Wines stated:

"To keep waste within the plant at a reasonable minimum requires constant care and vigilance upon the part of everyone concerned with the handling of paper rolls or the operation of presses. If this discussion has done nothing more, it has at least served to call attention to some of the losses which accompany carelessness in the use of paper. This whole subject is worthy of more attention than, in many cases, it receives."

Committee chairmen scheduled to report to the annual convention next week include: Howard Davis, business manager, New York Herald Tribune, chairman of the finance committee; Charles A. Webb, Asheville (N. C.) Citizen, chairman committee on open shop; George M. Rogers, Cleveland Plain Dealer, chairman, committee on mechanical department; Charles F. Hart, mechanical superintendent, New York Times, committee on standardization of presses and press parts; E. M. Antrim, Chicago Tribune, chairman of committee on traffic; Victor F. Ridder, New Yorker Staats Zeitung, chairman committee on printing trades schools; A. L. Miller, Battle Creek (Mich.) Enquirer and Evening News, chairman of the committee on federal laws.

J. D. Barnum, Syracuse Post-Standard, chairman, postal committee; T. R. Williams, editor and publisher, Pittsburgh (Pa.) Chronicle-Telegraph and Gazette-Times, chairman, paper committee; E. H. Baker, president, Cleveland Plain Dealer, chairman, committee on national forest resources; Walter A. Strong, Chicago Daily News, chairman, committee on radio; Hilton U. Brown, Indianapolis News, chairman, committee on circulation audits.

William B. Bryant, Paterson (N. J.) Press Guardian, is chairman of the convention program committee.

CONVENTION TIME-TABLE

MONDAY, APRIL 25

10 A. M.	Committee in Charge of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, annual meeting.
11 A. M.	Associated Press, annual meeting called to order
1 P. M.	Associated Press, annual luncheon, President Noyes, speaker.
2:30 P. M.	Associated Press, afternoon session, Waldorf-Astoria.
7:30 P. M.	United Press Association, 20th anniversary dinner, Biltmore.
7:45 P. M.	King Features Syndicate, M. Koenigsberg, president, Garden Lark, Friars' Monastery, 110 W. 48th street.

TUESDAY, APRIL 26

11 A. M.	Associated Press, opening of second day's session.
2:30 P. M.	Associated Press, afternoon session.
3:30 P. M.	United Feature Syndicate, reception to Miss Elsie Nichols, leading lady of "Abie's Irish Rose," in Green Room at Waldorf.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27

10 A. M	American Newspaper Publishers Association, opening meeting called to order.
12:30 P. M.	Adjourn for luncheon.
2:30 P. M.	American Newspaper Publishers Association, afternoon session.
7:00 P. M.	North American Newspaper Alliance, directors meeting, Waldorf-Astoria.

THURSDAY, APRIL 28

10 A. M.	American Newspaper Publishers Association.
12:30 P. M.	100,000 Group of American Cities, luncheon, Roof Garden.
2:30 P. M.	A. N. P. A., afternoon session.
7:30 P. M.	Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, annual dinner, Waldorf-Astoria

FRIDAY, APRIL 29

10 A. M.	A. N. P. A., meeting, Waldorf.
10:30 A. M.	Audit Bureau of Circulations, directors meeting, Astor Hotel.
7:30 P. M.	Dinner to Ed Howe, former editor Atchison (Kan.) Globe, at Biltmore Hotel.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE U. P. DINNER SPEAKER

Chief Executive to Be Honor Guest of Press Service at 20th Anniversary Dinner April 25—History Organization Founded By E. W. Scripps in 1907 Told

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE is expected to deliver the most important speech he has made since addressing the American Legion at Kansas City last Armistice Day when he addresses the 20th anniversary banquet of the United Press Associations scheduled for Monday evening, April 25, at the Biltmore Hotel. More than 900 are expected to attend.

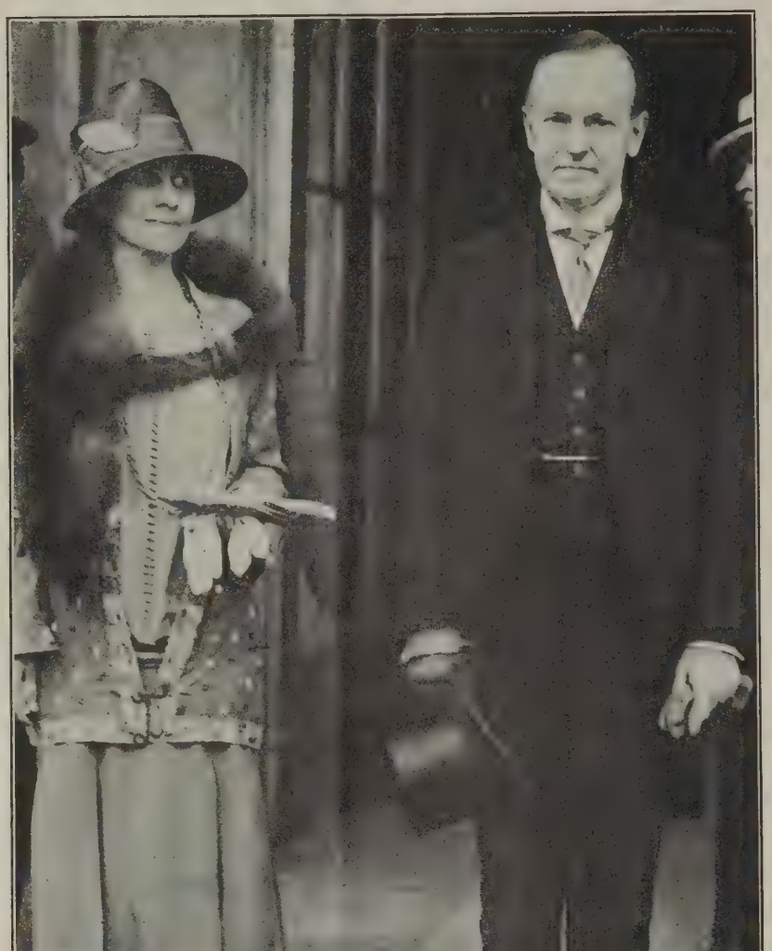
The occasion will represent the second time that President Coolidge has addressed a gathering of the nation's editors and publishers, but the first time that the affair has been under the auspices of the United Press. In 1924 President Coolidge was the speaker at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press.

Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press, will preside at the banquet. Another speaker will be Irvin S. Cobb, humorist.

Music will be furnished by the West Point band of 72-pieces.

In addition to newspaper men of this country a small delegation is coming from South America and the Continent to attend the banquet. Among the foreigners who will be present are Count Pereira Carneiro, publisher of the Rio di Janeiro Journal do Brasil; and Axel Wenner-Gren, publisher of the Stockholm-Dagabladt.

A consolidation of three wire associations in 1907 resulted in the present United Press Associations, but the clients represented in the three different groups were few in number compared to the present world-wide clientele of the organization today. The growth has been from under 300 to a present claim of 1,100 in 37 different countries.



The consolidation was the outgrowth of conditions which existed for 10 years following the Spanish-American war. After the demise in the late nineties of the old United Press, which had been fostered and made powerful by the late Charles A. Dana of the New York Sun, the newsgathering field was left open to the Associated Press. To furnish news for such newspapers as were not members of the A. P. a number of independent agencies were established. Chief among these were the Scripps-McRae Press Association, which confined its efforts mainly to the middle west, the Scripps News, functioning on the Pacific Coast, and the Publishers' Press whose field was the Atlantic Coast region.

At first there was a working alliance arranged between these three different groups in an attempt to co-ordinate efforts and bring about a greater measure of cohesion. This working agreement was only partially successful. The independent character of the three organizations which entered it and the human desire of the editors of each to play up the news of his own territory, operated to make the service of each rather top-heavy and poorly balanced. What was needed was complete unification of the three associations under a single directing head and a single ownership.

In 1907, the late E. W. Scripps, chain newspaper owner, consolidated the three agencies and organized the new United Press.

In organizing the new United Press, Robert Paine, John Vandercook, Hamilton Clark and Roy W. Howard were Mr. Scripps' chief lieutenants. J. C. Harper, a lawyer, prepared the articles of incorporation which were filed with the Secretary of New York State, June 21, 1907. The incorporators and directors at the first board meeting held in New York, June 22, 1907 were Mr. Clark, Mr. Howard, Mr. Harper, C. D. Lee, Lilly Price, Charles F. Mosher, Grace F. Luckings and John L. White. One director. Mr. Vandercook, was absent.

Mr. Vandercook was placed in charge of this new agency as president, but retained this position only a year before he died. At Vandercook's death in 1908, United Press clients numbered about 300.

President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge

In a letter written Sept. 27, 1912 to Roy W. Howard, Mr. Scripps, founder of the United Press, told why he had organized the wire news agency. Much of the letter is too personal for reproduction, but excerpts were made public for the first time this week.

"I do not believe in monopolies," Mr. Scripps wrote, "I believe that monopolists suffer more than their victims in the long run. I do not believe it would be good for journalism in this country that there should be one big news trust. I not only wanted to start a new newspaper if I chose, but I wanted to make it possible for a man to found a newspaper in any city of the union. * * *

"I had been convinced of the correctness of the proverb that what is everybody's business is nobody's business, when applied to a purely mutual press association, considering the membership as a whole. Clique rule is the inevitable outcome of all mutual institutions, I believe.

"I believe in one-man control—in other words the 51 per cent rule—just as firmly as I believe in the distribution or sharing of profits amongst all the important and capable administrators of a business.

"Providing the one man is fairly intelligent and is possessed both of reputation and character that makes him dependable it is better that he should have final authority, not by agreement, but by his own individual power and title. I propose to avoid the dangers of a mutual concern as well as the dangers of shifting balances of power of the company of stockholding ownership."

When Mr. Vandercook, the first president of the United Press, died in April 1908, the late Hamilton B. Clark was appointed his successor. Mr. Clark was in charge from 1908 until 1910. In 1910 C. D. Lee took the title and held it until 1913.

During all these years, 1908 to 1913, Roy W. Howard, now chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, was the chief assistant to the president. The organization prospered and grew in this period, but its greatest expansion began in 1913 when Mr. Howard became president and took complete charge. Mr. Howard was president from 1913 to 1920, when he was succeeded by W. W. Hawkins.

Under the administrations of Mr. Howard and Mr. Hawkins the United Press developed on an international scale until today, under the presidency of Karl A. Bickel it is one of the most important news gathering and dist ting agencies.

"The sun never sets on United P client papers' deadlines, and never but that a United Press correspon is waiting to greet it," is a slogan service has recently adopted.

Mr. Bickel is a thoroughly tr press association man who came up the ranks. He became president of organization in January 1923, after ing been business manager, news ager and general manager in turn

In charge of the news reports i services is Robert J. Bender, ge news manager. Ralph H. Turne assistant general news manager, p particular attention to directing the services of the United Press.

Hugh Baillie, general business m ger, is in charge of the business departments, with Gilbert M. Clayt assistant business manager and Cle Randau as sales manager.

J. H. Furay, vice-president is in eral charge of all services in fo countries.

In the foreign field, James I. M vice-president, is in charge of S America with headquarters in B Aires.

Ed L. Keen, vice-president and eral European manager directs European news gathering and vice from his headquarters in Lo Webb Miller is assistant general pean manager and Dr. E. J. Bi continental business manager in Eu

The first great test of the U Press in its field came after 1914 the Great War began, necessitatin greatest display of efficiency ever k among news agencies in modern hi

The clientele increased swiftly ar the end of the war the United was serving 800 clients in United S and Canada and had expanded its fo service until its dispatches reached quarter of the civilized world. Eu South America, the Orient.

The United Press has established maintains 36 bureaus in the largest of the United States and 28 burea Europe, South America and other of the world. In addition to the re United Press bureaus, the organiz has correspondents in all news cent the United States, and more thar correspondents in foreign cou More than 104,000 miles of leased are used each day in carrying o full service to its newspapers. Ap imately 20,000,000 American news readers read the dispatches of the U Press.

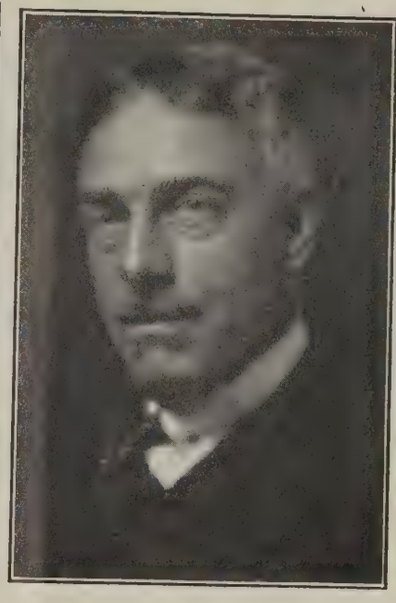
The United Press introduced "human interest" side of press as tion work. It conceived its duty to give readers of its client newsp not only the actual facts of each event but also to reflect something atmosphere and color surrounding news event.

As originally established, the U Press served only afternoon and S morning clients. Soon after the cl the war, however, a night servic the morning paper field under the "The United News" was laun Now United News has become a p United Press.

Later the United Financial s for transmission of financial and sp news, including races, was establ

In the foreign field one of the ac ments of the United Press has be discovery of South America as a for United States news and the nee the countries of that continent for news. Until 1916, South Am newspapers were dependent for news of Europe and North An upon the Agence Havas, the official agency of France. North Am news reached South America by w England or France.

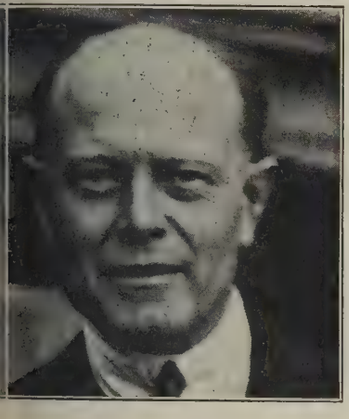
In June 1916, the United Press o



PAST PRESIDENTS AND PRESENT CHIEF OF UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS

Roy Howard

John Vandercook



Hamilton B. Clark

W. W. Hawkins

irect service from New York to nos Aires and Rio de Janeiro, in ad- n to its direct European service rn London and Paris to those cities. inning then with a few clients in entina, this service has developed today the United Press clients in- most of the important newspapers he South American continent who ve a daily service reaching 10,000 words. The clientele extends from ota, Colombia to Argentina, and up east coast to Rio De Janeiro and Paulo, Brazil. Other special serv- go to Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, o Domingo, Central America, Pan- Hawaii and Manila.

Karl A. Bickel

ited Press bureaus, manned by ricans trained in North American paper work are maintained in os Aires, Santiago and Rio de Jan- Lima, Bogota and La Paz.

Europe the United Press dispatches rectly to clients in France, England, nany, Austria, Hungary, Norway, en, Denmark and Spain, and gh connections there to all the countries of the older continent.

the Orient where United Press us are also maintained at Tokio, a, Peking, Shanghai and Manila. dispatches in Japan are distributed gh an arrangement with Nippon o Tsushin Sha, the Japanese tele- agency and directly to the Osaka ichi and the Tokio Nichi Nichi. In alia and New Zealand, more than newspapers publish United Press ches daily.

teen English-language and vernac- papers in China receive United News from the Peking and hai bureaus.

number of important newspapers of Canada are served by the United Press, through the British United Press, Limited, an affiliated organization.

Today United Press service is being delivered directly to approximately 1,100 clients in 37 countries, and is appearing in 17 different languages, according to the present management.

During the last few weeks, rapid steps have been taken in the expansion of the United Press service to newspapers of Continental Europe. Five new clients in Holland, Italy and Spain have begun service. They are: De Telegraaf, of Amsterdam; Gazetta del Popolo, of Turin, Italy; Ambrosiano, of Milan; Il Gazzettino, of Venice; and A. B. C., of Madrid, Spain.

WHEN NEWSPAPERS USE TELEVISION

By ED MEISBURGER

AS it might be in a newspaper office on the first day television is in general usage:

Reporter (calling Mr. Mazuma to ask what he thinks of his daughter eloping with the family chauffeur)—"You say Mr. Mazuma is not in? Well Mr. Mazuma, I don't like to accuse you of evading the truth, but I know you at sight and I can plainly see you standing there in your bathrobe talking to me. If you do not care to talk, that of course is your business."

Next day the elopement story in part was like this:

Mr. Mazuma, called last night at his home, answered the telephone, but denied being in. However he was plainly seen at his telephone by the Gazette representative who called him.

Managing editor (addressing telegraph editor)—"What's the development in that mine disaster? Have they gotten the miners out?"

Telegraph Editor—"The press services have not come through, but I just talked over long distance to the mine foreman and I saw the rescuers bringing some of the miners out. We've gone with that in a chaser."

Reporter (disguising his voice)—"Is this the city editor? Well this is Mrs. Martin. Mr. Martin has a bad attack of influenza and won't be able to get to work today. He's very sorry."

City Editor—"I'm very sorry, Mr. Martin, but you'll have to come to work today. Just drop that bottle I see in your hand and come on down."

Shrill Voice—"Are you the man who said he'd put my daughter's picture in the paper?"

City Editor—"Well I don't recall, lady, I handle so many pictures. Perhaps it was the assistant-assistant city editor."

Voice More Shrill—"Well it was you. I know that red moustache. You told me her picture would be in the paper. Now don't bite your lips like that and frown. If you don't put that picture in we'll quit the paper and there will be a lot of other people quit it too."

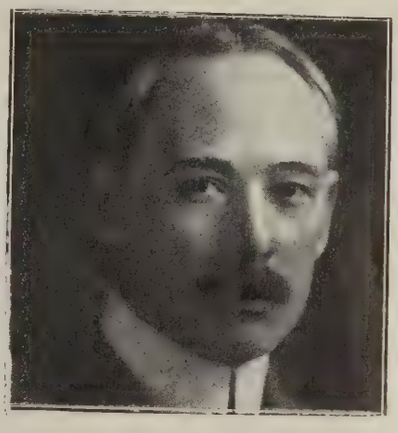
Reporter (calling city editor)—"This meeting hasn't developed anything yet, but I'd better stick. I think it will run a couple of hours."

City Editor—"Now if I were you I'd put that four ball in the far pocket, wash the chalk off your hands and go where I sent you."

Insistent Voice—"Are you going to stay down at that office all night. Seems like you stay later every night. I'm getting tired of it. You get home here in a hurry, George Sniffen, or you don't need to come at all."

George Sniffen—"There you go, again. I'm tied up on a story and I don't know when I'll get away. If I was through I'd be home. I don't hang around here just for the fun of it. You should have married a guy who punches the clock."

Insistent Voice—"Don't sit there and lie to me. Can't I see those cards in your hand. And there's Bill, Ray and Jimmie with cards in their hands. So you're tied up on a story. Well you'll be tied up in a knot when you get home. Now you come on home and don't let me have to call you again."



BERLIN EDITORS IN N. Y.

German Group Takes Maiden Voyage on New Steamship

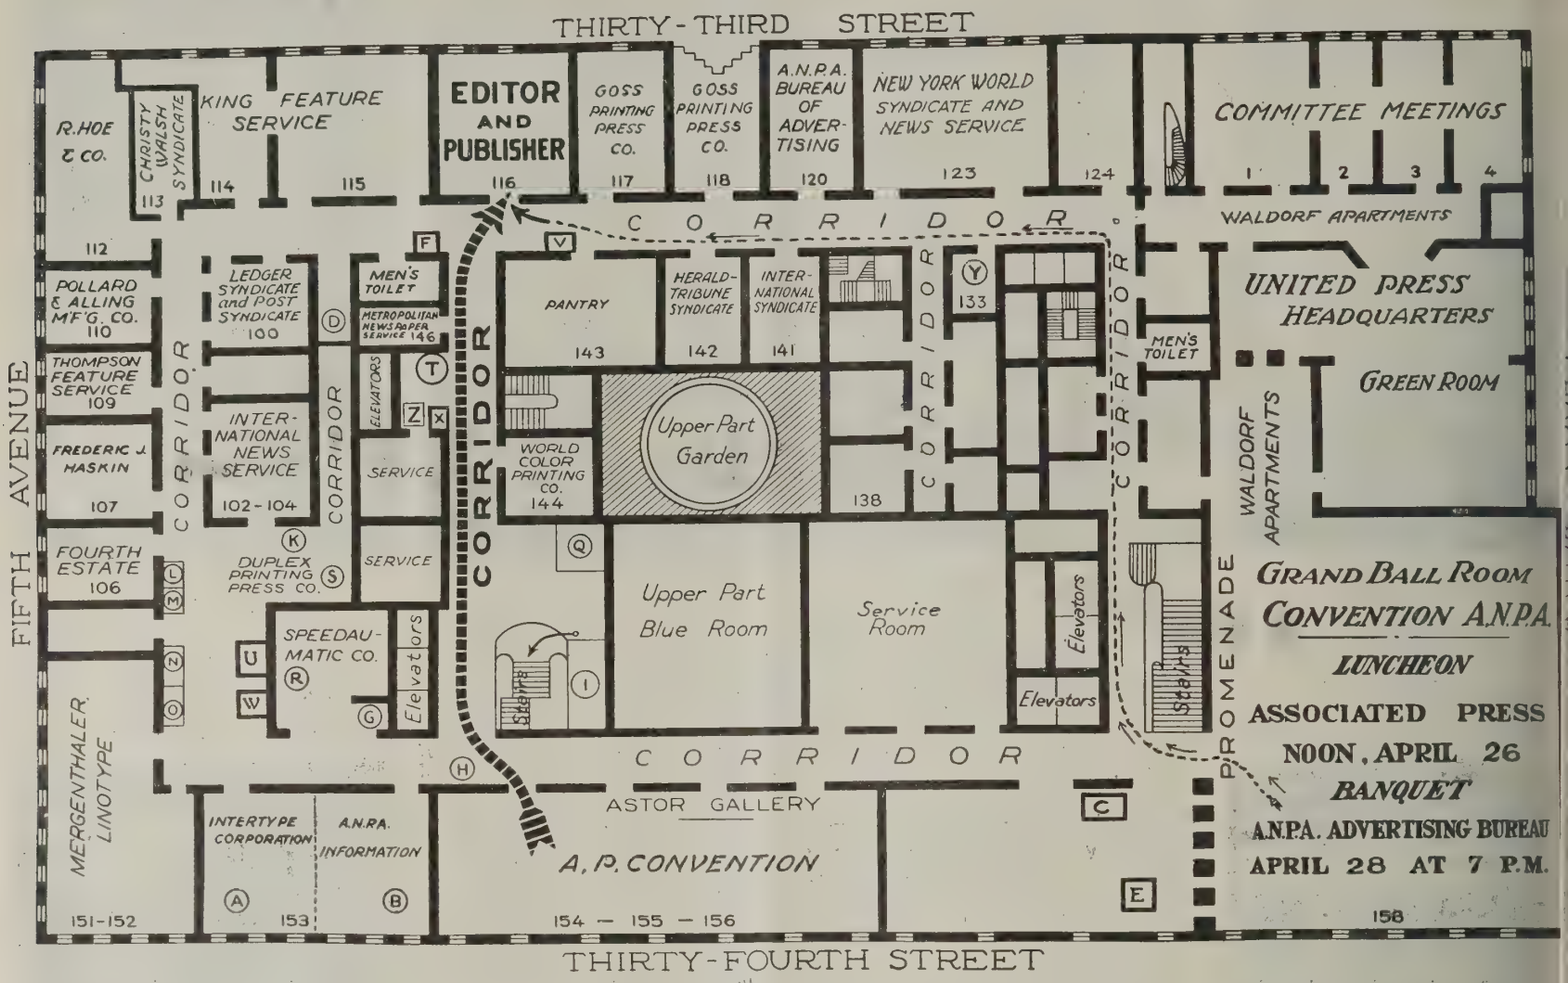
A group of prominent German newspaper men spent a short time in this country last week arriving April 11, on the new Hamburg-American line steamer "New York" on her maiden voyage, and returning on the same ship April 18.

While in New York, the visiting journalists were given a dinner by Victor Ridder, publisher of the New Yorker Staats Zeitung, and a luncheon by Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times.

Those in the party were: P. Baecker, Chairman of the Association of the German Press; Dr. H. Diez, Director of Wolff's Telegraph Bureau of Berlin; Dr. E. Faktor, chief editor of the Berliner Boersen Courier; Walter Funk, editor of the Berliner Boersenzeitung; Henrich Rippler, chief editor, Taegliche Rundschau, Berlin; Dr. E. Wiems, chief editor, Deutsche Tageszeitung, Berlin; Dr. Samuel Breslauer, chief editor, Berliner

C. D. Lee

Lokalanzeiger; Dr. H. Priester, editor, Berliner Tageblatt; J. Elbau, editor, Vossische Zeitung, Berlin; Dr. A. Hassmueller, chief editor, Koelnische Zeitung, Cologne; Herman Orth, chief editor, Germania, Berlin; F. von Eckardt, chief editor, Hamburger Fremdenblatt; Wilhelm Leda, editor, Hamburger Nachrichten; Dr. Rolf Erdmann, editor, Hamburger Anzeiger; Paul Bugdahn, chief editor, Hamburger Echo; Rudolf Michael, chief editor, Hamburger Correspondent; Admiral (ret.) W. Vollerthun, editor, Muenich Neueste Nachrichten; Paul Fechter, editor, Deutsche Allgemaine Zeitung; E. von Mueller, representative of the Telegraphen Union, Berlin.



HAS HIMSELF ARRESTED

Oregon Publisher Starts Case to Test Legal Status of Judges

Fred L. Boalt, editor of the Portland (Ore.) News, recently arranged for his own arrest for driving an automobile without a license plate. The object of the arrest was to test the legality of the present method of appointing municipal judges in Portland, Boalt expecting to carry his case to the Oregon Supreme Court on this contention.

When Mr. Boalt had been fined $10 and had refused to pay Judge Stadter ordered that he serve it out in jail at the rate of $2 a day. Just as he was about to be thrown into the city jail, Boalt's attorney arrived with a writ of habeas corpus from the Circuit Court.

DIRECTORY OF PUBLISHERS' CONVENTION EVENTS AND EXHIBITS

ADDRESSOGRAPH
Main Floor, Old Colony Club Room
W. G. Ryan — Robert E. Connelly

AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.
Convention, Grand Ball Room, end of West Foyer.
Committee Meetings room at end of West Foyer and Rooms 1, 2, 3, 4.
General Offices, 270 Madison Avenue.
Registration in room at entrance to Grand Ball-Room (Space C).
Information Desk, Myrtle Room.
Representatives of Railroad, entrance to Grand Ball Room (Space E).
Exhibit of Printing Trade Schools, Room 153 B.

ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Convention, Astor Gallery, Rooms 154-155.
Annual Luncheon, Grand Ball Room.
Committee Meetings, Rooms 1, 2, 3, 4, and Astor Gallery.
General Offices, 383 Madison Avenue.

AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK COMPANY.
Store on main floor.
S. P. Weston.

ARTGRAVURE CORPORATION.
Space (H) in Corridor.
A. N. Sherin. — R. N. Getches.
F. D. Murphy. — W. A. Milanese.

BELL SYNDICATE.
Space (D) in Corridor.
John N. Wheeler.
Henry M. Snevily.
E. J. Clode, Jr.
James A. O'Connell, Jr.
Miss Marie A. Cleary.

BENJAMIN ADVERTISING COMPANY.
Space (W) in Corridor.
Louis Benjamin.
Charles Chamberlain.

BOURGES SERVICE.
Alcove on Main Floor.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE SYNDICATE.
Col. R. R. McCormick. — William Whalen.
Arthur Crawford. — Steve Wharton
E. M. Autrim. — W. E. MacFarlane.
J. W. Park. — D. McMahon.

CLINE ELECTRIC & MFG. COMPANY.
Space (O) in Corridor.
H. E. Brundage. — H. S. Patterson.
A. J. Cline. — R. J. Baker.
A. H. Parks. — C. A. Dresser.

CUTLER-HAMMER MFG. CO.
Space (S) in Corridor.
C. W. Yerger. — Fred Oberschmidt.
Frank W. Barnecott. — A. H. James.
F. W. Schnell.

DUPLEX PRINTING CO.
Space (K) in Corridor.
H. P. Bechman. — Charles H. Brown.
M. M. Farley. — Bruce M. Phelps.
I. C. Squier. — Sam R. Young.
Col. Markey. — A. C. Hewitt.
Wesley Dammes. — George S. Boumphrey.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER.
Room 116.
Mr. Brown. — Mr. Bope.
Mr. Pew. — Mr. Strate.
Mr. Robb. — Mr. Glaser.
Mr. Bassett. — Mr. Payne.
Mr. Schuyler. — Mrs. Dare.
Mr. Brown, Jr. — Miss McMahon.
Mr. Clougher. — Miss Ferro.
Mr. Groomes. — Miss Sheldrick.
Mr. Lambert. — Miss Clougher.
Mr. Tanner. — Miss Smith.
Mr. Haulenbeek. — Miss Green.
Mr. Needham. — Miss Garigan.
Mr. Roche. — Miss Burke.
Mr. Kane. — Miss Stiles.
Mr. Hedley.

EDITORS' FEATURE SERVICE.
First Floor Desk.
Leroy Miller. — H. B. Sharp.
Homer George. — W. H. Johnson.

ELROD CASTER COMPANY.
Space (M) in Corridor. (See Ludlow Typograph Co.)

THE FOURTH ESTATE.
Room 106.

GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
Room 117.
George Eddy. — E. M. Arnold.
M. L. Redfield. — H. S. Mount.
G. C. Abbott. — H. F. Sheldon.
O. P. Brion. — H. D. Bell.
J. W. Spencer.

FREDERIC J. HASKIN.
Room 107.
Frederic J. Haskin. — W. R. Fairfield.
W. J. Cobb. — Camilla Hughes Brown.

R. HOE & COMPANY.
Room 112.
H. R. Swartz. — G. H. Higgins.
H. M. Tillinghast. — E. L. Johnson.
A. J. Gallien. — C. D. Peterson.
C. W. Gaskell. — H. Reynolds.
H. V. Ball. — J. H. Risely.
J. M. Masterson. — E. R. Rodd.
A. Bowie. — W. F. Smart.
J. W. Coleman. — J. F. Springstead.
O. L. Crain. — C. F. White.
P. H. Gallien. — R. A. Willoughby.

THE J. M. HUBER INK COMPANY.
Room 144.
J. M. Huber. — Charles W. Luttinger.
Albert H. Gere. — W. H. Lucking.
Herbert Bertel. — William Burns.

IMPERIAL TYPE METAL CO.
Space (T) in Corridor.
Clarence Semon. — David N. Phillips.
John Plummer. — Steve Byrnes.
David Britton. — Fred J. Sandman.
William H. Street. — Harry A. Bray.
Gene Kelly. — Jack Bauman.
Grant S. Wilber.

INTERTYPE CORPORATION.
Room 153 A.
N. D. Becker. — T. A. MacElwee.
D. R. Salisbury. — F. A. Hill.
F. H. Dunham. — W. H. Coleman.
W. B. Goode. — W. K. Young, Jr.
C. Chidsey. — M. L. Van Keuren.
J. W. Schuh. — R. B. Daigle.
B. W. Radcliffe. — R. Henneley.
W. C. Lund. — E. Goodbody.
R. O. Van Horn. — A. M. Berry.
S. H. Hayles.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE.
Room 102-104. (See King Features Syndicate.)

INTERNATIONAL SYNDICATE.
Room 141.
Howard Miller.

INTERNATIONAL FEATURE SERVICE.
Room 114-115. (See King Features Syndicate.)

JOHNSON FEATURE SERVICE.
First Floor Desk.
W. H. Johnson.
Leroy Miller.

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.
Room 115.
Frank J. Nicht. — I. F. Alofsin.
W. E. Moss. — C. B. Travis.
John A. Brogan. — Frank R. Margeson.
John D. Raridan. — B. A. Caparell.
L. J. Corwin. — Roy Q. Minton.
H. T. Hopkins. — Jack Hornaday.

KOHLER SYSTEM.
Mezzanine Floor.
G. A. Kohler. — George R. Hefner.
Franklin W. Kohler. — James E. Rust.

LANSTON MONOTYPE COMPANY.
First Floor Desk.
Richard Beresford. — Harvey D. Best.
T. Frank Morgan. — Herbert Morley.

LEDGER SYNDICATE.
Room 101.
John Elfreth Watkins. — E. W. Gilland.
E. J. Parker. — H. U. Clayton.

LUDLOW TYPOGRAPH COMPANY.
Space (L) in Corridor.
William A. Reade, President.
Philip P. Merrill. — B. C. Anderson-Smith.
J. O. King. — A. H. Blackwood.
H. H. Muir. — W. F. Mulcahy.
Clay Wellman. — P. I. Robbins.

MAGNETIC BASEBALL CORP.
Space (X) in Waldorf Corridor.
George H. Reynolds.
William Rossi.
Frank E. Fears.

MARGACH MFG. COMPANY.
Store at 8 West 34th Street.

McCOY HEALTH SERVICE.
Second Floor, Corridor.
D. G. Dumaresq. — B. Samuels.
H. Freeson. — E. Coxford.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY.
Room 151.
Walter H. Savory. — C. C. Rhame.
Fred C. Grumman. — Mark H. Boynton.
Walter C. Bleloch. — Tom Butler.
Fred W. Bott. — F. C. Van Schaick.
Harvey E. Reid.

METROPOLITAN NEWSPAPER SERVICE
Room 146.
Max Elser, Jr. — Arthur J. Lafave.
Earl J. Hadley. — Carter Lucas.
Donald W. Brown. — Burnett O. McAn
George A. Erickson.

NATIONAL NEWS SERVICES.
Room 144
Sidney A. Silberman — Bert H. Cohe
Milton R. Jacobs — Henry Levaur

N. E. A. SERVICE, INC.
Space (I) in Corridor.
Fred S. Ferguson. — William F. Na
J. W. Dean. — Mr. Douglas.

NEW ENGLAND NEWSPAPER SUPPLY
John J. Todd. — Charles H. H
William F. Grenier. — Fred M. You

NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE SYNDIC
Room 142.
H. Staton.
Phil Dietz.
Miss White.

NEW YORK WORLD SYNDICATE and N SERVICE.
Room 123.
F. B. Knapp. — H. C. Thiele.
W. H. Williams. — W. R. Lipman.
George C. Congdon. — George F. Mur
R. E. Moyer.

NEWSPAPER FEATURE SERVICE.
Room 114-115. (See King Features Syndic

PLAYOGRAPH COMPANY.
Space (F) in Corridor.
Leo C. Baum. — Alfred L. Fergus
Fred E. Marquet.

POLLARD-ALLING COMPANY.
Room 110.
W. M. Stretch. — Charles R. Ketch
F. H. Alling. — Frank DeMinico.

POST SYNDICATE.
Room 101.
John Elfreth Watkins. — E. W. Gill
E. J. Parker. — H. U. Clay

PREMIER SERVICES.
Room 114-115. (See King Features Syndic

PRESSMEN'S HOME.
Corridor Space (Ground Floor).
Maj. George L. Berry.

H. D. ROOSEN COMPANY.
Room 133.
Edward A. Nolte.
Arthur S. Thompson. — James T. Hay
John R. Hays. — Gilbert V. Old

SPEEDAUMAT COMPANY.
Space (R) in Corridor.
H. M. Pierce.
A. W. Bauer.
Miss S. M. Johnsen.

STAR ADCRAFT SERVICE.
Room 114-115. (See King Features Syndic

ASHTON G. STEVENSON, INC.
Space (U) in Corridor.

SCIENCE SERVICE, INC.
Space 2, Second Floor Corridor.
Miss Hallie Jenkins.

(Continued on page 84)

NEW YORK ADDRESSES OF VISITING PUBLISHERS

Name of Newspaper	Representative	New York Address
ame of Newspaper	Representative	New York Address
it (Mich.) Telegram	Stuart H. Perry	Waldorf-Astoria
(Ohio) Beacon-Journal	John S. Knight	Biltmore Hotel
	Jack J. Barry	Waldorf-Astoria
er (N. Y.) Knickerbocker Press and ning News	Lynn J. Arnold, Jr.	Knickerbocker Hotel
	John J. Connors	Roosevelt Hotel
	Arthur D. Hecox	Roosevelt Hotel
wn (Pa.) Call	R. W. Weiler	Astor Hotel
	C. J. Smith	Astor Hotel
	P. W. Leisenring	Astor Hotel
a (Pa.) Mirror	D. N. Slep	Waldorf-Astoria
	F. G. Pearce	Waldorf-Astoria
	H. L. Johnston	Waldorf-Astoria
io (Tex.) Globe-News	Gene A. Howe	Astor Hotel
dam (N. Y.) Recorder & Democrat	Gardiner Kline	Waldorf-Astoria
on (Ind.) Herald	William M. Toner	Biltmore Hotel
as City (Ark.) Traveler	Oscar S. Stauffer	St. James Hotel
lle (N. C.) Citizen	Charles A. Webb	Waldorf-Astoria
lle (N. C.) Times	Don S. Elias	Waldorf-Astoria
	D. Hiden Ramsay	Waldorf-Astoria
n (Kan.) Globe	Gene A. Howe	Astor Hotel
(Ohio) Messenger	F. W. Bush	St. James Hotel
	G. K. Bush	St. James Hotel
(Ga.) Constitution	Clark, Howell, Sr.	Astor Hotel
	Clark, Howell, Jr.	Astor Hotel
ro (Mass.) Sun	John H. Vallette	Waldorf-Astoria
(N. Y.) Advertiser-Journal	Chas. C. Cain, Jr.	Waldorf-Astoria
	Victor J. Callanan	Waldorf-Astoria
a (Ga.) Herald	R. W. Chamberlain	Waldorf-Astoria
(Vt.) Times	Bowdre Phinizy	Astor Hotel
Creek (Mich.) Enquirer & News	F. E. Langley	Waldorf-Astoria
Creek (Mich.) Moon-Journal	A. L. Miller	Waldorf-Astoria
e (N. J.) Times	N. E. Conine	Commodore Hotel
	Mrs. M. M. Lazarus	Bayonne, N. J.
	S. A. Lazarus	Bayonne, N. J.
	H. Lazarus	Bayonne, N. J.
	M. Zinadar	Bayonne, N. J.
ham (Wash.) Herald	S. A. Perkins	Roosevelt Hotel
(Wis.) News	B. P. Eldred	Commodore Hotel
	R. F. Collins	Commodore Hotel
em (Pa.) Globe-Times	J. M. Litsch	Pennsylvania Hotel
	Harold B. Farquhar	Pennsylvania Hotel
rd (Me.) Journal	William E. Foster	15-17 East 40th St.
(Mont.) Gazette	A. R. Prudden	270 Madison Ave.
	L. C. Prudden	270 Madison Ave.
nton (N. Y.) Sun	Arthur E. Garvey	Knickerbocker Hotel
	Walter J. Lyon	Knickerbocker Hotel
nton (N. Y.) Press & Leader	Ralph E. Bennett	Astor Hotel
	Frank W. Clark	Astor Hotel
gton (Ill.) Pantagraph	Jules Livingston	Astor Hotel
	Davis Merwin	c/o John G. Polache 1085 Park Ave.
Globe	C. C. Marquis	Astor Hotel
	Charles H. Taylor	c/o A. N. P. A. 270 Madison Ave.
d (Pa.) Era	Carl G. Milligan	Woodstock Hotel
ort (Conn.) Post-Telegram	Edward Flicker	Commodore Hotel
(Tenn.) Herald Courier & News
in	Munsey Slack	Breslin Hotel
	Charles J. Harkrader	Breslin Hotel
n Standard Union	R. F. R. Huntsman	Brooklyn, N. Y.
	Theodore Bosshard	Brooklyn, N. Y.
	J. J. Early	Brooklyn, N. Y.
Courier-Express	William J. Conners, Jr.	Vanderbilt Hotel
	Burrows Matthews	Vanderbilt Hotel
	Clifford J. Murray	Vanderbilt Hotel
Times	Norman E. Mack
	Stuart C. Welch
on (Ia.) Hawk-Eye	John F. D. Aue	Astor Hotel
(Alta.) Herald	W. J. Watson
ge (Md.) Banner	P. Watson Webb	Pennsylvania Hotel
(N. J.) Courier & Morning Post	J. David Stern	Shelton Hotel
	Walter A. Young	Empire Hotel
(Ohio) News	Charles E. Morris	Waldorf-Astoria
rdeau (Mo.) Southeast Missourian	Fred Naeter	Breslin Hotel
ale (Pa.) Leader	J. L. Druck	Knickerbocker Hotel
on (W. Va.) Gazette	Robert L. Smith	Astor Hotel
	W. E. Chilton, Jr.	Vanderbilt Hotel
	Mrs. Ruth Garcelon	Astor Hotel
	Mrs. Janice Ginther	Astor Hotel
on (W. Va.) Mail	B. H. Anderson	McAlpin Hotel
(N. C.) News	W. C. Dowd	Knickerbocker Hotel
(N. C.) Observer	Curtis J. Johnston
nga (Tenn.) News	George F. Milton	Vanderbilt Hotel
	Walter C. Johnson	Astor Hotel
(Pa.) Times	Charles R. Long	Waldorf-Astoria
Herald-Examiner	Roy D. Keehn	Biltmore Hotel
ti Commercial Tribune	M. C. Meigs	St. Regis Hotel
i Post	Harry W. Brown	Waldorf-Astoria
i Times-Star	Frank W. Rosrock	Barclay Hotel
	Hulbert Taft	Pennsylvania Hotel
	C. H. Rembold	McAlpin Hotel
g (W. Va.) Exponent	George Fries	McAlpin Hotel
e (Miss.) Register	Moses Strauss	McAlpin Hotel
e (Tenn.) Leaf-Chronicle	W. Guy Tetrick	Continental Hotel
er (Fla.) Sun	G. P. Clark	Martinique Hotel
e (Kan.) Journal	M. Stratton Foster	St. James Hotel
Springs (Colo.) Gazette & Tele-	Paul Poynter
	H. J. Powell & wife	Waldorf-Astoria
(S. C.) State	C. C. Hamlin	Ritz-Carlton
(Ohio) Dispatch	William E. Gonzales	Astor Hotel
	F. C. Withers	Astor Hotel
	Harvey R. Young	Vanderbilt Hotel
(N. C.) Tribune	Charles J. Rieker	Vanderbilt Hotel
N. H.) Telegram	A. E. Campbell	Vanderbilt Hotel
g N. Y.) Leader	J. B. Sherrill	Roosevelt Hotel
	Edward J. Gallagher	Wellington Hotel
(N. Y.) Standard	W. A. Underhill	Yale Club
rd (Md.) Times	John F. Rolfe	Waldorf-Astoria
ex.) Journal & News	E. H. Clark	Bristol Hotel
	Joseph B. Finan	McAlpin Hotel
(Ill.) Commercial-News	E. B. Doran	Waldorf-Astoria
	W. A. Dealey	Waldorf-Astoria
(Iowa) Democrat & Leader	John H. Harrison	Astor Hotel
(Iowa) Times	W. J. Parrett	Astor Hotel
Ohio) Journal & Herald	Frank D. Throop	Astor Hotel
	E. P. Adler	Astor Hotel
r Ill.) Review	Ralph M. Jones	Astor Hotel
	Dwight Young	Astor Hotel
(Tex.) Herald	H. C. Schaub	Vanderbilt Hotel
Tex.) Record-Chronicle	F. W. Schaub	Vanderbilt Hotel
es (Ia.) Register and Tribune-	H. E. Ellis	Waldorf-Astoria
	William C. Edwards	Waldorf-Astoria
ee Press	John Cowles	Vanderbilt Hotel
	William H. Pettibone	Madison Hotel
ews	Hal C. Mitchell	Roosevelt Hotel
	George E. Miller	927 World Bldg.
	Warren S. Booth	c/o I. A. Klein

Name of Newspaper	Representative	New York Address
Duluth Herald	M. F. Hanson	Chatham Hotel
Duluth News-Tribune	Reed Taft Bayne
Easton (Pa.) Express	J. H. McGrath
	J. L. Stackhouse
	A. M. Umholtz
Elgin (Ill.) Courier-News	D. A. McKenzie	Vanderbilt Hotel
Elizabeth (N. J.) Times	H. E. Pettingill	Elizabeth, N. J.
Elmira (N. Y.) Star-Gazette	Frank E. Tripp	Astor Hotel
	John T. Calkins	Astor Hotel
Erie (Pa.) Dispatch-Herald	Louis Benjamin	Astor Hotel
	C. I. Chamberlain	Astor Hotel
Evansville (Ind.) Courier & Journal	E. J. Fehn	Astor Hotel
Fargo (N. D.) Forum	Norman D. Black	McAlpin Hotel
Findlay (Ohio) Courier-Republican	L. N. Heminger	St. James Hotel
Fort Smith (Ark.) Times Record-Southwest American	J. S. Parks	Astor Hotel
Fort Wayne (Ind.) Journal-Gazette	L. G. Ellingham	Astor Hotel
	A. Schaefer	Astor Hotel
Fort Wayne (Ind.) News-Sentinel	Oscar G. Foellinger	McAlpin Hotel
	Arthur K. Remmel	McAlpin Hotel
Fort Worth (Tex.) Star-Telegram & Record-Telegram	James M. North, Jr.	Astor Hotel
	B. N. Honea	Astor Hotel
Frederick (Md.) News & Post	R. E. Delaplaine	St. James Hotel
Fredericksburg (Va.) Free Lance-Star	Josiah P. Rowe, Jr.	St. James Hotel
Fresno (Cal.) Morning Republican	George A. Osborn	Pennsylvania Hotel
Gary (Ind.) Post-Tribune	J. R. Snyder	Waldorf-Astoria
Geneva (N. Y.) Times	G. B. Williams	Waldorf-Astoria
	W. A. Gracey	Waldorf-Astoria
Gloversville (N. Y.) Herald	Emmett H. Cullings	Waldorf-Astoria
	Flora M. Cullings	Waldorf-Astoria
Gloversville (N. Y.) Leader-Republican	Frank L. Rogers	Waldorf-Astoria
	Edw. H. Mills	Waldorf-Astoria
Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald	A. H. Vandenberg	Biltmore Hotel
Grand Rapids (Mich.) Press	C. M. Greenway	St. Regis Hotel
	E. J. Slemons	St. Regis Hotel
Greenville (S. C.) Piedmont	R. B. Chandler	c/o Kelly-Smith Co.
Hackensack (N. J.) Bergen Record	Russell L. Binder	Hackensack, N. J.
Hagerstown (Md.) Herald-Mail	S. E. Phillips	Waldorf-Astoria
	William P. Lane, Jr.	Waldorf-Astoria
Hamilton (Ont.) Spectator	James R. Allan	Waldorf-Astoria
	P. S. Fiske	Waldorf-Astoria
Hannibal (Mo.) Courier-Post	E. L. Sparks	Astor Hotel
Hanover (Pa.) Sun	Hugh B. Hostetter	St. James Hotel
	C. Homer Meredith	St. James Hotel
Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph	A. R. Michener	Astor Hotel
	A. H. Stackpole	Astor Hotel
	H. R. Fry	Astor Hotel
Hastings (Neb.) Tribune	Adam Breede	St. James Hotel
Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette	Robert L. Wright	Vanderbilt Hotel
Hazelton (Pa.) Plain Speaker-Standard-Sentinel	Henry Walser	Waldorf-Astoria
	J. R. Dershuck	Waldorf-Astoria
High Point (N. C.) Enterprise	J. P. Rowley	Roosevelt Hotel
Hornell (N. Y.) Tribune-Times	Miss Mabel Wombough	Waldorf-Astoria
	Mrs. Olive G. Buisch	Waldorf-Astoria
Houston (Tex.) Chronicle	Jesse H. Jones	Ambassador Hotel
	C. B. Gillespie	44th Street Hotel
	G. J. Palmer	44th Street Hotel
Houston (Tex.) Press	M. E. Foster	Vanderbilt Hotel
	Mrs. M. E. Foster	Vanderbilt Hotel
Hudson (N. Y.) Star	Emory C. Van Loan	Empire Hotel
Huntington (Ind.) Press	A. J. Wilhelm	St. James Hotel
Huntsville (Ala.) Times	J. E. Pierce	Waldorf-Astoria
	Mrs. J. E. Pierce	Waldorf-Astoria
Indianapolis News	Warren C. Fairbanks	Biltmore Hotel
	Hilton U. Brown	Gotham Hotel
Indianapolis Star	Curtis A. Hodges	Biltmore Hotel
	James A. Stuart	Gotham Hotel
Iowa City (Iowa) Press-Citizen	B. F. Lawrence	Gotham Hotel
Ithaca (N. Y.) Journal-News	Merritt C. Speidel	Waldorf-Astoria
Jackson (Miss.) News	John W. Baker	St. James Hotel
Jamaica (L. I.) Press	Frederick Sullens	Vanderbilt Hotel
Jamestown (N. Y.) Journal	William F. Hofmann	Jamaica, L. I., N. Y.
Jefferson (Ind.) News	Fred P. Hall	Knickerbocker Hotel
	Henri M. Hall	Knickerbocker Hotel
Johnston City (Tenn.) Chronicle & Staff-News	H. A. Wenige	c/o Thomas F. Clark Co. 128 West 31st St.
Jonesboro (Ark.) Sun	Joseph Zorna	Frost, Landis & Kohn 250 Park Ave.
Kansas City (Mo.) Journal Post	Blythe Johnson	c/o Frank A. Munsey Co.
	Walter S. Dickey	Waldorf-Astoria
Kenosha (Wis.) News	W. Laurence Dickey	Waldorf-Astoria
Kewanee (Ill.) Star-Courier	M. B. Sharp	Waldorf-Astoria
Kingsport (Tenn.) Times	R. S. Kingsley	St. James Hotel
Kingston (N. Y.) Freeman	L. D. Upton	Astor Hotel
Kingston (Ont.) Whig-Standard	Thomas H. Pratt	St. James Hotel
	Jay E. Klock	Waldorf-Astoria
Kokomo (Ind.) Dispatch	H. B. Muir	c/o L. J. Devine, 103 Park Ave.
Kokomo (Ind.) Tribune	Paul Poynter	Waldorf-Astoria
Laconia (N. H.) Citizen	Nelson P. Poynter	Waldorf-Astoria
Lafayette (Ind.) Journal & Courier	John Arthur Kautz	Astor Hotel
Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer & News Journal	Mrs. Etta G. Gallagher	Wellington Hotel
	Henry W. Marshall	McAlpin Hotel
Lansford (Pa.) Record	John F. Steinman	Shelton Hotel
Lansing (Mich.) Capital News	James H. Steinman	Vanderbilt Hotel
Lawrence (Mass.) Eagle-Tribune	A. E. McCullough	Waldorf-Astoria
	Wallace L. Robinson	Martinique Hotel
Lebanon (Pa.) News-Times	Henry C. Carpenter	Shelton Hotel
Lewiston (Me.) Sun & Journal	D. G. Watkins	Pennsylvania Hotel
Lexington (Ky.) Herald	B. Brewer	St. James Hotel
Lexington (Ky.) Leader	George A. Mellen	Astor Hotel
Lima (Ohio) News	Irving E. Rogers	Astor Hotel
	John K. R. Schropp	McAlpin Hotel
Little Falls (N. Y.) Times	L. B. Costello	Pennsylvania Hotel
Little Rock (Ark.) Democrat	Desha Breckinridge	Princeton Club
Los Angeles (Cal.) Express	H. Giovannoli	Waldorf-Astoria
Los Angeles (Cal.) Times	L. S. Galvin	Vanderbilt Hotel
	W. J. Galvin	Vanderbilt Hotel
Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal Times	John Crowley	Elks Club
	K. A. Engel	Astor Hotel
Lynchburg (Va.) News	Guy C. Earl, Jr.	Ambassador Hotel
	Harry Chandler	Plaza Hotel
Lynn (Mass.) Telegram-News	Norman Chandler	Plaza Hotel
McKeesport (Pa.) News	R. W. Bingham	Waldorf-Astoria
Macon (Ga.) Telegraph	Emanuel Levi	Waldorf-Astoria
	H. W. Stodghill	Waldorf-Astoria
	A. R. Magee	Astor Hotel
	Powell Glass	Waldorf-Astoria
	M. K. Duerson	Waldorf-Astoria
	W. E. Buckingham	Astor Hotel
	Jess E. Long	Knickerbocker Hotel
	W. T. Anderson	Knickerbocker Hotel

NEW YORK ADDRESSES OF VISITING PUBLISHERS

Name of Newspaper	Representative	New York Address
Madison (Wis.) State Journal	I. U. Sears	Waldorf-Astoria
Manitowoc (Wis.) Herald-News	William F. Ohde	St. James Hotel
Marietta (Ohio) Times	F. B. McKinney	Commodore Hotel
	F. B. McKinney	Commodore Hotel
Marion (Ohio) Star	Roy Moore	Waldorf-Astoria
Marlboro (Mass.) Enterprise	Allan Markley	St. James Hotel
Marshfield (Ore.) Coos Bay Times	E. B. Piper
Mason City (Iowa) Globe-Gazette	Lee P. Loomis	Astor Hotel
Massillon (Ohio) Independent	J. J. Bernstein	Waldorf-Astoria
Meadville (Pa.) Tribune-Republican	Walter Irving Bates	Waldorf-Astoria
Meriden (Conn.) Journal	F. E. Sands	St. James Hotel
	C. H. Tryon	St. James Hotel
Meriden (Conn.) Record	Wayne C. Smith	Astor Hotel
	E. E. Smith	Astor Hotel
	W. A. Kelsey	Knickerbocker Hotel
Miami (Fla.) Herald	Frank B. Shutts	Waldorf-Astoria
Middletown (Conn.) Press	Burr E. Stevens
	Elmer S. Hubbell
Middletown (Ohio) Journal	J. A. Chew	Waldorf-Astoria
Millville (N. J.) Republican	B. Frank Buck
Milwaukee Journal	Harry J. Grant	Harvard Club
Moline (Ill.) Dispatch	P. S. McGlynn	Astor Hotel
	August Sundine	Astor Hotel
Monroe (Wis.) Times	Emery A. Odell	Knickerbocker Hotel
Montreal (P. Q.) La Presse	William J. Morton	200 Fifth Ave.
	J. P. Callaghan	Astor Hotel
Moundsville (W. Va.) Echo	S. C. Shaw	Pennsylvania Hotel
Muscatine (Iowa) Journal	Clyde R. Rabedeaux	Astor Hotel
Muskogee (Okla.) Phoenix & Times-Democrat	Joel H. Bixby	Waldorf-Astoria
	Edison K. Bixby	Waldorf-Astoria
Nashville (Tenn.) Banner	Maj. E. B. Stahlman	Waldorf-Astoria
	James G. Stahlman	Astor Hotel
Newark (N. J.) Sunday Call	Louis Hannoch	Newark, N. J.
New Bedford (Mass.) Standard & Mercury	B. H. Anthony	Yale Club
	J. T. Murray	Vanderbilt Hotel
	Edmund Anthony	Roosevelt Hotel
Newburgh (N. Y.) News	Fred H. Keefe
Newburyport (Mass.) News	Fred E. Smith	Martinique Hotel
	Edward E. Hicken	Martinique Hotel
New Haven (Conn.) Journal-Courier	Herbert Peterson
New London (Conn.) Day	Theodore Bodenwein	Shelton Hotel
	Orvin G. Andrews	Shelton Hotel
New Orleans (La.) Times-Picayune	L. K. Nicholson	Waldorf-Astoria
Newport News (Va.) Press & Times-Herald	W. S. Copeland	Waldorf-Astoria
New York Graphic	J. R. Waters	25 City Hall Pl. N. Y.
	H. A. Ahern	25 City Hall Pl. N. Y.
New York Sun	Edwin S. Friendly	280 Broadway, N. Y. C.
	Fred A. Walker	280 Broadway, N. Y. C.
New York Telegram	W. G. Chandler	73 Dey Street, N. Y. C.
	W. W. Hawkins	250 Park Ave., N. Y. C.
	G. B. Parker	73 Dey St., N. Y. C.
New York World & Evening World	Herbert Bayard Swope
	J. F. Bresnahan
	S. M. Williams
Niagara Falls Gazette	M. Bradley Norton	c/o Kelley-Smith Co., 47 W. 34th Street, N. Y. C.
Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Dispatch	N. F. Maddever
	R. M. Van Wagner
	S. L. Slover	Waldorf-Astoria
	P. S. Huber	Astor Hotel
Norristown (Pa.) Times-Herald	Frederick S. Fox	St. James Hotel
	John C. Dye	Astor Hotel
	Gordon H. Kite	St. James Hotel
Ogdensburg (N. Y.) Republican-Journal	Mr. & Mrs. A. E. Sansoucy	Barclay Hotel & D. J. Randall & Co., 347 Fifth Ave., N. Y. C.
Olean (N. Y.) Herald	S. T. Velie	St. James Hotel
Olympia (Wash.) Recorder & Olympian	S. A. Perkins	Roosevelt Hotel
Oshkosh (Wis.) Northwestern	O. J. Hardy	Vanderbilt Hotel
Oswego (N. Y.) Palladium-Times	E. M. Waterbury	Knickerbocker Hotel
Palm Beach (Fla.) Times	Edward F. Stumpf	St. James Hotel
Parkerburg (W. Va.) News	Edward M. McGrail	Roosevelt Hotel or G. Logan Payne Co., 247 Park Ave., N. Y. C.
Passaic (N. J.) Herald	Edward H. Roemle	Waldorf-Astoria
	William M. McBride	Waldorf-Astoria
Passaic (N. J.) News	R. E. Lent	Waldorf-Astoria
Peoria (Ill.) Journal-Transcript	Merle Slane	Vanderbilt Hotel
	George Barrette	Vanderbilt Hotel
Peoria (Ill.) Star	S. A. Oakley	Astor Hotel
Perth Amboy (N. J.) News	D. P. Olmstead
Petersburg (Va.) Progress-Index	S. L. Slover	Waldorf-Astoria
Philadelphia (Pa.) Record	Rowe Stewart	Roosevelt Hotel
	Wm. H. H. Neville	Roosevelt Hotel
Piqua (Ohio) Call	C. F. Ridenour	Roosevelt Hotel
Pittsburgh (Pa.) Chronicle-Telegraph & Gazette-Times	A. K. Oliver	Yale Club
	T. R. Williams	Waldorf-Astoria
	Urban E. Dice	Waldorf-Astoria
	Charles W. Danziger	Waldorf-Astoria
	E. M. Burke	Waldorf-Astoria
	Herbert Rosenbaum	Waldorf-Astoria
Pittsburgh (Pa.) Post & Sun	J. E. Trower	Astor Hotel
	A. E. Braun	St. Regis Hotel
Pittsburgh (Pa.) Press	John Y. Chidester	Biltmore Hotel
Pittsfield (Mass.) Berkshire Eagle	Donald B. Miller	Shelton Hotel
	Kelton B. Miller	Shelton Hotel
Plattsburgh (N. Y.) Press	Wm. M. Lynch	St. James Hotel
Plainfield (N. J.) Courier-News	C. F. Stout	Plainfield, N. J.
	A. W. Zimmermann	Plainfield, N. J.
Port Jervis (N. Y.) Union-Gazette	Fred D. Salmon
Portland (Me.) Press Herald, Evening Express & Sunday Telegram	Guy P. Gannett	Commodore Hotel
	Fred R. Lord	Commodore Hotel
	Roy L. Wardwell	Commodore Hotel
Portland (Ore.) Oregonian	Edgar B. Piper	Waldorf-Astoria
Portsmouth (Ohio) Times & Sun	Harry E. Taylor	Waldorf-Astoria
Portsmouth (N. H.) Herald	F. W. Hartford	St. James Hotel
Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) Star & Enterprise	E. L. Owen	Astor Hotel
Pottsville (Pa.) Republican & Morning Paper	J. H. Zerbey, Jr.	Belvidere Hotel
	E. L. Clifford	Belvidere Hotel
Providence (R. I.) Tribune	David J. Barry	Waldorf-Astoria
	Daniel J. Dwyer	Waldorf-Astoria
Raleigh (N. C.) News & Observer	Josephus Daniels	Astor Hotel
	Josephus Daniels, Jr.	Astor Hotel
Raleigh (N. C.) Times	John A. Park	Vanderbilt Hotel
Reading (Pa.) Times	I. J. Hornstein	801 Riverside Drive
Richmond (Ind.) Falladium	E. H. Harris	Pennsylvania Hotel
Richmond (Ind.) Item	E. J. Treffinger	St. James Hotel

Name of Newspaper	Representative	New York Address
Richmond (Va.) News-Leader	John Stewart Bryan	Waldorf-Astoria
	Allen Potts	Waldorf-Astoria
	W. Brydon	Waldorf-Astoria
Roanoke (Va.) Times	W. E. Thomas	Astor Hotel
Rochester (N. Y.) Times-Union	Frank E. Gannett	Astor Hotel
	Roy C. Kates	Astor Hotel
Rockford (Ill.) Register-Gazette	E. S. Bartlett	Waldorf-Astoria
Rockville Centre (N. Y.) Nassau Daily Review	James E. Stiles	Rockville Centre,
Saginaw (Mich.) News Courier	A. R. Treanor	Biltmore Hotel
St. Augustine (Fla.) Record	Herbert Felkel	St. James Hotel
	Edwin Warren	St. James Hotel
St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Caledonian Record	Herbert A. Smith	St. James Hotel
St. Louis (Mo.) Globe-Democrat	E. Lansing Ray	Ritz-Carlton Hot
St. Paul (Minn.) News	C. D. Bertolet	Astor Hotel & 36 Ave., N. Y. C.
Salem (Ohio) News	Louis H. Brush	Waldorf-Astoria
Salisbury (N. C.) Post	J. F. Hurley	St. James Hotel
Salamanca (N. Y.) Republican Press	Matthew Webber	8521 114th St., Richmond Hill
Salt Lake City (Utah) Deseret News	James M. Kirkham	Cone, Rothenburg Noee, 9 E. 42 & Roosevelt Ho
Salt Lake City (Utah) Telegram	A. L. Fish	Pennsylvania Ho
Salt Lake City (Utah) Tribune	J. F. Fitzpatrick	Pennsylvania Ho
San Angelo (Tex.) Standard	Houston Harte	St. James Hotel
San Antonio (Tex.) Express & News	Frank G. Huntress	Astor Hotel
San Diego (Cal.) Sun	Allied Newspapers, Inc.	250 Park Ave., N
San Francisco (Cal.) Bulletin	W. M. Hines	c/o O'Mara & O 280 Madison A
San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle	George T. Cameron	Ritz-Carlton Hot
San Francisco (Cal.) Examiner	James A. Callahan	Plaza Hotel
San Jose (Cal.) Mercury-Herald	J. O. Hayes	Astor Hotel
	Mrs. J. O. Hayes	Astor Hotel
Savannah (Ga.) Morning News	H. V. Jenkins	McAlpin Hotel
Schenectady (N. Y.) Gazette	A. N. Liecty
	R. L. Hall
	J. G. Green
	Robert J. Walsh
Scranton (Pa.) Times	E. J. Lynett	Waldorf-Astoria
	Wm. J. Lynett	Waldorf-Astoria
	J. E. Bradley	Waldorf-Astoria
	Jas. W. Flanagan	Waldorf-Astoria
Sioux City (Iowa) Journal	W. H. Sammons	Waldorf-Astoria
Sioux Falls (S. D.) Argus-Leader	B. C. Dow	Prudden, King & den, 270 Madiso
South Bend (Ind.) Tribune	F. A. Miller	Waldorf-Astoria
South Norwalk (Conn.) Sentinel	W. P. Milligan	South Norwalk, C
Spartanburg (S. C.) Herald & Journal	Wm. W. Holland	St. James Hotel
	Chas. O. Heron	St. James Hotel
Springfield (Ill.) State Journal	S. Leigh Call	Plaza Hotel
	Will H. McConnell	Astor Hotel
Springfield (Ill.) State Register	Thomas Rees	Knickerbocker H
	George M. Clendenin	Knickerbocker H
Springfield (Mo.) Leader	H. S. Jewell	Waldorf-Astoria
Springfield (Mo.) News	Edson K. Bixby	Waldorf-Astoria
	Joel H. Bixby	Waldorf-Astoria
Steubenville (Ohio) Herald-Star	Ray Moore	Waldorf-Astoria
Stroudsburg (Pa.) Record & Press	N. A. Frantz	St. James Hotel
	C. S. Baker	St. James Hotel
Suffolk (Va.) News	Parker R. Anderson	Roosevelt Hotel
Superior (Wis.) Telegram	Morgan Murphy	St. James Hotel
Tacoma (Wash.) Ledger & News Tribune	Frank S. Baker	Gotham Hotel
Tampa (Fla.) Tribune	S. E. Thomason	Ritz-Carlton Hot
	J. S. Mims	Waldorf-Astoria
Taunton (Mass.) Gazette	William H. Reed	Martinique Hotel
Terre Haute (Ind.) Tribune	A. C. Keifer	Roosevelt Hotel
Toledo (Ohio) News-Bee	J. F. Pollock	Allied Newspaper 250 Park Ave.
Toledo (Ohio) Times	R. C. Patterson	Commodore Hotel
	John D. Dun	Commodore Hotel
Topeka (Kan.) Capital	Arthur Capper	Waldorf-Astoria
	Marco Morrow	Vanderbilt Hotel
Topeka (Kan.) State Journal	M. & Mrs. F. P. MacLennan	Waldorf-Astoria
Toronto (Ont.) Globe	R. K. Stocks	Barclay Hotel
Toronto (Ont.) Mail & Empire	George E. Scroggie	Gotham Hotel
Troy (N. Y.) Record	David B. Plum	44th Street Hot
Tucson (Ariz.) Citizen	Frank H. Hitchcock	598 Madison Ave
Tucson (Ariz.) Star	R. E. Ellinwood	Pennsylvania Ho
Tulsa (Okla.) World	Eugene Lorton	Waldorf-Astoria
	F. O. Larson	Waldorf-Astoria
Utica (N. Y.) Press	William V. Jones	Astor Hotel
	Paul B. Williams	Astor Hotel
Utica (N. Y.) Observer-Dispatch	Prentiss Bailey	Belvedere Hotel
Vancouver (B. C.) Province	F. J. Burd	Waldorf-Astoria
Vancouver (B. C.) Sun	H. F. Gates	Waldorf-Astoria
Warren (Ohio) Tribune-Chronicle	Mrs. Zell Hart Deming	Waldorf-Astoria
Washington (D. C.) Times & Herald	A. R. R. Onyun	Astor Hotel
Washington (D. C.) Daily News	W. W. Hawkins	250 Park Avenue
Washington (D. C.) Star	Frank B. Noyes	Ritz-Carlton Hot
	Fleming Newbold	Ritz-Carlton Hot
Washington (D. C.) United States Daily	David Lawrence	Waldorf-Astoria
Washington (Pa.) Observer & Reporter	Jay Jerome Williams	Waldorf-Astoria
	John L. Stewart	Waldorf-Astoria
	Howard L. Christman	Waldorf-Astoria
Waterbury (Conn.) Republican & American	William J. Pape	Astor Hotel
	I. B. Myers	44th Street Hot
	E. Robert Stevenson	44th Street Hot
Waterloo (Iowa) Courier	Jackson McCoy	Astor Hotel
Watertown (N. Y.) Standard	Addison B. Parker	Knickerbocker H
	Lawrence S. Chubbuck	44th Street Hote
Wausau (Wis.) Record-Herald	R. D. Sanche	Waldorf-Astoria
Waynesboro (Pa.) Record-Herald	Floyd Chalfant	St. James Hotel
Westerly (R. I.) Sun	George B. Utter	Amherst Club
Palm Beach (Fla.) News	Oscar G. Davies	Touraine Hotel
Wheeling (Va.) Register	William L. Brice	Astor Hotel
White Plains (N. Y.) Reporter	W. Lee Tuller	White Plains, N
Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Times-Leader	Ernest G. Smith	44th Street Hote
Wilmington (Del.) Journal & News	Clarence J. Pyle	Astor Hotel
	George N. Seaver	Astor Hotel
	George Carter	Alamac Hotel
	Albert W. Cummins	Alamac Hotel
Wilmington (Del.) Sunday Star	Joseph H. Martin	c/o Howland & F
	Horace P. Warrington	393 Seventh A
Williamsport (Pa.) Grit	Dietrick Lamade	Waldorf-Astoria
	George R. Lamade	Waldorf-Astoria
	Frederic E. Manson	Waldorf-Astoria
	Chas. D. Lamade	Waldorf-Astoria
Wilmington (Ohio) News-Journal	W. J. Galvin	Vanderbilt Hotel
Wichita (Kan.) Eagle	Marcellus M. Murdock	S. C. Beckwith Agency, Worl
Woburn (Mass.) Times	James D. Haggerty	Commodore Hote
Woonsocket (R. I.) Call	Samuel E. Hudson	Shelton Hotel
Xenia (Ohio) Gazette	J. A. Chew	Waldorf-Astoria
Youngstown (Ohio) Vindicator	William F. Maag, Jr.	Waldorf-Astoria
Zanesville (Ohio) Times-Recorder & Signal	W. O. Littick	Martinique Hote
	C. W. Gibson	Martinique Hote

OTO RADIOSCOPE ON VIEW BEFORE PUBLISHERS DURING CONVENTION

st Marvel of Communications to Be Demonstrated by R. C. A. in EDITOR & PUBLISHER Headquarters at Waldorf—How It Operates ures are to be received there from n and other points for the inter- visiting delegates.

LISHERS will be able to see the test machine of the Radio Corporation of America, the Photo Radioscope, eration at EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S tion headquarters, Room 116, at the rf-Astoria, all next week.

of the most interesting features, t the pictures are produced in full f a good number of people by the ne. Line upon line, the pictures ilt up, in much the same manner ord pictures are built up in a type-

t air" is the recording element puts down the separate marks on per, which forms the picture. The ary dots and dashes come over the channel from a short wave trans- g station at New Brunswick, New . These signals are received by all antenna on the roof of the rf-Astoria hotel, and are led down Convention floor where the pic- may be seen developing in the room ITOR & PUBLISHER.

pictures originate either in New London or San Francisco, or even ulu. New York is the relay point the radio signals are picked up distant points to be carried auto- lly to the New Brunswick trans- g station of the Radio Corporation nerica to be reflashed into space ng them here to the convention.

the transmitting point, whether di- in New York or at the distant the original pictures are made egatives, five by seven in size, and films are wrapped around a glass er.

de this glass cylinder is a very light which passes back and forth g up the tone values of the picture. same manner as with half-tone ings, as all newspaper people know, dio pictures are made up of line ine of many small dots. These dots different sizes and spacing, the ng being made automatically, from ne values of the original picture on a photo-electric cell. The cur- npulses from the proto-electric cell mplified many times and then to the radio transmitting station, the impulses are hurled through ne receiving station, these impulses ilt up again by amplifiers and lead Photo Radioscope.

he Photo Radioscope, a hot air set to be travelling back and forth. does in exact synchronism with ng light at the transmitting point. hot air gun is heated electrically, shooting a very fine stream of at specially prepared paper all the If this hot air strikes the paper, s a mark in dark sepia. But it from hitting the paper normally old stream of air at right angles hot. In the supply of this cold am is included a small valve which ctly operated by the incoming ignals. So, if a radio signal is l, the cold air is shut off, and air has a chance to hit the paper. re, the light sepia marks are together to give a finished pic- the receiving point of much the haracter as a rotogravure print.

ar the radio signals and see the gun working at just the right quite a fascinating study to the ual observer. So that aside from iguing feeling that these picture are coming over a great dis- the development of an artistic There is of course, a very real of suspense as to what is coming hind the demonstration which e crowd as well.

achine will record words as well res, so that it gives a complete story of the events of the world in abbreviated form.

RECKEFUS RESIGNS

Parsons Succeeds Him as Advertising Manager on Public Ledger

Samuel S. Reckefus has resigned as advertising manager of the Philadelphia Public Ledger and the Illustrated Sun. Before going to Philadelphia he had been associated for six years with the New York office of the Public Ledgers. Previous to joining the Public Ledger he was on the staff of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Recefus has been succeeded by Irving Parsons, formerly advertising manager of the New York Telegram, who joined the Curtis-Martin newspapers a few days ago as an assistant to John C. Martin, vice-president and treasurer.

D. LORNE McGIBBON

D. Lorne McGibbon, 57, prominent financier who died April 20 at his home in Montreal, was for some time proprietor of the Montreal Herald which he purchased in 1913, selling it later to a syndicate. He also owned at one time the Montreal Financial Times, Beck's Weekly and Montreal Mirror, the last two of which are no longer published. Among his many activities he was, in early life, purchasing agent of the Laurentide Paper Company at Grandmere, Que., and later became general manager.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE TOWER AT NIGHT

A soaring pillar of light confined by rhythmic stone and steel describes the Chicago Tribune Tower as seen at night. The lower illuminated building to the left is the plant, for some years home of the Tribune before the tower was built. The plant now houses press rooms, mechanical departments and some of the editorial offices. The photograph was taken at Michigan avenue and Ohio street, looking south.

1,000 TO ATTEND AD BUREAU DINNER

Marcellus Murdock Will Be Toastmaster at Annual Event April 28—Massey, Ritchie, Campbell, Speakers

Nearly 1,000 guests are expected to attend the annual dinner given by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, and scheduled to be held this year on Thursday evening, April 28, at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Marcellus M. Murdock, publisher of the Wichita (Kan.) Eagle, will be toastmaster, and will introduce as the principal speakers Hon. Vincent E. Massey, the first Canadian minister to the United States, and the Hon. Albert E. Ritchie, governor of Maryland. The third speaker has been announced as Sir Donald Campbell, a Scotch journalist, who is visiting this country.

The annual meeting of the committee in charge of the Bureau will be held at 270 Madison avenue, the Bureau's headquarters, on Monday morning, April 25, and will be adjourned in time to permit those attending to also attend the annual luncheon of the Associated Press at the Waldorf-Astoria.

William F. Rogers, Boston Transcript, is chairman of the committee in charge, and Harry Chandler, Los Angeles Times, is vice-chairman.

Committee members are: Charles D. Atkinson, Atlanta Journal; Frank H. Burgess, La Crosse Tribune; Howard Davis, New York Herald Tribune; William J. Hofmann, Portland Oregonian; F. I. Ker, Hamilton (Ont.) Spectator; John S. McCarrens, Cleveland Plain Dealer; Fleming Newbold, Washington Star; David B. Plum, Troy Record; Allison Stone, Providence Journal; Walter A. Strong, Chicago Daily News; D. E. Town, Hearst newspapers, and Louis Wiley, New York Times.

Advisory members of the committee are M. P. Linn, representing the Six Point League of New York; and George J. Noee, president of the Newspaper Representatives Association of Chicago.

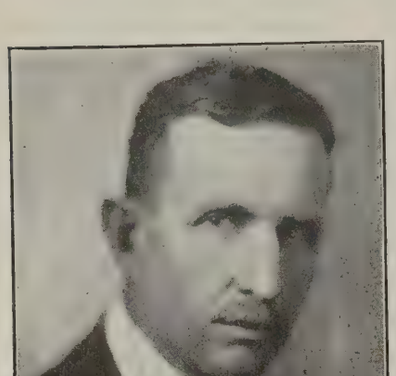
It is expected that at this annual meeting a successor will be elected to E. W. Parsons, formerly of the Chicago Tribune, who has now left newspaper work. He has been a member of the committee in charge.

Newspaper members of the Bureau now number nearly 400, according to Thomas H. Moore, who is associate director. William A. Thomson is director of the Bureau; F. Guy Davis is western manager; and Walter P. Burn is Pacific Coast manager.

OFFERING BRIDGE RULES

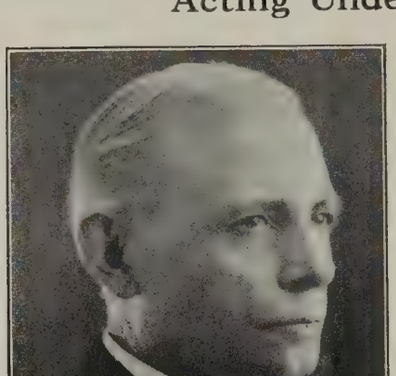
The Brooklyn Daily Eagle is offering free to its readers copies of booklets on the rules and scoring system in contract bridge.

S. R. O. SIGN OUT FOR GARDEN LARK



BETWEEN 600 and 700 editors will be entertained this year by M. Koenigsberg, president of King Features Syndicate, Inc., at the "Garden Lark" scheduled for 7:30, April 25, at the Friars Club, New York. The usual "Big Broadway Show" is promised those attending with several "surprises."

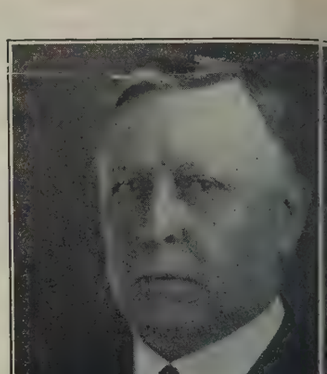
Decorations for the affair have been executed by Louis Biedermann, artist. Mr. Biedermann has drawn, cut out of beaver board, and colored replicas of comic art characters, ranging in height from 16 to 21 feet.



"Standing Room Only" has been announced at King Features Syndicate.

Gallery of Associated Press Advisory Board Membe

Chairmen of State Committees Acting Under New Rule



Richard Hooker,
Springfield (Mass.) Republican

William C. Van Cleve,
Moberly (Mo.) Monitor & Index

F. P. Hall,
Jamestown (N. Y.) Journal

Henry Walser,
Hazleton (Pa.) Standard-Senti

Victor H. Hanson,
Birmingham (Ala.) News

Powell Glass,
Lynchburg (Va.) Advance

James MacMullen,
San Diego (Calif.) Union & Tribune

J. Tracy Garrett,
Burlington (Ia.) Hawk-Eye

Ross A. Reeder,
Miami (Fla.) News

E. B. Jeffress,
Greensboro (N. C.) News

W. Roy Ronald,
Mitchell (S. D.) Republican

Herschel V. Jenkins,
Savannah (Ga.) News

W. Guy Tetrick,
Clarksburg (W. Va.) Exponent

W. B. Bryant,
Paterson (N. J.) Press-Guardian

Chas. P. Manship,
Baton Rouge (La.) State Times

C. A. Morden,
Portland (Ore.) Oregonia

Gallery of Associated Press Advisory Board Members

Chairmen of State Committees Acting Under New Rule

H. J. Powell,
Coffeyville (Kan.) Journal

A. L. Fish,
Salt Lake (Utah) Telegram

Urey Woodson,
Owensboro (Ky.) Messenger

James M. North, Jr.,
Fort Worth (Tex.) Record-Telegram

Ralph E. Ellinwood,
Tuscon (Ariz.) Star

C. H. Spencer,
Newark (Ohio) Advocate

O. S. Warden,
Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune

W. J. Pape, Waterbury (Conn.)
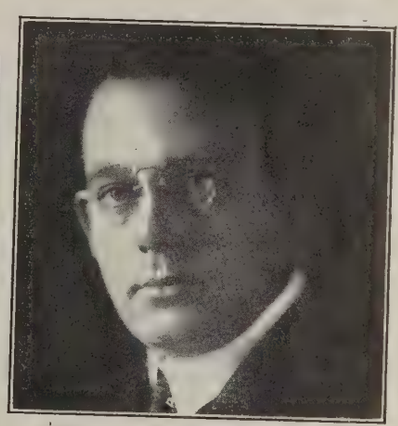
Republican & American



C. E. Muchmore,
Ponca City (Okla.) News

Joseph B. Finan,
Cumberland (Md.) Times

Louis B. Tobin,
Lincoln (Neb.) Star

Frank S. Baker,
Tacoma (Wash.) Ledger

J. E. Hanway,
Casper (Wyo.) Herald

Wm. T. Evjue,
Madison (Wis.) Capital Times

A. R. Treanor,
Saginaw (Mich.) News & Courier

C. C. Hamlin, Colorado Springs (Colo.)
Gazette & Telegraph

AN OUTLINE OF COMMUNICATION'S HISTORY

And the Part Played by the Associated Press in It—From the Time When Napoleon First Used th Telegraph at Waterloo Until Today Is Romance Well Worth Telling

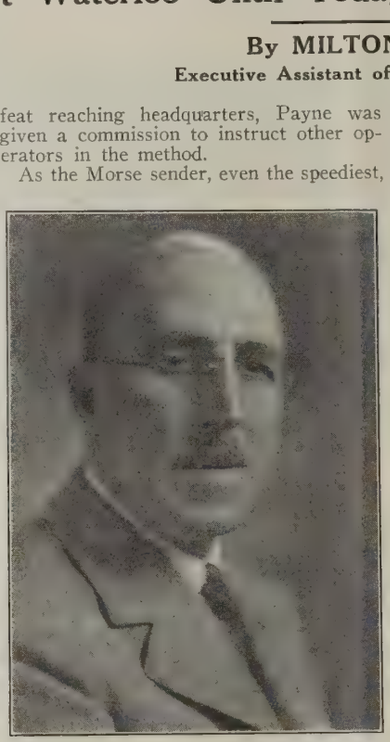
By MILTON GARGES
Executive Assistant of the Associated Press

IN the highly specialized business of purveying news—so perishable a commodity—the communication system becomes of first importance.

In the early days before the advent of the telegraph, and before the extended use of this new instrument, the exchange of news was the most difficult problem publishers had to solve. Various ingenious, if crude, attempts were made to overcome the handicaps of distance and difficulty of travel. When Napoleon met defeat at Waterloo, news of this transcendant event was flashed to Paris by the newly invented "telegraph." This was a system of semaphores set up at regular intervals, much after the fashion of the "block" system on modern railroads. Certain Paris bankers, who had the advantage of the early news so carried, were able to make vast fortunes as a result.

Before steam was in use on the Atlantic, budgets of news carried by the fast clipper ships were expedited, as the vessels approached the American shores, by the use of carrier pigeons.

On land pony expresses were brought into use, the relays of riders covering vast distances, through hazards of attacks by Indians and other dangers, in order that one section of the country might know what another was doing—where gold had been discovered; what new territory had been added to the domains of the young republic and what calamities had befallen the pioneers who were constantly heading West.



"What hath God Wrought" was the first message ever sent over a telegraph line—a rusty streak of iron stretched from tree to tree to cover the gap between Washington and Baltimore. If Samuel Finley Breese Morse could come back to earth he would be astounded at the answer to his query. He would find a closely co-ordinated people dwelling in absolute harmony and peace because his invention had made it possible for the news of the country and of the world to be known throughout the length and breadth of the land in almost the flash of an .

Of course, the newspapers and the infant association they had formed took quick advantage of the new method of communication—crude though it would now seem. As it developed, and it developed rapidly, a regular press service to inland papers became possible. Telegraph operators of the highest type were developed. These copied the dispatches on flimsy using a stylus. Many are the tales told of the spectacular feats of these operators. The operators developed a distinct type of chirography—clear cut and distinct as copperplate—which permitted great speed. Sometimes the letters were formed so small that more than a thousand words could be copied on each sheet—perfectly distinct and legible. Thomas A. Edison was one of this force of pioneer press men and he especially was noted for his small but clear cut handwriting. It is told of Edison that while employed at New Orleans as a press operator a newspaper editor complained because he put so many words on a sheet—thereby holding back the copy from the printer. Edison always willing to oblige, thereafter sent over sheets with only a single word on each, causing the editor to withdraw his complaint. This story is not vouched for but is typical of those current regarding the "press gang."

In 1885 the Associated Press began its present system of leasing wires from the companies and employing its own telegraphers. By this method the wires were run directly from press association headquarters into the newspaper offices. This tremendously speeded up things.

Meantime the typewriter was coming into use and John Payne, an ingenious operator at Nashville, Tennessee, decided it would be easier to copy the press report on the typewriter than by hand and proceeded to do so. Knowledge of this feat reaching headquarters, Payne was given a commission to instruct other operators in the method.

As the Morse sender, even the speediest, spelling out each word letter by letter, was infinitely slower than the receiver could write on the typewriter, a method was sought to speed up the sender.

Milton Garges

Walter P. Phillips, who was general manager of the old United Press, evolved his code—a shorthand method by which certain letters or combinations of letters stand for words or phrases. To illustrate with a few of the better known contractions, "Scotus" as interpreted by the receiving operator became "Supreme Court of the United States"; "ICW," "in Connection With"; "SAK" "Shot and Killed"; "UNL," "un Constitutional"; "Sot," "Secretary of State"; "Potus," "President of the United States"; "POW," Prince of Wales"; etc.

The code was patented in 1879.

This still further added to the speed and increased the volume of news that could be handled within a given time. But the newspaper demands soon outgrew this volume and other means had to be sought as the multiplication of wires and operators' salaries also multiplied costs.

In 1912 experiments were made by the Associated Press in the use of mechanical devices. The so-called "Morkrum" machine was installed on a number of trial circuits. Pioneering was done in the adaptation of this new principle to press work, and with the co-operation of the manufacturer an instrument was evolved which was little short of a marvel. By its use the capacity of a single wire was doubled and sixty words a minute became a standard in news delivery.

The Associated Press does not own any telegraph lines. The various commercial companies lease lines—as Service. In the case of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The lines are operated and controlled by the press association. The leasing companies are responsible for the maintenance of the lines, supplying all necessary Morse operating equipment, current, etc., while the leasor supplies the telegraph operators.

The first leased wire system of the Associated Press extended from New York to Minneapolis, taking in Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Toledo, Columbus, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul. As occasion arose other cities were added to this circuit, until it finally went as far west as Denver. Then it became unwieldy and was divided into three circuits.

The first wire circuits were arranged in rather haphazard fashion, but generally met the requirements, until, with the settlement of the country there came a greater demand for what has been termed vicinage news. Newspaper readers still wanted news of what was going on in the world, but they were more intensely interested in what their immediate neighbors were doing.

From this demand has been evolved through the years the present system of leased wires, which, while it divides into trunk circuits and state circuits, is really a co-ordinated net work of lines covering the United States like a spider's web.

The main artery of the system extends from New York to Kansas City, thence to San Francisco. There are laterals from the main trunk extending from New York to Boston; from Washington to Atlanta; from Louisville to New Orleans; from Chicago to Omaha and Minneapolis; from Kansas City to Houston and from San Francisco to Spokane.

In a number of states there are wires connecting the principal cities within the state. Most of these are single circuits, although New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Michigan, California, Ohio and Florida maintain double or triple wire circuits wholly within the state.

The main artery and its laterals carry the news report which is the backbone of the whole structure. At the various relay offices this is reduced in volume to meet the exigencies of wire capacity and to the general news report is added that volume of state news required to meet the demand.

In 1916, the Associated Press successfully attempted what was then the unique experiment of connecting in one circuit all the wires serving its members, so that each might receive directly from Ebbets Field in Brooklyn the report of the World Series baseball games. More than 26,000 miles of wire constituted this famous circuit and more than 800 newspapers for the first time were able instantly to bulletin to millions of fans the result of each ball pitched.

At the time of this achievement, Thomas A. Edison sent the following telegram of congratulations:

"Uncle Sam has now a real arterial system and it is never going to harden."

Since 1916, in every year in which there has been a World Series, the Associated Press has organized similar circuits, the latest one carrying more than 100,000 miles of wire and serving more than 1,000 individual newspapers.

The largest single dispatch ever received by the Associated Press was the complete report made by the Dawes Commission which fixed the terms for the indemnification of the allied powers, as a result of the treaty of Versailles. More than 45,000 words were necessary to tell this story. It was transmitted directly from Paris into the office of the Associated Press in New York. Three submarine cables were necessary in order to insure prompt transmission and the consumed time was about nine hours.

The submarine cable operates by a different method from the land wires. As the electrical impulses forming the letters are received, the current actuates what is called a siphon recorder. This is an instrument provided with a small glass tube, through which ink flows, held against a moving paper ribbon. This tube is delicately balanced between electric magnets and as these are actuated by the current the ink produces a wavy line on the paper ribbon, made up of humps and hollows which correspond somewhat to the dots and dashes of the Morse code.

As this ribbon passes in front of the operator he translates the characters sight, as the Morse operator does sound, and reproduces the dispatch his typewriter. The fastest cables m possible transmission in this manner a rate of about 1800 words an hour.

The paper ribbon used in the rec of the Dawes report stretched in piece would have reached a distance more than five miles. The cable t amounted to $4,500 at the press rate 10 cents a word.

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By Paul Patterson, President Baltimore Sun

Paul Patterson

YOU ask what the Associated P means to us.

In the evening newspaper field in timore it doesn't mean much of anyth

So little of the Associated Press re is used by the evening member that Associated Press has lost all of its p tige and recognition in the after field. The United Press is the domi news service.

But in the morning, of course, Associated Press is the only news vice. And it is more thorough, complete and more interesting tha has ever been before.

I doubt if the members realize much has been done to put life and into the morning report in recent y This task is an exceedingly difficult —much more difficult than the pro of any individual newspaper in con ling a staff located as it is in one p

Naturally, some mistakes have made, but in view of the tremen distances over which the Asso Press staff is spread, the manage has done an amazingly good job i laxing the old restrictions which voked constant criticism of the ciated Press reports as dull and teresting. The wonder is that so errors of judgment have developed

It is a splendid job and the off and management of the Associated deserve far more credit than they ever received for what they have ac plished.

DAILY IMPROVES PLANT

Several mechanical and space impr ments have been made by the Indiana Star, including the installation Junior Autoplate, and the enlarge of the mailing and composing room 600 square feet each. A new do way patented conveyor also has installed. The Star recently went t mats entirely.

FROM CHAOS TO COSMOS IN PUBLIC THINKING

Kent Cooper Tells How Newspaper Service Has Broadened Popular Understanding—Discusses New Policies—Associated Press World-Wide Development

By MARLEN PEW

'N the quiet of a secluded office at As- sociated Press headquarters, where ıly faint echoes of the roaring news- ooms could be heard, Kent Cooper this eek outlined for EDITOR & PUBLISHER his ews on modern news service. We have en friends from boyhood, first work- g together and then on opposite sides the service fence. His ascent to the neral managership of the world's great- t co-operative news organization was to is writer merely the fulfillment of a ıtural promise. For two years he has en in the saddle. They have been event- l years, witnessing an array of progres- ve new policies in service administration. ent Cooper, with his usual refreshing ndor, discussed them in the light of his ɔrld-wide experience.

"The only rational way of appraising e present is by comparison with the st," he began. "We know how middle- st newspapers were made 25 years o, and perhaps they were typical of newspapers of the nation. On the al side they were comprehensive, but national and international affairs they d us very little, and that little was lly told. We were a provincial people, nking narrowly and of the inconse- ential tittle-tattle of our home towns. seems to me an incontestable fact that triumph of the American press has en its leadership to broader public ught and understanding. Today we talking in the terms of world affairs well as of national and local public ıcerns. In thought, if not in action, average newspaper reader is as cos- c as were the world travelers of our ıth. To the wide and the limitless am- ion of American editorship to present the public a full-length daily picture universal life belongs the credit for s incalculably valuable advance in ular thought. The step has been from ıos to cosmos.

"Perhaps this sums up the motives that re actuated us in our new policies. The sociated Press seeks only to present complete picture. The news struc- e has grown tremendously. Day by it advances with amazing strides. have merely laid more brick and rtar to accommodate it.

"The Associated Press was founded on ıciples that seemed to provide the essities of the time. True co-operation the leading motive. That called unselfish sharing and loyalty to a e of ideals. That these principles e withstood the test of time and have ɔme fixed almost as religious ideals he minds of those who direct the des- es of this organization offers the best of their quality. Doubtless there faults in the organization and ad- edly this engine, which is infallible as humans are infallible, makes y mistakes. But Associated Press never been cursed by a closed mind an arbitrary, dictatorial rule. Funda- tal faults are entirely susceptible of ection and we are disposed to play ıre with our readers, freely and in ɔr confessing our mistakes. Some ɔrs say we send too many correc- s—that we are even fussy in getting dispatches to read true, but accur- of statement will be the keystone of news arch, as it always has been. not like corrections but I am much ıer with them than without them ı they are necessary to a statement act.

often wish that I might in some communicate to the general public essential meaning of the experiences encounters in the position I hold, its infinite variety of contacts with news men of the world. It would a long way toward strengthening ic confidence in newspapers. In the e realm of life, it seems to me, men not to be found who are so zealous ideals of service. Newspaper men are sensitive, tender people, yearning to serve, not the hardboiled, sophisticated folk that have been pictured. The general manager of the Associated Press or any other man who deals with American editorship could not possibly go wrong, no matter how stupid or low-minded he might be. There are literally thousands of checks upon him and all who serve his organization. Every word is scanned by idealists of the first water. Every statement is subject to challenge. Every act is in the open. It is a marvelous discipline, delightfully sympathetic because of the understanding that lies behind it, but exacting to the last degree. Every waking hour carries its thrill for us in this work.

Kent Cooper

"The comparison of operations today with that of 25 years ago is truly remarkable. When I came into the A. P., as you know, my first job was to install the telephone pony service. The ideal there was to furnish more news information at a cost within the range of the smaller papers. That is the basis of the present operation, always to give more. It is no longer a question of furnishing to leased wire papers comprehensive outlines of the day's principal events. It is now a proposition of laying down before editors a complete report and in such detail and variety that they may pick and choose from the world's interests those facts which appeal to their senses as appropriate for the clientele they seek to serve. We hear much talk about standardization of newspapers but this selective process is the opposite of standardization. I believe it is true that individualism is wonderfully enhanced by this new concept of complete service. One of our amusements is to measure up the A. P. stuff used in the member papers of a given city. Sometimes we will find that out of two or three pages of telegraph and cable material only a half dozen, or fewer, stories will have been duplicated. In a test among four New York evening papers recently the duplication of A. P. stories was one fifth of the whole.

"Associated Press operates three 8-hour shifts daily, seven days a week. The total report averages about 85,000 words, divided as follows: Markets and financial, 30,000; sports, except baseball, 4,500; baseball, 3,500; cable, 5,000 and general news (domestic), 42,000.

"Our statistics show that the total daily report handled on various circuits, not, of course, delivered to any single city, is approximately 130,000 words.

"The total membership of A. P. on January 1, was 1,228 compared with 1,206 on January 1, 1926. The expenditure for news and its tranmission last year was $8,052,000, compared with $7,567,000 in 1925. The leased wire mileage on January 1, was 114,000, compared with 111,000 on January 1, 1925.

"It is literally true, although astonishing, that no less than 80,000 people are watching events daily for the Associated Press. This figure includes all of the news employes of all member papers, affiliated services and the staff. In my report to the directors, this year, the first ever made by a general manager, I have had the pleasure of citing 18 members of the staff for conspicuous merit in news coverage during the year. This means, not that these staff members have shown enterprise and skill that is uncommon in the organization, but simply that great opportunities for achievement happened to come their way and they met them creditably. The over-topping fact in this work is not to get something from everywhere every day but to have a reliable man placed to cover A. P.'s needs when the emergency appears. The great organization job is protection. If every member of the A. P. writing staff should attempt to file a hundred words daily, as an arbitrary ration, the deluge would be as burdensome as it would be unwholesome. By the simple process of filing only that news which has regional or general appeal the flow seems almost automatically regulated, the wires are never idle and nothing that is truly important ever seems to be neglected. This system is not mysterious. Behind it lies long experience and tireless organization processes.

"The leased wire facilities of the A. P. now extend in triplicate from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from border to border. In addition to the regular news coverage we serve complete quotation service on New York Stock Exchange, New York curb and the complete bond transactions from this market. This is in addition to a heavy and growing volume of market news from other centers. We are furnishing much more trade news and more comprehensive leads to market operations. After the markets have been covered, and they are usually out of the way fifteen minutes after the stock exchange has closed, the wires are turned over to sports. In addition to the heavy professional sports interests we have been specializing in amateur sports of wide appeal. The response has been excellent.

"Increasingly A. P. is attempting to furnish expert opinion on matters related to news developments. The proposition is to obtain the services, regularly or on call, of men who are first newspaper trained, with the instinct of reporters, and secondly highly skilled in some special branch of the arts or professions. Every A. P. man has it as a duty to cultivate contacts with the world's great authorities in every sphere of interest. Thus we seek a higher quality of news.

"Much has been said regarding the innovation of permitting A. P. writers to sign their stories. Traditionally the reports have been anonymous and much is to be said for that system. However, there are members who enjoy the personal touch of writers and to meet the requirements of the old and new schools of thought on this subject we have devised the 'optional by-line' which means that writers' names are furnished for editors who wish to use them. Signing naturally puts a writer on his toes to do his best, and I thoroughly enjoy the honors that thus befall my associates, but I must confess that the old anonymous rule still is very appealing to me. Melville E. Stone's broad rules stand almost any test that is put on them. Day by day those of us who actively administer his news system are finding fresh causes for admiring his remarkable wisdom.

"What the men who have brought A. P. to its present plane of usefulness have yielded to serve a pure idealism is, to me, a subject of increasing interest because it is so extraordinary in the affairs of men as I have found them. I do not mean only the staff, scattered over the world, who have given so loyally of their talents and time without prospect of great material rewards, although I should be dull indeed not to have appreciation of them close at heart. But I think also of the officers and directors and members and their staffs. There is nothing like this loyalty in the world of business, to my knowledge. Frank B. Noyes has given the best part of his life's energy to the upbuilding of the Associated Press, purely as an honorary professional matter. The Board of Directors or the Executive Committee, made up of members who share the report on common terms with all others, met 21 days last year and the average length of the sessions was 8 hours, often running late

(Continued on page 108)

A. P. Correspondents Cited By Cooper For Cons

Eighteen Men in Far-flung News Organization Receive Honorable Mention For C

George Bernard Shaw interview, by J. P. Howe of the London bureau.

Finding of Runic inscriptions within city limits of Spokane, reported by Wilbur A. Sanders of the Spokane staff.

William T. Tilden and Walter Hagen interviews, by Alan J. Gould of the New York staff.

Mussolini interview, by Percy Wir ner of the Rome bueau.

The hurricane damage at Nassau, Bahama Islands, was reported by R. P. Mitchell of the Florida staff, after making an airplane trip to Nassau.

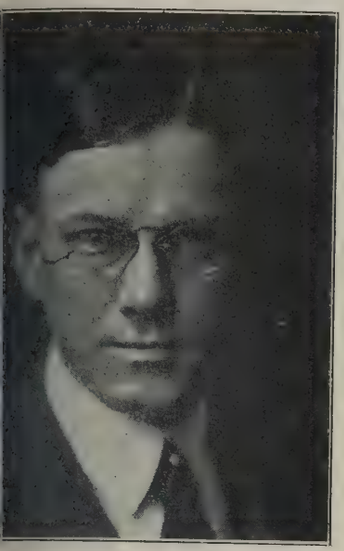
Helen Wills and Glenna Collett interviews, by Miss Ethel M. Halsey of the New York staff.

Interviews with King Ferdinand and Queen Marie of Rumania, and with Queen Marie of Jugoslavia, by James M. Mills of the Moscow bureau.

The story of the obsequies for e: Speaker Cannon, by G. D. Seymou of the Chicago staff.

The Yerkes Observatory astronomers' opinion of Mars, reported by Charles E. Honce of the Chicago staff.

London Armistice Day story, reported by Bates Raney of the London bureau. Raney also wrote London child composer Christmas carol dispatch.



The tax legislation story of December 13 was written by Walter W. Chamblin, Jr. of the Washington bureau.

Williams court-martial at San Dieg reported by Oscar E. Werner of t Los Angeles staff.

s Merit During Year

s in General Manager's Annual Report

e word picture of Mexican religis emotion, also Tarahumare In-n 100 kilometer race, reported by irence DuBose of the Mexico City bureau.

Suzanne Lenglen interview, by Thomas T. Topping of the Paris bureau. Topping also did the story of the departure of the French convict ship to Devil's Island, and from Damascus he wrote the story of what was happening to that most ancient city of the world.

Armistice Day story, by D. H. iver of the Washington bureau.

Elmer Roberts of the Paris bureau visited Doorn and wrote of the Kaiser's life in exile.

ne V. Debs' death, reported by T. Brown of the Indianapolis staff.

Martin J. Durkin's entrance to half a century's penal service, reported by Fred Dye of the Chicago staff.

WHERE AND HOW TO FIND YOUR FRIENDS

FOLLOWING are the names, addresses and telephone numbers of the hotels and clubs listed as housing publishers attending the conventions:

Name of Hotel	Address	Phone Number
Alamac Hotel	Broadway & 77th St.	ENDicott—5000
Amherst Club	273 Lexington Ave.	CALedonia—4520
Astor Hotel	Broadway & 44th St.	BRYant—2100
Barclay Hotel	111 E. 48th St.	VANderbilt—9761
Belvidere Hotel	319 W. 48th St.	PENnsylvania—5902
Biltmore Hotel	Madison Ave. & 43rd St.	MURray Hill—7920
Breslin Hotel	Broadway & 29th St.	MADison Square—7000
Bristol Hotel	129 W. 48th St.	BRYant—8400
Commodore Hotel	Lexington Ave. & 42nd St.	VANderbilt—6000
Elks Club, (Lodge No. 1)	108 West 43rd St.	BRYant—3500
Forty-Fourth St. Hotel	120 W. 44th St.	BRYant—2500
Gotham Hotel	5th Ave. & 55th St.	CIRcle—2200
Harvard Club	27 W. 44th Street	VANderbilt—1700
Knickerbocker Hotel	120 W. 45th St.	BRYant—3300
Martinique Hotel	Broadway & 32nd St.	PENnsylvania—3800
McAlpin Hotel	Broadway & 32nd St.	PENnsylvania—3800
Pennsylvania Hotel	7th Ave. & 32nd St.	PENnsylvania—5000
Plaza Hotel	5th Ave. & 59th St.	PLAza—1740
Ritz-Carlton Hotel	Madison Ave. & 46th St.	MURray Hill—7600
Roosevelt Hotel	Madison Ave. & 45th St.	VANderbilt—9200
St. James Hotel	109 W. 45th St.	BRYant—3247
St. Regis Hotel	5th Ave. & 55th St.	PLAza—4500
Shelton Hotel	Lexington Ave. & 49th St.	MURray Hill 7300
Touraine Hotel	9 E. 39th St.	CALedonia—0500
Vanderbilt Hotel	Park Ave. & 34th St.	ASHland—4000
Waldorf-Astoria	5th Ave. & 34th St.	PENnsylvania—5400
Yale Club	Vanderbilt Ave. & 44th St.	MURray Hill—8180
Wellington Hotel	7th Ave. & 55th St.	CIRcle 1066
Woodstock Hotel	127 W. 43rd St.	BRYant—3010
Continental Hotel	Broadway & 41st St.	PENnsylvania—0744

INTERESTING PLACES TO VISIT

STATUE OF LIBERTY ON BEDLOE'S ISLAND. Reached by boat from the battery. A gift from the people of France.

AQUARIUM IN BATTERY PARK. The finest piscatorial collection in the world.

AMERICAN SEAMEN'S INSTITUTE. 25 South street, Seamen's Mission.

CUSTOM HOUSE. Faces Bowling Green.

PRODUCE EXCHANGE. Opposite the Custom House.

FRAUNCE'S TAVERN. Corner Broad and Pearl streets. In which Washington took leave of his officers after the Revolution.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE. Broad and Wall streets.

UNITED STATES SUB-TREASURY. Wall and Nassau streets.

BANK OF NEW YORK. Corner Wall and William streets. Founded by Alexander Hamilton.

TRINITY CHURCH. Broadway, facing Wall street. Many famous men are buried here.

SINGER BUILDING. 149 Broadway. A New York skyscraper of forty-seven stories.

ST. PAUL'S CHAPEL. Corner Vesey street and Broadway. Built in 1754.

WOOLWORTH BUILDING. 233 Broadway. Tallest building in the world; 57 stories. 792 feet high.

CITY HALL. City Hall Park. Executive offices of the city.

MUNICIPAL BUILDING. Center street, opposite City Hall. Devoted to municipal offices.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE. Park Row. First of the Manhattan-Brooklyn bridges.

ST. MARK'S. Second avenue and 11th street. Contains tomb of Peter Stuyvesant.

THE TOMBS. Center and Lafayette streets. The famous prison with the Bridge of Sighs connecting the Tombs to the Criminal Courts Building.

ROOSEVELT HOUSE. 28 East 20th street. Birthplace of Theodore Roosevelt.

GREENWICH VILLAGE. Washington Square. Bohemian atmosphere; homes of artists, writers and musicians.

WASHINGTON ARCH. Foot of Fifth avenue. Designed by Stanford White.

FLATIRON BUILDING. Broadway and 23rd street.

LITTLE CHURCH AROUND THE CORNER. 1 East 29th street.

PENNSYLVANIA STATION. 33rd street and Seventh avenue. One of the greatest railroad terminals in the world.

GREELEY SQUARE. Intersection of Broadway and Sixth avenue at 33rd street.

HERALD SQUARE. Intersection of Broadway and Sixth avenue at 34th street.

UNION LEAGUE CLUB. N. E. corner 39th street on Fifth avenue.

PUBLIC LIBRARY. Fifth avenue and 42nd street. Largest library in the world.

GRAND CENTRAL STATION. 42nd street and Vanderbilt avenue. One of the finest railroad terminals in the world.

METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE. Broadway and 39th street. The home of opera.

TIMES SQUARE. 42nd street and Broadway. The center of the theatrical world.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER office, 1700 Times Bldg., Broadway at 42nd Street.

ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL. Fifth avenue and 50th street. The most important Catholic edifice in America.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH. Episcopal. Fifth avenue and 53rd street. Gothic in architectural design.

CARNEGIE HALL. Seventh avenue and 57th street. Great concert hall.

CENTRAL PARK. 59th street to 110th street. City's most beautiful park.

METROPOLITAN MUSEUM. Fifth avenue and 82nd street. Wonderful art collection.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE. Just west of the museum. A gift of the Khedive of Egypt.

MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY. Central Park West and 77th street.

CATHEDRAL OF ST. JOHN THE DIVINE. 110th street and Amsterdam avenue. Episcopal. One of the world's foremost cathedrals.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY. 114th street. One of the oldest and greatest universities in America.

GRANT'S TOMB. Riverside Drive at 123rd street. Contains bodies of General and Mrs. Grant.

COLLEGE OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK. Amsterdam avenue and 137th street.

HISPANIC SOCIETY OF AMERICA. Broadway and 156th street, Museum of the American Indian.

MORRIS-JUMEL MANSION. 160th street, near Amsterdam avenue. It figured in the Revolution.

THE ZOO. Bronx Park. 180th street and Boston Road. Wonderful collection of animals.

BOTANICAL GARDEN. Bronx Park. Plants from all parts of the world.

HALL OF FAME. New York University. 183rd street and University avenue. Gallery of Notables.

POE COTTAGE. Kingsbridge Road and Grand Concourse. Poe's Fordham home.

VAN CORTLAND MANSION in Van Courtland Park. A colonial museum.

AMAZING ADVENTURE OF "STARS AND STRIPES

Founding and Publishing "The Doughboy's Newspaper" a Remarkable Achievement by America Newspaper Men in Wartime France, Now Told for First Time

By MAJOR DONALD L. STONE

Donald L. Stone, the writer of this article, is a Major in the Military Intelligence Reserve, and was formerly Acting Chief of Press and Censorship, American Expeditionary Forces. He is at the present time a professor at Dartmouth College. The second installment of Mr. Stone's narrative of the Stars and Stripes will appear in Editor & Publisher next week.

Finished papers coming off the press being loaded into trucks for distribution all the way from the Atlantic ports to the Rhine country.

THE World War was so tremendous, even from the American angle alone, that notable achievements incidental to it were easily lost to sight. How the Navy transported our vast Army overseas is a tale in itself. So is the epic adventure of our Engineers in constructing a huge system of docks, bridges, railroads and cantonments in a foreign land. It was a big army, the greatest that ever crossed an ocean in the world's history, and it did things in a big way, and did them well. There are stories embedded in the official records at Washington that deserve to be better known, stories that make one proud to be an American. How the Quartermaster Corps fed and clothed two million men, scattered across France from front-line trenches to base ports; how American railroad men operated American locomotives and rolling stock by American methods in a land where once Caesar's legions marched; how American telephone men strung wires all over France and gave the country its first high-class, long-distance telephone service; how the Motor Transport Corps operated American trucks, ambulances and passenger cars under fire, in numbers so great that miles of roads behind the battle lines were endless chains of autos—big stories all are these, though dwarfed by the war itself, and by the valor of our fighting men, which deservedly claims our chief interest.

This is the story of the Stars and Stripes, the Doughboy's newspaper. It is the story of the remarkable achievement of a small group of American newspaper men in Army khaki, who, in a foreign country in wartime and under every conceivable handicap, produced an American paper, excellent by all metropolitan standards. Not one of those men joined the Army with the idea of continuing his peace time occupation. On the contrary they genuinely regretted that they were not permitted to serve at the actual front. But when told that running a newspaper was their army job, they turned to it with a will. And they not only produced an excellent paper, but one that was a huge success from the standpoints of circulation and of money-making. The paper started with a circulation of nothing, and ran up to 500,000 a week. It was expected to lose money, and it not only paid its way but turned into the United States treasury $700,000 in cash and property when it closed. The facts speak for themselves.

In December 1917, the American army in France was already 180,000 men and was growing rapidly. The First Division had practically completed its intensive training, and had entered the trenches, in a relatively quiet sector, for its baptism of fire. Other combat units were in training too, either in the bleak and rainy Lorraine region that had been assigned to America for the purpose, or back along the lines of communication to the base ports. American organizations of every sort were dots here and there on a broad belt that stretched from the docks and wharves of Brest, St. Nazaire, La Rochelle and Bordeaux to the rear of the trenches before Toul and Nancy—where America's own sector would eventually be. With thousands more arriving every week, the Service of Supplies hummed with activity. Buildings, docks, railroad tracks grew like mushrooms overnight. Hundreds of stevedores unloaded cargoes of arms, munitions and supplies, in an almost impossible attempt to keep pace with the arrival of the men themselves.

At the two G. H. Q.'s or General Head Quarters harassed staff officers, seriously overworked and with nerves at a tension that sometimes snapped in utter wreck, struggled gamely with problems that seemed beyond human strength. While the S. O. S. officers at Tours wrestled with problems of supply and equipment, General Pershing's staff at Chaumont combated other tasks. General Fox Connor as chief of "G 3" moved troops from point to point, planned their training, and consulted with the Chief of Staff and the "C. in C." regarding their ultimate use in battle. General George Moseley the chief of "G 4", and his office force planned and supervised their actual transportation. And General Dennis Nolan, "A. C. of S. G. 2," or Chief of Intelligence, employed all his waking hours on the development of his many-sided field.

Focus your attention on General Nolan, for our story starts with him. Other stories too, for around him and his busy office gathers much of the inside history of the A. E. F. In all that big hollow square of French barrack buildings at Chaumont then flying the American flag and the flag of the Commander in Chief, no office save General Pershing's own could more fairly claim to be the nerve and brain center of the American army overseas. Picture at its head a man in the full vigor of early middle life—just turned 50 in fact—tall, wiry, smooth shaven, heavy of jaw and keen of eye, retaining in his athletic bearing more than a reminiscence of the West Point football player of a generation ago. A man as mentally keen as he is physically fit, chosen from the able officers of the line for the general-staff training that would fit him, if war ever came, for his present task. A man slow of speech and deliberate of manner, whose method is to attack one problem at a time, settle it and pass on. A man big enough to waive his rank and discuss as man to man some vexing point with a mere lieutenant.

No man who was a martinet or mere routine soldier could have held a high position at G.H.Q. in war days. If General Nolan had been bound by precedent and existing regulations there would have been no Stars and Stripes. It was his willingness to cut through red tape and solve an essentially non-military problem in a non-military way that brought the soldiers' own newspaper into being.

In the midst of General Nolan's meditations on how to organize the American army's gathering of information from the enemy and co-ordinate it with the information gained by our Allies, how to combat the German's exceedingly clever and efficient spy system, how to handle press and mail censorship, and a dozen other questions no less vital, the word "morale" would keep intruding. That was his problem, and it was a serious one.

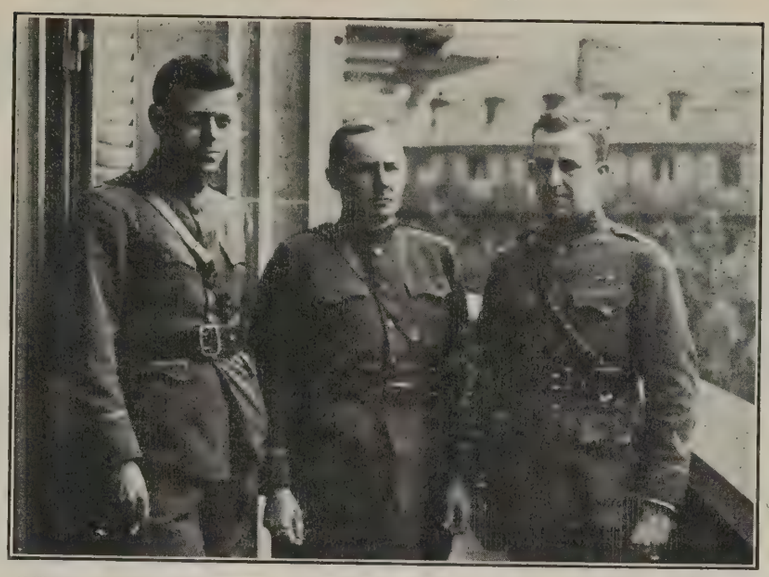
Not that the American Army lacked "pep" and courage, either as men or units, —that was the least of the General's worries. But there was a very real danger that men and "outfits" would lose their sense of unity in so great a war. We would have to turn certain regiments over to the British for training. Quite likely they would eventually fight on the British front. Some of our troops would be brigaded with the French. Some might even be sent to Italy if the Germans attacked there. We intended eventually to have our own sector and our own command, and nothing could shake General Pershing's determination in that regard. In the meantime, we were prepared to send men where they were most needed. Was there any way by which American soldiers mingled with French, British or Italian troops could be made to feel that they were still part of the American army? Or would they inevitably feel themselves cut off, lost, neglected?

The American zone in itself presented a problem that was grave enough. G. H. Q. knew what the Army was doing and was trying to do. But not many others—officers or men—had the breadth of vision to see more than their own little corner of the war. It was a long way from Baccarat to Bordeaux. Could the fighting soldier at the front, the quartermaster soldier in Central France and the labor battalion at the ports be made to realize that they were all parts of a big machine all equally necessary, and all working to a common end? Or must the size of the war, the distance from home, and daily life among a people foreign in thought and speech of necessity undermine the army's esprit de corps?

General Nolan and his associate cussed these questions repeatedly there was no apparent practical s until a second lieutenant with a appeared on the scene.

In mid-November of 1917, 2nd L T. Viskniskki, Inf. arrived in Fran der orders detaching him from th Division for censorship duty. H attached to the General Staff and field press headquarters at Neufc for at that time there was urgent n qualified men to read and censor t correspondent's despatches, Viskni native American of Polish ancestr in civil life a newspaper man o experience. Now in his middle t and married, he had left his w partner in a successful agency that cated newspaper feature stories t a training camp. Prior to his arr Chaumont he had organized and b editor at Camp Lee in Virginia Bayonet, the weekly of the 80th D in training.

It was not long after his arriv he proposed to his chief, Colonel C. Sweeney, General Staff, the C Censorship, the publication of an A weekly newspaper. He was confide he could make a success of such a as a stimulant to morale, and th weekly could even be made to p way. Viskniskki was heartily su in the idea by Lieutenant V Colonel Sweeney's assistant, an urged it upon their chief as earne military etiquette would permit colonel was not nearly as convinced lieutenants, but the idea appealed as worth presenting to General



General Nolan had several talks matter with Colonel Sweeney an the two junior officers. The idea ready occurred to General Nola rather vague way. Becoming no ously interested, he took the matte memorandum with General Harbo Chief of Staff. As the result of ference between Generals Nola Harbord the idea of an A. E. F. newspaper was finally presented Commander in Chief himself.

The A. E. F. leaders were agre in theory at least there was no answer to the morale problem really good newspaper, with a distr as wide as the army itself. The q were rather: "Can the grave difi incident to publishing such a we overcome?" and "Is Viskniskki t to do it?"

The experience of the Frenc British with regard to official new was far from reassuring. Seve tempts had been made by them our entry into the war, but the were stiff and formal. They fairl of propaganda, and Tommy and alike had no affection for them o dence in them. Evidently, if A were to succeed where France an land both had failed, the America would have to be a real newspa by capable newspaper men along American lines. More than that, it have to be run in a way that wou the private soldier confidence editors and their message. Seric stacles incident to war-time pro and distribution in a foreign would have to be surmounted.

The proposition was too importa decided with undue haste. For weeks the G. H. Q. authorities idea under consideration while Vis and his record were carefully He appeared to have the necessary fications; he had courage, experien sonality; he was full of concrete, p ideas as to how the job should b

The effort seemed well worth

Officers in charge at the end of the paper's history. (L. to R.) Maj. Mark S. Watson, F. A., officer in charge; Maj. P. G. Mumford, Q. M. C., financial adviser; Capt. Stephen T. Early, Inf., assistant officer in charge.

ıd so, with no little misgiving, the uble decision was made to have an icial A. E. F. newspaper, and to per- t Viskniskki to be its first manager, or, give his official title, officer-in-charge. 'I believe that there is a real need for :h a paper," said General Nolan to skniskki, "and I will give you a free id to show what you can do. As to enses, while I hope you can eventually ng in enough money in advertising and scriptions to pay a good share of the t, I am not so foolish as to expect you make money. All I ask is that you the paper in a businesslike way, and p an accurate record of receipts and enditures. As for the money neces- y to make a start, I will loan you from ret service funds 25,000 francs. The ount will be made available in a Paris k for you to draw upon as needed. ien money comes in over and above r current needs, use it to help re-estab- the fund, which must be carried and ited as a loan." In later conversation h his associates, General Nolan re- ked that if Viskniskki could produce eal newspaper that the soldiers would d and like, the Army might well nd $50,000 on it as a morale building position, and consider the money well nt.

Here are some of the ideas which the ly appointed editor developed memor- a to and in conversations with his fs at G. H. Q. "The paper will be ed the Stars and Stripes. No better for an army newspaper at the seat of could be devised than the name by ch Americans effectionately call our ional flag. It is an ambitious name, it will compel the attention of the that read it, and it will be an inspira- to the men that write for it. The ct of the paper will be to foster a se of common purpose in all ranks the A. E. F., wherever located. A se of common purpose, and a calm, hakable confidence in the Army's ıtual victory.

We will do this by telling the men that it is safe for them to know. re will be many things we cannot tell n, but everything we print must be without the shadow of a doubt. re must be plenty of wholesome ıor and plenty of sports news, to take men's minds off the inevitable hard- ıs of the war. The paper must set its resolutely against propaganda, ex- in the better sense of real news ten with a patriotic slant. If officers ıigh rank are permitted to send in t they consider news and order it to rinted, the task of the editors will be ossible. The editors must have a hand in fact as well as in name. The way to build up confidence in the r is to have it written by enlisted men enlisted men. The editor will have ral oversight and direction, but un- the paper is written by doughboys doughboys it can never gain the en- l man's real interest or affection. ıust be written in straightforward er style, in language that any man can read at all can understand. We do that without recourse to coarse- or vulgarity. As far as the officers concerned, there is no reason why a er's paper cannot be made so inter- g that the officers will be glad to read it. On the other hand, you could never get common soldiers to take much interest in an officers' paper. And trying to talk down to the man in ranks would be the worst mistake of all."

Much of this reasoning ran absolutely counter to army tradition and to the spirit of army regulations. For it was an amazing thing to talk of giving real responsibility and a voice in the formation of important policy to men who did not hold commissioned rank. But Viskniskki's ideas received hearty support at G. H. Q., and he was given the authority to make experiment in his own way, without interference in the technique of his profession. Besides the money placed at his disposal he was given authority to requisition newspaper talent wherever it might be found in the A. E. F. in such quantity as he might reasonably require.

Two enlisted men of whom Viskniskki had personal knowledge were immediately asked for. They were Hudson Hawley, a Yale man, formerly with the New York Sun, then a private in the 101st Machine Gun Battalion, and Abian A. Wallgren of Philadelphia, a high private in the Fifth Marines. No better selections could have been made, and both remained with the paper until the end. Hawley was a versatile writer, who could and did do a little of everything. Most of the first issues were his work, and he ranged from straight reporting and serious editorials with a humorous tinge to just plain foolishness labeled "Miss Information" and "Bran Mash." Full of whimsical humor in print and out, cultured gentleman and 100 percent doughboy too, he knew just "the stuff to give the troops" and did it to a fare-you-well.

As time went on he became the paper's chief liaison man in maintaining contact with the soldier in camp and field. Hawley went everywhere and interviewed and talked to everybody. He even made a trip—one lone private amid generals and colonels—on the "C. in C.'s" special train. Barely above the legal height for a soldier, he could assume dignity enough for a man twice his size, and his extra special salute was admittedly the snappiest in the A. E. F. Thousands of officers and men got to know Private Hawley of the Stars and Stripes personally. Hundreds of thousands saw his picture every week in Wally's comic strips and didn't realize it. Yet he was unmistakably there to the trained eye—the short, slender form, the bald head, the spectacles, the snappy salute. But the delightful stutter and the golden treasury of anecdote were beyond any cartoonist's pen.

Wallgren—who signed his humorous cartoons and comic strips "Wally"—was even better known to our Army overseas. It is very doubtful whether any man of the whole A. E. F. was better known. Surely none was better loved. He was heart and soul a common soldier, too. When called to service with the Stars and Stripes he was with the Fifth Marines at Damblaine. Tradition would have it that he was in the "brig" at the time. In any event he had really lived the private life of the private for many months, and when he made fun of top-sergeants, mess kits, second lieutenants, mud and "cooties" he was making sport of real hardships personally borne. Wally was to the A. E. F. what Bairnsfather was to the British troops. Surely no funnier drawings of army life were ever conceived. Humor combined with personal experience and keen observation gave him a sort of sixth sense that enabled him to put an unerring finger on the absurdities and laughable injustices of soldiering. He also made frequent trips to the front to see things for himself and to gain material for his drawings.

Personally, "Wally" was as lovably irresponsible as a child. His slender pay was scant ammunition for the mighty battle of Paris, but comrades better supplied with francs were glad to help him bridge the deep gulf from pay day to pay day, and his superior officers acted in loco parentis as best they could. Two articles stood out in Wally's simple creed. One was that a Marine was physically superior to two doughboys, the other that prohibition was a greater menace than Germany in arms. He never succeeded in really proving either thesis, but his earnest efforts to do so were at times a matter of serious concern to his associates.

Wally's habits were regular in a sense. With his "strip" safely done on Tuesday afternoon he would disappear for two or three days in quest of fresh material. An issue of the Stars and Stripes without Wally's cartoons would have been unthinkable, but there was no guarantee that they would appear other than the fact that they always had. And yet, somehow, they always did. General Pershing once inspected the Stars and Stripes' editorial office—dropped in to call on the editorial staff would perhaps be more accurate—for the paper defies ordinary military terminology. It was on Monday morning, and all the staff including Wally were busily at work. Wally's appearance was anything but soldierly, and all held their breath as the General walked straight to his desk. "Well, Wallgren," said the C. in C., "I suppose you really enjoy this sort of thing." "Yes, sir" replied the doughty Swede, and the great man passed on.

"I didn't know whether he meant drawing pictures or 'conyac,' said Wally afterwards, "but I was right either way."

Lt. Viskniskki went to Paris in mid-January, 1918, to investigate possibilities with regard to the mechanical side of the proposed paper. Within a week he reported back that he had made arrangements for the setting of type, the stereotyping, the paper supply and the press work. A French firm was willing to supply paper in sufficient quantity to make a start. Mechanical work and printing were to be done at the plant of the Continental edition of the London Daily Mail. As assistants in addition to Hawley and Wallgren, Lts. Wm. K. Michael and Charles R. Cushing were asked for and obtained, as were also four soldier printers from the 29th Division. These four men, Sergeant R. S. Claiborne and Privates S. U. Bergh, H. J. Miller and F. J. Hammer, remained with the paper until it suspended publication. The first issue appeared on Feb. 8, 1918.

The form of the paper as established in the first issue was constantly adhered to. It was an eight page weekly with seven columns to the page. The masthead bore the name of the paper over an outline sketch of the American coat-of-arms and crossed flags. It was printed every Thursday morning and appeared every Friday morning throughout France. From the start there was a vigorous editorial page and a sport page of army and home athletic news—the latter, with other home news, was obtained by special cable despatches. There were humorous articles, news articles and humorous and serious cartoons. Half-tone and pen and ink illustrations were freely used. Except for general supervision by Lt. Viskniskki, and financial responsibility in other officers of commissioned rank as required by army regulations, the paper was, except at the very start, almost entirely written by soldiers for soldiers. Enlisted men wrote not only the leading articles but the convincing and earnestly colloquial editorials that were one of its notable features.

The opening number's editorial, written by Lt. Cushing, ran as follows:—"With this issue the Stars and Stripes reports for active service with the A.E.F. It is your paper, and has but one axe to grind,—the axe which our Uncle Samuel is whetting on the grindstone for use upon the august necks of the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns.

"The Stars and Stripes is unique in that every soldier purchaser, every soldier subscriber, is a stockholder and a member of the board of directors. It isn't being run for any individual's profit, and it serves no class but the fighting men in France who wear the olive drab and the forest green. Its profits go to the company funds of the Soldier Subscribers, and the staff of the paper isn't paid a sou.

"If you don't find in this, your own weekly, the things in which you are particularly interested, write to the editors and, if it is humanly possible, they will dig up the stuff that you want. There are so many of you over here now, and so many different sorts of you, that it is more than likely that some of your hobbies have been overlooked in this our first number. Let us know.

"We want to hear from that artist in your outfit, that ex-newspaper reporter, that short story writer, that company 'funny man' and that fellow who writes the verses. We want to hear from all of you—for the Stars and Stripes is your paper, first, last and all the time; for you and for those of your friends and relatives to whom you will care to send it.

(Continued on page 112)

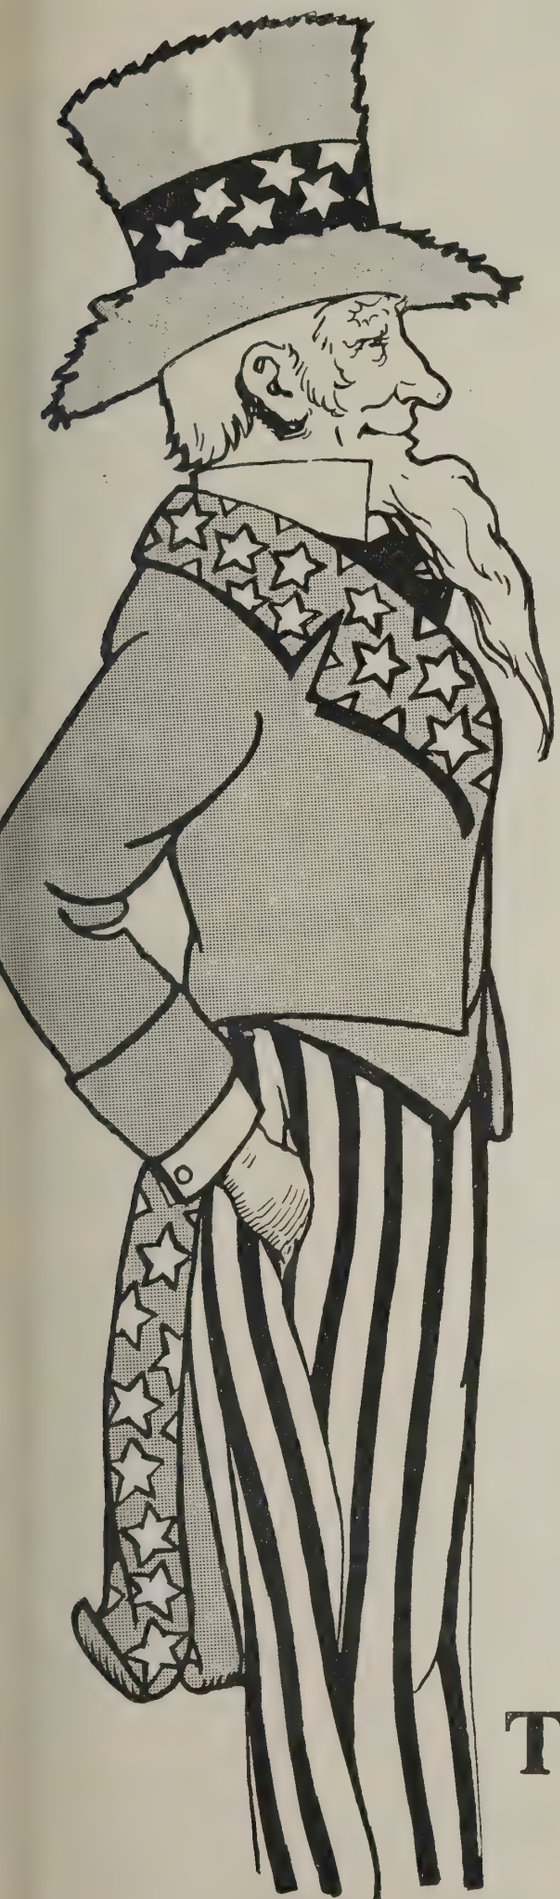
n editorial conference on the Stars and Stripes. The seniors in service on ıe paper constituted a board which weekly mapped out the plans for the next sue. This picture was made during the conference for the final "Victory Edition."

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING 1926 RECORDS OF 330 NEWSPAPERS

KEY—*Gain; †Loss; [1] Chamber of Commerce or other Local Authority; [2] Audit Bureau of Circulations figure; [3] U. S. Census Estimate of July 1, 1926; [4] State Census, 1926; [5] Outline type; M—Morning; E—Evening; S—Sunday.

CITY AND PAPER	Issued	1926 Classified Advertising in Agate Lines	Gain or Loss Against 1925	Per Cent. of Gain or Loss Against 1925	Number of Advertisements in 1926	Gain or Loss in Number of Advertisements Against 1925	Per Cent. of Gain or Loss Against 1925 in Number of Advertisements	Average Number Lines Per Advertisement	Population Estimated Jan. 1, 1927 (U. S. Census Estimate July, 1926)	Average Number of Lines Per Capita	Average Number Advertisements Per Capita	Largest Type Permitted in Classified Columns	Can Column Rules Be Broken?	Are Cuts Permitted in Classified Columns?
Abilene (Kan.) Chronicle	E	105,000	25,000*	32.*	15,000	3,500*	34.*	4	5,500	5.	1	8	No	Yes
Akron (O.) Times-Press	ES	3,042,046	606,494*	.249*	212,575	25,141*	.134*	4	225,000	13.5	....	30	Yes	Yes
Albion (Mich.) Recorder	E	171,934	112,798*	1.95*	.....	.....	.....	....	9,000	19.	....	8	No	No
Albuquerque (N. M.) State Tribune	E	266,854	45,934†	17.†	54,171	698†	10.†	4.9	24,000	11.	2	5½	No	No
Adrian (Mich.) Telegram	E	536,662	19,026*	3.7*	42,723	898*	2.1	3	13,000	41.	3.9	10	No	No
Allentown (Pa.) Call	MS	1,680,854	194,796*	13.*	163,892	12,292*	8.*	10	95,000	18.	1.7	5½	No	No
Chronicle & News	E	842,100	158,634*	19.*	54,475	15,159*	28.*	15	95,000	9.	.57	6	Yes	Yes
Altoona (Pa.) Mirror	E	1,328,348	.....	3.2*	97,240	.....	.....	13	70,000	18.9	1.	6	No	No
Amsterdam (N. Y.) Recorder	E	295,498	12,166†	.....	32,138	5,926†	.....	....	35,000	8.4	....	6	No	No
Anaheim (Cal.) Bulletin	E	444,360	7,560*	2.*	.....	.....	.....	....	10,500	42.	....	18[5]	Yes	Yes
Antigo (Wis.) Journal	E	96,810	40,628*	41.*	.....	.....	.....	....	10,564	9.1	....	8	No	No
Ashland (Ky.) Independent	ES	628,320	171,990*	38.*	41,993	11,673*	38.*	15	24,628	25.5	1.7	8	No	No
Auburn (N. Y.) Citizen	ES	176,736	178,416†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	40,173	4.3	....	.....	No	Yes
Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle	MS	403,312	11,018†	2.†	.....	.....	.....	....	65,000	6.2	....	36	Yes	Yes
Aurora (Ill.) Beacon-News	ES	1,304,828	63,224*	5.*	.....	.....	.....	....	48,000	28.	....	36[5]	Yes	No
Austin (Tex.) American-Statesman	MS	933,160	110,702*	13.4*	.....	.....	.....	7	40,000	23.3	3	24	Yes	Yes
Bakerfield (Cal.) Californian	E	605,696	14,658†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	23,000	26.	....	24[5]	No	No
Baltimore (Md.) Post	E	752,423	243,473*	47.83*	.....	.....	.....	....	797,716	...	....	....	Yes	Yes
Bangor (Me.) News	M	883,570	99,444*	12.*	.....	.....	.....	....	26,644	3.3	....	....	Yes	Yes
Bartlesville (Okla.) Examiner	MS	369,390	9,030†	2.4†	.....	.....	.....	....	18,000	20.5	....	18	Yes	Yes
Battle Creek (Mich.) Enquirer & News	ES	1,749,622	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	40,000[1]	43.7	....	24[5]	No	No
Moon-Journal	E	1,166,074	122,094*	11.6*	72,388	10,182	16.	16	45,000	25.9	1.61	....	Yes	Yes
Bayonne (N. J.) Times	E	725,868	150,300*	26.1*	88,715	5,475*	6 ½*	3	90,000	8.	.98	6	No	No
Beaver (Pa.) Times	E	347,200	42,000*	12.*	32,550	3,255	10.*	4¼	18,000	19.	1.8	18	No	No
Bellingham (Wash.) American	E	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	35,000	....	....	....	No	No
Bend (Ore.) Bulletin	E	134,148	19,992	17½	9,582	1,423	17	6.0	10,500	12.7	0.916	8	No	No
Bethlehem (Pa.) Globe-Times	E	599,158	9,918†	2.†	48,337	4,903*	10.*	12.3	62,947	9.5	.8	6	No	No
Biddeford (Me.) Journal	E	121,296	55,692*	31.4†	.....	.....	.....	....	24,832	4.9	....	6	No	No
Binghamton (N. Y.) Press	E	1,652,712	1,650,802	.1	.....	.....	.....	5	80,000	20.6	....	6	No	No
Birmingham (Ala.) News	ES	2,059,442	58,198*	2.9*	202,190	1,081†	.5†	10	250,000	8.	0.8	5½	No	No
Boise (Idaho) Idaho Statesman	MS	607,306	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	23,000	26.	....	6	No	No
Bloomington (Ill.) Bulletin	ES	336,144	163,698*	94.*	54,326	10,088*	22.*	6	33,686	10.	1.5	6	No	No
Pantagraph	M	521,905	30,267*	6.*	127,875	681*	.....	4	35,000	14	3.6	5½	No	No
Boone (Iowa) News-Republican	E	90,748	9,800*	12.2*	.....	.....	.....	....	14,000	6.	....	8	No	No
Boston (Mass.) Transcript	E	2,633,235	107,921†	4.†	.....	.....	.....	....	800,000[1]	1.3	....	....	Yes	Yes
Bradenton (Fla.) Herald	ES	183,330	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	14,000	13.	....	10	No	No
Brockton (Mass.) Enterprise	E	938,644	3,640*	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	66,000	14.	....	....	....	....
Brooklyn (N. Y.) Citizen	ES	718,010	181,122*	.026	25,736	1,426	.....	25	2,350,000	....	....	....	No	Yes
Times	ES	1,499,780	93,978	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	2,350,000	....	....	5½	No	No
Brownsville (Pa.) Telegraph	E	200,914	21,630	12 ½*	.....	.....	.....	....	9,077	22	....	24	Yes	Yes
Buffalo (N. Y.) Evening News	E	3,854,832	11,373†	.29†	778,000	780,000	.26†	5	545,273[4]	7	1.4	12	No	No
Times	ES	1,464,646	251,618*	20.*	153,209	13,978*	10.*	9.5	545,273[4]	2.6	.28	24	Yes	Yes
Burlingame (Cal.) Advance-Star	E	57,600	.....	50.	.....	.....	.....	4.5	15,000	3.8	....	12	Yes	Yes
Burlington (Kan.) Republican	E	135,922	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	4	2,500	54	....	8	No	Yes
Butte (Mont.) Miner	MS	851,592	684,880	24.3*	.....	.....	.....	....	46,000	18.5	....	....	Yes	No
Caldwell (Kan.) Messenger	E	86,800	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	2,200	39.4	....	10	No	No
Canton (Ill.) Ledger	E	98,686	.....	21.†	.....	.....	.....	....	12,000	8.0	....	8	No	No
Canton (O.) Repository	ES	2,842,098	335,096*	13.*	223,841	27,570	14.*	12.7	106,260	27.0	2.0	60[5]	No	Yes
Carbondale (Pa.) Leader	E	117,862	6,027*	5.*	.....	.....	.....	3.0	20,500	6.0	....	18	No	No
Centralia (Ill.) Sentinel	E	188,398	24,542*	13.02*	22,959	272*	.012*	8.2	12,491	15.0	2.0	24	Yes	No
Champaign (Ill.) News-Gazette	ES	571,242	11,074†	2.0	.....	.....	.....	5.0	47,000	12.1	....	8	No	No
Chattanooga (Tenn.) News	E	929,301	5,118*	.½*	116,163	649*	.½*	8.0	131,832	7.0	.880	10	Yes	No
Chicago (Ill.) Herald & Examiner	MS	2,277,399	300,172*	15.*	327,899	18,072*	6.0*	6.9	3,000,000	.7	.1	24	No	No
Tribune	MS	8,518,705	55,303*	.006*	1,358,260	81,774*	.056*	6.27	3,000,000	2.43	....	24	No	No
Cleveland (O.) Press	E	3,419,752	72,801†	2.13†	702,120	5,856†	.82†	4.8	1,176,482	2.9	.60	....	Yes	Yes
Columbia (Mo.) Tribune	E	151,214	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	14,275	10.5	....	6	No	No
Columbus (O.) Citizen	E	1,853,570	201,290*	12.1*	187,287	12,982*	7.4*	9.8	310,622	5.9	0.6	36	....	....
Dispatch	ES	4,100,375	25,530	0.006	486,083	17,461	0.034	8.34	310,622	13.20	1.56	48	Yes	Yes
State Journal	MS	1,660,295	254,145*	18.0	136,288	23,980*	20.0*	12.2	300,000	5.0	.½	....	Yes	Yes
Concord (N. H.) Monitor-Patriot	E	199,332	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	24,000	8.3	....	....	No	No
Corning (N. Y.) Leader	E	183,456	.....	.....	21,373	610*	.028*	8.0	22,000	8.0	1.0	12	No	No
Cortland (N. Y.) Standard	E	67,770	.....	4.0†	22,570	.....	4.0†	3.0	16,618	4.0	1⅓	7	No	No
Corvallis (Ore.) Gazette-Times	E	285,292	64,806†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	7,500	38.0	....	8	No	No
Coshocton (O.) Tribune & Times-Age	ES	421,862	462,308	.080	.....	.....	.....	....	12,000	35.0	38.0	12	No	No
Covington (Ky.) Post	E	614,366	153,666*	25.*	64,901	11,189*	17.*	9.46	160,000	4.0	.½	....	Yes	Yes
Crookston (Minn.) Times	E	45,618	45,794	.....	2,110	60	.....	5.0	6,500	7.0	32.0	8	No	Yes
Dallas (Tex.) News	MS	2,940,177	139,500†	4.5	391,910	17,098†	4.6	7.2	280,000	7.2	1.5	12	No	No
Danbury (Conn.) News	E	567,035	17,553*	.03*	.....	.....	.....	....	25,000	22.68	....	7	No	No
Danville (Ill.) Commercial-Review	E	.....	.....	.....	123,110	2,427*	2.*	7	42,202	20.4	2.9	6	No	No
Davenport (Iowa) Times	E	896,350	20,636*	2.3*	97,141	4,739†	.049	9.2	70,000	11.5	1.3	48[5]	Yes	No
Dayton (O.) Herald	E	1,470,854	1,414*	.....	120,173	5,867*	.....	12.0	177,000	8.0	....	24	Yes	Yes
Journal	MS	1,646,190	7,294†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	177,000	9.0	....	24	Yes	Yes
News	ES	3,072,832	82,740*	2.7*	308,616	7,378*	2.0*	9.9	177,000	17.3	1.7	24	Yes	Yes
Decatur (Ill.) Review	ES	1,077,527	36,494*	23.0*	132,323	8,586*	6.0*	8.0	55,000	19.0	2.4	12	No	No
Denton (Tex.) Record-Chronicle	E	248,486	24,080*	0.10*	.....	.....	.....	....	11,000	22.5	....	6½	No	No
Denver (Col.) Rocky Mt. News	MS	900,928	100,492	10.0	211,656	4,031	0.53	4.0	328,308[1]	3.0	1½	24	Yes	Yes
	(The above figures report only the Morning News with Sunday)
Des Moines (Ia.) Register & Tribune-Capital	MS	2,112,102	111,770*	5.58*	349,931	14,843*	4.42*	6.02	156,148‡	13.52	2.24	72[5]	Yes	Yes
	(‡The population figures are those of R. L. Polk & Co.)
Detroit (Mich.) Free Press	MS	4,862,032	10,290†	0.2†	657,580	3,132†	.4	7.3	1,535,964	3.1	0.4	36	No	No
News	ES	7,803,824	4,760†	.06†	1,455,896	30,277†	2.0	5.3	1,535,964	5.7	1.0	5½	No	No
Times	ES	2,373,247	296,335*	14.0*	270,594	21,261*	8.0*..	9.0	1,535,964	1.5	0.17	24	No	No
Dodge City (Kan.) Globe	E	454,118	336,913*	287.*	90,824	55,663*	158.0*	5.0	7,250	62.6	12.5	12	No	Yes
Dubuque (Iowa) Telegraph-Herald	ES	458,542	35,434*	8.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	40,996[4]	11.0	....	36	No	Yes
Duluth (Minn.) News-Tribune	MS	1,153,824	63,366*	5½.0*	.....	.....	.....	10.0	119,070	9.2	....	18	No	No
Eau Claire (Wis.) Leader-Telegram	MES	358,344	2,366*	.007*	.....	.....	.....	....	24,042	15.0	....	18	No	No
Elgin (Ill.) Courier-News	E	942,634	75,404*	8.75*	97,996	10,683*	12.25*	9.0	33,384	28.0	2.93	18[5]	Yes	No
Elizabeth City (N. C.) Advance	E	130,627	13,748*	11.7*	9,853	924*	10.3	12.0	12,000	11.0	1.0	....	Yes	Yes
Elizabeth (N. J.) Journal	E	1,198,340	37,973*	3⅓*	175,305	1,059*	.075	6.0	110,000	10.8	1.5	5½	No	No
Elkhart (Ind.) Truth	E	791,182	1,722,242*	27.8*	93,792	15,313*	19.5*	8.4	35,000[1]	26.3	3.1	6	No	No
Elmira (N. Y.) Star-Gazette & Advertiser	ME	845,348	8,190*	.0098*	95,226	354*	.0098*	8.8	51,067	16.5	1.89	11	No	No
	(The above figures do not include the morning figures)
Elyria (O.) Chronicle Telegram	E	228,340	9,632*	4.4*	.....	.....	.....	....	25,000	9.1	....	....	....	....
Erie (Pa.) Times	E	1,444,704	79,229	5½	197,185	17,216	8.75	3⅓	128,755	1.12	1½	18	No	No
Eugene (Ore.) Guard	E	831,544	124,950*	17.68*	.....	.....	.....	....	22,000	37.7	....	8	No	No
Fall River (Mass.) Herald-News	E	332,951	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	129,560	2.6	....	10	No	No
Fitchburg (Mass.) Sentinel	E	314,174	19,376†	5.8†	.....	.....	.....	....	44,034	7.0	....	5½	No	No
Flint (Mich.) Journal	ES	1,492,526	183,327*	0.14	.....	.....	.....	....	152,667	9.6	....	5½	No	No
Fort Madison (Iowa) Democrat	E	104,387	.....	.....	34,796	5,783*	20.0	3.0	14,000	7.5	2.5	....	Yes	Yes
Fort Meyers (Fla.) Tropical News	MS	487,529	272,461	126.7*	.....	.....	.....	....	20,000	24.38	....	12	No	No
Fort Worth (Tex.) Press	E	882,854	297,150*	50.0*	101,946	.....	.....	8.6	155,000	5.0	1.5	36	Yes	Yes
Star-Telegram	ES	1,588,284	235,704*	17.4*	194,160	21,028*	12.1*	8.13	155,000	10.2	1.25	12	No	No
Record-Telegram	M	1,108,436	1,274*	12.0*	194,160	21,028*	12.1*	5.70	155,000	7.1	1.06	12	No	No
Franklin (Ind.) Star	E	198,934	73,500*	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	4,909	40.5	....	14	No	Yes
Fremont (Nebr.) Tribune	E	250,922	.....	7.0	21,971	.....	5.0	9.0	12,000	21.0	2.3	7	No	No
Fresno (Cal.) Republican	MS	1,389,804	50,127*	2.77*	228,815	2,538†	1.10†	6.07	85,000	16.35	2.69	24	No	No
Gardiner (Mass.) News	E	307,391	51,031*	10.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	19,400	15.8	....	14	No	Yes
Gary (Ind.) Post-Tribune	E	1,428,735	1,209,227	18.0	129,467	114,327	13.0	1.17	110,000[1]	13.0	1.17	5½	No	No
Geneva (N. Y.) Times	E	29,332	30,394*	10.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	16,000	18.0	....	7	No	No
Gloversville & Johnstown (N. Y.) Leader-Republican	E	614,838	94.752*	18.2*	62,606	3,302*	5.57*	9.82	36,000	17.07	1.73	6	No	No
Grafton (W. Va.) Sentinel	E	64,680	12,936*	25.0*	5,852	1,463*	25.0*	12.0	8,500	7.7	0.6	6	No	No
Grand Rapids (Mich.) Press	E	2,211,076	161,854*	7.8*	325,986	36,515*	12.6*	6.8	169,097[1]	13.0	1.9	5½	No	No
Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune	M	389,746	23,184*	6.3*	.....	.....	.....	....	29,256	13.3	....	36	Yes	No
Hamilton (O.) Journal	E	390,698	81,564†	20.8†	39,018	6,575†	16.8†	10.0	51,000	7.6	0.76	9	No	No
Hanford (Cal.) Journal	M	147,084	5,616†	0.368†	.....	.....	.....	4.0	7,000	13.5	....	8	No	No
Hartford (Conn.) Times	E	2,035,836	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	173,000	11.7	....	6	No	Yes
Hollywood (Cal.) Citizen	ES	735,994	109,648*	17.5*	121,705	15,506*	14.5	6.0	120,000	6.0	1.0	14	Yes	No
Homestead (Pa.) Messenger	E	264,408	5,300†	2.0†	.....	.....	.....	....	20,452	12.9	....	14	No	No
Houston (Tex.) Chronicle	ES	3,492,972	691,986*	24.0*	467,330	73,839*	18.0*	7.5	250,000	14.0	1.5	30	Yes	No
Hudson (N. Y.) Star	M	216,482	23,450†	9.0†	.....	.....	.....	....	12,000	18.0	....	7	No	No
Huntington (Ind.) Press	MS	277,476	32,636*	11.0*	40,293	3,126*	7.0*	6.5	17,000	16.0	2.0	7	No	No
Huron (S. D.), Huronite	E	199,000	50,000*	25.0*	.....	.....	.....	6.0	13,000	15.0	....	12	No	No

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING 1926 RECORDS OF 330 NEWSPAPERS



Y—*Gain; †Loss; [1] Chamber of Com- or other Local Authority; [2] Audit u of Circulations figure; [3] U. S. Cen- stimate of July 1, 1926; [4] State Cen- 926; [5] Outline type; M—Morning; E— ng; S—Sunday.

CITY AND PAPER	Issued	1926 Classified Advertising in Agate Lines	Gain or Loss Against 1925	Per Cent. of Gain or Loss Against 1925	Number of Advertisements in 1926	Gain or Loss in Number of Advertisements Against 1925	Per Cent. of Gain or Loss Against 1925 in Number of Advertisements	Average Number Lines Per Advertisement	Population Estimated Jan. 1, 1927 (U. S. Census Estimate July, 1926)	Average Number of Lines Per Capita	Average Number Advertisements Per Capita	Largest Type Permitted in Classified Columns	Can Column Rules Be Broken?	Are Outs Permitted in Classified Columns?	Do Linage Figures Include Rules, Heads, etc.?
inson (Kans.) News	E	673,872	96,372	16¾	80,472	80,472	.....	8.37	28,000	22.0	3.0	48	Yes	No	Yes
ndence (Mo.) Examiner	E	491,792	18,200†	3.0†	55,691	258†	.....	8.0	15,000	32.0	3.6	18	No	No	Yes
apolis (Ind.) Star	MS	3,169,029	42,163†	1.33*	293,015	17,352†	5.8†	10.8	394,000	8.0	1.3	72[5]	Yes	Yes	Yes
News	E	3,429,501	46,398*	1.35*	503,711	27,930†	5.54†	6.75	367,000	9.34	1.37	30	Yes	Yes	Yes
Kans.) Register	E	235,032	3,103†	15.6	20,629	5,001†	19.5†	11.3	8,513	27.0	2.42	8	No	No	Yes
Mountain (Mich.) News	E	144,886	11,424*	8.5*	.....	.....	.....	....	21,000	7.0	....	10	No	No	No
(N. Y.) Journal-News	E	546,700	36,652*	7.0*	66,456	2,040†	2.9	8.0	19,350	27.0	3.4	6	No	No	Yes
n (Miss.) Daily News	ES	719,880	10,766*	2.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	35,000	20.57	....	9	No	No	No n (Mich.) Citizen-Patriot	ES	878,647	164,633	23.0	136,247	7,894	5.0	6½	59,700	14.9	2.5	5½	No	No	No
City (N. J.) Journal	E	1,013,532	185,927†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	300,000	3.3	....	5½	No	No	No own (Pa.) Tribune	E	857,066	175,506†	16.5†	.....	.....	.....	....	76,753[1]	11.1	....	6	No	No	No
		(In 1926 Tribune changed all large legal ads to non-mercantile classification.)
(Ill.) Herald-News	ES	1,582,980	231,234*	17.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	65,000[4]	24.0	....	12[5]	Yes	Yes	Yes
s City (Kan.) Kansan	ES	1,298,843	102,711*	8.5*	148,270	3,554†	2.0†	....	118,000	10.0	1⅓	72	Yes	Yes	No
(N. H.) Sentinel	E	204,526	4,732*	2.2*	.....	.....	.....	....	13,000	15.7	....	....	....	Yes	Yes lville (Ind.) News-Sun	E	177,994	11,842	7.15	.....	.....	.....	....	6,500	27.3	....	10	No	Yes	No
a (Wisc.) Evening News	E	1,409,268	237,664*	20.0*	144,353	35,205*	32.0	9.8	56,000	25.0	2.6	5½	No	No	Yes
k (Ia.) Gate City	E	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....
on (N. Y.) Freeman	E	335,006	57,834†	15.0†	.....	.....	.....	....	28,519	12.0	....	6	No	No	No
o (Ind.) Dispatch	MS	382,576	102,214*	36.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	35,000	10.9	....	10	No	Yes	No
sse (Wis.) Tribune & Leader Press	ES	322,418	19,854*	5.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	34,000	9.0	....	12	No	No	Yes
n (Pa.) News-Times	E	418,586	31,864*	7.0*	.....	.....	.....	4.0	28,340	14.7	....	6	No	Yes	Yes ton (Ky.) Leader	M	562,562	16,646†	3.0†	65,065	6,745†	9.0†	....	48,641	12.0	1⅓	24	Yes	No	No
Rock (Ark.) Ark. Gazette	MS	2,663,362	.....	1.1†	220,614	.....	0.32	9.0	100,000	26.0	2.2	36[5]	No	No	Yes ew (Wash.) Daily News	E	331,954	31,823*	9.5*	37,103	7,464	20.0	6.0	12,000	28.0	31.0	14	No	No	No ngeles (Cal.) Examiner	MS	6,939,796	244,985†	3.7	1,496,346	70,334†	4.8	9.5	1,300,000[1]	5.33	1.15	72	No	No	No
Herald	E	3,624,320	112,000*	3.1*	650,306	455*	.07	4.63	1,300,328[1]	2.5	0.5	14	No	No	No
Illustrated Daily News	M	807,618	239,190*	42.08*	95,492	30,974*	48.01*	5.0	1,300,328[1]	.62	0.07	36	No	No	Yes
Times	MS	9,025,254	425,194†	4.50†	1,569,926	165,992	9.56†	8½	1,300,328[1]	6.94	1.21	14	No	No	No ton (Mich.) News	ES	231,630	92,244*	.....	27,841	11,755	.....	5.75	19,831	12.1	....	6	No	No	No
(Ga.) Telegraph	MS	1,072,226	118,038*	12.4*	90,275	4,190†	.....	....	70,000[4]	15.0	13.0	6	No	No	Yes
n (Wis.) Capital Times	E	764,428	97,720*	14.6*	.....	.....	.....	12.0	55,000	13.0	....	24	No	No	No
(Fla.) Herald	MS	5,536,552	3,542,014†	39.0†	666,291	8,447†	1.0†	....	131,000	42.2	5.0	10	No	No	Yes
(Ind.) Leader-Tribune	MS	461,279	22,410*	5.1*	.....	.....	.....	8.3	26,000	10.04	....	8	Yes	Yes	Yes a (O.) Times	ES	500,286	111,394*	28¾*	38,466	5,991*	18.0*	....	15,000	33.3	....	....	No	No	Yes
eld (Ore.) S. W. Ore. News	ES	258,160	.....	....	.....	.....	.....	13.0	6,500	39.0	....	10	No	Yes	Yes
City (Ia.) Globe-Gazette	E	459,348	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	3.0	22,682	20.0	....	....	Yes	No	Yes is (Tenn.) Press-Scimitar	E	926,254	164,437*	21½*	100,870	4,181	4⅓	....	256,056	3½.0	....	36	Yes	Yes	Yes own (O.) Journal	ES	531,258	42,532*	8.7*	.....	.....	.....	9.0	30,000	17.0	....	24	Yes	Yes	Yes own (Conn.) Press	E	418,824	10,570†	2.4	.....	.....	.....	....	23,000	18.0	....	24	No	No	No polis (Minn.) Journal	ES	2,346,573	203,575†	8¾†	433,338	30,132†	7.0†	5.41	434,000	5.40	.99	24[5]	No	No	Yes
Tribune	ES	3,265,230	151,863†	4.44†	697,096	20,364†	2.83†	4.68	425,000	7.68	1.64	24	No	No	Yes
r (Mo.) Monitor-Index	E	195,664	7,658†	.037†	.....	.....	.....	0.3	15,000	13.0	4.3	14	Yes	No	Yes
(Cal.) News-Herald	MS	823,464	11,732*	1.5*	82,364	1,172*	1.5*	10.0	18,000	45.7	4.57	10	No	No	No
(Ill.) Dispatch	E	509,940	6,000*	1.0*	64,659	3,217*	5.0*	4.0	35,000	14.0	2.0	6	No	No	Yes
(La.) News-Star	E	430,864	13,874	3.33	.....	.....	.....	....	25,000	17.0	....	8	No	No	Yes mery (Ala.) Advertiser	MS	510,874	21,728*	4.3*	.....	.....	.....	....	70,560	7.5	....	14	No	No	Yes own (N. J.) Record	E	393,302	.....	45.0	.....	.....	.....	....	15,000	26.2	....	6	No	No	Yes
Vernon (N. Y.) Argus	E	675,402	14,546†	2.0†	121,357	201.0	.000*	5.0	52,126	12.0	2.0	12	No	No	No sboro (Ill.) Independent	E	94,724	3,620*	4.0*	23,681	22,776*	4.0*	4.0	12,587	7.7	1.9	10	Yes	Yes	No ne (Ia.) Journal & News Tribune	E	188,678	980	0.52	.....	.....	.....	....	18,173	10.0	....	12	No	No	Yes
le (Tenn.) Banner	ES	1,114,862	38,544*	.003†	95,872	11,180†	.....	11.0	140,000	....	....	5½	No	No	Yes
(N. J.) Evening News	E	5,184,723	249,815*	5.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	159,000	32.0	....	5½	No	No	Yes gh (N. Y.) News	E	5,355,458	13,594*	.026*	71,892	701*	.....	7.0	30,419	.....	....	.....	.....	.....	.....
(Kans.) Kansan-Republican	E	110,754	10,556	11.0	.....	.....	.....	....	10,000	11.0	....	36[5]	No	Yes	Yes aven (Conn.) Journal	M	891,008	312,967*	35.13*	.....	.....	.....	....	186,000	4.8	....	7	No	No	No
ondon (Conn.) Day	MS	655,256	591,010	.098	.....	.....	.....	4.0	30,000	21.7	....	18	No	No	Yes rleans (La.) Times-Picayune	MS	5,602,046	452,702*	9.0*	581,310	29,123*	5.0	9½.0	425,000	13.0	1.3	5½	Yes	No	No tates	ES	1,223,459	41,938†	.....	68,828	12,901†	.....	....	425,000	2.64	....	....	Yes	Yes	No
ochelle (N. Y.) Standard-Star	E	655,606	38,066*	2.0	104,093	.....	.....	3.0	47,046	13.7	....	....	No	No	Yes ork (N. Y.) Herald Tribune	MS	1,810,636	219,676*	13.6*	258,368	.....	.....	7.0	5,924,000	0.30	....	5½	No	No	...
Telegram	E	3,003,962	117,730*	4.0*	644,051	.....	.....	4.6	5,924,000	0.52	0.109	5½	Yes	Yes	Yes imes	MS	6,163,791	331,931	6.0*	974,150	11,536†	1.0*	6.0	5,924,000	1.04	0.16	5½	No	No	No
Falls (N. Y.) Gazette	E	832,863	11,460*	1.4*	126,144	9,976*	8½.*	6.6	67,348	12.3	1.8	5¼	No	No	No
(Nebr.) News	E	293,566	18,522*	6.2*	40,016	3,326*	9.0*	7.0	12,005	24.0	17.0	30	No	No	Yes wn (Pa.) Register	E	423,280	.....	86.*	.....	.....	.....	....	38,000	11.0	....	6	No	No	No
imes Herald	E	646,694	9,636*	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	38,000	17.0	....	14	No	No	No
(Cal.) Tribune	ES	5,523,952	64,764†	.011	612,879	28,417	.044	9.0	330,000[1]	19.7	1.8	72	Yes	Yes	Yes
(Pa.) Derrick	M	160,891	17,413*	12.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	23,000	7.0	....	10	Yes	Yes	No
N. Y.) Times	E	562,044	6,236*	1.0*	43,195	5,903*	13.6*	5.0	24,633	22.8	1.7	6	No	No	No
City (Ore.) Enterprise	M	343,070	59,528	21.0	.....	.....	.....	....	6,000	57.1	....	8	No	No	No
(Fla.) Reporter-Star	ES	850,010	317,772*	55.0*	166,017	62,670*	60.0*	5.12	31,478	27.0	5.27	14	No	No	No
(Cal.) Mercury	E	201,600	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	6,000	34.0	....	14	No	No	No
(N. Y.) Palladium Times	E	207,160	51,240*	30.0*	24,996	5,161*	.....	11.0	24,000	8.5	1.05	6	No	No	No
a (Ia.) Courier	E	431,298	85,218*	24.62*	.....	.....	.....	....	27,365	14.0	....	12	No	No	Yes
(Mich.) Argus-Press	E	197,446	37,039*	22.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	15,000	13.0	....	12	No	No	No
(Ky.) News-Democrat	MS	320,376	18,646†	5.5†	.....	.....	.....	....	30,000	10.7	....	.....	.....	.....	Yes un	E	443,282	4,413½†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	28,800	15.3	....	24[5]	No	No	No
o (Cal.) Times	E	690,333	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	10,500	66.6	....	14	No	No	Yes urg (W. Va.) News	MS	417,536	41,986†	9.0†	6,520	398*	6½*	66.0	27,000	16.0	0.25	10	No	No	No (Loss due to type change in September—8-12 to 6-10pt.)
(Cal.) Star-News	E	2,525,922	285,264†	11.0†	.....	.....	.....	4.0	80,000	31.0	8.0	12	Yes	No	No
(N. J.) Daily News	E	843,180	84,107†	10.0†	112,872	9,731	9.0†	4.0	70,000	12.0	1.6	6	No	No	Yes
(N. J.) Press-Guardian
nday Chronicle	ES	1,703,790	93,203*	5.0*	116,875	991	.....	14.0	149,000	11.5	....	6	No	No	Yes
a (Fla.) News	E	309,540	49,126†	15.0†	23,475	.....	.....	4.0	37,000	8.0	2.0	10	No	No	Yes
urnal	MS	645,106	10,668†	2.0†	161,277	.....	.....	4.0	37,000	17.0	4.0	10	No	No	Yes
rg (Va.) Progress-Index	ES	326,956	108,654*	.....	35,631	7,537	.....	....	9,018	36.2	3.9	12	No	No	No
hia (Pa.) Public Ledger	MS	3,650,478	159,921*	4.5*	272,546	29,003*	11.9*	13.4	2,000,000	1.3	0.14	5½	No	Yes	Rules
(Ariz.) Republican	MS	2,009,392	124,362	6.3*	255,929	19,948*	8.4*	8.0	52,000	38.5	5.	12	No	No	Yes ron (Mich.) Times-Herald	E	405,909	43,311*	14.0*	58,057	12,790*	28.0*	7.0	36,202	11.0	1.6	5½	No	No	Yes
(Ore.) Journal	ES	2,543,970	218,725	7.8*	362,867	.....	.....	7.4	355,781	7.8	1.0	12[5]	No	No	No
(Pa.) Republican	ES	360,458	.....	22.0*	.....	.....	.....	3.0	26,000	13.4	....	6	No	No	Yes an.) Tribune	E	165,494	82,556	11.4*	.....	.....	.....	....	5,036	32.8	....	14	No	No	No
(Ind.) Democrat	E	227,911	3,231	.....	.....	804	.....	4.	11,227	20.3	....	24	No	No	Yes ce (R. I.) Journal	MS	2,947,880	115,602†	3.0†	536,856	34,829†	6.0	5.	267,918	11.0	2.0	5½	No	No	Yes
Wis.) Journal-News	E	728,672	29,176*	4.0	88,684	7,818*	9.0	8.0	70,000	10.0	10.0	30	No	No	Yes
mes-Call	E	630,420	54,082*	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	70,326	8.9	....	24	No	No	Yes
(N. C.) Times	E	302,092	71,988†	19.2†	.....	.....	.....	....	35,000	83.0	....	6	No	No	No ews & Observer	MS	570,808	7,966*	.....	.....	.....	1.4	....	33,000	17.0	....	6	No	No	Yes
ity (S. D.) Journal	E	187,366	47,230*	25.0*	.....	.....	.....	8.0	7,940	23.7	....	12	No	No	Yes
(Pa.) Eagle	ES	1,899,636	54,618*	.....	239,201	3,905	.....	....	115,000	16.5	2.08	7	No	No	.... ev.) Gazette	E	345,002	47,502*	16.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	15,000	23.0	....	6	No	No	Yes
l (Cal.) Independent	E	151,200	.....	20.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	25,000	6.0	....	..	No	Yes	Yes
(Cal.) Daily Press	E	1,020,642	51,632*	.053*	.....	.....	.....	....	31,000	32.9	....	14	....	No	Yes
(N. Y.) Democrat & Chronicle	MS	6,195,117	38,355*	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	321,000	19.0	....	6	No	No	Yes
(Ill.) Republic	E	728,560	199,156*	27.33*	42,456	6,339*	14.9*	17.1	87,206	8.3	0.4	36	Yes	Yes	Yes
l (S. C.) Herald	E	74,774	15,576†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	15,000[1]	4.9	....	....	....	Yes	No
. Y.) Sentinel	E	414,284	5,020*	.012*	.....	.....	.....	12.0	32,000	12.0	....	10	No	No	No
(Ind.) Republican	E	105,518	.....	....	.....	.....	.....	....	6,000	17.5	....	..	No	No	Yes
(Vt.) Herald	M	219,100	131,040	....	.....	.....	.....	....	25,000	8.7	....	6	No	No	No
l (Minn.) Journal-Press	E	211,974	6,468†	.3	26,497	4,709†	1.5	8.0	25,000	8.5	1.0	20	No	No	Yes bury (Vt.) Caledonian Record	E	100,394	147†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	8,701	11.5	....	8	No	No	Yes
h (Mich.) Herald-Press	E	240,296	33,252*	15.5*	23,816	1,094	4.0	7.0	10,500[1]	23.0	2.0	11	No	Yes	No
ph (Mo.) News-Press	E	763,924	23,926*	3.2*	.....	.....	.....	....	85,000	8.98	....	48	Yes	Yes	No
(Mo.) Post-Dispatch	ES	4,959,920	153,440	3.2	910,788	43,450	5.0	2.7	830,000	5.0	1.09	..	....	....	....
bbe-Democrat	MS	3,178,086	115,911†	.0351†	472,314	3,879†	.0081†	6.73	821,544	3.86	0.575	24	No	No	Yes
(Minn.) Dispatch Pioneer-Press	MS	2,254,812	35,882*	1.62*	416,315	1,674*	40.0*	5.42	281,000	8.02	1.48	72	Yes	Yes	Yes
(Mich.) News-Courier	ES	1,023,620	46,670*	4.7*	141,467	16,842*	13.5*	7.0	72,000	14.0	1.9	5½	No	No	No
City (Utah) Telegram	ES	905,632	31,304*	2.79*	.....	.....	.....	....	147,000	6.07	....	5½	No	No	Yes
ibune	MS	2,556,344	193,438*	8.19*	409,606	5,868†	1.41†	6.24	147,000	17.39	2.78	5½	No	....	Yes
ardino (Cal.) Sun	MS	858,802	50,554†	.0556†	131,628	3,720*	.029*	6.52	36,000	23.9	3.66	10	No	No	Yes
o (Cal.) Sun	E	1,951,516	176,540*	9.9	197,827	6,349*	3.5	9.9	150,000	15.0	1¼.0	48	Yes	No	Yes
bune	E	2,288,118	909,412*	61.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	150,000	15.0	....	....	No	No	Yes
ion	MS	4,586,260	852,726*	22.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	150,000	30.0	....	5½	No	No	Yes

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING 1926 RECORDS OF 330 NEWSPAPERS

KEY—*Gain; †Loss; [1] Chamber of Commerce or other Local Authority; [2] Audit Bureau of Circulations figure; [3] U. S. Census Estimate of July 1, 1926; [4] State Census, 1926; [5] Outline type; M—Morning; E—Evening; S—Sunday.

CITY AND PAPER	Issued	1926 Classified Advertising in Agate Lines	Gain or Loss Against 1925	Per Cent. of Gain or Loss Against 1925	Number of Advertisements in 1926	Gain or Loss in Number of Advertisements Against 1925	Per Cent. of Gain or Loss Against 1925 in Number of Advertisements	Average Number Lines Per Advertisement	Population Estimated Jan. 1, 1927 (U. S. Census Estimate July, 1926)	Average Number of Lines Per Capita	Average Number Advertisements Per Capita	Largest Type Permitted in Classified Columns	Can Column Rules Be Broken?	Are Cuts Permitted in Classified Columns?
Sandusky (O.) Star-Journal	E	467,977	99,938†	21.0	.....	.....	.....	....	24,000	19.4	....	36	Yes	Yes
San Francisco (Cal.) Chronicle	MS	2,410,282	109,215†	4.33	382,982	29,616†	7.18	6.3	708,000	3.4	.675	60	Yes	No
Examiner	MS	6,118,035	47,864†	7.8	994,088	5,145*	5.2	6.15	708,000	8.6	1.41	30	Yes	No
San Jose (Cal.) Mercury Herald	MS	1,757,868	59,822*	3.5*	.....	.....	.....	....	43,000	4.8	....	6	No	No
Santa Ana (Cal.) Register	E	1,404,368	44,940*	3.3*	.....	.....	.....	....	30,000	48.6	....	24	Yes	No
Santa Rosa (Cal.) Press Democrat	M	738,206	44,436*	6.5*	.....	.....	.....	....	14,500	51.0	....	14	No	No
Scranton (Pa.) Times	E	864,101	47,957†	5.4*	134,920	8,761†	6½	....	150,000	5.7	....	5½	No	No
Seattle (Wash.) Post-Intelligencer	M	1,972,008	407,712*	26.06	220,385	38,000*	20.84	8.9	403,000	5.0	....	24	Yes	Yes
Sharon (Pa.) Herald	E	908,040	221,060*	32.0	49,422	8,374*	21.0	18.0	28,869	32.0	2.0	8	Yes	Yes
Sheboygan (Wis.) Press	E	355,348	48,706*	.137*	35,874	.....	.....	3.0	39,114	9	1	30	No	No
Sioux Falls (S. D.) Argus-Leader	E	546,431	47,152*	9.5*	67,000	.....	.....	82.0	30,145	18.12	2.22	48[5]	No	No
South Bend (Ind.) Tribune	ES	1,504,289	40,927*	0.2*	133,951	5,361†	.....	11.0	103,250	14.0	1.3	5½	No	No
Southbridge (Mass.) News	E	126,000	.....	....	1,445	.....	.....	8.0	15,533	8.0	....	10	No	Yes
South Norwalk (Conn.) Sentinel	E	248,500	48,482*	18.0*	49,000	9,896	18.0	5.0	36,000	7.0	1.36	7	No	No
Spokane (Wash.) Spokane Press	E	586,544	3,066*	.005*	.....	.....	.....	....	109,000	5.38	....	14	Yes	No
Spokesman-Review	MS	2,391,956	32,564*	.0138*	378,264	4,792*	.0128*	6.3	109,000	21.9	3.4	5½	No	No
Springfield (Mo.) Leader	ES	1,033,928	83,202	8.004*	167,214*	6,465	3.81*	6.13	58,000	17.8	2.9	6	No	No
Stockton (Cal.) Record	E	969,206	.....	.....	129,920	.....	.....	7.46	56,414[1]	17.0	2.0	12[5]	Yes	Yes
Sunbury (Pa.) Daily	E	195,000	15,620*	8.0*	15,132*	908	6.0*	15.0	18,000	10.8	1.0	6	No	No
Item	E	186,492	4,598*	2.5*	.....	.....	.....	5.0	18,000	13.6	....	6	No	No
Superior (Wis.) Telegram	E	659,397	175,543*	40.0*	28,692	.....	.....	3.0	43,000	16.6	.6	36[5]	No	No
Tacoma (Wash.) Ledger	MS	1,512,376	185,376	11.0	152,361	12,678	8.0	9.0	130,000	14.2	1.½	48	Yes	Yes
News Tribune	E	2,140,908	68,810*	.03214	.....	.....	.....	....	106,000	20.19	....	....	Yes	Yes
Terre Haute (Ind.) Star	MS	945,149	7,371*	.0078*	.....	.....	.....	....	70,000	10.60	....	36	Yes	Yes
Tribune	ES	956,760	66,220*	7.4*	.....	.....	.....	....	70,000	13.66	....	....	Yes	Yes
Terrell (Tex.) Tribune	E	218,400	24,024*	11.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	8,349	26.0	....	8	No	No
Toledo (O.) News-Bee	E	2,194,220	78,634*	3.5*	342,062	662†	.002†	6.0	303,995	7.0	1.0	42	Yes	Yes
Topeka (Kas.) Capital	MS	1,582,434	23,527	1.5*	224,751	2,444	1.0	7.0	55,000	28.8	4.0	48	Yes	Yes
Troy (N. Y.) Record	M	501,131	20,476*	.039†	85,591	8,754†	.009†	5.8	118,141	4.2	.072	12	No	No
Tucson (Ariz.) Citizen	ES	726,040	12,502†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	35,000	3.0	....	...	No	Yes
Union City (N. J.) Hudson Dispatch	M	731,794	146,379*	25.0*	115,161	23,032*	25.0*	6.0	70,000	14.0	1.75	5½	No	No
Vancouver (Wash.) Columbian	E	329,105	24,080*	8.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	16,000	20.5	....	6	No	No
Vinton (Iowa) Cedar Valley Times	E	259,000	26,400	.113	.....	.....	.....	....	4,000	6.4	....	8	No	Yes
Walla Walla (Wash.) Bulletin	MS	489,454	119,266*	32.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	17,000	28.7	....	7	No	No
Warsaw (Ind.) Union	E	86,800	.....	10.0*	8,000	.....	.....	4.0	6,000	14.4	1.33	8	No	No
Washington Court House (O.) Herald	E	117,656	8,988†	7.0†	.....	.....	.....	....	7,962	15.0	....	12	Yes	Yes
Washington (D. C.) Post	MS	1,626,887	121,184*	8.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	528,000	3.0	....	24	Yes	Yes
Star	ES	5,741,738	327,981*	6.1*	.....	.....	.....	....	528,000	10.0	....	10	Yes	Yes
Waterbury (Conn.) Republican & American	MS	1,451,660	8,470*	0.6*	147,843	11,251	7.0	9.8	116,366	12.4	1.2	5½	No	No
Watertown (N. Y.) Standard	E	395,066	167,398†	42.0†	.....	.....	.....	....	33,396	11.0	....	48	Yes	Yes
Waukegan (Ill.) Sun	E	470,694	22,596*	5.0*	39,659	872*	2.25*	12.0	25,000	18.80	1.50	8	No	No
Wausau (Wis.) Record-Herald	E	416,542	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	22,062	18.0	....	14	No	No
Waynesboro (Pa.) Record-Herald	E	215,250	.....	.....	19,540	1,542	.08	11.0	10,000	22½.0	2.0	6	No	No
West Chester (Pa.) Local News	E	941,871	72,146*	.076*	59,628	1,487*	.025*	16.0	11,800	80.0	5.0	....	Yes	Yes
Wichita (Kas.) Eagle	MS	2,485,707	265,482*	12.0*	407,623	7,355*	1.8*	6.1	96,000	25.9	4.2	36	Yes	Yes
White Plains (N. Y.) Reporter	E	1,121,400	389,942*	53.3*	.....	.....	.....	....	28,121	39.0	....	7	No	No
Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) Times-Leader	E	723,450	28,964*	.04*	.....	.....	.....	5.0	93,000	7.7	....	10	No	No
Winchester (Va.) Evening Star	E	10,316	.....	10.*	.....	.....	.....	3.0	10,000	1.0	....	8	No	No
Woonsocket (R. I.) Call	E	302,624	2,324†	7.5†	.....	.....	.....	....	49,681	6.0	....	18	No	Yes
Worcester (Mass.) Evening Post	E	809,315	11,502†	1.40†	101,763*	3,607*	31.67*	7.95	195,000	4.15	0.52	5½	No	No
Yakima (Wash.) Republic	E	609,182	92,456*	18.0*	70,701	10,628*	3.67*	8.6	23,000	26.5	3.0	6	No	No
Herald	M	562,198	80,038*	16.6*	58,719	7,227*	14.0*	9.6	23,000	24.4	2.5	6	No	No
Yonkers (N. Y.) Herald	E	1,087,114	.....	5.0*	134,177	.....	7.5*	8.0	120,000	9.0	1.01	6	No	No
Youngstown (O.) Telegram	E	1,772,385	129,489	8.0*	162,146	21,026	13.0*	11.0	150,000	12.0	1.0	24.0	Yes	Yes
RECORDS OF CANADIAN NEWSPAPERS
Charlottetown (P. E. I.) Guardian	M	72,301	2,359†	3.26†	8,251	1,027	11.72	4.0	88,000	.821	.0938	8	Yes	No
Chatham (Ont.) Daily News	E	232,092	80,850*	77.0*	6,548	1,133*	21.0	....	14,118	16.5	....	24	No	No
Edmonton (Albt.) Bulletin	E	727,860	.....	246.0*	83,400	.....	225.0*	8.4	65,000	11.11	.77	36[5]	No	No
Journal	E	1,402,015	101,501*	7.2*	20,137	621†	3.08†	....	65,000	21.5	.3	36[6]	No	No
Guelph (Ont.) Mercury	E	294,943	3,550	1.0†	.....	.....	.....	....	19,500	15.0	....	7	No	No
Hamilton (Ont.) Spectator	E	1,185,780	49,896*	.043*	.....	.....	.....	....	120,000	9.8	....	....	Yes	No
Kitchener (Ont.) Record	E	456,064	‡2,000†	½.0†	.....	.....	.....	....	27,000	17.0	....	7	No	No
	(‡Loss due to setting ads. in smaller type.)
Lethbridge (Albt.) Herald	E	297,091	31,549*	10.6*	5,748	560*	9.8*	6.5	11,500	25.8	0.5	36	No	Yes
Montreal (Que.) Star	E	2,324,353	108.518*	4.0*	380,911	21,062*	6.0*	6.1	935,000	2.4	0.4	10	No	No
Nelson (B. C.) News	M	227,241	119,999†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	6,000	37.8	....	18	No	No
Oshawa (Ont.) Reformer	E	374,402	162,190*	76.04*	.....	.....	.....	....	20,000	18.72	....	8	No	No
Port Arthur (Ont.) News Chronicle	E	335,274	57,221†	14.5†	34,485	3,340†	8.0†	9.7	14,886	22.5	2.4	8	No	No
Quebec (Que.) L'Evenement	M	505,510	.....	8.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	135,000	3.7	....	6	No	No
St. Catherines (Ont.) Standard	E	337,778	11,159*	.034*	.....	.....	.....	4.0	23,198	10.5	....	6	No	Yes
St. Thomas (Ont.) Times-Journal	E	267,456	44,904*	20.0*	36,933	6,795*	22.5*	6.0	20,000	11.5	1.75	6	No	No
Sherbrooke (Que.) La Tribune	E	100,776	.....	.....	10,796	.....	.....	10.0	25,025	4.02	0.431	8	No	No
Stratford (Ont.) Beacon-Herald	E	235,845	52,612*	29.0*	20,771	6,635	47.0	....	18,700	13.0	1.1	6	No	No
Toronto (Ont.) Globe	M	1,179,363	65,879*	5.09*	143,233	3,148†	2.15†	8.23	650,055	1.08	0.202	18	No	No
Star	E	2,316,020	15,190†	0.06†	330,817	32,094†	8.8†	7.0	650,055	3.05	0.5	20	No	No
Telegram	E	4,137,811	175,922†	4.8†	647,515	.....	.....	....	650,055	6.3	0.99	5½	No	No
Vancouver (B. C.) Province	ES	3,181,048	453,568*	16.63*	.....	.....	.....	....	278,752	11.3	....	5½	No	No
Sun	..	1,327,718	135,520†	9.0†	.....	.....	.....	....	263,302	5.5	....	18	No	No
Victoria (B. C.) Colonist	M	1,475,040	134,994*	9.0	.....	.....	.....	....	38,727	38.1	....	6	No	No
Times	E	621,866	.....	8.9	.....	.....	.....	....	38,727	16.0	....	5½	No	No
NEWSPAPERS SHOWING TOTALS FOR 12 OR 13 ISSUES A WEEK
Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker Press & News	MES	3,229,447	199,147*	.063	572,085	42,356*	.076*	5.7	125,000	25	4.57	10	No	No
Baltimore (Md.) Sun	MES	6,106,772	293,796	5.0	794,961	92,601*	10.0	8.0	819,000	7.46	1.0	72	No	No
Blackwell (Okla.) News & Tribune	MES	237,552	44,996*	18.0	42,420	8,035	18.0	3.0	16,200	14.0	2.61	10	No	No
Boston (Mass.) Globe	MES	4,501,350	49,192†	0.01†	576,540	4,206	.....	7.7	1,900,000[2]	2.4	0.32	....	Yes	Yes
Casper (Wyo.) Herald-Tribune	MES	257,810	25,256†	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	25,129[1]	10.2	....	30	Yes	Yes
Danville (Va.) Register-Bee	MES	214,074	11,130†	.052†	.....	.....	.....	....	26,278	8 1/7	....	12	No	No
Evansville (Ind.) Courier-Journal	MES	1,011,720	113,220*	12.0*	112,760	4,420*	4.0*	9.0	93,601	11.0	1.20	6	No	No
Joplin (Mo.) Globe & News-Herald	MES	781,546	18,878*	0.24*	92,636	892*	.0096	8.0	38,000	20.6	2.4	36	Yes	Yes
Kansas City (Mo.) Star	MES	7,660,677	385,291*	5.0*	158,697	32,262*	2.0*	4.8	438,000	17.4	3.6	30	No	No
Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer News-Journal & Sunday News	MES	1,222,389	106,231†	.087†	106,250	8,906†	.084†	11.5	58,000	21.1	1.8	6	No	Yes
Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal & Times	MES	2,794,453	99,822*	3.7	336,622	19,619*	6.0	8.0	311,000	9.0	1.1	24	No	No
New Bedford (Mass.) Standard & Mercury	MES	523,208	160,496†	23.47†	73,756	21,145	22.38	7.0	125,000	4 1/6	.1/6	6	No	No
Omaha (Nebr.) World-Herald	MES	2,738,482	39,202†	1.4†	407,150	8,596†	.02	6.7	213,000	12.8	1.9	5½	No	No
Peoria (Ill.) Journal-Transcript	MES	1,826,986	73,010*	.041*	215,272	18,875*	.095*	8.9	90,000	20.3	2.4	6	No	No
Spartanburg (S. C.) Herald & Journal	MES	642,620	69,124*	12.0*	41,278	1,842*	4.5	....	31,693	20.2	....	14	Yes	No
Staunton (Va.) News-Leader	MES	194,172	40,780*	27.0*	.....	.....	.....	6.0	12,500	15.5	....	8	Yes	No
Trenton (N. J.) Times	MES	2,214,244	254,864*	12.0*	.....	.....	.....	5.0	134,000	6.0	....	14	No	No
Washington (Pa.) Observer & Reporter	MES	600,000	.....	10.0*	.....	.....	.....	....	30,000	20.0	....	6	No	No
Worcester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette	MES	3,082,100	8,752*	.0028*	569,603	35,924*	6.4	5.4	204,290	15.0	2.7	72	Yes	Yes
Regina (Sask.) Leader-Post	MES	1,104,899	.....	6.2*	.....	.....	.....	....	45,000	24.5	....	48	No	No
Winnipeg (Man.) Free Press & Bulletin	ME	3,020,244	282,410*	11.0*	.....	.....	.....	6.0	191,356	15.0	....	36[5]	No	No

Uncle Sam Knows

that The Detroit News made the greatest circulation gains of all Detroit papers for the 6 months, ending April 1, 1927.

The statement of The Detroit News to the United States Post Office on April first shows it with an average of 353,989 Sunday circulation and 320,970 weekday circulation, a gain over the previous six months of 24,754 Sundays and 9,138 weekdays. No other Detroit newspaper equalled this increase in circulation.

From its founding in 1873 The Detroit News has been a circulation leader in Michigan, and it is today. And from its founding it has been the home newspaper.

The character of Detroit News circulation and its ability to cover 90% of the English reading homes of its market give the advertiser an opportunity to sell the whole field with most impressive copy through the use of one medium. That is why Detroit is known in advertising circles as a one paper city, while The News leads all other newspapers in America in advertising patronage.

Average Net Paid Circulation for 6 Months Ending April 1st

Sundays 353,989

Weekdays 320,970

The Detroit News

The HOME newspaper

Greatest Circulation Weekdays or Sundays in Michigan

WHAT OF NEWSPAPERS IN THIS RADIO AGE?

Milton Garges, A. P. Official, Believes Nothing Can Kill Newspaper Reading Habit, But Predicts M Marvels of Wireless Transmission, and, Maybe, a "Home-Printed Newspaper"

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

"ANY man who attempts in this day and age to say that anything is impossible is taking on a very large contract."

Milton Garges, executive assistant on the headquarters staff of the Associated Press, who made this remark the other day, was certain at least that nothing was impossible in the future neld of communications. And there are very few people who have stood closer to the changing history of communications in this country during the last half century than has Mr. Garges.

When Mr. Garges first became an A. P. telegraph operator forty years ago, he transcribed the dots and dashes into longhand, using a stylus on flimsy. The fastest sender did not tick off more than 30 words a minute. Then the Phillips code came into general use and this speed jumped to 50 and 60. Now an increasing number of newspaper offices are equipped with high-speed printer machines, capable of typing out stories automatically at 120 words a minute.

"What lies ahead for newspaper communications?", Mr. Garges repeated the question asked him.

"I believe much of the future will hinge upon telephotography by radio and land wire. We haven't scratched the surface of radio yet. Yet we are much further advanced in radio today than we were with the linotype in 1890.

"Just a step away from us today is the radio-operated printer machine. Experiments which we and others have carried on have demonstrated beyond question that this development is feasible. The reason why we in this office have not continued our experiments is because we have concluded that the Associated Press is not in the communications business.

"But we are preparing for the wireless printer innovation when it comes. We are gradually extending the use of automatic printers, and eventually all our circuits will be so equipped.

"The next scheduled advance in radio is set for the first of July, when the Marconi beam system is put into operation between London and New York.

"There are those who are stating that the dot and dash will soon go out of style. A combination of the beam system and the principle of photographic transmission by wireless is promised, creating a new method of facsimile transmission.

"The new method will traverse the Marconi beam across the Atlantic as the exact reproduction of the page on which the message was written. A typewritten or printed page will be filed in London and will be flashed in its entirety to New York, word for word and line for line.

"For some time only minor difficulties have stood in the way of sending whole pages of newspapers from one continent to the other. A week or so ago it was revealed that the Marconi Company and the Radio Corporation of America, which hold the patent rights on the facsimile transmission system, are expecting to install the service between different countries. It is thought that the first service will be between London and New York, just as the first wireless telephone and wireless sending of pictures was installed between the English capital and New York.

"The beam system in itself and not in combination with wireless photography is one of the marvels of present day communications. When we think that 200 words a minute are being sent as a regular service daily between London and Australia now by this method, we may all wonder that greater speed can ever be attained.

"Engineers are steadily at work solving radio problems. One problem remaining to be solved is that of the 'skip-distance' in short wave transmission. The wave bands between 200 metres and 600 metres are those used for general broadcasting. That leaves the bands from one to 200 metres not being widely used. The reason why these bands are not being used now is because of the fact that senders using the short wave frequently carry to great distances with ease, but at the same time cannot be heard a short distance away.

"The Associated Press is also preparing to take up telephoto when the commercial company exploiting this invention increases its present installation. I confidently believe that the day is not far distant when every newspaper office will be equipped with its own telephoto machine. By employing what is called wired wireless and the carrier system it will be possible for a press association to use the same wire at the same time to send the text of a story and the picture to illustrate it."

Naturally the Associated Press is not making known all its plans for the possible utilization of telephoto. It is a decision for the newspaper members themselves to make. If there is a sufficient demand on the part of the members for a daily service of pictures by wire, they can and will get that service from the Associated Press. That much has been made known.

Nor is the A. P. disclosing all its plans for the possible tie-up with telegravure, the remarkable invention of Arthur S. Ford, announced in a recent issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER, an invention whereby pictures are set up on linotype machines as easily as text is set to day.

The A. P. had long conversations with Mr. Ford. For a while officials considered the purchasing of an exclusive option on the invention. Such purchase, however, was later denied.

If, however, the picture alphabet devised by Mr. Ford for sending pictures on Morkrum printer machines, is made into linotype matrices as expected and good results are obtainable, the Associated Press will arrange a service to members for sending coded pictures with the big news stories of each day.

In addition to these communications developments mentioned by Mr. Garges as belonging to the immediate future,, there is television, but the Associated Press official was content to let newspaper men use their own imaginations in visioning the future uses that can be made of this newest great invention.

With all these projected changes in communications, Mr. Garges believes that nothing will come to take the place of the newspaper—not for a long time, anyway. But newspaper publishing may be entirely revolutionized, he believes.

One peep into the imagined future Mr. Garges described the "home printed newspaper."

Is it so very far ahead to the time when a subscription to a newspaper will mean a monthly or yearly payment for installation of a machine in the home, just as we pay our telephone bills today?

That is a question Mr. Garges asks, hesitating to be too assertive lest he be regarded as a foolish visionary.

But into what tossing channels of imagination that question leads!

It seems a fact that it will soon be impossible to increase any further the speed of news transmission from point to point. If there is to be any greater speed of newspaper publishing, will it not come about through the extinction of the dinosaur-like press-room and the ungainly distribution centipede of today?

Inventors even now say it is not impossible for a central broadcasting station to broadcast news to be picked up and printed in the homes on automatic printing machines. Why should carrier boys trudge streets when electricity may do the job more efficiently?

Will there not come great refinements in the automatic printers? The time may come when during the night a radio machine working silently in the living room downstairs will receive, put in type, bind and fold and lay on the center table the morning newspaper for Dad to pick up and read, much to Mother's disgust, at the breakfast table.

Newspapers will continue in name. There will always be differing viewpoints to express, differing tastes to cater to. Certainly centuries will be required to kill the reading habit, if it can be killed.

But instead of pressrooms and delivery rooms, newspapers will be equipped with a radio receiving and broadcastin tion. The news service will wire the foreign news and the editor arrange it with the local news order in which they want it set the home printed newspaper. Th sational paper will continue to spe on murders. They may have bigge on their automatic printers in the The tabloids will be first to set best pictures by radio to be prin the living rooms of their readers

Duties of the future circulatic partment will be to maintain the printing machines; to keep them i order; to see that they do not run paper or ink; to collect the monthly and to run promotion stunts to prove to the people of the town th printer machine operated by their is the latest and best.

Advertising departments will much easier than they do today t vince the advertisers that their go into the home.

But it need not be all home circu Stands may be equipped with the matic printer for the convenience future subway, or will it be a commuters.

The basic invention which will this revolutionary development pos already here. As stated before, matic printers are now easily opera wireless, and Mr. Garges recalle Donald Murray, a British inventc dressing the Institute of Electric gineering in London in 1925, pr the establishment of a system of s printers operated in the same man the telephone exchange with hoi stallations. The British post offic Garges said, took the proposal se and is investigating its possibilitie

Mr. Garges repeated his first tion. "Nothing is impossible."

There assuredly is food in the set one dreaming. The change have come about in the lifetime Garges, for instance.

Mr. Garges reviewed some of changes, reminiscencing about days ed in press association history, wh himself has experienced, and exp the A. P. communications policy.

For EDITOR & PUBLISHER, he pr an "Outline of Modern Communi History," published in this issue first time.

Mr. Garges is now doing specia for the Associated Press with th of executive assistant. He wa moted to this new position early in ary from the post of traffic supe dent. Mr. Garges began his caree the Associated Press in March, 1 telegraph operator in St. Paul, After 12 years at the key, he was ferred to the news department, r ing as St. Paul correspondent unti Then he was assigned to the tra partment in Chicago, becoming th divisional traffic chief in 1912. I he came to New York as acting chief, while Kent Cooper, the general manager, than holding the post, was in South America. H made traffic superintendent in 192

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE
Executive Editor, New York World

THE Associated Press means to me accuracy, speed and comprehensiveness in news reports, especially when the reports deal with tangibles, such as accidents, murders, conventions, battles and such occurrences. To any news man the A. P. means a sense of comfort, for it is not often beaten. I do not ask for brilliancy in the A. P. service; I do not seek color in its reports. In fact, in those papers maintaining special staffage in important centres, these qualities, advantageous in other reporters, become a drawback in A. P. men, but that opinion is based upon specialized needs and probably is not general.

I respect the A. P. for its honesty. I admire the A. P. for its decency. I have an affection for the A. P. for the part it plays each day in helping us here at The World in our effort to get out a good paper.

I have occasionally disagreed with the A. P. but always it has been an honest disagreement in which my criticism ran against errors of the head, not of the heart.

I rather expect to continue to find myself, now and then, in disagreement with the institution, for in argument lies improvement, and if you have complete agreement you are apt to have complete inertia.

OREGON DAILY INCORPORA

The Morning Astorian, which h published for many years at Astori has filed articles of incorporation incorporators are: J. S. Dellinger trude S. Dellinger and M. Hubler.

NOYES AND DIRECTORS H

Y. Iwanaga, managing direct Nippon Shimbun Rengo, the Ass Press of Japan, and J. F. B. Li general manager of the Canadian were honor guests April 22 at a given by Frank B. Noyes presid the Associated Press, and the bo directors, in New York. About 2 present.

The New York Times six months' gain greatest—23,525 copies

THE NEW YORK TIMES, first in quality of circulation, made a greater gain in net paid sale in the six months' period ended March 31, 1927, compared with the six months ended September 30, 1926, than any other standard sized New York newspaper, morning or evening.

This latest six months' period showed strongly the increasing preference of intelligent, thinking readers for The Times in New York City and suburbs.

CIRCULATION OF NEW YORK MORNING NEWSPAPERS OF STANDARD SIZE—AVERAGE DAILY AND SUNDAY

	Six months ended March 31, 1927
The New York Times	414,990
Second newspaper	343,247
Third newspaper	336,280
Fourth newspaper	300,610

The increased net paid sale of The New York Times is the most important circulation trend in the newspaper quality field.

The New York Times.

First in Advertising Volume and Character in the First Market.

"DATA ERA" HAS SWELLED NATIONAL LINAGE

Growth in Advertising Volume Has Paralleled Development of Local Market Information Upon Whi Advertisers Can Base Selling Drives, Ad Bureau Director Declares

By WILLIAM A. THOMSON
Director, Bureau of Advertising, A. N. P. A.

MARKET information and newspaper national advertising have "grown up" together.

Fourteen years ago, when we organized the Bureau of Advertising, there was an annual investment of about $50,000,000 in newspaper national advertising and market data was a new term used chiefly to ornament advertising conversation. The latter statement will not seem so strange when you remember those were the days of circulation wars—before the coming of the A. B. C. Well I remember the unction with which I wrote a page ad for the newspaper employing me in 1912 offering to pay $5,000 to any charity provided one of our competitors would prove it was not a circulation liar!

Last year, newspapers printed about $235,000,000 worth of national advertising, topping all previous records. This vast volume has grown steadily year by year with few interruptions and its development has gone hand in hand with the evolution of merchandising research as we know it today.

The Bureau of Advertising voiced a belief early in its career that newspaper advertising would grow as newspapers were able to interpret their medium to advertisers in terms of sales opportunities. Advertising on "general principles" was all very well when there were only a few hundred advertisers in the field. But competition and the steadily rising cost of doing business forced advertisers to aim at well-defined goals through their advertising and to look for equally tangible results.

The magazine field was quicker to meet the new order of things—the coming of the "data era"—than was the newspaper industry. This was to be expected for many reasons, chief among which was self protection. Magazine circulation needed interpretation from two standpoints in the light of matters which began to concern analytical advertisers. First, where did the circulation go? What coverage of desired markets did it promise? As a result each successful magazine organization today has a well-equipped research department turning out exhaustive studies of the market location and the buying power of its readers.

With a number of notable exceptions, newspapers looked askance at the earlier demands of advertisers for information. This also was to be expected since the newspaper was essentially a local medium, deriving comparatively little of its revenue from the national field and somewhat obviously covering a well defined territory.

The reasonableness of audited circulations was accepted with comparative promptness. That matter being cleared up by the A. B. C. and the time-destroying battles over circulation claims having been removed from the field, many newspapers balked at further service for advertisers. One reason for this was the inability of many advertisers to tell newspapers just what they wanted. The word "co-operation" came into general use among advertisers who wanted something from publishers but were not just sure what. Therefore many of them asked everything they could think of from listing the grocers in the city to writing letters of endorsement of new products at the expense of better established ones. At any gathering of newspaper men, the quickest way to start a hot debate was to mention the word "co-operation." Miles of speeches and special articles were written about it in vain endeavors to define what the advertiser should expect and the publisher should give. The final answer usually was, "You'll have to figure it out for yourself."

While "co-operation" is still discussed and is not yet fully defined, advertisers have come a long way toward knowing what they want in the way of information and newspapers have made similar strides in accepting the idea and meeting it with valuable data.

The feeling that a newspaper has something more to offer the advertiser than advertising space, that, from the standpoint of the advertiser, it covers a market as well as a certain number of readers, has been rather generally accepted. Many newspapers have met the advertiser more than half way by establishing service departments and by breaking down the field covered by their circulation into data upon which the advertiser can readily base a selling campaign. In virtually every trading territory information of this kind is available through newspaper sources. As the need for this kind of co-operation has grown and as the knowledge that it is available has been brought before advertisers, newspapers have built on a solid foundation the great structure of national business which makes our medium the leader in that field just as it always has been the leader in the local field.

William A. Thomson

The Bureau of Advertising has never attempted to interfere with the policies of individual newspapers in this matter of furnishing market information. It has long since recognized, however, the importance of such service to the newspaper as well as to the national advertiser and its own energies have been directed toward studies that will help make newspaper advertising pay. With the aid of its members it has undertaken many national or sectional surveys of industries and laid the findings impartially before advertisers.

These surveys have paid the newspapers many times over and we have had constant evidence to that effect. I remember one occasion after the automobile tire industry had gone through a severe shake-up we were asked to "count the unsold tires" in the possession of dealers throughout the country. An inquiry by telegraph followed and within a brief period we had data upon which several tire companies were willing to release schedules of newspaper advertising, finding indubitable evidence that it was time to resume active operations after the slump.

Advertising owes much of the serious consideration which has been given to it by economists to this growing habit of advertising men of interpreting their mediums through market information.

The Government has caught the spirit of the times in advertising and through the Department of Commerce is doing valuable work to further the present day desire for facts. The recent "Atlas of Wholesale Grocery Territories," published by the Domestic Commerce Division of the Department of Commerce, is a notable contribution to modern studies. The purpose of this atlas is best defined by the following excerpt from the introduction to the volume:

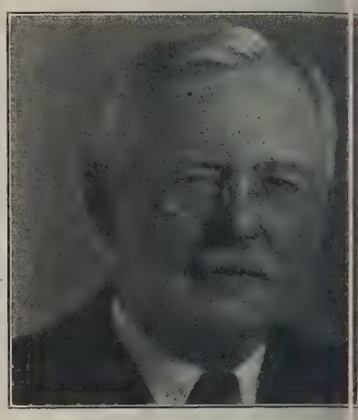
"The Atlas is an attempt to define the trading areas of the more important centers of wholesale grocery distribution and to measure approximately the potentialities of these markets on the basis of the number of retail grocery outlets and the population served. State lines, as matter of convenience, have served in the past to set apart particular sections for commercial research. This convenience has come primarily from habitual of Federal census data from which legal prescriptions have been collected and compiled by political divisions. There is left to the student of distribution a choice between a comparatively small number of arbitrary State divisions and the extremely large number of county divisions.

"The physical features, lakes, rivers, and mountains, which were early accepted as convenient State boundaries, have exerted a far-reaching influence on the commercial map of the country. The inland water routes which played such a large part in opening up the West at an early date dictated the location of the present railway centers, with the result that many of the major distribution points today are actually situated on the State boundaries serving advantageously portions of two or more States.

"Moving from this consideration the present study has been planned to replace the arbitrary State divisions with commercial units based on the size of the various distribution centers, particular trade practices, and transportation facilities."

In the foreword to this volume, Julius Klein, Director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce says:

"It was further found that there exists, at least in the Northeastern States, a high degree of correlation between the wholesale territories and newspaper circulation."



The National Distribution Conference held at Washington in its report of Committee III, made the following statement:

"One obvious type of waste is that which arises from a lack of accurate and complete information or from the exercise of poor judgment, with respect to markets. Such waste results from unduly aggressive selling of advertising, inadequate study of markets, and imperfect co-ordination of advertising with other selling activities. Waste of this kind probably never will be entirely eliminated but as knowledge of the markets and media improves it can be expected to decrease."

It is evident that the growth of newspaper advertising will continue to parallel the development of market data. The business of advertising has stepped in long and rapid strides during the past decade. Not so long ago, advertising men were asserting that advertising would never be an exact "science", it was a matter of "selling blue-sky." However far advertising may have gone in the direction of scientific principals, one thing is certain—the modern application of successful advertising rests on ascertainable facts. "How to advertise" may remain something of a matter of opinion. But the question "where to advertise" is, more and more, determined by figures. That is why the many factors in advertising that are devoting s ous effort to market study are becom increasingly vital.

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By Walter S. Dickey
Editor Kansas City Journal-Post

Walter S. Dickey

MANIFEST value of Associated P membership lies in the reliabilit news gathered and disseminated an the apparent good intent in reporting tional and foreign news without colo bias. This is made possible not only cause of the extensive and efficient ganization which has been built u past and present managements, but very largely because of the unquestio character, integrity and reputation of men instrumental in building the org zation and those who have acted and acting as directors.

The keynote of the Associated Pre universally known to be "Truth," and same high standard most noticeabl the men who have accepted servic directors should be jealously guarded continued in the future, particularly the board is vested with such ge powers.

PUNCH WINS DAMAGES

Court Assesses Heavy Damages o Rire, Paris, for Reproductions

(Special to EDITOR & PUBLISHER

LONDON, April 9.—The famous Br humorous weekly Punch has success sued Le Rire, of Paris, for reprod drawings in Punch, and has awarded 5,000 francs damages, plus francs damages to each artist w drawings have been reproduced in Rire, in addition to a fine of 50 f for each reproduction.

Punch recently requested Le Rir cease making these reproductions o grounds that they were so small they did not do justice to the artists Rire continued to reproduce the draw and when the case was heard in on March 30, pleaded the right of tistic quotation," but it was success argued for Punch that such right applied to anthologies, scientific w and books of reference. Punch bro the case primarily to affirm the ciple.

ADVERTISING BILL SIGNED

Governor Brewster of Maine rec signed the bill appropriating $50,0 year for the next two years for M publicity. The money will be handl a newly created Maine Develop Commission, and will be spent in n papers and magazines, and for boo according to present plans.

FORKED ROADS, SIGNS AND POSTS

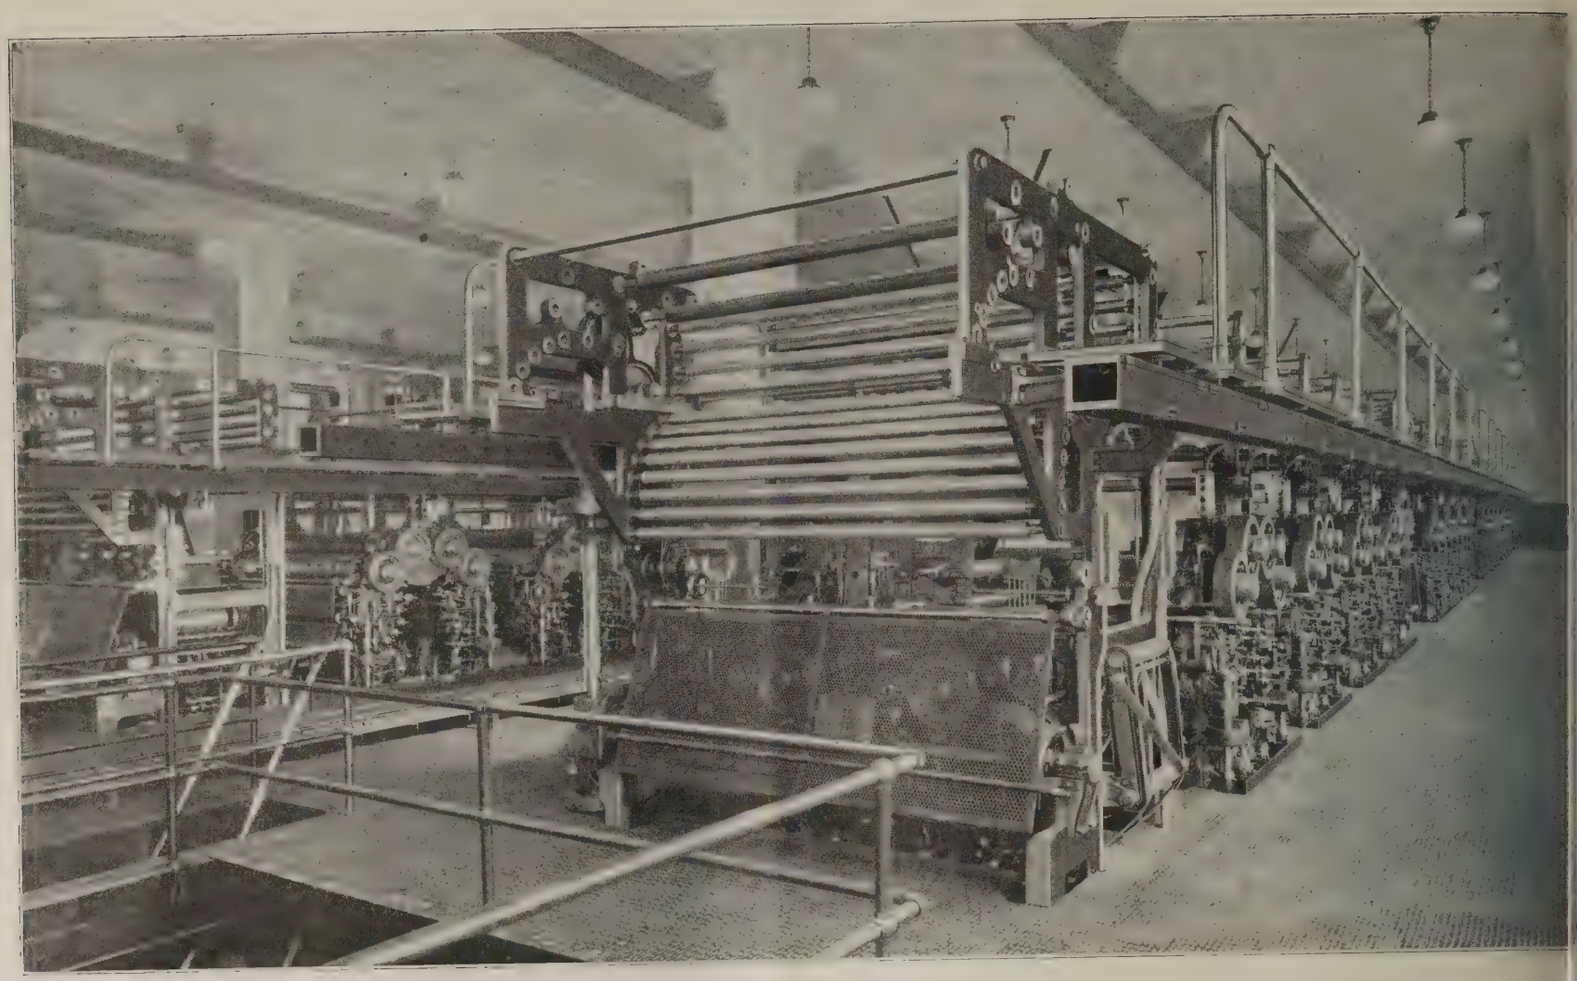
However you travel, whatever your goal, you usually choose the shortest route to your destination.

In following this route, you watch for the road markers, the signs and the posts that silently guide the way.

It is the same with judicious advertisers who are headed for the top in Buffalo . . . following the path of THE BUFFALO TIMES, the quickest route, plainly marked and no detours.

Local advertisers use the speediest route and have heavily marked the path of THE TIMES with the signs of their choice . . . a preference that is consistent, year upon year.

It is the National Advertiser who comes upon forked roads but if he wisely follows the trail of the local merchant he will avoid unnecessary delay.



THE BUFFALO TIMES

Evening over 116,000

BUFFALO, N. Y.

Sunday over 135,000

VERREE & CONKLIN, Inc.
National Representatives
NEW YORK—CHICAGO—DETROIT—SAN FRANCISCO

A close-up of GOSS PRESSES in the new $2,250,000 Brooklyn plant of THE NEWS which undoubtedly will be a mecca for visiting publishers.

The News New Yorks Picture Newspaper now sells more than a million copies every day —and every copy is printed by Goss High Speed Low Construction Press Units and folded by Goss Folders

GOSS

Choice of Successful Publishers Everywhere

A vista of the GOSS PRESSES n the new $2,250,000 Brooklyn plant of THE NEWS. Visitors will obtain this view from operating balcony.

New Brooklyn Plant has 30 Goss Press Units

More than half a million copies of THE NEWS now are printed each day in the new Brooklyn plant, by 30 Goss High Speed Low Construction Press Units equipped with ten pairs of Goss Imperial Folders. Foundations are ready for 15 more press units. The remainder of the "more than a million copies" come from the New York City plant, with its 24 Goss High Speed Low Construction Press Units and 8 pairs of Goss Imperial Folders.

HE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.

Main Office and Factories, CHICAGO, ILL.

NEW YORK OFFICE
220 West Forty-Second St.

SAN FRANCISCO OFFICE
646 Call Building

The Goss Printing Press Company of England, Ltd., London
Messrs. Edwards Dunlop Company, Ltd., Sydney, Sole Agent for Australia

GOSS
STRAIGHT LINE
GOSS HIGH SPEED

Choice of Successful Publishers Everywhere

STIRRING SCENES AT A. N. P. A. WAR MEETING

Urgent Pleas of Allies for Money and Men Heard by Publishers in Spring of 1917—Burton Suggeste War Spirit in Advertising—Newsprint Rates Chief Business Topic

By ARTHUR ROBB

MANY curious currents of emotion found their vortex in the Waldorf-Astoria ten years ago when the newspaper editors and publishers of the nation assembled in New York for their 1917 conventions.

War had just been declared upon Germany.

The selective draft was a question tossed in every direction by the waves of tradition, prejudice and propaganda.

Censorship of the press was being considered and advocated by many in high military places as a necessary war measure.

Print paper had taken the first stages of the price ascension that was to carry it to fabulous heights three years later.

The question of government advertising in newspapers had just been brought to the top by the announcement of the first Liberty Loan, and aggressive spokesmen of newspaper advertising gave indignant interviews of the strength of the report that Secretary McAdoo had decided that the government could not use paid newspaper space.

The first of the Allied Generals and civil leaders had just arrived in New York, and their brilliant uniforms and rank on rank of colored ribbons added their touch to surroundings already resplendent with the banners of the Allied Nations. The newspaper publishers were among the first to receive the desperate plea of the Allies for money and for food, but most of all for men on the western front, and to these meetings may be traced America's first general realization that Uncle Sam was going to fight with more personal weapons than the pocketbook.

The publishers apparently were ready for such a message, for Frank B. Noyes, presiding at the Associated Press luncheon, opened his annual address by exclaiming:

"Thank God the long restraint of neutrality is at an end. For years we have not been able to express that which was tearing at our hearts. The time has come to tell just what we feel and the red blood of America demands that we not only speak, but act."

Similar sentiments were expressed with even more force by the speakers at the annual luncheon—Joseph H. Choate and Judge Peter S. Grosscup, and the Board of Directors in executive session had adopted resolutions that "in the crisis now confronting the country, it is not inappropriate to say that it will be the purpose of the Associated Press to bear in mind at all times that the responsibility we have as citizens must overshadow any responsibility as newsgatherers, and that it is both our privilege and our duty to contribute as fully as we have power to the aid of the national authorities in the trying hours before us." Major Gen. Leonard Wood, in full field uniform, sat at the right of Melville E. Stone, the central figure at the long guest table. President Wilson, in a telegram to Mr. Stone, expressed regrets that the pressing duties of a war-time President prevented his attendance at the luncheon.

War was the predominant topic also at the second informal function of the week—the annual luncheon of the Bureau of Advertising of the A. N. P. A., at which Pomeroy Burton, whose achievements for the British Empire as managing director of Northcliffe's London Daily Mail were later to win a knighthood for him, described Great Britain's many uses of advertising to promote the conduct of the war. His prescriptions for America's budding war spirit may be of interest even through the haze of a decade:

"Advertisers now have it in their power to create an immense amount of patriotic sentiment. They should ask all of their clients to devote 10 per cent of their contract space to strictly war purposes. In the war space thus surrendered by advertisers should be printed day after day and week after week patriotic appeals to the people calculated to stimulate their war spirit and increase their war-usefulness. In addition to this, advertisers should be induced to write their copy in a patriotic strain, making the war spirit, so far as possible, run through all their advertisements. For instance:

"HIS MASTER'S VOICE"
Is the Call of Uncle Sam

BEECHNUT BACON
Tastes Best in the Trenches and in the Mess Room

Ammunition and Food on
KELLY TRUCKS
Will Always Reach Their Destination

On Every Battlefield, Every Ship
PRESTOLITE
Batteries Hold Their Grip

"In other words, keep the war spirit there first, last and all the time; put patriotic injunctions and war-reminders on the wrappers, the boxes, the cardboard cases, and all the rest of the sidelines which reach the public—this, in addition to the main channels of newspaper advertising."

Mr. Burton went on to outline how this form of Anglo-Saxon experience could be applied to every branch of the country's war endeavor and may possibly therefore bear some of the blame for the queer forms that schrecklichheit later assumed on the North American front. Many of the ideas he voiced at this luncheon later became part of the war advertising program of the United States.

The annual banquet of the A. N. P. A., which died peacefully shortly after the Volstead law became effective, was a function in 1917 which sent the warm blood of youth coursing through the veins of gray-headed newspaper men as they heard spokesmen for the Allies narrate the poignant needs of their nations for all the help of every kind that America could give—money, food, guns, shell, but most of all, men. The speakers were James W. Gerard, who had just returned from a more or less turbulent career as Ambassador at Berlin; Major Gen. Leonard Wood; Mayor Mitchel; Major Gen. G. T. M. Bridges, of the British Mission, who represented Arthur Balfour before the publishers, and Irvin Cobb, whose wit, delivered long after midnight had struck, somewhat relieved the high tension created by the kindling addresses of the previous speakers. Job Hedges was toastmaster, receiving the gavel from Hopewell L. Rogers, then business manager of the Chicago Daily News, and ending his first term as president of the A. N. P. A.

Business sessions of the A. N. P. A. were occupied largely with impassioned discussions of the rising price of newsprint paper. A year previously several paper manufacturers had been indicted for conspiracy to limit competition, and the Federal Trade Commission, under the leadership of the late W. B. Colver, a new commissioner, had summarily ordered that the price of newsprint paper be reduced to $50 a ton. In the previous two years it had advanced from $38 or $40 to $60 to $70, and the price basis had been arbitrarily changed by the manufacturers from sidewalk delivery to f. o. b. mill.

A. G. McIntyre, retained as the special representative of the paper committee, presented a long report with a variety of charts proving to the satisfaction of publishers that newsprint paper could be manufactured for a much lower price than that indicated by the contract rat to newspapers. Debate was warm ov whether the Association should appro the grant by Congress to the Fede Trade Commission of the right to newsprint prices, Col. R. R. McCormic of the Chicago Tribune, holding th such a grant in Canada had stopped t building of paper mills, "destroyed t freedom of government and the freedc of the press."

The most interesting side-product the paper discussion was adoption of resolution proposed by Gen. Felix Ang then publisher of the Baltimore Americ and Star, to the effect that "no da newspaper should be sold for less th two cents a copy."

President Rogers in an interview w EDITOR & PUBLISHER following his election, issued a warning which in t light of events was prophetic:

"Speaking as a newspaper publish my advice to the members of my pr fession is, Go home with the wc ECONOMY written at the top of yc schedule. If you have forced econom in the past, redouble your efforts nc Take no chances in the face of this estimable peril. Act now!

"An analogy, even if faint in compa son, may be drawn between present pr pects and those which the A. N. P. foresaw and warned members of a y ago as regards white paper. The wa ing went out clearly enough. I wo say that less than one in ten publish at once heeded it. It was not until high price struck them personally-t many were aroused.

"The fact that the present attenda at the A. N. P. A. annual meeting within three of the total membership the A. N. P. A. a year ago shows h thoroughly the publishers have been pressed and how great is the movem to consolidate in this body for the prot tion of all.

"We may all like to believe that next year will not seriously discomm us, but what we must assume is that are to be torn by a terrible war, with of the suffering and ruin that war ent and prepare accordingly."

In the fourth annual report of the reau of Advertising, Director William Thomson set forth that the amount national advertising in daily newspa had increased $20,000,000 during the y 1916, bringing the total national vol for the year in newspapers to $75,000, or a 50 per cent increase during the t years of the Bureau's operations. magazine gain for the year 1916, it pointed out with an air of restrained umph, had been only $9,000,000. The look for 1917, on the basis of gen gains during the first three months, declared to be excellent.

Free publicity was a subject of gen discussion at the A. N. P. A. meet the prevailing opinion apparently b that almost all of the press agents taken to selling bonds, driving trucks even farming—at any rate, everybod a position to know believed that gra of newspaper space for products should be advertised was thorou absolutely, quite dead. There's a tho for today!

"TO MAKE THE WORLD SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY."
(Cartoon reproduced from EDITOR & PUBLISHER convention number ten years ago)

NEWSPRINT IMPORTS INCREA

During the first two months of 22,523 tons of newsprint were imp from Europe as against 16,000 tons ing the same period in 1926, accor to Department of Commerce rep During February, European im amounted to 8,547 tons.

TYPE FOUNDERS PROFIT

For the six months ended Feb. 28 net profit of the American Type F ders Company is estimated at $62 after all charges and taxes, as comp with $610,000 in the corresponding pe last year.

A Record Unsurpassed

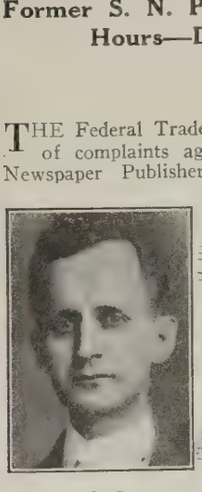
	Years Represented by E. Katz Special Advertising Agency
Hutchinson News-Herald	29
Erie Times	27
Joplin Globe & News-Herald	27
Jacksonville Journal	26
Lexington Leader	26
Oklahoma City Oklahoman & Times	24
Ansonia Sentinel	23
Cheyenne Tribune & Leader	16
Shreveport Journal	16
Montreal La Patrie	14
Huntington Advertiser	10
Ardmore Ardmoreite	10
Wichita Falls Times	9
Asheville Citizen	9
Colorado Springs Gazette & Telegraph	7
Butte Post	7
Massillon Independent	7
Okmulgee Times & Democrat	7
Wichita Beacon	5
Coffeyville Journal	5
Paducah News-Democrat	5
Durham Herald	5
Bluefield Telegraph & Sunset News	5
Honolulu Advertiser	4
St. Joseph Gazette	4
Ashland Independent	3
Reading Times	3
Sterling Advocate	3
Pensacola Journal & News	3
Arkansas City Traveler	3
El Dorado Times	3
Emporia Gazette	3
Parsons Sun	2
Salina Journal	2
Blackwell Tribune & News	2
Pittsburg Sun	2
West Palm Beach Times	2
Ottawa Herald	2
Monroe News-Star	2
Manhattan Chronicle-Mercury	10 months
Lima Star	10 "
Fort Smith Journal	8 "
Independence Reporter	7 "

From any of these publishers you can get the reasons for this record.
At our own offices you can ascertain our business-getting methods.

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

Publishers' Representatives



58 WEST 40th STREET (between 5th & 6th Avenues) NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK	DETROIT	KANSAS CITY
CHICAGO	ATLANTA	SAN FRANCISCO

ADJOURN TRADE COMMISSION HEARING FOLLOWING W. C. JOHNSON'S TESTIMONY

Former S. N. P. A. President on Stand Five and One-Half Hours—Denies Any Agreement Made Between Publishers and Agencies

THE Federal Trade Commission hearing of complaints against the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association and other organizations closed in Chattanooga, Friday, April 15, with testimony of Walter C. Johnson.

WALTER C. JOHNSON

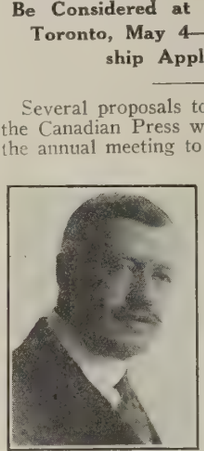
Adjournment was decided upon following an agreement that the proposed Chicago hearing would not follow the Chattanooga hearing because of the close proximity of the Associated Press and A. N. P. A. meetings in New York. Examiner John W. Addison, representing the Federal Trade Commission adjourned the hearing with the understanding there would probably not be any held during the summer months. It was also the general impression that attorneys for the Federal Trade Commission will close their case with another hearing in New York after which the defendants will introduce their testimony.

It was the concensus among the publishers represented that their case was in very satisfactory shape.

Following a recess all day Thursday, April 14, Walter C. Johnson, general manager of Chattanooga (Tenn.) News, former president and secretary of the S. N. P. A., was on stand Friday for five and a half hours. He not only testified as a former officer of the S. N. P. A., but as a publisher of a newspaper. He stated emphatically there was no conspiracy between the S. N. P. A. and other organizations or between independent publishers and members of the advertising agency organization.

Mr. Johnson's long connection with the S. N. P. A. and his familarity with the subject, combined with the fact he had been in direct touch with local and national advertising enabled him to bring out a number of things not introduced.

There was a great deal of correspondence introduced in the hearing that passed between Mr. Johnson, and members of the S. N. P. A. and with executive officers of other publishers' associations, as well as advertising agents.



Mr. Johnson brought out the fact that he had grown up in the newspaper business and displayed keen knowledge not only of the relations between the publishers, advertisers, and agents, but even back to the early days of advertising agents and special representatives, pointing out that a much improved standard prevailed today.

Throughout the hearing the position was maintained by the defense than an advertising agency does not buy space any cheaper than the advertiser does, that the publisher will sell his space at the same rate to the advertiser whether he orders direct or through an agent. It was pointed out that the agent gets a commission for a valuable and important service rendered to the advertiser as well as to the publisher, and that somebody has to pay him for that service. The publisher does it because it is to his advantage to have the advertiser be more effective and successful. The publishers further contended that both the advertiser and the publisher get a service from the agent.

CANADIAN PRESS MAY CHANGE BY-LAWS

Several Proposals to Amend Rules to Be Considered at Annual Meet in Toronto, May 4—Two Membership Applications

Several proposals to amend by-laws of the Canadian Press will be considered at the annual meeting to be held in Toronto at the King Edward Hotel, May 4.

J. H. WOODS

The proposals concern regulations regarding membership in the association, which is a co-operative news organization similar to the Associated Press, and a change in the section safeguarding the news report, stipulating that members should not furnish news to any other press association.

The Hamilton (Ont.) Herald, an evening number, has applied for a morning membership. The Charlottetown (P. E. I.) Evening Patriot, has applied for resumption of its membership. The convention will act on these applications.

J. F. B. Livesay, who is secretary and general manager of the Canadian Press, attended the meeting of the Associated Press board of directors in New York this week. J. H. Woods, managing director of the Calgary (Alta.) Herald, is president of the association.

Other officers are E. H. Macklin, president and general manager of the Winnipeg (Man.) Free Press, honorary president; John Scott, managing editor of the Montreal (Que.) Gazette, first vice-president; F. B. Ellis, president and editor of the St. John (N. B.) Globe, second vice-president.

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Editor Boston Herald

WITH photographic accuracy, and with the skill of the talented picture-maker, the Associated Press brings to us each day a recital of the events of the world, not only among the seats of the mighty, but in the broad highway of the world's multitude. It is an impressive service which this great news-gathering organization, co-operatively maintained, performs for the newspapers of America, and as an institution it is proving one of the triumphs of our remarkable age.

INDIANAPOLIS TRIBUNE PLANNED FOR JUNE

Equipment Ordered by Don O. Robert President, for 32-Page Six-Day Evening Paper

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 19.—Preliminary plans for the establishment of the Indianapolis Tribune were made public today after the city had been plastered for two months with posters proclaiming "Watch for the Indianapolis Tribune." The new paper, which will be a six-day evening daily, will begin publication between the 1st and 15th of June, according to Don O. Roberts, assistant city attorney and president of the company.

The new paper, according to Mr. Roberts, will have its plant in the Century building at the corner of Pennsylvania and Maryland streets. A complete line of new equipment has been contracted for, Mr. Roberts said, including one Hoe 32-page straight line press, 11 Linotypes three Monotypes and a full line of stereotyping and composing room equipment. Mr. Roberts said there will be at least three editions daily and perhaps four.

Other officers of the new Tribune Publishing Company are Benjamin Pigman vice-president and mechanical superintendent, formerly of the Indianapolis Times, and William C. Buser, secretary-treasurer, present city controller and brother-in-law of Mayor Duvall. Mr. Roberts refused to divulge the names of any of the staff outside Mr. Pigman

The Wichita Daily Eagle

ITA TO HAVE NEW

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

254,962

was the average net paid daily circulation of The Baltimore Sun (morning and evening issues) for the month of

March, 1927

The average net paid circulation of THE SUNDAY SUN per Sunday for the month of March, 1927, was 200,117.

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

Morning Evening Sunday

New England's Second Largest Market

Providence Payrolls

Payroll checks on Providence Clearing House banks during 1926 amounted to $134,651,000, an average of more than $11,220,000 per month. These figures are for Providence banks only and do not include branches in other cities. (Figures furnished by Brown Bureau of Business Research.) These figures do not include salaries or wages paid by individual check or direct from cash drawers.

Providence is the trading center of Rhode Island. Three-fourths of the State's population live within a fifteen-mile radius of this city.

The Providence Journal

and

The Evening Bulletin

with a combined circulation of more than 108,000 cover Providence thoroughly and go into the great majority of English speaking homes in the state. They offer advertisers adequate coverage of the prosperous Rhode Island market at a minimum cost.

Providence Journal Company

Providence, R. I.

Representatives

CHAS. H. EDDY COMPANY — Chicago New York Boston

R. J. BIDWELL COMPANY — Los Angeles San Francisco Seattle

Now, You Ask One!

1) What is the world's largest and greatest newspaper feature service?

2) What was the first agency to distribute these intelligence tests and make them a national fad?

3) What firm uses more dry mats than any other concern in the world?

4) What blanket service is the only one maintaining its own producing plants in New York, Cleveland and San Francisco?

5) What agency has scored nation-wide newspicture scoops on every championship prizefight in the last ten years?

6) What service furnishes an editor with everything he needs beyond local news and wire report?

7) Who issues eight comics by eight different artists in a four-page section at a cost below the usual comic section?

8) What was the first firm to offer "service beyond service" in local art and engraving for its clients?

9) What service has a fiction editor and a staff of top-notch writers to create special newspaper serials?

10) Who will be the old standby at the same old stand at the A. N. P. A. convention?

(For Answers, See Page 41)

"DON'T WASTE YOUR TIME WAITING FOR SKYSCRAPERS TO FALL"

This Is the Advice of the N. Y. Evening World's Funny Man—"They Are Weighted Down with Mortgages," He Tells Visiting Editors—Things Worth Watching

By BIDE DUDLEY

(Dramatic columnist, critic and humorist of the New York Evening World.)

THE editor of EDITOR & PUBLISHER has just phoned me with a request that I write a story about "Good Plays for Visiting Newspaper Men to see while in New York." He has said he wants it in a hurry, so here I sit before my old hop, skip and jump portable mill eager to get the tale written. But there's a bit of an obstacle in my path. Mrs. Dudley is in the next room insisting that Brownie, aged seven, and the very spit of his handsome dad, has a boil. While I, of course am not in any way responsible for the presence of the boil, I'll have to hurry through this job in order to see that said gathering on the neck is received and entertained with the hospitality for which the Dudleys have long been noted. So brace your feet, dear reader; I'm going to step on it.

BIDE DUDLEY

If I were a visiting newspaper man in New York, I believe I'd spend my evenings going to the theatres. The Metropolis, of course, has numerous high buildings, but it is a mere waste of time standing around to see if they're going to topple over. Most of them are erected on firm foundations and so weighted down with mortgages that they are in no danger of collapsing. So don't waste your time on them, boys.

Then I realize, too, that it is fun to linger on the busy streets until way into the night, counting the automobiles that pass. However, this sport palls even on a visitor after he has seen about 10,000 go by. Hence I cannot recommend autocounting as a source of any extraordinary amount of fun for the visitor in New York.

And now we come to the subject of fires. One may, of course, expect a reasonable number of blazes to go to, during a week or ten days here, but the firemen are so schooled in their work that frequently a flare-up is extinguished before the breathless visitor can get near it.

Of hold-ups and gang fights we have a few, but these simply cannot be relied on to occur at moments when visitors are near, and it is extremely difficult to have them pre-arranged because of the paucity of space in our public hospitals and morgues.

Looking the Ladies over on Fifth Avenue and Broadway is a genuine delight for lonely male newspaper visitors, but here of late the competition our flapper lanes have been up against, as regards other communities, has become so pronounced that, unless a visitor is from the depths of the backwoods, a shapely calf is apt to give him but scant thrill. Chinatown is good to see, of course, and I understand several real Chinamen are to be there during the visit of the newspaper men. But after all, what novelty is there in a view of a real Chinaman for a visitor who has traveled?

So, summing the situation all up, I am of the opinion that the theatres offer the greatest amount of enjoyment for the visiting journalists, with the speakeasies and night clubs to follow, in case a fellow feels like gazing on a radiant Guinan, or a fox-trotting revenue officer. And now, as to what to see—

Well, there is a snappy musical comedy, based on the subject of Prohibition and full of keen satire, up at the Cosmopolitan Theatre. When I wrote the book of this delightful piece I hit on the name of "Bye, Bye, Bonnie" and it stuck. I have no real object in mentioning this play, except possibly to give my visiting friends a chance to revel in enjoyment and to assist me in paying for the treatment of that visiting boil. So I won't say a thing about my own hit, "Bye, Bye, Bonnie."

Broadway which means the theatrical district—has numerous other musical pieces worth viewing. For instance, if one desires to gaze on rather a shapely feminine limb, or two, George White's "Scandals," or Earl Carroll's "Vanities" might satisfy the eye. True Mr. Carroll would not be present to welcome the visitor to "Vanities," but the box office man is a delightful host. Then, if one cared to walk with Ziegfeld into the realm of "glorified girls," "Rio Rita," at the Ziegfeld Theatre will serve the purpose. For plain tom-foolery I can recommend Leon Errol, in "Yours Truly," and for blonde beauty there is Mary Eaton, cavorting about in "Lucky." A happy evening may be spent, too, at the Imperial Theatre where "Oh Kay!" is the bill of fare.

If one desires a touch of "Irish eyes and song" let him speed to the Knickerbocker where Eddie Dowling is offering "Honeymoon Lane." For the futuristic in musical comedy, I recommend "Peggy-Ann," starring Helen Ford, after whom the famous flivver was named. (At least so her press agent tells me.) Two other good musical comedies are "Queen High" and "The Desert Song." At this writing I haven't seen "The Circus Princess" and "Hit the Deck," but they will be with us by the time this highly intellectual and more or less flooey article is printed. In the musical section, must be mentioned also, "Countess Maritza" and "Cherry Blossoms." They are Shubert productions, with good music well sung, as their special features.

The biggest dramatic hits in town are "Broadway" and "The Spider." The former is a melodrama of New York night club life, while the latter is a mystery play that fairly reeks with novelty. Another straight play that is very popular is "The Barker," the same being a tale of love and adventure under the circus tents. Two other plays that are of the "mystery" variety are "Fog" and "Wooden Kimono." Each is worthy of attention.

Leading in the heavy drama department is Nance O'Neill, in "Fog-Bound" Here we have the persecuted woman taking a good wham at her persecutor. Light comedy is well represented by Ethel Barrymore, in "The Constant Wife," "The Gossipy Sex," with Lynn Overman; "Two Girls Wanted," "Sinner," "Tommy" and "What Anne Brought Home."

There are other productions along the Great White Way that can be relied on to supply good entertainment. Alice Brady and Lionel Atwill, in a revival of "The Thief," for instance! These two highly competent players in anything would be worth going to see. Then there is that renowned satire, "Chicago," starring Francine Larrimore. It shows Chicago crime as it may be—I don't know; I've never met any of Chicago's gangster elite. Likewise, I must mention "Crime," a melodrama of New York's gangland. If you want to learn how to hold up a jewelry store without lost motion, see this one. Two musical shows I have overlooked—due to my anxiety about that boil, I presume—are "LeMaire's Affairs," a good revue with Charlotte Greenwood, Ted Lewis and Lester Allen, as principal players, and "Judy."

Lastly I mustn't forget to tell you that "The Squall" will show you some elementary love and that Jane Cowl, in "The Road to Rome," will demonstrate just how a hug from a swell looker can make a man toss a whole empire into the scrap heap.

There are other plays but I haven't seen them. Now and then, you see, I like to stay at my home, Instalment Villa, Bronxville, and play the ukelele and sing the evening away. Possibly you may get from this an idea that I, too, have neighbors who deserve all the awful noise I can give them. Possibly you won't understand; but, anyway, welcome dear friends, to Broadway! The plays begin at 8:30; the night clubs close at 3.

After that you will find the sandwich places flourishing. Have a good time and don't forget, please, that New York is a closed town.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America

Buffalo—a profitable Market for Advertisers

Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes

EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor and Publisher
KELLY-SMITH COMPANY
Representatives

Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia
Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Waterman Bldg. Boston

PARKER ESTATE $100,000

B. G. Parker, former editor and owner of the Gouverneur (N. Y.) Free Press, and prominent in the northern section of New York state, left real and personal property amounting to approximately $100,000 to his wife, it is revealed in an appraisal.

JUDGE OVERRULE CONTEMPT REQUEST

Refuses to Cite Denver Post Repor for Articles Forecasting Jail Sentence to Girl Claiming Astor Kinship

An attempt on the part of attorn for Edith Mildred Astor, who claims be an heiress to some of the New Y Astor millions, to have Ray Humphre special writer for the Denver Post, s to Jefferson county jail on a charge contempt of court failed in Golden, C Tuesday, April 12, when Judge Sam W. Johnson, district court judge, ru that a newspaper reporter had a right comment on a pending court trial might forecast the probable sentence be imposed on the defendant by court.

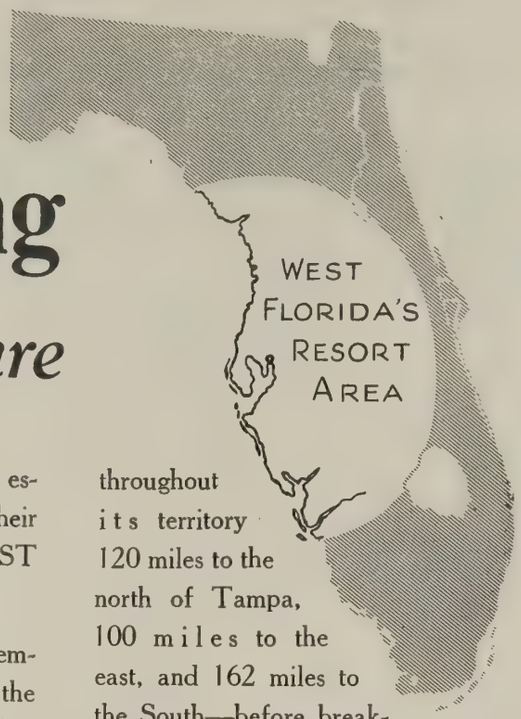
As an "heiress" to the Astor millio the blonde girl under arrest in Color for vagrancy growing out of a stabb affair has attracted wide press attenti Humphreys, assigned to the case fr the outset, wrote a series of page stories on the escapades of the g It was to these stories that girl's defense counsel took objecti claiming that the Denver Post wr was in contempt of court for forec ing a jail sentence for the "heiress."

The court, however, in denying contempt citation motion, declared t the freedom of the press was an est lished fact and that unless published ticles tended to threaten, ridicule or timidate the court they would not be terfered with.

DR. POLING NAMED EDITOR

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, well kno Cleveland, O., lecturer, once a candid for governor of Ohio on the prohibit ticket, has been elected editor in c of the Christian Herald, pioneer in national weekly. He is now in N York City.

SAMUEL P. WESTON



ROOM 2471/2 WALDORF-ASTORIA
DURING ASSOCIATED PRESS AND AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS ASSOCIATION MEETINGS

NEWSPAPER BUILDINGS
MECHANICAL LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

Suite 1202
120 West 42nd Street
New York

West Florida's Resort Advertising

Concerning Your Share

The Tampa Tribune blankets a wide section of Florida where 276 high-class resort hotels are catering to the desires of winter tourists of every degree. John Smith of Maquoketa, Iowa, plays down here in the winter-time, and so does Edward Bok of Philadelphia and Potter Palmer of Chicago.

More than 100 new hotels have been built within this area in the past 12 months in anticipation of the greater influx of winter visitors. Keen competition for patronage has resulted, with hostelries forced to depend upon advertising in northern and eastern newspapers to present their advantages to prospective winter patrons.

It is going to cost money to fill these hotels—and the hotel owners know it. They are prepared to make the 1927-28 advertising campaigns for their respective establishments the largest in their history—they realize IT MUST BE DONE.

Newspapers that sell themselves to the resort owners of the Tampa area will get the big shares of this advertising. And your paper can get its message across through the advertising columns of the Tampa Tribune.

The Tribune is predominant in west Florida—a metropolitan newspaper acknowledged respected and read. Our own delivery system puts 41,000 daily and 51,000 Sunday Tribunes in the hands of readers throughout its territory 120 miles to the north of Tampa, 100 miles to the east, and 162 miles to the South—before breakfast.

The supremacy of Tribune lineage in its field furnishes unassailable evidence of its pulling power. The Tribune will sell your paper to Florida hotel owners. Florida is buying advertising. Its resort appropriations are of vital importance in the national advertising field. If you want your share the Tribune can help you get it.

After all, there is no substitute for newspaper advertising in the sales promotion of newspaper lineage.

TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE

FIRST IN WEST FLORIDA

BURNS MANTLE GIVES "THE LOWDOWN" ON BROADWAY THEATER OFFERINGS

N. Y. Daily News Critic Picks Ten "Best" Plays Publishers Can See in Week's Stay—"Broadway" Tops the List

HELPFUL HINTS FOR THE VISITING FIREMEN

	THIS—	or THIS—
Monday night	"Broadway"	"Saturday's Children"
Tuesday matinee	"Circus Princess"	Circus Pictures
Tuesday night	"The Spider"	"Spread Eagle"
Wednesday matinee	"The Constant Wife"	"Peggy-Ann"
Wednesday night	"The Road to Rome"	"Chicago"
Thursday matinee	"Rio Rita"	"The Desert Song"
Thursday night	"The Barker"	"Her Cardboard Lover"
Friday night	"The Silver Cord"	"Yours Truly"
Saturday matinee	"The Cradle Song"	"Lucky"
Saturday night	"The Play's the Thing"	"Oh, Kay"

By BURNS MANTLE

(Dramatic Critic, New York Daily News)

TIME, money and seats being available, it is possible to see ten of the outstanding plays in the Broadway list in a single week's visit to what we editors jocularly refer to as this metropolis, or this theatre capital of the world.

But which ten? Aye, there's the rub! Whether it be better to suffer the stings and sorrows of another's taste, or, taking arms against it, see what the speculator suggests! To go or not to go, that's the big idea.

Being more or less professionally inured to this business of recommending plays, I don't mind it any more. At least not much. During my last 85 years of playgoing I have made up lists for many playgoers. I don't recall that any ever used them, but they were ever so glad to have them. Grateful no end, in fact.

"Thank you so much for your suggestions," they usually write, once they are home again and restored to a normal mental calm; "thank you so much for your very helpful suggestions. We were not able to see any of the plays, but it was so encouraging to know what to select if we had found the time. My sister's little boy was ill——"

"Or, my husband was suddenly called to Philadelphia——"

"Or, the afternoons were so taken up with one thing and another, shopping principally——"

"Or, we were so anxious to see certain pictures, and there was so little time——"

"Or, I did succeed in getting in one matinee, and a cousin of mine had recommended this play as being real good. You did not include it, but——"

It's quite all right with me. You may juggle my lists any way you like. Throw them right over there in that tin wastebasket with the French print pasted on it if you like.

But if it will help you any in making such selections as your time and inclinations warrant to know the plays current (this being the week ending April 23) which I probably would go to see again, having seen them once, if opportunity offered, here they are.

Not set down in the order of their merit, as the phrase goes, nor yet embracing all the current plays that might stand up under a second viewing, but selected generally as they might reasonably fit my time and mood had I an open week to give them.

But, first of all, let's get rid of father. When father comes to New York to a convention or a conference or just to see a man about something or other that may eventuate in case Russia does go Chinese, I find that usually he is not interested in the theatre at all until late afternoon.

By that time he is tired of standing up, tired of listening to long trade speeches for the good of the industry, usually beginning. "Stop me, if you've heard this one," and positively astigmatic from concentrating on baize stockings that he may be able to tell mother exactly what they ARE wearing on the avenue.

About this time father leans one way or the other, or doesn't, as the case may be, and says, "I'll tell you what let's do: Let's go see a good show. How about 'The Scandals?'"

The censor agitations, the awesome padlock bill that hangs, as the fellow said, suspended like the sword of Demosthenes over the producers' heads, has interfered somewhat with father's favorite entertainment. Two chorus girls are really known to have put their tights back on and one has simply swathed herself in chiffon.

The more or less strictly eye and ear entertainments, then, which will return the most for father's investment include:

George White's "Scandals."

Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

"The Ramblers," with Clark and McCullough.

"Yours Truly," with Leon Erroll.

"Queen High," with Frank McIntyre and Charles Ruggles.

"Lucky," with Paul Whiteman's band and Mary Eaton.

Rufus Le Maire's "Affairs."

The Messrs Shubert's "Circus Princess."

As well, of course, as those it may be somewhat politer and a little more grade A musical plays I have included in the family lists.

Of the plays named in all three lists the only one I have not seen is the "Circus Princess." I have included it in the first list because it is the only attraction I can find offering a Tuesday matinee. And, then, a Winter Garden visit is usually something to talk about.

I do not believe that any person honestly interested in the theatre can go far wrong on any of the plays named. Six of the first ten I have tentatively selected for inclusion in this year's dramatic annual, "The Best Plays of 1926-27," which may or may not interest you, and one of the second ten.

Burns Mantle

There are also interesting alternatives for those with a special interest in the theatre. Both Walter Hampden's Brownell ing play, "Caponsacchi," and Tom Cushing's amusing fantasy, "The Devil in the Cheese," have been named by Prof. William Lyon Phelps in his list of the season's best, and the Neighborhood players are giving a bill of lyric plays that are interesting if not exciting.

"Mr. Pim Passes By" has just been revived by the Theatre Guild at the Garrick, there is a nice little comedy about an adolescent boy called "Tommy" at the Eltinge, John Golden is proud of the record of another sweet and clean play "Two Girls Wanted," which, although patronized by the experts, is now in its 32d week at the Little Theatre, and the Irish are crazy about Eddie Dowling's "Honeymoon Lane" at the Knickerbocker.

Then there are the other plays of the Guild repertoire, which may or may not be scheduled for presentation—"Pygmalion," "Ned McCobb's Daughter" and "The Second Man." All worth seeing all splendidly staged and acted.

It is, as I said before, not as simple an assignment as it sounds to pick ten plays from a list of 60 and justify successfully their selection as the cream of the list. But as I also said, the idea is merely to be helpful and not snooty about it. I hope you like the show.

MARKET NEWS IN 8 POINT

Market news in eight point instead of the usual six point, is a plan recently adopted by the Dayton (O.) Herald.

EDITOR'S SISTER CAPTURED

Miss M. I. Craig, an American missionary, was reported captured on April 16 by Chinese bandits between Kweichow and Yuanfu. Miss Craig is a sister of William B. Craig, managing editor of the Philadelphia (Pa.) Bulletin.

The Shreveport Times
E JAIL GUARD ENGINEERED
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

HOWELL & THOMAS
3868 CARNEGIE AVE.,
CLEVELAND, OHIO,
ARCHITECTS AND
ENGINEERS OF NEWS PAPER PRODUCTION
PLANTS - - - - - -

CLEVELAND PRESS
PITTSBURGH PRESS
HOUSTON PRESS
ROCHESTER TIMES
UNION

An organization combining newspaper production engineering with experienced architectural training.

"Facts are stranger than fiction" and equally interesting.

Through its various features SCIENCE SERVICE brings readers real news from out the whole wide world of science. For science IS news and only through its many wonders does a nation, a profession, and industry progress. Our service brings you drama and romance for in each new invention and discovery is woven the "human interest" that ever intrigues.

Our Daily Science News Bulletin gives you front page copy, inside copy and editorial page copy. Nine other features include: Nature's Notebook, Science Shorts, Star Story Map, Illustrated Feature, Current Radio, Why The Weather, Isn't It Odd, Telegraphic Wire Service, Earthquake Wires. Kindly write or wire us for samples.

We shall be glad to submit any or all of our services to you and quote you prices.

Read them over—test them in your columns. You will be convinced of their distinctive value.

See the Science Service exhibits during the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. Hallie Jenkins will be in charge of the booth which is space number two, second floor corridor, Hotel Waldorf.

SCIENCE SERVICE
21st and B Sts. Washington, D. C.

BEG PARDON!

WE do not compete with the Memphis (Tenn.) Press-Scimitar—they are too far away geographically—but just to keep the record straight we want to fuss a little with their recently published claim of having the largest evening circulation in the South.—The Press-Scimitar momentarily forgot their geography.—THE BALTIMORE NEWS is published south of the Mason Dixon Line.—Baltimore is quite proud of its southern traditions.—THE BALTIMORE NEWS has the largest daily circulation, for one month or six, in Baltimore—OR IN THE SOUTH.—The six months' statement ending March 31st was 130,287.—The sworn statement for March, 137,695.

The Baltimore News

Rodney E. Boone, General Manager National Advertising

9 East 40th Street, New York

A. KOEHLER
9 Hearst Bldg.
Chicago

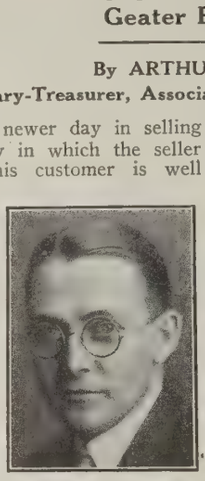
K. J. NIXON
82 Marietta St.
Atlanta, Ga.

F. S. PAYNE
Book Tower Bldg.
Detroit

L. F. BARNARD
5 Winthrop Square
Boston

F. M. Van GIESON
541 Monadnock Bldg.
San Francisco

FRED H. DRUEHL
136 St. Paul St.
Rochester, N. Y.



A. N. A. OFFICIAL URGES CO-OPERATION OF PUBLISHERS AND ADVERTISERS

Arthur Ogle, Secretary, Tells Attitude of His Organization Toward Newspaper Problems—Working for Geater Efficiency

By ARTHUR H. OGLE

Secretary-Treasurer, Association of National Advertisers

ALONG with a newer day in selling methods, a day in which the seller takes care that his customer is well pleased with his purchase and that it renders him full service for his expenditure, has come the newer day in advertising wherein the publisher is quite as concerned that the advertiser shall prosper by his advertising as that he, the publisher, shall profit through sale of the space in which the advertising appears. For after all, the interests of publishers and advertisers are fundamentally the same. As the advertiser prospers, the publisher prospers, and business is good for everyone.

ARTHUR OGLE

The newspaper's business first of all is to keep the public informed, but development of this mighty youngster called advertising in the last generation has somewhat changed the complexion of newspapers everywhere. From our own point of view we in the business of selling our products with the aid of advertising like to look upon newspapers as an arm of distribution, performing a function in our sales structure comparable to our direct selling and our indirect selling and every other form of sales promotional activity. Because we must look on them in this light for our own interest and prosperity, we constantly study methods of making them do their part of the job more effectively. We analyze territories, we chart potential sales, we appropriate advertising expenditures, and we study carefully and continuously the problem of making each advertising dollar do a little better job this year than it did in the years gone by.

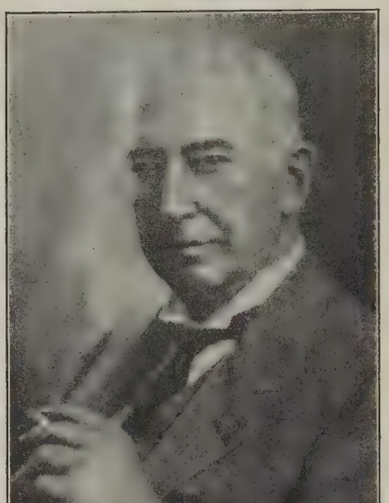
This is an age in which cooperation of related industries is playing an increasing part. So-called competitors in every line, whose interests are superficially opposed, join together in associations so that each may learn from the other something more about running his own business. The meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, to which this issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER is dedicated, is typical of this new-age tendency. This organization is a central body representing combined thought, effort, and opinion.

National advertisers, too, accomplish much by their association that no single advertiser could do alone. Through the medium of the Association of National Advertisers they gather and exchange information, and what is more important, they form a collective opinion based on collective knowledge and experience. Along with their collective ability, such organizations naturally have a vigorous collective power, but increasingly we are all learning that the greatest good can be accomplished when we are able to forget the threat of collective power, and think only of collective reasoning and collective opinion.

If, as we will all freely confess, we are interested in improving this important medium we call newspaper advertising, we must recognize its imperfections as we recognize the imperfections of every other medium. Some are obvious, and are taken in hand as they are recognized. Others, less apparent, are not always given the recognition they deserve. Sometimes we who see the advertiser's side of the picture most clearly, see imperfections in your medium that you who are interested primarily in publishing fail to see, just as you sometimes tell us where we are wrong in attempting to do a job a certain way in your community.

When we see them collectively—when a sufficient number of us see them to make the imperfection become an issue worthy of combined study by our organization, representing all the advertisers—then we are working just as much in the interest of you who are newspaper publishers as in our own interest when we bring them to you for reasonable adjustment, because we are working for more economical advertising.

To be specific, the Association of National Advertisers, on the basis of opinions expressed by its entire membership, has taken a definite stand on certain questions relating to newspaper advertising practices and policies. We believe very strongly in rigid typographical standards, and we are opposed to the indiscriminate use of heavy black type, borders, and illustrations which detract from the carefully designed advertising which many of us place in the newspapers. We learned you were in sympathy with our program, and we learned from you some of the difficulties you might experience in imposing the rigid standards immediately. We sensed the inadequacy of resolutions unless they were accompanied by the educational work necessary to convince all advertisers, local and national alike, that it would be to their own interest to comply with better standards of layout and typography. It is a very important subject to us, and we believe it is equally important to you, and we ask for your interest and assistance because we believe we have a common interest.

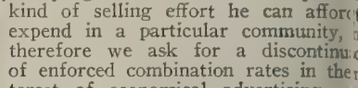


We believe in the maintenance of the 2 per cent cash discount on advertising space because we can see serious results to the entire advertising structure if is allowed to go by default. We b to you as publishers our combe opinion on this question, and endeavor to back it up with facts dr from experience.

We believe that national advert should be allowed to select their newspapers—they should not be coe into buying a paper they do not w to be permitted to buy one they do w We believe the advertiser himself is best judge of the amount of a partic kind of selling effort he can afford expend in a particular community, therefore we ask for a discontinu of enforced combination rates in the terest of economical advertising.

We justly insist on as great a centage of profitable circulation as can get, therefore we try to educate selves to scrutinize circulation more telligently, not for mere quantity al but to learn who it is, where it is, how it was secured. Assuredly we s meet no opposition in our insistence profitable circulation. But, you tell we are as much to blame for indisci inate mass circulation as you, bec many of us have set up mere quar as our criterion in judging circula

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME



By Calvin Cobb, Publisher
Boise (Idaho) Statesman

Calvin Cobb

THE Associated Press means to me the truth made attractive.

THE BOSTON HERAL

WAIT DEFENDS ON SACCO; FULL HIS FELLOW R

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

ATTENTION!

Publishers ....
Artists .....
Engravers ....
Advertisers ...
Photographers
Printers .....

SEE SPECIAL EXHIBIT of SHADING SHEETS

2nd Floor
WALDORF ASTORIA
Exhibit No. 4

New Effects Otherwise Impossible

Saves Time

Cuts Costs

Solves Benday Problems

JUST LIKE DRAWING AND AS EASY AS TRACING

PERMANENT EXHIBIT

Bourges Service, Inc.

Sole Manufacturer and Distributor of Bourges Improved Hutchinson Artists Shading Medium and Accessories

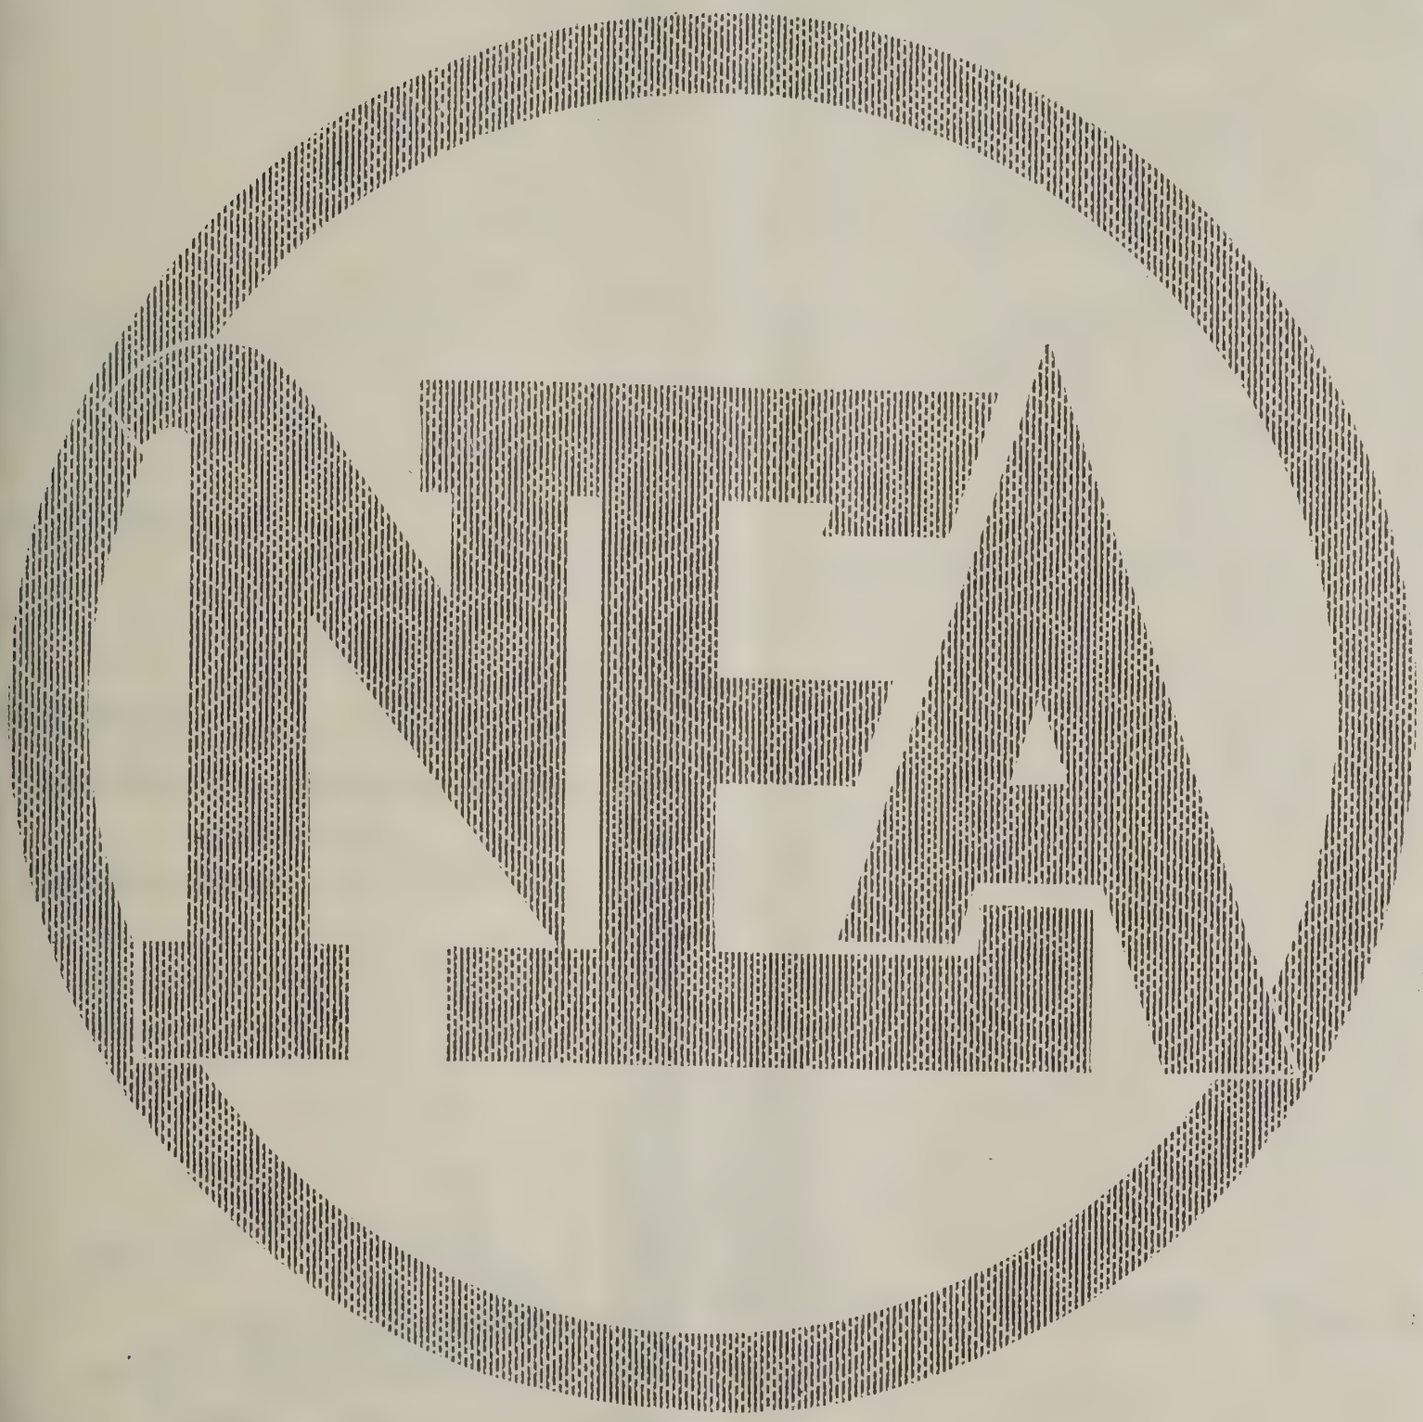
144 West 32nd St., N. Y. C.

Fillin' the bases again this year!

SPECIAL RATES
DURING A. N. P. A. CONVENTION

MAGNETIC BASEBALL PLAYER BOARD

FOR LEASE OR SALE



We'll be in the same location as last year, on the Mezzanine Landing of the Grand Stairway leading from the Main Floor to the Convention Hall. Like to meet you there.

GEO. H. REYNOLDS - - WILLIAM ROSSI

Standard Player Board Corp. New Bedford, Mass.

THE ANSWER TO EVERY FEATURE QUESTION

Ask Us at the A. N. P. A. Convention

The old standby at the same old stand

NEA Service, Inc., 1200 West Third St., Cleveland, O.

DAILIES TO GET BIG SHARE OF MILLION DOLLAR BATTERY APPROPRIATION

Philadelphia Concern Now Drawing Up Schedule for Large Campaign—Newspapers "Startlingly Productive," Promotion Manager Declares

THE trend in advertising these days is toward the daily newspaper, Harry Boyd Brown, advertising and merchandising counsel for the Philadelphia Storage Battery Company, on Thursday told more than 100 members of the Electric Club of Philadelphia, at their weekly luncheon. Mr. Brown also is advertising adviser to a number of important public utilities corporations throughout the country.

His remarks were especially significant in view of the fact that the Philadelphia Storage Battery Company is now engaged in planning a $1,000,000 national advertising campaign on its radio and battery products. They were taken to mean that the company plans to spend a big slice of this unusual appropriation in the daily newspapers.

Following Mr. Brown's address, a representative of EDITOR & PUBLISHER asked Sayre M. Ramsdell, sales and promotion manager of the Philadelphia Storage Battery Company, to what extent the newspapers are to be used in the new advertising campaign.

"Advertising in the daily newspapers," said Mr. Ramsdell, "has always appealed to us as one of the greatest advertising investments any manufacturer of a salable product can possibly make. How far we are planning to go in using the newspapers with our new $1,000,000 appropriation, I'd rather not say at this time. We are in the midst of preparing our advertising budget and are planning to announce it in a short time.

"You may say, through EDITOR & PUBLISHER, however, that a great part of the expenditure will go into the daily newspapers throughout the country. Our previous experience with daily newspapers has been so startlingly productive that it doesn't amaze me one bit when I read of other important manufacturers in all parts of the country who have decided to put the bulk of their advertising appropriations into this channel."

The same query was put to Mr. Brown, following the meeting. He admitted that his views as he expressed them to the Electric Club membership reflect exactly what he had recommended to the Philadelphia Storage Battery Company. He replied:

"Mr. Ramsdell said it all in one sentence when he declared that the use of advertising space in the daily newspapers is one of the greatest investments any reputable manufacturer can make. That's exactly how I feel about it. And you can depend upon it that when the Philadelphia Storage Battery Company gets ready to announce what it plans to do with its proposed $1,000,000 advertising appropriation, a big part of it, as Mr. Ramsdell has said, will go into the daily newspapers."

Mr. Brown, in his talk to the Electric Club emphasized that the matter of obtaining prestige and good-will these days is not so important to the advertiser as the matter of the actual distribution and sale of his products.

"However," he said, "if it is prestige the manufacturer wants, he can get it five times as fast in the daily newspapers as in the magazines. The daily newspaper is a day by day product. It gives today's news to the reading public today. This is a very swift age we're living in and no manufacturer has the time or the inclination to sit back and wait for prestige and goodwill to build up sales—in the meantime spending millions of dollars for that prestige.

"That's all right if the manufacturer has in mind the welfare of his grandchildren, to whom he hopes some day to leave his business. Yes, after he has spent several millions of dollars in magazines telling the consuming public why it should buy his product and what a wonderful aesthetic environment there is about the factory in which the product is made, possibly the consumer will awaken some day several years hence and say to himself, 'perhaps that is a good product Mr. Blank is advertising. Maybe some day I'll try it.' And he does—a year or so later. Or, perhaps, his grandchildren, reading the same prestige-building advertisement will decide to buy it. In the meantime, where's the manufacturer?

"It's all right, to my mind, to tell the public through the magazines why it should buy your product. But if you really want to sell it, the public is interested only in 'where can I buy it and how easily can I get it?' The consumer knows whether or not he wants what you have to advertise.

"So far as distribution is concerned, where can a manufacturer get it better than through the daily newspapers? Nowhere. The newspapers offer to the advertiser bona fide circulation. They built up that circulation by giving to their readers exactly what they want to read—not what their editors want them to read. And, incidentally, that's the fault with a great many advertisements—both newspaper and magazine.

"Advertising writers might well take lessons from the newspaper editor. He is to my mind the world's greatest advertising copy writer. He talks the people's language. He senses the public mind and he gives to that mind just the kind of material it wants for its reading and displayed in a way that demands and universally gets immediate attention."

Mr. Brown went into the matter of circulation of newspapers and magazines and explained one of the biggest assets of newspaper circulation on the basis that it is in the very territory which the advertiser sells his goods and that it thus opens up a direct contact with the prospective customer.

"This is especially important to the retail dealer who advertises," he said.

Mr. Brown told of several important merchandising campaigns with which he had been associated and wherein he had used both magazines and newspapers for advertising. He said the response he had obtained through the daily newspapers far exceeded that in the magazines and concluded with the statement that "if a manufacturer wants to sell his product and make money, let him stick to the daily newspapers because they'll do the job quicker and far cheaper."

DETROIT ADCRAFT CLUB ELECTS

Clinton F. Berry Succeeds Charles W. Brooke as President

Clinton F. Berry, assistant vice-president of the Union Trust Company, was chosen president of the Detroit Adcraft Club at the annual meeting of the board of directors last week. He succeeds Charles W. Brooke, chairman of the board of directors of Brooke, Smith & French, as president.

Verne Burnett, secretary of the advertising committee of the General Motors Corporation, was elected vice-president, and Ward Marsh, president of the McKinney, Marsh & Cushing advertising agency, was chosen second vice-president, a new office created by unanimous vote of the directors.

William C. Sproull, advertising manager of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company, was elected secretary, and Elmer P. Grierson, business manager of the Sprague Publishing Company, was made treasurer. Harold M. Hastings was reappointed to his position as secretary-manager of the Adcraft Club, with headquarters in the Francis Palms Building.

Karl S. Betts, advertising manager of Will St. John & Co., was elected to membership on the board of directors, while Ralph L. Yonker, advertising mar of J. L. Hudson company, and Wi R. Ewald, of the Campbell-Ewald ac tising agency, were re-elected to board.

Other members of the board of d tors are: Charles W. Brooke, ret president; Gordon W. Kingsbury, ac tising manager of the Kelvinator poration; Joseph R. Scolar, vice-p dent of the Guy S. Osborne comp and Earle T. Sutton, of Evans, Wi Hebb, Inc.

WINS LEGAL POINT

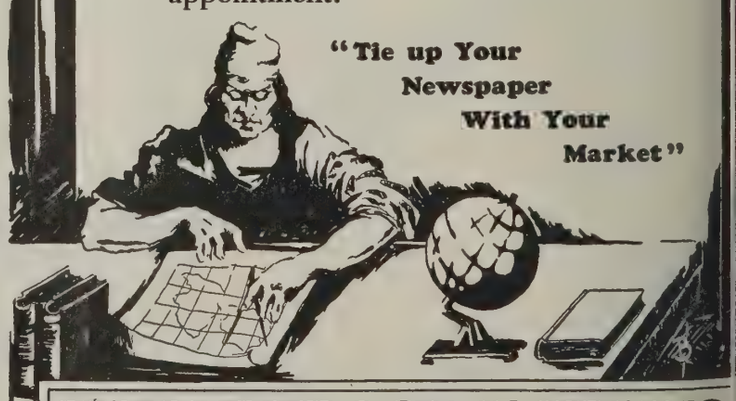
The Ohio Supreme Court, April decided to review the appeal of R Holles, publisher of the Mansfield News, from a decision of the l courts in Richmond county. These c upheld the appointment of a receiver the Mansfield Journal, after Holles acquired a controlling interest. The ceiver was appointed at the reques Journal minority stockholders.

RATE SERVICE MOVES

The Standard Rate & Data Servic April 19 moved to the Graybar Buil New York. Albert Moss, vice-presi is in charge.

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK



Ionic No. 5

An Invitation to Publishers Attending

A. N. P. A. Convention

While in New York, we will be pleased to consult with publishers regarding the publicity of their newspapers and their markets.

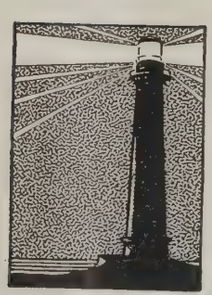
Write or phone Bryant 5568 for appointment.

PUBLISHERS SPACE SELLING SERVICE

49 West 45th St. New York City.

Copy ~ Layout ~ Art ~ Typography ~

READER-HOLDING FICTION



"For eight years we've never put an edition to press without an installment of fiction. We've bought in the open market, with more or less satisfaction. Last year we decided to concentrate on Public Ledger fiction, and we are now averaging a complete story a month from your syndicate. The reaction from this higher class matter warrants the belief that we are going to be mighty well satisfied with Public Ledger fiction for a long time to come."—NEWS LEAGUE OF OHIO.

Send for Samples of New Serials

LEDGER SYNDICATE

INDEPENDENCE SQUARE PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Columbus Citizen, a Scripps-Howard newspaper stood second on the list of six-day evening newspapers of the United States in linage gains in 1926 with an increase of more than a million and a half lines.

SCRIPPS-HOWARD

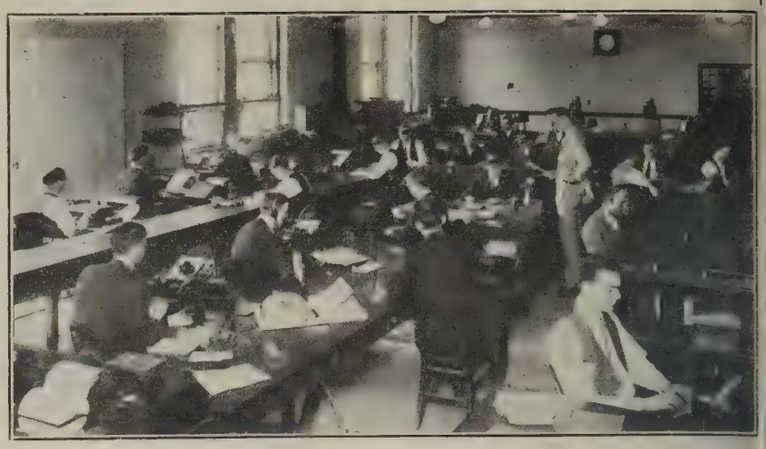
Represented by Allied Newspapers, Inc., 250 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y.
Chicago Detroit San Francisco Los Angeles Seattle

NEW YORK U. P. OFFICE SPACE DOUBLED

Remodelling of Press Service's Headquarters Completed—Now Occupies Entire Third Floor of World Building

Headquarters office of the United Press in New York have been remodeled and enlarged and the present news room is now almost double its former size, measuring 84 by 40 feet.

Other offices have been rented and the third floor of the Pulitzer Building, 63 Park Row, is now used by the United Press exclusively with the exception of one small office. Karl A. Bickel, president, has moved to a larger private office at the front of the building on the third floor. It has been luxuriously furnished in Spanish style.



The outstanding feature of the enlarged news room is a 50-foot filing table used to serve the 13 printer machines. This extends down one side of the room, the upper half of which is given over to the financial news service, the lower half to the foreign news department, and the center to local and sport news. A new big "cable box" has also been installed, operating 500 pairs of wires as compared with 325 pairs in the old installation.

The news room is also equipped with a new lighting system and a sound-proof ceiling, both innovations of decided help to the employes.

A new moving picture showing the office staff in action was taken last week.

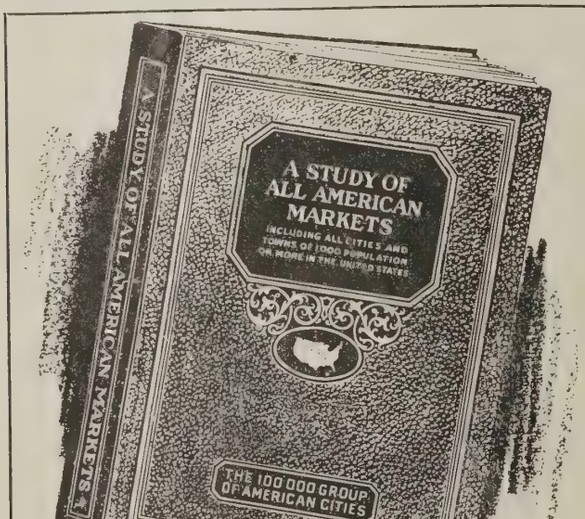
Remodeled headquarters of the United Press in New York showing operating room. Row of printer machine senders at right.

Another view of the United Press news room. Standing in background at right, reading a dispatch is Ralph Turner, assistant general news manager.

LEGION GROUP MEETS PRESS

Convention Officials Give Dinner to Paris Newspaper Men

Representatives of practically every important newspaper published in Paris, English and American as well as French, met at the Restaurant Laurent recently as the luncheon guests of the France convention office of the American Legion. They were there to meet the members of the Legion delegation just arrived in Paris to complete arrangements for the convention which will bring 30,000 Legionaires to the French capital in September.



General Alfred Greenlaw, resident member of the France convention committee in presenting the members of his delegation to the Paris newspaper men, pledged that "there will be no money-throwing tourists among the 30,000 American Legion pilgrims," assured the journalists that nothing would mar the short sojourn of the Legionnaires in France and predicted that their visit would undoubtedly lead to a more sin cere unity between the peoples of Franc and the United States.

M. Brun, of Le Temps, who replied c behalf of the French journalists, said th the organizers of the Paris conventic would always find the press of this cit enthusiastically supporting all their e forts toward making a complete and u qualified success of the convention.

John J. Wicker, Jr., National Trav Director of the American Legion, t principal speaker, explained the idea and purposes of the pilgrimage to Franc Other members of the visiting delegatic are Bowman Elder, chairman of t France convention committee; James Barton, national adjutant; and Frederi C. Painton, director.

DECKER RETURNING

A. R. Decker, Vienna correspondent the Chicago Daily News Service, sail from Cherbourg April 14 for a holid in the United States. He was last hon in 1922. He has covered the storn Balkans since 1918.

A NEW UNITED STATES Merchandising Map—44x67½"

A specially drawn wall map measuring 44 x 67½ inches accompanies each book. It locates all 8,073 towns clearly. A key to the location of each community is given in the General Index of the book where these cities and towns are listed alphabetically. This Index also tells you upon which pages the study of each city and town may be found.

8,073 CITIES AND TOWNS ARE ANALYZED IN THIS ALREADY FAMOUS BOOK

Every important fact, humanly possible to gather and compile, about every city and town of 1,000 population or more in the United States is included in "A Study of All American Markets."

To Presidents, Vice-Presidents, Secretaries, Treasurers and General Managers this massive new book is just as valuable as it is to Sales and Advertising executives. It is a key to production as well as to sales.

This remarkable study of American business and merchandising not only tells how to establish sales quotas but it reveals for the first time, in published form, the results of years of experience and ability in research work by the foremost American authorities.

From the records of the United States Government Bureau of the Census come detailed population characteristics, a large portion of them never before compiled or published, but prepared at no small cost, especially for this book. (See page vi.)

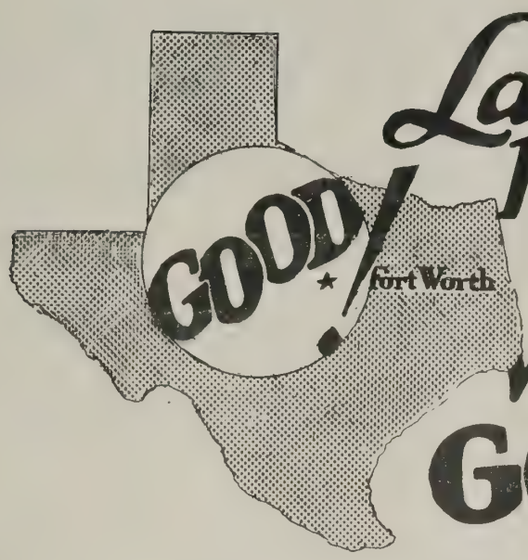
From the nation-wide statistical and directory publishing organization of R. L. Polk & Company comes an authentic count of business enterprises in every city and town of 1,000 population or more—more than 8,000 of them. The number of wholesalers and retailers in 35 classifications of business are shown opposite each city and town. By markets and by States these, more than one and one-half million business enterprises, are divided into six groups of financial ratings. (See page vii.)

From every city and town where bank deposits are available, these important figures are given. You may now know how many passenger automobiles are registered in every city and town for 1926.

In the forepart of the book you will find 338 pages devoted to an intensive study of the 3,770 cities and towns that constitute the 93 major American markets, each having a key city of 100,000 population or more.

If you are interested in other markets of smaller size you may choose them yourself from the 237 page State Section, which includes 8,073 cities and towns of 1,000 population or more, and all arranged alphabetically both by States and by the names of cities and towns.

The gratis distribution of the comprehensive merchandising study is limited to those business executives who are interested in learning the utility of newspaper advertising as it applies to their businesses, and whose applications are approved by the nearest newspaper listed below. Otherwise the production cost of $10 per copy is charged. In making application for a copy use your business stationery enclose 50c in stamps to cover postage and packing and write to:



Advertisers Are Urged To Make Use of This Comprehensive Service

THE 100,000 GROUP of AMERICAN CITIES

Suite 1221 Association Bldg., 19 So. La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

Akron, Ohio, Beacon Journal
Albany, N. Y., The Knickerbocker Press and The Albany Evening News
Allentown, Pa., Morning Call
Atlanta, Ga., Journal
Baltimore, Md., Sun
Binghamton, N. Y., Press & Leader
Boston, Mass., Globe
Brooklyn, N. Y., Eagle
Buffalo, N. Y., Evening News
Canton, Ohio, Repository
Chicago, Ill., The Daily News
Cincinnati, Ohio, Times-Star
Cleveland, Ohio, News
Columbus, Ohio, Dispatch
Dallas, Texas, Times Herald
Dayton, Ohio, News
Des Moines, Iowa, Register & Tribune
Detroit, Mich., News
Duluth, Minn., Herald
Elizabeth, N. J., Journal
El Paso, Texas, Herald-Times
Erie, Pa., Dispatch-Herald
Evansville, Ind., Courier-Journal
Fort Wayne, Ind., News-Sentinel
Houston, Texas, Chronicle
Indianapolis, Ind., News
Jacksonville, Fla., Florida Times-Union
Kansas City, Mo., Star
Knoxville, Tenn., Journal
Lawrence, Mass., Eagle-Tribune
Long Beach, Cal., Press-Telegram
Los Angeles, Cal., Times
Louisville, Ky., Times-Courier-Journal
Lowell, Mass., Courier-Citizen & Leader
Lynn, Mass., Item
Memphis, Tenn., Commercial Appeal
Milwaukee, Wis., Journal
Minneapolis, Minn., Journal
Nashville, Tenn., Banner
Newark, N. J., Newark Evening News
New Bedford, Mass., Standard & Mercury
New Haven, Conn., Register
New Orleans, La., Times-Picayune
New York, N. Y., The Times
Oakland, Cal., Tribune
Omaha, Neb., World-Herald
Paterson, N. J., Press-Guardian and Sunday Chronicle
Peoria, Ill., Journal-Transcript
Philadelphia, Pa., Bulletin
Pittsburgh, Pa., Post and Sun
Portland, Ore., Oregonian
Providence, R. I., Journal-Bulletin
Rochester, N. Y., Times-Union
Sacramento, Cal., Bee
St. Louis, Mo., Post-Dispatch
St. Paul, Minn., Dispatch-Pioneer Press
Salt Lake City, Utah., Tribune
San Antonio, Texas, Express and News
San Diego, Cal., Union & Tribune
San Francisco, Cal., Chronicle
Schenectady, N. Y., Gazette
Scranton, Pa., Times
Seattle, Wash., Times
South Bend, Ind., Tribune
Spokane, Wash., Spokesmen-Review and Chronicle
Springfield, Mass., Union & Republican
Syracuse, N. Y., Herald
Tacoma, Wash., News-Tribune
Toledo, Ohio, Blade
Troy, N. Y., Record
Utica, N. Y., Observer-Dispatch
Washington, D. C., Evening Star
Waterbury, Conn., Republican and American
Wilmington, Del., Journal and News
Worcester, Mass., Telegram-Gazette
Youngstown, Ohio, Vindicator

Basic Market Data For Every Kind of Business or Industry

Last 17 months show West Texas GOOD!

—that's why this is an IDEAL TRY-OUT TERRITORY

For the 17th consecutive month, West Texas and Panhandle financial conditions are reported "good" by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in its business map as produced in Nation's Business, the organization's magazine.

No other section of the country has exhibited such a showing of financial prosperity during each of those 17 months. Many times other sections of the United States have appeared on the map as having "good" business but none has been able to appear in that optimistic light during all of this strenuous period.

It is because of West Texas' diversified resources and agricultural and industrial activities that poor conditions in any one line of business cannot possibly bring down the high average of the territory.

And this great, powerful, wealthy section is blanketed by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Record Telegram which alone is sufficient to successfully carry any campaign.

The Star-Telegram and Record-Telegram circulation exceeds any three or four other papers combined in this territory

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM
RECORD-TELEGRAM
DAILY AND SUNDAY

Largest Circulation in Texas
More than 120,000 Daily and Sunday
Charter member
Audit Bureau of Circulations

AMON G. CARTER
President and Publisher

A. L. SHUMAN
Vice-President and Adv. Dir.

ANNOUNCEME

Machinery Corporation is enabled to a mental improvements in the constru auxiliaries, which improvements it be have been incorporated in the followin

1. A new and ultra-modern newspaper printing and folding unit of extraordinary producing capacity. This is in a wholly new class, in speed of production, in certainty of operation, in unbreakableness, in freedom from the excessive wear and tear now incident to the production of heavy editions, and in ease and economy of operation. Furthermore, it is an all-steel machine. It will be found to excel not in a few points only but in all of the attributes which make for high speed, fine printing, accurate folding, and the owner's unalloyed satisfaction.

A single illustration will serve to show the thoroughness with which in this machine we have dealt with the practical problems of the pressroom, its anti-friaring indestructible cylinder bearings. These cylinder bearings prevent friaring at all speeds, and need never be taken up or replaced.

2. An automatic device. This auto roll to an expiring or stopping the full running time time. It not on proves printing t
uniform speed of waste of printed p
every paper chan

3. A two-page enables the publis
his pages by twos
as well as small
enables a sextuple
38, 42, 46, 50 a
octuple press to pr
58, 62, 66 and 68
their usual produ

As the result of a long period of scientific research the Wood Newspaper e the completion of a number of funda-the newspaper printing press and its o be epoch making. These discoveries es, which are now ready for the market.

paper replenishing pastes a full paper
out slowing down
thus converts the ine into producing es output and immaintenance of a
but it saves the h now results from mechanism which ease the number of y fours, upon large

This for example
roduce 26, 30, 34,
d papers, and an 38, 42, 46, 50, 54,
ers, in addition to

4. The Bee-Line Press has now been equipped with the two-page inserting device mentioned above. This enables the publisher using it to increase his pages by twos upon a press which possesses the very great advantage of using semi-cylindrical stereotype plates. The semi-cylindrical printing plate is used by all metropolitan newspapers because it is the best printer known, and can be cast, finished and cooled automatically and at high speed. Such plates are made by Autoplate machines and require no hand tooling of any description.

Publishers are cordially invited to see these devices in operation at our plant in Plainfield, New Jersey.

OSCAR C. ROESEN,
Manager of Sales,

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORPORATION,
501 Fifth Avenue, New York City

Metropolitan experience for your city room

EVERY newspaper has on its staff one or more brilliant men whose only bar to greatness is the provinciality of their experience. They aim—sometimes vaguely—at acquiring the metropolitan touch; but life is quick, after all, and often closes around them before they realize it has begun.

To these men—who want to fortify their ability with what metropolitan experience can do for them—the Newspaper Institute of America's course in big-city journalism offers an unusual chance. To the editor or publisher who wants to see his men and his newspaper grow it offers constructive assistance in improving standards of work and widening the appeal of the news columns.

Advertising brings the profits—but news brings the advertising. True enough, newspaper properties can and often do weather periods of relaxed news standards with little loss of prestige and revenue. But this can happen only when the publication has had a previous reputation for high class news presentation that will take a lot of bungling to kill.

The days of personal journalism have gone, perhaps forever; but editorial acumen, personal or corporate, still commands stimulating premiums in the journalistic markets.

You can make your local news as good as your wire news—examine this course, without obligation

NEWSPAPER INSTITUTE training embraces a thorough course of intensely practical lectures written by some of the best New York newspaper editors and writers; a series of typical important assignments; a "nose for news" test; the theory and practice of story structure; actual writing of assignments, edited and individually criticized by the Newspaper Institute's practical New York Copy Desk method. You will naturally believe it impossible for anyone to codify the detail and transmit the spirit of journalism—until you see how this course does it.

N. I. A. instruction, by correspondence from New York, is the only source of such training aside from actual metropolitan experience, which has never been easy to get. And correspondence, as a means of teaching writing, is as natural and logical as singing to teach voice culture—or telegraphing to teach telegraphy. The Newspaper Institute of America is first to provide it for journalism.

Metropolitan training, coming straight from men now actively engaged in newspaper work in the metropolis, will help any newspaper man to do better work and make his newspaper better. None is too expert and none too green to derive real advantage from it.

The cost, either to the staff as a group or to individual students, is trifling—low enough to permit even a small newspaper to give it to several or all of its men.

We believe the following offer to be fair and consistent with the finest journalistic principle: Write us for a full copy of the course—put it under the most critical scrutiny you can bring to bear—form your own opinion. You will be obligated to nothing—and it may quite conceivably give you just the facility you need in developing a crackerjack staff.

Call while at the convention

Newspaper Institute of America

Approved as a correspondence school under the laws of the State of New York

25 West Forty-fifth Street, New York. Tel. Bryant 0895

Newspaper Institute of America
25 West 45th Street, New York

Please let me examine your course without obligation, as promised in Editor and Publisher.

Name .....

Title .....

Newspapers .....

FASCIST PRESS CENSORSHIP REACHES INTO SWITZERLAND

Two Italian Journalists Opposed to Blackshirts Asked to Place Large Bonds to Remain in Geneva—Press Group Protests

(Special to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

GENEVA, April 9.—Fascist Italy's long arm of press censorship, which has completely muffled the Italian press and greatly curtailed the activities of the foreign correspondents residing within that country's borders, has stretched to Switzerland, and from indications, has succeeded partially in sealing the mouths and blunting the pens of Italian journalists who ply their profession at the seat of the League of Nations.

Two Italian journalists of repute have already felt the pressure of the Fascist organization in Geneva, and have precipitated action which will be far-reaching in its results. They are Angelo Donti, for 20 years Geneva correspondent of the Italian newspapers Il Secolo of Milan and Il Lavoro, of Genoa, and Carlo a'Prato, formerly private secretary to M. Nitti, when the latter was Minister of Foreign Affairs, and also secretary later to Count Sforza, who also held the portfolio of foreign affairs before the Fascists came into power.

While Monti has resided in Switzerland for a score of years, married a Swiss woman and has a family in Geneva, a'Prato is a refugee, having been forced to flee from Italy at the imminent risk of his life. Associated with the leader of the Catholic opposition, Don Sturzo, and Giuseppe Donati, ex-editor of Il Popolo, a'Prato edited the anti-Fascist publication, Corriere degli Italiani at Paris until lack of funds forced its suspension. He then came to Geneva as correspondent of Leon Blum's leading socialist paper, Populaire, of Paris.

According to the complaint laid before the International Association of Journalists Accredited to the League of Nations, of which both are members in good standing, the Geneva police authorities have, at the instigation of the Fascist Italian officials, taken measures which greatly embarrass both Monti and a'Prato in their work as journalists. After working as correspondent for Populaire at the League for nearly a year a'Prato was approached by the Swiss police, who violated the extra-territoriality of the League by entering the Secretariat to apprehend him, and demanded to see his passport. Having fled from Italy as a political refugee, naturally a'Prato has no papers and the Fascists have refused to grant him a passport. However, he carries the official identification card of the International Journalists Association, which is recognized by all frontier officials in lieu of a passport. He was informed by the police that he must apply for a Permis de Sejour," despite the fact that Swiss law does not require this permit providing the person does not remain in the canton more than three months at a time. Unless he obtained one he would be expelled, he was officially notified. To avoid complications a'Prato applied for the document. The Cantonal officials then demanded a deposit of 2,000 gold francs cash as a "security." The cantonal statutes provide that persons without "papers" can be put under cash bond. Being flat broke and deprived of his property in Italy, and relying upon his few newspaper connections for a living, naturally a'Prato was unable to place on deposit the sum. Then the threat of expulsion followed and his case was laid before the committee of the Journalists' Association.

Almost simultaneously Angelo Monti, correspondent of one single Italian paper which has been able to retain, and some Swiss publications, informed his colleagues that when he had applied for a renewal of his passport at the Italian Consulate, the consul general, Count Emmi, had seized the old document and refused to either surrender it or renew it. The reason given was that Monti was not politically friendly to the Fascist regime in Italy. A few days later the Swiss police, who had not disturbed Monti or found anything dangerous in his conduct for a score of years, called upon him and demanded to see his passport. He explained that the Italian Consulate had refused to renew it, whereupon he was asked to make a deposit of 1,000 gold francs or face possible expulsion.

Twice, in a few weeks, the Fascist machine had struck out at Italian journalists, practicing their profession in a foreign country, and mildly antagonistic to the Fascist regime in Italy. Both were faced with almost impossible situations—that of raising comparatively large sums to guarantee their "good behaviour" in a country which heretofore has prided itself upon being the refuge of politically oppressed peoples.

The inside story is plain. According to a'Prato, he has been hounded from place to place by the Fascists since he fled from Italy. As in the case of Nitti, Don Sturzo, Professor Salvemini, Turatti and others, the Fascist regime never forgets or forgives opposition. Persecution reaches as far beyond Italian borders as is possible . . . and Switzerland is more or less cowed by the threats of Mussolini, who only last summer warned that any agitation against the Fascists would mean a break in relations and refusal to send delegates to League meetings if held in Geneva.

Besides, the chief of the Geneva department of police, a M. Turretini, is according to those who ought to know, more or less under the influence of the Fascists—both in Italy and the Swiss Fascist organizations, and collaborates readily with the Italians in making life uncomfortable for those who have incurred the enmity of Mussolini.

The final move in the Monti-a'Prato case has not been made. In fact, the Association of Journalists, which is composed of some 200 members representing the Press of about 50 countries, has just started the fight to defend its rights. A letter, stating the facts of the case, has been sent to the President du Conseil de Canton Geneve and to Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the League of Nations. If expulsion decrees are issued against a'Prato and Monti, their case will be carried to the Council of the League where M. Vandervelde, Belgian foreign minister, M. Paul Boncour, French alternate delegate, and others will force a showdown. And should the League Council fail to take action the Association will call attention to the throttling of the press by Geneva Police —at the instigation of foreign governments—to the International Press Conference which meets in August and later to the League Assembly in September.

FASCIST PROPAGANDA DENIED

McClure Tells Paris Newspaper Men No Funds Are Going to U. S.

S. S. McClure, the American publisher, guest of honor at a recent weekly luncheon of the Anglo-American Press Club of Paris, addressed the newspaper men on the subject of Fascism, to which he has devoted six months of close study.

Answering a question as to the rumor that a $5,000,000 Fascist propaganda fund is being spent in the United States, Mr. McClure declared that "not one cent is being spent on such propaganda outside of Italy, and it is not necessary to spend anything within the country."

As an illustration of this assertion he told of how he had sought permission at the Italian Foreign Office to translate Mussolini's speeches into English for circulation in America, but had been flatly refused on the ground of public economy.

After 5 years--- still unduplicated

Five or six years ago The Indianapolis News began the direct delivery of individual copies of the last edition to rural subscribers within a radius of sixty miles.

Today, after five years, that service is still unduplicated.

Every day, winter and summer, 70 swift motor trucks speed down the splendid highways of central Indiana, leaving individual copies of the last edition in rural subscribers' private boxes.

2,800 miles of motor travel daily.

Rural delivery of the same edition at the same hour as by carrier in the city.

And, because these subscribers are accessible to Indianapolis, and can receive this swift, private motor delivery, they are by that very fact accessible to retail stores where advertised merchandise is sold.

That makes results certain and quick, and advertisers profit tremendously from this still to be surpassed distribution system.

The Indianapolis NEWS

Frank T. Carroll, Advertising Director

New York Office
Dan A. Carroll
110 E. 42d Street

Chicago Office
J. E. Lutz
The Tower Bldg.

NEW YORK AND BROOKLYN CIRCULATION STATEMENTS

Filed with the Government for six months ending April 1, 1927; compiled by Statistical Department of New York Evening Post, Inc.

	1921 April 1	1921 October 1	1922 April 1	1922 October 1	1923 April 1	1923 October 1 	1924 April 1	1924 October 1	1925 April 1	1925 October 1	1926 April 1	1926 October 1	1927 April 1	1927 April 1 compared with April 1 Gain	Loss	% Gain	1926 % Lo
American	406,311	440,941	456,335	429,071	434,198	439,177	411,471	405,044	379,975	362,862	347,771	341,225	336,280	.....	11,491	....	3
Commercial	11,595	11,645	11,068	11,701	12,461	13,060	14,010	11,800	11,300	11,793	11,480	10,555	[3]	.....	....	....	..
Herald	202,088	193,368	177,629	178,078	170,257	165,710	‡‡	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	....	..
Herald Tribune	142,384	142,069	137,485	130,161	131,613	133,230	154,435	276,755	283,197	287,386	294,327	298,090	300,610	6,283	....	2.1	..
Journal of Commerce	29,294	30,394	27,825	27,685	26,338	26,156	25,772	26,935	26,972	26,707	26,768	26,784	25,785	.....	983	....	3
Sun (Morning)	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	....	..
Times	352,528	348,607	372,801	356,671	370,266	362,361	378,174	383,005	387,934	382,005	392,695	391,465	414,990	22,295	....	5.7	..
Wall Street Journal	19,076	19,203	19,196	19,582	22,242	21,883	22,191	22,266	25,772	28,329	29,937	29,589	30,623	686	....	2.3	..
World	385,892	392,478	387,191	382,087	392,387	382,739	391,421	404,377	381,536	342,928	329,860	322,464	343,247	13,387	....	4.1	..
Mirror (Tabloid)	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	§§157,796	218,431	249,649	316,418	379,396	411,808	95,390	....	30.1	..
News (Tabloid) Daily	336,149	415,006	440,482	522,635	551,457	633,578	720,862	786,398	795,160	920,956	998,617	1,082,976	1,145,481	146,864	....	12.	..
News (Tabloid) Sunday	.....	191,510	268,061	348,711	438,810	567,381	662,142	807,279	987,199	1,122,065	1,224,063	1,244,316	1,433,578	209,515	....	17.1	..
Evening Journal	649,834	633,083	654,952	622,749	643,489	601,837	641,192	666,886	649,072	635,805	696,447	677,844	686,740	.....	9,707	....	1.
Evening Mail	155,148	168,073	137,760	161,215	144,135	170,327	††	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	....	..
Evening Post	38,596	32,706	35,006	32,318	32,694	32,506	35,768	31,291	35,501	32,415	35,525	34,127	51,757	16,232	....	45.7	..
Evening World	313,143	289,871	280,727	265,049	277,853	272,335	271,114	314,489	310,850	311,933	294,442	295,732	305,404	10,962	....	3.7	..
Evening Globe	164,429	177,066	149,882	166,196	159,786	‖	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	....	....	..
Sun	190,218	183,253	180,442	179,937	177,290	‡236,165	260,026	255,212	247,370	256,234	259,351	265,000	267,520	8,169	....	3.2	..
Telegram	109,511	116,187	107,710	119,431	111,088	133,594	155,194	220,707	190,519	199,566	182,489	207,706	196,329	13,840	....	7.6	..
Evening Graphic	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	.....	[2]95,697	96,998	141,865	242,508	334,795	192,930	....	136.	..
Brooklyn Citizen	40,126	41,003	41,137	41,221	41,186	41,352	42,237	42,311	42,455	42,470	43,108	43,114	43,092	.....	16	....	.0
Brooklyn Eagle	58,521	60,395	63,595	61,737	65,568	63,475	67,553	69,102	72,493	71,912	75,395	76,711	79,813	4,418	....	5.9	..
Brooklyn Standard Union	62,755	65,068	67,051	68,586	71,557	72,252	71,187	67,365	64,339	61,742	63,010	80,862	77,227	14,217	....	22.6	..
Brooklyn Daily Times	46,897	46,982	46,987	45,139	45,313	45,389	37,637	57,269	65,471	80,081	81,573	78,533	73,751	.....	7,822	....	9.
Totals	3,714,495	[1]3,775,470	[1]3,770,629	[1]3,796,402	[1]3.865,084	[1]3,837,669	[1]3,691,855	[1]4,130,562	[1]4,311,478	[1]4,430,500	[1]4,653,288	[1]4,907,730	[1]5,166,409	.....	....	....	..

‖ Evening Sun and Globe combined June 4, 1923. Name changed to Sun March 10, 1924. ‡ Average for 2 months Sun and 4 months Sun-Globe.

†† Telegram and Mail combined January 28, 1924. Sunday issue discontinued March 16, 1924. Name changed to Telegram May 18, 1925.

‡‡ Herald and Tribune combined March 19, 1924.

§§ Mirror (Tabloid) first issue June 24, 1924.

[1] Includes daily average of the Daily News inclusive of the Sunday News.

[2] Evening Graphic first issue September 15, 1924. Sunday edition inaugurated May 3, 1925, discontinued September 1, 1925.

[3] Commercial combined with Journal of Commerce, January 1, 1927.

During the general strike of the New York newspaper pressmen, from September 18 to 26, 1923, inclusive "combined morning" and "combined evening" papers were published. Statements of the following newspapers show that circulation figures of this period were omitted: Times, Herald, World, Mail, Sun-Globe, Eve. World, Eve. Telegram, Brooklyn Eagle, Brooklyn Standard Union, Brooklyn Citizen.

NORTHWEST SOLD ON CO-OPERATIVE DRIVES

Success of Salmon Packers' Campaign in Newspapers Stimulating Other Groups, Seattle Agency Man Declares

Newspapers have "sold" themselves solidly to co-operative advertisers.

F. W. Strang, of Strang & Prosser, Seattle, Wash., advertising agency, who expressed this opinion the other day, based it partially upon the outstanding success of the co-operative newspaper campaign of the Associated Salmon Packers, one of his agency's accounts, and also on the fact that he is receiving numerous requests for information from similar organizations in various sections of the country who tell him they are anxious to cash in on the lucrative experience of the fish canners of the Pacific Northwest. This association spent about $400,000 in newspaper space.

"The salmon industry is enthusiastic about results obtained in the newspaper campaign," Mr. Strang said. "Last year we had the largest pack in history, more than 7,000,000 cases, all grades. Indications now are that with the present demand the time the 1927 pack comes in we will have none of the old stock on hand. We had 1,250,000 cases on hand a year ago."

Naturally, Mr. Strang does not want to disclose what other groups are now considering use of newspaper space. Suffice it to say there are few sections of the country today more alive to the powerful advantages of mass formation in making an advertising attack on the consuming public in the interest of anything, be it salmon, eggs, cities or prunes.

Mr. Strang foresees co-operative advertising by industries as the coming thing in advertising. Maybe the Pacific Northwest will prove to be the style center for this new fashion, at least among the farmers, as Mr. Strang believes.

The history of Washington state's co-operative farm marketing movement dates back about 10 years, according to Mr. Strang. Then an advertising campaign was prepared, designed to interest city people in getting back to the land.

"Thousands of dollars were spent in creating this desire," Mr. Strang said, "including $250,000 for the construction of an experimental farm to teach poultry raising. Now chicken farming has been developed to a fine art in Washington and the Pacific coast generally.

"We are able to get in a large supply of fresh eggs in September, when eggs are highest. They are marketed in the east by the Egg Producers, Inc. Our hens are grain fed and green fed. We have hens laying 200 eggs a year, when the average is only 72. Now this production must be sold, and advertising in the east is the answer.

"Washington apples are also being advertised and the advertising appropriations are bound to increase, I believe.

"The latest co-operative campaign to come out of the Pacific Northwest was announced last week, that of the Blue Mountain Prune Growers' Association, which is spending $150,000."

Mr. Strang is an easterner, a native of Prince Edward Island. He went west when he was a young man, stopping for a time in Chicago, and finally reaching the Pacific North West. Before going into the advertising agency business, he was connected with the Spokane Chronicle.

TO PRINT CONVENTION TAB

Daily Will Be Issued at Waldorf by Pressmen's Union

A new daily tabloid newspaper is promised for New York to be called the Press. It will start publication at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel on April 25 and continue throughout the week with news of interest to publishers attending the annual meeting of the Associated Press and the convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Publishers of the paper will be the International Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America, which is seeking to show the convention delegates what the union is doing in the way of educating printers. The editor will be Thomas E. Dunwody, who is director of the Technical Trade School, operated by the union at Pressmen's Home, Tenn.

The daily paper, according to John R. Hays, of the H. D. Roosen Ink Company, one of those in charge of the venture, will be tabloid only in form, and will not publish any scandal in connection with convention week. No crusades or exposés are anticipated, he said.

To print the tabloid the Duplex Printing Press Company is installing one of their small tubular presses in a booth on the ground floor of the Waldorf, adjoining the men's lounging room. The New York Times will set copy and plates will be cast by the Daily Racing Form. Paper is to be furnished by the International Paper Company and ink by the H. D. Roosen Company. Bingham, Maigne Hart and the Goodrich Rubber Company are supplying rollers for the press. General Electric Company equipment will be used.

The net paid daily average circulation of the Canton Daily News as certified to the Audit Bureau of Circulations for the period ending March 31, 1927, is—over the same period ending March 31, 1926. This is more than five times the gain made by any other Canton newspaper.

36,464

A GAIN OF

8,747

THE growth of the Canton Daily News has been continuous and steady over a period of years as evidenced by the comparison of net paid daily averages for the months of March for the past five years. These figures are from monthly A. B. C. statements.

MARCH 31, 1923 — 21,691
MARCH 31, 1924 — 24,422
MARCH 31, 1925 — 25,243
MARCH 31, 1926 — 28,699
MARCH 31, 1927 — 37,104

The News dominates its field with the commanding net paid circulation, and has the outstanding reader interest as evidenced by its own continuous growth—without promotion—and its success in civic accomplishments.

The Canton Daily News

EVENING AND SUNDAY
CANTON, OHIO

National Representatives— I. A. KLEIN, New York and Chicago
A. J. NORRIS HILL, San Francisco and Los Angeles

Marking Thirty Years of CONSTRUCTIVE LEADERSHIP

APRIL 22, 1897, saw the first issue of The Forward, a mere six-page sheet, which sold less than 6,000 copies.

Small as it was, the reception it received from its then limited group of readers, gave certain promise of the growth and achievement which were destined to make the Forward a potent force in every Jewish community throughout the land.

Today its leadership is acknowledged by all, and its influence extends far and wide, covering every large city in the United States, and read daily by more than a half-million intelligent men and women in every walk of life.

The Forward is an inspiration to all who come within its influence. Esteemed by its partisans, it is highly respected by its opponents. And while there are those who do not share its views, they read it for the courage and integrity of its principles, and the journalistic excellence which always distinguishes it.

April 24, 1927, on its Thirtieth Anniversary, the Forward will publish 144 pages—forty pages Rotogravure, 24 pages English Supplement—in an edition of 245,000 copies.

Jewish Daily FORWARD

New York .·. Chicago

"HUMAN" NEWSPAPER IS ONLY SOUND TYPE, HOPWOOD TELLS INDIANA GROUP

Sensational and Ultra-Conservative Papers Fail to Reflect Life, Says Cleveland Editor—Newspaper Criticism "Helpful Sign"

"THERE are three types of newspapers, the ultra-conservative, the human and the sensational, and of the trio, the human newspaper more nearly meets the requirements and demands of our present society," Erie C. Hopwood, editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, told members of the Indianapolis Alumni Association of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity, and visiting newspaper men at a founders' day dinner of the organization at the Hotel Lincoln, Monday night. Mr. Hopwood spoke on "Better Journalism."

"The ultra-conservation newspaper is a trade paper for folks who do not want to know the other side of the news and the sensational sheet plays on the passions of the readers to gain additional subscribers. People are most interested in the things which come closest to their natural, fundamental instincts and the human newspaper presents the reader with these things that are human to him. It reflects the social order of the times and from every standpoint is the only sound type of the group," Mr. Hopwood declared.

Mr. Hopwood pointed out that it would be useless for anyone in newspaper work to shut his eyes to newspaper criticism and cited the avalanche of criticism directed against newspapers as being a hopeful sign that will lead to better journalism.

"Out of all the criticism there must come some element of truth and helpfulness together with a note of warning which it behooves every newspaper man to regard seriously," he said.

The justification of newspapers is found in the inherent curiosity of people to know what their neighbors are doing, according to Mr. Hopwood.

"Nothing happens in the civilized world that is not of significance to all of us. The people must be informed and the newspaper is the one agency by which the multitudes can be given this information. A newspaper must then give its readers the news which must be clear, honest, without bias, complete, clean, free, fearless, accurate and handled in the proper perspective. Another service of the newspaper is to present editorial opinion that is found in the editorial columns and cartoons and not on newspapers, editorials that express an opinion, not present a fact. Editorials also must be fair and there is a decided tendency today to make them that and not a partisan representation of what the editor would have the readers think. The editorial writer should stick to the issues of the question and not deal in personalities," Mr. Hopwood declared.

A survey of the front pages of half a dozen American newspapers was recently completed by Mr. Hopwood and he announced his findings last night.

"Instead of crime news that the average person would naturally say infests the front pages of every newspaper in the United States, my survey revealed that news of government outnumbered two to one any other type of news story found on the front pages of the newspapers I studied for a period of a week," he announced. "Many persons say that a newspaper is a tremendous commercial enterprise. Admitting that this is true, a newspaper of that type knows only one master, the public, and it must be ready to fight its battles at all times. A governmental or privately subsidized newspaper can not have the interests of the public at heart. The most important function of a newspaper is to give a message of good citizenship, loyalty and Americanism to the greatest number of people and in so doing it has accomplished one of the greatest safeguards to American liberty and happiness. A large group of persons want advice and help from the newspapers."

Mr. Hopwood described the printing of testimony in the recent Peaches Browning divorce scandal as an offense against decency.

"If we do not clean house the authorities will step in and do it for us. A newspaper should be a gentleman and no gentleman would tell the story of Peaches and Daddy Browning in a mixed group," he declared. The influence of tabloid newspapers in America was discussed and he warned newspaper owners and editors not to become so self satisfied that they make that type of paper possible. "Tabloids are an infectious disease to the decent, human type of newspaper in that the human newspaper is compelled to border on tabloidism to meet the competition," Mr. Hopwood said. "The fundamental thing that newspapers must always remember is that they can not dodge the large responsibility that has been placed upon them," he added.

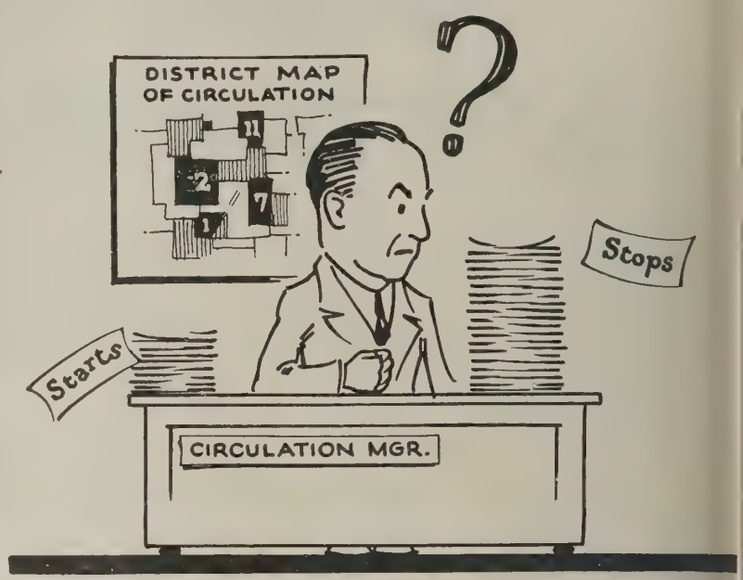
Other speakers were L. H. Millikan of Indianapolis, a charter member of the fraternity at DePauw university, who outlined the history of the organization, and James A. Stuart, managing editor of the Indianapolis Star and national vice president of the fraternity, who discussed the present activities of the fraternity. Visiting newspaper men included Edgar T. Cutter of Chicago, chief of the central division of the Associated Press; James J. Patchell, president of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association and editor of the Union City Times; William F. Cronin, editor of the Terre Haute Tribune; Will C. Feudner, general manager and Roy E. Harrold, editor of the Rushville Republican; George W. Purcell, editor of the Bloomington World; Frank R. Elliott, director of publicity, Indiana university, Bloomington; J. W. Piercy, professor of journalism, Indiana university; Robert A. MacMahon, director of publicity, Purdue university, Lafayette, and R. A. Brodechecker, editor of the Brownstown Banner.

John Meiney of the Indianapolis News was elected president of the Indianapolis association; Volney B. Fowler of the Indianapolis Times, vice-president and Russell Campbell of the Indianapolis Star, secretary-treasurer. They will serve for one year.

DR. BALL SUCCEEDS LATHAN

Journalism Dean New Editor Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier

Dr. William Watts Ball, dean of the school of journalism of the University of South Carolina since 1924, has accepted the editorship of the Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier, and will assume direction of the paper about the middle of June.



Dr. Ball has been engaged in journalism for 35 years, and has been connected with four daily newspapers in the state of South Carolina. He was editor of the Charleston Evening Post and of the Greenville News, then assistant editor of the News and Courier, being associated with Major J. C. Hemphill, who later went with the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch, as editor. In 1909, Dr. Ball went to the Columbia State as managing editor and, upon appointment of the editor, William E. Gonzales, to be American Minister to Cuba, in 1913, he was for ten years editor of the State.

Thomas P. Layne, formerly city editor, now managing editor, is in active charge of the News and Courier, since the resignation of Robert Lathan, editor, who has accepted the editorship of the Ashville (N. C.) Citizen.

OLYMPIA PAPER SUSPENDS

The Olympia (Wash.) Capital Review has suspended publication.

A MESSAGE . . to Circulation Managers

Don't you wish you knew why?

EVERY circulation manager knows where his coverage is weak and where it is strong. But few know their duplication or their weaknesses as compared with competition, district by district throughout the whole market. Scarcely any have a complete picture of popular feeling toward all competing newspapers.

Minute details, regarding the strength and weakness of every newspaper in the field, are revealed in Knight Certified Market Studies. Such facts are of vital importance not only to circulation managers, but also to editorial and advertising departments. The answer to any newspaper reader problem is to be found in only one place—the reading family.

To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

You welcome correctly obtained, unbiased market data. You want something more than conventional facts on income tax reports, population totals and circulation statistics. Knight Certified Market Studies delve exhaustively into the personal element behind cold figures. More than five years of specialized, economic study in more than forty American markets give authority to Knight Certified Market Reports. Write for a complete list of these markets. You will appreciate the helpful spirit of publishers who have made such facts available in such cities as:

CHICAGO MINNEAPOLIS MEMPHIS
WASHINGTON RICHMOND LOUISVILLE
HARRISBURG ERIE ROCHESTER

CERTIFIED MARKET STUDIES

EMERSON B. KNIGHT, Inc.
INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA

—Mr. E. B. Knight will be registered at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel during the A. N. P. A. Convention and will be glad to make appointments with executives interested in Knight Service.—

Journal Leads in 1926 Gains!

Leads in local advertising gains!

Leads in national advertising gains!

Leads in total display advertising gains!

Leads in grand total linage gains!

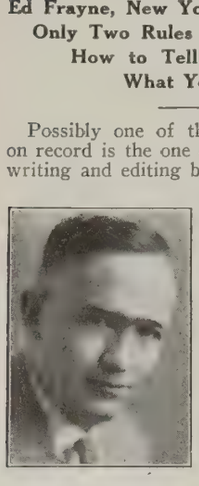
The JOURNAL
Portland-Oregon



BENJAMIN & KENTNOR COMPANY, Special Representatives

CHICAGO 900 Mallers Bldg. | NEW YORK 2 West 45th Street | LOS ANGELES 401 Van Nuys Bldg. | SAN FRANCISCO 58 Sutter Street | PHILADELPHIA 1524 Chestnut Street

SHORT CREED ISSUED FOR SPORTS WRITERS

Ed Frayne, New York American, Says Only Two Rules Needed—"Learn How to Tell It and Tell What You See"

Possibly one of the shortest "creeds" on record is the one drawn up for sports writing and editing by Ed Frayne, sports editor of the New York American.

ED. FRAYNE

"My creed," said Frayne the other day, "is very simple.

"1.—Learn how to tell it.

"2.—Tell it the way you see it."

Frayne is one of a number in New York who have put the reverse English on Horace Greeley's famous advice. He first started writing sports on the old Los Angeles Herald in 1910. One of his colleagues out west was Hugh Baillie, now general manager of the United Press, but who, before he became interested in the cash register side, was generally conceded a topnotch reporter and news writer.

Frayne was asked if he didn't think it was necessary for a sports writer to have had some training in athletics himself.

"It is helpful, but not essential," he replied. "As I look at it, writing, or the ability to write, is born with the individual and cannot be cultivated. With most newspapermen, it is a knack, while with some, like Damon Runyon, Bill McGeehan and the late Charles E. Van Loan, it amounts to a positive gift.

"Take Runyon, for instance. I can't imagine Damon ploughing his way through eleven 200-pounders for a four-yard gain on the football field. Neither can I picture Damon trading right hands with Dempsey for any considerable length of time, nor with Sammy Mandell for that matter. I imagine Sammy would be nearer to his weight. Nor can I visualize Damon pulling the stroke oar for the Navy in the Poughkeepsie race. I'm afraid he would get thirsty for a cup of coffee shortly after they had passed the first mile.

"But you can take the Notre Dame football team and Dempsey and Mandell and the Navy crew and pit the whole outfit against Runyon in a writing match. He'll write their ears off.

"Charlie Van Loan, by the way, was working as a shipping clerk in San Francisco along about the time Willie Heston was battering his way to glory with the Michigan 'Point-a-Minute' eleven. However, Mr. Van Loan did quite well considering his lack of experience.

"So I am unable to see why the ability to row 4 miles has anything to do with the ability to paint the picture on 8-point linotype slugs.

"The proof of my contention is that newspapermen have to write the copy for the world's three greatest living athletes."

Frayne started his newspaper training under Jay Davidson who in 1910 was one of the best known western boxing writers. Davidson was a contemporary of W. W. Naughton, "Beany" H. M. Walker, Tad and that group. Frayne's first regular work was on the staff of the Los Angeles Record in 1912, where he succeeded Baillie as second man on the two-man sports staff. From that year until last December Frayne remained with the Record, becoming sports editor in 1914. For three years he tried farming and still owns a ranch on the Colorado river in California.

Boston Traveler

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

HAVE YOU YOUR BICYCLE?

Chicago Firm Offers to Take Payment in Advertising

And now newspaper publishers are being asked to accept bicycles in payment for advertising space.

If prominent newspaper publishers are seen pedalling to their offices in the near future, don't be surprised. They have merely accepted the amazingly tempting offer of George S. Lewis, vice-president and general manager of the Mead Cycle Company, 162-172 North Clinton street, Chicago.

"Our proposition," Mr. Lewis explained in a recent circular letter to newspapers, "is to supply you with one of our finest $60 Iroquois Motorbike bicycles as shown on the reverse side of this sheet, you to pay one-third cash ($20) and two-thirds advertising space $40 at your regular rates. Option, if desired, the $55 Iroquois Roadster on the same terms, i. e. one third cash ($18.35) and two-thirds advertising ($36.70).

Mr. Lewis also provides an additional sensation to publishers who have nickel banks for their children or who still have "mite boxes" on the mantelpiece in expectation of next year's Lenten season. All bona fide inquiries received from advertising placed at the bicycle rate will be paid for at the rate of 5 cents per inquiry.

"This arrangement," Mr. Lewis confides, "will show us whether we are justified in continuing our advertisement with you on a strictly cash basis."

But who wouldn't rather have a bicycle?

ANIMATED ADVERTISING BALL

Denver Ad Women Raise Funds to Entertain I. A. A. Delegates

DENVER, Colo., April 22.—For the benefit of a fund for the entertainment of delegates to the International Advertising Association convention here June 26-29, an Animated Advertising Ball under the auspices of the women's group of the local Advertising Club was held in the City Auditorium April 21.

Practically all the products adverti extensively in this territory were rep sented in the Grand March of the Adv tisements, which began at 10 p. m. T stage setting, skillfully designed, took form of a huge book, of which the pa were turned as each successive group peared. These exhibits, which w greeted by enthusiastic applause, were troduced by the Master of Ceremonies

The excellence of the exhibits testifi to the careful thought and planning wh had gone into their preparation.

Dancing followed the presentation the final participant in the grand mar

Admission to the auditorium to vi the grand march was 50 cents. Tick which included the privilege of danci were $1.

Arrangements for the ball were in hands of a committee representing t feminine members of the Advertisi Club and the Women's Auxiliary. T chairman of the committee is Miss Ma J. Richey, advertising manager of t Daniels & Fisher Stores Company.

IOWA WEEKLIES MERGED

The Glenwood (Ia.) Opinion and t Glenwood Tribune have been consolidat and will be published hereafter as semi-weekly, the Glenwood Opinio Tribune. The Choates brothers w publish the new paper, having been pu lishers of the Opinion the last 10 yea

Looking for a Circulation Booster?

Try Photoradiogram Service

The Radio Corporation of America is equipped to transmit pictures, advertisements and other documents by radio between London, New York, San Francisco and Honolulu. This service is quick, efficient and accurate. Pictures are received at the nearest picture receiving station to the addressee and forwarded by special delivery or airmail or, if requested, by "Telephoto."

Photoradiograms are transmitted from a film five inches wide and the charges are based upon this dimension as the standard width. The rate is $16.00 per inch of depth and the minimum charge is $50.00. Thus a standard 5″ x 7″ picture would cost $112.00.

Any special information or advice in connection with the Photoradiograms service via RCA will be given gladly to members of the A. N. P. A. by Radio Corporation representatives.

MANAGERS AND EDITORS:

Would you be interested in showing in the window of your office, radio pictures being received from London, New York, San Francisco and Honolulu?

A machine receives these radio pictures 15″ x 21″. Exhibit it for a week receiving pictures continuously all day.

Your paper could be on sale with pictures of events of the world a few hours after taking place.

A whole page every day of radio pictures. Think of the prestige and interest to be gained through such an exhibition of speed!

RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA

64 Broad Street, New York, N. Y.

Because The Columbus Dispatch is continuously FIRST

---in amount of local news, telegraph news, cable news

---in sports news, society news, women's news, radio news

---in number of entertaining and informative features

---in sane, sound, unbiased editorials

---in inimitable cartoons

---in fiction, in children's stories, in comics, in illustrations

---in paid advertising

---in all the extraordinary services a great newspaper gives its readers

---in everything that makes a newspaper great, interest for the reader, pulling power for the advertiser

it is today, even more than ever, dominant in circulation

The Average Net Paid Daily Circulation for the 6 Months Ending March 31, 1927 - Being 113,678

FIRST IN CITY CIRCULATION
★60,216

rritory included as city represents news stands, street sales and all that is within city carriers' delivery.

FIRST IN SUBURBAN CIRCULATION
★28,937

*All that is within an average radius of thirty-five miles and includes the counties of Delaware, Union, Madison, Fayette, Pickaway, Knox, Fairfield, Perry, Licking and Morrow.

FIRST IN COUNTRY CIRCULATION
★24,525

*All circulation other than city or suburban delivered by agents, dealers or by mail.

OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

ATLANTIC MONTHLY MAY SUE DAILIES FOR COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT

Gov. Smith's Reply to Marshall, Printed Prematurely in N. Y. Daily News and Boston Post, Stolen, Says President —Publication Scored

LEGAL action will probably be taken against newspapers which violated release dates in publication of Governor Smith's letter to the Atlantic Monthly on politics and religion, William S. Rossiter, president of the publishing concern said in a statement issued in Concord, N. H., April 19.

He declared that one or more copies of the May issue of Atlantic Monthly containing the letter, were stolen from the plant of the Rumford Press in Concord last Friday. The letter appeared in the New York Daily News on Saturday morning and in the Boston Post on the same day. The copies, after they were stolen, according to Mr. Rossiter, were "delivered to someone who purported to be the representative of an out-of-town newspaper."

"It appears from the investigation made by the Rumford officials that one or two copies of the Atlantic had been stolen by an employe of the company on Friday last and delivered to some one who purported to be the representative of an out-of-town newspaper," President Rossiter said. "This man has been discharged by the Press.

"In all probability the leak occurred in this manner, and it seems probable that the Atlantic will take legal action against newspapers that have benefited by this illicit proceeding."

Several New York newspapers editorially attacked the Boston Post for breach of faith. New York Evening World said the premature release was "much worse offense from the newspaper standpoint than any transgression of the copyright laws which may be involved. It was a breach of faith, a violation of confidence and a dishonor to the profession."

The New York Sun carried the following caustic editorial:

"One of the most treasured possessions of the American newspapers is the trust reposed in their good faith. A President's message, for example, is in the hands of thousands of newspapers many days before it is delivered, yet it is not printed or commented upon until its delivery has begun. So with the speeches and statements of other notable men and with the advance proof sheets of books and magazines—at least this was true until Saturday last, when the Boston Post and a New York tabloid—the Daily News—violated a professional trust.

"All the newspapers were notified about a week ago by the Atlantic Monthly that Governor Smith's reply to Charles C. Marshall would be in their hands in time for publication on April 25. The Atlantic impressed on the newspapers the fact that it owned the copyright of the article and that any putative copy of the Smith letter received from any source except the magazine itself should be regarded as unauthorized. The Atlantic said furthermore—it then seemed unnecessary to say it—that it would demand punitive damages for any violation of its copyright by publication in advance of the release date established by it.

"The Boston Post and the New York Daily News obtained and published an important part of Governor Smith's letter on Saturday. It was more than a violation of the Atlantic's copyright. It was a betrayal of the confidence reposed in the American press by a magazine which, in a spirit of public service, had agreed to release an important public document to all the newspapers at the proper time. The breach of faith caused the Atlantic to release the letter for general publication today.

"The distinguished magazine which has been mistreated by the Boston Post and the New York Daily News may well be indignant and seek redress in the courts. But its indignation does not match that of the honorable newspapers of this country. They are aroused at this malodorous offense against common honesty. It is the first time in this generation, so far as The Sun knows, that any American newspaper has committed this meanest of crimes against journalism."

The editorial reply made by the Boston Post, appearing on Wednesday, follows:

"Our eminent contemporary, the New York Sun, must be quite annoyed at the clean 'beat' administered by the Daily News of New York and the Boston Post. Otherwise it could not seriously make such unwarranted and baseless charges as 'offense against common honesty' and 'violation of professional trust' in its editorial comment on the publication of parts of Governor Smith's famous letter prior to its appearance in the Sun itself.

"As a matter of fact, the Sun's statement is false and its implications are false. The Post received no such 'release notice' as stated in the New York papers. Nor was the letter fraudulently obtained by the Post. The Post's record for good faith in all matters is too well known to need further amplification of statement. Neither the Sun nor any other paper has a better record.

"The nub of the matter is that the Post legitimately gave its readers an adequate, accurate instalment of excerpts from the famous and important letter two whole days before the New York Sun and other contemporaries printed the news! No wonder the Sun is sore!"

In an editorial published Sunday the New York Daily News declared the "excerpts" it printed of Smith's statement were received from its Boston correspondent in the ordinary course of business. It maintained there was no breach of confidence or violation of copyright involved in its publication on Saturday, two days prior to the release date observed by other newspapers.

Macdonald DeWitt, attorney for the Daily News, told EDITOR & PUBLISHER that there was no grounds for any suit against the paper.

N. Y. GRAPHIC DECISION MONDAY

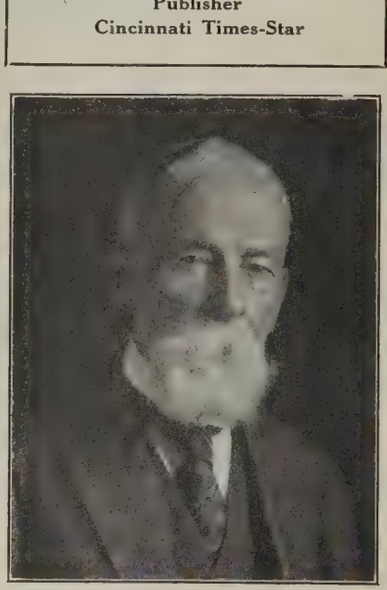
Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan will hand down his decision Monday, April 24 in Homicide Court, New York, in the action brought by John S. Sumner, secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, against Bernarr Macfadden and three employes of the New York Evening Graphic. The charge is violation of the penal code relating to the publication of criminal news and improper pictures.

NEW ADVERTISING SCHOLARSHIP

A scholarship for a student majoring in advertising has been established at Syracuse University. It will be awarded by the Z. L. Potter Company, advertising and sales counsel, Syracuse.

S. D. WEEKLIES MERGED

The Redelm (S. D.) Record, established 10 years ago, has been consolidated with the Ziebach County News, Dupree, S. D. The Record has been printed in the News office the last two years.



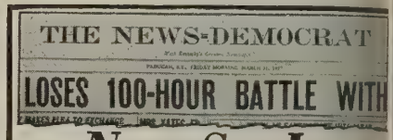
Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By Charles P. Taft, Editor and Publisher Cincinnati Times-Star



Charles P. Taft

THE Associated Press means character in news, in my opinion. Character in news is the same as character in a statement as between individuals. Just as the interest in a statement made by one man to another is based on the reliability of the teller, the news sent from one part of the world to another has the same basic dependence. If the news agency is reliable, its statements are acted on as if they were firsthand information. This is what I mean in saying that the Associated Press to me means character. The local news and the non-local news make up the sum of the news in the paper, and the non-local news is based on, if not largely obtained from the Associated Press. The local news reporting is measured by the reliability standard of the Associated Press, so that the influence of the Associated Press is felt not only in its own news but also in all other news departments. In general, I feel that, if it is news of non-local character, the Associated Press will have it, and if the Associated Press does not send it out it is just as well to wait a little while to see if the Associated Press does not send it along. There are exceptions, of course, but they are not frequent.

As a pioneer member of the Associated Press, I have noted its progress, its spread to world-wide comprehensiveness and the increasing liveliness in its news presentation.

HEADS THREE MAN JURY

Thomas O'Connor, a photographer on the Boston (Mass.) Globe, had the unusual experience of being foreman of a three-man jury in the Superior Court in Boston, April 12. This was the first time in the history of Massachusetts courts that three men have sat on a jury. All other members had been excused.

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

—and we're after the other two!

SUCH is the coverage of the NEWARK EVENING NEWS in the city which a recent survey shows to be the most densely populated city in America.

THIS, together with its 1926 Advertising record proves conclusively that it is the medium to use to cover the richest section of the Metropolitan District.

First in America in National, Automobile and Classified Advertising (In week-day issues)

Newark Evening News
ALWAYS REACHES HOME

Eugene W. Farrell
Business and Advertising Manager
215-221 Market Street
Newark New Jersey

O'MARA & ORMSBEE, Inc.
General Advertising Representatives
New York Chicago Detroit San Francisco

Ionic No. 5

January 1—60 Newspapers Using It

February 1—80 Newspapers Using It

March 1—125 Newspapers Using It

April 1—200 Newspapers Using It

These figures are significant. They show clearly, convincingly, that newspaper publishers—large and small—in all sections of the country—big and little—are finding Linotype Ionic No. 5 the very newspaper body face they have been waiting for—a face that is easier to read and that gives increased lineage. The map on the following page shows some of the 200 and more newspapers using Linotype Ionic No. 5.

© TRADE LINOTYPE MARK ©

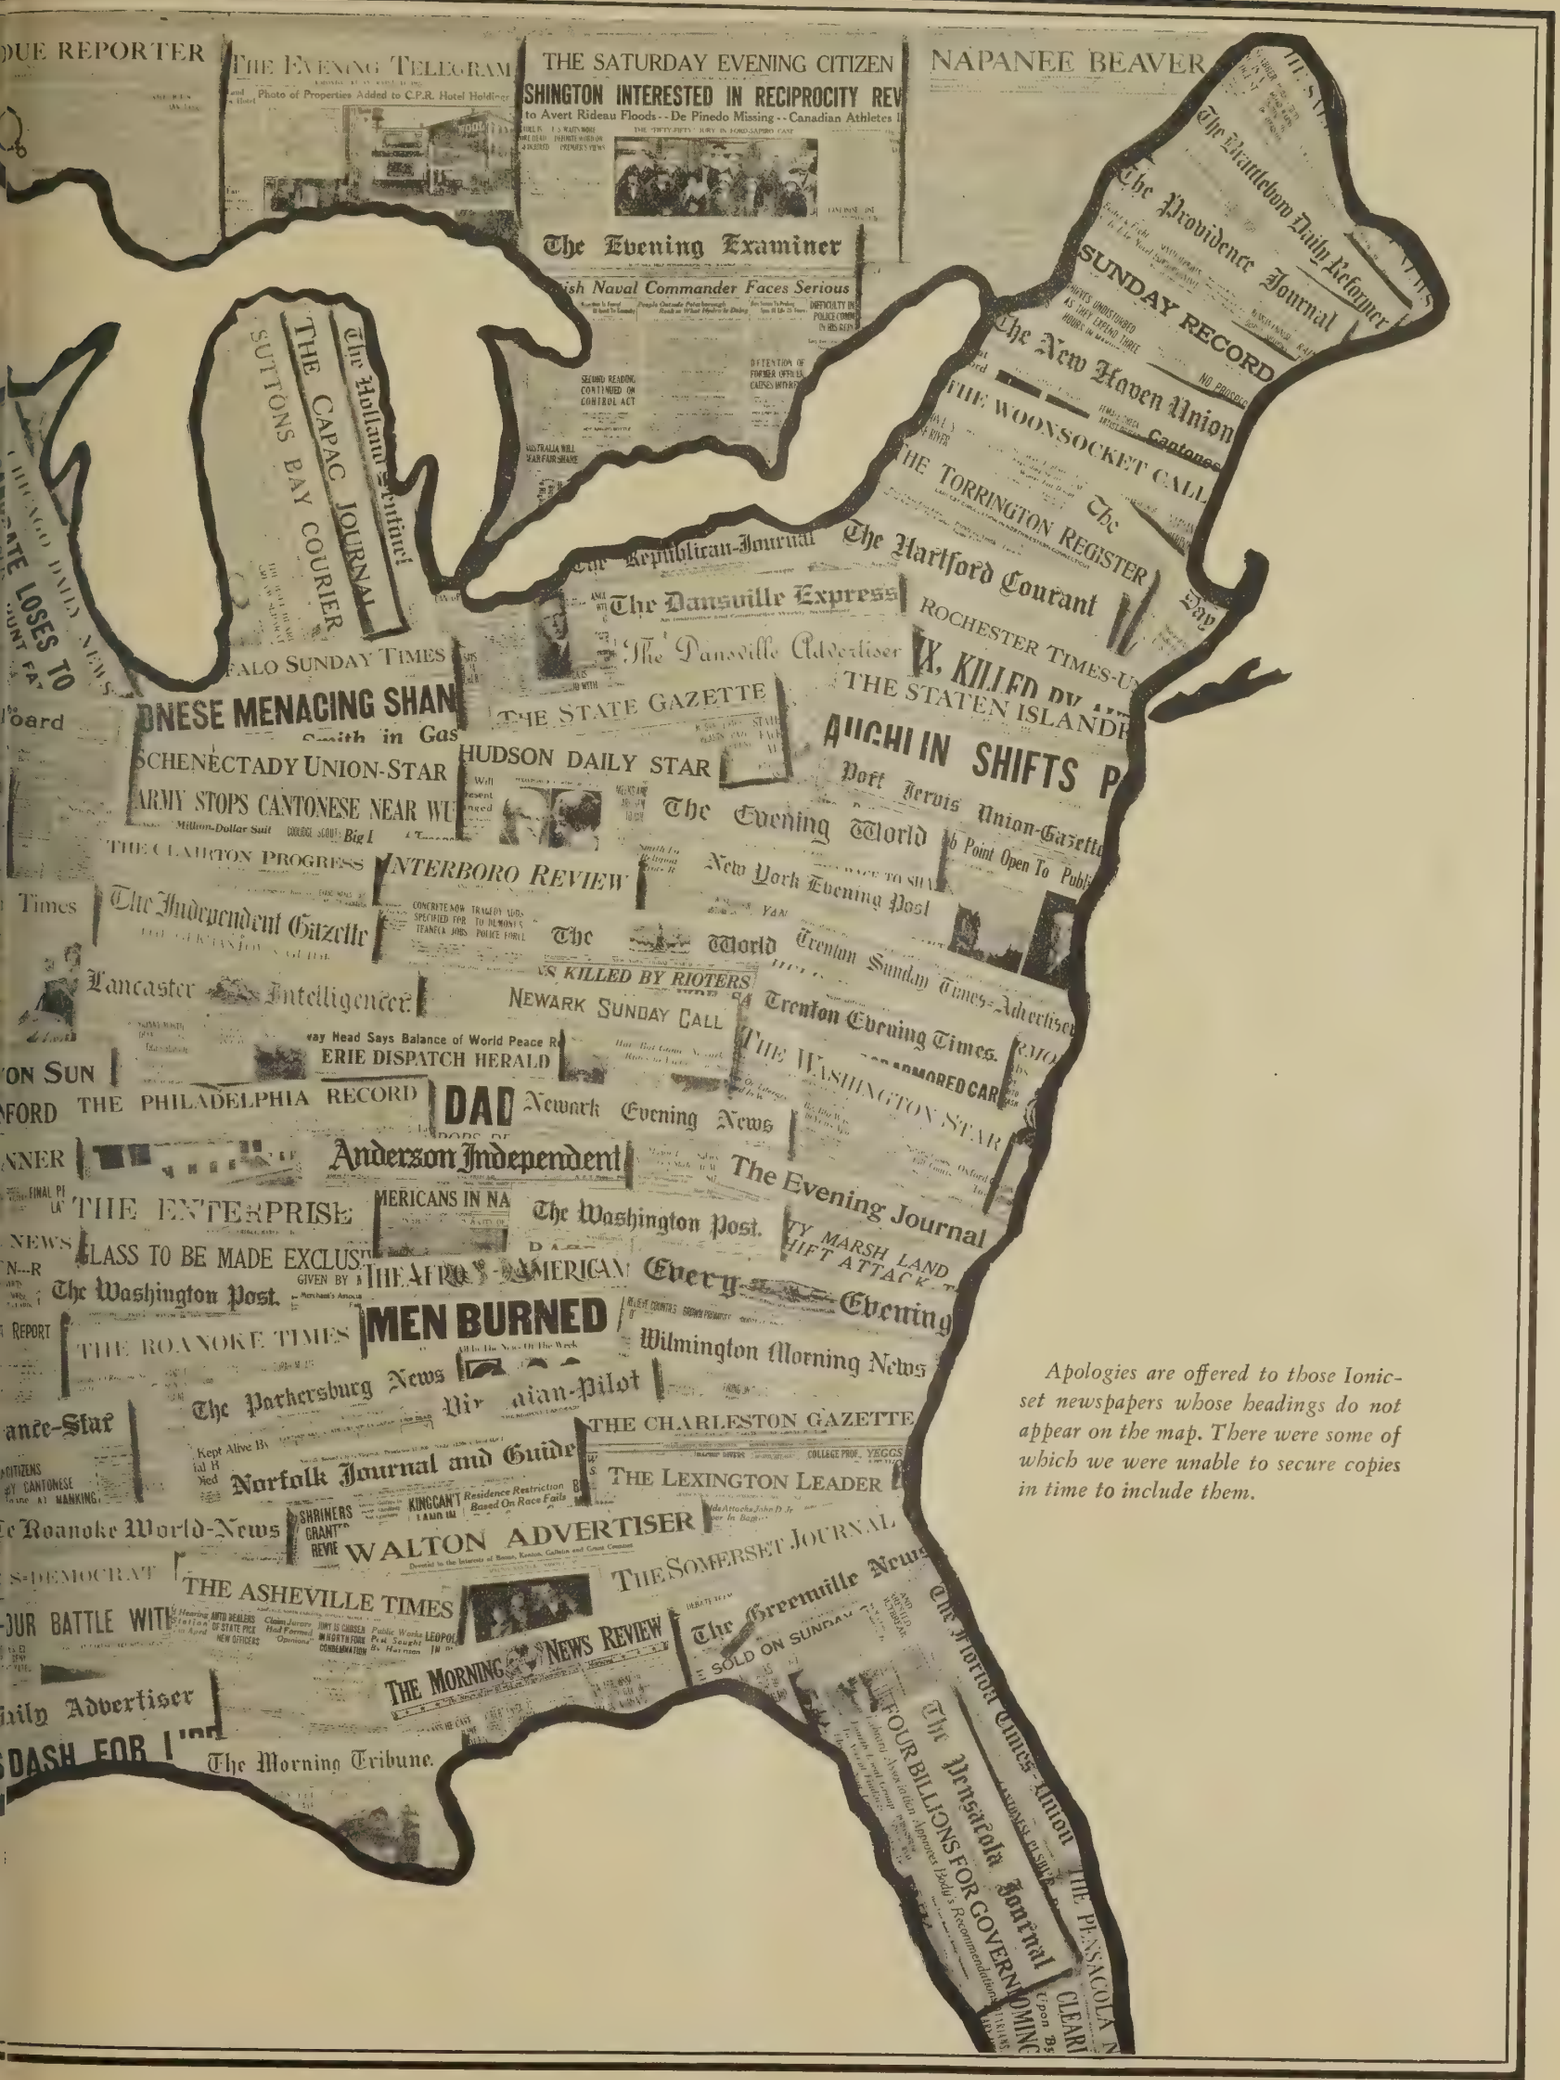
MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World



LINOTYPED IN NARCISS AND GARAMOND EXCEPT LARGE TITLE LINE

NOW Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

Apologies are offered to those Ionic-set newspapers whose headings do not appear on the map. There were some of which we were unable to secure copies in time to include them.

The Readable Newspaper

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK — TEXT SET IN 7, 6½ AND 5½ POINT IONIC NO. 5 WITH BOLD FACE NO. 2 — TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

OPTOMETRISTS PRAISE NEW TYPE USED IN THE DISPATCH

"Decided Improvement" Is Comment — Hailed as Boon Particularly to Elderly Persons Whose Eyesight is Beginning to Fail—Newspaper Used in Test

From the Columbus Dispatch

Opticians and optometrists of the city were enthusiastic concerning the higher visibility and easier reading qualities of the new type now in use by The Dispatch, when interviewed Wednesday.

In one instance The Dispatch is being used in testing, while in another case a Dispatch reader told an optician that the type was too clear and that it dazzled her eyes to read it.

According to C. N. McDonnell, former president of the American Optical Association, the new type already has received the indorsement of the American Optical Co., largest manufacturers of lenses in the world, of which company Professor Charles Sheard, formerly of the Ohio State university, is president.

Decided Improvement

"The new type is a very decided improvement," McDonnell said, "particularly to people over 40 years of age, whose eyesight is beginning to fail, it is a boon."

Wm. A. LeVeck, of the firm of McGuire & LeVeck, 50 North Third street, said that the old type was murky and blurred. "The new type is a vast improvement," LeVeck said. "I use The Dispatch to ascertain at what distance a reader normally holds a newspaper and yesterday one man found that he could read the small type of the weather report much better than the old type used in The Dispatch."

W. F. Savage, manager of the Franklin Optical Co., 46 East Long street, who was employed on The Dispatch as a typesetter 35 or 40 years ago, said that he noticed the change in type instantly and that after interviewing several friends, he found all emphatic in praise except one lady, who claimed the type too clear.

Cleaner Cut

Testing it under three lamps at different angles, Savage said that the type was much clearer and easier to read than the old type.

"The new print can be read with much more comfort," said C. O. Haines of the C. O. Haines Co., 47 East Gay street. "It is a cleaner cut type and there is a pronounced difference. I noticed the change instantly and am mighty glad to see it."

Emphasizing the improvement in reading qualities, C. R. Crist of the Stanley Optical Co., 46 East Long street, said: "The Dispatch is to be commended not only for getting the news for the public but in serving its readers in so many other ways of which this is one."

Better For Eyes

The new type is much easier on the eyes; it is clearer and shows a greater contrast," said Clyde S. Reed, 108 South High street.

"The new type seems easier to read and is better for the eyes," said Robert Hageman of the Ohio State Optical Co., 134 East State street.

"I like the new type better," said I. E. White, 22 East Gay street. "It catches the eye quicker, probably because it has the appearance of being blacker. The sharper contrast between the paper and ink makes it more readable."

"I greatly approve the change," said Stanley L. Copeland, 37 South High street. "It shows a greater contrast between the paper and type."

"Because it stands out better, it seems much easier to read the new type," said A. W. Magnuson of the Harris Co., 5 North High street.

More Reading Comfort

"The new type is bound to give much more reading comfort to the public and cause less eyestrain," said Jay G. Tripp, 82 North High street.

"I find that in using the new type it makes it much easier for people to read and consequently it is easier on the eyes, particularly for people over 40," said P. C. Harris, 136 North High street. "Even those with normal vision find reading the new type less of a strain. When we consider that the eye has direct communication with the brain, the eye seeing and the brain distinguishing, one cannot doubt but that we get more sense out of our reading when the eye functions nor-

First two columns set in

7 Pt. Ionic No. 5

An extremely clear and readable face, ideal for the paper that can afford the space for a 7½ or 8 point body.

Third column set in

6½ Pt. Ionic No. 5

Where conservation of space is a consideration of primary importance this is the face to use.

Fourth column set in

5½ Pt. Ionic No. 5

A splendid type face for classified columns, market reports, legal notices and all other similar purposes.

Ionic Increases Word Count and Also Legibility

Permits Reduction of Type Size Producing Greater Word Capacity, Yet Is Much Easier to Read.

Splendid Even Set Solid

Comparatively Short Ascenders and Descenders Give Open Appearance Between Lines.

The selection of a newspaper type dress, whether for news columns or classified ads, calls for the careful weighing of two factors: legibility and word count. It is ordinarily assumed that one must be sacrificed for the other, but this is not necessarily true as may be seen by a study of the new face, Ionic No. 5, in which these two desirable qualities are combined to a remarkable degree.

The growing demand for space, with which publishers constantly find themselves confronted, presents a problem that can now be met in a satisfactory way.

A smaller size of Ionic is as easy to read as a larger size in some other face, hence a reduction in type size does not mean lessened legibility, but instead means easier reading than the type face originally used.

The comparatively short ascenders and descenders give the lines an open, leaded appearance even when they are set solid. The 5½ point size may be set 14 lines to the inch, with special short descenders; the 6½ point may be set on a 6½ point slug and the seven on seven, or they may be leaded to any desired extent.

Has Even, Restful Tone

This new Ionic is an exceptionally readable face. The openness of the rounded letters—the height and width of the lower case—the clear-cut capitals—the size and fullness of the figures—the absence of marked contrast between thick and thin strokes—the well-fitted units—the maximum letter-count—all of these things go to make this new type a most desirable newspaper face. There are no "pin-holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink; no fine lines to break down in stereotyping. The even color of the character is particularly adapted to the "roughness" of newspaper stock. The outstanding advantage of the new face is its conservation of vision. The even tone throughout is restful to the eyes without being monotonous. There is enough variation to avoid tiresomeness, yet not enough to be disconcerting. A happy medium has been effected. Various degrees of leading can be used to advantage, or the lines

POSITIONS WANTED—MEN

ACCOUNTANT—Books opened, audits, tax reports; part time bookkeeping at reasonable rates. Piper, 41 John st. Beekman 4581.

ACCOUNTANT—Expert, will keep few small sets books. D 103, Herald Tribune, Downtown.

ACCOUNTANT—Audit, systems, bookkeeping arrangements; taxes; financial statements; moderate fees. Cathedral 5372.

ARCHITECTURAL—General Draughtsman, 25 years' experience in New York; take care of large work. D 96, Herald Tribune, Downtown.

ARTIST PLASTIC—Young man; also book cover designer in ink. Plaster caster wants connections. Phone Orchard 305, after 6 p. m.

BOOKKEEPER—Beginner; references. John Muratori, 37 E. 58th st. Regent 7340.

BOOKKEEPER—Cashier, neat, experienced; excellent references. D 11, Herald Tribune, Downtown.

BUTLER wishes position private family; personal references; city, country. Lotz, 120 W. 102d.

BUTLER, useful, thoroughly experienced; excellent references; Friday. Mason's Agency, 47 East 44th.

LEGAL NOTICES

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY—PETER F. MURPHY, Plaintiff, against E. DEAN FULLER, Defendant.

YOU ARE HEREBY SUMMONED to answer the complaint in this action, and to serve a copy of your answer, or, if the complaint is not served with this summons, to serve a notice of appearance, on the plaintiff's attorney, within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service. In case of your failure to appear, or answer, judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the complaint.

The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication, pursuant to an order of Hon. Phoenix Ingraham, dated the 3rd day of December, 1926, and filed with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of the Supreme Court, at the County Court House, in the City, County and State of New York.

Dated, the 3rd day of December, 1926.

BERNARD ARONSON, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Set 14 Lines to the Inch (Short Descenders)

HAVANA RESULTS

FIRST RACE—Purse $700; claiming; three-year-olds and upward; five and one-half furlongs.

Play Hour, 115	(Henslein)	4–1	8–5	4–5
Gussie P., 107	(Dale)	—	even	1–2
Kalakaua, 110	(Catrone)	—	—	6–5

Time—1:07 3-5. Liborio, Bellefonte, Voorfloor, Pilades, Seapen, Baalbeck II, Zoona, Clean and Bachelor's Error also ran.

SECOND RACE—Purse $700; claiming; three-year-olds and upward; five and one-half furlongs.

Lew Pope, 115	(Groos)	8–1	3–1	8–5
Lieut. Farrell, 110	(Fishman)	—	even	1–2
Cappie, 107	(Pickens)	—	—	2–1

Time—1:07 3-5. Ceres, Adventuress, P. T. Barnum, Acquitted, Little Jennie, Eileen M. Ranock also ran.

THIRD RACE—Purse $700; claiming; three-year-olds and upward; five and one-half furlongs.

Appellate, 108	(July)	4–1	8–5	4–5
Winding Th'gh, 107	(Pickens)	—	even	1–2
Vasquez, 107	(Morar)	—	—	4–5

Time—1:08. Brier Hill, Serline, J. Marrone II, Oblique, Ponce, Yellow Pine and Countess Claridge also ran.

DOMESTIC BONDS

Sales (000 omitted).	High.	Low.	Last.	chge.
1 Alum 7s '33	106	106	106	——
37 Am G & El 6s	100½	100	100½	r ¼
21 Am P & L 6s	100	92½	99½	——
2 Am Roll M 6s	103	103	103	——
20 Am Seating 6s	99½	99½	99½	——
6 Am W Wks 6s	97⅞	97¾	97¾	——
3 Anacon Cop 6s	103	102⅞	102⅞	— ⅛
10 Appala'n Pr 5s	94⅞	94⅞	94⅞	— ⅛
16 Assoc G & El 6s	102	101⅝	101⅝	— ¼
18 Assoc S H 6½s	97½	97½	97½	——
5 Atl Fruit Inc 8s	19	19	19	——
9 Beaver Bd 8s	99	98¼	98¼	— ½
5 Bell T Can 5s	100¼	100¼	100¼	— ¼
1 Buff Gen El 5s	102	102	102	——
1 C N R Equip 7s	111⅜	111¾	111⅜	r ¼
25 Car Pr & Lt 5s	99	99	99	——
29 Cities Svs 6s	93⅝	93⅛	93¼	+ ⅛
1 do 7s D	112	112	112	+ ⅛
2 Cs G C 5½s E	106⅝	106⅝	106⅝	+ ⅝
1 Cons Tex 8s	84	84	84	+ ⅜
6 Cont Cor 6s	98¾	98½	98⅜	+ ¾
1 Cub Tel 7½s	110½	110½	110½	——
6 Cudahy 5s	96¼	96¼	96¼	+ ¼
6 Det C Gas 6s	107½	107½	107½	——
10 Duke P P 6s	102¾	102½	102½	— ⅛
1 E Ter 6s	100½	100½	100½	——
1 El Refrig 6s	103⅞	103⅞	103⅞	——
6 Fisk Rub 5½s	97⅝	97½	97⅝	——
2 Galena S O 7s	91	90	90	— 1

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

Display Type is Linotype Bodoni Bold

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

'Abie's Irish Rose" Prepared for Newspapers in Serial and Strip Form —Lives of the Living in Picture Strips—New Science Service Features ROADWAY'S Methuselah of plays, the most talked of theatrical produc- of the age, "Abie's Irish Rose,, will n shortly for a run in the news- ers.

nne Nichols, author of the play that made her a millionairess, has signed ontract with Howard Wheeler, gen- manager of the United Feature Syn- te, turning over the newspaper serial comic strip rights to that syndicate release. Shortly after the contract signed with United Feature Syndicate, book rights to the serial were acquired Harper & Brothers. The book, how- will not be published until after the paper serialization is completed.

iss Nichols is now in Paris, where is completing the manuscript chang- he dialogue of the drama into serial for newspaper use. According to nt plans the first chapter of the l will be ready for publication June It will run for 70 daily installments. omic strip drawn around the char- s of the play and serial will start on as the latter is finished.

e United Feature Syndicate is hold- a reception on Tuesday afternoon week at the Waldorf for Miss Elsie ols, sister of the playwright and ng lady of the New York cast of s Irish Rose."

---

der the title of "Lives of the Liv- reat," the O'Dell Newspaper Serv- New York, has prepared a number ographies of famous celebrities of in picture strip form for news- publication. The first on the ule is the life of George Bernard , with the text of the strip written rchibald Henderson. Thomas A. n has also authorized the publica- of his life in strip form. It be written by Arthur J. Palmer, five years associated with Mr. n, and drawn by Frank Kuchen- r, formerly cartoonist of the n Herald.

---

ent additions to the Science Service nclude: "Ask Yourself"; "Test elf"; "Ventures"; "How Bright Is Baby?"; "The Big World of Little s"; and "Golf."

---

ss Bluebeard" is the title of the "love problem story" from the pen zel Deyo Batchelor, Ledger Syndi- riter.

Henle Newspaper Syndicate, Inc., York, has obtained the newspaper rights to six short stories by Ach- bdullah.

---

liam Nelson Taft is the creator of Do You Know You Know," a question-and-answer feature dis- d by the New York Evening Post ate.

---

n Billy De Beck, who draws y Google and Spark Plug" let his p and Spark Plug's baby colt ar- it gave him an idea for a contest. ed readers to send in suggestions ne the new horse. So far thou- of letters have been received in se, according to King Features ate, which sells this strip to edilock Holmes is staging one of his c "returns" in three new stories by thor Conan Doyle which are be- ered to newspapers by the Ledger ate, Philadelphia.

---

---

ge E. Shipway is a director of n Features, Inc., New York and nd. instead of E. L. Shipway as ted.

Jack R. Hornady, southern business representative of the King Feature Syndicate and International News Service, and Mrs. Hornady are parents of a daughter born at Atlantic City, April 2.

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By G. B. Dealey, President, Dallas (Tex.) News

G. B. Dealey

TO the Dallas Morning News, the Associated Press means a news service that embodies all the desirable qualities featured in the well-known slogans, such as "All the News That's Fit to Print" and "The News While it Is News."

It is complete, covering everything of importance both in foreign and domestic fields.

It is as prompt and as interesting as is compatible with truth and accuracy.

It is well written, clear.

It is not only thus intrinsically meritorious, but it is valuable because of the favorable reputation of the Associated Press, which is internationally recognized as standing for the highest ideals of journalism, as being reliable, as having no enemies to punish and no friends to reward, as being above the acceptance of propaganda, as being enterprising, sparing neither money or effort to gather the facts and disseminate them for the benefit of the public.

In short, the Associated Press service is valuable to the Dallas Morning News because it is adequate and reliable and because everybody knows that it is such.

HOME-BUILDING SERIAL

Allentown Resident Author of Story Being Run by Morning Call

A newspaper serial on home building written by a local resident and illustrated by pictures of local men and women is being used by the Allentown (Pa.) Morning Call to create interest in the model house it is building in conjunction with Allentown building material advertisers.

Author of the serial and the new idea in promoting home building is John Y. Kohl, Sunday editor of the Morning Call. The serial is entitled "The Ring or the Rung." The scene is laid in Allentown. Pictures illustrating the story were taken by M. C. L. Frantz, the Call's staff photographer.

Co-operating firms have placed advertising contracts considerably in excess of the total cost of the model house, according to Charles C. Curtis, advertising manager.

SEVERAL hundred publishers have already recognized the many advantages of Certified Dry Mat Cold stereotyping.

Among the exclusive users of Certified Dry Mats are the

New York Times
New York World
Buffalo Times
Cleveland Plain Dealer
Detroit Times
Los Angeles Examiner
San Francisco Examiner

What better proof is needed that Certified Dry Mats merit your investigation?

We invite your comparison, for to compare is to know.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Ave. New York, N. Y.

for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility—use Certifieds

MADE IN U. S. A.

EDITORIAL

1927 CONVENTIONS

ANNUAL conventions of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the Associated Press come as familiar harbingers of Spring. This year they will bring to the metropolis probably the largest number of editors and publishers in the history of these organizations.

This is the 41st annual gathering of the members of the A. N. P. A. The program, as usual, is not announced in advance, but consideration of matters related to standards, now being dealt with by two new bureaus, will provide subjects of leading interest. How to curb the amazing waste that curses every newspaper establishment will continue to be a challenging question, but A. N. P. A. this year is able to provide technical information as a guide.

Some strong resolutions condemning the outrageous abuse of the press by commercial and industrial press agents are looked for this year. The matter was sadly neglected by the 1926 convention. It seems to EDITOR & PUBLISHER that the time has come to control this evil by united action, which must be initiated by publishers in cooperation. Standards of practice must be erected and enforced. Every side of this subject has been exposed. Every publisher and editor knows that it is a flagrant abuse of the trusting reading public and the biggest economic leak in the advertising barrel. Common sense and professional honor demand that sly free advertising, most of which is given as a bonus to the more audacious national advertisers, be eliminated from news columns. EDITOR & PUBLISHER earnestly hopes and believes that the A. N. P. A. will this year attack the subject without gloves.

Many of the delegates to the conventions this year are attracted by important questions that have arisen in the affairs of the Associated Press. Some of them are fundamental, organization questions, highly controversial. In some respects this gathering of the members of the A. P. is the most important ever held. These questions must be threshed out on the floor of the convention, fully and freely, all with the object of sustaining the best traditions of the great organization that has in such large measure contributed to the upbuilding of the American press, and of accepting new ideas in line with rational progress. If the structure of the A. P. has faults they can be corrected by action of the membership. The fundamental laws are clear. There is nothing in the situation, as we see it, that cannot be adjusted to suit all interests.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER welcomes the newspaper men of the nation to New York and rejoices with them in another year of unparalleled prosperity. What they have done in a cooperative way in the past has yielded a rich fruit. The newspaper business is on a sound foundation and is the best equipped press for public service that the world knows. We have justified pride in this mighty engine and in those who, by patient and intelligent effort, have reared it to its place in our national life.

There is nothing the matter with the buying power of a nation that last year had a gross income of 89 billions of dollars, with increased savings bank deposits of over a billion, with 80 billions of insurance in force and with banks reporting an important shift from demand to time deposits.

DAD DENIES CHILD

A CORRESPONDENT of the New York Herald Tribune asserted that the word "biannually" does not mean once in two years, whereupon Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly wrote to the editor thus: "Lexicographically, for at least one-half century, biannual has been used for biennial, and these senses are to be found recorded in every dictionary worthy of the name."

This letter caused the Herald Tribune editor to parenthetically remark: "If Dr. Vizetelly will consult Funk & Wagnall's 'New Standard Dictionary of the English Language,' of which Frank H. Vizetelly, Litt. D., LL. D., is managing editor, he will find the following definition: 'Biannual—occurring twice a year; semi-annual.'"

Why do we gloat a little at this? Dr. Vizetelly is one of our heroes. Indeed, we often stand before him awed. Is it the laugh that goes with the banana peel fall? Is it salve for our inferiority dent?

I am come a light into the world, that whosoever believeth on Me should not abide in darkness.—St. John, XII; 46.

EIGHTY PER CENT LIES

ERNEST GLADSTONE RICHARDSON, Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, stationed at Atlanta, knows exactly what he knows. In the course of an address at the annual session of the Newark, N. J., conference at Jersey City recently the good Bishop said, according to a despatch credited to the Associated Press, that "Eighty per cent of all the things you read in the newspaper are lies, and in all my experience I have never known anything that any man said or did reported correctly." The A. P. added that "this attack on the press was cheered for several minutes by the conference."

If Bishop Richardson were to be put on the witness stand and cross-examined on this alleged statement of fact we would bet the $106 we have been saving for a rainy day, against his frock coat, which would be less than nothing in our lives, that the Bishop would say that the A. P.'s version of his speech was a lie and that the 100 per cent imperfect reporting record still remains untouched. If put to it, the Bishop would either have to disclaim the interview or explain how he reached that 80 per cent figure. As a Christian gentleman he would surely not say that he gave an approximate figure when indicting for the high crime of falsehood all the men and women who write for the press. If only 79 per cent are liars the Bishop's libel would lie cruelly upon no less than 2,000 innocent souls, since that would be one per cent of press writers. It is unthinkable that any good Bishop would do a thing like that. So Bishop Richardson either knows that exactly 80 per cent of press stuff is written by liars, or he made an unpardonable speech, or he was misquoted by the A. P. The latter is the best bet, in our opinion. It is the easy way out of the messes that follow the utterance of sweeping public charges. No, no, the Bishop was misquoted.

He who sands my sugar cheats my stomach a little, but he who adulterates my information poisons my mind and may make me stumble throughout life.

AMERICAN FOREST WEEK

FORESIGHTED publishers, interested in the future paper supply, will read with interest Mr. Wheat's article in this issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER. The road to a solution of the forestry problem has been long and sometimes wearisome, but it seems to be getting somewhere at last. Mr. Wheat presents some prospects that appear real. Before another April convention season rolls around it is to be hoped that the legislation will have been written. Put the newspaper press behind this great national need! The time for action is here.

The forest problem has never been better stated than by President Coolidge in his proclamation of American Forest Week, commencing April 24th. Every newspaper should display the document, in our opinion.

Every man who lives by the printed word should read it, and preach the gospel of conservation and reformation. Mr. Coolidge's essential points were:

"One-fourth of our soil is better suited to timber growing than anything else. I cannot escape the conviction that our industrial and agricultural stability will be strengthened by bringing into full productive use this great empire of land. Although much progress has been made in public forestry, and hopeful beginnings in private forestry, we still have a vast aggregate of idle or semi-idle forest land, and another large aggregate of poor farm land that might more profitably grow timber instead of adding to the problem of agricultural overproduction.

* * *

"With widespread forest culture new wealth would spring up for the support of roads, schools and l[o]cal government and the rural regions would enjo[y] a larger share of the national prosperity.

* * *

"American Forest Week gives a useful opportu[nity] for taking counsel on what can and should be don[e] bring these neglected and waiting lands into use. [It] also gives an opportunity for each citizen to cons[ider] his own responsibility in the common task. It is [not] enough that the federal and State governments h[ave] joined hands with the landowner in the first [step] toward forest rehabilitation—protection against [fire]. Every citizen whose thoughtless act may endan[ger] the woods has the obligation of respecting the fo[rest] and guarding it from its worst enemy—fire."

CROSSED IDEALISMS

A CRUSHED and indignant caller at our sanct[um] today is an official of the Simmons Compa[ny], manufacturers of bed equipment. He tells [us] that the article which EDITOR & PUBLISHER recei[ved] ran about the free publicity broadcast to the d[ay] press by A. Rowden King in behalf of the "Simm[ons] Foundation for the Study of Sleep" resulted in [the] utter failure of that campaign. The information [was] heart-breaking, since our object in printing it [was] to warn editors against using material on the ge[neral] subject of beds and sleeping equipment tied to [the] name of Simmons, a manufacturer.

Our caller said that Mr. Simmons was a t[rue] idealist in this matter of proper sleeping equipment; [he] had financed the "foundation" to promote a hig[her] sleeping art. Naturally, he said, the Simmons Co[m]pany expected that the articles in free space, besi[des] being of value to the reading public, would refl[ect] credit on the Simmons company. There might e[ven] be some indirect financial benefits. But really, [Mr.] Simmons was altruistic and willing that all bed ma[n]facturers should share the profits from publicity wh[ich] would tend to make people throw away their a[nti]quated and "disease breeding" sleeping equipment [and] buy materials true to the high modern standard. [The] caller added that Simmons was an advertiser and [the] automobile, radio and other manufacturers got m[uch] free space why couldn't there be a little for g[ood] beds? This latter argument was difficult to answ[er].

We pointed out, however, that the name "Simmo[ns]" over every article in the press agents' series wo[uld] certainly identify the Simmons Company with [the] idealism expressed in the articles. But our ca[ller] felt that our story was "sneering" and actually unt[rue] wherein it stated that the press agent had furnis[hed] illustrations of "typical Simmons beds." The b[eds] in the illustrations, he said, were not typical Simm[ons] beds; they were just beds which any manufactu[rer] might produce. Also he thought it unfair to say t[hat] the description of the ideal bed, in the press age[nt's] hand-out, read like a Simmons advertisement. S[im]mons makes beds as near to his ideal as possible [and] this argument did not impress us, but we did th[ink] that the illustrations were not "typical" of Simm[ons] beds, or of any beds we had ever seen, and are g[lad] to admit the fact. Our caller said that the pr[ess] agent had stuck a ten-dollar charge on the hand-[out] not to get the ten, but to make editors "feel t[hey] were not getting something for nothing."

Every fellow for his own set of high principles [in] this good world. We believe that Mr. Simmons is [an] idealist, in a very practical sense, making good pr[ofits] because he makes good beds. We believe people w[ho] have something to sell should put their idealistic s[pir]talk into newspaper advertising columns and not s[pir] to get their names attached to their business princi[ples] into free space.

We do not know how much money was lost [in] this press agent experiment and while we reg[ret] causing disappointment and loss to good people [in] Simmons our stern duty lies before us. Mor[al]: Investigate before investing in press agentry.

It is believed that certain public officials and correspondents in Washington have this year learned that the old anonymous jingo interview, the purpose of which is to support the policy of some bureaucrat, no matter what the public consequences may be, is not now regarded as good journalism nor safe politics.

PERSONAL

CYRUS H. K. CURTIS and Mrs. Curtis were hosts to President and Mrs. Coolidge at luncheon aboard the Curtis yacht "Lyndonia" anchored in the Potomac River, April 19.

Robert Lincoln O'Brien, editor of the Boston (Mass.) Herald, was the guest of honor at the semi-annual dinner and get together of the New England Music Trade Association at the Hotel Statler, April 11.

Edgar B. Piper, editor of the Portland Oregonian, has been re-elected president of the Portland Symphony society. Donald J. Sterling, managing editor of the Oregon Journal, is also active in the symphony society and was chairman of the nominating committee.

Dwight Marvin, editor, Troy (N. Y.) Record, is spending a ten days' vacation in Havana, Cuba.

Joseph Zuker, legal representative of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, is touring the Pacific Coast. He went to Tacoma to defend the Tribune Publishing Company against a $50,000 libel suit which resulted in favor of the company. Mr. Zuker was in charge of the police news desk of the Plain Dealer for 20 years.

W. H. Dennis, editor and publisher of the Halifax (N. S.) Herald and the Morning Mail, was elected a director of the Nova Scotia Trust Company, Halifax, recently.

J. T. Porte, president of the Porte Publishing Company, Salt Lake City, and in 1926 secretary-treasurer of the Utah State Press Association, has returned from a world tour. He was accompanied by his wife.

Carl T. Robertson, associate editorial writer for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, has returned from a ten weeks' trip through Spain and other European countries. Mr. Robertson was accompanied by his wife.

Raul M. Pereira, editor of the Portuguese newspaper, Diario De Noticias, of New Bedford, Mass., was tendered a party on the occasion of his 50th birthday recently by his associates and friends.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

ALVIN A. HARVEY, assistant cashier, Boston (Mass.) Globe, is spending two weeks with his father, George Harvey, at Hermal, Cal. His co-workers on the Globe gave him a purse of gold and a watch before his departure.

Edward L. Foster, for 19 years in the circulation department of the Hornell (N. Y.) Tribune-Times, has resigned to join the Almond Typewriter Exchange.

Paul Stoughton, formerly with the promotion department of the Detroit Free Press, has joined the promotion department of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

ARTHUR RANSOME, correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, spent a week in Peking recently on his way back to Europe after visiting Canton, Shanghai and Hankow.

Herbert Asbury returned to the night city desk of the New York Herald Tribune on April 15, after a six weeks' leave of absence, during which time he worked on a new book. Mr. Asbury's "A Methodist Saint" was published last month.

Thomas R. Ybarra, New York Times Havana correspondent, sailed on the Havana Clipic on April 15, after a visit to this country.

Don G. Logan of the society department of the New York Herald Tribune, who has been abroad since early in the winter on leave of absence, returned to his desk last week.

J. W. Waymack, managing editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune-Capital, sailed from New York recently for a European tour.

Harry Averill, recently made sports editor of the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun while a corporal in the army at Fort Benning, Ga., served for more than a year as Fort Benning correspondent for the Enquirer-Sun. He held the rank of first lieutenant during the World War and for a period was vice-consul to Haiti.

Jeremiah P. Shalloo, of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram staff, has accepted a position as instructor in sociology at the University of Pennsylvania.

Albert F. Philips, state capitol reporter for the Salt Lake City Telegram and dean of Utah reporters, has been re-elected president of the Utah State Historical Society.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh J. Schuck and child are spending six weeks in Peking before returning to the United States. Schuck has been news editor of the Japan Advertiser of Tokio, serving on the paper for the past three years.

Harold J. Murphy, formerly city editor of the Ogdensburg (N. Y.) News, has returned from a tour in the southwest.

Henry P. Edwards, base ball writer for the Cleveland Plain Dealer for more than a score of years' has been elected a director of the Merchants' Trust & Savings Company.

Changes in the editorial staff of the Albany (N. Y.) Evening News include Albert E. Dale, city editor, to news editor; Al Carson, copy desk, to makeup editor; and Edward Fales, Jr., federal building reporter, to assistant to Bob Reeves, recently promoted from the copy desk to city editor.

Michael J. Ahearne, of the reportorial staff, Worcester (Mass.) Post, has been appointed a lieutenant in the Army Intelligence Service in his district.

Ernest La Branch, staff reporter for the Fall River (Mass.) Globe, has resigned to enter the advertising business with a Springfield, Mass., concern.

James J. Harrington, city hall reporter, Fall River (Mass.) Herald News, has retired from the Board of Registrars of Voters of that city after 12 years of service.

John M. Hurley, former reporter for the Fall River (Mass.) Globe, is now an assistant announcer at Station WBZ, New York.

William F. B. McNeary, city editor of the Newark Sunday Call; Arthur J. Sinnott, managing editor of the Newark Evening News; Herman B. Walker, of the Newark Ledger and Bill Steinke, Newark newspaper cartoonist, explained "How a Newspaper is Made," April 12, before an audience in the auditorium of Temple B'nai Abraham.

Edward Healy has resigned from the editorial staff Cohoes (N. Y.) American.

George Gordon Breed, who has been in the West, several weeks recuperating from an illness, has returned to his duties in the Orange bureau of the Newark Evening News.

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By Marcellus M. Murdock, Publisher Wichita Eagle

Marcellus M. Murdock

THE Associated Press means to the Wichita Eagle world and national coverage of news. It means speed, almost simultaneous with the news event. It means accuracy and reliability. It means mutuality—an exchange of news and news protection among more than twelve hundred fellow publishers. And through the co-ordination of all these values with other factors the Associated Press assures reader interest, reader respect, reader permanancy, circulation, advertising and success.

Joseph D. Kelly, formerly of Oshkosh, Mich., is now on the re-write battery of the Providence Journal.

Harry J. Gourley, of the Utica (N. Y.) Observer-Dispatch staff, will become superintendent of the Utica branch of the Stevens-Swan Humane Society of Oneida County on May 2.

Edward Joseph Allen, night police reporter for the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram, has resigned to go to Boston and has been replaced by Henry Ford, formerly a staff man on the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot-Ledger.

Noah Z. LaMountain, for the past year political writer for the Springfield (Mass.) Union, has joined the copy desk of the Union.

(Continued on page 64)

A Daily Fashion Feature That Is Distinctive Personality and Style

Miss Julia Boyd

Two Columns—All in the mat

Miss Boyd sketches the clothes on real women of fashion.

The McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

V. V. McNitt, President — Times Building, New York — Charles V. McAdam, Vice President

METROPOLITAN FEATURES

Room 146
Convention Floor
Waldorf

COMICS
ELLA CINDERS STRIP
and
ELLA CINDERS
COLORED PAGE
By Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb
DICKEY'S DOGS
By Robert L. Dickey

SPORTS
FEG MURRAY
Cartoons, Comment,
Wise-Cracks

DAILY SERIAL
MILDRED BARBOUR
With Illustrations

FASHIONS
ELEANOR GUNN
and METROPOLITAN

JUVENILE SECKATARY
HAWKINS
With New Club page

WEEKLY STORIAL
LUCILLE VAN SLYKE
Illustrated

WEEKLY HUMOR
STEPHEN LEACOCK
A. A. MILNE

OTHER WEEKLY
WINNERS
ZENITH FICTION
PINNACLE FICTION
SHORT
SHORT STORIES EXPLOIT and ADVENTURE
PRE-EMINENT
ARTICLES

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St., New York City

(Continued from page 63)

Billy Whitcomb, amateur golf champion of Worcester, Mass., has joined the sports staff of the Worcester Telegram and is conducting a column, "Speaking of Golf."

Pete Duggan, sports editor of the Worcester (Mas.) Telegram, is on the southern trip with the Holy Cross College baseball team.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

LEO P. KENNEALLY, from Worcester Telegram copy desk, to Pawtucket branch of the Providence Journal.

Frederick H. Houck, from Sunday feature department, Providence Journal, to copy desk, St. Louis Star.

Robert Bell, from police reporter, Mason City (Ia.) Globe-Gazette, to staff Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Gazette.

Richard Montague, from New York Herald Tribune staff, to editorial staff New York Evening Post.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

SIOUX FALLS (S. D.) DAILY ARGUS-LEADER, 132-page 42nd anniversary edition, March 30.

Franklin (Ind.) Star special Easter edition, April 13.

Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker Press, a special 20-page "Home Beautiful" section April 17 in connection with its erection of a model home.

Biloxi (Miss.) Daily Herald, special edition on opening of new Edgewater Gulf Hotel.

Pleasantville (N. J.) Press, special Easter section with color cover, April 12.

MARRIED

WILLIAM N. BATDORF, reporter on the Burlington (Kan.) Daily Republican, to Miss Mildred Fletcher, society editor of the Republican, recently.

J. A. Crawford, of the reportorial staff, Cleveland Plain Dealer, to Miss May G. Arthur, of East Lansing, Mich., recently.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

MORE than 250 newspapers have adopted the new Linotype Ionic No. 5 type style, it was announced recently. To celebrate the record the Matrix Department of the Merganthaler Company gave an "Ionic dance and entertainment" in the company cafeteria April 22.

Alhambra (Cal.) Post-Advocate is planning to erect a modern plant.

San Jose (Cal.) Mercury Herald will soon construct a 4-story steel and concreate newspaper building.

Coronado (Cal.) Journal is erecting a new brick and tile building.

El Centro (Cal.) Imperial Valley Press has let the contract for a new plant.

Among the press orders placed recently with R. Hoe & Co. are: nine "Z" pattern units for the Omaha Bee; eight new superspeed units, eight ball racks, two color cylinders and two units for multi-color press for the Spokane Spokesman-Review; one double sextuple balcony press for the Detroit Times; six straight-pattern superspeed units to Mitsui for Japan; two high-speed sextuples and five magazine rotary web presses for Empressa Editorial Haynes, Ltd., Buenos Aires; two high-speed double sextuples and two high-speed units for De Telegraph, Amsterdam, Holland; one 8-cylinder universal-unit multi-color press for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; one 8-cylinder universal-unit multi-color press for the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

St. Louis Star, beginning with Monday's issue, adopted the 7-point Ionic No. 5 type on an 8-point slug. The paper for many years was a user of 7-point No. 2 on an 8-point slug.

Recent Linotype installations include: American Racing Record, New York—3 Model 8; New York Times, 2 Model 9; Skanateales (N. Y.) Press, Model 14; Huntingdon (Pa.) Press; Germantown (Pa.) Independent-Gazette; Portage (Pa.) Dispatch; L'Italia, Chicago; Russell (Ky.) Times; Gaylord (Minn.) Hub; Kennedy (Minn.) Star; Morton (Minn.) Enterprise; Trayon (Neb.) Graphic; Beloit (Wis.) Independent; Wauzeka (Wis.) Chief; Big Piney (Wyo.) Examiner; Boomville (Miss.) Independent; Gainsboro (Tenn.) Sentinel; McAllen (Tex.) Daily Press; Los Angeles Journal of Commerce; Mojave (Cal.) Record; Indianapolis Tribune, 10 machines; Houston Press, four machines.

John W. Allison, publisher of the Snyder (Okla.) Signal Star, will rebuild his newspaper plant destroyed by fire a few weeks ago.

Recent Intertype installations have been made in the following plants: Baltimore (Md.) Post; Hartford (Conn.) Catholic Transcript (2); Garfield (N. J.) News; Rifle (Colo.) Telegram; Ironton (O.) News (2); Ithaca (Mich.) Gratiot County Herald (2); Brazil (Ind.) Gazette; Alva (Okla.) Record; Alva (Okla.) Review Courier; Corona (Cal.) Independent; El Monte (Cal.) Herald; Santa Rosa (Cal.) Press Democrat (2); Hackensack (N. J.) Bergen County Times; Leonardtown (Md.) St. Mary's Enterprise; Repon (Cal.) Record; Burbank (Cal.) Review.

ON THE MECHANICAL SIDE

ERNEST ROBBINS, foreman of the stereotype department of the Salt Lake City Deseret News, has resigned on account of ill health. He held the position for 38 years. He came from England where he had already gained considerable experience in the mechanical departments of newspapers.

William A. Weinlein of the Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker Press chapel is running on the Progressive ticket for president of International Typographical Union No. 4, against Andrew Donovan of the Sunday Telegram chapel. Sol Rubenstein, after two terms as president, is candidate for delegate to the international convention.

Benjamin Kennoy, foreman of the engraving department, Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union, has resigned to work in Los Angeles, Cal., his home. Peter Schultz succeeds him in the Albany job.

William Kircher, superintendent of the Peoria Star press room, and James Gentry have applied for patent upon an aluminum automobile step and carrier. It will be manufactured by a local accessory factory.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

E. G. McCOY, editor-manager of the Drumright (Okla.) Journal, has purchased a controlling interest in the property and will convert the paper into a semi-weekly. It is published weekly now.

Havana (Ill) Republican, owned and operated by Edward Wilson for 18 years. has been sold to A. W. Kerr, Springfield, Ill., who has taken possession. Mr. Wilson is retiring because of ill health.

S. R. Hoover, former owner of the Shelbina (Mo.) Democrat who afterward operated a job plant in Columbia, Mo., has disposed of that interest and purchased the Slater (Mo.) News and Rustler.

Richard W. Bushell is now the owner of the Enumclaw (Wash.) Herald having bought the interest of the Herald Publishing company. L. H. Bostwick is editor and business manager under the new arrangement.

Conway (Ark.) Weekly Times formerly operated by James D. Espy has been leased by J. H. Swindler of Newport.

H. A. Danford, St. Louis, has purchased the Bevier (Mo.) Appeal and this week asumed management of the paper, which for some time has been operated by the Segaser Newspaper Association of which Clarence G. Sagaser is president. Mr. Danford has been connected with the Christian Church Publications.

R. G. Taylor has bought from McMullen & White the Maywood (Cal.) Enterprise and has changed its name to the Journal.

B. B. Johnson and A. S. Griffith have bought the Tujunga (Cal.) Sentinel and changed it from a semi-weekly to a weekly.

B. L. Wilbourn and A. L. Cowan have bought the Woodland. (Cal.) Home Alliance, a weekly.

Cloverdale (Cal.) Reveille has been bought by Thomas Crawford of the Gilroy (Cal.) Gazette.

Jay T. Arneson has sold the Pilot Rock (Ore.) Record to Charles A. Adsit of Walla Walla, Wash.

E. L. Howard, former owner of the Pana (Ill.) Press, a printing shop, is now located in LaGrange, La., where he purchased the LaGrange Daily Reporter, of which he is owner and editor. For two years after leaving Pana, Howard was in Marshalltown, Ia., where he was engaged in newspaper work.

C. S. Hopkins, publisher of the What Cheer (Ia.) Patriot the last 15 months, has disposed of that paper and taken the Grimes Record shop and will devote his attention to job printing work there.

Firm of Kelly and Kelly has purchased the Cosmopolis (Wash.) Times. D. D. Imus will edit the paper for them.

Buckley (Wash.) Banner has been purchased by the Banner Publishing company from E. W. and D. A. Witten. Archie L. Watts, a graduate of the University of Washington School of Journalism is manager and editor of the new publishing company.

Boswell (Okla.) News has been purchased by M. D. Townley, Sherman, Tex., from Noonan Bonds.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

PHILLIPSBURG (N. J.) STAR, weekly, published by Frank A. Robertson, was launched April 8.

James L. Wick, Milton I. Wick, Jerome Joachim, and Ray E. Koken, owners of the Niles (O.) Daily Times, have begun publication of the Girard (O.) News, a weekly.

FLASHES

Many persons have the idea that character analysis consists of picking neighbor to pieces.—Florence (Ala Herald.

The Prohibition shakeup isn't worryi the bottleggers half as much as t Prohibition shakedown.—El Paso Tim Marriage is the only life sentence th gets commuted for bad behavior.—Ne York American.

"Will High Wages Last?" asks magazine editorial. Well, not very lon with cost of living where it is.—Bal more American.

A girl should dress in a way to co ceal the defects of her figure, says th great authority on the subject in han Miss Ina Claire, but we guess it wou have to be a mighty small defect.—Co umbus Ohio State Journal.

"Goodness!" said the lady who h just read of the renewal of the tong wa "what terrible things to fight with."- New York Evening Post.

Atmospheric conditions recently ha been such that many radio fans thoug they had Nanking.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Why shouldn't foreigners be just welcome in China as the Chinese are California?—Boston Globe.

Among the tender and beautiful ep sodes of the day note the consuming d sire of Joyce Hawley to save Earl Ca roll from the penalties imposed upon hi for having provided her with a ba tub.—Worcester (Mass.) Post.

The girl who insists on having a b church wedding will probably want packed courtroom to witness the divorc —Florence (Ala.) Herald.

While You Are Attending The A. N. P. A. Convention——talk your circulation problems over with me—without obligation.

IT may be your path to more circulation—better paying circulation, new circulation economies or perhaps merely a pleasant acquaintance. My address is the Hotel Algonquin, Vanderbilt 2500, where a phone message will be relayed to me promptly, should I be out.

JACOB OMANSKY

Jacob Omansky & Co., Circulation Consultants
1370 Ontario St., Cleveland

AN INVITATION TO ALL PUBLISHERS

THE State Apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria has been the A. N. P. A. Convention headquarters of the House of Hoe for many years and publishers are invited to make full use of its facilities this year as in the past.

Samples of multi-color newspaper magazine sections, intaglio supplements and offset lithography will be exhibited and a new machine development, the Hoe direct-pressure matrix moulding press, will also be exhibited and shown in operation.

VISIT THE HEADQUARTERS OF HOE

R. HOE & CO., INC.

504-520 GRAND STREET, NEW YORK CITY

BOSTON CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO NEW ORLEANS DUNELLEN LONDON

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Home-Hunters Aided by Special Tabloid Real Estate Section—How the Same Thing Is Done in Los Angeles—Classified Association Directors Meeting May 8

A SPECIAL classified tabloid section called "The Real Estate Tab" was published by the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune on Sunday, April 17.

A. H. Todd, classified manager of the Commercial Tribune, originated this idea for the purpose of giving readers a separate section which could be carried conveniently when "home hunting." Because many real estate prospects respond to Sunday advertising as late as Tuesday and Wednesday, and in some cases much later was evidence that the reader keeps these Sunday ads for future reference.

Mr. Todd believed that by putting this advertising into a tabloid section, easily carried, readers would recognize its advantages and that greater response to real estate advertising would result.

Regular classified arrangement is maintained, and smaller page size makes it easier to scan the individual offerings. Cincinnati real estate dealers in many cases reported increased response.

Teaser copy featuring such slogans as "Handy Reference for the Home Buyer," "Greater Service in Less Size" were used.

A page of real estate and building news was included in the "Tab" section.

It is the plan to make this tabloid section a monthly feature of Commercial Tribune classified.

A twelve page section of the classified department of the Los Angeles Times, Sunday, April 10, contains what is said to be the largest advertising feature of its kind ever published. The entire want ad section was devoted to real estate offerings selected by several hundred dealers as their outstanding opportunities in their localities. More than ten solid pages were used by the advertisers. Very few of the advertisements exceeded two inches of single column width.

The ads covered southern California from the Colorado river to the ocean, every type of property from a mountain cabin to a beach lot, from raw acreage to downtown business blocks. Each city and locality, each type of property, was grouped under self-explanatory headings. The management of the Times contends that the ten pages contain "the most varied presentation of real estate ever assembled by any newspaper in the United States."

The special section was published in co-operation with Southern California real estate dealers.

The annual spring dance of the classified advertising department of the New York Herald Tribune will be held at the Hotel Majestic, New York City, on Saturday evening, April 30.

The executive committee in charge of arrangements includes L. L. Heaton, classified advertising manager, Mrs. M. Stokes and Mrs. B. Harnett.

David Hirsch is chairman of the reception committee; Eva Wittstock, entertainment committee; Leonard Rubin, announcer for the radio program which will be broadcast; and Irving Silbert, master of ceremonies.

Leslie Conly, manager of the Herald Tribune Fresh Air Fund, will speak over the radio, and the music will be furnished by Bernie Fletcher and his Radio Orchestra.

Directors of the Association of Classified Advertising Managers will meet in Baltimore, Md., May 8.

REPRESENTING THE NEWSPAPERS

Mogensen Returns from Pacific Coast Trip with Optomistic Report on Conditions—Hamilton-DeLisser to Entertain Publishers April 26—Are Product Surveys Valuable?

AN optimistic report on conditions on the Pacific Coast were brought back east this week by M. C. Mogensen, president of M. C. Mogensen & Co., newspaper advertising representatives, who returned to New York from a 6,000 mile trip through California, Oregon, and Washington.

"The outlook on the Pacific slope looks better than at any time since 1918," Mr. Mogensen said.

The coast depends upon water and we have had plenty of rain in all sections and there is every indication that 1927 will be a bumper year on all crops.

"Better than that, everything points to high prices for these crops. Reduced costs of production, lower wages, and better selling prices are the chief reasons for the present high standard of Pacific Coast products. The average easterner thinks of the Pacific Coast in terms of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland and Seattle—true, the Pacific Coast looks upon these cities with pride but the wonderful back country, (and on the coast back country as a rule is three or four hundred miles away from the influence of these cities) situated largely in fertile valleys, is the real Pacific Coast."

Hamilton-DeLisser, Inc., New York newspaper special agency, will entertain its newspaper publisher clients at a luncheon on Tuesday April 26 at the Williams Club on East 39th street, New York. About 20 publishers are expected to attend. Palmer Terhune, manager of the agency's Chicago office, will be in New York during convention week. This represents about 30 newspapers.

Do product surveys pay? Are th valuable?

Answers to these questions are in affirmative when they are put to Frank P. Alcorn, president of Alcorn & Seymour Company, Inc., newspaper advertising representatives of New York a Chicago. And in support of his reply, cited the following case in an interv with EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week:

"Recently the Elkhart, (Ind.) Tr made a general ginger ale survey wh among others, was presented to Canada Dry Ginger Ale Company. survey pointed out that their product carried in the majority of outlets cal upon and was first in the matter of c sumer demand.

"This survey was presented to Chicago sales manager, who complimen us highly, and agreed to push the ma of including the Elkhart Truth in th national advertising, with their gen sales manager. As a matter of fact, ter the Chicago sales office looked survey over, they were surprised t Elkhart was not in the 1927 schedule.

John N. Hall, publisher of the Gil (Cal.) Evening Dispatch has appoin M. C. Mogensen & Co., Inc., its natio advertising representative.

Frederic A. Kimball, president Lindenstein Kimball, Inc., was in Marys, Pa., last week and signed a c tract with the St. Marys Press to rep sent them after May 1, 1927.

M. Earle Adams, editor and publis of the Healdsburg (Cal.) Tribune, appointed M. C. Mogensen & Co. his national representative.

SPARTAN Restore Metal

LINOTYPE
INTERTYPE
COMBINATION STEREOTYPE
AUTOPLATE
MONOTYPE

Since
1866

The "BLOOD TRANSFUSION" For Run Down Type Metal

RESTORE METAL PLAN

Constantly keeps the three Component Elements of Type Metal, —Tin, Lead, and Antimony, at peak proportions. It effectively anticipates and checks any lowering of working efficiency.

The VARIED OXIDATION POINTS of the elements of Type Metal brings about an unbalanced Alloy resulting in impaired production.

THE RESTORE METAL PLAN, based on periodic laboratory checks of the metal IN USE, functions to keep the correct ratio between the elements at all times. THE BURDEN RESTS UPON US.

UNDER THIS PLAN THE ORIGINAL FORMULA OF TYPE METAL WILL BE MAINTAINED INDEFINITELY

Complete Descriptive Literature Gladly Mailed—or send us a sample of your metal and we will show you how the RESTORE METAL PLAN will eliminate metal trouble from the list of Publishers' worries.

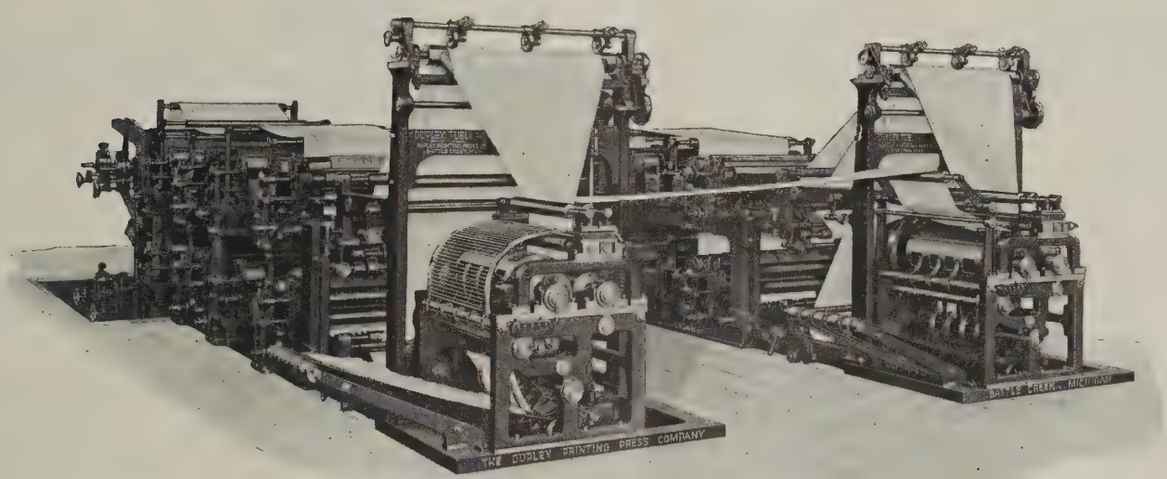
THE RESTORE METAL PLAN has been used for more than twenty years by some of the largest publishers in the country.

MERCHANT & EVANS COMPANY
MANUFACTURERS OF SPARTAN TYPE METALS
PHILADELPHIA
Stock in Many Principal Cities

THE EXTREME VERSATILITY

OF



The Duplex Tubular Plate Press

Construction Affords

IN

THE TWIN UNIT COMBINATION

Greater Flexibility and Assurance of Performance Even In Case of Accident

DUPLEX TUBULAR PLATE PRESS UNIT COMBINATION—32-PAGE CAPACITY, COMPRISING TWO SIXTEEN-PAGE PRESSES FOR INDEPENDENT OPERATION.

Publishers who have very recently taken advantage of this unusual feature by arranging for twin tubular plate press equipment.

OGDEN, UTAH—STANDARD-EXAMINER—32 PAGES—TWIN SIXTEENS.

ABERDEEN, WASH.—WORLD—32 PAGES—TWIN SIXTEENS.

NEWARK, OHIO—ADVOCATE—32 PAGES—TWIN SIXTEENS.

CHICAGO, ILL.—SOUTHTOWN ECONOMIST—32 PAGES—TWIN SIXTEENS—3 FOLDERS.

ROME, N. Y.—SENTINEL—32 PAGES—TWIN SIXTEENS.

ELGIN, ILL.—COURIER-NEWS—48 PAGES—TWIN TWENTY-FOURS.

YOU TOO, CAN TWIN YOUR TUBULAR

THE DUPLEX PRINTING PRESS COMPANY

OF

BATTLE CREEK, MICHIGAN

AN EXTRACT FROM THE BRISBANE, AUSTRALIA-COURIER

A whir of myriad wheels and the roar of smooth-running machinery signalled the official starting yesterday of the two new giant Twin Duplex Tubular Plate Presses which will in the future print the "Courier." By the pressure of an electric button at 3 a. m. No. 1 press was set in motion by the Chief Justice of Queensland (Hon. J. W. Blair), and shortly afterward No. 2 press was similarly started by Mr. Justice Webb. The combined presses were immediately printing "Couriers" at the rate of 60,000 copies an hour, and the rapidly revolving conveyors carried the 28-page papers to the publishing room on the floor above. The managing director of the Brisbane Newspaper Company (Mr. J. J. Knight) explained that they were the speediest type of printing machines in the world.

In welcoming the guests on behalf of the company, Mr. Knight said with reference to the official starting of the new twin Duplex presses by the Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Webb, he felt a considerable amount of pride in the fact that the company was now about to run additional printing machines that were unique in Australia. They were not only original in their conception, but they were the speediest type of printing machines in the world. "I have been considering and investigating these presses for some years," he continues, "and now that it is consummated I think they will give us all the satisfaction that I have claimed for them."

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

PLANS have been completed by the United Press to put its wires on a double trunk basis through the southwest to the Pacific coast. Arrangements for the change were made by Clem J. Randau, business representative, who returned to New York this week from a trip to California.

F. H. Fuller has been appointed Associated Press correspondent in Richmond, Va., succeeding F. J. McDermott, transferred to Atlanta.

International News Service will operate one of their regular high-speed automatic printer machines at the Waldorf during Convention Week. The machine will be cut into one of the regular I. N. S. transcontinental circuits.

F. M. Walter has been transferred from Kansas City to become Associated Press correspondent at Wichita, Kan., succeeding R. B. Petersen, resigned.

Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Gazette began the Saturday night leased wire report of International News Service this week.

Cedric Foster has been placed in charge of a new bureau opened by the United Press in Hartford, Conn.

Oil City (Pa.) Derrick contracted this week for the leased wire printer report of Universal Service.

John Angly returned to the Paris office of the Associated Press this week, following an assignment in Bucharest during the illness of King Ferdinand.

Paul Frederickson, formerly of the San Francisco Bulletin, has joined the Washington staff of the United Press.

Henry J. Allen, publisher of the Wichita (Kan.) Beacon, signed a contract this week for full leased wire automatic printer service of International News Service.

W. H. McGee, formerly of Boston, has opened a new bureau for the United Press at Buffalo. He has been succeeded in Boston by Cecil Owen, transferred from New York.

SCHOOLS

WILLIAM MARSHALL FRENCH, desk editor of the State College News, official publication at the New York State College for Teachers, has been named associate editor for the teachers' college section of the School Press Review, a national magazine for high school and college newspaper staffs.

Charles R. Wade, Cleveland, O., has been made editor-in-chief of the Case Tech, weekly student publication of Case Applied School of Science. George H. Fisher, Hillsdale, Mich., will be business manager.

Forty-one students of the University of Iowa journalism class issued five editions of the Des Moines Register April 16, following a custom inaugurated eight years ago and followed each spring since.

Arnold B Wyckoff, a junior at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., has been elected editor-in-chief of the Concordiensis, college semi-weekly.

Ancient manuscripts, clay tablets and books printed with the first movable type were shown to members of the Typothetæ of Utica, N. Y., Utica Club of Printing House Craftsmen and allied arts, Thursday, April 21, at Hamilton college library, Clinton. Joseph D. Ibbotson, librarian, gave an address on "The History and Early Development of Printing."

ASSOCIATIONS

A "NEW ENGLAND ADVERTISING WEEK" will be ushered in on Nov. 7 and 8 with the eighth annual convention of the NEW ENGLAND ADVERTISING CLUBS at the Hotel Statler, Boston, Mass., according to plans perfected last week. The New England Advertising Week will be devoted to the benefits of the New England industries in general and will be under the auspices of the New England Council.

AURORA (Ill.) ADVERTISING CLUB has adopted a program of civic advancement and its president, Charles W. Hoefer, by unanimous vote, was instructed to appoint a committee to carry out in practical order the range of activities that may be determined necessary for Aurora's interests.

VIRGINIA OUTDOOR ADVERTISING ASSOCIATION held its 1927 State convention in Farmville April 12, at the Hotel Weyanoke, with A. A. Slusher, of Roanoke, president, presiding.

Group 1 of the WASHINGTON PRESS ASSOCIATION held its quarterly convention in Spokane Saturday, April 9.

Joe G. Davis, editor of the Chicago Golfer and a pioneer among American golf writers, was re-elected president of the CHICAGO PRESS GOLF CLUB at the annual meeting April 12. B. G. Wyrick of the Associated Press, treasurer, and W. H. Sahud, of the Chicago Evening Post, secretary, were also re-elected. Vice-presidents elected were W. J. Lewis, Chic- Daily News; Harry Munzel, Chicago Herald and Examiner; L. W. Meredith, Chicago Evening American; Jack Hoag, Chicago Evening Post, and Harland Rohn of the Chicago Tribune.

The first tournament of the club has been scheduled for May 2.

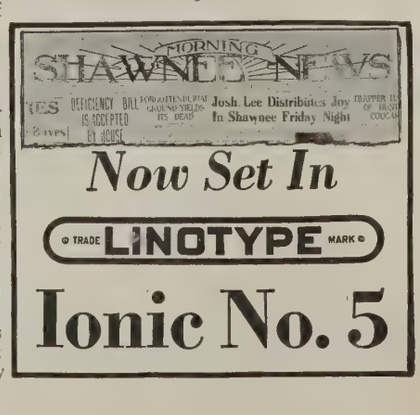
SUMMER ADVERTISING GOLF ASSOCIATION is planning to hold its 1927 tournament at Cooperstown, N. Y., June 18-25. Association officers are H. V. H. Proskev, president; Joseph H. Lynch, vice-president; Eugene Kelley, secretary-treasurer; and Chalmers L. Pancoast, publicity chairman.

Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada, has been made an honorary life member of BRITISH COLUMBIA INSTITUTE OF JOURNALISTS.

Hon. Joseph H. Dillon, Minister without Portfolio and member for Ste. Anne Montreal, was the host recently at a banquet held in the Parliament Restaurant at Quebec to the PARLIAMENTARY PRESS GALLERY. Mr. Dillon proposed the health of the press gallery, and speeches were given by Brig.-General Smart, member for Westmount, and Peter Bercovitch, member for Montreal-St. Louis. Gilbert W. Ghewy, president of the gallery, replied.

ADVERTISING BUILT DEPOSITS

Nebraska Banker Gives Advertising Credit for Growth



Advertising in his home town newspaper, the Nebraska City Daily News-Press, is credited by J. H. Catron, president of the Farmers State Bank, with much of the public confidence which has led his institution in 19 years from deposits of $203,000 to $1,095,000.

"I attribute a large part of this increase in deposits," Catron said, "to the fact that we have continually and persistently advertised."

He added that not only has this brought rapidly and steadily increasing business for his own bank, but that it apparently has also assisted other banks in the city and community.

NEAL JONES RECOVERING

Neal Jones, former managing editor of the Omaha Bee, who was taken seriously ill five weeks ago with a nervous breakdown which later developed into pneumonia, is now well on the road to recovery. Overwork was attributed as the cause of Mr. Jones' illness. Before the Bee-News merger Mr. Jones was editor of the Omaha Daily News.

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

Imperial METAL

The Imperial Plus Plan In a Great Milling City

THE MANY thousands of citizens of Minneapolis, America's leading milling center, are well served by The Minneapolis Journal and the Minneapolis Star. These two splendid papers keep their readers well informed on local, national and international events.

The publishers of these publications see fit to place complete confidence in the ability of Imperial Metal and the Imperial Plus Metal Plan to take care of their type metal. Their selection was based on a desire to get the highest efficiency and the most years of service from their metal. And that's why thousands of leading newspapers stick to Imperial and the Plus Plan.

Be sure to See Imperial at the A. N. P. A. Convention. Ask about the economy advantages of the Plus Plan.

IMPERIAL TYPE METAL CO.

Manufacturing the following metals:

LINOTYPE
ELROD
INTERTYPE
LINOGRAPH

MONOTYPE
LUDLOW
STEREOTYPE
THOMPSON

Philadelphia
Cleveland

New York
Chicago

BEST BY ACID TEST
TRADE MARK REGISTERED

—Options only

The Greatest Strip Feature Ever Offered!

LIVES OF THE LIVING GREAT

in daily six-column STRIPS.

The world's two most distinguished names inaugurate this unique series.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

For twenty-two years exponent, interpreter and biographer of G. B. S.

(The Shaw strip to run 10 weeks.)

THOMAS A. EDISON

Scientist, inventor, benefactor of the human race.

Edison's numerous inventions pictured in detail as they were developed by himself in his own laboratory

AUTHORIZED and O. K.'D by THOMAS A. EDISON whose permission was obtained only after being shown sample strips and a statement of the inestimable educational value of the series.

PARENTS, CHILDREN, TEACHERS college students, churches and educational institutions of all kinds will recognize

THE SUPREME INSPIRATIONAL VALUE of the stories of the careers of those who are living our lives in our day.

Wire for Option—

OPTIONS WILL BE LISTED IN THE ORDER RECEIVED.

THE O'DELL NEWSPAPER SERVICE

FIFTY-FIVE FIFTH AVENUE - - - - - NEW YORK CITY

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Syndicate Feature Selling Is Now a Woman's Job—Grace Walton Honored in England—Woman Editor Gives a Press Agent a "Piece of Her Mind"

IF you don't believe a woman's place is out on the road selling syndicate features to editors, ask Miss Hallie Jenkins, sales manager of Science Service, Washington, D. C. Miss Jenkins has been with Science Service for more than a year and has made many a trip covering the offices of daily newspapers as a syndicate saleswoman.

HALLIE JENKINS

"Why shouldn't a woman sell features?" Miss Jenkins replied when the question was asked her this week. "If it became customary, possibly the managing editors' jobs would be more agreeable than they are."

Miss Jenkins isn't syndicate saleswoman by training. She is artist, first; feature writer, second; and believes that a good saleswoman may possibly be a consolidation of these two.

Miss Jenkins had eight years of art training which somewhat overlapped six years spent in newspaper work. Much of her art instruction was, as she phrased it herself, received under the glow of the more or less popular mazdas. She has written and illustrated a shopping column on the Kansas City Kansan, and has also been on the staff of William Allen White's Emporia (Kan.) Gazette. She has also written poetry and sold it.

Grace Walton, advertising manager of the Julius Kayser Company, New York, manufacturers of silk stockings and gloves, was guest of honor at a luncheon given April 1 in London by Thomas McDougall, governing director of Thomas McDougall Limited. The affair was described by an English writer as "one of the most interesting events that have taken place this year in the world of British Advertising."

GRACE WALTON

Of Miss Walton herself the same anonymous reporter wrote:

"Miss Walton, a charming lady, is undoubtedly the clearest instance we have yet seen of the value of personality, humor and hard-working intelligence applied to modern commerce."

Guests at the luncheon included Miss Marion Jean Lyon, advertising directress of Punch, Miss Muriel Adkins, Morris J. Clifford, W. M. Teasdale, H. T. W. Bousfield, Percy Watson, Charles Davis, H. G. Saward, S. Lindsay and Roy Hardy.

Miss Walton is making an European business trip to study the advertising media in Sweden, Belgium, France and Germany.

" . . . So one day I got good and mad and sat down to give them a piece of my mind."

Mrs. Lela C. White, editor of the Clearwater (Kan.) News, speaking, and speaking about press agents.

The press agents, Mrs. White, said "got my goat." The publicity men who, according to this editor's declaration, got the scolding, are the "public relations experts," whoever they are of the Chevrolet Motor Car Company. Mrs. White said:

"I told them that if anything happened around Clearwater in which a Chevrolet car figured that I would print it as news, but what they sent out was not news but was selling talk for their cars and would only be printed as paid advertising.

"Sometimes a new product comes on the market and a half-page or page ad is put in the paper. Then the publicity man comes in with a long article telling of the product's merits. The publisher puts it in. The new product is the bunk. Who loses the prestige? The manufacturer? Oh; no, your reader doesn't care anything about him, the publisher gets the blame.

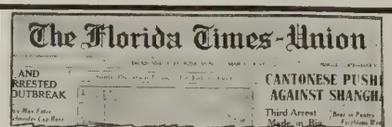
"A new picture comes on the market. It is press agented to be a wonderful picture, a 'Wow,' a master piece. It turns out to be a flop. Your reader thinks that you are either a liar or use mighty poor judgment.

"The thing of it is that by giving away this press agent stuff we risk our own reputation and after all the prestige of our paper is our greatest asset, our biggest item in our selling talk and because of it legitimate advertising gets best results."

Jane Dixon, of the New York Evening Telegram, was married on April 14, to Capt. Walter H. Wells, of the Second Corps Area, a world war veteran assigned to recruiting publicity duty in New York. Miss Dixon's real name before she married was Jane E. Kegler.

Eleanor Schorer, director of the Kiddie Klub of the New York Evening World, and the wife of Chester Hope, manager of Universal Service, was granted a special audience recently at the Vatican by Pope Pius XI.

A net profit of $966 was made by the League of Advertising Women of New York at their annual Crystal Ball, held recently at the Astor Hotel, according to the report filed by Elsie E. Wilson, treasurer.



Miss Nella Brown, society editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, returned last week from a two weeks' trip to Bermuda.

Miss Nina Baker of Boise, Idaho, has been promoted from the circulation department to office manager of the Spokane Woman.

Three women writers, Miss Jo Leonard, Miss Cathleen Driscoll and Miss Helen M. L. Nolan, of the Albany (N. Y.) Evening News staff, were recently assigned to the murder trial of two bandits. Ed Herwig was the only male reporter.

Miss May McNulty of the Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union spent the week in Washington, D. C.

Miss Marie Bergan is acting society editor of the Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union in the absence of Mrs. Marie Avery Myers, who is ill.

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

Death: Nelson Twiner, 22 years old, killed by an exploding cannon during a boat launching celebration, at Bayonne, New Jersey. The cameraman, injured by the same blast that killed Twiner, clicked his camera as the victim was thrown to the floor of the dock. Note the flying debris, mute evidence of the terrific force of the dynamite. One of the most remarkable news pictures ever made. P & A clients got this picture in the regular service.

Newspictures for Newspapers

VIRTUALLY every large or important newspaper in this country has accepted and now uses the picture as a news vehicle. The old time photographer has given way to the new style cameraman—the pictorial reporter. The American public, due to the movies and the use of pictures in publications, has become picture minded. And the progressive editor of today thinks in terms of pictures as well as in terms of text.

Consequently, the best picture service is a modern essential in the news room. This organization, founded and maintained by the Chicago Tribune and the New York News, literally gives news service with pictures! Every news center is covered with a working staff, and P & A gets the cream of pictures from two thousand active and alert correspondents who serve P & A first.

Every means of quick and certain transmission of pictures is employed, regardless of expense—cable and telephone, planes and when necessary, special cars and special trains. So the publisher using P & A service is not only protected at all times, but constantly gets the best and newsiest pictures first. At least one paper in every large city is a P & A client!

This service, moreover, is relatively far less expensive than straight news service. P & A print services represent the best value in the field today. P & A mat services make the output and resources of this organization available to even the smallest papers for a few dollars a week. Wire any branch office, or see a P & A representative in New York during the A.N.P.A. Convention.

PACIFIC & ATLANTIC PHOTOS, Inc.

Home Office: 25 Park Place, New York

CHICAGO · BOSTON · SEATTLE · PHILADELPHIA
WASHINGTON · LOS ANGELES · SAN FRANCISCO · ST. LOUIS
ATLANTA · CLEVELAND · LONDON · PARIS · BERLIN

Spacing

Intertype IDEAL News face. 6½ Point enlarged about 10 times.

Intertype IDEAL News Face

HAS PROPER WHITE SPACE AROUND EACH LETTER FOR MAXIMUM LEGIBILITY

Proper space around letters is just as important to maximum legibility as proper spacing between lines. Every good typographer knows that a relatively light face properly spaced is more readable than a blacker face packed too tight, with insufficient space between lines.

Intertype designers put normal space between letters—for legibility and in order to permit the matrices to have good strong side walls. Matrices with unusually thin sidewalls are liable to maximum breakage—in justification and in striking the channel entrance partitions. In addition Intertype wide-tooth matrices wear longer.

Have your local oculist compare the Ideal News face for legibility with the face you are now using. Intertype Ideal News face is highly readable under the most severe tests.

6½ Point on Solid Slug

The Intertype News Series is meeting the approval of all those who believe that types should be made for the needs of the newspaper reader. The qualities which make the Intertype News Series easy to read are not free from the usual mannerisms of the standard newspaper type faces.

It's Familiar and Friendly.

The Intertype News Series conforms to the familiar and friendly design to which the majority of newspaper readers are accustomed, and yet gives a clearness to print which is not to be had by the use of ordinary light-face type. Intertype established the fact that easy to read type is familiar type. Unfamiliar type quickly tires the eyes. Intertype then set about to improve familiar type. The changes from old standards were, in most instances, not of great importance but most of them were in directions that have heretofore been avoided by type-makers. The hairlines of Intertype News Series show a distinctly visible thickness. The serifs

5½ Point on 5 Point Slug

84TH, 19 WEST—Gentleman appreciating cleanliness; electricity; $7; breakfast. Hawley, Schuyler 3155.

84TH, 316 WEST (Apt. 2E)—Beautifully furnished double room; near bath; reasonable.

85TH, 342 WEST (Clarke Studio), professional people, business girl, elevator; references.

85TH, 327 WEST—Large, front; every convenience; housekeeping privilege; $10. Ludwig.

85TH, 119 WEST—2 rooms, bath, parlor floor; desirable front basement with kitchenette privileges.

85TH (2,345 Broadway)—Large front; private bath, foyer; kitchen privileges. Weaver (46).

85TH, 342 WEST—Lady share large room lady; piano, twin beds. Hallock.

85TH, 349 WEST—Charming large, sunny front living room: smaller, $8. Nash.

85TH, 349 WEST—Attractive room, private family; student or business women. 3W.

86TH (Riverside Drive)—Artistically furnished room; business women; references. Telephone Trafalgar 9667.

86TH, 11 WEST—Large, double rooms, well furnished; kitchen privileges; also small; reasonable.

87TH, 343 WEST—Large, beautiful, sunny front room; adjoining private bath, references.

87TH, 121 WEST—Large room, two windows; semi-private bath; $12; gentleman.

7 Point on Solid Slug

The Intertype News Series is meeting the approval of all those who believe that types should be made for the needs of the newspaper reader. The qualities which make the Intertype News Series easy to read are not free from the ususal mannerisms of the standard newspaper type faces.

It's Familiar and Friendly.

The Intertype News Series conforms to the familiar and friendly design to which the majority of newspaper readers are accustomed, and yet gives a clearness to print which is not to be had by the use of ordinary light-face type. Intertype established the fact that easy to read type is familiar type. Unfamiliar type quickly tires the eyes. Intertype then set about to improve familiar type. The changes from old standards were, in most instances, not of great importance but most of them were in directions that have heretofore been avoided by type-

Intertype matrices will run in other slug-casting machines

Investigate Intertype Wide-Tooth (patented) Matrices

Write nearest branch for larger specimens

Standardized INTERTYPE TRADE MARK

Designed in 5½, 6½, 7 and 8 Point

INTERTYPE CORPORATION: New York 1440 Broadway; Chicago 130 N. Franklin St.; Memphis McCall Bldg.; San Francisco 560 Howard St.; Los Angeles 1240 S. Main St.; Boston 80 Federal St.; London; Berlin

DEATH OF S. DUNBAR WEYER, BERLIN WRITER, SHOCKS NEWSPAPER MEN

I. N. S Correspondent Commits Suicide in Compartment of Berlin-Bremen Train—Leaves Note Giving . Nervous Breakdown as Cause

NEWSPAPER men in Europe and the United States were shocked and grieved this week to learn of the death by his own hand of Siegfried Dunbar Weyer, Berlin correspondent of International News Service for the past six years, previously of the I. N. S. staff in New York and also for years a staff writer for Universal Service. A brilliant writer, linguist, and a reporter of extraordinary accomplishment, Mr. Weyer had established himself as one of the foremost American correspondents in Europe.

Mr. Weyer shot himself in a compartment of the Berlin-Bremen express early in the morning of April 20. He was enroute to embark for the United States and was accompanied by H. R. Knickerbocker, Moscow correspondent of International News Service, who was to fill in at the Berlin bureau during Mr. Weyer's trip to America.

Cable advices to I. N. S. from Mr. Knickerbocker related that he and Mr. Weyer were in conversation until three o'clock in the morning when Mr. Weyer, apparently normal, said that he desired to write some letters, and Mr. Knickerbocker retired to his own compartment.

On arrival of the train at Bremen at 6 A. M. the conductor found Mr. Weyer's body in the compartment with a bullet in the temple. The conductor stated that the man had mailed many letters when the train stopped at Hannover.

Weyer left the following note: "Official explanation—nervous breakdown—seven years without vacation 5:20 A. M."

The body was removed to the home of Mr. Weyer's parents at Hamburg. Mrs. Weyer who was in Berlin with their two children was notified.

There was no great news story in Central Europe during the past six years that did not engage Mr. Weyer. He was known among his colleagues as the "whirlwind correspondent," resourceful, tireless in the pursuit of news, extraordinarily capable in presenting the facts and honorable in his dealings. Many important international beats were marked to his credit.

Three years ago in New York Mr. Weyer told friends in EDITOR & PUBLISHER offices that he was very tired and also that he felt torn between a desire to continue his work in Europe and his love of the United States. Mrs. Weyer is a New York woman and their children were born in this city.

M. Koenigsberg, president, paid high tribute to Mr. Weyer's services as a correspondent and his unfailing devotion to duty.

"Weyer was one of the best foreign correspondents I have ever known," he said. "His remarkable devotion to duty was his outstanding trait. Time and again we have urged Weyer to take a long vacation, to obtain the rest we knew he needed but he felt that the service in Germany he had started required his constant attention. Three years ago he came home for what was to have been an extended stay but he insisted upon returning to Germany ten days after arriving here. Weyer had a notable career as a foreign correspondent, and his brilliant work attracted world wide attention."

Obituary

NELSON C. BAYLEY, 49, of Dexter, N. Y., who for the last 20 years was general field agent for the Garlack-Barklow Publishing Company of Joliet, Ill., died on April 13 at Worcester, Mass. He is survived by his widow and two children.

CHARLES T. PRATT, newspaper man and writer, died April 15 while playing checkers with friends at Pratt, Kan. He entered the newspaper field on the Pratt Republican in 1863, later held a position in the statistical department in Washington and at the time of his death was writing a history of Southwest Kansas.

MRS. ADELAIDE THORNTON ADAIR, wife of Walter T. Adair, president of the World Syndicate Company, New York, died April 14 at her home, Forest Hills, Long Island.

OTIS A. HOPKINS, for many years a newspaper man at Binghamton, N. Y., died there recently. He formerly had been a reporter on the Binghamton Press.

GEORGE R. COZZENS, 42, executive secretary of McGregor Links, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and former newspaper man, died from a self-inflicted bullet wound. Mr. Cozzens began newspaper work with the Associated Press, and for eight years was a legislative reporter. His next position was with the National Bank of Commerce in New York City, where he remained until 1921, when he became connected with the golf club.

EVAN D. DAVIES, formerly connected with the Boston (Mass.) Post and Herald, died at his home in Ashmon, Mass., April 11. Mr. Davies covered many important musical concerts and recitals for both papers.

WALTER ROGERS, 70, one of the pioneers in photo engraving and the man who collaborated with Frederick Ives when the process was first used, died in the Westerly, R. I., Hospital April 12.

HAROLD T. COY, assistant production manager of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, was killed early Saturday morning, April 16, in an automobile accident. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rebecca Coy, and three children.

MRS. ELIZABETH COLLINS, 64, who claimed to have been the first operator of the first typesetting machine installed in Chicago—in the plant of the Chicago Daily News about 1885—died in Mattoon, Ill., April 19.

WILLIAM H. WISNER, JR., 11-year-old son of William H. Wisner, artist on the staff of the Chicago Tribune, was killed when he was struck by an automobile while he was running across the street in front of his home. The driver of the car was held pending an inquest into the accident.

MRS. MARY A. TALBOT, 81, mother of Edwin R. Talbot, news editor of the Boston Traveler, died at the latter's home in West Somerville, Mass, April 14.

ELMER F. HOWARD, 66, publisher of the Northfield (Mass.) Press, a weekly, died suddenly of heart trouble in the railroad station at Northfield, April 16.

MRS. ALAN C. FRAZER, wife of a member of the Boston American editorial staff, died at Forest Hills hospital, Boston, April 13.

SIR ERNEST HODDER-WILLIAMS, 51, head of Hodder and Stoughton, well-known publishers, and chief proprietor of the medical journal, The Lancet, and of The British Weekly (founded by the late Sir William Robertson Nicoll) died on April 8.

JOHN R. MARSHALL

John R. Marshall, pioneer Chicago printer and for many years publisher of the Yorkville (Ill.) Record, died April 19 at his home at Yorkville. Mr. Marshall was 87 years old, and turned over active management of his newspaper several years ago to his son, H. R. Marshall. Mr. Marshall went to work for the Chicago Journal in 1852. He served in the Civil War, after which he moved to Yorkville and established the Kendall County Record.

FRANZ RICHTER

Franz Richter, 76, veteran newspaperman who covered the New York legislature for the New York Staatz Zeitung for about 40 years, died in Troy, N. Y., April 20, at the home of his niece, Mrs. Peter Goedtel. He was born in Germany, coming to America when 18 years of age. After working two years on a small daily in Newark, N. J., he joined the Staats Zeitung staff, remaining there until retirement, five years ago.

F. W. HAROLD, N. Y. TIMES EXECUTIVE, DIES

Had Been in Charge of Advertising Censorship Department Since 1917 —Served on Wilmington and Philadelphia Papers

Frank Walker Harold, who had been in charge of the advertising censorship department of the New York Times since 1917, died April 15 in Montclair, N. J., after an illness of several months.

Mr. Harold was born in Brooklyn on June 25, 1862, and during his youth and early manhood lived in Maryland. On June 10, 1891, he married Miss Margaret Harper of Dover, Del.

His first newspaper experience was on the Every Evening News of Wilmington, Del. Next he was on the reportorial staff of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, remaining there for many years. Later he was connected with the National Export Exposition and the Philadelphia North American, was private secretary to Thomas B. Wanamaker and was associated with the late Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, evangelist. He also was Secretary of the World's Conference, a missionary educational movement holding pageants in large cities.

In 1915 and 1916 Mr. Harold was special secretary and publicity director of the Layman's Missionary Movement in connection with Armenian and Syrian relief. Afterward he performed publicity work for the Y. M. C. A. in the interest of Y. M. C. A. facilities for National Guard units on the Mexican border.

KANSAS CITY VETERAN DEAD

Walter C. Withers, aged 66, who had spent 57½ years of continuous service with the Kansas City Journal and later the Journal-Post, died Monday of heart disease. Mr. Withers was on the way to work when he was stricken. He began his connection with the Journal Sept. 6, 1869, when as a boy of 9 he sold his first bundle of papers. From newsboy he rose to the position of superintendent of the mailing department and later building custodian. Of recent years Mr. Withers had been in charge of the information desk at the Journal-Post. For 52 years Mr. Withers worked at nights. Following purchase of the Journal by Walter S. Dickey and its consolidation with the Post, Mr. Withers was rewarded with day work.

LONDON PAPERS SHOW PULLING POWER

Remarkable Increase in General Business Followed Transit Company's Campaign in British Newspapers

One of the most sensational instanc of the power of newspaper advertisi is reported in London where a remar able experiment in intensive advertisi has just been carried out, according to article in the New York Evening Wor

January, February and March are co sidered to be the quietest months of t year in London, and an attempt w made this spring to annihilate what h been accepted for many years as the sla season. The campaign was undertak by the London Underground Company, hundred and ten million dollar corpor tion, which controls the subways a omnibuses of London.

They began their intensive campaig early in the new year, and conducted solely by means of advertising in t London and principal provincial new papers (except for posters and timetab propaganda on their own stations). Th is the first time that newspaper adverti ing has been used in the interests of a tractions on such a large scale.

The results of the campaign, whi have exceeded anything that was e pected, have revealed themselves in pra tically every phase of life in the west e of London. Theatres and restauran were asked to keep a record of the business and compare it with their bus ness for corresponding periods in previo years. The results have just been issue and show that the increase has been fro 17½ to 30 per cent.

Traffic on the underground syste has been increased by 23 per cent du ing the three months. Stores and th atres and all kinds of restaurants, fro the restaurant of the Savoy, which i creased its business by 24 per cent abo that of last year, to the smallest t shop, have felt the effects of the campaig

Hotels benefited very considerabl from it in view of the fact that thousanc of provincial visitors, having the attra tions of London impressed upon them a somewhat unusual time of the yea made a point of visiting it.

It is estimated that from an outlay c about $220,000 spent in newspaper adve tising, London in general reaped a ben fit of over $2,000,000 during the thre months—normally a period of indifferer business.

VACATION FOR TYPOS

Vacation plans for mechanical employe of the Cleveland Plain Dealer have bee announced. Employes who have serve the paper continuously for 12 years wi receive two weeks' vacation on full pa and those who have served six years wi receive a week. The usual two week vacation on pay will be given all editori department employes and those in othe divisions of the plant.

SUPREME METAL FURNACE
FOR REMELTING AND REFINING METAL

SIMPLEX METAL FEEDER
FOR COMPOSING MACHINES

Will be on exhibition during the A. P. & A. N. P. A. Conventions at the Waldorf-Astoria, in the alcove on the main floor.

ALFRED W. CHANNING, INC.
Manufacturers and Distributors of Equipment for Printers
27 THAMES ST. NEW YORK

FOR ADS AND HEADS

The Show Windows of Your Paper Deserve Fresh New Ludlow Typefaces Daily

Coal Bond
BEST Expect SHOPS
Bright
Strong

BETTER ADS AND HEADS are assured for your paper when your compositors use the versatile Ludlow System. In any size from the small caption line at the bottom, up to 84 point, the largest typeface shown in this advertisement, you can have all your ads and heads print new and fresh in every issue—with all the economies that come with the all-slug system of composition. Appropriate faces can be selected from a wide variety of choice typestyles.

Slug FINE
CAST
NOBLE Plant Decide

Bring Hunting
Method Design

LUDLOW TYPOGRAPH CO.

2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago, Illinois ton: 470 Atlantic Avenue · New York: 63 Park Row · Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street · San Francisco: 5 Third Street

Ludlow Quality Slug Composition

BROOKLYN TIMES NEWSBOYS MEET PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Sixty carriers of the Brooklyn Times were taken on a one day trip to Washington last week as a reward for getting new subscribers. After visiting all the places of interest in the Capital they met President Coolidge. E. S. Dobson, circulation manager, at the President's left, was in charge of the party.

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

Cleveland Plain Dealer Eliminating Wrapping Paper Waste—Teaching a Carrier Boy to Sell Subscriptions—Bargain Sale for Country "Subs."

AN idea which eliminates 25 per cent of the width of the wrapping paper used in bundle mailing has been put into operation in the Cleveland Plain Dealer and it incidentally eliminates considerable handling of mailing lists, rendering a separate list which had been printed, cut, stripped and pasted unnecessary.

Heretofore in bundle mailing it was the custom to wrap the bundle in a wrapper 20 by 40 inches and then paste the address label on the outside. The individual papers all carried the subscribers' names and addresses. The width of the wrapper has been cut to 15 inches and the address is taken from the regular mailing list, serving the double purpose of indicating the stop or station and also one of the subscribers. The last paper in the bundle is used for this and the address is pasted on the bottom white mark margin of the paper.

Thus, John Jones, R. D. F. No. 1, Smithville. Under the old way, a full wrapper was used and a separate mailing list kept for the stops and stations.

The mailing room is also using its hand mailing machines to disset liner pages of rival papers. Each ad is pasted on a white slip of paper and passed on to a department where it is checked and ads not appearing in the Plain Dealer are solicited, or, if a telephone number does not appear, a solicitor is sent out with the ads.

Mailer John Finn has charge of this work and reports it greatly facilitates progress. The mailing machine cuts and pastes quickly. Formerly the ads were cut and pasted by hand—a slow process.

"A good salesman has a good approach," John Miller, division manager of the San Francisco Call tells the carrier boys of that newspaper. "In soliciting," he says, "the approach is the art to cultivate."

A recent article written by Mr. Miller for the Junior Call on subscription solicitation by boys, follows in part:

"A smile on a boy solicitor's face is a subscription trap. No prospect with a heart can resist it. He answers smile with smile. His attention's caught. He's trapped and doesn't know it. He just throws his ears forward with rare good humor and says:

"'Well, little man, what can I do for you?'

"A short, earnest business talk—punctuated with smiles—and it's all over!

"If a boy is weak on smiles, he has his cap to help him out—should the prospect be a lady. A cap may be removed in a fashion to captivate.

"A wise boy will learn his prospect's name before calling.

"'Good morning, Mrs. Todd' is a more heart-opening greeting than 'Good morning, ma'am.' An indifferent approach is a slur on personality. It could not possibly awaken interest in the solicitor or his proposition.

"Soliciting builds up a boy's self-confidence. It makes him mentally stronger—gives him distinction—sets him apart as one whose speech is worth money. It puts him in the salesman's class. Few are born with the business approach. It is an acquired art. Yet it is as necessary to success as food is to life."

A campaign for country circulation is being made by the Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union with reduced rates. Rural subscribers are offered 100 issues for $1.00. The regular city rate is 3 cents.

Sixty carrier boys of the Brooklyn Times, winners in a circulation contest conducted by that newspaper, were taken on a three-day excursion to Washington last week where they met and were photographed with President Coolidge. Following this they went on a sightseeing tour of the Capitol. Edward S. Dobson, circulation manager of the Times, was in charge of the excursion.

Don Thrasher has been appointed circulation manager of the Shelton (Wash.) Mason County Journal which recently began publication as a semi-weekly.

Brooklyn Eagle readers are being asked to describe the most thrilling moment in their lives. Five dollars is offered for each letter accepted. The first of the letters will be published in the Eagle of Sunday, April 17.

After trying dolls, coaster wagons, bicycles, skooters and rollers skates, the Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union circulation department has decided to give away electric trains to boys and girls who get five six-month subscriptions. The Albany Evening News is now giving away coaster wagons as premiums. The most successful offer, according to Samuel Herman, promotion manager for the Times-Union circulation department, has been the dolls. The scheme was opened with "mamma dolls" and later dolls with popular names, such as "Twinkletoes," were given. It was found that young girls are better subscription solicitors than boys. But with the electric trains as a novelty it is planned to encourage salesmanship among the boys during the school vacation period.

The entire city carrier staff of the Seattle Times recently spent Sunday in Portland on an excursion, the guests of their newspaper. In Portland they were welcomed by City Commissioner C. A. Bigelow, acting for Mayor George L. Baker, were taken to the city auditorium for an impromptu entertainment, given a ride over the city and wound up at the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club where the club's athletic facilities and swimming tank were placed at their disposal.

P. D. BOWLERS CELEBRATE

Baker, Hopwood, Rogers Attend Annual Banquet

"The Bucket of Blood" celebrated its fourteenth anniversary April 13, when the Cleveland Plain Dealer Bowling Association members held their annual banquet and jamboree at the Hotel Winton. The banquet was attended by Elbert H. Baker, president of the Plain Dealer Publishing Company; E. C. Hopwood, editor; Paul Bellamy, managing editor; George J. Rogers, business manager; W. G. Vorpe, Sunday and feature editor, and other P. D. executives. Mr. Bellamy was toastmaster.

Mr. Baker, who had just returned from Honolulu, made a speech in which he commented on his travels and praised the bowlers, and other Plain Dealer leaders also spoke. "The Bucket of Blood" is a 16-page "Annual Year Book" neatly bound, illustrated by the paper's cartoonists and artists, and full of spicy reading matter.

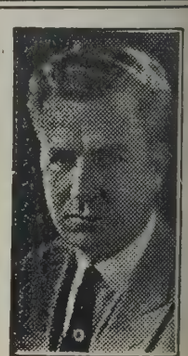
Mac D. Sinclair, chief machinist, is editor of the year book and Otto Sedgwick, staff artist, while W. G. Vorpe, Sunday editor, Fred Charles, feature writer, and other are contributing editors.

William Grobb, proof reader, was presented with two trophies—a silver loving cup because he has bowled continuously with the league for 14 years—and a battered tin cup with stencilled inscription, because he was never on time when any game started.

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5



Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

INVITATION

to every editor and publisher

Dr. Frank McCoy
Author, Educator and Scientist

WHEN you attend the Publishers' Convention in New York in April, be sure to see the McCoy Health Service display. At this booth will be presented to you a wonderful circulation-pulling feature—a Daily Health Talk that is different, being the applied principles of food chemistry and health mechanics, told in simple every-day language. This is the feature that will keep your readers eagerly interested from day to day. It will create and retain reader interest and reader confidence for your paper. Make a note of it now: "See McCoy Health Service Display."

McCOY HEALTH SERVICE

Brack Shops Building Los Angeles, Cal.

For circulation through pictorial appeal—

INTERNATIONAL ILLUSTRATED NEWS

Editorially—

a new and improved n-e-w-s service of spot news pictures, illustrated news-features, and advance preparedness pictures and layouts in 1, 2, 3 column mats, with accompanying 200-500 word story included in the mat.

Mechanically—

the b-e-s-t mat!

Transmission—

the speediest! air-mail, fast trains, telephotography!

Exclusive Rights to the World-Coverage of International News Reel!

Put I. I. N. to the Test!

Wire or Write N-o-w for Local Reservations

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

M. KOENIGSBERG, President

Sole Selling Agent for International Illustrated News

241 West 58th Street New York City

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Hitching an Advertising Message to the News—Advertising Plans of Cleveland Clay League—Chevrolet Dealers Prefer Newspaper Advertising, Says H. T. Ewald

BELL & CO., of Orangeburg, N. Y., makers of Bell-Ans, this week in its newspaper copy illustrated one of the many advantages of the daily medium by hitching its advertising message to a news story.

Inserted in the regular two-column copy was a reproduction of a newspaper clipping with the heading "Indigestion Delays Detroit Libel Suit."

Text read in part: "Newspapers all over the country carried on Monday April 18, an Associated Press story stating that an attack of indigestion had caused the adjournment of the $1,000,000 libel suit being tried in Detroit.

"This is a striking example of the unexpected suddenness with which indigestion may attack and the serious interruption it can mean to business or social activities."

Of course, the advertising message in bold-face was "Take No Chances—Keep a Package of Bell-Ans Always on Hand."

The advertising of this account is handled by the George Batten Company, New York.

Copy being prepared for the Cleveland Clay League, recently formed, will follow the style of newspaper stories as closely as possible, but will be placed in paid space, according to Glenn W. Bittel, manager.

"The league," he said, "has studied every possible form of advertising and has concluded that for its purpose advertisements having real news value will be best.

"Advertisements will be written so as to make reprints for a permanent text on fire-safe construction of Cleveland-made brick and tile. The reprints will carry more detailed information on the reverse side than is possible to put into advertisements."

The daily newspapers will be the chief medium of advertising, he said.

Stanton Van Wie has resigned as advertising manager of the Beech-Nut Packing Company, a position which he held for six years, following three years in the sales department, to go with the Hecker-H-O Company, Inc.

Magazines are losing their motor car advertising to the more effective medium of the newspaper, H. T. Ewald of Detroit, president of the Campbell-Ewald Company, advertising agency, addressing a recent regional sales conference of Chevrolet dealers in Denver.

"Dealers find they can obtain a closer and more effective contact with prospective buyers through the newspapers," he declared.

Mr. Ewald has been in the automobile advertising field for 17 years and his firm has handled the major portion of General Motors paid publicity since the founding of that organization.

Paul Crosley, Jr., radio manufacturer, has appointed Kimball H. Stark advertising manager. Mr. Stark has been actively employed in the radio industry for the last 10 years. Most recently he was connected with the Charles Freshman Company.

Leslie W. Devereux, for several years advertising manager of the Utica (N. Y.) Heater company, has joined the organization of H. W. Coggeshall, printing, in the capacity of direct advertising counsel.

A complaint has been issued by the Federal Trade Commission against the acquisition by the Consolidated Cigar Corporation of New York of the "44" Cigar Company and the G. H. P. Cigar Company, Inc., and a hearing was ordered for June 6, alleging violation of the Clayton act.

The Consolidated Cigar Corporation was organized under the laws of Delaware, and has a general office in New York. It is alleged that it acquired the G. H. P. Company, also a Delaware corporation, with offices in Philadelphia and New York, about Nov. 1, 1926; and likewise the "44" Cigar Company, a Pennsylvania corporation, with plants in Allentown, Bethlehem and Philadelphia, about Sept. 1, 1920.

The effect of such acquisition, according to the commission, has been:

1. To substantially lessen competition in commerce between the Consolidated Cigar Corporation and the "44" Cigar Company and to substantially lessen competition in commerce between the Consolidated Cigar Corporation and the G. H. P. Cigar Company, Inc.

2. To restrain commerce in the sale of cigars in the sections or communities among the several States in which the Consolidated Cigar Corporation, the "44" Cigar Company and the G. H. P. Cigar Company, Inc., were engaged in their respective lines of commerce.

3. To tend to create in the Consolidated Cigar Corporation a monopoly of commerce in cigars or in the sale of cigars.

A new company known as the Palmolive-Peet Company has been formed as a result of the merging of the Palmolive Company with Peet Brothers Manufacturing Company.

A fund of $75,000 has been raised for advertising by the Chamber of Commerce of Plainfield, N. J., to exploit the city in the metropolitan area. The Joseph E. Hanson Company, Newark advertising agency, has been appointed to handle the campaign.

Vermont is spending its community advertising money by giving distinguished residents a trip by special train through nine states and three Canadian provinces. Exhibits of Vermont agricultural and industrial products are put on display at every station-stop. About 150 persons are in the delegation, including Gov. John E. Weeks and Mrs. Weeks.

To provide closer correlation of production and sales activities, new offices are to be occupied about May 1 by the merchandising division of Federal-Brandes, Inc., makers of Kolster receiving sets and Brandes speakers, according to an announcement made by D. S. Spector, general manager of the division. The new quarters have been built as a part of one of their factories, at 200 Mount Pleasant avenue, Newark, N. J.

J. A. Cullison of the National Fire Proofing Company has been made manager of the sales development department of the same company. He formerly was advertising manager.

Olsen & Enzinger, Inc., of Milwaukee, have taken over the advertising and publicity account of the Linseed Meal Educational Committee, effective May 1.

This campaign, being jointly financed by a group of prominent manufacturers of linseed oil, is aimed at enlarging the market for the use of linseed meal as a food for live stock. The campaign has been under way for a period of three years and has been directed largely toward increasing the use of linseed meal for dairy cattle.

James H. Matthews, of Spencer Kellogg & Sons, Inc., of Buffalo, is chairman of the committee. Other companies subscribing to the campaign are American Linseed Company, William O. Goodrich Company, Ankeney Linseed Mfg. Company, Minnesota Linseed Oil Company, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., Archer-Daniels-Midland Company, Hirst Begley Linseed Works, and the National Lead Company.

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By Senator Arthur Capper, Publisher, Topeka Capital

Senator Arthur Capper

WHAT does the Associated Press mean to me?

As a publisher, everything; as a citizen, the most perfect daily mirror of world happenings yet devised.

It is the only means that morning newspapers in cities the size of Topeka have of getting the news of the world daily at a price they can afford to pay. It is absolutely essential to such papers; without it they could not survive. And it is a notable fact, easily demonstrated by reading, that newspapers of the class of the Topeka Daily Capital, depending almost wholly upon the Associated Press for telegraph news, print more ge world news items, as a rule, tha the big city papers, which subn Associated Press news for that their own special bureaus.

As a citizen and reader I marv the wonderful facilities of the A a news gathering organization, the racy and fairness of its news anc fidelity it displays to its members. wonder it holds the confidence of paper readers everywhere.

PARIS REPORTERS HOAXE

Dozen Writers Wait in Doctor's C for "Big Story" April 1

A round dozen reporters represe as many Paris reporters waited e ly for an hour, April 1 in the so waiting room of Dr. Pierre Seb the famous lung specialist. The had been passed around that the d would, at three o'clock exactly, ma revelation comparable to the anno ment of a cure for cancer. It wou big news.

Outside in the reception room ar cited attendant frantically telephon the Faculty of Medicine and the Aca of Sciences, trying to get in touch the learned but absent-minded d who apparently had forgotten his pointment with the Press.

"Mais non, Messieurs. The docto no word of a Press conference a cannot tell when he will be back."

A whispered conference between vous reporters. They would stick it It was a good story and there must been some mistake. Finally, an later, the attendant appeared again. had talked with the doctor. He wa tremely sorry but the doctor had no appointment.

A dozen reporters are still wond who the practical joker is who them to the doctor's office. It i second time they have been victi within two weeks on what had al earmarks of a "big story."

Announcing

A FOREMOST STEP FORWARD IN DRY MAT COLD STEREOTYPING

THE GADDEN DRY MAT MOISTENER

A precision machine which moistens the backs of the mats evenly, with a uniformity not otherwise possible, at the rate of two mats a minute.

Mats moistened with this machine assure sharp, even, deep molds, uniform shrinkage, and uniformly good printing plates.

Gadden moisteners are now in daily use at

Los Angeles Times
Los Angeles Express
New York World
Philadelphia Public Ledger
Editors' Feature Service
NEA Service, Inc., New York Office
NEA Service, Inc., Cleveland Office

Recommended and endorsed by leading mat manufacturers

Shaw Machine and Tool Co.

1151 Temple Street Los Angeles, Calif.

The Advertising STORY TOLD in PICTURES

Photograph By Underwood & Underwood

Advertisers generally are showing increased interest in rotogravure sections. Lineage records prove it . . . By the rotogravure process advertisers show accurate photographic reproductions of the goods they offer for sale. People want to see before they buy and rotogravure pictures are the next thing to it . . . Words could scarcely add to the effective sales message for Armstrong Stoves that is expressed on the face of this delighted mammy . . . Publishers desiring to be of greater help to local advertisers will be pleased with the service rendered by our Rotogravure Development Department. Write for any rotogravure information you require.

ROTOGRAVURE

Prints Perfect Pictures ~ the Universal Language

THE KNICKERBOCKER PRESS
THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION
The Atlanta Journal.
THE SUN
The Birmingham News
THE BOSTON HERALD
Boston Traveler
Courier EXPRESS
BUFFALO SUNDAY TIMES
THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS
Chicago Sunday Tribune
THE CINCINNATI ENQUIRER
The Cleveland News
CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER
THE NEWS
Des Moines Sunday Register
The Detroit News
The Detroit Free Press
The News-Sentinel
THE FRESNO BEE
Rotogravure Pictorial
DIARIO DE LA MARINA
The Hartford Courant
THE HOUSTON CHRONICLE
Houston Post-Dispatch
THE INDIANAPOLIS SUNDAY STAR
Kansas City Journal-Post
THE KANSAS CITY STAR
Press-Telegram
Los Angeles Sunday Times
The Courier-Journal.
ROTOG
A COMBINED WE 12,800

CORRIERE D'AMERICA
EVE GRAPHIC Forward
פארווערטס
IL PROGRESSO ITALO-AMERICANO
SUNDAY NEWS
New York Evening Post
The Morning Telegraph
The New York Times
Herald Tribune
The World
THE OMAHA SUNDAY BEE
PEORIA JOURNAL-TRANSCRIPT
L'OPINIONE
The Philadelphia Inquirer
PUBLIC LEDGER
The Providence Sunday Journal
Richmond Times-Dispatch
Democrat Chronicle
St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
ROTOGRAVURE
ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
PICTURE SECTION
THE ST. PAUL DAILY NEWS
St. Paul Sunday Pioneer Press
San Francisco Chronicle Rotogravure
The Seattle Daily Times
SOUTH BEND NEWS-TIMES
THE SPRINGFIELD UNION
Springfield Republican
Rotogravure
SYRACUSE HERALD
THE POST-STANDARD
The Toledo Sunday Times
THE TORONTO STAR WEEKLY
The Washington Post.
The Sunday Star
THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN
The Wichita Sunday Eagle
RE Offers
ULATION OF OVER
COPIES

ROTOGRAVURE sections are published every week in fifty-one cities of North America by these seventy-seven newspapers:

*The Knickerbocker Press, Albany
*The Atlanta Constitution
*The Atlanta Journal
*The Sun, Baltimore
*The Birmingham News
*The Boston Herald
*Boston Traveler
*Buffalo Courier Express
*The Buffalo Sunday Times
The Chicago Daily News
*Chicago Sunday Tribune
*The Cincinnati Enquirer
*The Cleveland News
*Cleveland Plain Dealer
*The Rocky Mountain News, Denver
*Des Moines Sunday Register
*The Detroit Free Press
*The Detroit News
*The News-Sentinel, Fort Wayne
*The Fresno Bee
*Diario De La Marina, Habana, Cuba
*The Hartford Courant
*The Houston Chronicle
*Houston Post-Dispatch
*Indianapolis Sunday Star
*Kansas City Journal Post
*The Kansas City Star
*The Press Telegram, Long Beach, Calif.
*Los Angeles Sunday Times
*The Courier Journal, Louisville
*Sunday Herald Post, Louisville
*The Commercial Appeal, Memphis
*El Universal, Mexico City, Mexico
*Miami Daily News
*The Milwaukee Journal
*Minneapolis Journal
*The Minneapolis Tribune
*La Patrie, Montreal
*The Standard, Montreal
*Nashville Banner
*Newark Sunday Call
*The Sunday Standard, New Bedford
*The Times Picayune, New Orleans
*Corriere D'America, New York
*Evening Graphic, New York
*Forward, New York
*The Morning Telegraph, New York
Il Progresso Italo Americano, New York
*New York Evening Post
New York Herald Tribune
*The New York Times
*Sunday News, New York
*The World, New York
*The Omaha Sunday Bee
*Peoria Journal Transcript
*L'Opinione, Philadelphia
*The Philadelphia Inquirer
*Public Ledger & North American, Philadelphia
*The Providence Sunday Journal
*Richmond Times-Dispatch
*Democrat Chronicle, Rochester
*St. Louis Globe-Democrat
*St. Louis Post Dispatch
*The St. Paul Daily News
*St. Paul Sunday Pioneer Press
*San Francisco Chronicle
*Seattle Daily Times
*South Bend News Times
*The Springfield Union-Republican
*Syracuse Herald
*The Post Standard, Syracuse
*The Toledo Sunday Times
*The Toronto Star Weekly
*The Washington Post
*The Sunday Star, Washington, D. C.
*The Sunday Republican, Waterbury
*The Wichita Sunday Eagle

Reg. U.S. ROTOPLATE Pat. Off.

the perfect paper for rotogravure printing, is supplied by Kimberly-Clark Company to above papers marked with a star

Kimberly-Clark Company

Established 1872

Neenah, Wis.

NEW YORK
51 Chambers Street

CHICAGO
208 S. La Salle Street

LOS ANGELES
716 Sun Finance Bldg.

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Cincinnati Agencies Council Meet—Rohr Appointed by E. A. Machen Company—Albany Newspaper Man Forms Agency—Accounts for Atherton & Currier

RAISE for the newspapers as advertising media was paid by H. P. Williams, chairman of the board of Williams & Cunnyngham, Chicago advertising agency, addressing a meeting April 13, of the Cincinnati Advertising Agencies' Council at the Cincinnati Club. The subject of his address was "The Philosophy of Advertising."

"Newspapers reach the buyer more intensively than any other advertising medium," Mr. Williams said, "The study of advertising begins with the buyer's mind, not the sellers."

The speaker was introduced by Howard Henderson of the J. Walter Thompson Company.

Frank J. Rohr has been appointed as representative in the Toledo and northern Ohio territory by the Edwin A. Machen Company. Mr. Rohr was formerly manager of the Toledo office of the Byron G. Collier Street Car Advertising Company. Prior to that he was in newspaper and agency work in Buffalo and New York.

Howard C. Smith, formerly assistant national director of publicity for the American Legion and director of publicity for the Indiana Democratic state central committee in the last political campaign, has joined the staff of the Davis Advertising Company, Indianapolis.

Irvin F. Paschall, Inc., advertising counsel, moved on April 22 from the McCormick Building to larger offices in the new Adams-Franklin Building, Chicago.

Smith, Sturgis & Moore, Inc., moved April 16 to larger offices at 171 Madison avenue, New York.

Coy Glidden, formerley with Fred M. Randall Company, Chicago, is now associated with the Sehl Advertising Agency, 360 North Michigan boulevard, Chicago.

George A. Pawley, formerly on the editorial staffs of the Albany (N. Y.) Knickerbocker Press and Evening News has formed the Pawley Advertising Service with offices in the Cannon building, Troy, and City Savings Bank building, Albany. He formerly conducted an advertising service in Los Angeles and was in the same business at Boston.

MacKenzie, Goldbach and Berdan, a new agency, has been organized in Toledo, O. It will handle the account of Swartzbaugh Manufacturing Company, Toledo, O., among others.

D. T. Campbell, formerly of Hawes-Campbell Advertising Company, Chicago, is now operating his own agency, with offices in the Adams-Franklin building, under the name of the Campbell Advertising Company. He will handle the advertising of the Thomas Webb Coffee Company, Chicago.

HOUSTON WRITER FLIES TO TORNADO AREA

Pilot of Houston Press and Pilot Traverse "Bumpy" Air Path to Get Story—Pilot Returned with Photos

When Rocksprings, Tex., was cut off from the outside world by a devastating tornado April 12, Dudley Davis, a reporter of the Houston (Tex.) Press, went by airplane to the destroyed town to obtain eye-witness stories and first pictures of the wreckage for publication in the Press of April 14. His pilot was Frank M. Hawks of the Raymond Pearson Aero Company, Houston.

The pair took off early Wednesday morning and the return trip to Houston was made before dusk Wednesday.

Hawks got his pictures, left Davis in the wrecked town and took off again for Houston. He reported the majority as believing the death toll to be between 60 and 70, with some reports much higher.

Hawks encountered some rough flying on the trip, especially before dawn Wednesday. He encountered a stiff wind which carried him slightly off his course in the pitch darkness. He landed at Austin, refueled and made the jump from there to Rocksprings without stop. On the return trip he paused for re-fueling at Kelly Field, San Antonio. One army pilot from San Antonio had beaten him to the scene of the disaster.

"On the trip over the air was especially "bumpy." Hawks climbed to 5,000 feet in an effort to get above clouds that looked menacing, but found conditions higher not much better, so he descended down through rain and black clouds.

"The holes in the clouds looked like ink," Hawks said. "It looked as if 'pieces' of the storm were hanging about in the air near Rocksprings."

It is the feature that struck Hawks who served two years as an instructor in the United States army air service was the way the twister leveled the town and spared the countryside.

"The town was so small and the country around it so devoid of civilization that it reminded me of a bean in a blanket. And the wind, like a giant pair of plyers, lowered, crushed the town between its 'jaws' and then veered on in its course high above the unpopulated territory where to have struck would have cost not a single life."

$40,000 FIRE DAMAGE

Plant of Flushing Journal Partially Destroyed—Press Ruined

The plant of the Flushing (N. Y.) Evening Journal was partly destroyed by fire Monday as the result of an overheated furnace in the basement below the one-story frame building of the newspaper. Estimates of the damage to the building and the presses place the loss at between $40,000 and $50,000. A fairly new Goss printing press is believed completely demolished.

The flames, after spreading rapidly from the basement to the pressroom, then leaped to an adjoining two-story building in which several tons of newsprint were stored. About $3,000 worth of news stock was destroyed.

John H. Ridenous, editor and publisher of the Journal, made arrangements to have the paper printed in Jamaica.

CRIMELESS EASTER EVE

The Urbana (O.) Daily Democrat issued a "crimeless edition" Saturday, April 16. The management of the paper had not yet reported on the attitude of readers to the experiment.

THE ASHEVILLE TIMES

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

when an advertiser asks us what we can do for him outside the limits of Greater Detroit buying area we refer him to the local newspapers in each community beyond the limits of our natural field—zone ozone is unfair both to the advertiser and the media—although some publishers still work on the theory that for every advertiser who quits without profit another will take his place the Detroit Times.

WOMAN WRITER LEAVES FOR CHINA TO STUDY EFFECTS OF REVOLUTION

Anna Louise Strong Will Penetrate to Interior Alone and Push on to Moscow Where She Was Formerly Stationed —Describes Russian Newspapers

By HAROLD BUTCHER

ANNA LOUISE STRONG left New York Thursday to catch the President Madison at San Francisco for

Anna Louise Strong

Shanghai. She is going to China for the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, the New York Herald-Tribune, Harper's Magazine and the Haldemann Julius publications to find out what is happening to the Chinese peasants, landowners, workers and women. The newspapers of America concentrate almost entirely, she says, on what is happening to the foreigners in China; her aim is to discover what is happening to the Chinese in China.

Miss Strong, who represents the North American Newspaper Alliance in Russia, returned to this country last December. Her trip to China will be part of her journey back to Moscow. In China her visit to Shanghai is but the start of an ambitious scheme to make her way by railroad to Nanking, and then into the interior by way of the Yangtze River. No women and very few men are penetrating into the country where she wishes to go, but she expects to succeed just the same. A newspaper connection steps over all frontiers, she holds; and she has good friends on both sides of the contending armies.

"I want to find out," she said, "what the problem is as to the relation of the civil and military powers. I start out with the assumption that the Nationalist Party is the coming party, and I want to find out who are the people that are growing with this party, and what they are trying to do. I want to know what the workers and the women are striving for; what the anti-religious movement is; and how serious it is."

Miss Strong had a good bit to say about newspaper conditions in Russia.

"While it is true," she told me, "that Russian newspapers are, all of them, Communist in their slant there is still a great divergence of opinion. The papers of the trade unions might take a totally different point of view on matters of production, for example, from the paper of the National Department of Industries.

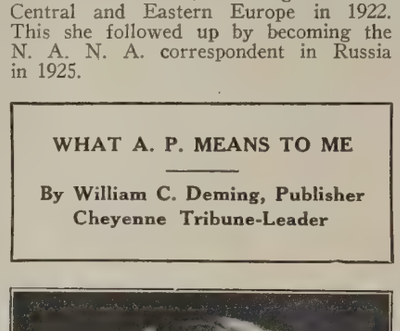
"Russia has some tremendous papers. The Pravda in Moscow passed the half-million mark as the result of a series of contests to find out the best factory director, the best school teacher, the best sanitary committee, and the best of all sorts of people and things. The contests consisted of letters sent in by workers all over the country telling of their own factory directors, school teachers, and sanitary committees, and they were won by the letters that made out the best case."

Miss Strong dispelled any idea that the Moscow papers were confined to Moscow. They push out all over the country, invading remote places where newspapers have never been seen before. There are rural deliveries, not, as in America, to individuals, but to the village at large. That is to say, the postman arrives with a batch of mail, and all the villagers flock around him to see what he has for them, and to receive the papers he has to distribute.

One source of news supply developed by the papers is that of direct correspondence from the peasants.

"The ordinary working men write newspaper letters," Miss Strong said. "They take correspondence courses conducted by the papers on how to write, and when they are competent they act as local muckrakers. Sometimes they do very decent work. Even the government takes notice of it, and criminal prosecutions have been based upon the information contained in these letters. From these peasant writers the government learns of abuses that need to be remedied, and takes action."

Both the newspapers and the government have to exercise some discretion in drawing a distinction between a truthful and a spiteful letter, but under all conditions libel does not rear a menacing head. A person who feels himself libeled has the right of reply in the paper that published the information against him. Occasionally there is also the reply of private assassination! This happened once to a young peasant, who, aglow with the conviction that it was his duty to clean up his village, traced graft to some officials, and then, by persistence, to a few more higher up. His reports produced a first-class scandal. To stop him, his enemies persecuted him and had almost compelled him to leave the village when, as a master stroke, they took his brother, made him drunk, and worked on him to go and kill the crusading reporter. They put a rifle in his hand, and sent him out to shoot his brother—which he did.



Then the government intervened. Those responsible for the outrage were arrested; a few were executed. The drunken tool was punished but not put to death.

Although the largest papers are in Moscow they are not concentrated there, Miss Strong pointed out. Every large city has two or three papers. The Izvestia, official organ of the central executive committee of the government, has a great reputation for accuracy. When winning numbers in the lottery loan are published in the Izvestia the bank accepts a copy of the paper as evidence. The Pravda deals mainly with party matters. It is a crusading paper, giving a great deal of attention to attacks on officials from the party point of view.

Anna Louise Strong is an indefatigable social worker. She organized "Know Your City" institutes in Seattle, her home, in Portland, Walla Walla, and Spokane in 1909-10. In 1911 she was employed in child welfare exhibits in New York and Chicago; and subsequently directed child welfare exhibits in Kansas City, St. Louis, Rochester, Louisville, Providence, Montreal, Northampton, Dublin, and the Panama Exposition. She was with the American Friends Relief Mission in Russia in 1921-22 as correspondent, and was appointed correspondent of Hearst's International Magazine for Central and Eastern Europe in 1922. This she followed up by becoming the N. A. N. A. correspondent in Russia in 1925.

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By William C. Deming, Publisher
Cheyenne Tribune-Leader

William C. Deming

WHEN I became a member of the Associated Press 26 years ago it was a great news-gathering and news-disseminating agency. It is a greater service today.

Alert, diligent, independent, and fair, the Associated Press fills a place and a need unique in the annals of the newspaper profession.

The progress made by the Associated Press during the last quarter century will be increased many fold in the next twenty-five years.

The A. P. brand is the hallmark of news reliability and up-to-the-minute, world-wide news service. The Associated Press is an asset of inestimable value to any newspaper and the Wyoming State Tribune-Leader is proud of its membership.

TO REORGANIZE BADG JOURNALISM SCHOO

Separate School Will Supplant Pre Courses—Three Years of Stud Will Be Required to Win Degree

Seeking to place the study of j nalism on a scholastic standing with of any other profession, such as la medicine, the University of Wisc faculty at Madison has formulated a to establish a school of journalism separate unit.

The faculty has approved the reor zation of the four year course in j nalism into a school with a three curriculum comprising a junior, a s and one graduate year. Two year college work will be required for trance into the school, and the bac of arts degree will be offered upon completion of two years' work and master of arts degree will be given the third year of school of journa work. Under the reorganization plan credits, four more than at present quired, must be completed for the degree in journalism. Grade points by successful candidates for the d must number 50 per cent more credits. This standard, higher than of any other school or department o university, has been practically n tained for several years.

The department of journalism continue to offer one freshman and sophomore course of a pre-journa nature to prepare for entrance to school.

Besides the required journalism cou candidates for the B. A. degree in j nalism must complete work in En foreign languages, history, science, nomics, sociology, philosophy, psych and political science.

Most of the stipulations as to courses of study and scholastic req ment have been in force some time. reorganization makes the journalism partment, nominally what it has for some years, a school of journa The change makes the department, 1905 the oldest in the United S conform to the standard practice of versities offering degrees in journa

ERIE DISPATCH-HERALD
KILLS DAD, E
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

Ask the Canadian Pacific about Canada
CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY

Bureau of Canadian Information

The Canadian Pacific Railway, through its Bureau of Canadia Information, will furnish you with the latest reliable informatio on every phase of industrial and agricultural development Canada. In our Reference Library at Montreal is complete data on natural resource climate, labor, transportation, business openings, etc. Additional data is constantl being added.

DEVELOPMENT BRANCH

If you are interested in the mining wealth and industry of Canada or in the developme or supply of industrial raw materials available from resources along the Canadian Pacif Railway, you are invited to consult this Branch. An expert staff is maintained investigate information relative to these resources and examine deposits in the fiel Practical information is available as to special opportunities for development, use by-products and markets, industrial crops, prospecting and mining.

"Ask the Canadian Pacific about Canada" is not a mere advertising slogan. It is an intimation of service—without charge or obligation—that the information is available and will be promptly forthcoming to those who desire it.

Canadian Pacific Railway Co.
Department Colonization and Development
J. S. DENNIS
Chief Commissioner
Windsor Statio
Montreal, Can.

Cline Type "B" Paper Roll-Stand

AND

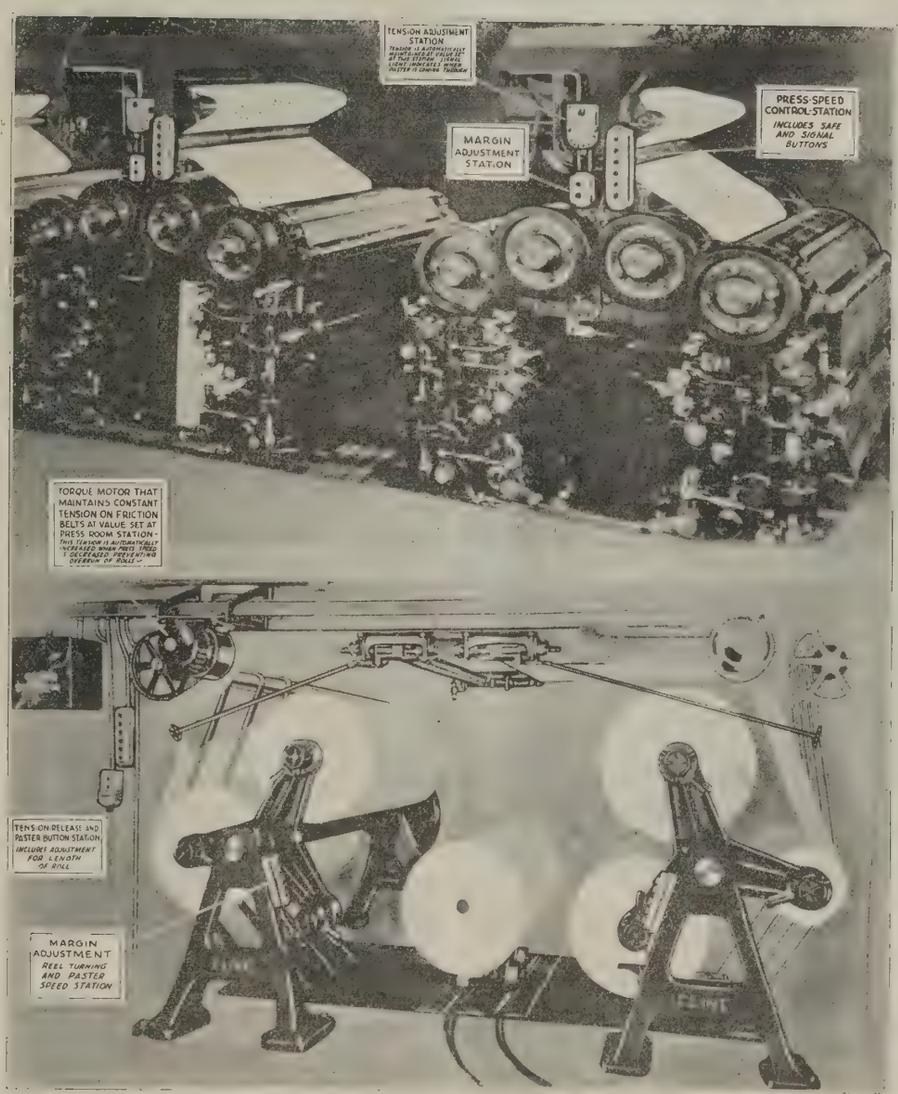
Cline Automatic Electric Tension

OVER 100 NOW IN USE

THE TENSION REMAINS CONSTANT UNLESS MODIFIED FROM A STATION LOCATED ON THE PRESS.

EDME USERS

lew York
Daily News



Pttsburgh
Press

Sydney (Australia)
Sun

Chicago
Tribune

Reading
Times

Toledo
Blade

Cline roll stands and electric tensions, showing provisions for making paster without stopping press.

ORDERS

Kansas City
Star

Rochester
Times-Union

Des Moines
Register-Tribune

Canton
Repository

Chicago
Tribune

Sydney (Australia)
Sun

The Cline Electric Mfg. Co. furnishes Motors and Control Equipments for Printing Presses and Auxiliary Machinery for Newspaper and Job Presses.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO

MAIN OFFICE, CONWAY BUILDING, 111 W. WASHINGTON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

WESTERN OFFICE
FIRST NAT'L BANK BLDG.
SAN FRANCISCO
CALIFORNIA

CLINE SYSTEM
QUALITY MARK SERVICE MARK
CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO
CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

EASTERN OFFICE
MARBRIDGE BLDG.
47 WEST 34th ST.
NEW YORK CITY

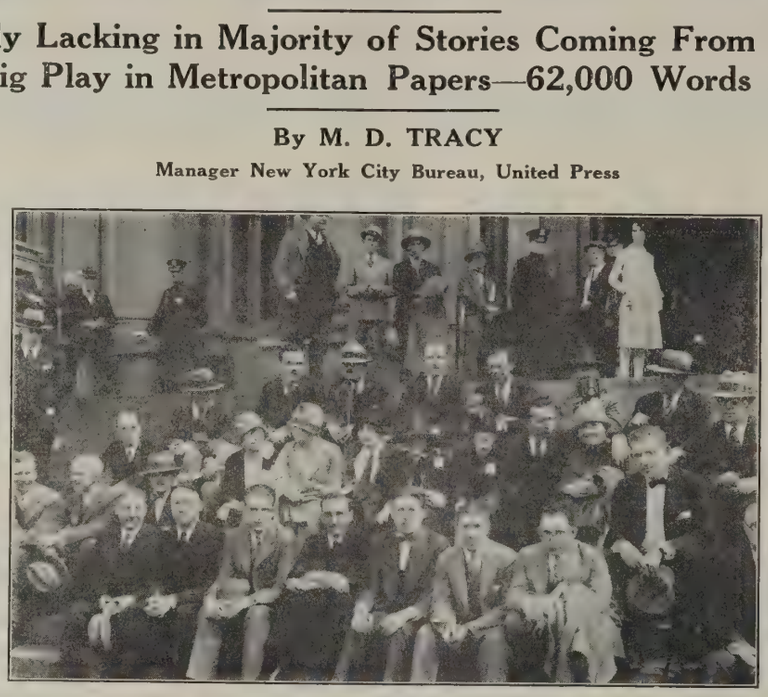
PRESS TRYING TO DEBUNK GRAY-SNYDER TRIAL

"Sob Sister Stuff" Notably Lacking in Majority of Stories Coming From Long Island Courtroom—Case Getting Big Play in Metropolitan Papers—62,000 Words Filed First Day

By M. D. TRACY

Manager New York City Bureau, United Press

THE trial of Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray in Long Island City, New York, has become the laboratory wherein newspapers are trying out something new in the way of covering a murder case.



They have set themselves to "debunk" the trial, presenting it, if possible, in such a way as to hold the reader interest and at the same time avoid the criticism that the press builds up a defense based only upon sentimental sympathy for a woman accused of crime and defeats the ends of justice.

Never before has a murder trial been handled exactly as this one. The trial has not yet gone far enough to tell the results, but preliminary indications are that circulation departments are losing nothing on the adventure.

Practically all of the New York papers have joined in the "debunking" experiment, although not by any agreement.

Press associations, more conservative than the New York newspapers, have turned to realism and are presenting detailed running accounts, devoid of decorations. The United Press, in addition, has carried special stories telling of the efforts to keep sentiment and justice separate.

The experiment has brought about the entry into a murder trial press section of some unfamiliar faces. This change has been coincidental with a decrease in the number of women writers and professional "sob sisters," and the press tables look actually lonesome for femininity.

Reporters covering Snyder-Gray murder trial have outside writers contribute to their coverage before the trial ends.

If the product of all these special and regular writers could be made into a composite description of Mrs. Snyder and of Gray, the result, instead of a picture of a "beautiful but oppressed" woman would be a cold-blooded portrait of what one writer called "a chilly looking blonde with frosty eyes and a marble chin," and of a weak-faced, begoggled man whom Will Durant described as "ripe for adultery."

Squad of 18 cameramen on Long Island City courthouse steps ready to snap interesting features of Gray-Snyder murder trial. They were barred from the courtroom by Judge Scudder.

But the New York Telegram has Dr. Will Durant, teacher and author of "The Story of Philosophy," and Maurine Watkins, whose play "Chicago," which satirizes the Chicago gunman and maudlin sympathy for a feminine criminal, occupying two of its six seats at the press table. They write daily stories.

The New York Evening Post, a few seats away, has W. E. Woodward, the original "debunking" expert, author of "Bunk" and of the modernized version of the "Life of George Washington."

Dr. John Roach Straton, the militant fundamentalist pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, is writing daily for the New York Evening Journal, and Samuel Shipman, who wrote "East Is West," has contributed to the New York Mirror's accounts of the trial. The Evening Graphic has State Senator Love of Brooklyn, a physician, writing daily on the types who become characters in the story; and Aimee Semple McPherson is contributing from Los Angeles daily dispatches of comment.

Practically all the papers expect to

THE QUINCY HERALD-WHIG
H LOSES GAME FIGHT FOR
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

have outside writers contribute to their coverage before the trial ends.

If the product of all these special and regular writers could be made into a composite description of Mrs. Snyder and of Gray, the result, instead of a picture of a the rail and one outside. In addition sketch artists and special writers have been assigned the unused jury box at the right of the judge's bench. Press arrangements are in charge of a committee composed of Frank Donoghue, A. E. Gill and Ellsworth Gelwicks of Long Island City, and Whitney Bolton of the Herald Tribune, and Raymond Daniell of the New York Evening Post. They have assigned 132 press seats only, 20 of them to women writers.

Papers from Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Syracuse and even as far away as Pasadena, Cal., have reporters present.

Two press rooms have been equipped for the use of the newspapermen. The Associated Press, United Press, International News Service and Standard News Association have wires installed in a press room immediately across the corridor from the courtroom door. Four New York evening papers have special wires in the same room. A second press room in the basement is devoted to the use of the morning papers and afternoon papers unable to obtain space upstairs. There 15 Western Union and 5 Postal telegraph wires have been installed to carry the story from the courthouse. On the opening day the Western Union handled 62,711 words.

Newspapers represented have been assessed $10 each for preliminary costs of these accommodations and a weekly assessment will be levied for maintenance.

All press arrangements were perso approved by the court, and befor trial opened Justice Scudder, who is siding, made a complete inspection accommodations. By his direction a cial door was set aside as a press ent to the courtroom and an officer stat to tend it. Admission to the court floor is by card issued by the cour the press committee. Judge Scudde fore the trial issued an order forbi the use of cameras in the courtroom.

DIRECTORY OF CONVENTI EVENTS AND EXHIBITS

(Continued from page 10)

THOMPSON FEATURES SERVICE, INC
Room 109.
R. S. Thompson, President. Miss Eva O
A. L. Fowle. A. A. Prec
UNIVERSAL SERVICE.
Room 102-104.
Chester Hope.
UNITED PRESS.
Green Room (Waldorf Apartments).
Hugh Baillie. J. H. Furay.
R. J. Bender. O. J. Randau.
R. H. Turner. G. M. Clayton.
H. W. Sharte. F. H. Bartholo
C. B. McCabe. O. P. Swift.
M. F. Bourjaily. T. W. Gerber.
J. C. Moore.
CHRISTY WALSH SYNDICATE.
Room 113.
Christy Walsh. B. Dahlstrom.
J. A. Bihler. Miss W. A.
WANT AD BUILDER.
Space (W) in Corridor.
S. P. WESTON.
Room 247½.
WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CO.
Space (N) in Corridor.
J. A. Esbell. Washington W
E. A. Rehms. Nelson Mayna
Oscar Boeson.
WOOD FLONG CORPORATION.
Space (N). (See Wood Newspaper Mac Co.)
Jackson Townsend. O. Sherb.
Nelson Maynard. O. N. Rathbu
Ray J. Finzer.
WORLD COLOR PRINTING COMPANY.
Room 144.
R. S. Grable. Roswell Messi
CLIFFORD YEWDALL.
Room 225 (Second Floor).

SUNDAY RECORD
ES THIEVES UNDISTURBED NO PROSPE
PLACE AS THEY EXPEND THREE OPERATIV
TIMES HOURS IN MAKING BREAK
Now Set In
TRADE LINOTYPE MARK
Ionic No. 5

FOR PROMPT SERVICE
TYPE
BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE
Printers' Supplies
KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT
Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the American Type Founders Company
BOSTON, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, RICHMOND, ATLANTA, BUFFALO, PITTSBURGH, CLEVELAND, DETROIT, CHICAGO, CINCINNATI, ST. LOUIS, MILWAUKEE, MINNEAPOLIS, KANSAS CITY, DES MOINES, DENVER, LOS ANGELES, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, SPOKANE, WINNIPEG

THE UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE

ANNOUNCES

THAT IT HAS SECURED FOR FIRST PUBLICATION THE WORLD RIGHTS TO—

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE"

NOVELIZED BY

ANNE NICHOLS

FROM HER SENSATIONAL STAGE SUCCESS, NOW IN

ITS SIXTH YEAR

To be released June 20th in 70 daily instalments, each to be illustrated by photographs posed especially for the serialization by members of the New York cast.

Full promotion matter, including detailed working plan for local exploitation, supplied to all purchasing newspapers

Write or Wire for Territory and Particulars

UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE

WORLD BLDG., NEW YORK

RACINE DAILY OPENS ITS NEW PLANT

Elaborate Ceremonies Mark Occupancy of New Times-Call Building —104-Page Special Edition Issued

As a step in its program of development, the Racine (Wis.) Times-Call has opened a new plant and building and completely remodelled its old quarters.

Elaborate dedicatory ceremonies marked the opening of the new plant, with newspaper publishers, newspaper and press association representatives and many state officials in attendance.

Equipped with machinery of the most approved type, the Times-Call now has one of the most modern plants in the middle west. The building, only a block from the banks of Lake Michigan, is of white terra cotta. Symbols of printing and journalism are carved in several of the ornamental stones. The building is fireproof throughout and is the first unit of what will eventually be a six story plant.

The mailing department is housed in the basement. On the first floor of the new building the three-unit Goss printing press occupies a conspicuous space. It is designed so that another unit can be added. The press has been placed so that it can be plainly seen through the long, low windows of the first floor. Close to the pressroom is the stereotyping room, which has also been equipped with new machinery.

The private office of Senator Walter S. Goodland, editor-in-chief, is located on the ground floor. The room has a large brick fireplace and is fitted with leather furniture.

On the second floor of the new unit is the composing room, with its long battery of linotype machines and ad alleys.

The old building, which fronts on Main street, has been remodeled. Editorial departments are housed on the second floor. New desks and typewriters, new filing cabinets and the installation of huge steel filing vaults for bound volumes have been added. In a sound proof telegraph room two printing machines type the United Press news. A rest room, equipped with wicker furniture and bright cretonne leads from the editorial rooms to the stairway. All of the rooms have been redecorated and new floor coverings have been laid.

On the first floor are housed the business offices and advertising department, with private offices for heads of the various departments.

Opening of the new plant was the signal for extensive celebration. Governor Fred Zimmerman, accompanied by a staff of state officials, was present to give the dedicatory address at a banquet held in Hotel Racine with more than 250 employes of the paper in attendance.

On the following day an informal reception was held for all friends and subscribers. In the evening more than 5,000 persons jammed the building, and were escorted through the plant where the process of making a newspaper was explained.

A special edition of 104 pages, the largest published in the city, celebrated the opening of the plant.

NEW PRINTER CIRCUIT

A. P. to Start Service on Indiana State Wires May 1

Beginning May 1, the Indiana branch of the Associated Press will undertake a new departure in its state service when printers will supplant operators in all A. P. cities of the state. The service will be as complete as under the present system, with eight-hour day printers and eight-hour night service. Nearly a dozen cities throughout the state will be af-

e printers, which will perators with regular of the larger cities with a supplementary se are Indianapolis,
, Terre Haute, South
. Evansville will not

p.

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By W. H. Cowles
Publisher Spokane Spokesman-Review

THE Associated Press means to me the greatest insurance policy that could be written for the people of the United States. Prosperity and happiness for them depends largely on their ability to act unitedly as a well-organized nation free from violent differences of opinion between the States, or sections of the country. An honest and uncontrolled news report like that of the Associated Press furnishes the basis for mutual understanding, and that intelligent greatest welfare of all citizens.

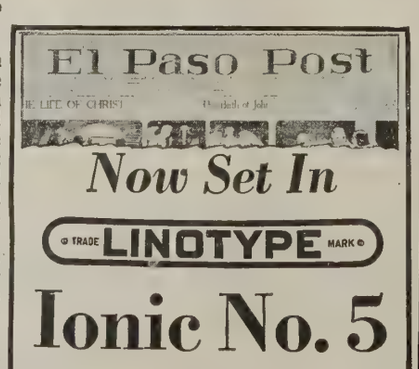
co-operation which is necessary for the

In the absence of such a report, biased and possibly corrupt news services are bound to develop, creating confusion in the minds of the newspaper readers, with consequent distrust between states and sections of the country. Hence every patriotic citizen should discriminate in choosing the newspaper he reads and from which he draws the information on which his opinions are based. He should read only such newspapers as he has found reliable, just as he will listen only to those men whom he has found to be truthful, to the exclusion of those who have in the past given him false information.

install the supplementary wire until Nov. 1, while the other cities will accept it along with the printers on May 1.

The service will be operated by normal speed printers. The operators displaced by the machines will be absorbed in other branches of the Associated Press, several of them becoming operators of the supplementary Morse wires in the six cities mentioned above.

Other cities that will install the printers are Kokomo, Anderson, Lafayette, Richmond and Marion.



DISCUSSES INSTALLMENT BUYING

Not a Menace to Prosperity Illinois Banker Tells Credit Men

"Installment buying, whether we like it or not, is here to stay and handled properly and judiciously is like many other forms of credit, not uneconomic," declared A. W. Newton, vice-president of the First National Bank of Chicago, addressing 150 members of the Illinois conference of the National Association of Credit men at their annual meeting in Galesburg, Ill., April 16. "Installment credit has had its abuses but these will gradually disappear as inexperienced and incapable men are forced out of business.

"There are millions of people owning merchandise articles today who would never have saved the money in advance to buy them but having gone into debt for that particular object, have saved to pay the debt and are now owners of desirable articles for use or pleasure," he said.

A book has been written about the love affairs of George Sand, the woman novelist. No doubt it starts off with Chap. 1.—El Paso Times.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

"IN TOUCH" AGAIN

April 19, 1927.

To Editor & Publisher: Great is the Editor & Publisher. Upon my return from a two months' trip abroad, in places where American newspapers are rarely seen, I felt greatly out of touch with the publishing and advertising world which moves so fast.

And then! I sat down last night to a feast with the back copies of Editor & Publisher which had been saved for me. And presto! I am once again in key with all the live issues of the day. And I feel again, the human side of this public world—what my friends among the writers and publishers have been doing, what worth while books have been issued, what changes have been made in the newspapers of the land. So, I say, great is the Editor & Publisher!

My hearty congratulations to you and all your associates on the very live magazine you are publishing.

Joseph H. Appel,
Advertising Director
John Wanamaker, New York.

NO FORMAL A. N. A. REQUEST

April 19, 1927.

To Editor & Publisher: Permit me to call your attention to an inaccuracy in a news story concerning the Association of National Advertisers, appearing in your issue of April 16, which makes a rather unfair implication concerning not only our organization but also the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. The article to which I refer appears on page 15 of the above-mentioned issue and credits me with the statement that I had made overtures on behalf of the Association of National Advertisers to have a representative of our Association address the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, and that my request had been denied.

I do not know how you came by this information, but in order that you may know what did occur in connection with the matter to which you evidently refer, the facts are as follows:

Some of our good friends among the newspaper publishers were so much interested in the program of the A. N. A. bearing on newspaper problems, that they suggested that a speaker from our organization appear before the convention of the A. N. P. A. We were quite agreeable to the suggestion because we felt that it would offer an opportunity for increasingly closer co-operation between the two organizations.

The question was subsequently followed up informally, and when we learned that the American Newspaper Publishers' Association had a definite policy of having only its own members on its convention programs, the matter was dropped. It will therefore be evident to you that any statement that a request to appear on the program has been denied by the A. N. P. A. is quite unfair to the latt ganization.

Arthur H. Ogl
Secretary-Treasu
Association of National Advertis

MR. WESTON'S FIGURES

To Editor & Publisher: I was much interested in reading Mr. We article on budgeting a newspaper in issue of March 19.

Anything on this subject is very ful at this time when costs have to such a high level and advertise not take kindly to increased There is no question but that many lishers will have to sharpen their p and figure out new economies durin next few years.

Mr. Weston, however, "hung the c a little thicker than it is necessary statement that a reduction of 10 per in gross revenue and expense mea cut of 50 per cent in net income.

Assuming that Mr. Weston is cc when he states that a reduction in a tising volume first comes from the priced "one time" advertiser and as type of advertising usually consti about one-third of the total volun ten per cent cut in linage would f out a 13 per cent cut in revenue in of 19 per cent as Mr. Weston st Assuming that the expenses were ten per cent the decrease in net p would amount to 16 per cent instea 56 per cent as shown in Mr. Wes very illuminating article.

R. M. Gunnis
Vice-President
Brooklyn Daily E

TALMAN "FOUND" KIRK

To Editor & Publisher: Among treasures in my library are five pres tion copies of the works of Williar Kirk, the poet, humorist and synd writer, whose death was announce Editor & Publisher on April 2. inscriptions testify that I was his editor and the one who "found" Mr. Kirk's literary career began in Paul in 1900, when, as editor of the day Pioneer Press, I accepted and pri a series of his sprightly rhymes. "F ing Fancies" was the title I gave t He utilized that heading for his col in the Chippewa Falls (Wis.) He and also, I believe, for his work on Milwaukee Sentinel. When his first came out, in 1904, it bore the s familiar title. To repeat in other w what I have already said in the Pio Press and Chippewa Falls Herald Telegram, it was quite natural tha should watch the career of this vers poet with ever-increasing gratifica and pride, and he was one whom I l as a kindred spirit and for his wholes sunny, manly nature. John Talma

Try the Premier Dry Mats on Your Next Order

THE RESULTS WILL SURPRISE YOU

PREMIER MATS

Regular or Heavy, also in Medium Thickness 14c

Featherweight Thickness made up expressly for the Tubular Casting Box 14c

The above quotations are for Case Lots (500) sheets, size 20 x 24
F. O. B. New York City

PREMIER FLONG COMPANY
KARL HAGENBACHER
P. O. Box 671 New York, N. Y. City Hall Station
Sales office: 258 Broadway

FOR GREATER PRODUCTION

S. BENNETT LIMITED
REGISTERED OFFICE
168-174 CASTLEREAGH STREET
SYDNEY.

January 31, 1927.

G. A. E. Kohler, Esq.,
Kohler Brothers,
Wrigley Building - North,
CHICAGO, U. S. A.

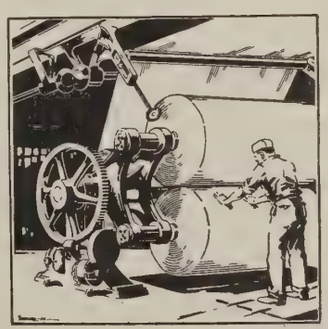
My dear Mr. Kohler,

I thought I would just like to let you know the success we have had in the Evening News and Sunday News with the Kohler Reels in our new plant. We have been operating the reels now for nearly twelve months, and are delighted with the results.

Apart from the great saving in time and the speeding up of our edition runs, - the value of which to an evening paper you know as well as I do - we expect from the saving of white waste alone to cover the initial cost of the reels in about three years.

Believe me, from every angle we regard ourselves as fortunate in equipping our machines with Kohler Reels.

Mr. Selby joins with me in wishing you and F. W. the very best. I hope to see you within the next couple of months when I will be visiting U. S. A.



Yours very sincerely,

Ernest G. Knox

General Manager.

EGK-EC

"we expect from the saving of white waste alone to cover the initial cost of the reels in about three years."

"THE KOHLER SYSTEM"

KOHLER
MAGAZINE REELS
KOHLER BROTHERS
ENGINEERS AND MANUFACTURERS

CHICAGO
Wrigley Building North

NEW YORK
Evening Post Building

T. McDOUGALL AGENCY EXPANDING

Capt. Bousfield Added to Firm, British Agent Announces—Wrote Copy for Lord Leverhulme and Cunard Line

Thomas McDougall, governing director of Thomas McDougall, Ltd., British advertising agency, arrived in New York last week for a brief visit.

THOMAS McDOUGALL

He announced that he has recently expanded his business and taken into his company Capt. H. T. W. Bousfield, formerly an officer in the Indian army and at the present time a well-known British advertising copy writer.

Capt. Bousfield, though still in the early thirties, has had an interesting career. In 1912 he graduated with high honors at Cambridge University, and almost immediately afterwards was offered, and accepted, the Chair of History in a university in India. His professorship however, lasted only until the outbreak of the Great War. Then he joined the Indian Army and served at three fronts—in the operations on the North West Frontier of India, in France and in Mesopotamia. He was twice specially mentioned for distinguished service in the field and in 1919 he retired with the permanent rank of Captain.

Capt. Bousfield, who already had done much story writing for the popular magazines and poetry for the more scholarly reviews, decided to enter advertising and joined Lord Leverhulme's organization. He prepared many unusual pieces for this firm, and for two years edited Pears Annual. Last fall he made visit to the United States in behalf of the Cunard line for which he wrote a brochure on the cuisine and service on its principal ships.

ADVERTISING WHITE BREAD

British Millers Replying to Attacks from Brown Bread Makers

(Special to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

LONDON, April 9.—"The more white bread, The sooner you're dead," was a slogan published in health articles in many national newspapers, backed by the authority of doctors and hygiene experts, that became universal throughout Great Britain last year. White bread was stated to be lacking in necessary nutritive qualities, and a prolonged diet of it was argued to be positively injurious to health. The president of the New Health Society, founded to educate the public into healthful living habits, stated it to be "the curse of our age."

The Bakers' and Millers' Joint Publicity Committee has now been formed and is replying to this campaign by means of window bills for bakers' shops and leaflets to be placed on the counter, giving the result of a referendum showing that of nearly 1,000 British doctors 89 per cent eat white bread themselves, and 80 per cent consider it a nutritious food.

Supported by leading bakers and millers the Committee is distributing the window bills and leaflets free to all the bakers writing for them, and is using bakers and confectioners' trade papers to advertise their scheme in.

MARQUIS PLAY FOR ATLANTA

"Out of the Sea" new play by Don Marquis, former columnist of the New York Herald Tribune, now writing a weekly humorous article for King Features Syndicate, will have its first presentation by a stock company in Atlanta, Ga., the week of May 16.

WHAT A. P. MEANS TO ME

By Paul Block
Pres. Consolidated Publishers, Inc.

YOU ask what the Associated Press means to me, and I think my best reply to this question is that with an Associated Press membership I would feel safe to go to any section of the world and know that all important State news, National and Foreign news, will appear in my paper, and, further, that it would be authentic, not sensational, and in every way legitimate.

TO COMPLETE NATIONAL PRESS BUILDING NOV. 1

12 Business Floors to Be Finished Sept. 1—Two Top Floors Will Be Occupied by Newspaper Club

With the recent signing of the contract and the deposit of the funds to pay for the construction of the two extra floors of the National Press Building the order has been given for full speed ahead, it has been announced by officials of the National Press Building Corporation, Washington. The supplemental contract with the George A. Fuller Company was signed April 9, and the Riggs National Bank made depositary for the funds required to take care of the additional work.

Almost one year to the day from the date when President Coolidge laid the cornerstone of the National Press Building, with journalists from two continents participating, the picture was completed and formal announcement made that the edifice on the site of old "Newspaper Row" was to rise to its full height of 14 floors. Already it has reached the eleventh floor leveled and with almost 800 workmen on the job. The entire rentable portion of the building to and including the twelfth floor is to be completed under the terms of the Fuller contract with the National Press Building Corporation, by Sept. 1 next. The Press Club quarters which will occupy the F and the Fourteenth street sides of the thirteenth floor and a portion of the fourteenth floor, will be ready for occupancy, it is expected, by Nov. 1.

In addition to a theatre in the rear lower portion of the building which will seat 3,500 people, and shops on the street level of the F street and the Fourteenth street sides of the building, the structure—larger than any other non-government edifice in Washington—will contain almost 1,000 offices, a considerable number of these will be occupied by the Washington correspondents of newspapers throughout the United States, with the balance used for general office purposes.

Try It Out in Michigan With The Booth Newspapers

The Booth newspapers with a net paid circulation of over 260,000 are ideal for test campaigns. This group practically covers the buying power of Michigan outside of Detroit.

These eight communities offer sufficient variety to make a test conclusive, while their relative proximity makes for economical distribution without incurring circulation waste or duplication.

Write any Booth newspaper for a copy of "The Michigan Market"

Grand Rapids Press
Saginaw News Courier
Flint Daily Journal
Kalamazoo Gazette
Jackson Citizen Patriot
Muskegon Chronicle
Bay City Times Tribune
Ann Arbor Times News

I. A. KLEIN, Eastern Representative 50 East 42nd St. NEW YORK | J. E. LUTZ, Western Representative 6 North Michigan Ave. CHICAGO

THE BOOTH PUBLISHING CO.

While in New York

see the

Metropolitan Dry Mat

being used on the editions of

THE AMERICAN
THE JOURNAL
THE SUN
THE TELEGRAM

Compare results with those of other dry mats.

Note specially that METROPOLITAN dry mats require less than half the amount of packing necessary with dry mats of other make.

The labor and time saved in this single operation makes the METROPOLITAN not only the cheapest dry mat but the only one wholly satisfactory for the big plant.

Compare the quality of the printing of the four dailies mentioned with that of metropolitan newspapers using dry mats of other make.

Be your own judge.

WOOD FLONG CORPORATION

501 Fifth Avenue, New York City
Stillwater, New York

N. B. Information regarding WOOD DRY MATS and equipment may be obtained at our exhibit Mezzanine Floor, Waldorf-Astoria, during the Convention.

SHOP TALK AT THIRTY

By MARLEN PEW

EVERY man to his own taste, and I do not want to catch the Wall Street assignment. Years ago I dabbled in it, never, however, from choice. I learned the difference between a bull and a bear, and what was meant by shorts, longs, squeeze, amortization, preferred and common and such patter of the Street and could distinguish between a stock and a bond, the exchange and the curb. Although I have written a heap of stuff about security markets, I must in truth now say that the game has always been deeply mysterious and I have long had a sneaking notion that few newspaper men who write learnedly about this department of interest have really penetrated the subject. There are some who can guess exceedingly well what is going on, but few can have any definite knowledge of the great moves behind the scenes.

To write financial news one must at least assume ponderous knowledge. If the market opens lower today, you must say so and ascribe some reason therefor. There is no common source of information. You cannot, for instance, go to an individual at the Stock Exchange and say, "The general market opened off fractionally this morning, with some losses in the rail list ranging to 2 points and over. Why?" There is no such court of appeal. You have read the morning papers. You saw an interview with Mr. Highhat as he was boarding a ship last night wherein he indicated that the Interstate Commerce Commission might rule so-and-so. Probably, he, too, was only guessing. But when rails drop as the ticker begins to buzz you, in positive terms, declare that it was caused by Mr. Highhat's statement reflected in the minds of the traders on the floor. In your little newspaper coop atop some downtown skyscraper, you watch the tape as it reels off its crazy code of letters and numerals, which you must be able to read if you are a Wall Street reporter, and you write something reasonable about the opening and there you stand.

* * *

THERE are some newspaper men who have wonderful contacts in Wall Street, but they do not use them every day or perhaps every week. These contacts may at times yield excellent and true information, but I believe most of the business is by process of deduction, rather than by any exact reporting rule. In other words you write "dope" or take hand-outs or pick your stuff up from the news bureaus. Once in a blue moon we read a story from Wall Street which expresses something more than the writer's opinion. Silence is the rule among the traders and bankers and the bigger they get the more Sphinx-like they grow. That silence is golden is no mere phrase in Wall Street.

* * *

IN my day in the Street the best news source was James Rascovar, the brilliant news chief of the Wall Street News Bureau. When news of his death was published a few years ago a thousand newspaper men must have sent up a prayer, for "Jimmy" Rascovar was always good to cubs. He was never too busy to receive them and never unwilling to give a steer. For a lifetime he lived in the very center of the financial swirl and had the complete confidence of the leading bankers and brokers. If anyone could know anything it would be he. Yet, on many an occasion, he has told me that the only way to cover stories on which I happened to be struggling was to reason out the situation and write from logic rather than any definite information I might obtain. Of course, it is wholly unreasonable to believe that a reporter can work in Wall Street on the rules that govern assignments where the news is enacted in plain view or is possible of open verification. Bankers, brokers, traders, customers are engaged in a terrific competition, a battle of wits. Knowledge of a fact that will affect the value of the stock is like so much sugar in the grocer's barrel. One does not go around passing out his tips. He cuddles them to his breast and trades on them for profit. When a news announcement is made it is a sure bet that it is after the fact or is necessary to the success of some venture. "Beats" are almost impossible, though they do occur. The time element is at highest premium in the financial news department. If, for instance, one of the competing ticker services can flash an important fact 30 seconds ahead it is considered a triumph. Half a minute may mean to a trader the difference between loss and profit. The amazing grist of quotations that the newspapers of the country are now printing, exchange, bond and curb, creates a monumental task for sheet writers and operators. These lists are delivered complete only a short time after the market closes at 3 o'clock (noon on Saturday) and hundreds of newspapers have them on the street within a few minutes to an hour. This is made possible by working the lists, much as brokerage houses post them, up to closing time so that only the last changes need to be made. The mechanics of the news operation in Wall Street offer a subject for a complete article.

* * *

DOUBTLESS an interview with J. Pierpont Morgan, on an important financial situation, would be called the best possible average story in the street, but Mr. Morgan is not talkative. In this he resembles his father, founder of the great international banking house. However many newspaper men have memories of brief talks with the elder Morgan. I recall having once succeeded in reaching his office, a glass enclosed room located near the center of the old bank at the corner of Broad and Wall Streets, I had called to see him about an anthracite coal strike situation and the old gentleman gave me little satisfaction. I interviewed him on the occasion of a birthday and sought desperately to get him to yield his business philosophy, always sure to catch first pages, but he scorned my approaches. No Horatio Alger success poses for him!

* * *

MANY newspaper men going into Wall Street believe that it is a desirable berth on the possibliity of getting rich quick, but I have never known reporters there to cash in in any large way. Indeed, most of the Wall Street reporters I have known are not speculators. This in itself is a tip-off on the uncertainty of the news and how tight and guarded are the business secrets. A financial reporter, hailing from Cincinnati, once told me that he had been called into the private office of a famous old bear operator soon after his arrival in the Street and given a tip. A certain stock, according to the operator, was bound to jump half a dozen points within a day or two. The foxy operator, who knew the reporter was green, advised him to buy and bring in his friends and the "come-on" proceeded to do this and also to spread the story. Unwittingly he created a market for the operator who was very anxious to sell and, of course, he lost his little wad. Wall Street history is replete with friendly little acts like that.

* * *

JUDGE ELBERT H. GARY is sometimes willing to talk to a newspaper man, if the subject is to his liking. Charles M. Schwab has been more candid and generous than the average, and is invariably courteous to reporters. Charles E. Mitchell, who has risen from the plane of a bond salesman to the head of the billion-dollar National City Bank, is very approachable and will give an interview when the occasion is appropriate. Otto H. Kahn talks now and then, but seems more interested in the opera than in finance in these days. But the average big figure in finance is never quoted, though some receive favored reporters and may tip them to stories.

* * *

IN the old days John W. Gates was a great source of news and was always trailed by newspaper men. Big and bluff, he would talk on occasion and really say something. Appearance of his name always reminds me of a queer incident in his life. One Christmas eve I happened to be in the Waldorf-Astoria lobby and met a newspaper man who was in Gates' employ.

"I have just been upstairs with the old man," he said. "None of the members of his family are about and he is lonesome. And what do you suppose he did this afternoon? He sent a porter out to a toy store to purchase a basketful of little animal toys, wooly sheep and little papier maché dogs and cats and he is up there now playing with his fox-terrier, throwing these toys to the dog and watching him tear them up." My friend thought it was humorous. To me it seemed a trifle ghastly, with Third Avenue and its teeming tenements only three blocks off.

* * *

HETTY GREEN, in her little office in the rear of the Chemical National Bank, was always interesting to the reporters of my day in the Street. In her faded black clothes, looking more like a peddler of shoestrings than a multimillionaire trader in stocks and bonds, she made her way around Wall Street and sometimes snapped out some statement that a newspaper man could use. On one occasion she dropped a fortune in Tennessee Coal and Iron stock and became so excited in Gates' brokerage house that she finally fell to the floor and rolled about as if in physical agony. Hetty Green I remember as one of the strangest women I have ever met in newspaper work.

* * *

BUT Wall street is an assignment I do not want to catch. It seems to me like the bunk. I realize that secu holding has spread over the land that financial news is of the gre importance to a large section of reading public and that those who c to this interest are in a legitimate, deed very serviceable vocation. But responsibility is too great for my te constitution. I like to write wha know, or at least think that I hav basis for a published statement of fac

WORKED DESPITE INJURIES

Veteran Reporter Continued Con tion Assignment with Broken Nos

M. E. Sanders, veteran correspond editor of the Scranton Times, who is to the 70 mark, recently met with ser injuries at Oneonta, N. Y., where he to report a meeting of the Wyon Methodist conference, but in spite of accident he remained on the job thro out the sessions. Mr. Sanders won torial praise in the Times for his loy On the night of his arrival in Oneo and while on his way to a hotel, Sanders stumbled on a curbstone and to the sidewalk. He suffered a bro nose and body bruises. Many you men would have gone to a hospital would have asked for relief from a we assignment, but not Mr. Sanders. Inst of asking for relief he wired the Scra Times that he would carry on in spit his injuries. He stayed on the job f week and finished up his assignment scoring a "beat" on the assignment pastors for the coming year. Mr. San is said to have reported more Metho conferences than any other newspa man in the country. He has bee member of the Times staff for nearly years.

CELEBRATES 30th YEAR

Members of the various department the Scranton (Pa.) Sunday Scranto attended a banquet celebrating the pap 30th anniversary. A week before the ner the newspaper issued a special edi of 104 pages.

The Republican-Journal

ANGORA PACTS WITH TURKS IS GIVEN PUBLIC — SMITH TAKES UP BATTLE ON POWER ISSUE — TWO TO

Now Set In

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

Ionic No. 5

WORLD'S SERIES
By PLAYOGRAPH

Exhibit at A. N. P. A. Convention

"Watch the Ball"

The slogan made famous by
THE PLAYOGRAPH
ORANGE N. J.

Leads, Slugs and Rules
All You Need!

THE Elrod Slug Caster brings to the composing room an inexhaustible source of supply for leads, slugs and plain rules of various point sizes cut to any length.

Practically automatic and extremely simple, it can be operated with minimum attention by almost anyone.

Changes from one size or kind of product to another are made quickly.

Elrod material is solid and stands up under the most severe press and stereotyping conditions.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Ave., Chicago
Boston—Atlanta
New York—San Francisco

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

What we have to Sell!

—more eloquent than any sales talk of ours is the following letter from JOHN P. S. MAHONEY, Publisher, Lawrence Telegram

McCoy Health Service
Brack Shops Bldg.
Los Angeles, California.

Gentlemen:

There was something about the person of Dr. McCoy that created a confidence with contact, plus the charm of a distinct personality. There is nothing so far-fetching with a newspaper staff as confidence. Our staff now has more confidence than ever on the McCoy health service and this is due solely to the Doctor himself. The entire staff of our papers with one accord, became pronounced McCoyites.

To say that the Doctor was well received by the Lawrence audience is putting it very mildly. We have constantly been besieged by those who failed to take advantage of the opportunity to hear Dr. McCoy speak, to have him make a return visit to Lawrence and give another lecture. Those who heard the Doctor are loud in their praise and a few went so far as to say that, were they compelled to pay an admission fee of five dollars or more, they would gladly give the fee to hear Dr. McCoy.

While here Dr. McCoy, with great ease and alacrity, answered question after question propounded to him by the audience which took a deep interest in his talk. This ease and alacrity created an impression among his hearers, which has since been broadcasted by those who listened, that is really impossible for us to describe. Possibly at this time it might be well for me to use a business expression or street byword and say that the TELEGRAM-SUN, as well as the people of Lawrence who heard him are completely "sold" on Dr. McCoy and his service.

We trust that in the not far distant future Dr. McCoy will again visit Lawrence and we can assure you that we doubt if there is a single assembly hall that will be able to accommodate the people who want to hear Dr. McCoy. Now, just a word in closing. The writer of this letter has had many years experience in health affairs, in courts and out of courts. By profession he was compelled to prepare himself so that he could intelligently cross-examine the medical fraternity upon the witness stand and he is most pleased to say that Dr. McCoy's lectures and service combined, if heard and read and followed, will mean for every individual who does this, better health, better vigor and better determination to carry on in this world.

Very truly yours,
TELEGRAM-SUN Publishing Co.,
John P. S. Mahoney,
Publisher.

What can I do for my READERS? and for my PAPER?

This is the daily question asked in every Newspaper Office. Give them Dr. McCoy's daily health articles—the benefits to your readers and to you constitute personal appeals that will get and hold reader confidence and circulation. In your newspaper experience have you ever had anything of such worth to offer your Readers? One paper in each City will get this scheme—will that Paper be YOURS?

McCoy Health Service

1305 Brack Shops Bldg. Los Angeles, Cal.

Please send me particulars and price of your Daily Health Service for my Paper.

Name of Paper .....

Address .....

Name and Title .....

BIG FORESTRY PROGRAM READY FOR CONGRESS

Annual Appropriation of $40,000,000 for 10 Years Will Be Requested to Be Spent Like Road Fund Co-operatively With Smaller Units—Replacement of Forests Regarded as Test of Civilization

By GEORGE G. WHEAT

PLANS are now being made to ask the coming Congress to appropriate $40,000,000 a year for ten years for reforestation purposes. This money is to be made available so that the Federal Government can co-operate with States, counties, and smaller governing units in the safeguarding and restoration of forest areas, following a procedure similar to that by which the nation's highway system has been and is being extended. The decision on this method was reached after careful consultation with many leaders of the reforestation movement.

One fact is outstanding—Congress has not taken very seriously past requests for small appropriations when these are viewed in comparison with the large task which forestry leaders have outlined to Congress committees.

Thoughtful readers will recall that it was shown last April in these columns that billions of capital investment will be required to create forests large enough to supply our present annual takings. It has also been shown in earlier articles that while the economic trends are changing our total demands in some major particulars, the annual total takings from the forest do not decline. Just what the future demands will be, no one nor all experts can forecast with any degree of accuracy. This phase, the determining phase of our future actual creation of forests, will be studied with care, and future articles will point out the best conclusions that can be reached.

Logical thinkers will wish a brief review of what was asked from the last Congress and what was gained.

The principal item for expansion of forest areas and actual reforestation was the McNary-Woodruff Bill. This bill asked for $4,000,000 per year for a period of ten years. Director of the Budget Lord had asked that the item be pared to $2,000,000 per year for a two-year period. In the Senate this change was made. Later, an amendment was passed which confined the purchase of lands to the headwaters of navigable streams. Then the bill was once more passed in the Senate carrying the original request.

In the House, Congressman Haugen, Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, was successful in amending this Senate bill and getting it passed in the House. The amendment cut the bill back to the $2,000,000 per year for a two-year period. Finally the whole attempt died in the filibuster.

Some other measures passed by Congress deserve notice. This annual appropriation for the Forestry Service stands at $17,243,570. This includes $6,500,000 for forest roads and trails. Co-operative fire protection, fire weather warning work, western white pine blister rust, and research work on naval stores received a sum total of increase of about $187,000.

The Stanfield Grazing Bill was made applicable to Alaska.

Of some interest was the establishment of a National Arboretum calling for $300,000. A bill was also introduced to create a new Cabinet Department for Conservation.

Courtesy of Philip W. Ayres, Forester of Society for Protection of New Hampshire Forests.

Twenty-two thousand five hundred acres of virgin spruce forest near Waterville, N. H. This is the last known stand. Some spruce has been removed in portions. A united group of New England forest interests unsuccessfully tried to get Congress to buy this tract as a reserve and to round out the White Mountain National Forest. Save this picture if you wish to see what the original forests were. The logging road of a sawmill company was scheduled to enter this tract in March. One million dollars would have bought it.

What is the sum total?

This Congress did not do anything substantial for increase of forest lands, nor for increase of reforestation, even on our present owned forests.

We should know just what was conplated by this McNary-Woodruff Bill. The intent was to complete the program which has long been under way under the Weeks law. This $40,000,000 was to be used to buy 7,500,000 acres. One-third was to be in New England, one-third in the Southern Appalachians and one-third in the Southern States.

The Weeks law, conceived and started soon after 1900, was passed in 1911. The only constitutional grounds under which the Federal Government was then found to be empowered to act, was under the control of watersheds on the headwaters of navigable streams. The Clarke-McNary Act of the last previous Congress removed this limitation and permitted the Federal Government to extend forest holding upon a commercial basis. This was a large advance of powers favorable to reforestation.

What has been done to date under the Weeks law program?

About $14,000,000 expended has gained slightly over 2,000,000 acres. Of this but 462,000 acres are in New England where the pulp and paper industry needs forests. Divide 16 years into $14,000,000 and we get less than one million per year. We are now standing with but one million dollars, the usual appropriation, available under the Clarke-McNary Act—practically marking time.

There is no ground for discouragement in the fact that we have not made great progress to date. We have not asked for much. Had we got all that has been asked for, we would not be much better off. The sum total would not have increased our forest acreage and our reforestation in any degree comparable with the sum total of our need. This is the primary reason why the plans are now being made to ask Congress for something sizable.

Readers will recall that the country has 81,000,000 acres of entirely denuded, non self-restocking forest lands. These must be actually re-planted in order to grow timber. These lands are the least desirable private opportunity. They are much talked about.

The way in which forest extension can be done with results favorable to our future pulp and paper supply will be made clear by showing where these lands lie. Thirty-four million acres are in New England and the Middle Atlantic, the Lake and the Central States, where about 85 per cent of our paper making is concentrated. Another 34,000,000 acres lies in the South Atlantic, East Gulf and Lower Mississippi States. Paper production is increasing in the South, but it is still below self-support. About 12,000,000 acres lie in the Western States. They have more sawmill waste from their present large industry and some expansion of paper-making is taking place there, but they are still below self-supply of paper. It is understood that economic pressure is forcing the western lumber industry to greater utilization of the timber being cut and the further expansion will take place paper-making there.

Therefore, it is clear that prom action to reforest lands in the pape making regions should be a direct obje tive of the publishing interests. Feder State and other government progress creating forests there will be a defini encouragement to private reforestatio Many mills have too few lands to supp their future a hence little encou agement at prese to do so. The on third of our tot forest lands th are held as far wood lots will once become pote tial sources of su ply of pulpwoo The assurance future marke from the perpetu tion of the pap industry and t co-operation an the direct assis ance of gover ment foresters encourage the far lot owner wi work out result A large share this farm wood l ownership is in t paper-making r gion.

It was show last April in the columns that b about 1,500,0 acres has thus f been actually r planted by a agencies agains the potential lan of the 81,000,0 acreage. The re progress that now being made b the timber-using i dustries towar forest manageme of lands and r growth equal to a nual cut is a mo interesting phase this entire subje

Exact knowled is hard to get. Much research must back of any presentation. This study being made and in future articles its r sults will be shown as far as can learned. The best that can be said he and now is that the spirit to place fores using industries on a permanent basis now healthy, even in spite of the fa that the largest match company has d cided to sell its cut-over lands. The tot accomplishment of forestry manageme of timber holdings, added to the total accomplished replanting, amounts to ju about enough minnows to serve for bai It is now time to try catching sizable fis

The way is now much more cleare for real action. The Clarke-McNar Act, permitting the Federal Governme to enter upon commercial forestry opera tions, the growth of the co-operation be tween all government agencies for fore fire protection and pest control, and th direct co-operation of these with privat timber holders in all ways all becom groundwork for a forward move.

Collective action has arrived and ha become well established in these Unite States. We refuse the Soviet metho and we refuse the Mussolini metho Every time that any sort of Federal o State control of private timber holding in the matters of selective cutting, slas disposal or replanting has been suggeste

(Continued on page 94)

United Press

A. N. P. A. Week

Headquarters

Green Room

Convention Floor

Waldorf-Astoria

BIG FORESTRY PROGRAM READY FOR CONGRESS

(Continued from page 92)

the cry that has risen has been heard nation-wide. Confiscation of private property, destruction of that personal liberty upon which the very foundations of government rest has been freely prophesied. Evidently we will not be able to embark upon any feudalistic or monarchistic systems of control of handling of private forest lands such as Europe works under with some success. We don't want Europe's system. We can outdo them.

But collective action has arrived. We swallowed collective action during the war. As fast as the general government taxes have been reduced we have shouldered bigger loads of State and local government taxes. We have piled up public bond indebtedness beyond all previous records.

I am moved to take a sub-polite fling at all the various and sundry writers and speakers whose constant headline is "One Out of Every Eight Is On the Public Payroll." All this popular stuff is simply a brag and a growl combined. When the last analysis is made, we find that we are just about where we want to be in this matter of mounting expenses or investments under collective action. We want the schools, roads, paving, bridges, canals, harbors, waterways, irrigation, subways, sewers, public health, flood-control works, water supplies, postal systems, aviation, and proper military establishments. These and a long list of other collective activities contribute to our living standards and those standards are going yet higher and will cost yet more. And what is true is that we are proud of it and going to be more so.

Now we want forests, we need forests and we are probably going to have forests. We want, and know we must have, the benefits that forests give us in their products, and we want the benefits that forests can preserve for us by keeping plenty of forests where they rightly belong. We have found that collective action is the way to get things that take money in large amounts. We have simply been a little longer in getting around to a decision about the forests than we have in several other things.

It is considered advisable to note one hesitancy that marks the minds of some of the foremost advocates of larger forests. There is a tendency to delay while creating more lines of research and making more surveys and testing out this and that place of the entire subject of how to grow suitable forests for our present industries. The fear is found that large mistakes can be made or that we will find out afterward that we might have done better and gained faster if we had but known more of what may possibly be found out from more extended research.

That spirit is healthy and it will grow, and research will grow and we will find out a lot of things. We get echoes of this constantly. Maybe crossbred trees will double the growth of pulpwood trees. Maybe new species of trees will run riot in yields.

But there is just one big mistake that far outweighs all the probable technical mistakes that can possibly be made. And that mistake is to do nothing and do it at the same rapid rate we have done it for the past quarter century.

We know enough about how trees grow, and that trees grow where they have grown. We know enough about how fast they grow to enable us to grow a lot of them and do it fast when we get at the job. Of course we will make technical mistakes in a sizable program embarked upon rapidly.

We have a large body of well-trained technicians, weather observers, climatologists, horticulturists, highly trained foresters. We have enough now to run all the work that we can possibly get started when we get what we ask for from Congress and what will follow from the States. Prompt disposal of all fear of any historic economic blunders can be made. Every fellow that is trained and thousands more that would at once enter training would promptly be all over the lot to help do the job just about right.

But as long as we delay upon the too much advice of the high technicians of forestry we will remain timid, and timidity does not do things. It wasn't timidity that produced the present national forests. We had been having our warnings ever since 1870 and even before. Finally by 1905 we had created our present Forest Service from earlier beginnings.

The real action came when Roosevelt was President. The need of Federal forests and Federal control of all possible lands had become clear to him from his own knowledge and that of his spunky adviser. So he began to set aside national forests from the unallotted public domain lands which were found suitable and advisable. This action, as continued, began to scare those who had been grabbing off all the timber lands they could lay hands on by hook or crook or settler subterfuge and could pay taxes upon. So these interests got busy. A bill was introduced in Congress to remove this executive power and vest it in Congress. Then the real fun began. Roosevelt put the Forest Service to work to select all suitable lands. In the race between the timber-grabbers chasing Congress and Roosevelt chasing his helpers and working overtime to write the Executive orders creating new national forests, Roosevelt won out in "bully" shape and had "the time of his life."

Mainly because these forests were then set aside, we have one-third of these forest lands under Government ownership and management. How much would we have had if Roosevelt had not acted as "audaciously" as he did? The rate at which we have gained new forests since 1911 is the correct answer. That rate as is well known is very slow.

The country is well sold already on the idea that we have the need and are going to create much more forest. This result is expected and is wanted. The steps to capitalize this situation call for direct and definite action now to get Uncle Sam's name on the dotted line.

When it comes to action, there will be plenty of room for every well-informed and even the ill-informed editor and publisher of newspapers to have his say and do his bit and plenty of it. There is confidence that plenty of material is available for that publisher's use.

The editor will be in the position of the high priest or the medicine man at that time.

The poet, the earliest journalist, said: "The groves were God's first temples." Those temples were the meeting place for men's minds. Thence came collective action of those primitive peoples for the group progress.

Today the grover, in the form of the daily news sheet and editorial, are still the temples, the meeting place for men's minds. Thence comes collective action for the group progress.

The real test of our economic civilization lies in how we solve our economic problems. In the matter of raw material supplies, the forests supply is the first test that has come to us. We have not yet met and solved such a problem of raw material supplies. The way we handle this first one will be a definite measure of our civilization and its right to survive. The outcome is not faced with any fear. The only shame thus far is in our slowness to get into action.

We know that it is practicable to get the forests. We know that we want them and that we are going to have them. We know that it will be profitable to grow them. We know what we want and pretty well how to get it. We know quite well enough how the thing should be done technically. The way is cleared for collective action.

ZELLERBACHS GET PULP AWARD

The Forest Service on April 19 awarded the purchase of 835,000,000 cubic feet of spruce and hemlock pulpwood on the Tongass National Forest, near Ketchikan, Alaska, to I. and J. D. Zellerbach of the Zellerbach Paper Corporation, San Francisco.

CLEVELAND ADVERTISING CLUB OPENS NEW QUARTERS IN ALLERTON HOTEL

Debate on War Debt Cancellation Features Formal Opening. Club Founded 25 Years Ago Now Has 1,000 Members.

IT was "Seth Brown's idea," and he put it across a quarter of a century ago. Thus came into existence the Cleveland Advertising Club, which, April 13, formally opened its new quarters in the Allerton Club Residence Hotel, East Thirteenth street.

A packed house greeted the distinguished speakers for the big luncheon. They were Congressman Theodore E. Burton, of Cleveland, and Sir George Paish, former financial adviser to the British chancellor of the exchequer. They debated the question, "Shall the United States Forgive Its European Debtors?"

Burton spoke against cancellation. Sir George pleaded for "forgiveness of the debts" Europe owes Uncle Sam. No decision was formally made. The debate was broadcast by radio station WTAM of the Willard Storage Battery Company, and local newspapers gave much space to the discussion which appears to have been really started when Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, former Secretary of War, published in the Clevelander, monthly house organ of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce of which he is past president, a lengthy article advocating the cancellation of war debts due us from European nations.

Seth Brown, who was in the advertising business 25 years ago, when bicycles and bustles were popular, was given credit for the vision which led to the creation of the club.

Advertisers were then fighting one another.

"What's the use," he said, "of all this fighting? What if we are competitors—can't we also be friends and maybe gentlemen? If we all pulled together instead of crosswise, we might pick up useful ideas from each other and so benefit the whole business."

With this idea in view he called a meeting of men interested in advertising at the old Forest City House. Printers, salesmen, writers and photo engravers attended, and while they all sat around a big dining-table Seth proposed his idea, the Cleveland Advertising Club, and he was elected president. He rented a small office and when dues were due he passed the hat. One of the charter members, A. H. Madigan, who was third president, today ranks as "dean" of the advertising men of Cleveland.

Seth later moved to Boston and established his own agency, but the club remained, took larger quarters in the Hollenden Hotel, and when the Statler was built E. M. Statler told the ad men he would "cut the quarters in the basement to suit their wants," and he did.

The club's forum luncheons arranged by a committee presided over by William Ganson Rose, have brought to the club luncheons such distinguished speakers as William Howard Taft, ex-president and chief justice of the United States Supreme Court; the late Lord Northcliffe, Kermit Roosevelt, Thomas R. Marshall, when he was vice-president; William Allen White, of Kansas; Emile Coue, John Hays Hammond, and others.

The club now has more than 1,000 members and it co-operates with the Better Business Commission and maintains its own school for teaching of advertising.

Carl P. Himmelman, publicity director for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, explained the art of newspaper advertising to members of the Club's school alumni association, April 8. He used diagrams to demonstrate his remarks.

